No.
PERIODICAL
ML5
.M85
8
1897
PUBLIC LIBRARY
OMNIVM LVX CIVIVM OF THE CITY OF BOSTON
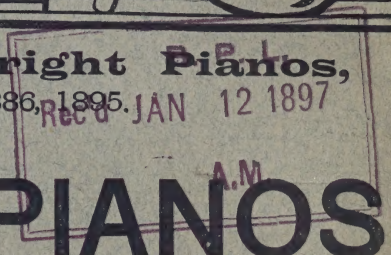
1852 1878



No. 647

THE MUSICAL TIMES

Price 4d.

JANUARY 1, 1897.

Highest Awards for Upright Pianos,
1862, 1877, 1878, 1881, 1885, 1886, 1895.

THE

"CHALLEN" PIANOS

ARE

"THE PERFECTION OF TONE AND TOUCH—ABSOLUTELY RELIABLE."

Vide Opinions of the Greatest Musicians of the day.

Sir John Stainer says: "Remarkable for purity of tone and highest-class workmanship."
Professor Franklin Taylor says: "Excellent touch, musical tone, and good wearing qualities."
Mr. Frederic H. Cowen says: "Will favourably compete with any English or foreign firm."
Mr. W. H. Cummings says: "Challen and Son's pianos invariably give complete satisfaction."

CHALLEN & SON, 46, Oxford Street, London, W.

ESTABLISHED IN THE REIGN OF GEORGE III.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE FORWARDED, POST-FREE, TO ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

Telegraphic Address—"MEDALLISTS, LONDON."

THE GENUINE

SCHIEDMAYER PIANOS

(Trade Mark:—SCHIEDMAYER PIANOFORTE FABRIK.)
(Vormals:—J. and P. SCHIEDMAYER.)

ARCHIBALD RAMSDEN offers these superb Instruments for Cash, and also on the "Three Years System," on the most advantageous Terms.

MADAME ALBANI writes:—"The delicacy and evenness of tone of the Schiedmayer Pianos I have seldom found equalled, and they are altogether most beautiful Instruments."

ARCHIBALD RAMSDEN, Ltd.

(SOLE IMPORTER INTO GREAT BRITAIN),

103, NEW BOND STREET, LONDON;
12, PARK ROW, LEEDS.

And also at his branch establishments at SCARBORO', DARLINGTON, MIDDLESBRO', JARROW, BLYTHE, GATESHEAD, BISHOP AUCKLAND, SPENNYMOOR, CONSETT, WEST HARTLEPOOL, HASWELL, and DONCASTER.

These Instruments may be had from the Principal Dealers throughout the Kingdom.

ERARD PIANOS.

SPECIAL NOTICE

TO

MUSICAL SOCIETIES AND THE PROFESSION.

Owing to the introduction in April of greatly improved New Model Upright and Grand Pianofortes, Messrs. ERARD have decided to offer the whole of their remaining Stock of Pianofortes, manufactured in England, at exceptionally advantageous terms.

EVERY INSTRUMENT GUARANTEED.

Complete List on application.

S. & P. ERARD, 18, Great Marlborough St., London, W.

CHAPPELL & CO.'S NEW HIGH CLASS PIANOS.

STYLES II., III., AND IV.

The TIMES of May 27 notices "Remarkably sweet quality and unusual sustaining power."
The DAILY NEWS of June 2 speaks of "Containing the tone and power of a grand pianoforte with the compactness of an ordinary cottage."
The ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS of June 24 says: "All the characteristics of a small grand, delicacy of touch, and abundance of tone-sustaining capacity."
TRUTH of June 8, the WESTMINSTER BUDGET, &c., are all equally favourable.

Agents for Clough and Warren's American Organs and Alexandre Harmoniums.

CHAPPELL & CO., 50, New Bond Street, W.

THE VIRGIL PRACTICE CLAVIER

THE VIRGIL PRACTICE CLAVIER (BRITISH) CO., Ltd.
(Chairman of the Board of Directors—Dr. CHARLES VINCENT.)
12, Princes Street, Hanover Square, London, W.

THE VIRGIL PIANO SCHOOL

AND SCHOOL OF PUBLIC PERFORMANCE,

CLAVIER HALL,

12, Princes Street, Hanover Square, London, W.

The Study of the Piano a Specialty, upon the basis of a Scientific and Positive Technic, as taught and developed by the methods and use of the Virgil Practice Clavier.
True Psychological Educational Laws the Underlying Principle.

A. K. VIRGIL . . . . . Principal
Specialist in Pianoforte Technic.
Assisted by Competent Teachers trained in the Special Methods Employed.

ALBERT BATE . . . . . Secretary
And Assistant Instructor.

Interesting Prospectus of the School, in which the Theories of the Clavier Method and System of Instruction are fully explained, will be sent free on application.

Address: THE SECRETARY.

April 16. 1898.
Pr. Conc.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

7 4041.230

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

Sm.37

No. 647.—Vol. 38. JANUARY 1, 1897. Price 4d.; Postage, 1½d.
Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Post-free, 5s.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY,

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Patron: HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF SAXE-COBURG AND GOTHA, DUKE OF EDINBURGH, K.G.
Conductor: Professor BRIDGE, Mus.D.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 21, AT 8.

SONG OF MIRIAM... ... SCHUBERT (Born Jan. 31, 1797)
AND
ISRAEL IN EGYPT ... HANDEL.

Artists:

Miss ESTHER PALLISER.	Mr. EDWARD LLOYD.
Miss MAGGIE PURVIS.	Mr. ANDREW BLACK.
Madame BELLE COLE.	Mr. WATKIN MILLS.

Organist, Mr. H. L. BALFOUR.

Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Arena, 6s.; Balcony (Reserved), 5s.; Unreserved, 4s.; Gallery (Promenade), 1s.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.

PRINCE CONSORT ROAD, SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.
President: H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.
Director: C. HUBERT H. PARRY, Esq., D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.
Hon. Sec.: CHARLES MORLEY, Esq., M.P.

TWELVE FREE OPEN SCHOLARSHIPS will be competed for in February next. Last day for entering, January 4.

ASSOCIATE of the ROYAL COLLEGE of MUSIC.

The Next Examination for Certificate of Proficiency with the above title will take place at the College in April, 1897.

The next TERM will commence on January 7. Entrance Examination, Tuesday, January 5.

Syllabus and Entry Forms may be obtained of
FRANK POWNALL, Registrar.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The F.R.C.O. and A.R.C.O. Examinations will respectively commence on January 4 and 11.

At the January examination Candidates for Fellowship must come prepared to play any portion or all of the following three organ compositions, the selection to be made by the Examiners:—Allegro (last movement) of Sonata, No. 6, Bach (Peters' Ed., Vol. I.; Novello and Co.'s Edition, Book 5); Fugue in D minor, C. Steggall (No. 91. Original Compositions for the Organ. Novello and Co.); Introduction and Fugue in C sharp minor, S. S. Wesley (No. 9. Original Compositions for the Organ, by S. S. Wesley, as edited by Dr. G. M. Garrett. Novello and Co.).

The College Library is open daily, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; also on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 5 to 7.

Members desiring practice on the College Organ may obtain particulars on application.

The large Hall, and sundry smaller rooms, may be hired for concerts, meetings, &c.

E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.

Hart Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.—

Established by the Corporation of London, 1880.

Principal, W. H. CUMMINGS, Esq.—Improvisation, Accompanying, Sight Singing, Elocution, Sight Reading (Instrumental), Choral, Orchestral, and Operatic Classes. Prospectus and further particulars of the Secretary. By order of the Committee, Victoria Embankment, E.C. HILTON CARTER, Secretary.

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

Examinations for Degrees in Music are held in March and September. Full particulars, with copies of former papers, of Dr. Armes, The Bailey, Durham.

PRIZE COMPETITION.

The Proprietors of the Lute hereby offer TWO PRIZES of £10 and £5 respectively for the two best ANTHEMS FOR EASTER, on popular lines, and suitable for Parish Choirs.

Full particulars will be found in the January Number of the Lute. Patey and Willis, 44, Great Marlborough Street, W.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

TENTERDEN STREET, W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.

Patrons: HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND THE ROYAL FAMILY.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF SAXE-COBURG AND GOTHA.
Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus. Doc.

Lent Term begins January 11, Entrance Examination therefor, Thursday, January 7, at 11.

Lectures by W. NICHOLL, Esq., Wednesdays, January 13 and 20, at 3.15.

Lecture by C. WILLIAMS, Esq., Wednesday, January 27, at 3.15.

Fortnightly Concert, Saturday, January 30, at 8.

Sainton-Dolby Scholarship for Sopranos, last day for entry, December 31.

George Mence Smith Scholarship for Male Vocalists, last day for entry, January 1.

Prospectus, Entry Forms, and all information may be obtained from the Secretary. F. W. RENAUT, Secretary.

PEOPLE'S PALACE, E.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 23, at 8,

SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S "GOLDEN LEGEND" will be performed by the PEOPLE'S PALACE CHORAL SOCIETY.

Vocalists:

Miss FLORENCE BETHELL, Miss MARIE HOOTON,
Mr. EDWARD BRANSCOMBE, Mr. FREDERIC HOSKING,
AND
Mr. BANTOCK PIERPOINT.

Conductor: Mr. C. H. ALLEN GILL.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

Instituted by the Victoria College Corporation, Ltd. Incorporated, 1891.

Patrons:
The Rt. Hon. THE MARQUIS OF LORNE, K.T.
The Rt. Hon. THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

Director:
J. H. LEWIS, Mus. Doc., D.C.L.

Registrar:
GEORGE PRIOR, Mus. Doc., Oxon.

Bursar:
W. F. W. JACKSON, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

Local and Higher (Practical) Examinations are now being held at the various Centres.

Next LOCAL THEORETICAL EXAMINATION, April 7, 1897.

METROPOLITAN EXAMINATIONS, in all Subjects, and for all Grades, including the Diplomas of Associate (A.V.C.M.), Associate in Music (A.Mus.V.C.M.), Licentiate (L.V.C.M.), and Licentiate in Music (L.Mus.V.C.M.) will be held April 7, 1897.

The Educational Department is under the direction of Dr. Prior.

Local Secretaries required for towns not already represented.

Full particulars on application.

GEO. A. STANTON, F.G.C.M., Secretary.

Central Office: 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.

RE MAURICE REID deceased.—Pursuant to the Statute 22nd and 23rd Victoria Cap. 35. Notice is hereby given that all CREDITORS and persons having any claims or demands upon or against the ESTATE of MAURICE REID late of 436 Oxford Street London and 6 Queen Anne Villas Hendon Middlesex Music Publisher deceased trading as Reid Bros. (who died on 28th September 1896 and whose Will was proved by John Young of 37 Lombard Street in the City of London the Executor therein named on the 12th October 1896 in the Principal Probate Registry of Her Majesty's High Court of Justice) are hereby required to send in the particulars of their claims or demands to the undersigned on or before the 30th January 1897. And notice is hereby also given that after that day the said Executor will proceed to distribute the Assets of the deceased among the parties entitled thereto having regard only to the claims of which the said Executor shall then have notice and that he will not be liable for the Assets or any part thereof so distributed to any person or persons of whose debt or claim he shall not then have had notice.

Dated this 8th day of December 1896.

SWEETLAND & GREENHILL 23 Fenchurch Street London E.C. Solicitors for the Executor.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS FLORENCE ARMRIDING (Soprano)
(Pupil of Mr. Shakespeare and Medalist, R.A.M.).
Oratorios, Concerts, Lessons, &c., at 20, Conduit Street. Address, Leicester Villa, Ealing, W.

MISS MAUDE BALLARD (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Press notices and terms, 13, Herbert Road, Stockwell, S.W.

MISS LOUISE BURNS (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, and At Homes.
Bronze and Silver Medalist, R.A.M.; Cert. Performer and Teacher, R.A.M. Apply, for terms, dates, and Press notices, to 55, Crowndale Road, Oakley Square, N.W.

MISS SIREMA BURTON (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Organ Recitals, and At Homes.
Address, Ivy Bank, Carlton, near Nottingham.

MADAME CONWAY (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, Lessons, Press Notices, &c.
444, Moss Lane East, Oxford Road, Manchester.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 237, Katherine Street, Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS FUSSELLE (Soprano)
Licentiate (Artist), R.A.M.
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. 37, Harrington Square, N.W.

MADAME GOODALL (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Address, Leeds.

MADAME NELLIE GOSNELL (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c., address, 37, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Square, N.W.

MADAME KATE HARTLEY (Soprano)
Oratorios, Ballads, At Homes, &c.
Coverdale House, Lancaster.

MISS EMMA HINES (Soprano)
MR. JOHN HINES (Tenor)
For Concerts, Banquets, At Homes, &c.
45, Pattison Road, Plumstead, S.E.

MISS BESSIE HOLT (Soprano)
Kindly address, Rawtenstall, near Manchester.

MADAME RUTH LAMB (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
Recommended by Dr. Bridge, of Westminster.
17, Warwick Square, Carlisle.

MISS ADA LEE (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c. Address, 164, Strand, W.C.

MADAME MARIE MALLIA (Soprano)
Oratorios and Concerts. Claremont, Hermon Hill, Snaresbrook, N.E.

MISS FLORENCE MONK (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. 26, Portland Road, Finsbury Park, N.

MISS ANNIE NORLEDGE (Soprano)
For Oratorios and Ballad Concerts. For Press notices and terms, address, 221, South Lambeth Road, London, S.W.
Telegrams: "Norledge," London.

MISS ALICE OWEN (Soprano)
Address, John Stedman, Esq., 58, Berners Street, W.

MISS MARGARET PEARSON (Soprano)
Concerts, Oratorios, &c.
Special: "Creation," "Elijah," and "Stabat Mater" (Rossini).
For terms, &c., 58, Castle Street, Stockport.

MADAME BLANCHE POWELL, A.R.A.M. (Sop.)
For Oratorios, Opera Recitals, &c.
1, Penywern Road, South Kensington, S.W.

MISS LIZZIE SCOTT (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts. Address, 38, York Road, Northampton.
En route dates vacant for North and Welsh Border Counties.

MISS FANNIE SELLERS (Soprano)
"BRIDE OF DUNKERRON."—"Miss Sellers won a splendid reputation by her exquisite singing of the somewhat difficult parts which fell to her lot. . . . A beautiful voice, clear, true, under perfect control."—Newport Advertiser, December 12, 1896.
Oratorios, Concerts, &c., Crag Cottage, Knaresbro'.

MISS KATE SHIELDS (Soprano, Medalist, R.A.M.)
(Of the Crystal Palace and Principal Provincial Concerts).
"The Messiah," "Elijah," "Creation," &c.
For terms and Press notices, apply, 137, Tweedale Street, Rochdale.

MISS C. THEODORIC (Soprano and Accompanist)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 37, Binfield Road, Clapham.

MISS EMMA THOMSON, R.C.M. (Soprano)
"An exceptionally fine voice."—Dundee Advertiser.
The Grove, W. Keptie Street, Arbroath, N.B.

MISS LILIAN TURNBULL (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Banquets, &c.
Address, 10, Cecile Park, Crouch End, N.

MISS HELEN DE WOLVELEY (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Cantatas, Ballad Concerts.
744, High Road, Tottenham, N. Charity Concerts, Expenses.
"Possesses a sweet melodious voice."—Western Independent.

MISS MARY WILLIS (Mezzo-Soprano)
For Oratorios, Operas, Concerts, or Private Lessons, address, 9, Rochester Terrace, Camden Road, N.W.

MISS BOWMONT (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. 51, Mercer Street, Hulme, Manchester.
"Remarkably strong voice of deep and mellow tone."—Halifax Courier.

MISS BERYL CLIVE (Contralto)
"Prominent among the artists was Miss Beryl Clive, a vocalist of more than average ability. She possesses a rich contralto voice of excellent range, and sang with the skill and intelligence of an accomplished artist."—Nottingham Daily Guardian, Dec. 4, 1895.
"MESSIAH," TOWN HALL, STOURBRIDGE.—"Miss Clive has a deep and powerful contralto voice, and her singing was marked by power, sweetness, and pathos. Although her interpretation of all her pieces was of a finished character, yet we think she reached her highest point of excellence in the exquisite air 'He shall feed His flock like a shepherd.'"—Stourbridge Advertiser, Jan. 4, 1896.
Address, 30, Pepys Road South, St. Catherine's Park, S.E.

MISS LILIAN CLOSE (Contralto)
"Miss Lilian Close obtained an encore for her splendid rendering of 'Woe unto them' and the ever-welcome 'Rest in the Lord,' which she was compelled to repeat. 'Cast thy burden' was exquisitely sung by the principal artists."—Kent Messenger.
"Miss Lilian Close possesses a full and sympathetic contralto voice."—Surrey Comet.
Address, 134, Goldhawk Road, W.

MISS FLORENCE CROFT (Contralto)
MR. D'ARCY CLAYTON (Tenor)
88, Lady Margaret Road, London, N.

MADAME CLARA DORAN (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes.
39, Malvern Road, Kilburn, N.W.

MISS EMILY FOXCROFT, A.L.A.M. (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, At Homes, &c.
76, Calabria Road, Highbury Place, N.

MISS ELSIE MACMILLAN (Contralto)
Oratorios, Concerts, Banquets, &c.
Address, 5, Hill Street, Rutland Gate, S.W.

MISS FANNY MILLSON (Contralto)
For Oratorio and Ballad Concerts.
For terms and vacant dates, Selwood House, Brigg.

MISS RINA ROBINSON (Contralto)
For Oratorio and Ballad Concerts. 80, Tufnell Park Road, N.
References kindly permitted to Dr. A. H. Mann, Dr. E. H. Turpin, and Mr. F. A. W. Docker.

MISS HELEN SAUNDERS, A.R.A.M. (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Banquets, At Homes, &c.
25, Cloudesley Street, Barnsbury, N.

MISS LOTTIE SWEENEY (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, Miss Sweeney, Vocalist, Armley, Leeds.

MISS ALICE WOLSTENHOLME (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Address, Radcliffe, Manchester.

MR. CHARLES RAY (Solo Alto)
(Late of Lichfield Cathedral)
Principal Alto, Holy Trinity, Sloane Street, S.W.
"Voice is a sweet and pure natural Alto."—The Citizen, Dec., 1896.
For terms, vacant dates, &c., address, 21, Oakley Road, Canonbury, N.

MR. WRIGHT BEAUMONT (Tenor)
(Bronze and Silver Medalist and Certificate, R.A.M.).
Address, 20, Lavender Gardens, Clapham Junction, S.W.

MR. TOM CHILD (The Yorkshire Tenor)
(Principal Tenor, Parish Church, Leeds)
Winner of the 100 Guineas Prize, Music Trades Exhibition, 1896.
For terms and vacant dates, address, Hollingside, Horsforth.

MR. WALTER CLINCH (Tenor)
(Late of St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle).
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c., address, Athole House, Alfred Road, Acton, W.

MR. OTTO DENE (Tenor)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, Masonic Work, &c.
Address, 132, Norwood Road, S.E.;
or, to W. B. Healey & Son, 17, Great Marlborough Street, W.

MR. CHARLES ELLISON (Tenor)
(Late Principal Tenor, Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company, Crystal Palace, and St. James's Hall Concerts, &c.)
For Opera, Operatic Recital, Oratorio, Concerts. Address, 42, Florence Road, New Cross, S.E.

MR. EDWIN KELLETT (Tenor)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
109, Cemetery Road, Beeston Hill, Leeds.

MR. GWILYM RICHARDS (Tenor)
Winner of Joseph Maas Memorial Prize,
" " Goldberg Prize,
" " Evill Prize,
At the Royal Academy of Music.
Of the Crystal Palace and St. James's Hall Concerts.
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts. 30, Redburn Street, Chelsea, S.W.

MR. THURGATE SIMPSON (Tenor)
For Oratorios, Operatic Recitals, Ballad Concerts
(Specially engaged for Oratorios).
For répertoire, Press opinions, terms, &c.
Address, Collyhurst, Manchester.

MR. HERBERT STANSFIELD (Solo Tenor)
For Oratorios, Concerts, 94, Lowther Street; or, Minster Choir, York.

MR. JOHN W. STOKER (Solo Tenor)
(Llandaff Cathedral).
For Concerts, &c., address, The Cathedral.

MR. NORMAN WALLS (Tenor)
(Pupil of Isidore de Solla).
Oratorios Concerts, At Homes, care of Mr. Coppock, 109, Grosvenor Road, Highbury New Park, London, N.

MR. HERBERT ALDRIDGE (Baritone)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, Saxonbury Villa, Buxton Road, Stratford, E.

MR. GORDON HELLER (Baritone)
Oratorios, &c., 20, Blenheim Terrace, Leeds.

MR. W. J. LAWSON (Baritone)
(Principal Bass, Rochdale Parish Church).
Address, 98, Halifax Road, Rochdale.

MR. HARRY MILLER
(Principal Baritone, Llandaff Cathedral).
Oratorio and Ballad Concerts, &c. Address, The Cathedral.

MR. WILLIAM THORNTON (Baritone).
"For Mr. Thornton we have nothing but the highest praise. In our opinion he is the best baritone heard at these concerts for many years. He has a grand voice, and knowing its resources and powers he has the artistic gift of utilising it to the best advantage."—Mossley Reporter, October 24, 1896.
"Of the singing of Mr. Thornton there could be no two opinions. Seldom has it been the privilege of a Fleetwood audience to listen to a more cultured vocalist. He sang in a manner that stamped him as an artist of the first rank."—Fleetwood, March 2, 1896.
For terms and open dates, address, Oakenshaw, Bradford.

MR. JOHN BROWNING
(Principal Bass, Leeds Parish Church Choir).
"ELIJAH."—"It would be difficult to say which of the many important numbers that fall to the bass soloist Mr. Browning did best. We have absolutely no preference. They are all gems of different colour, and they were all presented by Mr. Browning with voice and style and unfailing accuracy that left nothing to be desired. The whole work suits him admirably."—Whitehaven News, Dec. 10, 1896.
"MESSIAH."—"Mr. Browning was consistently excellent in all his efforts, and we have not often heard the bass music rendered with more refinement of manner and ease than was the case under notice."—Huddersfield Examiner.
"Mr. John Browning was in fine voice, and his artistic and conscientious singing throughout, but especially in the sustained music, was most marked."—Huddersfield Chronicle, Dec. 12, 1896.

MR. TOM WATERHOUSE
(The Popular Baritone).
For Oratorios, Operas, Orchestral Concerts, Recitals, &c.
"Mr. Tom Waterhouse acquitted himself in a manner which gave extreme pleasure to the large audience."—Lancaster Standard, August 29, 1896.
For terms, &c., address, Tatton Street, Stalybridge.

MISS LILIAN BEADLE, G.S.M.
First-Class Certificate Society of Arts (Solo Pianist and Accompanist). 2, Museum Mansion, W.C.

MR. G. BROUGHTON BRENTNALL (Alto), of the "Ivanhoe Glee Singers," requests that all communications respecting Concerts, Banquets, &c., be addressed to 69, Abbey Street, Derby. Terms, Press notices, &c., on application.
"Mr. G. Broughton Brentnall's rendering of his songs was a musical treat."—Swadlincote Times.
"The feature of the evening was the singing of Mr. G. Broughton Brentnall's songs, for which he was vociferously encored."—Long Eaton Advertiser.

MR. SINCLAIR DUNN (Tenor) requests that all communications respecting Concerts, Oratorios, Operas, Lessons, &c., be addressed to him at 67, Berners Street, W.

MR. WILLIAM HILLIER (Principal Tenor). Opera, Concert, or Oratorio. REMOVED to 32, Brook Street, S.E.

MR. ARTHUR F. JOHNS (Tenor) will be pleased to accept Engagements for Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, Banquets, &c. Address, 202, Grove Road, Bow, E.

MR. HAROLD C. PORTWAY (Baritone), Medalist, R.A.M. (Pupil of Arthur Oswald, Esq., London, and Maëstri Cima and Vidal, Milan, Italy), is now prepared to book Engagements for Church Oratorios, Concerts, Masonic Banquets, &c.
ORGAN RECITAL.—"But the feature of the evening was the solos of Mr. H. C. Portway, whose rendering of a setting of Newman's 'Lead, kindly Light,' was marked by much feeling, and quite moved the audience. He was no less successful in 'Tears of Sorrow' (Spohr)."—East Essex Times.
Address, 76, Redesdale Street, Tedworth Square, Chelsea, S.W.

MR. EGBERT ROBERTS (Bass, Conductor, Italian Church, Hatton Garden) requests that all communications respecting Oratorios, Opera, or Concerts be addressed, 45, Pentonville Road, N.

HAND-BELLS.—Mr. ARTHUR J. MANGER. Concerts, Dinners, At Homes, &c. 100, Manor Road, Brockley, S.E.

MISS
FANNY DE BOUFFLERS
(SOPRANO)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Recitals, address, Carlton House, Liverpool.
Agent: N. Vert.

MISS ADA LOARING
(SOPRANO)
Merrion, Wellington Road, Peckham, S.E.

MADAME LAURA SMART
(SOPRANO)
Oratorios, Operatic Recitals, Ballad Concerts.
Address, 106, Bolingbroke Grove, Wandsworth Common, S.W.; or, 50, Church Street, Liverpool.

MADAME MARIE HOOTON
AND
MR.
EDWARD BRANSCOMBE
Beg to announce their return from Australia.
Address, 47, Ridgmount Gardens, W.C.

MR. CHARLES CHILLEY
Begs to announce that he has REMOVED to 38, Carson Road, West Dulwich, S.E.

MR.
HAMLYN CRIMP
(TENOR)
For terms and vacant dates, please apply, The Woodlands, Heathfield Road, Birmingham.
Concert Parties arranged.

MR. JAMES GAWTHROP
(TENOR)
(Gentleman of Her Majesty's Chapel Royal, St. James's Palace).
Address, 5, Hazelmere Road, Brondesbury Road, N.W.

MR. BRIGHT JONES
(TENOR)
BEETHOVEN'S "ENGEDI."—"The prolonged recitative, 'Jehovah! hear,' and the aria, 'Oh, my heart is sore within me,' were splendidly sung by Mr. Bright Jones, who has a pure tenor voice, of large compass and great power, especially in the upper register, and who thoroughly enters into the spirit of his work, singing with true dramatic instinct. His performance was deserving of the highest praise."—Weston-super-Mare Gazette, December 12, 1896.
"Mr. Bright Jones, in the tenor rôle of 'David,' created a marked impression. In the plaintive recitative, 'Jehovah! hear,' the purity and flexibility of his voice were brought out with splendid results, and the great aria, 'Oh! my heart is sore within me,' was rendered in a manner little short of perfection. At the conclusion of the performance a consensus of opinion existed that Mr. Bright Jones is the best tenor yet heard in oratorio in the town, an opinion fully sustained by fact."—Western Mercury and Somersetshire Herald, December 12, 1896.
For terms and vacant dates, apply, N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork St., W.

MR. JOSEPH O'MARA,
IN AMERICA.
Address, Lorn's Exchange, New York;
or, Mr. N. Vert, 6, Cork Street, W.

MR.
KEVERN BATTEN
(L.R.A.M., BARITONE)
For Concerts, &c., address, 9, Adelaide Road, N.W.

MR.
A. MONTAGUE BORWELL
L.R.A.M., A.G.S.M. (BARITONE).
Prize-winner, Solo Singing and Sight Reading, Stratford Musical Festival. Medalist, Soc. Arts.
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. 16, Springfield, Upper Clapton, N.E.

MR.
CHARLES COPLAND
(BARITONE).

Principal London appearances:
Royal Choral Society's Concerts, 1895-96.
Royal Albert Hall (Scotch Festival).
Queen's Hall (Choral Society's Concerts, Ballads, &c.).
St. James's Hall (Ballads, &c.).
Crystal Palace Orchestral Concerts.
Crystal Palace Promenade Concerts.
Royal Amateur Orchestral Society.
Highbury Philharmonic Society.
Covent Garden Promenade Concerts.
English Opera Season, Drury Lane.
Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company (London Season), &c.

For terms, address, Stalheim, 48, Greencroft Gardens, N.W.; Telegrams: "Stalheim, London"; or, to N. Vert, 6, Cork Street, W.

MR. FREDERIC HOSKING
(BARITONE)
For Oratorio and other Engagements.
Address, 37, Lawford Road, Camden Road, N.W.

MR. ROLAND HOYLE
(BARITONE)
(Of Sir Charles Hallé's and Provincial Concerts).
Press notices, terms, &c., 22, Queen Street, Cheetham, Manchester.

MR. EDWARD ILES
(BARITONE).
"A line to say how very much I enjoyed your singing on Saturday. I thought it so artistic, free and powerful."—William Shakespeare.
"The possessor of a highly cultivated and mellow baritone. His voice is full of music, and he thoroughly understands how to use it."—Morning Leader.
"His voice is very musical, and he sings with charming naturalness of expression."—Musical Courier.
Address, N. Vert, 6, Cork Street, Burlington Gardens, W.

MR. PHILIP LINCEY
(BARITONE)
Of Sir Chas. Hallé's Concerts, Hovingham Festival, 1896, &c.
Address, Heaton Grove, Bradford.

MR.
ALEXANDER MUSGROVE
(BARITONE)
(Of St. James's Hall and Crystal Palace Concerts)
For Oratorio, Ballad and Pier Concerts, &c.
For terms, Press notices, address, 67, Berners Street, London, W.; or, care of Forsyth Bros., 126 and 128, Deansgate, Manchester.

MR. DANIEL PRICE
(BARITONE)
Westminster Abbey. Address, 18, Clarendon Road, W.

MR. CHARLES TREE
(Winner of the 100-Guinea Grand Piano at the International Baritone Competition, London, July, 1896). 27, Cambridge Avenue, Kilburn, N.W.

MR. ARTHUR BARLOW
(BASS).
For Oratorios, Operas, Concerts, &c.
Address, 19, Oval Road, Regent's Park, N.W.; or, N. Vert, 6, Cork Street, W.

MR. HERBERT HILTON
(BASS)
For Concerts, &c., please address, 58, Lordship Lane, Wood Green, N.

"VOICE PRODUCTION, STYLE, AND ARTISTIC SINGING."
MR. F. ST. JOHN LACY,
A.R.A.M., &c.
Receives Pupils at his residence, Albany Chambers, York Street, Queen Anne's Gate (St. James's Park Station); or, at New Bond St.

MR. W. H. CRADOCK
(BASSO)
Manchester Cathedral; late of Armagh Cathedral.
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, Masonic Banquets, &c.

EXTRACTS FROM THE PRESS.
CHURCH RECITALS.—"Great anticipations at the present time are hoped for in Mr. W. H. Cradock, of Armagh Cathedral, who is possessed of an exquisitely fine bass voice of wide range and depth, while it is mellow and cultured in tone. Competent judges who have heard him give very pronounced opinions of his capabilities both in Oratorio and in Ballad. Not only are his solos rendered with remarkable effect, but with natural ease and gracefulness."—London Christian Union.
CUMBERLAND FESTIVAL.—"It was not surprising to find the large audience vociferously demand an encore. Mr. Cradock sang with considerable power, his fine voice appearing to great advantage in the pedal register. The artist next gave Hatton's 'Revenge,' a song which, even more than his first effort, showed to perfection his fine voice and finished style."—Workington Star, January 3, 1896.
For Press Notices and Vacant Dates, apply, as above.

THE GRIMSON FAMILY.

This remarkable family of Instrumentalists can be engaged either together or separately. Programmes suitable for an entire Concert or for small Choral Societies or Literary and Musical Societies. They play almost any combination of Chamber Music, from the Mendelssohn Octet downwards.

SOLO PIANISTS.
Miss ANNIE GRIMSON, A.R.C.M., and Hopkinson Gold Medalist, Covent Garden Promenade Concerts, Imperial Institute, &c.
Miss AMY GRIMSON, A.R.C.M., and Hopkinson Gold Medalist.
SOLO VIOLIN.
Miss JESSIE GRIMSON, Crystal Palace Saturday Concerts.
VIOLA.
Mr. S. DEAN GRIMSON.
For terms, Press notices, &c., S. Dean Grimson, Cremona, Ealing, W.

THE NOVELTY OF THE SEASON.
THE BOYS' VOCAL TRIO.
MASTER ROLAND FORD
MASTER SHOWELL FORD
MASTER EDGAR FORD
For Concerts, Choir Festivals, Organ Recitals, &c.
The Boys may be engaged together or separately. Their répertoire comprises Trios, Duets, and Solos.
"These boys have been well trained. Their voices are sweet and clear, their intonation is excellent, and their phrasing and expression carefully observed. All their items were vociferously applauded."—Walsall Observer.
"The singing of Masters Edgar, Showell, and Roland Ford was enthusiastically encored."—Midland Evening News.
For terms, address, Mr. S. Ford, Avondale, Park Road E., Wolverhampton.

THE COWARD-KEMPTON QUARTET.
ALTO: Mr. PERCY COWARD; TENOR: Mr. ARTHUR COWARD; BARITONE: Mr. RANDULPH COWARD; BASS: Mr. BELL KEMPTON.
For Concerts, &c. Terms on application to Arthur Coward (care of Metzler and Co., Ltd.), Great Marlborough Street, W.

THE CRICHTON PART-SINGERS
HAYDN GROVER (Alto) | HERBERT DYER (Tenor)
HUGH COCHRANE (Baritone) | FREDERICK KING (Bass)
"For well-balanced harmony, delicate phrasing, and sweetness of voice it would be hard to find their peers. No wonder the audience cheered them again and again, and yet again."—Morning Leader, December 7, 1896.
Specially arranged numbers and novelties. Complete programmes arranged.
For Press critiques, vacant dates, and terms, apply, 40, Warbeck Road, Uxbridge Road, W.

THE FOLK-SONG QUARTET.
H. ELLIOT BUTTON
(Principal Alto, Holy Trinity, Upper Chelsea).
WALTER TURNER.
HENRY BAILEY
(Principal Bass, Marylebone Parish Church).
ARTHUR HOWARD.
Répertoire includes Folk-Songs of various nations, English, Scotch, Irish, Swedish, &c., especially arranged for the Folk-Song Quartet by Professor Stanford and other eminent Musicians.
For Press criticisms, terms, &c., apply, H. Elliot Button, 13, Stratford Road, Kensington.

ROYAL WINDSOR GLEE SINGERS
(Of St. George's Chapel Royal and Eton College Chapel).
Mr. WALTER CLAY | Mr. ABEL STARKEY
Mr. DAVID HUMPHREYS | Mr. WALTER DODDS.
ROYAL WINDSOR GLEE SINGERS AT THE PALACE, DOUGLAS.
"The Palace audiences are especially favoured this week, for the famous Royal Windsor Glee singers have been engaged, and last evening they were recalled three times successively in response to persistent demands."—Isle of Man Times, August 17, 1896.
For Concerts, Banquets, &c. Terms on application to D. Humphreys, 19, The Cloisters, Windsor.

THE CONCERT TRIO PARTY.

Violin .. .. .. Mr. ERNEST NEWLAND SMITH.
Cello .. .. Mr. A. H. EARNSHAW.
Piano .. .. Mr. FRANK MUMMERY.

The above Trio Party is booking Engagements for the season. Performs Solos and Trios. For terms and vacant dates, address, Secretary, 35, Oseney Crescent, N.W.

MR. JOSEPH CANTOR'S

"GEMS OF THE OPERAS"

CONCERT COMPANY.

All communications, Church Street, Liverpool.

Telegrams—"Cantor, Liverpool."

THE MISSES TULLOCH'S

VOCAL, INSTRUMENTAL, AND DRAMATIC

RECITALS.

OPERATIC SCENAS AND ARIAS. BALLADS.
MANDOLINE AND GUITAR SOLOS AND DUETS.
ITALIAN, FRENCH, AND GERMAN SONGS.
SPANISH SONGS TO GUITAR ACCOMPANIMENTS.
RECITATIONS (POETIC AND HUMOROUS).

Engaged:—January 5, Metropole, London; 8, Coldstream; 11, Penicuik; 12, Edinburgh; 13, Leith; 14, Greenock; 15, Pollockshaws; 19, Glasgow; 21, Barrhead; 27, Nantwich; 28, Moseley; 29, Sydenham; Croydon, Fleetwood, Lancaster, Shipley, Godalming, &c.

For Press notices and Programmes, address, Miss D. Tulloch, 16, Linden Gardens, London, W.; or, usual Concert Agents.

THE

BURGON OPERA RECITAL COMPANY

UNDER THE DIRECTION OF

MR. W. H. BURGON,

Principal Bass, Royal English Opera House, Covent Garden Opera House, and Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company, &c.;
Also of the leading Choral Societies' Concerts.

The experienced Artists of the above Company can be engaged by Choral Societies for Oratorio, Concert, or Opera Recital.

Specimens of the special Programmes for which the Burgon Opera Recital Company has become so celebrated, viz.:—
PART I.—Ballad and Instrumental.
PART II.—Recital in Costume or Evening Dress, of Selections from a popular Opera (Cavalleria Rusticana," "Pagliacci," "Flying Dutchman," "Il Trovatore," "Maritana," "Bohemian Girl," "Faust," &c.)—will be forwarded on application.

Address, W. H. BURGON,
8, Marlboro' Road, Bedford Park, London, W.

GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS,

LONDON.

Under the Patronage of the Bishops and Clergy of the Church of England.

President: The Very Rev. FRANCIS PIGOU, D.D., Dean of Bristol.

A.G.C.M. and F.G.C.M. Diploma Examinations, January 13 and 14. Last day of entry, January 6.
Annual Conference, January 14, at 3 p.m.
Annual Membership, 10s. 6d.; Life, £5 5s.
Choir Enrolment (perpetual), £2 2s.
Calendar (8th Edition), post-free, 1s. Set of last Examination Papers, free, 1s.
Representatives required in England and abroad.
Free Register for Organists requiring appointments.
For further particulars, apply to Dr. Lewis, Warden, Silvermead, Twickenham, S.W.

By Order of the Council.

BAKER STREET CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, LTD.,

6, UPPER BAKER STREET, N.W.
(One Minute from the Metropolitan Station).

The Rev. Canon FRANCIS HOLLAND, Chairman.

PIANO (under the direction of Mr. Oscar Beringer): Miss Constance Bache, Miss Ethel Boyce, A.R.A.M., Miss Jessie Davies, A.R.A.M., Miss Kate Robinson, &c.
VIOLIN (under the direction of Herr Josef Ludwig): Herr J. Ludwig, Miss Louisa Nunn.
SINGING (under the direction of Mrs. Hutchinson): Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss Margaret Barter.
HARMONY CLASSES: Orchestral Practices, during Lent and Christmas Terms.
BOARDING-HOUSE for SCHOLARS and BYE-STUDENTS: Miss Price and Miss Woods, 78, Gloster Place, Portman Square.
For Prospectus, &c., apply to the Headmistress, Miss Lilla B. Strong, 6, Upper Baker Street, N.W.

SOLO BOYS.

LONDON TRAINING SCHOOL FOR CHORISTERS.

PRINCIPAL, MR. JAMES BATES.

Solo Boys supplied for Oratorios, Festival Services, Organ Recitals, Concerts, &c.

Extracts from recent testimonials:—

ALBERTO RANDEGGER, Esq., Conductor, Queen's Hall Choral Society, &c.
"Too much praise cannot be given for your boys' excellent work."—May 11, 1896.
Professor BRIDGE, Mus. Doc., Conductor, Royal Choral Society, &c.
"Your boys are excellent."—June 30, 1896.
G. R. SINCLAIR, Esq., Organist, Hereford Cathedral.
"Your boys have sung the soprano solos of Spohr's 'Last Judgment' in the Cathedral for three consecutive Advents. They sing extremely well and give every satisfaction."—Aug. 21, 1896.
"Please book Marchant for 'Last Judgment' in the Cathedral, December 18."—November 11, 1896.
J. SPENCER CURWEN, Esq., President, Tonic Sol-fa College.
"I have been charmed with the sensibility, the phrasing, and the emotional power of your solo boys' renderings."—Sept. 11, 1896.
Rev. Canon ROWSELL, Beccles.
"We were most pleased with Stanley Marchant's singing of the soprano solos of 'The Messiah.' He has been an exceedingly pleasant visitor in my house."—January 30, 1896.
Rev. Canon PENNEFATHER, Newcastle (Vicar Designate, St. Mary Abbot's, Kensington).
"Master Hale sang his part in 'The Creation' exceedingly well, and seems to be in every way a nice and well-behaved boy."—October 16, 1896.

Over 100 boys are available for chorus work.

Sixty boys are engaged for "Creation," "Samson and Dalila," "Messiah," "Elijah," "Golden Legend," "St. Paul," "Hymn of Praise," "Stabat Mater" (Rossini), "Faust" (Berlioz), "Redemption," with the Queen's Hall Choral Society, at Queen's Hall, and forty boys for special chorus of "Redemption," at Royal Albert Hall.

For terms, photos of Solo Boys, and full particulars, address, Mr. G. E. Jeffries, Secretary, Church House, Porchester Terrace, Hyde Park, W.

MR. DUTTON'S SOLO BOYS.

MR. DUTTON (St. Paul's Cathedral) supplies Solo Boys for Church Festivals, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes, &c.

MR. DUTTON'S Boys are trained entirely by himself, and he guarantees their efficiency. He specially recommends:—

MASTER PERCY GOUGH
(St. Saviour's, Chelsea).
MASTER ERNEST FRYATT
(St. George's, Bloomsbury).
MASTER HAROLD CURD
(St. Alban's, Holborn).
MASTER WILLIAM GRIFFITHS
(Holy Trinity, Sloane Street).
MASTER GEORGE SMART
(St. George's, Bickley).
MASTER PERCY WOODWARD
(St. Andrew Undershaft).
MASTER OWEN GIBBONS
AND MASTER EDWARD ATHERTON
(St. Botolph's, Bishopsgate).

His Grace the DUKE OF NEWCASTLE writes: "I have heard many distinguished boy soloists, but never any more perfect, both in beauty of voice and in execution."

GEORGE C. MARTIN, Esq., Mus. Doc., Organist of St. Paul's Cathedral, writes: "I have almost exclusively employed Mr. Dutton's Solo Boys at Services at St. Paul's Cathedral and elsewhere when our own choristers were not available, and they have given me on all occasions the greatest possible satisfaction. I feel that Mr. Dutton has special and very great abilities in the art of training choristers; his boys sing with much expression and refinement."—December 20, 1896.

EDWARD GERMAN, Esq., writes: "The boys (Gough and Griffiths) sang beautifully yesterday."—November 24, 1896.

THOMAS ADAMS, Esq., F.R.C.O., Organist and Director of the Music at St. Alban's, Holborn, writes: "In his singing of Rossini's 'Stabat Mater' at St. Alban's during this month, Master Fryatt has rendered admirable service, and delighted all who heard him."—December 16, 1896.

Mr. Dutton strongly recommends Master Fryatt for solo music requiring a voice of high register.

FREDERIC LEEDS, Esq., Mus. Bac., Oxon., Organist, Parish Church, Lewisham, writes: "Gough did his work well, and gave great satisfaction. He certainly is a credit to you."—Spohr's "Last Judgment," December 3, 1896.

HARRY DANCEY, Esq., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, Organist, All Saints', Putney, writes: "I was very pleased with the manner and singing of the boys—they afforded us great help. We were specially delighted with Gough's voice and singing."—Mendelssohn's 95th Psalm, November 7, 1896.

"Master Griffiths' songs were spendidly rendered and loudly encored."—Bucks Advertiser, December 5, 1896.

For vacant dates, terms, and further particulars, address, Mr. HENRY J. DUTTON, 19, Alpha Road, New Cross, S.E.

MR.

BLAXLAND'S SOLO BOYS

EXPERIENCED. RELIABLE. ARTISTIC.

Boys available for Sunday and Week-day Engagements (Solos, Duets, or Trios) at Church Festivals, Concerts, Banquets, &c.

Répertoire: The Oratorios, Standard Works, Ballads, &c. New works prepared at short notice.

A Chorus of OVER FIFTY BOYS available week-days.

Master
STERNDALE BENNETT
(Of Chester and Leeds Festivals, 1894; Sheffield Festival, October, 1896; Queen's Hall, &c.).

Highly recommended by SIR JOHN STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon.; C. H. H. PARRY, M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon. et Cantab.; JOSEPH BRIDGE, M.A., Mus. Doc., &c., and many other leading musicians.

SHEFFIELD FESTIVAL, October, 1896. Dr. Parry's "JOB."—"The innocent soliloquy of the Shepherd Boy (Master Sterndale Bennett), whose singing, by its perfection of phrasing and intelligence of expression gave evidence of careful preparation . . . and the chasteness of the accompaniments was as noticeable as were the boy's sweet treble tones delightsome."—The Sheffield Independent.

TEDDINGTON, December 4 and 11, 1896. "LAST JUDGMENT" (Spohr). —"Bennett's work was really most charming and artistic. I congratulate you most heartily. Kindly book for January 18, the Admiralty Concert."—(Signed) A. FURSE, Conductor, Civil Service Vocal Union and Catford Choral Society.

Master
WILLIE CHILD
A clever and artistic singer, and thoroughly reliable.
Solo Boy, St. Mary's, Stoke Newington.
(Pupil of Mr. H. W. Lovell and Mr. Blaxland)

UPPER TOOTING, December, 1896. CONCERT. — "Child was a gigantic success on Monday night, he singing with artistic skill and thoroughly pleasing his audience."—(Signed) T. EVANS.

Master
HENRY EVANS.
A voice of exceptional beauty and power.

HERTFORD, October, 1896. CHURCH FESTIVAL.—"Evans' singing was very much appreciated on Sunday." — (Signed) MALCOLM HEYWOOD, Organist and Choirmaster.

Master
EDGAR FAVELL
An experienced soloist, with a powerful and flexible voice of great compass.

BIRMINGHAM, December 7, 1896. "LAST JUDGMENT."—"Favell did his work splendidly, and gave us all every satisfaction, singing in a most tasteful and artistic manner. . . . I should like him again on the 22nd."—(Signed) W. T. JENKINS, Organist and Choirmaster.

HORNSEY, December 9. "LAST JUDGMENT."—"Everyone was very pleased with Favell's singing. I am sure no one could wish for anything more beautiful."—(Signed) HENRY J. BAKER, Organist and Choirmaster.

And the following Solo Boys: Masters BANNISTER, BEAMENT, HUXLEY, LA TOUCHE, MOREBY, PARRY, ROGERS.
Master BURFORD is no longer available for engagements, he having been appointed to the Chapel Royal, St. James's.

Mr. BLAXLAND'S Solo Boys hold important church appointments, and they have fulfilled engagements in all parts of London and the Provinces, with unvarying success. The constantly increasing demand for their services and the high-class character of the engagements entrusted to them are sufficient proof of their worth and artistic ability.

For Testimonials and all particulars, address, Mr. BLAXLAND, 15, Tavistock Crescent, Westbourne Park, W.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. New House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. AND MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, and Durham (1896) Universities, Diplomas of L.R.A.M. (1896, &c.), A.Mus. L.C.M., L.Mus. L.C.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O. (1895); Appointments at College and School of Music, and as Chapel Royal, Cathedral, and Parish Church Organists; Gold Medals, Prizes, "Honours" and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of 500. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Piano. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS. Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D. 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

DR. J. M. BENTLEY, Hon. F.R.A.M.—Instruction in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, and ORCHESTRATION per post. Address, Messrs. Novello and Co.

A.R.C.M. TEACHERS' EXAM.—MISS B. FURZE, A.R.C.M. (Double Diploma), COACHES by CORRESPONDENCE in "Physiology of the Voice." Address, Northumberland College of Music, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

London College of Music,

INCORPORATED 1892.] [LIMITED.

GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET,
LONDON, W.

PATRON.
HIS GRACE THE DUKE OF LEEDS.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.
HORTON ALLISON, Esq., Mus.D., Dublin; Mus.B., Cantab.
W. H. LONGHURST, Esq., Mus.D., Cantuar, F.R.C.O.
WALTER H. SANGSTER, Esq., Mus. Doc., Oxon.

ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Esq., Mus. Bac., Cantab. (Principal, Education Department).
G. AUGUSTUS HOLMES, Esq. (Director of Examinations).
Dr. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (Vice-Principal).

EXAMINATIONS in PIANOFORTE PLAYING, SINGING, THEORY, and all branches of Music will be held in London and at 350 Provincial Centres in April next, when Certificates will be granted to all successful candidates.

SYLLABUS and FORMS of ENTRY can be obtained of the Secretary, who will supply all particulars. The last day for receiving entries is March 15.

The DIPLOMAS granted by the College are Associate (A.L.C.M.), Associate in Music (A.Mus.L.C.M.), Licentiate (L.L.C.M.), Licentiate in Music (L.Mus.L.C.M.), and Fellowship (F.L.C.M.). Regulations on application.

In the EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT Students are received and thoroughly trained under eminent Professors at moderate fees. Day and Evening Classes are held in various subjects.

REHEARSALS of the OPERATIC CLASS, ORCHESTRA, and LADIES' CHOIR are held each week. Membership is free to Students of the College.

STUDENTS' CONCERTS, and LECTURES and RECITALS by Professors, are periodically given during Term in the Large Hall of the College. Full particulars will be found duly published in the daily papers.

T. WEEKES HOLMES, Secretary.

MR. J. PERCY BAKER, A.R.A.M., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by post. Personal Lessons in Pianoforte or Theory at own or pupil's residence; or at 84, New Bond Street, W. Schools attended. Address, Willersley House, Old Charlton.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.Mus., T.C.L., prepares CANDIDATES for ARTS and MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Stoke-on-Trent.

MR. S. S. MARTYN, Mus. Bac., Oxon., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., personally or by post. 24, Killieser Avenue, Streatham Hill, S.W.

DR. FRANK MERRICK, Mus. D. (Dublin), L.T.C.L., L.R.A.M., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence, and prepares Candidates for the University and Metropolitan Examinations. 7, Hughenden Road, Clifton.

MR. W. E. PITMAN, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., teaches HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT, personally or by correspondence, and coaches for the Universities, Royal College of Organists, and other Musical Exams. Thorough grounding in the various subjects. For terms, address, W. E. Pitman, Sundridge, Sevenoaks.

DR. W. JOHN REYNOLDS, Mus. Doc., Lond., L.Mus., T.C.L. (Organist, St. Michael's, Cornhill), prepares CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS, personally or by post. Many successes. Particulars on application. 66, Highbury Grove, London, N.; or, at the Church.

DR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab.; Mus. Doc., Trinity College, Toronto; L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS Personally or by post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, ORCHESTRATION, ACOUSTICS, &c., and prepares for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: MUS. BAC., DURHAM, 1896, also 1895 and all previous years; and FIRST, 1896, also 1895 and all previous years; A.R.C.M., 1896; CAMBRIDGE, FIRST MUS. BAC., 1896; OXFORD, MUS. BAC., 1896, and FIRST, 1896; F.R.C.O. and A.R.C.O., 1896; L.R.A.M. (Pianoforte), 1895; CAMBRIDGE, MUS. BAC.; LONDON, MUS. BAC.; DUBLIN, MUS. BAC.; L.R.A.M. (Composition); Mus. Bac. and Mus. Doc., Toronto, Gold Medalists, 1890, 1892, and 1893; L.Mus., L.C.M.; L.T.C.L., and A.T.C.L., 1895 and 1896; Senior Local R.A.M. and R.C.M. Special and individual attention given to Correspondents. Upwards of 350 Diplomas and Degrees and several Gold and Silver Medals gained by pupils. MSS. corrected and revised for publication. Terms moderate. Address, 70, Park Road, Haverstock Hill, London, N.W.

MR. HAMILTON ROBINSON, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, F.R.C.O., Lecturer on Harmony in King's College. Lond., Organist and Choirmaster, St. Stephen's, South Kensington, PIANOFORTE and ORGAN LESSONS. HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, &c., personally or by correspondence. Preparation for University, R.C.O., and other Examinations. Classes. 54, Baron's Court Road, West Kensington, W.

MR. J. HARRAWAY SLAPE visits and receives PUPILS for ORGAN, PIANOFORTE, HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c. Preparation for all Musical Exams. Recent successes, A.T.C.L., Certificated Pianist, Trinity College, 1895. Special facilities to Organ Students. Practice on 2 and 3-Manual Instruments. Terms moderate. 22, Camden Road, N.W.

MR. BRUCE STEANE prepares rapidly and systematically for MUSICAL EXAMS. in all subjects, personally or by post. Many past successes. Address, The Leas, Wallington, Surrey.

MR. R. STOKOE, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.C.O., gives ORGAN LESSONS at Christ Church, Down Street, Piccadilly. Harmony, Counterpoint, &c., taught personally or by post. 86, Rossiter Road, Balham, S.W.

DR. TAYLOR, Mus.D., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.T.C.L. (Author of "Vocal Score Reading Exercises" and "Figured Bass and Melody Exercises," for R.C.O. Students), prepares CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Address, Wolverhampton Road, Stafford.

DR. THOMAS (Mus. Doc., Oxon.; Org. and C.M., St. Clement's; Conductor, Phil.) has VACANCY for YOUTH as Resident Pupil. Thorough training; Univ. degree. Prep. for all Exams. "Carlyle," Boscombe, Bournemouth.

MR. A. W. TOMLYN, Mus.B., Dunelm, L.T.C.L., Berwick-on-Tweed, COACHES CANDIDATES for University and all other Exams. by post. Every possible attention and assistance guaranteed. Many past successes.

MR. W. H. TUTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., L.R.A.M., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, ACOUSTICS, &c., by Correspondence. Ashburn, Derbyshire.

THE TRAINING OF ALTOS.—LESSONS in VOICE PRODUCTION and SINGING given by MUNRO DAVISON, F.R.C.O., Solo Alto, Temple Church, Professor of Alto Singing, Guildhall School of Music, &c. 142, Stroud Green Road, N.

MR. ARTHUR BETTS (Double-Bass) is open to Engagements for Oratorios, Orchestral Concerts, and Operas. Principal Bass, Peterborough Orchestral Society, Choral Union, and Theatre Royal. Address, Lincoln Road, Peterborough.

ALTO SOLO SINGING & SIGHT-READING.—MR. W. A. FROST (senior Alto of St. Paul's Cathedral, sole Alto Vicar-Choral, and late assistant-trainer of the choristers) has had twenty years' experience in teaching the above subjects, and pupils of his have been successful in competitions at St. Paul's Cathedral, Westminster Abbey, Chapels Royal (St. James's and Whitehall), York, Salisbury, Chichester (two), Norwich, Truro, Eton, Oxford, Cambridge, and several London Churches. Address, 16, Amwell Street, E.C.

JEDBURGH MUSICAL ASSOCIATION want VOCAL QUARTET for rendering of JUDAS MACCABÆUS last week February or first week March. State terms to Secretary.

KING'S COLLEGE, Cambridge.—CHORISTERSHIPS.—The TRIAL of VOICES to fill vacancies in the Choir School will be held on Thursday, March 11. Candidates must have a good ear and good voice, and should be between 9 and 12 years of age. For particulars, apply to the Dean. Names to be sent in by March 4.

ALTO WANTED, for St. Stephen's, Walbrook, E.C. Two Services and one rehearsal weekly. Four extra Services annually. Stipend, £15. Must be communicant and good reader. Absolute regularity required. Address, The Organist.

KING'S COLLEGE, Cambridge.—There will be a COMPETITION for a TENOR CHORAL SCHOLARSHIP on Thursday, March 4, 1897, value £80, for three years. The successful Candidate will be required to enter the College as a Member of the University not later than April 10, 1897. For further information apply to the Dean.

FROM BRAIN TO KEYBOARD.

MACDONALD SMITH'S SYSTEM

As acquired and in daily use by Professionals and Amateurs in Europe, Asia, Africa, America, and Australia.

EXTRACT FROM MISS ROSALIND ELLICOTT'S ORDINARY REPORTS:—

"The Palace, Gloucester.

"Dear Mr. Macdonald Smith,

"... I can now play the whole of the 'Kreutzer' Sonata up to time, whereas before I began working on your System I used to find the first movement too difficult to attempt. ... I can now learn new music very quickly, and my reading is greatly improved.

"Sincerely yours,

"ROSALIND F. ELLICOTT."

"Strong words are needed to express strong feelings, and the sight, from day to day, of many a hard-worked student who grinds at technical studies until his brain is dulled for the appreciation of real music, whose hand and arm-muscles are troubled with fatigue, cramp, and, in extreme cases, paralysis, is sufficient to make anyone feel warmly and speak warmly on this subject who has also had an opportunity of seeing and experiencing the enfranchisement from all these ills secured by Mr. Macdonald Smith's system."—J. E. B., in Musical News.

"It is clear that Mr. Macdonald Smith has studied the subject carefully, and acts upon well-ascertained scientific grounds."—Daily Telegraph.

"The great, the supreme merit of Mr. Smith's system consists in the fact that it involves the total abolition and disestablishment of all that terrible scale practising and five-finger exercising."—Westminster Gazette, November 20, 1895.

New Prospectus (September, 1896), Post-free.

MACDONALD SMITH,

STEINWAY HALL, LOWER SEYMOUR STREET, W.

SOLO TENOR REQUIRED, for St. Stephen's, Westbourne Park, W. Good reader. Salary, £20. Address, Choirmaster, 166, Fernhead Road, Paddington, W.

WANTED, at once, for a West-End Church, Tenor and Bass. Stipend, £10 per annum. Address, A. B., 57, Regent Street, W.

SOLO BASS.—There is a VACANCY in the Choir of a North London Church. Services, morning and evening on Good Friday; morning only on Christmas day; evening only on Ash Wednesday, Ascension Day, and December 31. Rehearsals on Friday evenings. Stipend, £25. Candidates must have good voices and be competent sight readers. Address, M., Burton House, Richmond, Surrey.

ST. PATRICK'S CATHEDRAL, Armagh.—WANTED, immediately, a BASS. Must not be more than 30 years of age. Salary, £100 a year. Applications, with copies of testimonials, to be sent on or before January 30, 1897, to the Rev. Charles Faris, Chapter Clerk, Armagh.

SALISBURY CATHEDRAL.—A Minor Canonry in this Cathedral will be VACANT at Lady Day next. Candidates, whose age should not exceed 35 years, may apply for further particulars to the Chapter Clerks, The Close, Salisbury.

A PROFESSIONAL CONTRALTO will give her SERVICES in a Church where solos are required. Melrose, 65, Fortess Road, N.W.

GOOD SOLO ALTO. Disengaged. Stipend required, £25. Please address, R. W., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 and 81, Queen Street, E.C.

TONBRIDGE SCHOOL.—Owing to the appointment of Mr. Brewer as Organist in Gloucester Cathedral, the post of ORGANIST, CHOIRMASTER, and TEACHER in MUSIC will be VACANT here at Easter. For particulars, apply to the Headmaster, School House, Tonbridge.

WANTED, ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER for the Congregational Church, Newbury. Salary for a capable man, £40 per annum. Apply, E. L. Staples, Bridge, Newbury.

WANTED, after March 25, 1897, ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER (combined) for the Parish Church (St. Cuthbert's), Lytham. Salary, £50. Three manuals. Surpliced choir. Apply, by letter, to Canon Hawkins, The Vicarage, Lytham.

CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for the Wesleyan Church, Tottenham. Apply, by letter (endorsed Choirmaster), stating experience and salary required, to C. E. Blackbourne, 27, Springfield Road, South Tottenham.

TRINITY COLLEGE LONDON

FOR MUSICAL EDUCATION AND EXAMINATION.—INST. 1872.

President: SIR RICHARD E. WEBSTER, G.C.M.G., Q.C., M.P.
Warden: Professor E. H. TURPIN, Mus.D.
Director of Studies: Professor BRADBURY TURNER, Mus.B.

LENT TERM begins Monday, January 18, 1897.

For a Course of four Studies, a principal one (thirty minutes), a secondary one (twenty minutes), as well as a Theory Class subject and Sight-Singing, the fee is FIVE GUINEAS. For two principal Studies (of thirty minutes), a Theory Class subject, and Sight-Singing, the fee is SIX GUINEAS. Students may enter for one subject at THREE GUINEAS a Term, for weekly lessons of thirty minutes, in any of the following subjects: Pianoforte, Solo Singing, Organ, Violin, Violoncello, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Harp, Horn, Trumpet, Double Bass, &c., Figured Bass Playing, Pianoforte Accompaniment, or Elocution. The class fee for Harmony, Counterpoint, Form, Instrumentation, Voice Production, Acoustics, Elocution, French, German, or Italian, is ONE GUINEA a Term. The fee for a twenty minutes' lesson in most of the above subjects is TWO GUINEAS a Term. There are both Day and Evening Classes.

The following Scholarships and Exhibitions are open to all-comers: The Henry Smart Scholarship (tenable for three years), the Queen Victoria Scholarship (tenable for three years), the Sir Julius Benedict Pianoforte Exhibition, the Sims Reeves Vocal Exhibition, the College Organ Exhibition, the College Violin Exhibition, the College Viola Exhibition, the College Violoncello Exhibition, and the College Double Bass Exhibition (all tenable for one year), and eight other Scholarships tenable for three years.

The Tuition of the College is intended to serve as a preparative for the Higher and Local Examinations of the College, and for other public examinations, including the examinations for University degrees.

Weekly Lectures are delivered by the Warden during Term, and are especially addressed to Students intending to enter for the Higher Examinations. The Lectures are free to all Students.

Students' Concerts are given at the College at intervals during Term. An Orchestral Concert is given at Queen's Hall from time to time.

The Orchestral Class meets on Saturdays during Term at four o'clock, under the direction of Mr. F. Corder.

A Class will be held for the study of Wind Instrument Chamber Music on Tuesday evenings, conducted by Mr. John R. Radcliff.

The College Choir, under the direction of Dr. Pringuer, will meet on Tuesdays at five o'clock.

Prospectuses, with new Term Circular and all further information, may be obtained from the undersigned.

By Order of the Academical Board,
SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.

Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, W.

NATIONAL SONG.

VICTORIA—OUR QUEEN

FOR S.A.T.B.

The words written by A. C. AINGER.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

J. BARNBY.

Price Threepence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.
Arrangement for Two Parts (Soprano and Alto), Staff Notation and Tonic Sol-fa combined, price One Penny.

In the Press.

VICTORIA—OUR QUEEN
MARCH
ON THEMES FROM BARNBY'S NATIONAL SONG
BY JOHN E. WEST.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

The Organist
AND Choirmaster's Diary
FOR 1897.

A NEW EDITION OF THIS MOST USEFUL DIARY IS NOW READY.

 The price, as heretofore, in strong cloth binding, 2s. 6d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.
SAMPSON LOW, MARSTON and Co., LTD., Fetter Lane, London.

John Broadwood & Sons

PIANOFORTE MAKERS

BY SPECIAL APPOINTMENT TO

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES
HER ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCESS OF WALES
HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH
(DUKE OF SAXE-COBURG AND GOTHA)

AND THE

REST OF THE ROYAL FAMILY.

John Broadwood & Sons

respectfully draw attention to, and invite inspection of, their newly introduced and improved straight and cross strung

HORIZONTAL

AND

UPRIGHT PIANOFORTES.

33, GREAT PULTENEY STREET (near Regent Street),
LONDON, W.

Just Published.

SIX ITALIAN SONGS

FOR A

MEZZO-SOPRANO VOICE.

1. Dolce Amor .. .. Cavalli.
2. Non dar più pene .. .. .. Alessandro Scarlatti.
3. Fier Destin .. .. Gasparini.
4. L' immago tua vezzosa .. .. Astorga.
5. Danza fanciulla .. .. Durante.
6. La Pastorella .. .. Galuppi.

ARRANGED, THE ENGLISH WORDS WRITTEN AND ADAPTED BY

J. STAINER.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence net.

TWO ITALIAN SONGS

(FROM THE ABOVE)

FOR A

MEZZO-SOPRANO VOICE

WITH ACCOMPANIMENT FOR PIANOFORTE AND VIOLIN OBBLIGATO

1. Non dar più pene .. .. .. Alessandro Scarlatti.
2. Fier Destin .. .. Gasparini.

ARRANGED, THE ENGLISH WORDS WRITTEN AND ADAPTED BY

J. STAINER.

Price Two Shillings net.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

With this Number are presented gratis Extra Supplements, consisting of an Anthem by A. C. Mackenzie, entitled "Lord of Life"; an Illustration, "Schubert at Atzenbruck," and two Schubert Fac-similes.

THE MUSICAL TIMES
AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.
JANUARY 1, 1897.

THE QUEEN'S SONG.

A.D. 1897.

BY SIR EDWIN ARNOLD, K.C.I.E., C.S.I., &c.

Copyright by Novello, Ewer and Co., 1896.

FOR this great reign, now rounded
To three-score golden years,
With pride and joy unbounded
We raise a Nation's cheers;
So well-belov'd, so noble
E'er now was nowhere seen;
Hailed let Her be till sky and sea
Respond "God save the Queen!"

So true a Sovereign Lady
Ne'er ruled all hearts before!
Rise up and praise Victoria's days,
The glorious years three-score!

Heaven send Her peace and glory!
And, when a Crown above—
Fulfilling earth's fair story—
Is granted by God's love,
Be this His grace to England
That, for Her deathless sake,
Reign after reign as royal remain,
And thence example take.

So true a Sovereign Lady
Ne'er ruled all hearts before!
Rise up and praise Victoria's days,
The glorious years three-score!

Then, o'er Her subject waters,
Her realm, her wave-linked lands,
On Britain's sons and daughters
And labours of their hands,
Sweet surety, strength, and justice
Shall dwell as now hath been,
And God above this Isle will love
Who loved and saved our Queen.

So true a Sovereign Lady
Ne'er ruled all hearts before!
Rise up and praise Victoria's days,
The glorious years three-score!

Will be published shortly, with music by an eminent composer.

1897.

THERE have been plenty of philosophers in motley, and it is certain that the Fool, in a forest or anywhere else, provided he be a wise Fool, can make his wisdom go farther than many teachers in soberer garb. But we must not always trust ourselves to his guidance. One of the most famous among jesters with a purpose has said: "The greatest loss of time that I know is to count the hours. What good comes of it? Nor can there be any greater dotage in the world than for one to guide and direct his courses by the sound of a bell, and not by his own judgment and discretion." That is loose talk. There is more reason in counting the hours than in taking stock of worldly goods, because Time represents a form of capital which once lost can never be retrieved. As for the bell, it will ring on whether we heed it or not, and, sooner or later, fall very solemnly on the ears of us all. It is certainly better to heed the "wild bells" as they speak in a night which sees the death of an old year and the birth of its successor—better if only that we might say one to another, as do we now to our faithful readers and friends: May the new-born bring happiness and prosperity.

At the present moment, while yet the New Year is wrapped in swaddling clothes, we cannot but feel our ignorance of its future. It places us, however, in the uncommon position of being able to prophesy wittingly, and to say that music will bear no small part in celebrating the longest reign known to English history. A distinguished infant, therefore, is the one born last night. Not all the offspring of Time come into the world thus "ear-marked." It is pre-eminently a gift to us English people, crowned and robed as becomes an imperial present to an imperial race. What shall we do with it?

Assuredly we shall celebrate 1897 in song—the song which speaks in words, and that which utters truths beyond the power of language. The poetic Genius of the nation will "strike the lyre," confident that, at such a time, nothing can come amiss if simpleness and duty tender it, and, already perhaps, musicians are invoking the power of Inspiration to bestow upon them worthy utterance. May that prayer be answered, for the occasion is a great one, and should raise the national heart to the height of feeling at which memorable deeds are done, and deathless words are spoken. For ourselves, the year will not pass unregarded. The present issue of THE MUSICAL TIMES contains the first of a series of six articles which will survey, with as much completeness as may be, the progress of music during the long reign of our venerable Sovereign. The story cannot fail to be striking. It partakes, indeed, of the wonderful scarcely less than does the advance made, during the same period, by any form of human endeavour. This will be our contribution to the observances of the season, which all must desire to see made splendid beyond parallel in the story of England.

VICTORIAN MUSIC.

In entering upon a series of articles descriptive of musical progress during the sixty years of her Majesty's reign, I wish to make some remarks of a general rather than a particular nature, and, first of all, to sketch broadly the condition of the art at the accession of the Queen. Along this particular part of the route I have undertaken to travel, I see my own footsteps, made nearly ten years ago, in view of the Royal Jubilee. It is, however, necessary to the completeness of the present story that the ground should be surveyed again, if not gone over step by step.

The first impression one receives in looking back to the music of 1837 is that of vast distance. Perhaps the truest way of measuring time is by noting the changes it has wrought. When a man returns to his childhood with the quickness of thought, that more or less long gone age seems but as yesterday. But if he make the journey slowly, noting all that he passes on the way, a true sense of distance comes to him. So now, as we mark the stages of musical progress during the present reign, it seems a far cry to the beginning. In illustration, let me repeat a few sentences written ten years ago: "The mightily prolific and most glorious period of German art had not come to an end in 1837. Mendelssohn had just entered upon his best days—those lying between 'St. Paul' (1836) and 'Elijah' (1846). The masterpieces of Schumann were still some distance ahead; Spohr was flourishing at the height of his fame; Rossini had not perfected his 'Stabat Mater'; Meyerbeer had just triumphed with the 'Huguenots'; and Auber was writing the 'Domino Noir.'" At the present moment we call these masters and their works old-fashioned, and the fact, as suggestive of distance as well as change, is certainly not unimpressive. But, though by such means we may attain a true and vivid idea of remoteness, it must not be supposed that the time of the Queen's accession was the beginning of things musical in this country. The light of our art was by no means so diffused as now, but it shone in places very clearly, the result of greater patience and painstaking than seem possible in this hurrying age. With the remark just made, I have inadvertently reached a position which it was my purpose to touch upon somewhat later. But let the words stand, since it may be that early consideration is the due of circumstances which, not less than any others, have determined the recent course of music.

Sixty years ago the age of slowness and deliberation had not ended, though there were signs of coming change. It was an age in which men were content to labour and to wait; to make long preparation and then exercise the virtue of patience. Moreover, it was a time in which thoroughness had more value than now, and the spirit of obedience to the teachings of the past more largely prevailed. Notwithstanding my character as a musical conservative, I must not be understood as looking back with approval upon all the conditions of sixty years ago. Of some among them we are well rid, but I do regret the hurry, incompleteness, and impatience which are now making impossible what we generally understand by sound musicianship. The mark of superficiality is everywhere, because men are not content long to labour and they will not wait at all—not, at any rate, without loud complainings and railing accusations against fate. This is the result of the spirit of the age, of the world's feverish life; of a restless craving which desires to crowd the events of an entire career into the limits of to-day and to-morrow. The day after to-morrow is too far off. Sixty years ago, it was but as the beginning of Now. All this inevitably affects, and has much affected, the course of Victorian music, not only in its inner nature, but in its outward aspect, the tendency being from the solid creations of classic art toward hastily recorded impressions, often flimsy, still more often flashy. Of course there are redeeming features, upon which, in the proper place, it will be a pleasure to dwell.

Returning to the fact that music in 1837 was not at all to be despised, I must emphasise it by pointing out the very considerable difficulties which stood in the way of its cultivation. Such works as were then available for self-culture seem to have been written under an impression that, while it was the privilege of the author to take money from the public, it was his duty, or his policy, to give as little as might be in return. I have a very distinct, and by no means pleasant, recollection of some among those old text-books, the impression left upon me being as though a priest of some sacred mystery, under pretence of unveiling it, made it still more mysterious. There is some reason to doubt whether the professors of those days were really desirous of communicating their knowledge. At any rate, only on that assumption can their confused and scarcely intelligible teaching be understood. Another obstacle in the path of music was the costliness of its examples. These were not to be bought for a few pence, as now. "Handel's 'Messiah,' in its least expensive form, cost a guinea, and, when Mendelssohn's 'St. Paul' was first published by the late J. Alfred Novello, its price stood as high as thirty-two shillings; other compositions were in the same proportion, no such thing as what we now very properly call 'cheap' music being known. Save to men of easy means, therefore, new works and new editions were unattainable." Let us fancy what that means as regards the progress of the art and cease to wonder that the beginning of Her Majesty's reign found music, and the knowledge of it, existing only in a limited degree, though studied by the few more deeply and patiently than is now the case. Let us also estimate, if we can, the debt owing to the late Mr. Novello for the courage and perseverance he showed in making cheap music possible. To him, more than to any other man, is due the present wide diffusion of the art.

Popular education in music was absolutely unknown sixty years ago. Education of any kind, indeed, was at a low ebb. Large and influential classes in the nation either held aloof from such faint movements as were made towards developing our country's mental resources, or openly opposed them. They desired to perpetuate a race of helots for their own personal service, and were fearful that with knowledge would come independence. Such persons exist even now, though they have got to be looked upon as fossils, or as men and women born out of, and very much after, due time. Happily, many years had not to pass before there was talk of "singing for the million," and the great movement began of which we shall none of us see the end. The darkest hour of night, it is said, comes just before the dawn; so, immediately prior to the appearance in the musical firmament of a rising glow, the state of music, with regard to the masses of the people, was very black indeed.

Perhaps a yet more wonderful change has taken place among the classes than that revealed by comparing 1897 and 1837 among the masses. Speaking of the earlier time in 1887, I said: "A great deal of Chesterfieldism prevailed. The advice of the late Philip Dormer Stanhope to his son, never to play the fiddle or mix with those who do, only expressed a common sentiment, which sometimes, as Spohr indignantly tells us, took the concrete form of a dividing rope—none the less a barrier because made of silk. Young ladies might play the pianoforte or the guitar. For them such trifling was well enough. It added another weapon to the battery of their charms. But the idea of an Englishman belonging to the upper crust devoting himself to music as to racing, or cricket, or hunting, could not for a moment be entertained." Any such person would assuredly have been presented with a distaff or sent to Coventry by the most direct route. If any power amongst us could call the dead to life it would be worth while reviving my Lord Chesterfield that he might witness the change that has come over our splendid barbarians. My Lord would probably ask to be buried again on learning that a Prince of the Blood has fiddled on a public platform, but we could not let him go before showing a music-master at work in Eton, and a Choral Society singing at each of the ancient universities.

Yet another change. With the "million" taught to sing, and the ban taken off music among the "upper ten," amateur musicianship soon came into the field of active endeavour on behalf of the art. "Exceptions aside, there were no amateur (unpaid) choralists sixty years ago. Take London as an example. In 1832, five years before the Queen came to the throne, the only choral society existing in London, if a few semi-private associations be disregarded, was a small one bearing the name of St. Cecilia. The same year witnessed the founding of the Sacred Harmonic Society, in a very unpretending way, at Gate Street Chapel, Lincoln's Inn Fields, and, two years later, came an Amateur Musical Festival. This Festival was an outcome of circumstances that themselves throw a flood of light upon the matter now discussed. When Sir George Smart was organising the Westminster Abbey Festival of 1834, certain amateur choralists offered their services, which were declined with thanks. The step always now first taken in connection with Festival doings—namely, the organisation of an amateur chorus, was then unprecedented, and, being unprecedented, could not be permitted. Sir George Smart, therefore, provided himself with cathedral choirs, supplemented by a body of professional chorus people drawn from all parts of the country. Highly indignant at this, the amateurs resolved upon a Festival of their own, and held it in Exeter Hall with great success." This was the beginning of a revolution which gathered strength with every year of the Queen's reign, till now you can hardly fling a stone in any part of the country without risk of hitting a member of some choral society.

All the changes mentioned above affected the popular condition of music; those which had a bearing upon the professional side do not present the same impressive aspect. The fact is not surprising, for educated musicianship was then, allowing for fluctuations of taste, pretty much as it is now. Let us see what London was doing in the month of June, 1837, when the Queen came to the throne. In that space of time 135 concerts were given: four in private houses, six at the London Tavern, thirteen at Willis's Rooms, thirty-three in the concert-room of the King's Theatre, and seventy-nine in the Hanover Square Rooms. Many of these were "benefits," and had little artistic significance. Others, more important, were given by the directors of the Concerts of Classical Instrumental Music, at which appeared such artists as the two Banisters, Dando, Hill, Lazarus, and Westrop. The Philharmonic Society was playing Beethoven, Spohr, Weber, and others of like standing; the Società Armonica covered a lot of ground, from Symphonies by Beethoven to ballads by Balfe. The Sacred Harmonic Society postponed a performance of "Israel in Egypt" (with interpolated airs) because of King William's death. Beethoven was commemorated at Drury Lane, and the proceeds sent as a subscription towards the Bonn statue. The Purcell Club kept the anniversary of their master's death by a special service in Westminster Abbey. Bunn started an English Opera House within a month of the Queen's accession. Balfe wrote a national song, "Victoria and England for ever," and "Mr. Mendelssohn" came to England to conduct a performance of "St. Paul." Then is so like Now in general features that we are not struck by the aspect of an immense advance, yet advance there has been, as the sequel will show.

The foregoing remarks are simply preparatory and suggestive. Next month I shall endeavour to follow the course of Church music through Victoria's reign.

Joseph Bennett.

FRANZ SCHUBERT.

Born January 31, 1797.

The universal conscience, if there be such a thing, must, with regard to some among the great dead, feel remorse sufficient of itself to create a belief that they are permitted to know what takes place upon earth. If this be not the case, if "the rest" is not only silence but nescience, what avail the post-mortem honours, the ceremonial observance of times and seasons, the birthdays, death days, and centenaries which we are all so ready to celebrate? They have none but a reflex value, and that only in so far as they are felt to be acts of penance and atonement. Our conclusions on such matters are, of course, formed in the dark, or, at best, in the twilight; but it is not possible to escape being swayed by at least a hope that Franz Schubert knows the love and admiration which go out to him in ever-increasing volume. The world owes Schubert a great debt. Heavy would be the obligation even if in life the composer had worn a crown of glory and honour; as it is, the burden oppresses us. If we only had a clear assurance that everything said and done in his praise reaches his consciousness and helps to make amends! Assurance fails us, but hope remains, and at least we can cherish that.

No one knows how much Schubert suffered through the neglect of his contemporaries, and we bear our ignorance the more easily because it has been said of him that he carried a light heart in his bosom and was ever ready to drink and be merry. We are naturally anxious to believe the report, not caring to reflect that, often, mirth and high spirits are a mask worn by sensitive natures to conceal their pain, disappointment, and despair. Schubert, so far from gaily wearing his heart upon his sleeve, hid it away, even from his intimates. He was ever reticent and retiring; in what measure we can estimate from the fact that, while many persons who knew him lived into the present generation, they were able to describe only his person, habits, and manner of life. Of his inner nature we know next to nothing. He did not expose that essential self to public gaze. What he might have done under the genial sun of prosperity we cannot tell; but it is reasonable to conclude that, poor and neglected, his bitterest pains were endured in secret, unsuspect of the boon companions who chiefly saw in him a pleasant comrade. Those pains may have had more to do with his early death than had hard work and privation.

The fact of Schubert's reticence—perhaps the word should be secretiveness—becomes the more important the closer we look into it. This is none the less true because there were moments when his unhappiness overflowed and streamed forth in speech or writing. His confessions at such times reveal to us scarcely more than the fact of suffering, which, aggravated by an unusual sense of depression at the moment, would not be denied. He once described himself as "the most unhappy, the most miserable man on earth," and, on another occasion, wrote: "'My peace is gone, my heart is sore, Gone for ever and evermore.' I can repeat these lines now every day, for each night when I go to sleep, I hope never again to wake, and every morning renews afresh the wounds of yesterday." As revelations of the inner man such complaints have little value. They afford but glimpses, and even those mislead to the extent in which the conditions from which they sprang were abnormal. We are told that Schubert's power of verbal expression was very limited; but had it been large we should probably be little the wiser. He seldom or never showed a disposition to self-analysis in public, or even in the confidence of friendship. He was no Wagner, to turn himself inside out for inspection, and no Berlioz, to distort circumstances that they might make him appear as a hero of romance. Even to his diary Schubert confided very little more than cheap aphorisms which read like diluted Lavater. His letters, on their part, deal with everyday events rather than states of mind. Only in a slight degree are they introspective, the most vivid impression derived from them being that the writer would gladly lay down his pen and have done with correspondence.

It was much the same with Schubert in matters of love. All that we know of his relations with women amounts merely to conjecture, or, at best, to conclusions based upon the flimsiest statements. It is said that during his time of service in the family of Count Esterhazy, he fell in love with that nobleman's daughter, Caroline, after having recovered from a passion for the housemaid. The authority for the first assertion is a story (which lacks corroboration) that, when the high-born damsel rallied her instructor upon never having dedicated a piece of music to her, Schubert replied, "What would be the good of it? Everything I have ever done has been dedicated to you." One must admit, of course, that a young musician, necessarily susceptible, is very likely to bow before the charms of "sweet seventeen," especially when there is daily association in the stimulating atmosphere of his art. And it is just possible that, at an unguarded moment, Schubert let such a remark escape him. But that is a poor basis upon which to raise the fabric of a serious passion. Moreover, Schubert, who possessed a strong will if he did not always exercise it, could easily dismiss as Quixotic and hopeless the idea of attaching himself to a member of the proudest, and most hide-bound, aristocracy in the world. Love may laugh at distinctions of rank, but common-sense often checks the mirth, so doing, perhaps, in this case, if there was any love to check. The facts of the matter we shall never know, and as much may be said regarding other reported experiences of a like nature. Biographers tell us that, in affairs of the heart, Schubert was very reserved. The indications are that he was so in all intimate concerns. "Hail, fellow, well met," with the Bohemians, among whom, as a Bohemian, he lived, there were recesses in his nature where his soul dwelt alone—dwelt and suffered, most likely, with none to help.

As in the case of some other composers, we seem to be nearest the man when we study his music, wherein he could not help expressing feeling or avoid showing, unconsciously, that which he, of purpose, would never have revealed in speech. It would be of interest in the first place, however, to consider his choice of subjects when engaged in the song-world whereof he was, by divine right, king. True, his burning rage for composition led him to accept whatever verses came to hand, irrespective of their quality. But examination of the music shows that the unequalness in his Lieder curiously matches unequalness in the poetry. We can see at a glance where he dipped the pen in his heart's blood, and where he used the ink of commerce. Having this fact in mind, it is of the utmost interest to note that the greatest of his love lyrics are those in which, so to speak, he "wears the willow," and sings of rejected love. Such are the cyclus, "Die Schöne Müllerin," and especially that other and more despairing set, the "Winterreise." How great is he, too, in songs dealing with the disillusions of life! At the head of these, and as the finest of all his songs, in my opinion, stands "The Young Nun"; only, in that case, the victim has found a harbour of refuge from the raging storm. It may be said that the composer could assume a passion, if he felt it not. Doubtless the feat was within his power, though he could not have concealed the lack of real feeling; but I question whether Schubert ever played at "make believe" outside his operas. As bearing upon this point, let me quote a pregnant passage from a letter addressed to his parents in 1825. Some of his works had been performed in Linz, and he says: "My audience expressed great delight at the solemnity of my Hymn to the Blessed Virgin ('Ave Maria'); it seems to have infected the minds of listeners. I believe I have attained this result by never forcing on myself religious ecstasy, and never setting myself to compose such hymns or prayers except when I am involuntarily overcome by the feeling and spirit of devotion; in that case devotion is of the right and genuine kind." Here we have an important cue to the conditions under which Schubert did his most elevated work, for if, in his religious music, he waited for the mood, there is reason to believe that he did so in contemplation of labours on other high and intimate subjects. I doubt if any composer was ever more "right and genuine" than this simple, unscholastic, natural musician. His heart was full—much more so than his head—and out of the abundance of the heart he spake with a power which, under such circumstances, rarely or never fails.

Nothing is more natural, or seems more inevitable, than that a composer's music should be influenced by his temperament. The gay nature will produce works in which gaiety prevails, or into which, sometimes, a light and cheerful feeling forces itself with incongruous results. On the other hand, the melancholy man will, almost unconsciously, write himself down as such beyond possibility of mistake. These results are more obvious in music than in any other art, owing to its intensely personal nature. Music is, in a peculiar sense, the offspring of its creator's soul. The vital essence of the man is in it. I refer, of course, to sincere examples, not those in which a composer chooses to play a part from real or fancied necessity. Looking at Schubert's works in the light of these considerations, their well-nigh uniform note of sadness becomes profoundly suggestive, more especially when we restrict our observation to abstract music. In symphony and works for the chamber he was as free from restraint as from temptation to be other than natural. Here, therefore, we may look, even more confidently than to his songs, for a revelation of the man. What do we see?

The reader who knows anything at all of Schubert's "pure" music can answer the question just put. That music can be gay, but we inevitably find ourselves questioning its cheerfulness, and ever does the composer slip back, as by the force of some irresistible attraction, to the region of melancholy. It is then, some of us think, that he appears most lovable. There is melancholy and melancholy—that which is saturnine, looking upon all things as "a foul and pestilent congregation of vapours," and that which is pensive and gentle, the kind of which Beaumont said "Nothing's so dainty sweet as lovely Melancholy," and Milton invoked:

> Come, pensive nun, devout and pure,
> Sober, steadfast and demure,
> All in a robe of darkest grain,
> Flowing with majestic train,
> And sable stole of cypress lawn,
> Over thy decent shoulders drawn.

This is the spirit that dwells in Schubert's music, native thereto as is none other; loved as is none other. Shakespeare makes one of his characters assert that the musician's melancholy is fantastical, but we are conscious of no fantasy when in touch with that of Schubert. There is nothing more real; nothing more subject to the rule of life; nay, nothing more entirely a law in itself.

Now comes the question, How are we to reconcile the revelation of this man's nature, as it appears in his works, with the man himself as he appeared to his boon companions? This is the puzzle of Schubert's biographers, and the best of them—I mean, of course, Sir George Grove—can only turn the flank of the difficulty in the following very interesting remarks* :—

"But the fact is that, apart from his music, Schubert's life was little or nothing, and that is its most peculiar and most interesting fact. . . . He left, as we have said, no letters to speak of, no journal; there is no record of his ever having poured out his soul in confidence, as Beethoven did in the 'Will,' in the three mysterious letters to some unknown Beloved, or in his conversations with Bettina. He made no impression even on his closest friends beyond that of natural kindness, goodness, truth, and reserve. His life is all summed up in his music. No memoir of Schubert can ever be satisfactory, because no relation can be established between his life and his music; or rather, properly speaking, because there is no life to establish a relation with. The one scale of the balance is absolutely empty, the other is full to overflowing." These remarks of Sir George Grove are, no doubt, true in the sense intended by the eminent writer, who referred to what, for distinction's sake, may be called the outward and visible life of our musician. That, as we all know, was poor and squalid enough; a dreary round of monotony, a wearisome chapter of failures to obtain the common prizes of life. Between it and the music which Schubert poured forth, "as effortless as woodland nooks send violets up and paint them blue," there is no ascertainable point of connection. The one is of earth earthy; the other of the heaven heavenly; between them spreads the vastness of immeasurable space.

But, unless we conceive Schubert as a mere recorder of ideas and feelings not his own—as the amanuensis of the Spirit of Song—he must have lived another life than that which was visible. Nobody, I suppose, will insist on the amanuensis theory. We read that certain men who professed an unfashionable religion were directed by the Spirit not to consider what they should say when haled before the tribunals, since words would be put into their mouths at the moment. But that was in an age of miracles, and we have no knowledge of such Providential intervention in the case of musicians. If, then, Schubert was not a mere medium of communication between the Genius of art and us men, he must have lived the life which made his music possible. There is no getting away from that conclusion, for, as the Book puts it, you cannot gather grapes from thorns or figs from thistles. That which flows outward must first be contained, with all the elements that go to its production. Are beauty, fine feeling, pathos, lofty aspiration, supreme imagination in Schubert's music? Then, assuredly, were those qualities powerful in the inner existence which he kept so carefully hidden from the world. "Man's life," said Dr. South, in one of his most pregnant sentences, "is an appendix to his heart," and a man's works are a part of his life.

There is nothing singular in such a double personality as I have attributed to Schubert. We are all more or less dual, and the strange case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde offers but an exaggerated representation of the fact. It may be said, indeed, that our outward life is the garment with which we clothe the real man within—a garment put off when its possessor enters into the secret chambers of his nature and locks the door.

We must judge of Schubert's inner life by his music, which is its offspring. Should we not be glad to do so?—glad to believe in any form or degree of compensation for the pain and wretchedness of external circumstances? I feel that Schubert had large compensation, and that the sum of his happiness, could we ascertain it, would surprise us. As the man whom other men knew, he shared a lodging with companions as poor as himself; but the real Schubert dwelt alone in the spacious and richly furnished palace of his imagination, amid forms and sounds of beauty. Happiness is more evenly distributed than appears at first glance, and where we fancy it is not, there, often, it is. I recollect reading somewhere—probably in one of Lord Lytton's novels—and noting also, a striking illustration in support of this belief: "No man can judge of the happiness of another. As the new moon plays upon the waves, and seems to our eyes to favour with a peculiar beam one long track amidst the waters, leaving the rest in comparative obscurity, yet all the while she is no niggard in her lustre, for though the rays that meet not our eyes seem to us as though they were not, yet, with an equal and unfavouring loveliness, she mirrors herself in every wave. Even so, perhaps, happiness falls with the same brightness and power over the whole expanse of life." Schubert certainly had the sources of happiness in a nature which could call up so many sweet and lovely images and inspire so many noble thoughts. He must have been happy in the society of these unfailing companions; happier still in expressing them to the world, even though the world would not regard; happiest in the assurance that his treasure no man could take away.

* "Dictionary of Music and Musicians." Article, Schubert.

In this belief let us keep the feast of his centenary, wasting no sympathy, but finding all joy in the course of eternal Justice, which ordains that the world shall pay its debt to Schubert in the precious coin of love and admiration. We cannot make him richer than he was, whatever we do, but there are some accounts which a debtor is all the more wealthy for settling. Joseph Bennett.

Franz Peter Schubert was born at Vienna, January 31, 1797. In commemoration of the centenary of this event we present our readers with three interesting Schubert fac-similes. The scene of the picture—"Schubert in the circle of his friends"—is at Atzenbruck, near Vienna, where for three days in every year there was a continuous festival, "the enjoyments of which," we are told, "no participator in those scenes can ever forget." Schubert's presence and music on these occasions were regarded as indispensable. Seated on the grass to the right of the gentleman playing the guitar (?) is Schubert, who, divested of his coat and tall hat, and evidently enjoying his pipe, is regarding the more energetic amusements of his merry companions with quite a Pickwickian complacency. The enthusiastic fiddler is probably playing one of Schubert's own dances, of which the autographs of Op. 9, Nos. 29 to 31, and Op. 18, Nos. 1 to 3 (now in the possession of Herr Johannes Brahms), are inscribed "Atzenbrucker Deutsche, July, 1821." It is not often that we get a glimpse of a great composer in such a holiday mood. The original water-colour sketch is in the library of the "Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde," Vienna.

The MS. page of the great C major Symphony is of surpassing interest. Schubert rarely altered his compositions. He wrote "almost always on the spur of the moment, committing to paper, as fast as his pen could trace them, the ideas which presented themselves to his mind at the instant of composition—proceeding, in fact, as ordinary men do when they sit down to write a letter." But this Symphony has some important after-thoughts. We see in the fac-simile that Schubert originally wrote the first subject of the Allegro thus—mere tonic and dominant notes:

The simple change of the quaver note (D for G and A for D at *) makes an extraordinary difference in the vigour of the theme, and imparts to it quite a fresh impulse as compared with its original tonic and dominant baldness. Schubert must have decided upon this change after the Symphony was completed, and probably a good deal later, because the alteration is made in the autograph at every return of the subject throughout the entire movement. It will be noticed that Schubert has changed the Allegro vivace to Allegro ma non troppo, and also that he writes the violin and viola parts at the top of his score. There are other important and equally absorbing alterations in this colossal and remarkable work, which was written in the last year of the composer's short life. The original autograph, from which the fac-simile, reduced in size, is taken, is likewise in the library of the "Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde," Vienna.

The third and remaining memento is the first page of Schubert's Symphony in E, the autograph of which was given by Ferdinand Schubert, the composer's brother, to Mendelssohn. At Mendelssohn's death it passed into the possession of his brother, who, in 1868, presented it to that devoted disciple of Schubert, Sir George Grove. We cannot do better than quote Sir George's own account of his Schubert treasure ("Dictionary of Music and Musicians," III., 334*b*): "The autograph is a very curious manuscript, probably quite unique, even among Schubert's feats of composition. It occupies 167 pages . . . and is in the usual four movements. . . . The Introduction and a portion of the Allegro are fully scored and marked; but at the 110th bar—the end of a page—Schubert appears to have grown impatient of this regular proceeding, and from that point to the end of the work has made merely memoranda. But these memoranda are, in their way, perfectly complete and orderly to the end of the Finale. Every bar is drawn in; the tempi and names of the instruments are fully written at the beginning of each movement; the nuances are all marked; the very double-bars and flourishes are gravely added at the end of the sections, and 'Fine' at the conclusion of the whole; and Schubert evidently regarded the work as no less complete on the paper than it was in his mind." This Symphony, completed by Mr. John Francis Barnett, was performed at the Crystal Palace, May 5, 1883.

For valued help in procuring these Schubert fac-similes, we are greatly indebted to the kindness of Mr. Eusebius Mandyczewski, the excellent librarian of the "Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde," Vienna, and Sir George Grove, to both of whom we beg to tender our best thanks.

Dr. Sawyer has done well to draw the attention of musicians to methods of teaching harmony, which any person endowed with common-sense must feel to be inadequate, if not injurious. Amongst his audience at the last meeting of the Musical Association were many who have been for the greater portion of their lives assiduous teachers of harmony. The mere fact that so many of his hearers at once recognised the truth of some of his premises might tempt outsiders to assume that his conclusions were equally true. On this point, however, we have some doubts. With much that Dr. Sawyer said as regards the way in which harmony is taught by the thousands who know little of their subject and can impart less, we cordially agree. But let us put his conclusions to the test. In training a pupil up to the constructive side of the art, three steps, or rather three departments, must be taught—nomenclature and notation, grammar and syntax, and composition. These three divisions are closely analogous to alphabet and spelling, grammar and syntax, and composition, as worked out by every schoolboy in learning a language. But does any experienced teacher look upon these branches as mutually exclusive? Certainly not. Only bad teachers keep a child entirely in the confines of one division until it is mastered. The baby who is allowed to eat his ginger-bread letters when he can distinguish between their forms, is almost as soon taught to construct the words "dog" and "cat," and to compose a sentence "the dog bit the cat"—in other words, he is gently admitted into the final stage. Surely, good teachers of music follow exactly the same method. They use a text-book, as its name implies, as a peg whereon to hang a method. Is a child's alphabet-book bad because it does not teach grammar or syntax? Is the grammar bad because it does not teach the art of writing essays, or novels, or poetry? We say no; Dr. Sawyer apparently says yes. He would immediately ask an infant who has laboriously chalked "the dog bit the cat" to write an essay on the pathology of bites, the sociological laws of mutual kindness, and the ethical results of self-repression. We are not joking. It is a sober fact that a good governess would use the child's sentence as a text on which might be built a lesson on all these "logies," such a lesson as would make a lasting impression on the child's mind and morality. But who in the world would like all this ingenious combination of different branches of learning, this baby-commentary on the higher culture to appear in a nursery-book? It has been tried over and over again and has proved a hopeless failure. Similarly, there is nothing to prevent a teacher of harmony from giving a melody to be harmonised, or from expounding the primary laws of phrase-form from an easy work on composition, concurrently with the working-out of figured basses. This method has, in fact, been adopted by the best teachers with excellent results. In all other subjects a similar method is used. A student in any of our Universities is not surprised to be told to read a particular chapter out of two or three different books, all of which bear on his work at the time. But it does not follow that it would be wise to huddle all these chapters together under one cover; and even if such a many-sided music-book could be produced, it would not be equally valuable to a child in an upper form at school, working to pass the Oxford or Cambridge "Locals," and a grown-up instrumental performer who finds that he must commence a study which he has entirely neglected. The real truth of the matter is that the best and most widely-used text-books are those which are of use to students of varied ages and acquirements; and the best teacher is the one who knows exactly what to graft on to a text-book to suit the special condition of each separate pupil. It is necessary to insist on this point, because people do not realise the absurdity of mustering a dozen or twenty pupils together to learn harmony in class. Cheapness is the desideratum, bad quality is the result. It is known to many by personal experience that in thus herding the pupils together, one quarter of them sometimes learn a fair amount, another quarter learn a little, and the remaining half often leave the room completely muddled and fogged.

But is it not also a well-known fact that stupid pupils always blame their teachers, and that incompetent teachers always blame their text-books? A first-rate teacher can train a pupil splendidly whilst using only a very ordinary text-book, and a bad teacher will remain a bad teacher even if he were provided with the quintessence of all that could be conceivably learnt or known on the subject. There are scores of men and women who go the round of English and foreign singing masters, giving each one a bad word because he has not endowed them with new vocal organs, nor succeeded in squeezing some tender sentiment out of their cast-iron hearts. So, too, there are scores of students of harmony, naturally incapable, who console themselves by abusing their teachers, however good, and scores of bad teachers who account for their want of success by vilifying their text-books. We should be sincerely sorry if any attitude which Dr. Sawyer takes were to be interpreted as showing sympathy with such worthless and undeserving folks, but we are not afraid of this. We trust that his forcible remarks will make teachers reflect, and cause them to ask themselves whether they might not get more out of their text-books than they do, and make their tuition more elastic and more eclectic than it often is.

With the methods of American musical criticism we do not find ourselves invariably in perfect accord. But it must be admitted that there is a freshness and piquancy about it which is at times extremely engaging, especially where the writer is above suspicion on the score of venality, and where it is desirable that the truth should be told frankly and freely about the merits of a public performer. We have before us a criticism of a violent and unsatisfactory pianist, not unknown in this country, which may serve as an illustration to the foregoing remarks: "Mr. ——'s piano playing," says the writer, "has one distinguished merit. It is his own. He will never be accused of imitating Paderewski, Rosenthal, or D'Albert, though there may be insinuations that he has borrowed some of his ideas of the art from the wild untutored buzz-saw, or the merry, merry trip-hammer. A piano is a harmless instrument if let alone; but, like the Bulwerian worm, when trodden on it will turn and sting. . . . Mr. —— is a dynamic pianist. He has wild swoops from pianissimo to such a fortissimo as was never heard before. The very wires cry out against it like 'sweet bells jangled.' . . . In short, it is quite impossible to understand how Mr. —— earned his reputation at home. He will certainly not earn one here. If he values the one at home he will go back to it." This may not be exactly dignified, but, judging from our recollections of the artist in question, it is not altogether undeserved. America is well within her rights in resenting the audacity of those European performers on instruments who, on the strength of some obscure German paper, set out for America hoping "to get the dollars of the benighted savages who dwell in the cane brakes, and do not know the difference between a symphony and a Salvation Army hymn."

The "Dictionary of National Biography" continues its useful and valuable career. The recent instalment (Vol. XLVIII.) of the work does not, however, contain the name of any specially eminent musician. A. R. R. Reinagle doubtless finds a place by reason of his well-known common metre tune "St. Peter," though not so named by him, which is said to have been published as long ago as 1830. Thomas Reinhold, a contemporary of Handel's, and, like him, a naturalised Englishman, was one of the original singers in "The Lord is a Man of War," and also one of the founders of the Royal Society of Musicians. The name of John Reynolds, the composer of the anthem "My God, my God, look upon me," does not appear. Henry Brinley Richards was the first to gain the King's Scholarship at the Royal Academy of Music, in 1835; but he is best known as the composer of "God bless the Prince of Wales," which soon attained popularity after its publication in 1862. Dr. E. F. Rimbault is known by his antiquarian researches, in which, however, his accuracy was hardly commensurate with his zeal. By the way, his biographer gives the vague information that, in 1848, Rimbault "was given a degree by Oxford University," without specifying the nature of the distinction. But as the name does not appear in Foster's Alumni Oxonienses, nor in the "Oxford Calendar" of 1848, there is obviously some mistake here. Where did Rimbault obtain his LL.D.?

In the musical realm of the British Isles it can hardly be contended that England is the "predominant partner." If one examines the nationality of our leading artists and composers, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales are represented to an extent out of all proportion to their population. Just now, Wales is very much in evidence amongst the rising generation, as was shown by the cast of "Falstaff," at the performance given by the pupils of the Royal College last month, when no fewer than four of the principal characters were impersonated by natives of the principality—Miss Morfydd Williams, Miss Eleanor Jones, Mr. Mansel Lewis, and Mr. Emlyn Davies. No wonder the Welsh press were exultant over the success of their compatriots, and the very next week we read that a great wave of Welsh music passed over Manchester. "The South Wales miners, as represented by their royal brethren from Treorky, were at the Mansion House sustaining the musical programme at the 'At Home' given by Lord Mayor Roberts, while at Moss-side the North Wales quarrymen were represented by the Penrhyn Male-Voice Choir from Bethesda." In face of this inundation of Cymric talent, the poor Saxon finds it hard to hold his own. In literature the Scottish school of the Kailyard is still all the rage. At this rate the kingdom will soon have to be re-named Great Britain and Little England.

The Leeds Mercury has, during the absence of its musical representative, been instructing an enquiring correspondent as to the presumable maker of his violin. The information it afforded him was put in these words: "It appears to have been made by Faciebat, on the Stradivarian model, and may be of the date specified." Miss Stainer's new "Dictionary of Violin Makers" has no reference to "Faciebat," an omission that should be corrected in the next edition. We have reason to believe that he was a brother of that universal genius, Fecit, and a cousin of the immortal twins, Pinxit and Sculpsit.

Owing to pressure on our space the continuation of the articles "From my Study" and "John Dowland" is necessarily held over.

FACTS, RUMOURS, AND REMARKS.

If church organists do not exchange great musicianship for little pay, it is scarcely owing to lack of requirement on the part of their employers. An indignant correspondent writes to me saying that, when a vacant post at Stoke Newington Unitarian Church, value £15 per annum, was advertised the other day, he made application to fill it, and was invited to meet the committee, try the organ, &c. In the interim, however, a test programme was forwarded to the aspirant. Below is a copy of it: "(1) 'Give out' and play a hymn-tune. (2) Play 'Amen' fugue from 'The Messiah,' doubling with pedals when required; or play a short pedal fugue of Bach. (3) Read at sight from MS. (4) Play a short organ piece. (5) Play any prepared organ solo. (6) Reply to some questions.

No one will say that these demands are in excess of what an organist should be able to supply. The point is that the remuneration stands hopelessly out of proportion to the skill required—skill representing much labour, with, no doubt, considerable expenditure upon professors. Fifteen pounds per year is indeed skimpy interest upon such an investment, and it is not surprising that my correspondent, considering all the circumstances, withdrew his name. The case seems almost as bad as the fourpenny and sixpenny lessons of which we often read. It may be that the Stoke Newington Unitarians cannot afford more than £15 per year for an organist. There is no reproach in that, but let them limit their expectations to an annual fifteen pounds' worth of efficiency.

Another indignant correspondent writes complaining of a case in which the authorities of a church (St. Boniface, Bonchurch) appointed as organist a draper's assistant. He says: "It is shameful that the clergy should appoint tradesmen to good churches when there are so many experienced organists almost starving for want of employment. Bonchurch is a wealthy neighbourhood, and the salary £50. The last organist was an F.R.C.O. and Mus. Doc." I must point out that the authorities acted clearly within their right, and that the draper's assistant may be a capable man, which would seem to be indicated if, as stated, he is a Non-conformist. The propriety of their action, in view of a crowded and ill-paid profession, is, of course, another matter altogether.

Does the Incorporated Society of Professional Musicians take up such cases as that at Bonchurch? If not, why not? It seems to me quite as essential a part of its duty as reading papers and making speeches at annual meetings. Surely the Society should bring its influence to bear on behalf of the profession when the amateur comes in to its detriment. But perhaps the Society does take that course, in which case there is no more to be said. One would like to know, however.

My attention has been drawn to a passage in a concert notice: "An original composition, variations on an air by Handel by Miss Arkwright, Mus. Bac., did not elicit much enthusiasm, but is no doubt worth a second hearing. It represents an immense amount of work, being fully scored after the manner of modern composers. Unlike the ordinary variations, the air is not repeatedly recurring, but the air is worked out very distinctly, although there may be a great resemblance."

Is it better to spend money on fireworks or on a new church? This was the question discussed by the choirboys of Newcastle Pro-Cathedral on a recent occasion. It was raised by an appeal from the choristers of a temporary church near Runcorn. These lads had themselves given up their pocket-money to the cause of a permanent building, and, thus qualified to incite others, sent round an appeal. The Newcastle youngsters came to the right decision, and the sum collected for celebrating the day of Guy Faux was forwarded to the proper quarter. Well done, boys!

When trying a case in which a theatrical manager was indicted for giving a performance of secular music on a Sunday, Judge Gaskill, of Boston, Mass., gave a definition of sacred music in a sentence which owes none of its clearness to construction: "Such as is used, or by common acceptation is fit and proper for religious uses, or where the religious and moral sentiment is invoked." That is no definition at all, because it leaves undecided the main point: What music is by common acceptation fit and proper for religious uses? Everybody would pass the Old Hundredth, no doubt, but how as to the Salvation Army tunes, and Rossini's "Stabat Mater," out of which quadrilles have been made?

Joseph Bennett.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

The third performance this season of the Royal Choral Society, which took place at the Albert Hall on the 10th ult., consisted of Mendelssohn's "St. Paul," which, on this occasion, received a very fine interpretation. Professor Bridge has manifestly already gained the entire confidence of the choir. The beautiful chorus, "Happy and blest are they," was sung with the utmost delicacy and expression, and the impressive choral numbers, "Rise up! arise," "O great is the depth," and "The nations are now the Lord's," were sung with the greatest unanimity and magnificent volume of tone. Miss Ella Russell and Mr. Edward Lloyd sang the soprano and tenor solos with their usual success. Miss Lucie Johnstone was the contralto soloist, and interpreted the familiar air, "But the Lord is mindful of His own," with notable purity of expression, and Mr. Plunket Greene was a most artistic exponent of the bass solos. The orchestra was efficient, and Mr. H. L. Balfour presided with his usual skill at the organ.

QUEEN'S HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

When M. Saint-Saëns's Biblical opera "Samson and Delilah" was first performed in England, on September 25, 1893, at one of the Promenade Concerts at Covent Garden Theatre, under the management of Mr. Farley Sinkins, the performance of the work was deemed too imperfect to permit of its value as an art-work being fairly estimated. Opportunity for criticism was, however, amply afforded on the 3rd ult., when a very fine interpretation, of course in concert-form, was given by the Queen's Hall Choral Society, under the conductorship of Mr. Randegger. Although held to be the finest of M. Saint-Saëns's dramatic productions, it is one of his earliest important works, most of it dating from 1869. Mr. Ferdinand Lemaire has treated the Biblical story in a very imaginative spirit. We are first introduced to Samson in the public square at Gaza as he is endeavouring to raise the hopes of his oppressed countrymen, who are in bondage to the Philistines. He succeeds in doing this so well that on the appearance of the Philistine Guard a riot ensues, the soldiers are driven back, and Abimelech, their captain, killed by Samson. Delilah is supposed to have witnessed this scene and to be fired to revenge her countryman's death. She enters with her dancing-girls from the Temple of Dagon, Judith-like chanting the valorous deed of Samson, and the first act closes with her invitation to the hero to her home in the valley of Soreck. It is on this scene that the curtain next rises. Delilah, alone, has doubts of the success of her plans; but she is roused to further effort by a visit from the High Priest of Dagon, who tells her that the Philistines' last hope is in her power. Samson comes—hesitates for half-an-hour—is shorn in seventy-five seconds. The third act is principally occupied with the celebrations of victory in the temple of Dagon. Samson is brought in, is mocked, and answers by bringing down the temple on himself and its occupants. In the musical setting of these incidents the composer's versatility is shown in a remarkable manner. The Hebrew choruses are for the most part reflective of the style of Handel. The Dagon priestesses sing music that shows the influence of Berlioz. The dances in the temple largely affect the tonality of the ancient scale systems. The High Priest and Delilah express their delight in a canon in the octave, and the duets between Samson and Delilah are modern, very modern French in conception. Consummate mastery of all these styles is shown, but the diversity of their character detracts from the homogeneity of the work. The music thus impresses one, not as the expression of a master mind, but as the reflection of many masters. Only in the second act has M. Saint-Saëns spoken consistently in his own tongue, and this is the finest portion of the opera. For sensuous beauty and passion it is unsurpassed; but it is the musical picture of a Delilah of the nineteenth century. Madame Brema sang superbly and with the utmost dramatic significance as the renowned Philistine heroine; Mr. Lloyd interpreted the music assigned to Samson with his customary command of expression and beauty of vocal tone, and Mr. Andrew Black sustained the part of the High Priest with his usual dignity of declamation and impressiveness. Minor characters were admirably impersonated by Messrs. Reginald Brophy, Ley Vernon, Thomas Meux, and A. H. Gee. The choral portions were sung with a notable intelligence, dramatic perception, and precision that entitle this choir to be placed in the foremost rank of English choral societies, and, save that the orchestra was sometimes too loud in the accompaniments, the elaborate and exacting instrumental portion of the opera was finely rendered. Mr. Newman deserves the thanks of music-lovers for presenting this interesting work in so complete a manner, and also for the announcement of its repetition with the same soloists on the afternoon of the 16th inst.

HENSCHEL CONCERTS.

The second of these performances, formerly known as the London Symphony Concerts, was given at St. James's Hall, on the 3rd ult., the occasion being signalised by the first performance in England of a Te Deum by the esteemed composer, Antonin Dvorák. It is in four movements, and the music is remarkably characteristic of Slavonic rhythms and phraseology, and it may be said also for the highly-coloured and almost barbaric orchestration, including the use not only of drums but of cymbals and triangle. English musicians only make themselves ridiculous when they assert that their own sober methods of treating sacred themes is right and all foreign methods are wrong. Strange and even bizarre as this Te Deum may seem, regarded from the point of view of English Church music, it must be surely admitted that the devotional verses are treated in a beautiful and tender way, and that Dvorák's desire has been to give utterance to deep religious feeling in the impulsive and exuberant style characteristic of the Slavic temperament. There are only two solo parts in the Te Deum, and these were admirably sung by Miss Fillunger and Mr. Daniel Price, the choral portions being of course rendered by Mr. Henschel's choir. The "Te Deum" was sung in Latin and, as we agree with the programme annotator that it is a work of "exceptional beauty and power," an English version should be promptly supplied so as to make it available for general use in this country. Another choral piece was Mr. Henschel's very tasteful Morning Hymn, "Soon night will pass," originally written as a song with pianoforte accompaniment, but now scored for chorus and orchestra. This charming piece pleased greatly and was encored. Wagner's "Faust" Overture and Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, both well played, completed the brief and interesting programme.

CRYSTAL PALACE CONCERTS.

The early works of composers of genius must always possess an interest possibly out of proportion to their intrinsic merit, and they should be brought to a hearing, even though they be no better than the mature works of other composers to whom the "divine spark" was denied. That Richard Strauss is a genius few who have heard his later works will deny, and the thanks of all interested in contemporary art are therefore due to Mr. Manns for the production, at the Concert of November 28, of the First Symphony in F minor, by the brilliant composer of "Till Eulenspiegel." For a boy of twenty, his Op. 12 is wonderful, almost as wonderful as Schubert's Mass in F or Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" Overture. It is a serious work of ample proportions, the highest aim, and more than common achievement. There is as remarkable an absence of reminiscences in this strangely clever work as in the two juvenile masterpieces referred to above, and yet it cannot be called strictly original. But then originality for originality's sake should no more be a composer's foremost thought than a dry display of science. Of the essence of music, beauty, Strauss's early effort contains a plentiful share, and as for what is generally included in the term of workmanship, it must have required a clever master indeed to teach this youngster anything! What he had not yet thoroughly learned at the "tender" age which saw the birth of this Symphony, was how to be uniformly effective in the best sense of the word. It is almost pathetic to see or hear how the young composer now and then uses all the means at his disposal to be expressive and effective, and how in spite of his hardest endeavours he does not quite succeed in being either. On paper the music promised well, but in performance some of the expected flashes missed fire. This remark does not apply to the Scherzo, which is an original, exhilarating, and thoroughly interesting movement. The Symphony was but coldly received, and we doubt whether it will be heard again. The programme included Mendelssohn's first Pianoforte Concerto, beautifully played by Mdlle. Kleeberg; Mr. Cowen's charming "Four English Dances in the Olden Style"; the final scene from Wagner's "Rheingold," in Zumpe's concert arrangement; and songs contributed by Miss Ella Russell.

At the following Concert, on the 5th ult., yet another Symphony was added to the enormous répertoire of these Concerts—viz., Mr. A. Barclay Jones's No. 1 in C minor, dedicated to the memory of his master, the late Mr. Thomas Wingham. It was more successful and created a greater impression than Strauss's work, because its beauties—and they are very considerable—lie more on the surface. Mr. Jones's themes lack individuality, but they are fairly emotional and fall pleasantly on the ear; his workmanship, his many clever devices, his contrapuntal combinations, are neither new nor startling, but they are obvious enough to interest the unlearned amateur; his climaxes are led up to and produced by well-known means, but they are almost as powerful and stirring as brass and brains can make them. If the young composer had maintained the high level reached in his first movement he would have enriched the world with a really fine work. Unfortunately, after the noble introductory Lento and the splendid Coda to the subsequent Allegro vivace, the other movements fall off. The Adagio, with its "soft organ stop" effects, though rather original, does not succeed in being genuinely impressive; the Menuetto and Trio are not sufficiently attractive to warrant their existence in a work of such calibre; and the "learned" Finale, though starting with a promise of emulating the first movement, soon comes dangerously near being uninteresting, not to say dull. However, the work, as a whole, proves Mr. Jones to be a highly gifted composer, who may produce masterpieces when he has gained greater experience and developed more individuality. The Symphony was excellently played and the composer warmly applauded. Beethoven's third Pianoforte Concerto, powerfully played by Mr. Mark Hambourg; the Prelude to "Tristan," and the ballet-music from Verdi's "I vespri Siciliani" were the remaining orchestral pieces. Miss Rina Allerton was the vocalist.

We must dismiss the remaining Concerts with a few words. On the 12th ult. the programme included Sir Alexander Mackenzie's beautiful symphonic ballad "La Belle Dame sans merci," still the most original and most romantic orchestral piece by a British composer; Beethoven's First Symphony, Wagner's "Flying Dutchman" Overture, all capitally played, and Dvorák's Violoncello Concerto, performed—as on the occasion of its production by the Philharmonic Society a few months ago—by Mr. Leo Stern. Miss Jeanne Gréta, a new-comer from the States, made a successful début in Félicien David's "Charmant oiseau." On the 19th ult. the Symphony was Dvorák's "From the New World," which is evidently a favourite with Mr. Manns, who always handles it very lovingly and gives a beautiful performance of this charming work. Brahms's splendid "Tragic" Overture, a movement from a Concerto for clavecin, flute, violin, and orchestra, by Bach, and Saint-Saëns's Second Pianoforte Concerto were included in the programme. Miss Fanny Davies was the highly effective pianist and Madame Marie Duma sang.

PROMENADE CONCERTS.

MR. HENRY J. WOOD'S fine orchestra at the Queen's Hall have continued to attract large audiences on Saturday evenings during the past month, and each programme—saving that of the 19th ult., which was devoted to excerpts from Wagner's writings—has introduced an orchestral work new to London audiences. The first novelty, presented on November 28, was a Petite Suite for orchestra, entitled "A summer day in the country," by Carlowitz Ames. This consists of six numbers, unpretentious in character, but pleasantly suggestive of rural scenery and associations. On the 5th ult. was played, for the first time in England, a symphonic suite in four movements (Op. 35) of important dimension, entitled "Scheherazade," by the Russian composer Rimsky-Korsakoff. This is avowedly programme music, but its basis, that of the "Arabian Nights," is too vaguely indicated to give a sufficiently distinct clue to the meaning of the music, which consequently appears faulty in form and eccentric in character. At the same Concert the first performance was given of an orchestral version, by Mr. Henry J. Wood, of a fascinating Gavotte à la mode ancienne, by Sir George Elvey, which received a very warm reception from a large audience.

Mr. Percy Pitt provided the novelty on the 12th ult., in the shape of a miniature suite, entitled "Fêtes Galantes." This comprises five movements, which are exceedingly attractive. The music is spirited and expressive and the scoring picturesque and delicately finished. Much interest was also attached to an admirable interpretation of an orchestral version, by Hans Sitt, of Grieg's Norwegian Dances (Op. 35).

The vocalists who have appeared have been Madame Fanny Moody, Miss Lucile Hill, Miss Maggie Davies, Mdlle. Amelia Sinico, Miss Lenna Mendelssohn (who made her first appearance in public on the 5th ult.), and Messrs. Brophy, Santley, Manners, and Ludwig. The successful début in London, on November 28, of Mr. H. Morrison, a young violinist of distinct promise, also demands record.

ROYAL ARTILLERY BAND.

THE most substantial feature of Cavaliere L. Zavertal's programme at Queen's Hall, on the 11th ult., was Beethoven's "Pastoral" Symphony. Of the several renderings of this familiar masterpiece on the same platform by divers orchestral associations during a few months, that of the Royal Artillery Band was certainly not the least praiseworthy as regards general evenness and grasp of the main characteristics of each movement. The opening Allegro and the succeeding Andante were played with the utmost respect for detail; whilst the storm scene was even more remarkable for crispness and readiness of attack. The band has shown steady improvement in the execution of lengthy and elaborate compositions, and up to the present it has done nothing better in this direction than the tone-poet's popular No. 6 Symphony. As specimens of rare efficiency in a lighter branch, the delicate Graceful Dance and the buoyant Country Dance from Mr. F. H. Cowen's bright "English Dances in the Olden Style" were judiciously chosen. Here the finest gradations of expression were produced by the conductor, whose wishes are so clear to the performers and are so promptly complied with. Svendsen's Norwegian Rhapsody (No. 4) separated Kaan's "Staendchen" and Berlioz's exquisitely gossamer-like "Valse des Sylphes," each being given with unimpeachably correct spirit. The overture to Stanford's "Shamus O'Brien" merrily opened a Concert that came to a stirring conclusion with the overture to Wagner's "Rienzi."

ROYAL ENGINEERS' BAND.

Those who arranged the Concert conducted by Mr. J. Sommer, at Queen's Hall, on the 4th ult., could scarcely have hit upon a work more acceptable to the large audience than Mr. Edward German's "Gipsy" Suite, so frequently heard of late, but of which nobody shows any indication of being tired. Among the merits of this charming composition is the faculty of making fresh friends without losing old ones. The fact is, the beauties discoverable in this picturesque Suite are not exhausted by experience of a second or even a third or fourth performance. The sentiment of the "Lonely Life" and "Love Duet" sections was sympathetically brought out by the band, and briskness was not lacking in the execution of the sparkling second and fourth movements, respectively entitled "The Dance" and "The Revel." The second, fifth, and sixth of Brahms's Hungarian Dances were spiritedly given, and so, too, was the second of Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsodies, the latter of which should have changed places with the long selection from "Faust." Ganne's "Arlequinade" pizzicati and Délibes's "Coppelia" Czardas helped to impart variety to a programme in which solidity seemed to have been purposely avoided. Towards the close Godard's "Berceuse de Jocelyn" was played with so much taste by one of the violoncellists as to excuse the introduction of the solo element. Suppé's "Tantalusqualen" Overture and Schubert's Marche Militaire were included in the band performances.

MONDAY AND SATURDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

These performances have been continued with the increased spirit indicated in Mr. Arthur Chappell's prospectus. Taking up our record, we have first to mention briefly the Concert of November 28, when the concerted works were Haydn's Quartet in E flat (Op. 64, No. 2) and Beethoven's Pianoforte Trio in B flat (Op. 97), the pianist being Mr. Eugene d'Albert, and the violinist, Madame Soldat. The latter played two movements from Bach's Suite in E, quite in the Joachim style, and the former Schumann's inspired Fantasia in C (Op. 17), which was interpreted with the alternate dreamy tenderness and energy which the music demands. Mr Plunket Greene introduced three interesting old German songs dating between the fourteenth and the eighteenth centuries, and also artistic lyrics by Dr. Hubert Parry and Professor Stanford.

Dvorák's Quartet in F (Op. 96), which headed the programme on the following Monday, was not exactly a novelty in London, but it could not be regarded as familiar. It was composed during the Bohemian composer's stay in America, and exemplifies, like the Symphony "From the New World," his questionable idea that in Negro and Indian tunes there might be discovered a foundation for a national style in music, which certainly America does not as yet possess. At a first hearing the slow movement, Lento in D minor, seemed the most expressive; and the third, a sort of Scherzo in variation form, the most characteristic. The Concert was noteworthy for the first appearance this season of three great artists—Lady Hallé, Miss Fanny Davies, and Mr. Piatti, all of whom played in their very best manner. Mr. Plunket Greene is to be highly commended for his selection of songs by Purcell, Maurice Greene, Wagner, Brahms, and Hollander. The pianoforte solos were Schumann's three Romances (Op. 28), which Miss Fanny Davies played to perfection, and the Concert concluded with Saint-Saëns's clever, if not very inspired, Pianoforte Quartet in B flat (Op. 41).

The Concert of Saturday, the 5th ult., included for the first time Brahms's Sonata in E flat, one of the two Duet-Sonatas (Op. 120) first introduced to a London audience by Miss Fanny Davies and Mr. Mühlfeld in June last year. On the present occasion the clarinettist was Mr. Clinton, who, although he cannot compare with Mr. Mühlfeld in sweetness of tone, is perhaps the most able English executant on his instrument at the present day. Dvorák's Quartet in F (Op. 96) was repeated, and Miss Fanny Davies and Lady Hallé were both encored in solos by Chopin and Max Bruch respectively. Madame Bertha Moore was charming, as usual, in vocal pieces by Gounod, Ambroise Thomas, and Somervell.

There were two additions to the repertory on the following Monday evening. The first was Professor Villiers Stanford's Quartet for strings in A minor (Op. 45), dedicated to Mr. Richard Gompertz, and though not an absolute novelty, almost sufficiently fresh to be regarded as such. It is a genial work, abounding in musicianly touches, and the final Allegro molto is akin to Slavonic music. The other piece given for the first time was a new Sonata for violoncello and pianoforte in E minor, by Mr. Piatti (Op. 32). This is one of the Italian artist's best compositions, being noteworthy not only for refinement and musicianly feeling, but for an unusual measure of vigour. It was perfectly interpreted by the composer and Mr. Henry Bird. A very crisp and generally effective performance of Mendelssohn's Variations Sérieuses was given by Miss Kleeberg, with Scarlatti's familiar Pastorale as an encore. The vocalist was Madame Alice Gomez, one of her selections being a charming "Rondel" by that rapidly rising composer, Mr. Edward Elgar.

Miss Kleeberg was again the pianist on Saturday, the 12th ult., when she introduced Bach's Toccata in C minor from the second set, Philipp Spitta speaking very highly of this particular example. The other instrumental works were entirely familiar and need not be specified. Mr. Whitney Mockridge gave satisfaction in some little known songs by Jensen, Ethelbert Nevin, and Max Spicker.

We regret that owing to the enormous quantity of concerts that call for some sort of notice at present, it is impossible to deal with Miss Liza Lehmann's Song Cycle "In a Persian Garden," produced on Monday, the 14th ult., as closely as its merits deserve. Perhaps opportunity may be afforded at some other time, but meanwhile let us hasten to say that the cycle, written after the manner of Brahms, for four voices with pianoforte accompaniment, is one of the most impressive works ever penned by a female composer. Miss Liza Lehmann, to give her the name printed in the book, though she is now Mrs. Bedford, has taken for her text part of a translation, by E. Fitzgerald, of Omar Kháyzman's "Rubáiyát," written probably in the early part of the twelfth century. He was apparently an agnostic and a pessimist, the most appropriate motto for his poem being "Let us eat and drink, for to-morrow we die." But on the melancholy and morbid verse Miss Lehmann has raised a musical superstructure of surprising strength and beauty. The work is lengthy, but the audience felt no sense of weariness, judging by the ever-increasing meed of applause. The solo parts were beautifully interpreted by Miss Evangeline Florence, Madame Marian McKenzie, Mr. Ben Davies, and Mr. Thomas Meux, a young baritone possessed of an agreeable and well trained voice. The programme commenced with Mozart's Quintet in G minor, and included one of Schumann's latest works, the "Legendary Tales," for pianoforte, violin, and viola (Op. 132), admirably rendered by Miss Fanny Davies, Lady Hallé, and Mr. Gibson.

The last Concert before Christmas took place on Saturday, the 19th ult., with a programme rich in novelties, at any rate as regards Mr. Arthur Chappell's performances. The first was Grieg's Quartet for strings in G minor (Op. 27), a work containing plenty of Scandinavian colouring, but also evidence that Grieg is more at home in light and piquant trifles than in works fully developed in classical form. Mr. Gabriel Fauré's Sonata in A for pianoforte and violin, may be numbered among the French composer's most fresh and genial works. It was rendered by the composer and M. Johannes Wolff, as on its first performance in London, at the Wolff Musical Union, on November 22, 1894. The solo pianist was Miss Adela Verne, who played three pieces by Chopin with so much charm that the audience would have willingly heard more. Miss Agnes Witting, the vocalist, was highly commendable in lyrics by Brahms, Henschel, and Hubert Parry.

PIANOFORTE RECITALS.

Mr. Eugene d'Albert set himself a very arduous task when he arranged a Beethoven Pianoforte Recital, at St. James's Hall, on the afternoon of November 24. He played not only the Thirty-two Variations in C minor, but five Sonatas—namely, the "Moonlight," the "Waldstein" and the last three Sonatas—in E (Op. 109), in A flat

(Op. 110), and in C minor (Op. 111). He therefore emulated the late Hans von Bülow, who played the last five Sonatas at one sitting; and if it cannot be said that Mr. d'Albert's playing was in every movement beyond reproach, in a technical sense it was unsurpassable, and the reading of the Bonn master's works was invariably interesting, one of the choicest efforts being the final movement, with variations, in the Sonata in E.

On the following afternoon Mr. Emil Sauer gave his only Pianoforte Recital this autumn season, also at St. James's Hall, and of course attracted a large audience. Brahms's early but quite characteristic Sonata in F minor (Op. 5), the same composer's Variations on a Theme by Handel (Op. 24), selections from Chopin and Schumann, and pieces of the virtuoso pattern were played with delightful touch, fluency, and expression, and the assemblage waxed more and more enthusiastic, three encores being demanded and granted after the conclusion of the regular official programme. Mr. Sauer has certainly established himself in the affections of the English musical public.

Miss Johanna Heymann gave a fourth and last Recital, at St. James's Hall, on the 1st ult. Though her touch is hard and unsympathetic, her agility is unquestionable, this being proved in the singularly favourite transcription of Bach's celebrated Prelude and Fugue in A minor, from Book II. of the Organ Works. One of Scarlatti's innumerable one-movement Sonatas, Schumann's "Kinderscenen," and pieces by Mozart, Mendelssohn, Chopin, Brahms, and Carl Heymann were included in a somewhat ambitious scheme.

The very favourable opinion conceived of Miss Adela Verne at previous performances could not be reversed by her second Pianoforte Recital this season, at St. James's Hall, on the 9th ult. Beethoven's rather curious Sonata in E flat (quasi una Fantasia, Op. 27, No. 1), Schumann's "Papillons" (Op. 2), and pieces by Mendelssohn, Paderewski, and Liszt served to show that Miss Verne is one of the most talented members of a clever family of lady pianists. She introduced an Etude de Concert by Godfrey Pringle, a showy piece which served to display her finger agility to much advantage.

MESSRS. WALENN'S CHAMBER CONCERTS.

THE third Chamber Concert given by Messrs. Walenn took place on the 14th ult., and was opened by the first performance in London of Christian Sinding's Trio in D (Op. 23) for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello. The first movement is built upon two well contrasted themes of melodious interest, which are cleverly and vivaciously developed. The Andante that follows is serene and tender in expression, and although the interest falls off in the third and last movements, many passages in it appeal to the musician. The Trio is also remarkable for harmonic boldness in design—the second subjects of the first and last movement (which are both in D) being in F—and for the opening subjects of the first and third movements and the second theme of the Andante, all being constructed of practically the same thematic material. The work was somewhat roughly played, but its executants, who were Messrs. Herbert Parsons, Gerald Walenn, and Herbert Walenn, preserved the vigorous spirit of the music in an admirable manner. An attractive selection of solo pieces was well rendered by the above-mentioned instrumentalists, and some songs, contributed by Madame Kate Lee and Mr. Arthur Walenn, added to the enjoyment of the evening.

MUSICAL GUILD.

SCHUBERT'S "heavenly length" is somewhat trying when his Octet opens a programme including two elaborate novelties. But when on such an occasion every repeat in this abnormally long work is played, so that it lasts an hour and a quarter, as was the case at the above Society's third Concert on November 24, the temper of the conscientious critic who arrives before the Concert begins and stays to the bitter end is in danger of becoming ruffled. The performance under notice, ably led by Mr. Arthur Bent, was fortunately a good one, which only required a little more distinction and greater beauty of tone in the really strong and impressive passages, to better counteract the cloying sweetness and bucolic naïveté of the weaker movements. A set of Variations for two pianofortes, on a theme of the late Sir G. A. Macfarren, by Miss Dora Bright, was excellently played by the composer and Miss Ethel Sharpe. The sombre theme is not very remarkable, but Miss Bright has evolved some highly interesting and effective music from it, in which abstract beauty and ingenuity of device are well matched. The other "novelty," Mr. A. Davidson Arnott's Pianoforte Trio in A, was not strictly "new," for we remember hearing it at a Concert of the Musical Artists' Society a year or so ago. We then suggested that the composer should re-write portions of his work, because they bore a more than distant resemblance to certain classic masterpieces. After a second hearing we can only repeat that suggestion and advise the clever composer to apply his riper experience and talent to the composition of a fresh work, which shall cause us to forget this "Jugendsünde," to quote Wagner. Miss Annie Grimson, Messrs. Wallace Sutcliffe and Arthur Williams played the Trio in a conscientious manner, and Mr. William Hackstoun (an amateur, unless we are much mistaken) sang two hackneyed bass songs.

All's well that ends well. The last Concert of the season, on the 8th ult., came as a delightful contrast to those preceding it, for the programme was well chosen, and the performances were amongst the best we have heard at the "Guild." Mozart's String Quintet in C was played by Messrs. Bent, Samuel Grimson, Tomlinson, Kearne, and Paul Ludwig, and, except that the leader's intonation was occasionally faulty, these gentlemen's efforts deserved the hearty recall which rewarded them. The other concerted piece, Brahms's Pianoforte Quartet in G minor, received an interpretation remarkable for finish, delicacy, and purity of tone. Nor were the players, Miss Ethel Sharpe, Miss Isabella Donkersley, Messrs. Alfred Hobday and Paul Ludwig, greatly wanting in those passages where vigour and breadth were required. Mr. Ludwig's highly artistic playing of some violoncello solos by Locatelli roused the audience to something like enthusiasm, as did also Mr. Plunket Greene's singing of Brahms's "Komm bald," Grieg's "Ein Schwan," and Schumann's "Waldesgespräch," the latter as fine a piece of dramatic singing, as distinguished from mere declamation, as can be heard in these days. Mr. Greene also produced a novelty in the shape of Professor C. V. Stanford's setting of the Clown's songs from Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night." Of these, the first, "O mistress mine," lacks spontaneity, but the second, "Come away, death," is a deeply impressive piece of almost tragic intensity, while the third, "When that I was and a tiny little boy," which was encored and repeated, bubbles over with vigorous life and merriment. It is a splendid song, and Mr. Greene sang it con amore.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

THE Tenterden Street School Institution has displayed much activity during the past month in its public, or quasi-public efforts. It did not launch out into any elaborate performances of opera this autumn, but a semi-private rendering of Gounod's genial comic opera, "The Mock Doctor," was given in the Academy concert-room on Thursday evening, the 10th ult., with only pianoforte accompaniment. It was well stated in the programme that purely academic performances of this nature are given mainly for the advancement of the students in lyric drama. Therefore criticism, in the strict sense of the term, is inadmissible; but words of encouragement may be given to Miss Julia Franks, Mr. Maengwyn Davies, and Mr. Walter Reynolds. The tuneful choruses were commendably rendered, and the performance was conducted with the fullest intelligence by Mr. G. H. Betjemann.

On the following evening the recently established dramatic class gave a performance, in the same room, of selections from Shakespeare's "As you like it" and "Romeo and Juliet." This cannot be wholly commended, for the principal male parts were taken by female pupils, quite contrary to the poet's intentions; but several of the students displayed dawning dramatic perception, perhaps the most promising being Miss Mary Round who, as Juliet, was sweet, intelligent, and evidently well trained.

The Christmas Orchestral Concert was given in the Queen's Hall, on Friday afternoon, the 18th ult., under the direction of the Principal, Sir Alexander Mackenzie. The band consisted of eighty-four executants, of whom thirty-two were young lady students. It is, of course, impossible to notice every feature in the programme, nor is it desirable. The first mention may be made concerning Miss Lily West's tasteful, if not very vigorous, rendering of the principal part in Rubinstein's Pianoforte Concerto in D minor (Op. 70). Mr. Aldo Antonietti, who has appeared before, if memory serves, displayed conspicuous ability in two movements of Dvorák's Violin Concerto (Op. 53), and the Concert concluded with Grieg's genial Pianoforte Concerto in A minor (Op. 16), with Mr. F. G. H. Moore in the solo part. Perhaps the best of the vocal contributions to the Concert was Miss Lilian Coomber's tasteful singing of Gounod's favourite air, "Far greater in his lowly state," from "La Reine de Saba," better known in this country as "Irene," under which rather silly title the opera has gained little favour on this side of the Channel.

The following Competitions have been held during the past month: On the 12th ult., the Sainton Dolby Prize, awarded to Gertrude Bevan; Ada Kempton highly commended, Annie Stanyon commended. On the same day the Heathcote Long Prize, awarded to Joseph C. Holbrook; Cuthbert Whitemore highly commended. On the 14th ult., the Rutson Memorial Prizes, that for soprano awarded to Alice Crawley (of Semington, Wilts); Lilian Coomber and Sarah A. Gomersall being highly commended; that for tenor to Gwilym Richards (of Newport, Mon.). On the same day the Bonamy Dobree Prize, awarded to Dezsö Kordy (of Arad, Hungary); Janet S. Aldis highly commended. On the 17th ult., the Robert Cocks and Co. Prize, awarded to Vera Margolies (of St. Petersburg); Florence Dawes and Elsie E. Horne highly commended. On the 19th ult., the Hine Exhibition (for composers), awarded to Aldo Antonietti (of Italy); Bertha Z. Joseph highly commended. On the same day the Potter Exhibition (for pianists), awarded to Gertrude Peppercorn (of West Horsley); also the Westmorland Scholarship (for vocalists), awarded to Robert Radford (of Nottingham).

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The pupils of this flourishing Institution have been busy indeed, during the last few weeks. Three Concerts—two chamber and one orchestral—and an operatic performance, between November 26 and the 15th ult., is a record of which they, as well as their masters, may well be proud. On the first of the above-mentioned dates the programme opened with Schumann's Pianoforte Trio in D minor (Op. 63), played by Beatrice Foster, Maude Harper, and Robert P. Jones, and except that the pianist occasionally overpowered her associates of the stringed instruments, the performance deserves commendation. Handel's "Sorge Infausta" was well sung by Ivor Foster, the fortunate possessor of a fine, resonant bass voice, which he has learned to use with ease and intelligence. Blanche Limebeer essayed Chopin's Fantasia in F minor (Op. 49) and surmounted its technical difficulties with considerable success. Beethoven's "Kreutzer" Sonata, played by two very youthful pupils, was by no means the trying experience which might have been expected, for Beatrice Cerasoli and William Read are both exceptionally gifted and well equipped. They made light of the difficulties of this greatest of pianoforte and violin sonatas, and gave an expressive, vigorous, and rhythmically sound performance thereof.

On the 2nd ult. the concerted pieces were Brahms's String Quintet in F (Op. 88) and Beethoven's Pianoforte Trio in D (Op. 70, No. 1). The former is not one of the Hamburg master's greatest works, but it is delightfully tuneful and cheerful and should be more often heard. The performance under notice was led by Marie Motto, with whom were associated Mary Noverre, Ernest Tomlinson, Edward Behr, and Robert Grimson. They did not seem to be in sympathy with the music; the opening Allegro non troppo ma con brio was somewhat lackadaisically played, without an attempt to infuse the "brio" into it which Brahms demands. The remaining movements fared little better. Agnes Nicholls has a voice of fine, sympathetic quality, which deserves the most careful training. She sings, moreover, with an amount of expression and abandon none too frequently met with in young singers. Her rendering of the refrain "Dein ist mein Herz" in Schubert's "Ungeduld" was proof of our assertion. Another promising pupil is Ethel Griffiths, whose clear, agreeable soprano voice and perfect intonation compensated for a lack of feeling observable in her singing of Clay's "The Sands of Dee." Robert P. Jones played a Polonaise de Concert for violoncello, by Popper, in capital style. The perpetual Popper! who will deliver us from him? Isabelle Thresher and Samuel Grimson joined the aforesaid violoncellist in Beethoven's Trio, which closed the Concert.

A programme of quite exceptional interest was that of the Orchestral Concert on the 15th ult., for it included two rarely heard choral works—Schumann's "Nachtlied" (Op. 108) and Brahms's "Gesang der Parzen" (Op. 89), besides Smetana's "Bartered Bride" Overture, Liszt's E flat Concerto, and Edward German's Suite in D minor. Before the Concert Dr. Parry announced that Professor Stanford was unfortunately ill, and that they "had to adapt themselves to circumstances as best they could," which meant that he, Dr. Parry, would conduct the purely orchestral pieces at very short notice. It would, consequently, be unfair to judge the performance by the standard of previous achievements, and, truth to tell, we have heard the orchestra play with greater finish, though rarely with more vigour. The youthful performers seemed infected with their principal's wonderful energy and high spirits. In Mr. German's fine suite, the Valse Gracieuse—surely one of the most bewitching movements in modern symphonic music—made its usual effect. It was played with rare swing and entrain. The choir did not excel in the two masterly works named above. Why do solo singers, and those that are to be, make such indifferent chorus singers? For instance, this choir's interpretation of pp and ppp, to name but one defect, was strangely at variance with that given in their text-books. It is difficult to account for the neglect of Schumann's "Nachtlied," for it is by no means one of his least beautiful choral works. The middle portion, at the words "Riesenhaft fühle ich's weben," is remarkably fine, and the orchestration is throughout of a sensuous beauty not often found in Schumann. Sir Walter Parratt, who conducted the choral works, did well to produce such an unhackneyed piece. William Morgans was the soloist in Liszt's Concerto. He has powerful wrists and nimble fingers; he used an Erard grand "with resonator," and he played as many wrong notes as ever Rubinstein did in his inspired moments. He may become a fine pianist yet, if he perseveres.

The ambition that the authorities of the Royal College display in the annual operatic performances by the pupils is not the vaulting ambition that o'erleaps itself. At the most recent effort in the direction of lyric drama the choice of Verdi's "Falstaff" might be considered dangerous, but we can scarcely believe that any of those who went to the Lyceum Theatre, on the afternoon of the 11th ult., came away disappointed; for the whole was admirable from start to finish, and a stranger might well have believed the opera had been played as a "run," to use a theatrical term, so easy and confident did the young people seem to be in the performance of their duties. Doubtless their spirits were raised by the exhilarating nature of the music, but apart from this some of the aspirants were exceedingly commendable in all respects. True, J. Mansel Lewis, who acted intelligently as the fat knight, has not as yet sufficient volume of voice, but he sang well and was admirably made up. The most promising of the male performers was R. Emlyn Davies, who evinced great vocal promise as Ford, particularly in the principal song for the jealous husband; Eleanor Jones was also very pleasing as Mistress Ford, and Muriel Foster sang well as Dame Quickly, though in appearance she was too youthful and attractive. Agnes Nicholls was a very "sweet" Anne Page. The representatives of the other characters had comparatively little to do, but all was carefully done. The orchestra and chorus were entirely satisfactory with Professor Villiers Stanford as conductor. Mr. Richard Temple proved himself an able stage director, and the dances in the last act were well arranged by Mr. B. Soutten. Altogether the performance left a very pleasant impression.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

This extraordinarily popular Institution, which now numbers within its walls nearly 3,500 students, gave a terminal Concert at St. James's Hall, on the 8th ult., the principal feature of the programme being Sir Arthur Sullivan's cantata "The Martyr of Antioch," first produced at the Leeds Festival of 1880. It has never gained so much favour as the subsequent work "The Golden Legend," partly, perhaps, because its subject is less sympathetic, and Dean Milman's verse cannot compare with that of Longfellow, supplemented by Mr. Joseph Bennett's expressive lines. But "The Martyr of Antioch" contains much picturesque music, and the cantata should certainly not be placed on the shelf. There was much to commend in the performance on the present occasion. Miss Maud Ballard was rather overweighted in the principal part, but Mr. Samuel Masters is a most promising young tenor, and Miss Marion Blinkhorn (contralto) and Mr. Tom Powley (bass) were highly commendable. The choir was scarcely up to its usual mark in expression, but the large orchestra was excellent, and the performance was conducted with the utmost care by the Principal, Mr. W. H. Cummings. It was preceded by Sir Arthur Sullivan's "In Memoriam" Overture, given probably as a tribute to the memory of the late Sir Joseph Barnby.

The Students' Orchestra of the Guildhall School of Music will henceforward give a Concert each term, under the direction of Mr. W. H. Cummings, in the great Hall of the City of London School on the Victoria Embankment. The first of the series took place on November 25, when about forty students (many of them ladies), with professional assistance for the less popular instruments, played Mozart's Symphony in E flat with crispness and vigour. Praiseworthy observance of expression was also manifested in Gounod's droll "Funeral March of a Marionette." By their performance in each of these works the new Principal was justified in believing that the revived interest in this orchestra would have good results. Mendelssohn's "Capriccio Brillante" was rendered with combined energy and taste by Miss Minnie Crouch, a pianist of exceptional promise. Vocal solos were entrusted to Miss Maude Clough (who sang "O rest in the Lord" exceedingly well), Mr. F. S. Ascough, and Mr. Ben Griffiths-Percy.

"THE MESSIAH" IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY.

Oratorio gains so much in effect in our larger cathedrals and other sacred edifices that the performance of "The Messiah" in Westminster Abbey, on November 26, in aid of the Royal Society of Musicians, could not fail to be more than ordinarily impressive. There is a special appropriateness in the selection of this work for such an occasion as the anniversary Festival of a noble institution in which Handel took such warm interest. The Society, now in its 159th year, last season distributed about £4,000 to poor musicians, their widows and orphans. The success of the oratorio in drawing power was again exemplified, every part of the Abbey being filled prior to the commencement of the few prayers by which it was prefaced. Being virtually part of a religious service, the performance is of course exempted from criticism; but even were it otherwise not much fault could be found with the rendering, the choruses—a few of the shorter of which were omitted—being on the whole steadily sung, whilst the band, led by Mr. G. H. Betjemann, efficiently played the overture and accompaniments. In the soprano airs Miss Ada Patterson, at short notice, replaced Miss Medora Henson, who was suffering from a severe cold; Messrs. W. H. Brereton and Norman Salmond divided the bass solos, and the other vocalists were Miss Hilda Wilson and Mr. Barton McGuckin, each in excellent voice. Professor Bridge conducted with unfailing decision.

AMATEUR ORCHESTRAL SOCIETIES.

The first Ladies' Concert of the present season of the Royal Amateur Orchestral Society took place on the 2nd ult., when the evening was opened with an excellent interpretation of Mozart's Symphony in G minor, the second of the famous trio of works in this form—the last of which is the "Jupiter"—that the composer wrote in about six weeks, in 1788, three years before his death. Mr. George Mount gave his forces the revised score to play from, in which Mozart added clarinet parts, with notable increase of effectiveness. Other orchestral works performed were the overture to "The Flying Dutchman," the Concert-overture written by the conductor for the Concert in celebration of the twenty-fifth year of the Society, the Introduction and Dance of Elfs from Moszkowski's "Laurin," and the overture to Goldmark's "Cricket on the Hearth." Madame Haas played Chopin's Andante Spianato and Polonaise, Miss Bertha Salter introduced a pathetic little song, entitled "Jamie's Return," by Gerard Cobb, and sang some duets with Miss Florence Salter in a finished and charming manner.

The Stock Exchange Orchestral and Choral Society gave, on the 8th ult., at the Queen's Hall, the first Subscription Concert of its fourteenth season. Distinction was lent to the occasion by the production of a Festival Overture in D, by Mr. R. H. Walthew, which proved a vivacious and attractive work, full of life and vigour and musical interest. Excellent performances were secured of Mendelssohn's "Ruy Blas" Overture and Beethoven's Second Symphony, and Miss Eldina Bligh gave an effective interpretation of the solo part of Max Bruch's First Violin Concerto in G minor. The choir sang with delightful unanimity of attack and expression an admirable selection of madrigals and part-songs, and Mrs. Hutchinson sang some solos with her usual refinement. Mr. G. Kitchin conducted, as usual.

The sixty-third Concert of the Strolling Players' Orchestral Society took place at the Queen's Hall, on the 17th ult., under the conductorship of Mr. Norfolk Megone. No novelties were included in the programme, but effective performances were given of Beethoven's Eighth Symphony, the third "Leonora" Overture, and the Prelude to "Tristan and Isolde." The vocalists were Miss Grace Burt, M. Eugène de Danckwardt, and Mr. Harrison Brockbank, whose selection of songs and their rendering increased the enjoyment of the evening. On this occasion the analytical and historical notes of the programme were written by Mr. E. F. Jacques.

The Westminster Orchestral Society continues to advance in efficiency and popularity, the Town Hall in Caxton Street being crowded at the Concert on the 16th ult., and the performances of masterpieces under the direction of Mr. Stewart Macpherson were perhaps the best ever given by this Association. Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony and Mendelssohn's "Hebrides" Overture were most intelligently played by the orchestra of sixty-two players, including fourteen ladies. So were the accompaniments to Schumann's Pianoforte Concerto, the solo part of which was delicately and accurately played by Miss Llewela Davies. Mr. Gerald Walenn executed with the utmost refinement a new Romance in D for violin, by Mr. Macpherson, an expressive but rather over-orchestrated piece. Miss Clara Williams sang in pleasant fashion airs by Sullivan and Grieg.

SUNDAY CONCERTS.

St. Cecilia would appear to be always at home at the Queen's Hall. The Sunday afternoon Orchestral Concerts, under the conductorship of Mr. Randegger, have been largely attended, and the programmes present the usual excellent selections of high-class music. Prominent amongst the long list of works performed are Mozart's Symphony in G minor (No. 40), Beethoven's Eighth Symphony, the fourth Pianoforte Concerto (the solo part of which was played by Dr. Otto Neitzel), Haydn's Symphony in C (No. 1 of the Salomon set), Mendelssohn's Concerto in G minor (the pianoforte part of which was rendered by Mdlle. Clotilde Kleeberg), several excerpts from Wagner, and Sir A. C. Mackenzie's orchestral arrangement of his Benedictus. The singing by Miss Lucile Hill, Miss Lilian Coomber, Madame Belle Cole, and Mr. Herbert Grover has also increased the enjoyment of these performances.

In the cosy, but all too loftily situated small hall, Signor Arbos and his excellent quartet party have played on Sunday evenings numerous favoured chamber works by old and modern masters. On November 29 was given, by Mr. W. H. Squire and Madame Ethel Sharpe, the first performance of "Three Sketches," consisting of a Valsette, Souvenir, and Bolero, for violoncello and pianoforte, by Mr. Edward German; and on the 20th ult. was performed Schütt's Suite in D minor (Op. 44) for violin and pianoforte.

The National Sunday League has continued its performances of standard oratorios in the large hall on Sunday evenings, having given the "Redemption," "Creation," Rossini's "Stabat Mater," and "The Messiah."

MR. CHARLES FRY'S RECITALS, WITH MISS OLIVE KENNETT.

Music has seldom been put to a more effective use at recitations than at the three recent Recitals given by Mr. Charles Fry, with Miss Olive Kennett, which took place on November 27 and the 4th and 12th ult., at the Queen's (Small) Hall. Mr. Fry has formed a small choir and orchestra, under the direction of Mr. W. A. Gardner, which promise to render him much valuable aid in increasing the musical interest of these performances. On the first evening the programme chiefly consisted of selections from Shakespeare's "As you like it," with the new orchestral music written by Mr. Arthur Fox. This consists of an Introduction and three Entr'actes, which are admirably in keeping with the spirit of the period of the play. At this Recital first performances in London were given of choral settings of "Under the greenwood tree," by Dr. H. W. Wareing, and "It was a lover and his lass," by Mr. A. Herbert Brewer (the new Gloucester organist). The second part included Longfellow's poem "King Robert of Sicily," with the new music by Mr. John E. West, which was produced at the Promenade Concert on October 8. On this occasion, however, the choral music omitted at the first performance was included, and greatly enhanced the effectiveness of the work.

At the following Recital recourse was had to Shakespeare's "Macbeth," with the new incidental music by Mr. Clement Locknane; and at the third Recital, which was of miscellaneous character, was introduced a melodious and well-written setting in part-song form, by Mr. W. A. Gardner, of "Good night, beloved." Mr. West's music to "King Robert of Sicily" was repeated, by desire, and in the recitation of Scene 4, Act II., of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" the choir sang G. A. Macfarren's part-song "Come away, Death." Both in this and a scene from Shakespeare's "Cymbeline," Mr. Fry had the talented assistance of Miss Kennett, whose recitations formed highly attractive features throughout the series.

MR. BANTOCK'S CONCERT.

Mr. Granville Bantock, who gave an Orchestral Concert entirely of music by British-born composers, on the 15th ult., at the Queen's Hall, may be congratulated on the progress he is making in his art. Like many beginners he was too ambitious at first, but the emanations from his pen on the present occasion were much superior to the opera produced during Signor Lago's season at the Olympic Theatre a few years ago. At that time Mr. Granville Bantock was evidently under the fascination of Wagner, but his overture "Eugene Aram," to a four-act opera founded on Lord Lytton's tragic novel; the first part of a "Symphonia," founded on Southey's poem "The Curse of Kehama"; and a series of five "Songs of Arabia," well sung by Miss Ella Russell and Mr. Bantock Pierpoint, tend to show that the young musician has learnt a lesson in modesty, and, as he undeniably possesses much ability, words of encouragement may fitly be bestowed upon him. Mr. Stanley Hawley's music to "The Legend Beautiful," which was excellently recited by Miss Lena Ashwell, possesses much originality. The other composers favourably represented were Mr. W. Wallace, Mr. A. Hinton, Mr. R. Steggall, Mr. Erskine Allon, and Mr. Stanley Hawley, whose music to Longfellow's poem "The Legend Beautiful" (recited by Miss Lena Ashwell) was original and expressive.

MR. GOMPERTZ'S CONCERTS.

The second of Mr. Richard Gompertz's String Quartet Concerts took place on November 25, just too late for notice last month. The excellent programme included Beethoven's great Quartet in six movements in B flat (Op. 130) and a new Quartet in G by Dvorák (Op. 106). The merits of the latter work could not be accurately gauged on a first hearing, but it is safe to say that it is thoroughly characteristic of the composer, alike in its piquant themes and in the bold and even startling transitions of key. Slavonic music continues to grow in favour, for at the third Concert, on the 9th ult., a Quartet in E flat by Tschaïkowsky (Op. 30) was produced for the first time in London. The first and second movements did not greatly impress at once, but the third, Andante funèbre e doloroso, is unquestionably very fine and worthy of the composer of the "Symphonie Pathétique." The last is in sharp contrast, being quite cheerful, and the close might fairly be described as merry. Beethoven's late Quartet in C sharp minor (Op. 131) was included in the scheme, and Mr. Plunket Greene contributed an excellent selection of songs.

"ELIJAH" AT THE PEOPLE'S PALACE.

A "Jubilee performance" of "Elijah" was given on the 5th ult., at the People's Palace, Mile End, by the Choral Society connected with that Institution, under the direction of Mr. C. H. Allen Gill. Mendelssohn's oratorio, it must be admitted, has stood the test of true popularity extremely well, seeing that, after fifty years of its existence, it is able to attract such a crowd of eager listeners in the East of London as was the case on the present occasion. Full credit is indeed due for its share in the matter to this Society, formed by the vocal and instrumental classes under the excellent training of Mr. Gill, whose performances on the whole are not inferior, artistically, to any similar ones offered in the West-End. When, in addition, it is seen that not a few amongst the audience habitually follow the proceedings score in hand, the inference may be safely drawn that considerable onward strides have been made, since "Elijah" was first produced, in the cultivation and intelligent appreciation of musical art in the metropolis. The performance of the familiar work was in every way worthy of the special occasion. The choir, with its fresh and well-trained voices, sang with ready attack and excellent enunciation of the words, and manifestly enjoyed its task. The Baal choruses in the first part, especially, were most effectively rendered, while the orchestra performed its part throughout with artistic intelligence and discretion. The solo numbers were in excellent hands, with Mr. Arthur Appleby as an admirable Elijah, and including Mesdames Blanche Powell, Sarah Berry, Ella Johnston, and Elaine Sayer; Messrs. W. Fell, G. Richards, and F. Hosking. Mr. Gill conducted with his accustomed energy and precision, and Mr. B. Jackson rendered valuable service at the organ.

THE HIGHBURY PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

The nineteenth season of the Highbury Philharmonic Society was opened by its talented and esteemed conductor, on November 24, by an excellent performance, at the Highbury Athenæum, of Handel's "Judas Maccabæus." The choir has never been better in tone and balance, and the manner in which the choral portions of the vigorous work were attacked and sung indicated the presence of musical intelligence and esprit de corps, which promises well for the musical success of the present series of concerts. The principal soprano was Miss Bertha Rossow, who sang with notable sympathetic charm, and the other soloists were Mrs. Creser, Miss Edith Nutter, Mr. Whitney Mockridge, and Mr. Watkin Mills. Mr. Ellis Roberts was at the head of an efficient orchestra, and Mr. Fountain Meen rendered assistance at the organ.

MUSICAL ASSOCIATION.

At the monthly meeting of the Musical Association, on the 8th ult., Mr. John Taylor, Organist to the Queen at Kensington Palace, read a comprehensive paper on sight-singing, entitled "The Evolution of the Movable Doh," in which Mr. Taylor explained his system of singing at sight from the ordinary Staff Notation used by the army schools since 1889. The lecturer said it was the general belief of the civilised world of to-day that, in common with all human affairs, art was regulated by universal principles which were themselves evolutionary manifestations of one great supreme and paramount law; and these principles were, in the case of art, by virtue of a long historical induction, well defined—unity, variety, fitness, individuality, design, and proportion or relation, of which, perhaps, as entering into the very conception of all the rest, relation was the most typical and characteristic. If, then, music was an art, the progressive unfolding and exposition of the great art principle of relation should be more or less noticeable in its history. The embryo of tonal relation was to be found in the tetrachordal lyre-system of the Homeric age, in Guidonian vernacular, by the syllables ti, do, re, mi, and mi, fa, sol, la. Developed from this lyre-system was the complete relational scale beginning with a semitone expressed by the syllables ti, do, re, mi, fa, sol, la, or in the Egyptian octave system by mi, fa, sol, la, ti, do, re, mi. A third stage was reached in the "Lesser Perfect," or eleven-stringed lyre-system, in which was evolved in the third conjoined tetrachord a still more developed relational form of a principal key and its under fifth; while in the "Greater Perfect," or two-octave system, this relational element culminated in the presentation of the entire diatonic series, which embodied the modern major mode. Apparently a still mightier effort to establish the major genus as normal was to be found during the late Greek periods in the identity of the principal inharmonic genus with the cosmopolitan pentatonic or five-tone scale, avowedly more major than minor—to wit, the familiar melody "Auld Lang Syne." Taking the classic systems therefore as a whole, development was obviously in the line of the "movable doh." Like ourselves, the ancients had no absolutely fixed pitch as a paramount or guiding principle. Everything was in relation to the voice, and all voices differed. There was, therefore, no evolutionary or historical basis for the fixed do. The lecturer then passed on to more modern times, to Guido's efforts and the Hexachord, the evolution of the modern major and minor forms, and the establishment of the Sol-fa syllables.

What might be termed the second part of the paper consisted of the explanation of Mr. Taylor's system of teaching to sing at sight direct from the ordinary Staff Notation. For this purpose there is used a sheet of paper on which are the familiar five lines on which, written in black notes, is a common chord. On the right hand side of these notes is placed the minor triad on the second of the scale, but written in red. To the left and below the octave of the lowest note of the common major chord is placed the seventh of the scale, also in red. All these notes are written on a movable slip which can be pushed up and down underneath the lines of the stave, so that all the notes can be made to read in any scale. The pupils are taught the sound of each interval, sharps and flats being added as they progress; and having in this manner once mastered the intervals in one scale, they can read a passage of music in any key or clef by simply shifting the movable slip above described, and which is termed the stave modulator. Mr. Taylor uses the Italian pronounced names for the notes of the scale—viz., do, re, mi, fa, sol, la, ti, do, changing the respective vowels to "e" for the flattened notes and to "i" for the sharpened ones, with the exception of the flat second of the scale, which he calls "ra." Thus the sharp fifth is "sil" and the flat fifth "sel." There was a somewhat desultory discussion, in which Dr. McNaught maintained that the lecturer claimed too much for the movable doh system. Dr. Vincent was in the chair.

MODERN GREEK MUSIC.

The Lecture-Concert of modern Greek music, given on November 28, at the Steinway Hall, by M. Aramis, draws attention to the existence of a people's music which would well repay the study of composers and vocalists. Mr. E. F. Jacques, in some opening remarks, said that a remarkable feature of the musical activity of this century had been the constantly growing attention attracted by national music. Into the causes of this it was not necessary to enter—the fact was undeniable, it represented a thoroughly healthy tendency, and we might be content to take it as it stood. The mine of musical wealth which lay at the disposal of the student of folk-song was scarcely realised by those who had made but a superficial study of the subject. We had now in most countries, thanks to the loving labours of enthusiastic collectors, large published stores of popular melodies; but how little did each country know of the music of the others! The majority of the songs brought forward on this occasion were taken from M. Bourgault-Ducoudray's collection, made at the desire of the French Government about twenty years ago. The melodies collected had never been printed until then, but had been transmitted orally from generation to generation and were taken down by M. Ducoudray from the mouths of persons who had learnt them in their childhood. M. Aramis had also collected several popular songs by the same method. Under these circumstances it was impossible to fix the date of the tunes, but they probably belonged to the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. The antiquity of their tonality was, however, undoubted. They were constructed on the principles of the ancient scale systems commonly known as modes, and such as were met with in the ecclesiastic music which in this country was usually termed Gregorian. A very distinct tonality, to which careful regard had been paid in the accompaniments, was thus imparted to the songs, in addition to which the majority possessed a peculiar naïve charm and grace. They were also remarkable for variety and what may be termed suppleness of rhythm in sympathy with the accentuation of the text. Their symmetry of form is chiefly derived from the repetition of phrases, which frequently became refrains. The songs have the melodic vivacity and direct simplicity of expression common to folk-music, and in some instances possess considerable dramatic power. This last-named element was specially observable in a warrior's song, Ενας ἀετὸς ἐδιάβαινε ("An eagle sailed the sky"), wherein an eagle converses with a man's head which it carries in its claws. As sung by M. Aramis, who is a finished vocalist, this song proved most impressive. Most of the songs, however, were lighter in character and sentiment. Of such, a very pleasing example was Στὰ Γιάννινα, στὸ μεσιανὸ πηγάδι ("At Giannina amidst the wells"), which had been taken down from a girl who was leading a dance at Athens, and was so effectively sung on this occasion by Mdlle. de Saint-André—who, although not a maid of Athens, was one of Smyrna—that the audience insisted upon its repetition. Some Greek popular dance music was played by Signor Carlo Ducci and M. Lambelet, and was distinguished by strong accentuation and grace of rhythm. The Concert certainly supported the theory of M. Bourgault-Ducoudray that much benefit would result from blending Eastern and Western styles of music. "Eastern music, restricted hitherto by its exclusive limitation to melody, would embark on a new career by the use of polyphony, and Western polyphonic music would greatly gain by no longer being confined to two modes—the major and minor."

THE CHAMBER MUSIC OF PURCELL, HANDEL, AND BACH.

Under the auspices of the Society of Arts, Mr. Arnold Dolmetsch gave, on the 16th ult., in the council-room of the Society, John Street, Adelphi, a musically illustrated Lecture on "The Chamber Music of Purcell, Handel, and Bach." These composers, the lecturer said, represented the highest standard attained in this branch of the art from about the last quarter of the seventeenth to the first half of the eighteenth century. "Modern music," he said, "might be considered to commence with the immediate successors of Handel and Bach, who saw the harpsichord go out of fashion and the pianoforte replace it. The style of music did not change very materially from Purcell to Handel and Bach, but there was a great gulf between Bach and the very earliest efforts of Haydn, although the gulf was filled by a number of minor composers. The instruments chiefly employed during the period in question were the viola da gamba, the violin, the harpsichord, and the clavichord, and the music written for these instruments, when performed in the present day, was played upon the violoncello instead of the viola da gamba, and upon the pianoforte instead of the harpsichord and clavichord. This, he thought, was great folly. He denied that the old instruments were inferior to the new. The tone of the harpsichord blended perfectly with the stringed instruments. The pianoforte never could agree with anything else; its tone in concerted music invariably stood out from the other parts of the music, which not unfrequently became inaudible. The whole effect intended by the old masters was lost when the balance of tone was thus destroyed. An interesting selection from the chamber works of Purcell, Handel, and Bach was skilfully rendered by the lecturer, Mrs. Elodie Dolmetsch, Miss Hélène Dolmetsch, and Mr. H. M. Matheson, the instruments used being the harpsichord, clavichord, violin, and viola da gamba. Professor J. M. Thomson presided.

MANX NATIONAL MUSIC.

What the Rev. Baring-Gould has done for old English song, Mr. W. H. Gill has succeeded in doing for the music of the Manxmen. For some years past Mr. Gill and two equally enthusiastic countrymen have tramped the sequestered vales of the little island, and taken down from the mouths of old peasantry and sailors the ditties that had been orally committed to their keeping by their fathers and grandfathers. The result was the collection of some two hundred and sixty melodies, from which fifty have been chosen, supplied with suitable words, often modelled on the original text, and recently published by Messrs. Boosey. A goodly number from this volume formed the illustrations of a Lecture-Recital given by Mr. Gill, on the 19th ult., in the Queen's (Small) Hall, under the auspices of the Irish Literary Society. Mr. Gill gave an interesting sketch of the manner in which the songs had been obtained, and described the characteristics and peculiarities of the old singers, few of whom now remained. They were all firm believers in fairies, many varieties of which existed in their imaginations, and had given rise to their songs. The rhythm and accent of Manx music was dictated by the words, from which it was difficult to separate it without loss of character. The form of the vocal melodies was often indefinite and there was an absence of set phrasing. This, however, was exactly opposite in the dance tunes. The scale, with a minor third and flat seventh, commonly known as the "Dorian," was very prevalent, and gave distinctiveness to much of the music. The present generation of Manxmen no longer believed in fairies, and many were ignorant that they possessed a national music; but now that attention had been thus drawn to its existence, the lecturer hoped that some Manx musician might revivify its strains.

The musical illustrations were given in a very complete manner. A small orchestra, assisted by Miss Grace M. Smith at the pianoforte, played several Manx airs and dances, and accompanied a well balanced and excellent choir; and the songs and vocal solo parts were sung by Madame Kate Lee, Madame de Fonblanque, Mr. Walter Ford, and Mr. Franklin Clive, in addition to which several characteristic recitations were given with the utmost success by Mr. P. J. Kirwan. Much of the music, especially the songs of a pathetic nature, bore a strong resemblance to the melodies of Ireland; others might have been collected in Western England, but the majority decidedly possessed individuality which would have been more marked had their ancient tonality been more carefully preserved in the accompaniments. Mr. Gill announced that the melodies would be published exactly as they had been taken down. When this has been done, musical antiquaries will doubtless have something to say. In the meantime, Mr. Gill deserves commendation for the preservation of a people's music that is well worthy of the attention of musicians, especially vocalists.

LINCOLN MUSICAL SOCIETY.

Lincoln is to be congratulated on the establishment of a musical society, under the conductorship of Dr. G. J. Bennett, which gives every promise of exerting a beneficial influence in the cause of music for many miles round. The Society gave its first Concert on the 8th ult., in the Corn Exchange, the programme consisting of Mendelssohn's "Athalie" and a miscellaneous second part. The chorus and orchestra numbered about 300 performers, and although so recently formed the singing of the choir was distinguished by a precision and intelligence that would have reflected credit on a long-established society. The orchestra contained many Lincoln players, so many, indeed, that the effort being made to establish a local permanent orchestra would seem to have a good chance of success. The solos were excellently sung by Madame Clara Samuell, Miss Katherine Burton, and Miss Lucie Johnstone, and the reciter was Mr. Charles Fry, who declaimed the spoken lines with his customary dramatic force and emphasis. In the second part a new unconventional and clever song entitled "When stars are in the quiet skies," by Dr. G. J. Bennett, was sung by Madame Clara Samuell, and Mr. Fry recited "The Dream of Eugene Aram," accompanied by Sir Alexander Mackenzie's music orchestrated by Mr. Battison Haynes. Mr. Edward German's three Dances from the incidental music to Shakespeare's "Henry VIII." were played by the orchestra and had a most enthusiastic reception.

MR. EDWARD GERMAN'S MUSIC TO "AS YOU LIKE IT."

The union of the arts is proceeding apace in our theatres. Actors and actresses are to-day no little indebted for their successes to the talents of scenic artists, and whenever a play calls for music, managers are quick to introduce it, and in a manner which more and more appeals to the cultured musician. Such a play is Shakespeare's charming comedy "As you like it," which was mounted with rare completeness of cast and detail by Mr. George Alexander, on the 2nd ult., at St. James's Theatre. "As you like it" imperatively demands music for its due exposition, and it has been provided in this instance by many masters of the art. Transcriptions of songs by Arne and Bishop provide the Prelude; the Andante from Beethoven's Sixth Symphony is admirably suggestive of the beautiful scene in the Forest of Arden, on which the curtain subsequently rises; Sir Arthur Sullivan's well-named Graceful Dance, from his music to "Henry VIII.," prepares the way for the gay spirit which pervades the third act; Mr. F. H. Cowen is made to contribute the "Yellow Jasmine" Gavotte, from his suite "The Language of Flowers," to usher in Act IV.; and Mr. Edward German has provided music for the last act, comprising the "Berceuse and Bacchanalian Dance," written for "The Tempter" (produced at the Haymarket Theatre about two years since), his original contributions being an effective setting in canon of "It was a lover and his lass," and later on a series of feet-moving dance measures for the "Masque of Hymen," which includes an ear-catching chorus in praise of the god. The dances are characterised by that perfect sympathy with the old English merry-making spirit which forms so distinctive a trait of Mr. German's music, and which it is manifest powerfully appeals to the majority of English audiences to-day. Too great praise can scarcely be given for the thoroughly artistic manner in which the music is rendered. Mr. Walter Slaughter conducts an excellent and complete orchestra, and the incidental part-songs—notably, "What shall he have who killed the deer?"—are admirably sung, and greatly add to the effectiveness of the forest scene. Mr. Bertram Wallis as Amiens sings his solos so well as to quite justify Jaques's remark, "More, I pr'y thee, more"; and Miss Julia Neilson, who is an ideal Rosalind, increases the charm of her embodiment by her fascinating rendering of Dr. Arne's "Cuckoo Song," although the appropriateness of its introduction is very questionable.

THE LOEWE CENTENARY.

The centenary of the birth of Johann Carl Gottfried Loewe, which occurred on November 30, should not be passed over by us altogether in silence. For although he has only become known and appreciated in this country by his Balladen, and that only of comparatively recent years, the fact of this tardy recognition of his merits is in itself a remarkable one and encourages a hope that there may be a profitable revival in store for some of his other compositions, notably his oratorios, mostly of a secular order, and occupying a unique place in the literature of that art-form. Only some eighteen years ago, Loewe's biographer in "Grove's Dictionary" could write, with apparent truth, "his music, like Reichardt's, has gone by for ever." The reference to J. F. Reichardt shows the remark to apply at least equally to the songs as to the other compositions, or possibly it was Gustav Reichardt, a long-forgotten composer of songs, that was meant. Yet, at about the same period, a Loewe Society was founded at Berlin, and since then, to mention only a few names, Julius Stockhausen and Eugen Gura in Germany, Messchaërt in the Netherlands, and Mr. Henschel in England have succeeded in establishing for the Balladen the claim to pre-eminence to which they are justly entitled, and even one of his very earliest productions of the kind, his setting of Goethe's "Erl-König," is now generally considered worthy to be placed by the side of that of his contemporary Schubert, the enormous popularity of which had for a time overshadowed it. Loewe himself, in one sense, retarded the general recognition of his merits as an epic song-writer. Excellent pianist that he was, and gifted with a very fine and well-trained voice, his own interpretation of the Balladen, as witnesses have informed the writer with yet lingering enthusiasm, was so exquisite, so full of dramatic fire and intensity, that he made them in an additional and well-nigh fatal sense entirely his own, and thereby prevented other prominent concert singers from venturing upon the same ground. The last three years of Loewe's existence were overcast by ill-health and embittered by reflections on the unworthy treatment meted out to him in old age by the neglect of his countrymen. He died in Kiel in 1869, where his married daughter resided, and scarcely any notice was taken of the event at the time. Now his centenary has come round, his genius has become sufficiently acknowledged for his country to be ready with the customary monuments, one of which was unveiled on the day in question at Kiel; another, a fac-simile of the latter, at the composer's native place of Lobejün, in Saxony; and a third, more elaborate than either, it is proposed to erect at Stettin, where, for fully forty-six years, from 1821 to 1866, he was organist and vocal teacher at the public school. The Kiel memorial consists of a tastefully wrought granite block surmounted by a colossal bust of the composer, the very successful work of Professor Schaper. It is erected in the wood called Düsternbrook, near the sea, where the master loved to wander, and was unveiled with due ceremony and amidst manifestations of popular interest. What is more valuable, however, than these posthumous honours conferred in marble is the fact of the genuine resuscitation of some at least of Loewe's music, as evidenced by the concert-room celebrations which have taken place all over Germany and in Austria-Hungary. Notably in Berlin and Vienna, the special recitals arranged by Eugen Gura have aroused an immense enthusiasm, which has shown conclusively that, whatever else of Loewe's music may have "gone the way of Reichardt's," his songs, at all events, are still with us.

REVIEWS.

Short Settings of the Holy Communion Office. No. 35, in C. By George C. Martin. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE title of this series of course imposes limits on the display of inventiveness on the part of a composer; but having regard to these limits Dr. Martin, who is also editor of the publication, has done very well indeed. Three of the Offertory Sentences are included, and the composer indicates that the passages marked for solo voices may be sung by semi-chorus. Though not by any means diffuse, the writing is generally free and modern in phraseology, and the setting is quite worthy of the attention of Cathedral choirs, at any rate for occasions when brevity is desirable.

Two Songs. Why? Winter. Composed by Lance Smith. [Weekes and Co.]

THESE are two unpretentious little ditties. The first is a setting of some semi-humorous words by A. Watson, the sentiment of which is happily reflected in the music.

"Winter" is more serious in character. Both call for sympathy rather than executive skill on the part of their exponents.

Hornpipe Harry. Written and composed by Hamilton Clarke. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THIS is a comic opera in two acts for boys, and deals with the survivors of two shipwrecked crews who have succeeded in landing on the rocks of an island. The characters are eleven in number, most of whom are provided with small speaking parts in addition to sharing in the musical numbers, which in common with other works of this series are admirably designed with regard to the probable abilities of its executants. The work contains a hornpipe; provision also is made for the employment in the accompaniment of a drum and fife, and the bright little opera concludes in a loyal fashion with the National Anthem.

Improvisation in E flat. For the Organ. By George H. Westbury. [Weekes and Co.]

MR. WESTBURY has written an expressive and pleasing piece which organists will find useful as an introductory voluntary or interlude. It is easy to read at sight, but is genuine organ music, and therefore effective when played on the king of instruments.

Novello's Parish Choir Book. Nos. 282-290. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THIS publication proceeds apace, and the demand shows to what an extent Parish Church music has improved since the days when parson and clerk practically divided the Anglican Liturgy between them. The first of the present instalment is a setting of the Te Deum, based on Gregorian tones, by Sir John Stainer, the melodists, boys and men, being set apart to sing the tones throughout, the rest of the choir taking the harmony when directed. The whole is a musicianly but perfectly easy blending of ancient and modern service music. Mr. A. Herbert Brewer's Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F, No. 283, is partly in unison and octaves and partly in diatonic four-part harmony. It is bright and studiously simple throughout. No. 284 consists of two concluding Amens in E flat, bearing the honoured name of Charles Gounod, and No. 286 is a one-verse vesper hymn, "Lord, keëp us safe this night," by A. T. Lee Ashton, directed to be sung, unaccompanied, at the conclusion of Evensong. These two numbers are printed in card form. No. 285 is a setting in D of the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis from the refined and experienced pen of Mr. Berthold Tours. It is bold and majestic in its general tenour, and is instinct with modern feeling, more particularly in respect of the harmonic progressions, which are frequently almost startling in their unconventionality. The whole service is bright and festal in character, though it cannot be called difficult. The practice of singing the Offertory Sentences in the Communion Office has been gaining ground of late, and Dr. George C. Martin's setting (No. 287) may be warmly commended, the music being appropriately unpretentious and full of quiet church-like dignity, though by no means inexpressive. No. 288 is a Te Deum and Benedictus in E flat by Frank Adlam. Studiously diatonic and without an independent organ part, the service may be sung without accompaniment, and is suitable for Lent or "ferial" days generally. Similar remarks will apply to the same composer's version in G of the evening Canticles (No. 289), which the composer says may be sung either in harmony or unison. The strictest simplicity is observed, the modulations being confined to relative keys. No. 290 is the late Sir John Goss's Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in E. Those who do not already know this broad church-like service should make its acquaintance, as it is well worthy of the pen that enriched the repertory of Anglican music with so many beautiful examples of this form of musical art. The service is full throughout, and presents no difficulties of any kind.

Novello's School Music. Edited by W. G. McNaught. The Waits of Bremen. By Bertram Luard Selby. The Hours. By Joseph L. Roeckel. The Enchanted Palace. By Arthur Somervell. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THE libretti of all these works have been supplied by Shapcott Wensley, who, in each instance, has written a book admirably suited to its purpose. "The Waits of Bremen" is appropriately described as "a short humorous cantata for children," and the energetic behaviour of "the donkey, the cock, the cat, and the dog, each singing the song he loved the best," cannot fail to give satisfaction to young folks. The music reflects the wild merriment of the text, and many tasteful and humorous touches show the hand of a musician.

"The Hours" is a "cantata or operetta for female voices." If treated as the latter, in which form it would be most effective and decidedly give most amusement, the curtain should rise upon a landscape scene and "disclose Old Time standing on a bank with Dawn partly visible on his left, and Night in the act of departing on his right. Old Time complains of fatigue, and, seeing that all things are apparently in working order, descends from his place for the purpose of having forty winks. Thereupon everything goes wrong. Dawn, Noon, Evening, and Night all appear at once, and each summoning her attendant hours, claims to be Queen and leader of the Day. Finally Old Time re-appears and sternly puts all in order once more." The whimsical subject lends itself to many pleasant fancies and amusing confusion, and some very picturesque effects could be produced by skilful grouping of the nine characters represented. The music is simple and of that melodious description long associated with its popular composer.

"The Enchanted Palace" has for its basis the ever fresh story of the "Sleeping Beauty," which, in this instance, is treated with considerable humour. In addition to the lyrics the book includes short dialogues to be spoken. The music is extremely melodious and well written. It comprises a graceful dance, a charming two-part chorus of fairies, and many other numbers of musical interest. There are eight singing and three spoken parts. The choruses are for soprano and alto voices. Two scenes only are required.

O give thanks unto the Lord. How long wilt thou forget me. Love your enemies. Anthems. By A. P. Alderson. [The Office of the Organist and Choirmaster.]

THE first of the above compositions is set out for tenor solo, quartet, and chorus, and is characterised by much earnestness of expression and musician-like attainments. A considerable knowledge of choral effect is also shown, and the tenor solo is gratefully laid out for the voice. The final chorus calls for a well-trained choir, by which the music could be made very effective. "How long wilt thou forget me" is written in four parts throughout and is of an expressive character. The voices enter in an effective manner, and a free organ part increases the interest of the work. "Love your enemies" is more simple in design than the preceding anthem, and is well within the capabilities of the majority of choirs.

An English Series of Original Songs. Edited by J. R. Courtenay Gale and Charlton T. Speer. The Lover's Calendar. Words by Carlton Hill. Music by F. Corder. The Song of Love and Death. Words by Tennyson. Music by Charlton T. Speer. Ah! sweet, thou little knowest. Words by Thomas Hood. Music by Walter Macfarren. How many times do I love thee, dear? Words by Thomas Beddoes. Music by J. R. Courtenay Gale.
[Weekes and Co.]

THIS series of lyrics will appeal to cultured musicians, for whom it is manifestly intended. The first-named, by Mr. Corder, in particular, may be recommended to the attention of finished tenor vocalists who possess dramatic perception. The music expresses the impassioned nature of the words in a most effective manner, and the accompaniment accentuates the varying sentiments of the text with rare skill. The song imperatively demands a sympathetic and well-trained accompanist, but such an one will find much interest in the pages set before him.

Considerable dramatic feeling characterises Mr. Speer's setting of Tennyson's words. The spirit of the poem has been cleverly caught, and the climax attained in the last line of each verse is sympathetically expressed in the music. The accompaniment is effective and well supports the voice.

"Ah! sweet, thou little knowest," is more simple in character than the preceding song, and chiefly relies for its attractiveness on the vocal part, which is melodious and flowing as becomes a serenade.

In the last of the above list Mr. Courtenay Gale has set some sentimental lines in a pleasing manner. The melody is vocal and the accompaniment simple.

Rosette. Song. Words by Robert, Lord Houghton. Music by Lady Euan-Smith.

Come ye, yourselves apart. Sacred Song. Words by Bishop Bickersteth. Music by Lady Euan-Smith.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

"ROSETTE" is a dainty little song, published in two keys and suitable for a tenor or baritone. The music happily illustrates the light character of the words, and effectively supports the well written voice-part.

The setting of Bishop Bickersteth's devotional poem is appropriately placid in character. The song is suitable for a soprano or tenor, and may be regarded as a worthy addition to the music of the home.

The Ould Plaid Shawl. Song. Words by Frances H. Fay. Music by Battison Haynes.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

BARITONES in search of a vivacious song may be recommended to take up "The Auld Plaid Shawl," which contains an attractive specimen of "A little Irish Colleen"; the music trips along as brightly as the maiden and possesses as much charm.

Three Fishers went Sailing. Part-Song for Unaccompanied Singing. Words by Charles Kingsley. Music by Roland Rogers. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

THERE are some poems which seem to exercise an irresistible spell over composers, and of these the "Three Fishers" is distinctly one. The merit of Mr. Rogers's endeavour, however, fully justifies his addition to the many settings which have previously appeared. The composer has happily caught the spirit of the exquisite little poem, so full of pathos and humanity. The part-writing is thoroughly vocal in character, and a good choir could make it very effective.

MUSIC IN BELFAST.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

AN important and a most successful step was taken in the right direction when the Belfast Choral Union inaugurated what promises to be an annual Choral Festival of local choirs in the Ulster Hall, on November 21, under the Presidency of the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Down, Connor, and Dromore. The choir numbered over 500 voices, which were under the conductorship of Dr. W. G. Price, organist of St. George's Church; Mr. Isaac W. Nichol, organist of St. Ann's, presiding at the organ.

The Philharmonic Society gave a repetition of Berlioz's "Damnation de Faust" on November 27, in the Ulster Hall, with a band and chorus of over 300 performers. The artists engaged were Madame Alice Esty, Mr. Herbert Grover, and Mr. Watkin Mills. Unfortunately, at the last moment, Madame Esty wired her inability to be present through illness, and Madame Louis Mantell placed the committee under deep obligations by undertaking the part at a few hours' notice; and the manner in which she fulfilled the task met with an ovation from orchestra and audience, in which the conductor joined. The performance of the work, generally speaking, was in all respects worthy of the traditions of the Philharmonic Society and reflected the greatest credit on all concerned, particularly on the popular conductor, Dr. F. Koeller, to whose assiduity the Society was indebted for its success.

The Conservatoire of Music here gave a Concert, on the 11th ult., in the Ulster Hall Annexe. The artists engaged were Madame Helen Trust (soprano) and Mr. H. T. Trust (solo violoncello), assisted by Mr. George F. Geaussent (principal of the Conservatoire) and Mr. Charles Schilsky (solo violin), Mr. W. F. Packer (tenor), and Miss Crouch (contralto), professors in the Conservatoire, with Miss L. Dobson as accompanist. The Concert was well attended, and met with the warm appreciation of the audience.

The Christmas performances of Handel's "Messiah" are now a successfully established institution in this city. For this year's performances, which took place on the 18th and 19th ult, the following artists were engaged: Miss Mabel Berrey (soprano), Miss Alice Lamb (contralto), Mr. William Green (tenor), and Mr. Plunket Greene (bass), under the conductorship of Dr. F. Koeller.

The Saturday night Popular Concerts, which have been so very successful, have been discontinued during the past month, in consequence of the Ulster Hall being occupied with bazaars and other entertainments, but will be resumed on the 2nd inst. A series of Sunday sacred Concerts is also in contemplation in the same building.

MUSIC IN BIRMINGHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Festival Choral Society secured a great success with its admirable performance of Dr. C. S. Heap's cantata the "Maid of Astolat," which was given in the Town Hall on November 19, under the composer's own direction, with full band, chorus, and the following principals: Miss Medora Henson, Madame Marie Hooton, Mr. Henry Piercy, and Mr. Watkin Mills. The work was originally composed for and given at the Wolverhampton Triennial Festival of 1886, but had not been heard here since 1889, and its revival under such favourable conditions was a just tribute paid to our talented townsman and conductor of the Birmingham Festival Choral Society. The performance was masterly in the extreme, the singing of the chorus being specially distinguished by superb tone, quality, and firm attack. The principals did their best, and did fair justice to Dr. Heap's musicianly cantata.

Mr. Stockley's second Subscription Concert of the present series took place in the Town Hall on November 26, and was particularly rich in novelties. For the first time Dvorák's Symphony "From the New World" was given a place in the programme, the other orchestral works being Berlioz's March from "Faust" and Reinecke's beautiful Prelude to "Manfred." The great Bonn master was represented by his triple Concerto (Op. 56), composed in 1804, written for violin, violoncello, pianoforte, and orchestra. The executants were the Mossel family—Mr. Max Mossel (violin), Mr. Ivan Mossel (violoncello), and Madame Ivan Mossel (pianoforte). Mr. Ivan Mossel is a violoncellist of the highest order, whose début here was a great success. He gave for his solo Saint-Saëns's Violoncello Concerto (Op. 33), a melodious and taking work. Madame Duma, who was the vocalist, sang with emotional power Weber's "Ocean, thou mighty monster."

Under the auspices of the Birmingham and Midland Scottish Society, the Glasgow Select Choir gave a Concert in the Town Hall, on November 30, Mr. J. Millar Craig conducting. The various part-songs and the humorous concerted pieces were received with the utmost enthusiasm by the immense assembly, chiefly composed of clansmen.

Mr. Thomas Facer's new cantata, "Maid of Lorn," was heard for the first time here, on the 12th ult., in our Town Hall, and was given with full band, choir, organ, and the following principals: Miss Maggie Jaques, Mr. Hamlyn Crimp, Mr. William Evans, Mr. Frank Cranmer, and Mr. S. Simms (organ). It is a melodious work, and is well adapted for small choral societies. It was well received and every number was enthusiastically applauded. The second part of the Concert was miscellaneous, the chief feature being the first public appearance of Mr. Alexander Humphreys, a talented young violinist, pupil of the Leipzig Conservatoire and of Mr. Wilhelmj. His playing is manly and impressive, and, above all, he has an elegant style and shows artistic temperament in his playing. He met with a most cordial reception.

MUSIC IN BRISTOL.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Executive Committee of the Festival for 1896 have issued a statement of account showing that, after payment of all expenses in connection with the Festival held in October last, there is a surplus of £42 15s. 11d. The sum of £142 10s. 6d. was collected after the morning performances during the Festival, on behalf of the Bristol Royal Infirmary and the Bristol General Hospital, and has been divided equally between those Institutions. The report and balance-sheet, which were presented at a meeting of guarantors on the 15th ult., were considered exceedingly satisfactory. Not only was the venture an artistic triumph, but, for the first time for many years, its cost has not merely been met from the sale of tickets, but there was the credit balance above named. The fusion of the Festival and Choral Societies (which combined for the purposes of the Festival) has not yet been brought about, but it is hoped and believed this will be accomplished after some further negotiation.

The finest choral performance in Bristol since the Triennial Festival was that given on the 19th ult. by the Choral Society, who brought forward Handel's "Judas Maccabæus." Everything attempted by this now highly-trained body is splendidly done, the result of well-directed rehearsal under the guidance of Mr. Riseley, whose fame as a conductor has been spread far and wide through his masterly directing of the Festival Concerts. The choruses in the Saxon master's oratorio were admirably sung—with unity, precision, excellence of tone, and correct phrasing—to the delight of the audience. The solos were entrusted to Miss Emily Squire, Miss Clara Aldersley, Mr. Harper Kearton, and Mr. Douglas Powell, who discharged their tasks with every satisfaction.

Two of the several Male-Voice Musical Societies in Bristol have given their annual Concerts. On the 7th ult. the Æolian Choir sang to a large assemblage a number of glees and part-songs, chiefly old favourites, such as De Rille's "The Retreat" and "The destruction of Gaza," Cooke's "Strike the lyre" and "Hohenlinden," and Viotta's "The Dying Child." Under the firm and inspiriting direction of Mr. G. A. Sleigh, every piece was well rendered. Songs by Miss Marion Harris and Miss Clara Aldersley, and pianoforte solos by Mr. W. L. Horne, lent agreeable variety.

The Bristol Gleemen's "Ladies' Night" came on the 9th ult., when a programme similar to that presented by the younger society, who came before the public two days earlier, delighted a numerous audience. All the pieces were sung with apparently a higher degree of artistic excellence than at any previous Concert. Miss Lucille Hill successfully contributed several songs and Mr. Herbert Parsons played some pianoforte solos. Mr. W. J. Kidner conducted.

On the 7th ult. Miss Mary Lock's first Chamber Concert of the season was given. The chief work presented was Mendelssohn's Octet, which was well played. A quartet in manuscript, from the pen of Mr. Gottheimer, also in the programme, met with a succès d'estime.

Through the week beginning the 7th ult. a series of operas was represented at the Prince's Theatre, by the Royal Carl Rosa Company, who performed them with a tolerable degree of proficiency and completeness. Wagner's "Tannhäuser," "Lohengrin," and "The Meistersingers" were necessarily given in abridged and compressed form, while "Carmen," "Rustic Chivalry," "Pagliacci," and "Mignon," which do not require the accessories essential to give completeness to the music-dramas of the Bayreuth master, were represented with yet more satisfactory results.

Clevedon Philharmonic Society, a young and progressing body, is to be commended for its creditable performance of Mendelssohn's "Athalie" and "Hear my Prayer," on the 9th ult., under the direction of Mr. E. Cook. The soloists were Miss Alice Boaden, Miss Ethel Button, and Miss Georgene Wickenden.

The Weston-super-Mare Philharmonic Society is to be complimented on the considerable measure of success which attended its performance of Beethoven's "Engedi" and Gounod's "Messe Solennelle," on the 10th ult. The works had evidently been well studied, judging by the freedom, precision, clearness, and tone-shading with which the choral portions were sung. Miss Alice Boaden, Mr. J. B. Jones, and Mr. T. H. Watson were the principal singers; and Mr. E. Cook conducted.

MUSIC IN DUBLIN.

(From our own Correspondent.

Tinel's "St. Francis" was given by the Dublin Musical Society at its first Subscription Concert for the season, at the Royal University, on the 3rd ult. The principal vocalists were Miss Bertha Rossow, Mr. Herbert Grover, and Mr. Robert Grice; Mr. John Horan was the organist, and Dr. Joseph Smith conducted. The same Society gave its usual Christmas performance of "The Messiah" on the 21st ult., with Miss Mabel Berrey, Madame Belle Cole, Mr. James Leyland, and Mr. Charles Kelly as principal vocalists.

Mr. Charles Kelly's annual Concert took place in the Antient Concert Rooms on the 5th ult. The popular basso had the assistance of Miss Hooton, Mr. Dan Jones, and some of the principal Dublin vocalists and instrumentalists, amongst whom Mr. Melfort d'Alton especially distinguished himself.

The Dublin University Choral Society gave its first Concert for the season in the Examination Hall, Trinity College, on the 12th ult. Dvorák's "Stabat Mater" was performed, with band and chorus, under the direction of Mr. Chas. Marchant, the soloists being Miss Fillunger, Miss Daisy Creeny, and Mr. Dan Jones.

The Rathmines Choral Society gave its first Concert in the Township Schools, on the 16th ult. Handel's "Ode to St. Cecilia's Day," Mozart's "Splendente Te, Deus," Haydn's "Distracted with care" and "Military" Symphony were performed, under the direction of Mr. Raymond Revelle, and the band was led by Mr. P. Griffiths. The principal vocalists were Misses Florence Hewson, A. E. Shea, E. F. Stubbs, and Messrs. Lowther Campbell and Perrier Sherlock.

Mr. Arthur Darley, a coming Dublin violinist, gave three Violin Recitals, in the Antient Concert Rooms, on November 24 and the 1st and 8th ult., with Mr. Frank Manley as accompanist. An extensive répertoire was shown, and the performances were most creditable.

The Royal Dublin Society's Chamber Music Recitals are crowded on Monday afternoons. On the 7th ult. the programme consisted of Beethoven's Quartet in G (Op. 18, No. 2), Rubinstein's Sonata (Op. 19) for pianoforte and violin, and Mendelssohn's Trio in C minor (Op. 66) for pianoforte and strings. The executants were Signor Papini, Mr. Darley, M. Grisard, Herr Bast, and Signor Esposito.

An Orchestral Concert by the instrumental pupils and professors of the Royal Irish Academy of Music and the Dublin Municipal School of Music took place in the Antient Concert Rooms, on the 16th ult., under the direction of Dr. T. R. G. Jozé. The overtures "Zauberflöte" and "Euryanthe," the Larghetto from Beethoven's No. 2 Symphony, the "Rosamunde" ballet music, and the "Athalie" march were the orchestral pieces.

MUSIC IN DUNDEE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The second and third of Messrs. Paterson's Concerts were given by the Scottish Orchestra, under the conductorship of Herr Kes, on November 26 and the 16th ult. respectively. The programmes included Schumann's Symphony (No. 1), Mendelssohn's "Italian" Symphony, the "Nachtgesang" from "Tristan," by Wagner, Tschaïkowsky's Overture "Romeo and Juliet," and other works by Mozart, Beethoven, Berlioz, &c. At the second Concert Miss Ada Crossley sang with great success.

The second of the Harrison-Simpson Subscription Concerts was given on the 1st ult. The soloists included Madame Gomez and Messrs. Ben Davies, Santley, and John Lemmonné.

Another Pianoforte Recital of great interest was given by M. Siloti on the 16th ult. He was assisted by Mdlle. Olga de Broemsen.

Among smaller events mention may be made of a successful Concert by the Dundee Orchestral Society, on the 8th ult., under the conductorship of Mr. A. M. Stoole. Schubert's works formed a special feature of the programme. Also of the third meeting of the Dundee Society of Musicians, on the 17th ult., when Mr. W. P. Fleming read a short paper on Bach, and some of that master's works were performed, including the Concerto in C for three pianofortes. Organ Recitals were given by Mr. Collinson and Mr. David Stephen on the occasion of the opening of the new organ in St. John's Free Church.

MUSIC IN EAST ANGLIA.

(From our own Correspondent.)

On the 10th ult. Dr. Horace Hill favoured the students of the Norfolk and Norwich School of Music with a very interesting Lecture on the Life and Works of Sir G. A. Macfarren. The enjoyment of the listeners was increased by a programme of musical illustrations taken from the composer's works, most creditably given by some of Dr. Hill's pupils. On the 15th ult. the close of the autumn term was marked at the School by a Students' Musical Evening, each piece in the programme being played or sung by students.

The Norwich Orchestral Society made its eighth appearance on the 10th ult., under the conductorship of Mr. Ernest Harcourt. Romberg's cantata "The Harmony of the Spheres" was the chief work, combining both band and chorus, although perhaps a more ambitious attempt was Beethoven's Choral Fantasia, the pianoforte part being in the capable hands of Madame Van Eyk. Miss Louise Burn sang the solos in the cantata with painstaking care, but band and chorus appeared overweighted in both cases. A finished interpretation of Gade's Trio in F (Op. 42) for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello was given by Madame Van Eyk, Mr. W. Tuddenham, and Herr Rudersdorff. Miscellaneous numbers made up the rest of the programme.

Mr. H. F. Howlett's band and chorus, composed of working girls, chiefly drawn from the various factories in Norwich, gave a Concert in the Agricultural Hall Assembly Room on November 30, much to the credit of themselves and their conductor. Of course, with such elements, one does not expect to hear classical music, but the long and varied programme was carried out with commendable care. A violin solo by Emma Hill and one for the cornet by Florence Hill were deservedly encored; while Sarah Browne and Maria Miller were decidedly successful in Bellini's vocal duet "Hear me, Norma." Believing, as we do, in the civilising and healthful influence of music upon all classes of society, we wish this and similar efforts God speed!

Miss Josephine Woodrow gave a drawing-room Pianoforte Recital at her residence on November 26, in aid of the funds for building a new Jenny Lind Infirmary. Frequent applause testified to the pleasure given by the clever pianist's interpretation of the classical music in the programme. Mrs. Nuthall and Mr. S. H. Burton varied the Recital with several songs.

Thorpe Hamlet Parish Hall was the scene of an interesting Concert on November 24, on behalf of the Sunday School. The vocal part of the programme was capitally rendered by Mrs. and Miss Boyden, Miss A. Snelling, Miss M. Gazely, Mr. Harry White, and Mr. F. E. Bramley. Pianoforte solos by Miss Rose were a feature of the evening, that lady also appearing as a siffleuse. Gurlitt's "Commedietta" Overture was played, arranged for the curious combination of three violins and pianoforte, the executants being Miss A. Geldart, Mrs. and Miss Glendenning, and Miss E. Hornor; the first-named lady was also pleasurably heard in violin solos.

Under the musical direction of Mr. J. H. Brockbank, a Concert was given in the Concert-room attached to the School of Music, in aid of parochial work in the poor parish of St. Julian. The enjoyment of a large audience was ministered to by the following amateur and professional vocalists: Miss H. Steward, Miss V. Edwards, Miss M. Gazely, Mr. Sawford Dye, Mr. F. Morgan, and Mr. Brockbank. Miss Edwards appeared for the first time before a Norwich audience, and her pure soprano voice and unaffected style quite won the sympathies of her hearers. Miss F. Muriel (violin) and Mr. D. Underhill (pianoforte) contributed several instrumental solos.

An unusually attractive Concert was given in Noverre's Rooms on the 11th ult., in aid of the Young Men's Christian Association. Miss F. E. Coleman's influential position rendered the organisation a comparatively easy task, and consequently prominent amateurs and professionals filled and successfully carried out a capital programme, which included excerpts from Bohm, Chopin, De Beriot, Dunkler, Wieniawski, Cowen, &c.

A Concert, consisting chiefly of classical chamber music, was given in Ipswich, on November 25, under the auspices of Mr. T. Palmer. The entrepreneur was assisted by his three daughters and Dr. Bunnett from Norwich. Beethoven's Trio in B flat, Schumann's Quintet in E flat, and Dr. Bunnett's scholarly Trio in the same key were the concerted instrumental pieces, to which ample justice was done; while violin and violoncello solos were given by the Misses Dollie and Nellie Palmer. Mr. Proctor Garrard varied the programme by singing several songs in good style.

Dr. Bunnett gave an Organ Recital, in St. Matthew's Church, Ipswich, on November 26, when a capital selection of works from the pens of Handel, Mendelssohn, Bennett, Peace, &c., was played in a masterly style. Miss Dollie Palmer joined the Doctor in Thomé's Andante for violin and organ, and Miss Broome sang Cowen's "Light in darkness" with taste and feeling.

At Beccles Handel's too much neglected oratorio "Samson" was given almost in its entirety on November 23 by the local choral society. The chorus numbered about sixty voices, supported by a band led by Mr. W. E. Tuddenham. The principal vocalists were Miss Elsie Mackenzie (soprano), Miss Parsons Norman (contralto), Mr. Sawford Dye (tenor), and Mr. A. Appleby (bass). Mr. Harvey conducted a very commendable performance of the work.

The King's Lynn Musical Society was sufficiently ambitious to attempt Mackenzie's "Rose of Sharon," on the 11th ult., and, under the conductorship of Mr. A. H. Cross, who had devoted all his energies to training the chorus, a very creditable performance resulted. The principal vocalists and a large portion of the band were drawn from the Metropolis, although a few of the latter hailed from Norwich.

The Felixstowe Choral Society opened its fifth season on the 16th ult. with an excellent performance of Anderton's setting of Longfellow's poem "The Wreck of the Hesperus." The solo parts were sung by Miss M. Percival Allen, Mr. F. S. Bennett, and Dr. Havell, and the choral portions were well rendered by a choir of about eighty voices. Mr. T. Palmer conducted.

MUSIC IN EDINBURGH.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

LAST month was exceptionally busy in Concerts, and it is difficult to know where to begin the catalogue. Perhaps the place of honour should be given to Mr. Emil Sauer, whose more subdued personality and less obtrusive mannerisms on this occasion allowed his commanding gifts to exact the recognition which is their undoubted due.

Mr. Siloti's Recital, on the 11th ult., was slightly inferior in interest to the standard this excellent artist has entitled us to expect from him. The Gavotte from "Idomeneo" was charmingly given and warmly received, but the playing of Liszt's Eighth Rhapsody proved the artistic success of the evening. Miss Broemsen contributed French and Russian songs with great acceptance.

Of exceptional interest were the Concerts given by Mr., Mrs., and Miss Dolmetsch at Professor Niecks's University Concerts and at the Philosophical Institution. At the former (on the 3rd and 9th ult.) the programmes were selected from the works of English, French, Italian, and German writers for the lute, viols, virginals, harpsichord, and clavichord (which last was heard for the first time in Edinburgh). It was very fortunate that these fascinating old works on the no less fascinating original instruments could be presented in the quiet of academic groves, where one had a chance of hearing them undisturbed by the necessities of catering to popular taste. At the Philosophical Institution (8th ult.) Mr. Dolmetsch chose for his subject the music of Shakespeare's time, and gave an altogether delightful Recital, which included Galliards, Pavans, &c., besides compositions more definitely alluded to by name in the great dramatist's plays. Mr. Dolmetsch mentioned incidentally the interesting fact that among all the numerous allusions to music and illustrations and figures drawn from the practice of the art there is not a single one which is not correct in the minutest detail—a contrast and a grave rebuke to the literature of to-day. Miss May Gibb sang the music known in Shakespeare's day to "Full fathom five," "Where the bee sucks," and other songs, and won very warm expressions of approval from the large audience.

The Paterson Orchestral Concerts show no falling off in attendance or interest. The performances steadily improve. It would be unreasonable to require better renderings of the Brahms C minor or the "Italian" Symphony than those secured by Mr. Kes at the third and fourth Concerts of the series. Madame Soldat was the soloist on the 7th ult., and her good qualities as an artist were fully recognised by the audience in Bruch's somewhat pretentious "Scottish" Fantasia and Beethoven's Romance in F. Mr. Kes himself played the solo part in Tschaïkowsky's Violin Concerto on the 14th ult., and proved himself a sound artist. His appearance as a composer was hardly so "convincing," as the phrase goes. At the same Concert Miss Ada Crossley was the vocalist. She was encored for songs by M. V. White.

On the 19th ult. the first of four Saturday Popular Orchestral Concerts was given by the Scottish Orchestra, when excellent performances of Tschaïkowsky's "Romeo and Juliet" Overture, the Overture to "Hänsel and Gretel," also Moszkowski's "Boabdil" ballet music, and a Liszt Rhapsody elicited warm applause from a crowded house. Madame Hooton was the vocalist.

Late though it is it would be unfair to omit recognition of a surprisingly good first performance in Edinburgh of the "Walkure," by the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company, in November. Mr. Hedmont's grand rendering of the rôle of Siegmund was enthusiastically applauded by a crowded house, and Miss Kirkby Lunn as Fricka and Mr. Ludwig as Wotan deserved the greatest praise. A large share of the credit was undoubtedly due to what must have been the herculean labours of Herr Eckhold, the able conductor.

Spohr's "Last Judgment" was performed in St. Paul's Church, on the 19th ult., by the choir, under the direction of Mr. W. Prendergast, who played the accompaniments.

MUSIC IN EXETER.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

EXETER Oratorio Society fittingly celebrated its Jubilee on the 4th ult. by two Concerts—one in the afternoon and the other in the evening—under the direction of Dr. H. J. Edwards. At the first, Rossini's "Stabat Mater" and Sullivan's "Martyr of Antioch" were performed, the latter having never before been heard in Devon. The soloists were Miss Marjorie Eaton, Madame Eliza Thomas, Mr. E. Branscombe, Mr. Arthur Barlow, and Mr. Norman Kendal. The Concert opened with Costa's arrangement of the "National Anthem," which went very well. Some unevenness, however, was displayed in the rendering of the works of Rossini and Sullivan. While many of the numbers were sung with satisfactory results, others had evidently been insufficiently rehearsed, and the voices were imperfectly balanced. At the evening Concert, which was attended by the Mayor and Sheriff, "The Martyr of Antioch" was repeated and went much better than before. Among the compositions in the miscellaneous second part of the programme was a part-song, "A Hymn to Night," a setting of words by Longfellow by Mr. H. M. Imbert Terry, President of the Society. It proved to be a melodious and agreeable piece, and, directed by the author, it was capitally sung and met with a hearty reception.

MUSIC IN GLASGOW.

(From our own Correspondent.)

At the fourth Classical Concert of the Choral and Orchestral Union series, on the 1st ult., the programme was on a scale of all-round excellence. The novelty of the evening, Tschaïkowsky's Overture to Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," aroused a great deal of attention, and in offering our thanks to Mr. Willem Kes for placing it in our programmes, we must also acknowledge that the work was remarkably well performed, viewing the elaborate nature of the scoring. Beethoven's Second Symphony, very finely played, Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody (No. 2), and Weber's Concertstück for pianoforte and orchestra were also in the programme. The last-named happily introduced Miss Clotilde Kleeberg to her Glasgow friends, and Mrs. Helen Trust contributed several songs. Tschaïkowsky's Overture was repeated at the Popular Concert on the 5th ult.; Mr. Maurice Sons, the leader of the Scottish Orchestra, gave a beautiful performance of Max Bruch's Concerto, and Miss Alma Ribella sang. On the 8th ult. Fräulein Marie Soldat essayed, with artistic success, the solo part in Bruch's "Scotch" Fantasia for violin and orchestra. Other pieces in the programme included Brahms's Symphony (No. 1) and MacCunn's ballad for orchestra, "The Ship o' the Fiend." Miss Jenny Taggart, the vocalist of the evening, and a Glasgow "bairn," moreover, had a hearty reception. Miss Taggart's neat and altogether effective graces of vocalisation again showed how well she has profited by her extended studies in Paris. On the following Saturday Mr. Kes introduced Mendelssohn's "Italian" Symphony to admirable purpose, as also Berlioz's "Carnival Romain" Overture and Bach's air for all the violins.

The Jubilee performance of the "Elijah," at the sixth Concert of the classical series, served again to reveal the local popularity of Mendelssohn's work. On this occasion the Glasgow Choral Union once more sang its familiar music to admiration in almost every number, and it was quite evident that Mr. Joseph Bradley, the conductor, had bestowed exceeding pains on rehearsals. The "Elijah" soloists included Misses Medora Henson and Ada Crossley, Mr. James W. Dempster and Mr. Andrew Black. The tenor made his début here, and with gratifying success, not only as regards the beautiful quality of his voice, but also by reason of his excellent method. Mr. Black's Prophet is so well known that it only remains to be said that he was at his best. The Glasgow baritone was, indeed, the feature of the evening.

MUSIC IN LIVERPOOL.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Dr. Stanford's "Irish" Symphony formed the chief attraction of the Ladies' Concert given at the Philharmonic Hall, on the 12th ult., by the Orchestral Society, and the composer, who conducted, received a most cordial greeting from a crowded auditorium. The regular conductor of this Society, Mr. Rodewald, has been also guiding the fortunes of the Società Armonica during the illness of its recently appointed chief, Mr. V. Akeroyd.

The musical attractions of the winter evening entertainments have been the performances of that excellent quartet, the Meister Glee Singers, at the Philharmonic Hall, and, in the same locale, Messrs. Harrison have given one of their popular Ballad Concerts. Performances of the same order have also been given at Hope Hall by Mr. Percy White and Mr. Thomas Shaw respectively, and both have attracted crowds of people who love the lighter side of art.

There has been evidence of good work done by local and suburban societies during the past half-session, and Handel's "Messiah" has been as usual the chief favourite. This oratorio has been given at Southport, under Mr. H. Hudson; at Warrington and Runcorn, by Mr. F. H. Crossley; at Liscard, by the Wallasey Society, of which Mr. Argent is the director; at Birkenhead, by Dr. Reynolds; and in the city itself, by the Musical Society, under Mr. Parry, and by the Kyrle Society, conducted by Mr. Pemberton.

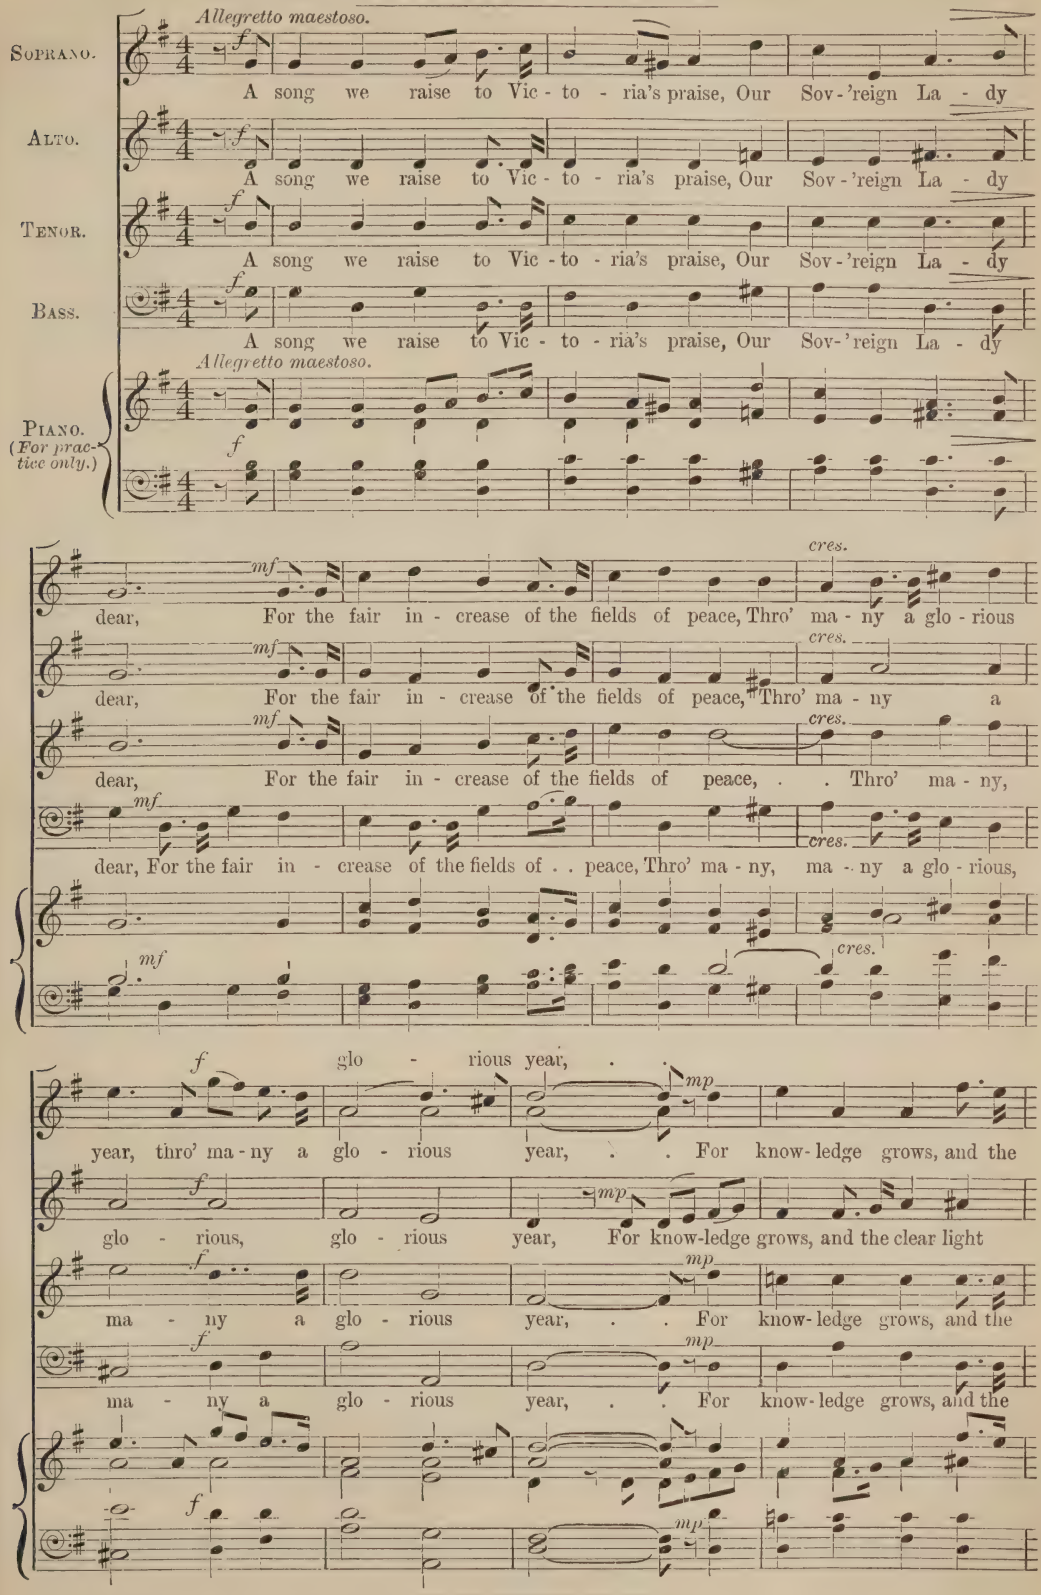
The Philharmonic Society this year has announced Mendelssohn's "Elijah" for the Christmas Concert, under Mr. Cowen, who also directed Tschaïkowsky's "Pathétique" Symphony at that given on the 8th ult. On the 2nd ult. Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" was given by the Musical Society, in St. George's Hall, with Mr. D. O. Parry as conductor. Within a few days of this event the same composer's "Hymn of Praise" was rendered by the Post Office Choral Society, under Mr. J. C. Clarke. Handel's "Judas Maccabæus" was announced for the 9th ult. at Runcorn by Mr. John Halford, and "Acis and Galatea" was given on the last day of November by Dr. Bridge at Chester. On the 22nd ult. Cowen's "St. John's Eve" was performed at Aughton, by the local Choral Society, under Mr. Carl Courvoisier. It will be noted that, as is unfortunately the case generally in this district, not a single novelty has been produced by those in control of choral societies.

At the pro-Cathedral Sullivan's "Light of the World" was given on the 10th and 17th ult., with Mr. C. Collins as conductor and Mr. F. H. Burstall at the organ. The Goossens Choir, on the 2nd ult., produced the results of a lengthy period of study, at the Picton Hall, under the conductor after whom they are named, with satisfactory effect. The students of the College of Music performed Mascagni's "Rustic Chivalry" in St. George's Hall, on the 5th ult., for the benefit of a charitable organisation, and a substantial balance was realised. The two Concerts of the Sunday Society, given during the past month, have again emphasised the fact that orchestral music is always a welcome feature in the artistic life of the masses of Liverpool.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

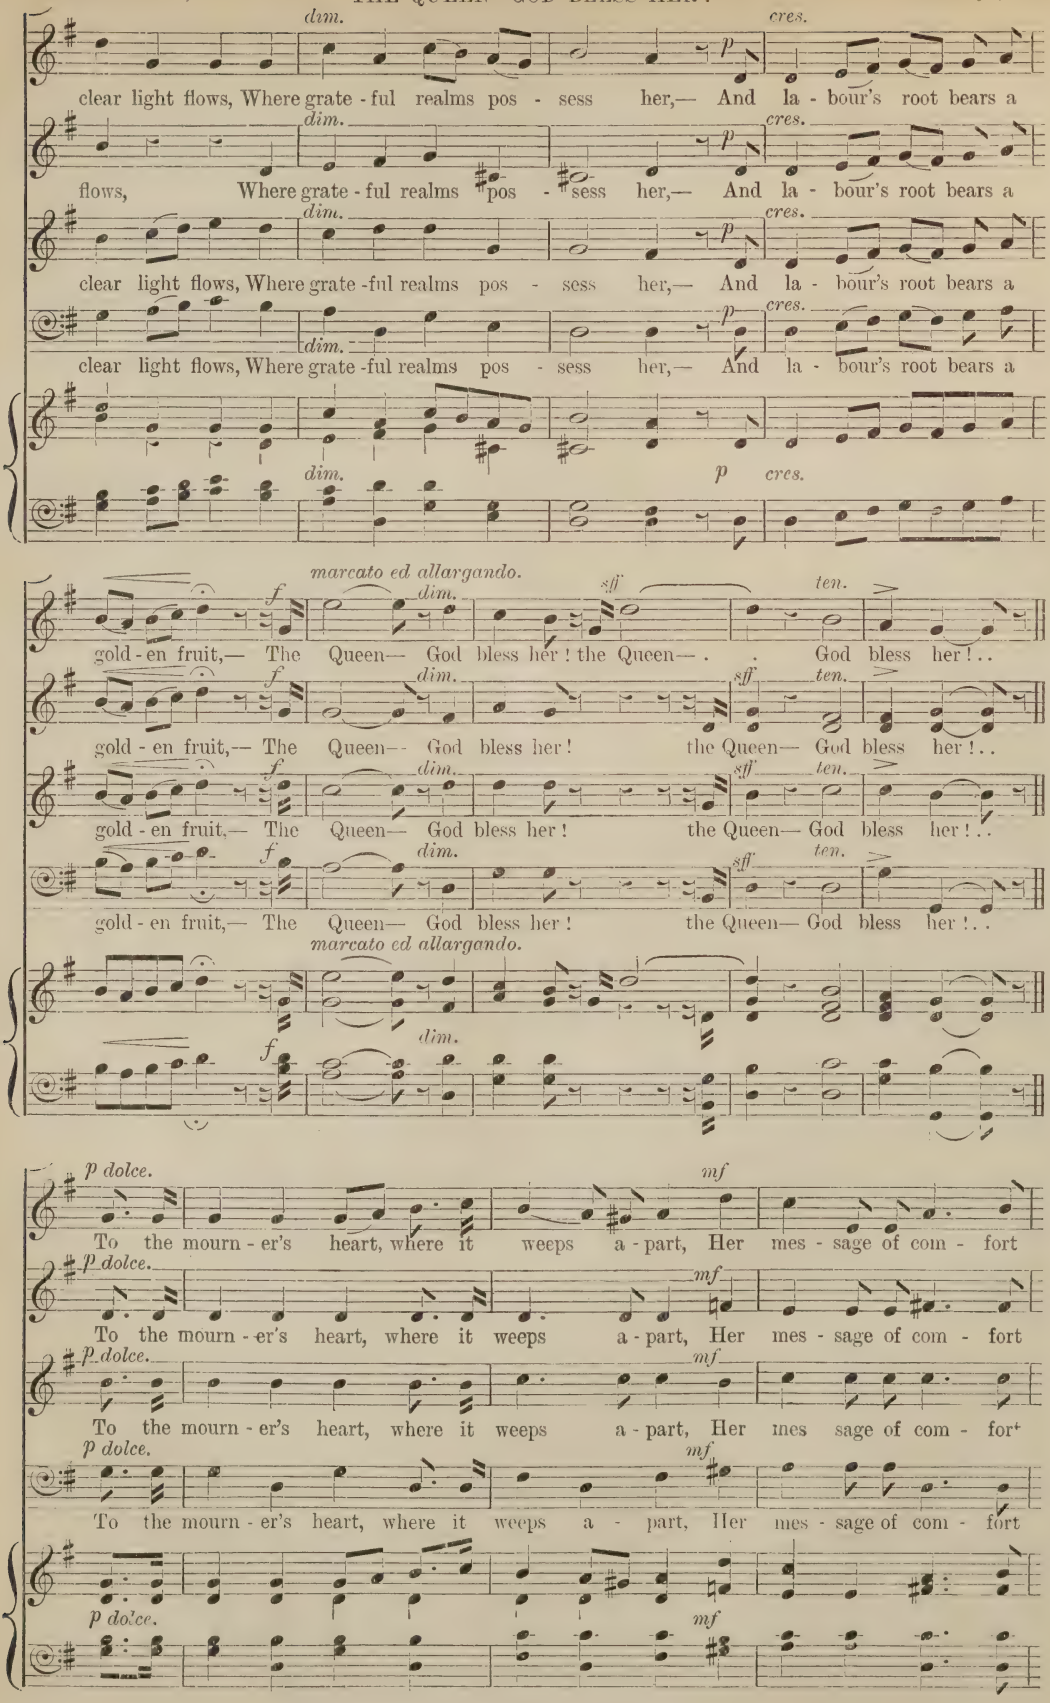
(From our own Correspondent.)

The programme of the Hallé Concert of the 3rd ult. was rich and long enough to make ample amends for the poverty of that of the preceding week. Mendelssohn's "Italian" Symphony had evidently been carefully rehearsed, and the second movement unquestionably gained character by being taken rather more slowly than heretofore. And, on the other hand, Schumann's Pianoforte Concerto was invested with enhanced charm through the impassioned and earnest rendering of Mr. Mark Hambourg, who promises to thoroughly justify the ardent hope which, as a boy, he excited. The Suite de Ballet, "Fairyland," of the conductor, Mr. Cowen, is full of delicate effects and was received with great favour. At the first hearing the opening piece, representative of the gambols of the Wood Nymphs, most strongly seized upon the fancy; and the rhythmic bass of the following March clearly pictured the strides of the Giants. Possibly there may be a danger of somewhat fragmentary effect resulting from the consecution of six Morceaux of somewhat similar design and all marked by a like ethereal tone; but it would be easy, at any time, to select from the attractive sketches a very welcome set. The revival of one of Handel's opera-overtures wherewith to open the Concert encourages the hope that Mr. Cowen may again draw from so fertile a source. "Giustino" was loudly applauded (the acclamations evidently being stimulated by some slight surprise), and afforded a capital opportunity for Mr. Charles Reynolds again to show what a splendid oboe player he is. The same evening Mr. John Dunn made his mark as a violinist, especially as a cantabile player with pure and firm tone, and Miss Macintyre was the vocalist, but scarcely in good voice. Mendelssohn's youthful overture, "The Son and Stranger," was given for the first time at the Thursday Concerts, on the 10th ult., together with Brahms's Violin Concerto in D, the solo part being interpreted by Fräulein Soldat without eliciting any great enthusiasm; but the accomplished executant was very warmly and repeatedly recalled after her exquisite rendering of Beethoven's Romance in F. The so-called symphonic poem of Liszt, "Tasso," sounded as wearily spun out as ever and as entirely a series of experiments in orchestration; but the Prelude to Goldmark's opera "The Cricket on the Hearth" was full of life and jollity. Miss Lucile Hill has improved during a somewhat long absence from Manchester.

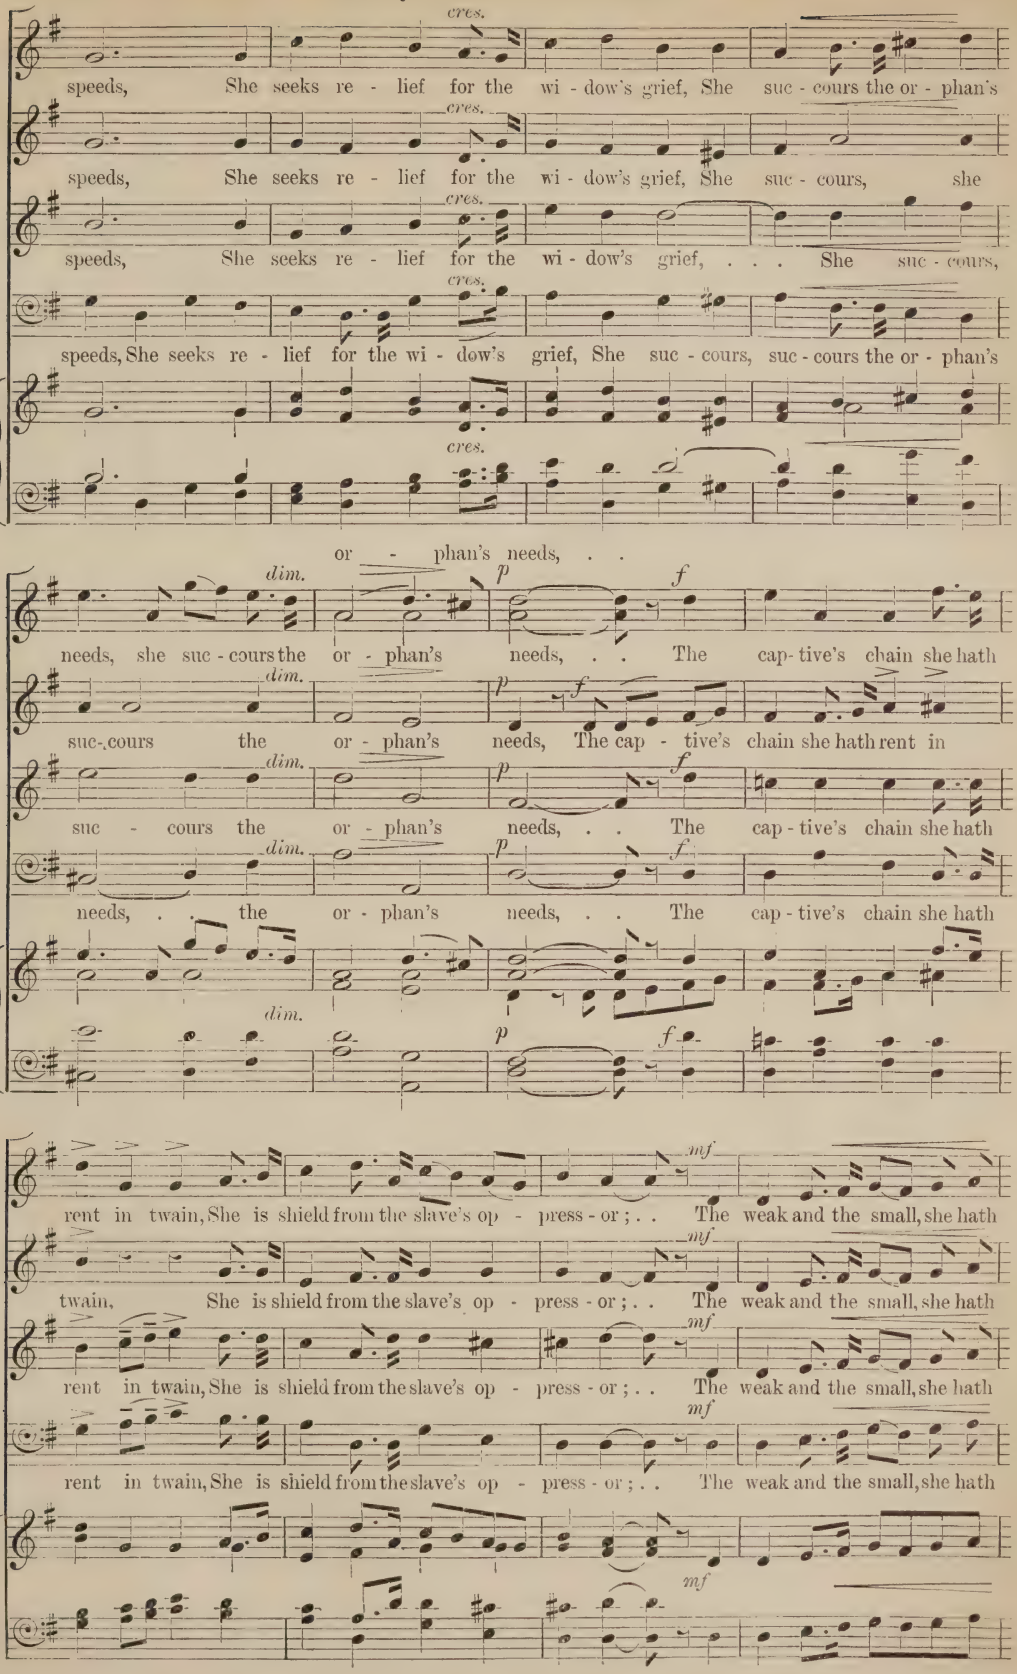


The Saturday Orchestral Concerts, under the same conductor, Mr. Cowen, are steadily establishing their claim. That their popularity does not involve any stooping

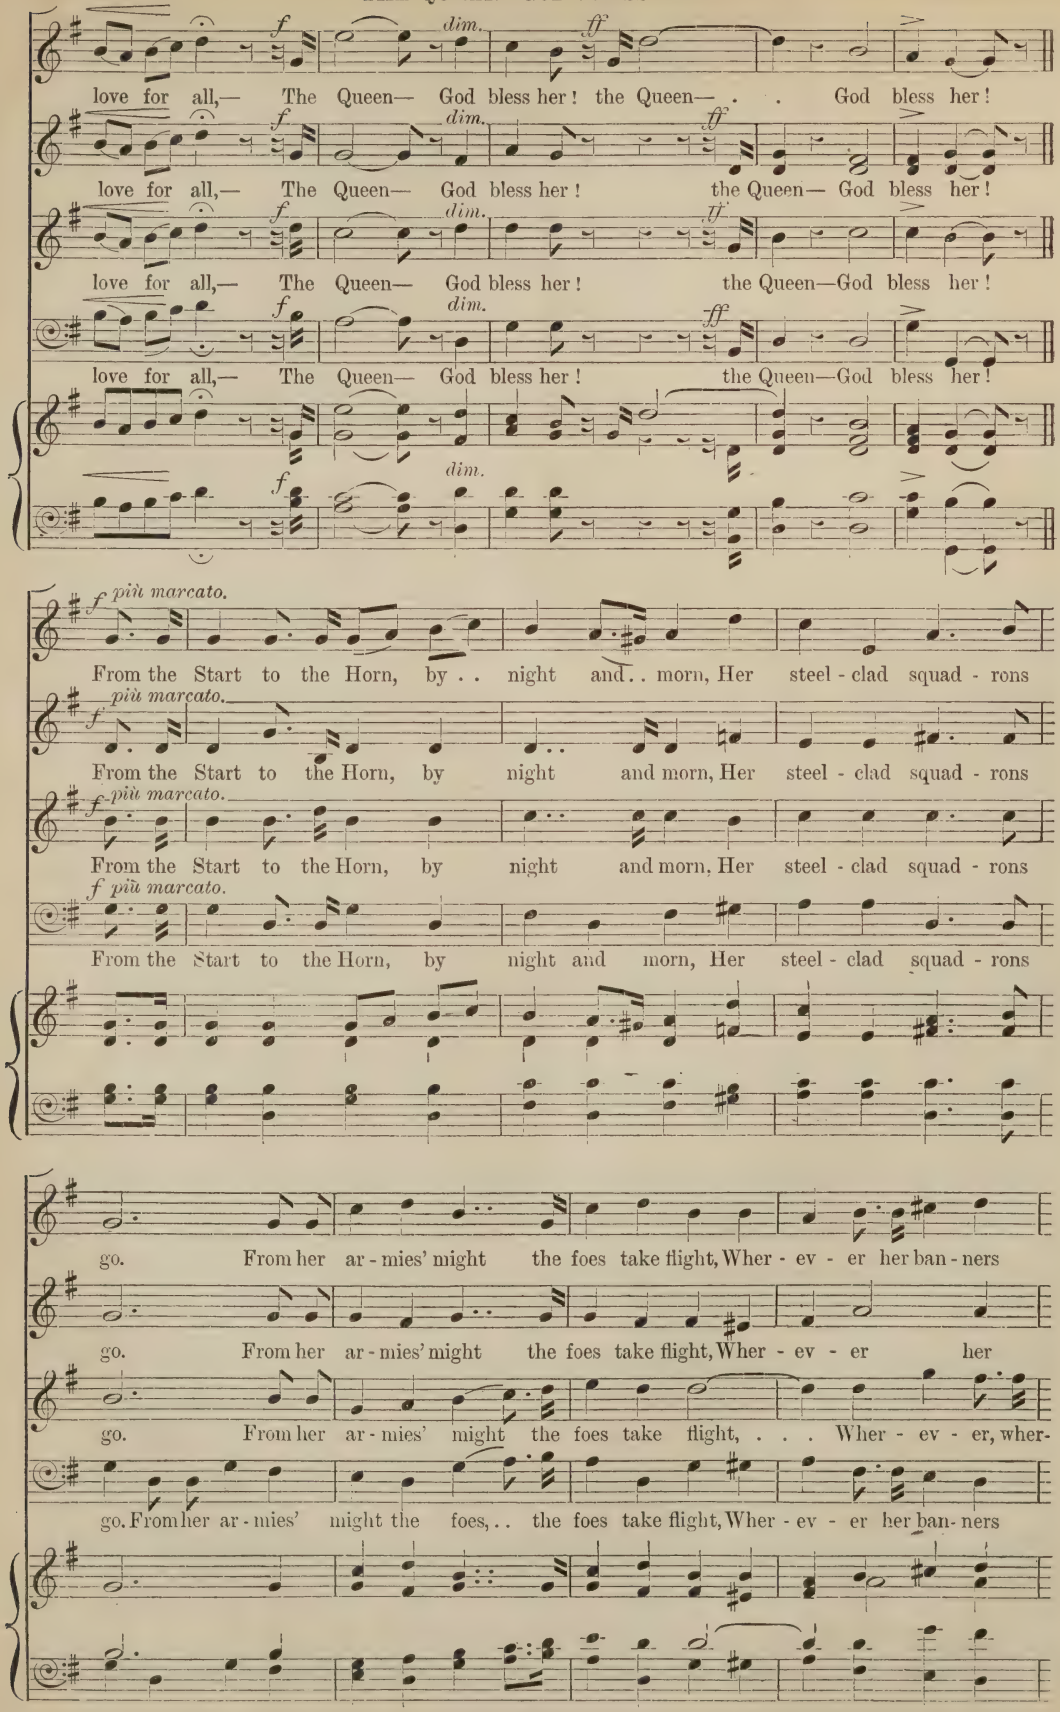
The Queen—God bless her!



A PATRIOTIC PART-SONG.



Words by MAY BYRON. Composed by MYLES B. FOSTER.



London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.); also in New York.

Copyright, 1896, by Novello, Ewer and Co.

dim.
cres.
p clear light flows, Where grate - ful realms pos - sess her,— And la - bour's root bears a flows, Where grate - ful realms pos - sess her,— And la - bour's root bears a clear light flows, Where grate -ful realms pos - sess her,— And la - bour's root bears a clear light flows, Where grate -ful realms pos - sess her,— And la - bour's root bears a marcato ed allargando.
f sff ten.
gold - en fruit,— The Queen— God bless her! the Queen— . . God bless her!..
gold - en fruit,— The Queen— God bless her! the Queen— God bless her!.. gold - en fruit,— The Queen— God bless her! the Queen— God bless her!.. gold - en fruit,— The Queen— God bless her! the Queen— God bless her!.. p dolce.
mf
To the mourn - er's heart, where it weeps a - part, Her mes - sage of com - fort
To the mourn - er's heart, where it weeps a - part, Her mes - sage of com - fort
To the mourn - er's heart, where it weeps a - part, Her mes sage of com - fort
To the mourn - er's heart, where it weeps a - part, Her mes - sage of com - fort

cres.
speeds, She seeks re - lief for the wi - dow's grief, She suc - cours the or - phan's speeds, She seeks re - lief for the wi - dow's grief, She suc - cours, she speeds, She seeks re - lief for the wi - dow's grief, . . . She suc - cours, speeds, She seeks re - lief for the wi - dow's grief, She suc - cours, suc - cours the or - phan's or - phan's needs, . .
dim.
p
f needs, she suc - cours the or - phan's needs, . . The cap - tive's chain she hath suc - cours the or - phan's needs, The cap - tive's chain she hath rent in suc - cours the or - phan's needs, . . The cap - tive's chain she hath needs, . . the or - phan's needs, . . The cap - tive's chain she hath mf
rent in twain, She is shield from the slave's op - press - or; . . The weak and the small, she hath twain, She is shield from the slave's op - press - or; . . The weak and the small, she hath rent in twain, She is shield from the slave's op - press - or; . . The weak and the small, she hath rent in twain, She is shield from the slave's op - press - or; . . The weak and the small, she hath f dim. ff love for all,— The Queen— God bless her! the Queen— . . God bless her!

love for all,— The Queen— God bless her! the Queen— God bless her!
love for all,— The Queen— God bless her! the Queen—God bless her!
love for all,— The Queen— God bless her! the Queen—God bless her!
f più marcato.
From the Start to the Horn, by . . night and . . morn, Her steel - clad squad - rons
From the Start to the Horn, by night and morn, Her steel - clad squad - rons
From the Start to the Horn, by night and morn, Her steel - clad squad - rons
From the Start to the Horn, by night and morn, Her steel - clad squad - rons go. From her ar - mies' might the foes take flight, Wher - ev - er her ban - ners go. From her ar - mies' might the foes take flight, Wher - ev - er her go. From her ar - mies' might the foes take flight, . . . Wher - ev - er, wher-go. From her ar - mies' might the foes, . . the foes take flight, Wher - ev - er her ban - ners

Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 956, price 1*d.*; and arranged for Soprano Solo and Chorus (S.S.A.) in The School Music Review, No. 56, price 1½*d.*

RECENT NUMBERS.

THE MUSICAL TIMES (Sacred).

609.	There were shepherds	Myles B. Foster.
612.	Now is Christ risen	John E. West.
614.	Lord, I call upon Thee	Arnold D. Culley.
617.	Jesu, priceless treasure	J. Varley Roberts.
618.	Thou crownest the year	Josiah Booth.
621.	With all Thy hosts	John E. West.
622.	There was silence in Bethlehem's fields	John Stainer.
624.	O saving Victim	F. Koenig.
625.	Hearken unto me	Myles B. Foster.
628.	I will sing unto the Lord	H. Purcell.
629.	The eyes of all wait upon Thee	A. R. Gaul.
633.	The night is far spent	Bruce Steane.
634.	Thou wilt keep him	A. D. Culley.
636.	Worthy is the Lamb	J. Francis Barnett.
638.	If I go not away	Thomas Adams.
640.	Save me, O God	C. S. Jekyll.
641.	Let us now fear the Lord our God	John E. West.
645.	Sing, O heavens	A. R. Gaul.
646.	God that madest earth and heaven	C. L. Naylor.

Price Three-Halfpence each.

THE MUSICAL TIMES (Secular).

611.	Soldier, rest! thy warfare o'er	Hamish MacCunn.
	I love my Jean	George J. Bennett.
615.	Blow, ye gentle breezes, blow	J. Christopher Marks, Junr.
616.	O'er the woodland chace	Herbert W. Wareing.
619.	Ballad of Earl Haldan's daughter	Robin H. Legge.
620.	Softly the moonlight	F. Iliffe.
623.	Spring	Frederic H. Cowen.
626.	The shades of night	J. Varley Roberts.
627.	Now the wearied sun declining	R. F. Lloyd.
630.	Under the greenwood tree	James Shaw.
631.	Autumn	J. Booth.
632.	A Shadow	Jacques Blumenthal.
635.	To Sylvia	Schubert-West.
637.	O happy eyes	E. Elgar.
639.	Pack, clouds, away	W. A. C. Cruickshank.
642.	A wet sheet and a flowing sea	R. H. Evans.
643.	The Fairy Queene	Alexandra Thomson.
644.	How soft the shades	King Hall.
647.	The Queen—God bless her!	Myles B. Foster.

Price Three-Halfpence each.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO ANTHEMS.

542.	Sing to the Lord	J. Barnby	4d.
543.	O Lamb of God	„	3d.
544.	If ye love Me	Bruce Steane	2d.
545.	Hail! gladdening light	G. C. Martin	4d.
546.	They that go down to the sea	G. J. Elvey	6d.
547.	The eyes of all	„	3d.
548.	Joy in harvest	Bruce Steane	3d.
549.	Thou visitest the earth	J. W. Elliott	3d.
551.	O sing unto the Lord	W. A. C. Cruickshank	4d.
552.	The day Thou gavest	H. H. Woodward	3d.
555.	Unto us a Child is born	Frank Adlam	4d.
558.	Not unto us	John E. West	4d.
560.	Hail to the Christ	J. Barnby	3d.
561.	Praise the Lord, ye servants	J. Maude Crament	4d.
562.	Sing, O heavens	H. D. Wetton	4d.

To be continued.

NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK.

743.	The Butterfly	Jacques Blumenthal	4d.
744.	Good-night	R. O. Morgan	3d.
745.	The Song of Victory (King Arthur)	Henry Purcell	4d.
747.	Upon my lap my soveraigne sits	Martin Peerson	2d.
748.	The Widow Bird	Charles Wood	2d.
749.	Evening Breezes	G. R. Vicars	2d.
750.	There rolls the deep	C. H. H. Parry	2d.
751.	Shall I, wasting in despair	G. J. Elvey	2d.
752.	Onaway	Godfrey Pringle	3d.
754.	Invitation to mirth	Frank Adlam	3d.
755.	The Fortune-Teller's Song	Eaton Faning	3d.
756.	Is not that my fancy's queen?	C. H. Lloyd	2d.
757.	Cherry Ripe	A. Herbert Brewer	2d.
758.	Waken, Lords and Ladies gay	„	3d.
759.	Songs of our land	Alicia Adélaïde Needham	3d.

To be continued.

NOVELLO'S PARISH CHOIR BOOK

300.	Te Deum laudamus (2nd Series.) (Greg. Tones)	J. Stainer	3d.
301.	Benedicite (Chant Form)	J. Stainer and B. Blaxland	1½d.
302.	Faith, duty, and prayer	Myles B. Foster	2d.
303.	Jubilate Deo in F	Bruce Steane	3d.
304.	Cantate Domino and Deus Misereatur in C	John Goss	6d.
308.	Te Deum laudamus in D	E. T. Chipp	3d.
309.	Benedictus in D	„	2d.
314.	Benedictus qui venit and Agnus Dei	C. J. B. Meacham	1½d.
315.	Cantate Domino and Deus Misereatur	G. J. Elvey	6d.
316.	Benedictus and Agnus Dei in D	J. Baptiste Calkin	3d.
317.	Benedictus in D	John Goss	3d.
318.	Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in D	Charles Macpherson	4d.
320.	The Apostles' Creed	J. H. Cornell	1½d.
321.	The Apostles' Creed (in G)	Edwin George Monk	2d.
322.	Benedictus in D (Chant Form)	James Turle	2d.
324.	Twelve Popular Hymns (Set 2)	A. H. Mann	3d.

To be continued.

THE ORPHEUS (New Series).

285.	The Ivy	C. Lee Williams	3d.
286.	A red, red rose	J. Varley Roberts	2d.
287.	In the pleasant summer day	William Beale	4d.
288.	I prithee send me back my heart	J. Varley Roberts	4d.
289.	What care I how fair she be	Jacques Blumenthal	4d.
290.	While my lady sleepeth	Percy Pitt	3d.
291.	A Cavalier's Song	„	3d.
292.	The Flirt	J. F. Bridge	3d.
293.	The leaves to one another say	C. H. Döring	3d.
294.	The moon looks down	„	2d.
295.	Far down the green valley	„	2d.
296.	Street music	Hamilton Clarke	4d.
297.	The kiss	J. Barnby	3d.
298.	In laudem amoris	„	3d.
299.	There's life to be seen	George Miller	4d.
304.	Shall I look to ease my grief?	C. H. Lloyd	3d.

To be continued.

NOVELLO'S SHORT ANTHEMS.

58.	Almighty and Everlasting God	John Stafford Smith	1½d.
59.	Come, let us worship	Palestrina	1½d.
61.	Lead me, Lord	S. S. Wesley	1½d.
62.	Master, what shall I do?	C. B. Bowes	1½d.
64.	Jesus said unto the people	J. Stainer	1½d.
66.	These are they which follow the Lamb	John Goss	1½d.
67.	O Lord, give ear unto my prayer	W. H. Cummings	2d.
68.	Whom have I in Heaven but Thee	G. J. Elvey	2d.
69.	O wisdom	J. Stainer	1½d.
70.	O Lord and ruler	„	1½d.
71.	O root of Jesse	„	1½d.
72.	O key of David	„	1½d.
73.	O day-spring	„	1½d.
74.	O King and desire	„	1½d.
75.	O Emmanuel	„	1½d.

To be continued.

NOVELLO'S COLLECTION OF
TRIOS, QUARTETS, &c.
FOR FEMALE VOICES.

296.	Hymn to nature	L. Streabbog	3d.
297.	Dickory, dickory, dock	Herbert W. Schartau	3d.
298.	Whither away?	C. Villiers Stanford	8d.
299.	Summer	Hamilton Clarke	4d.
300.	To the woods	„ „	4d.
301.	Noble be thy life	Beethoven	3d.
302.	So the world goes round	Marie Wurm	2d.
303.	Softly the moonlight	F. Iliffe	3d.
304.	You stole my love (arranged by F. Maxson)	W. Macfarren	2d.
305.	Moonlight	Hamilton Clarke	4d.
306.	The Snow	E. Elgar	6d.
307.	Fly, singing Bird	„	6d.
308.	To-day and to-morrow	Hamilton Clarke	4d.

To be continued.

to a trivial taste was proved on the 5th ult. The "Der Freischütz" and "Tannhäuser" Overtures were enjoyed even more than Rubinstein's ballet music from "Feramors," and Cliffe's new Violin Concerto was patiently listened to in spite of its great length. Later in the evening its executant, M. Tivadar Nachèz, was compelled to repeat one of his clever Hungarian Dances. Miss Marie Andersen sang agreeably and well; but, after all, the interest centred in the re-appearance of the veteran Sims Reeves, who must have been moved by the extraordinary enthusiasm of his reception; an enthusiasm thoroughly justified by the wonderful preservation of his voice, which retains some of the echoes of its rich tones so well remembered, and by the artistic vocalisation which still affords so valuable a lesson to young aspirants. "Tom Bowling" drew forth a tumultuous acclamation, which compelled Mr. Reeves to return to the platform with another of Dibdin's enjoyable English songs, "The jolly young Waterman."

For the annual performances of "The Messiah," at the Hallé Concerts, Miss Medora Henson, Madame Marian McKenzie, and Messrs. Lloyd and Santley were secured; and for the Saturday evening more "popular" audience, on the 19th, Miss Ada Crossley and a party of aspirants, the choir being the same and a great portion of the full orchestra. Mr. Lane boldly engaged for the 12th ult. Miss Palliser, Miss Sarah Berry, and Messrs. Ben Davies and Andrew Black, and the attendance amply justified his courage.

On the 16th ult. Mr. Brodsky had secured for the first of his Subscription Chamber Concerts, in addition to his admirable quartet party, M. Siloti, who took part in Tschaïkowsky's Trio (Op. 50), "To the Memory of a great Artist," and joined Mr. Dayas in Arensky's Suite for two pianofortes. The large audience was very enthusiastic.

The second Concert of Dr. Watson's Vocal Society was given on the 9th ult., with Mendelssohn's 42nd Psalm as chief attraction.

Mr. F. G. Edwards gave his Lecture on "Mendelssohn's Organ Music" before the Northern Section of the Royal College of Organists, at the Albion Hotel, on the 5th ult. The musical illustrations included some unpublished organ pieces by Mendelssohn, which excited special interest.

MUSIC IN NORTH STAFFORDSHIRE.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE Fenton Orchestral Society held its second annual Concert on the 3rd ult. In addition to the fifty-four members, Madame Dews, Mr. F. W. Norcup, and Master Harold Bate contributed to the programme. Mr. Ernest Bilton accompanied, and Mr. Frank Hughes acted as conductor. The latter gentleman received a presentation bâton at the close of the Concert.

The string band of the Royal Marines, from Chatham, contributed the programme at the Meakin Popular Concert on the 8th ult., before a crowded audience. Miss Florence Hoskins was the vocalist, and valuable assistance was rendered by Mr. W. T. Bonner (pianoforte) and Mr. G. Barlow (organ). A new version of "Abide with me," by Mr. S. Liddle, was rendered at this Concert.

Newcastle Ebenezer Choir and its conductor (Mr. S. Hughes) deserve unstinted praise for the excellent performance of "The Messiah" on the 10th ult. Miss Shirley, Miss Godfrey, Mr. Younghusband, and Mr. George Jones were the principals; and Mr. Rhodes presided at the organ.

Mr. C. W. Perkins, city organist, Birmingham, is in great demand for the inauguration of new church organs. On the 10th ult. he opened the organ of the Congregational Church, Tunstall, recently erected by Messrs. Keay and Steele, of Burslem.

The annual performance of "The Messiah" by the Hanley Glee and Madrigal Society, at the Victoria Hall, on the 17th ult., was in accordance with the traditions of this organisation for oratorio work. Miss Teresa Blamy, Madame Dews, Mr. Ben Davies, and Mr. Andrew Black were the principals. Mr. T. Shaw led the orchestra, Mr. T. Johnson presided at the organ, and Mr. Jas. Garner conducted.

MUSIC IN NORTHUMBERLAND AND DURHAM.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE South Shields Choral Society gave its first Concert of the present season on the 2nd ult., the principal work selected for the occasion being Handel's "Acis and Galatea." The soloists were Mrs. Helen Trust, Mr. Edward Branscombe, Mr. Herbert Stansfield, and Mr. David Hughes. Not the least interesting feature of the performance was the singing of the chorus, the work having evidently been carefully prepared by the conductor, Mr. M. Fairs. The programme also included Gade's Ode for chorus and orchestra, "Spring's Message," which obtained a remarkably good performance.

The Sunderland Chamber Music Society gave its first Concert of the season in the Lecture Hall of the Subscription Library, Sunderland, on the 3rd ult. The artists engaged were Mr. Gerald Walenn (violin), Mr. Herbert Walenn (violoncello), Mr. Oscar Cohen (pianoforte), and Miss Edith Rees (vocalist). The programme included trios for pianoforte and strings by Beethoven and Smetana, both of which were exceedingly well played. The playing of the Messrs. Walenn was very greatly admired, and equally worthy of praise was that of Mr. Cohen. The Concerts of this Society had hitherto been given by local artists; but on this occasion a new departure was made by the engagement of artists from a distance. The success of the experiment is such as to justify the committee in their action.

On the 9th ult. the Newcastle Chamber Music Society gave its second Concert of the season in the Assembly Rooms, Newcastle-on-Tyne. The artists who appeared were Mr. Adolph Brodsky and Mr. C. Rawdon Briggs (violins), Mr. Simon Speelman (viola), Mr. Carl Fuchs (violoncello), Miss Evangeline Florence (vocalist), and Mr. J. M. Preston (pianoforte). The principal works in the programme were Haydn's Quartet for strings in G (Op. 17, No. 5) and Beethoven's Quartet, also for strings (Op. 59, No. 1). Both works were remarkably well played and called forth enthusiastic applause. Mr. Brodsky displayed great skill in the performance of a Chaconne by Bach, and the playing of Mr. Carl Fuchs was also greatly admired. Miss Evangeline Florence sang most artistically, and Mr. J. M. Preston was, as usual, a faultless accompanist.

The annual Concert of the Northern Musicians' Benevolent Society took place in the Town Hall, Newcastle, on the 14th ult. The programme included Edward German's "Gipsy" Suite; Schumann's Pianoforte Concerto in A minor (Op. 54), the solo in which was exceedingly well played by Mr. Samuel S. Wiggins; Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony in B minor; Weber's Clarinet Concerto in F minor (Op. 73), the solo cleverly played by Mr. R. Smith, junior; and the same master's "Jubel" Overture (Op. 59). The whole of these works were carefully performed under the direction of Mr. J. H. Beers, the conductor of the Society. The vocalist was Miss Hilda Wilson, who sang "God shall wipe away all tears," from Sir Arthur Sullivan's "Light of the World," and the air "Nobil Signor."

The Newcastle annual Police Concert took place in the Town Hall, Newcastle-on-Tyne, on the 16th ult., and took the form of a Ballad Concert, in which Miss Ella Russell, Madame Belle Cole, Mr. Ben Davies, and Mr. Andrew Black took part.

The Newcastle and Gateshead Choral Union announced a performance of "The Messiah" for Wednesday, the 23rd ult., with Miss Maggie Purvis, Madame Helen Berry, Mr. Joseph Reed, and Mr. John Browning as principals, under the conductorship of Mr. James M. Preston.

On the previous evening, the 22nd ult., the artists mentioned in the foregoing paragraph gave, with the assistance of the Tynemouth Amateur Vocal Society, a performance of gems from the oratorios, at St. Oswald's Hall, Tynemouth, Mr. Bird conducting.

The Sunderland Philharmonic Society announced a popular performance of "The Messiah" for the 28th ult., under the direction of Mr. N. Kilburn.

The Dunelm Choral Society gave a performance of J. F. Barnett's cantata "The Ancient Mariner," on the 16th ult., in the Town Hall, Durham, under the conductorship of Mr. G. H. Ditchburn.

On the 17th ult. the Whitley Amateur Vocal Society gave a performance of Mr. George F. Vincent's choral ballad "Sir Humphrey Gilbert," in St. George's Hall, Cullercoats, under the direction of the composer. The programme also included, among other things, Gounod's "Night"; a part-song, "Phyllis tarries," by Mr. C. Francis Lloyd, and a choral fantasia on National airs by Mr. G. F. Vincent.

MUSIC IN NOTTINGHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

While others have talked of the desirability of forming a local orchestra in Nottingham, Mr. William Allen, J.P., has laid his townsmen under a debt of gratitude by founding and organising the Midland Orchestral Union, a combination of the best talent in the district. It numbers over seventy performers, and made its début on November 28, under the able direction of Dr. William Lemare, who has been appointed conductor. The first appearance of the band made it evident that, given adequate public support, Nottingham may look forward to the establishment of a regular series of orchestral concerts of great merit. The programme included Mozart's "Jupiter" Symphony, F. H. Cowen's new suite de ballet "In Fairyland," besides other pieces, rendered with praiseworthy care. Miss Townshend was the vocalist, her selections being "Batti, Batti," and "Softly sighs."

The second Harrison Concert, on the 3rd ult., attracted an enormous audience to the Albert Hall as usual. Mdlle. Greta, Madame Alice Gomez, Mr. Ben Davies, and Mr. Santley were the vocalists. The other artists were Mr. John Lemonné (flautist), Herr Fritz Masbach (pianist), and the Columbian Quartet.

The Mansfield Harmonic Society gave a capital performance of Barnett's "Ancient Mariner" (with miscellaneous second part), on the 8th ult., under the direction of Mr. Marshall Ward.

The West Bridgford Choral Society must be complimented on its performance of Benedict's "St. Cecilia," on the 11th ult., under its able honorary conductor, Mr. Derbyshire. The vocalists were Miss Marjorie Eaton, Miss Laura Bissill, and Messrs. George and Harry Stubbs.

More than a passing word of praise is due to Mr. R. W. Liddle, organist of Southwell Cathedral, for his Organ Recitals at the Mechanics' Institution, on November 29. His programme included little but organ music of the most elevated style, and his masterly playing commanded great applause, though he was an entire stranger to the audience.

A Concert was given by the Rev. Wellesley Batson on November 26, in the Albert Hall. The programme consisted entirely of his own compositions, which were fairly well executed by a choir and chorus selected and rehearsed locally by the composer. The solos were entrusted to Miss Pyatt, Mrs. Stephenson, Mr. Reginald Groome, Mr. Henry Pyatt, and Mr. J. L. Hebblethwaite.

MUSIC IN OXFORD.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The music of the Autumn term has been marked by few features of distinction. There have been the usual Classical Concerts and the usual rush of eminent performers to give Recitals. Also, as usual, the Oxford public has exhibited its appreciation of the opportunities given to it by neglecting them. One of the most famous pianists in Europe played to a few score of listeners; another, more wisely, abandoned the proposed Concert altogether.

Local musical societies have not been very active. A newly formed chorus sang Bach's "Christmas Oratorio," on the 7th ult., at a Service held in St. Mary Magdalene's Church for the benefit of the Oxford Eye Hospital, when Dr. Harwood conducted. Under such circumstances criticism is, of course, precluded.

Lectures on musical subjects have been given by Mr. Hadow, Mr. Birkbeck, and the Professor himself. Sir John Stainer chose as his theme "Italian Song-writers of the Classical Period," and treated the interesting subject in a comprehensive and masterly manner.

In two respects, however, the term has been very noteworthy. In the first place, the Richter Concert was not only successful as a performance and for letting us hear Tschaïkowsky's "Pathetic" Symphony, but also because it attracted a very large audience, the best that Oxford has seen for years. The other striking feature of the term has been the extraordinary brilliance of Mr. Farmer's Concerts at Balliol. Successful as this well-known series of Concerts has been for many years, it is nevertheless safe to say that for variety and interest the programmes of this term have easily excelled those of any previous term. It is hardly necessary to add that they have been much appreciated by crowded audiences.

MUSIC IN SHEFFIELD AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The balance-sheet of the recent Musical Festival is gratifying reading. The profits amounted to £780 3s. 10d., and of this sum £120 has been devoted to the medical charities of the city and the balance will be carried forward to the funds of the next Festival. A notable feature is the fact that the expenditure was within £7 16s. 1d. of the original estimate made some months previously.

The Amateur Instrumental Society opened its twenty-fifth season, on the 8th ult., with a Subscription Concert in the Montgomery Hall. Dr. Henry Coward conducted a large and enthusiastic body of amateurs, who gave an admirable performance of Raff's "Lenore" Symphony, Mendelssohn's "Ruy Blas" Overture, a selection from "Tannhäuser," and other works. Mrs. Snadden and Mr. Alfred Shaw sang ballads.

The St. Peter's (Abbeydale) Choral Society, a young suburban organisation, gave its first public Concert in the Vestry Hall, Cemetery Road, on the 15th ult. Mr. W. Gadsby was the conductor, the work performed being Stainer's "Daughter of Jairus." The successful début of the Society fully justified its birth, and, as it is under good management, the support given to it should be sufficient to enable it to do good work in the future. Van Bree's "St. Cecilia's Day" and Eaton Faning's "The Miller's Wooing" are announced for the next Concert.

The Barnsley St. Cecilia Society gave a Concert performance of Gounod's "Faust," on the 10th ult., under the direction of Mr. Alfred Benton. Complete success attended what was a new departure on the part of this enterprising Society, but it is to be hoped that this admirable body will not in consequence be led to neglect the true choral domain of oratorio and cantata. The soloists were Miss Agnes Molteno, Miss Savile Hughes, Mr. Herbert Grover, Mr. Charles Knowles, Mr. Walter Nicholson, and Mr. John Ridding.

MUSIC IN THE SOUTHERN COUNTIES.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Advent performance of Spohr's "Last Judgment," in Salisbury Cathedral, took place on the 10th ult., and, as usual, the sacred building was occupied by a large and reverent congregation. The Cathedral choir, augmented by a few members of the Sarum Choral Society, gave the choruses of the oratorio with that ease and precision which are the results of familiarity, and the solos were very well sung by various members of the choir. Mr. C. F. South accompanied on the organ with his usual skill and judgment.

The Sarum Choral Society, under the conductorship of Mr. W. T. Bowey, gave the second Concert of its forty-eighth season on the 8th ult. Sir W. Sterndale Bennett's "May Queen" occupied the first part of the programme, and was very well rendered. Mr. J. F. Barnett's "Ancient Mariner," with which the Concert concluded, also had justice done to its many good points by both chorus and band. The soloists were Miss Elsie Mackenzie, Miss Clara Harding, Mr. Harper Kearton, and Mr. Walter Foreman. Mr. Frank L. Bartlett led the orchestra.

The Chippenham Harmonic Society opened the season, on the 1st ult., with a successful Concert in the Town Hall. The principal work was Haydn's oratorio "The Creation," parts 1 and 2, which received a very good rendering, under the careful conductorship of Mr. W. Bradshaw. The soloists were Madame Emily Squire, Mr. H. E. Small, and Mr. C. E. Poole.

Mr. Cowen's cantata "The Sleeping Beauty" formed the chief feature of the Concert given by the Corsham Choral Society, on the 2nd ult. Mr. L. Spackman conducted and Mr. J. W. Duys officiated as leader of the orchestra. The solos were taken by Madame Emily Squire, Miss Wood, Mr. E. T. Morgan, and Mr. C. E. Poole. The cantata was admirably performed, the singing of the chorus, as well as the principals, being excellent throughout.

The Calne Musical Society gave a Concert of a miscellaneous character on the 8th ult. Part-songs and choruses were sung by the members of the Society, and some well-played violin solos by Lady Beatrix Fitzmaurice and harp solos by Miss F. Lane imparted pleasing variety to the programme.

A performance of Handel's "Messiah" was given by the Trowbridge Musical Union, on the 15th ult., under the conductorship of Mr. H. Millington. The principal vocalists engaged were Miss Marion Perrott, Madame Florence Winn, Mr. Laurence Fryer, and Mr. Charles Tinney. Messrs. Duys and W. Millington led the orchestra, which, together with the chorus, numbered 120 performers.

An excellent and admirably arranged series of Chamber Concerts have given been at Marlborough, under the direction of Mr. W. S. Bambridge. The executants were Miss Otie Chew, Mr. C. Price, and Mr. Bambridge. Songs were contributed by Mr. Walter Ford.

On the 8th ult. Van Bree's "St. Cecilia's Day" was performed by the Westbourne Philharmonic Society, which has recently been established under the conductorship of Mr. William Lee. Throughout the melodious work the members of the Society covered themselves with credit, their singing being distinguished by delicacy and finish.

The Southampton Philharmonic Society performed "The Messiah" on the 17th ult., Miss Ada Loaring, Miss Pauline Gear, Mr. Wright Beaumont, and Mr. Arthur Walenn being the soloists, and Mr. H. M. Pike the conductor.

A distinctly creditable performance of Haydn's "Spring," from the oratorio "The Seasons," was given, on the 10th ult., by the Portswood Choral Society, Southampton. The solos were sung by Mrs. E. C. Young, Mr. Conlan, and Mr. C. Boyd. Mr. E. Jones led the orchestra, a small but efficient one, and Mr. Young conducted.

MUSIC IN YORKSHIRE

(From our own Correspondent.)

Of all Yorkshire towns, Bradford must be allowed to take the lead in respect of the quantity of Concerts given during the past month. Ignoring those of minor importance—parochial and amateur entertainments and the like—we have a record of ten Concerts, of some artistic moment, between November 19 and the 16th ult. Leeds comes next with eight. But Leeds, though a larger town, has not only fewer Concerts, but, speaking generally, those it has are less generously patronised. The Leeds Subscription and Leeds Philharmonic Concerts having joined their forces, and made a special "whip" for subscribers, have not only saved expenses in management, but have had larger audiences than for many years past. On November 18 Mr. d'Albert came to Leeds and gave a Recital, varied by part-songs sung by the Philharmonic chorus. His superb reading of the so-called "Appassionata" was the feature of the Concert; he made the hearer forget the executant and think only of the music, which is perhaps as high praise as could be given him. The Leeds Permanent Orchestra offered, on the 2nd ult., an exceptionally good programme, including the C minor Symphony of Beethoven; but though they piped well under Mr. Benton's direction, the Leeds people refused to dance, and the empty Town Hall was anything but encouraging to this young and deserving Society. The vocalists were Madame Edith Mellor and Mr. Charles Knowles, who gave general satisfaction. The Leeds Symphony Society, an amateur organisation, and therefore in no rivalry to the Permanent Orchestra, gave a Concert under its new conductor, Mr. A. E. Grimshaw, on the 8th ult. It hardly did itself justice in a Haydn Symphony, the strings of the orchestra having apparently been content to tune their instruments at home; but they were less at sea in Massenet's "Dernier sommeil de la Vièrge." Mr. G. M. Hinds sang some tenor songs admirably. Three Concerts by local musicians must be passed over briefly. Miss Eisele and Mr. Rawdon Briggs gave a capital Chamber Concert on November 23, Brahms's difficult Pianoforte Quartet in G minor (Op. 25) being especially well played. On November 30 Miss Lily Pearce gave an interesting Concert of vocal and instrumental music, being assisted by Mr. Paull, of the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company, with Madame Grimaldi as pianist and Mr. John Müller as violinist. On the 4th ult. Mr. Christensen gave the first of his Concerts, Gade's Pianoforte Trio in F (Op. 42), in which he was assisted by Miss Simpkin (violin) and Mr. Giessing (violoncello), being the chief thing in the programme. Miss Lily Pearce contributed several songs.

During the past month—a busy one at Bradford, as we have seen—there have been two Bradford Subscription Concerts. The first, on November 20, was of a miscellaneous nature, and requires no more description than is afforded by an enumeration of the performers. These were Mr. d'Albert and Mr. Hollman, with Miss Evangeline Florence, Miss Ada Crossley, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, and Mr. Plunket Greene as vocalists. On the 11th ult. a fine performance of "Elijah" was given at one of the Subscription Concerts. The Hallé band supplied the orchestra, the Bradford Festival Choral Society the chorus, and Miss Ella Russell, Madame Marian McKenzie, Messrs. Lloyd and Andrew Black were the principals. Mr. Cowen, who is getting the Manchester Orchestra into better trim than it has been for years, conducted. The Bradford Permanent Orchestra has also given two Concerts during the month. On November 21 Mr. Stavenhagen appeared and gave a most masterly reading of Beethoven's C minor Pianoforte Concerto, introducing a well-written cadenza of his own composition. For the rest the "Carnaval Romain" of Berlioz was the chief thing in a programme that was hardly up to the mark in point of distinction. At the following Concert of the series, however, which took place on the 5th ult., several Wagner selections were most creditably played under Mr. Bartle's very able direction. Madame Goodall and Miss Meisslinger were respectively the vocalists on these occasions. On November 25, at the Bradford Harmony Society's Concert, Mr. Oppenheim and Mr. Carl Fuchs played Sonatas for pianoforte and violoncello by Brahms and Mendelssohn, and Miss Mary Tapp was the vocalist. On November 28 Madame Bertha Moore gave a very pleasant entertainment, the raison d'être of which was an agreeable little drawing-room operetta for four characters, "When one door shuts, another opens," by Charles Thomas, and set to music by Harriet Young, who played the accompaniment on the pianoforte. Madame Moore and Mr. Charles Copland were thoroughly at home in their respective parts, and were efficiently assisted by Miss Gertrude Woodall and Mr. Murray Grahame. Not the least interesting Concert of the month was that given by Mr. E. E. Blake on November 30, since it revealed in the concert-giver, a youth just seventeen years of age, a student of remarkable promise. Sonatas for pianoforte and violin, songs, and pieces for violin and for pianoforte solo showed a welcome amount of originality and power. It is satisfactory to learn that Mr. Blake intends to work seriously at composition, and it is much to be hoped that he may receive the material support necessary to enable him to do so. On the 7th ult. Mr. J. H. Earnshaw, a Bradford pianist, gave a Chamber Concert, assisted by Mr. A. H. Earnshaw as violoncellist and Mr. Philip Lincey as vocalist, the programme of which was unhackneyed and interesting.

The Huddersfield Subscription Concerts continue their busy course. Since last writing there have been three, together with the annual Conversazione. Mr. d'Albert played on November 17, the "Waldstein" being his greatest effort. Madame Soldat was the violinist, and Miss Ada Crossley and Mr. Plunket Greene were the vocalists. On the 1st ult. we had a Scottish evening, the Glasgow Select Choir and Dr. Peace's brilliant organ playing being the most striking features of a popular programme. On the 15th ult. the Hallé band paid its only visit to Huddersfield this season, and gave a very fine performance of the "Pathetic" Symphony of Tschaïkowsky. Madame Lilian Tree was the vocalist, and Mr. Cowen's conducting deserves warm commendation.

Mr. Sarasate's power of attraction was shown at the Halifax Subscription Concert, on the 9th ult., when the hall seemed fuller than we have ever known it to be at these excellent Concerts. He was rather unequally yoked with his new pianist-colleague, Dr. Otto Neitzel, whose reading of the "Carneval" was pre-eminently unromantic. Mr. Van Dÿk gave a Chamber Concert, at Halifax, on the 11th ult., introducing a new Pianoforte Quartet in C minor of his own composition. At Wakefield the Subscription Concert, on the 1st ult., was given up to the Gompertz quartet, with Miss Kreuz as vocalist; and the Choral Society, on the 11th, gave a satisfactory performance of "St. Paul," the quartet of soloists being Miss Annie Norledge, Miss Edna Thornton, and Messrs. Binns and Pierpoint, with Mr. J. N. Hardy as conductor. The Harrogate Musical Society, on November 24, gave a Concert performance of Gounod's "Faust," Miss A. L. Burns, Miss Jessie Browning, Mr. Wills Page, and Mr. Broughton Black being the principal soloists, and Mr. Allanson Benson the conductor. The Ilkley Vocal Society, of which Mr. Akeroyd is conductor, gave Haydn's "Creation," on the 8th ult., the soloists being Miss Docksey, Mr. Iveson, and Mr. Barnes.

"Elijah" performances have been too numerous to record in detail. It must suffice to mention that the jubilee of this popular oratorio has been celebrated during the past month by the Batley Society, on the 8th ult., under Mr. John Bowling's direction; by the Pudsey Choral Union, on November 30, under Mr. Alfred Jowett; and by the Selby Choral Society, on the 8th ult., under Mr. T. Foster. At Armley, "Acis and Galatea" was given by the local Society on the same date, and at the neighbouring town of Bramley the Choral Society, which Mr. Hoggett now conducts, gave a miscellaneous programme of part-songs, Mr. Alfred Hollins appearing as pianist and in the newer rôle of elocutionist. The Scarborough Instrumental Society, which is at present reduced to a string band only, gave a Concert on the 15th ult., at which Bach's Concerto in D minor for two violins was played by Messrs. Cass and Thackwray, Miss Barter singing songs by Mozart and Purcell, and Mr. F. de G. English conducting. On the 9th ult. the Whitby Choral Society, conducted by Mr. H. Hallgate, gave the "Hymn of Praise." Miss Wilby and Mr. Breurley were the principals.

MUSIC IN PARIS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

On the 3rd ult. Mdlle. van Zandt made her re-appearance at the Opéra Comique in the part of Lakmé, specially written for her by Délibes. The reception accorded the lady was a brilliant one, and all the more cordial since the audience were bent upon making amends for the injustice and brutality with which she had been treated here some years ago. On the 6th ult. the tenor, M. Rivière, made his very successful début in "Richard Cœur de Lion."

The programme of the Conservatoire Concert, on the 6th ult., included M. Saint-Saëns's fifth Pianoforte Concerto, admirably interpreted by M. Diémer. This work, it will be remembered, was written specially in connection with a recent Festival organised in honour of the composer.

Little of interest was offered lately at the Lamoureux Concerts. There was a first hearing, at that of November 29, of a Symphony by M. Lutz, entitled "Lumen," and divided into three parts, superscribed "Matin," "Midi," and "Soir." It is essentially a descriptive composition, in which, however, the descriptive detail abounds to an extent tending to obscure the general plan of the work. Clever and ingenious enough in parts, the new Symphony failed to gain favour with the audience, who received it coldly. At the same Concert M. de Greef, the Belgian pianist, obtained a legitimate success.

At the Colonne Concert of the 6th ult. the jubilee of Berlioz's "La Damnation de Faust" was celebrated, the work having been first produced on December 6, 1846, at the Salle Favart. Its popularity with the public appears to be truly inexhaustible, M. Bruneau facetiously characterising it as "La Dame Blanche du romantisme."

Amongst provincial news may be instanced that Mr. Harold Bauer, the celebrated pianist, and the violoncellist M. Salmon have been giving a brilliant series of Concerts in the Southern towns, and that M. Saint-Saëns was present at the recent performance in Lyons of his opera "Proserpine" and of his new ballet "Javotte." Add to this, that at the same theatre Wagner's "Die Meistersinger" was to be brought out towards the end of last month, and it will be admitted that musical matters are progressing in the provinces.

Madame Calvé departed for New York on November 28, where she will remain four months, and on her return is to create the rôle of Sapho, which M. Massenet has written for her.

The first of five projected performances of "Athalie," with Mendelssohn's music, was announced to take place on the 19th ult., at the Odéon.

The Ville de Paris prize has been awarded this year to M. Lucien Lambert for an opera, "Le Spahi"

MUSIC IN AMERICA.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Among the choral societies, the performance of Verdi's "Manzoni Requiem" opened the season for the New York Oratorio Society at Carnegie Hall, on Friday and Saturday, the 4th and 5th ult. The soloists were Madame Nordica, Madame Katherine Bloodgood, Mr. George W. Hamlin (a new-comer from Chicago), and Mr. David Bispham. This was an exceptionally strong quartet, with the possible exception of Mr. Hamlin, who, though he sang with praiseworthy care, was perhaps rather overweighted by his work. Whether the Society and the band were not yet thoroughly in the swing of their season's training it is hard to say, but for some reason the performance was best in the small things and weakest where it should have been most strong.

The first Concert of the New York Musical Art Society is shortly to take place, and I believe the pièce de resistance is to be the "Pope Marcellus" Mass of Palestrina. This chorus is doing extremely finished work, as are also several others, out of town, which are studying under the lead of Mr. Frank Damrosch, who never leaves any loose threads about his work. His Sunday afternoon classes, which are attended chiefly by working girls, possessing no previous knowledge of music and only able to avail themselves of such instruction because of an exceptionally cheap rate of membership fees, accomplish some surprisingly good results.

The Arion Society of Newark (N.J.) has given one very successful Concert, under the direction of Mr. Julius Lorenz, with unaccompanied choruses by Neupert, Weinzierl, and others. Miss Caroline Montefiore, Mr. George W. Fergusson, and Miss Florence Terrel (pianist) were the soloists. The Schubert Society, under Mr. L. H. Russell, and the Madrigal Club and Polymnian Society, under Mr. F. L. Sealy, will keep up the measure of Newark's vocal activities during the season.

The first service held under the auspices of the American Guild of Organists, in St. Bartholomew's Church, New York, on the evening of November 23, was looked to with a great deal of interest by the fraternity of church musicians; but, it must be admitted, hardly met the expectations of the most sanguine of the well-wishers of the new-born Guild. In the first place, the service itself was something of a curiosity. It was compiled by the Chaplin of the Guild, the Rev. Charles C. Hall, of the first Presbyterian Church of Brooklyn, who laid under contribution all sorts of liturgical material, including the Book of Common Prayer, the prayers of the Church of Scotland, the "provisional offices" (whatever those are) of the Mexican Episcopal Church, and the Mozarabic Rite, not to mention the Sacred Scriptures. The net result of this mixture was peculiar, though perhaps it was suitable enough for a society made up of men serving in churches of all shades of religious belief. It was not, however, a service capable of good musical treatment. Then, again, the different organists who played the various solos and accompaniments seemed to be not quite at home at the organ—a thing not to be wondered at, since it is an instrument of 112 sounding stops and a labyrinth of mechanical appliances, everything electric and requiring a great tax on the memory to keep track of its complex combinations. The anthems were Dr. Martin's "Holiest, breathe an evening blessing," Sir John Stainer's "Awake, awake," Gounod's "Lovely appear," and the Hallelujah chorus. In Dr. Martin's anthem the composer's directions as to tempo were not scrupulously adhered to, and the whole chorus—of some hundred voices or more—fell a long way from the pitch. The Stainer anthem was introduced by an extemporisation by Mr. Harry Rowe Shelley, on a theme taken from the anthem itself; but the spirit did not seem to move Mr. Shelley very powerfully. It is very apt to prove coy when a performer is called upon to extemporise in cold blood. No composition by any member of the Guild was performed—a singular omission, considering the fact that the organisation contains a number of composers of undoubted ability, who could have furnished works which would have been really representative of the best American talent employed in church music at the present time. In a word, the service, while in the main impressive and well performed, was not representative of the best that American organists and composers can do, and it is to be hoped that on another occasion the Guild will more nearly reach the very high standard which is expected of it.

The Harvest Festivals of the Long Island and Connecticut Choir Guilds took place on November 19 and 20 respectively. The Long Island service was held in St. Luke's Church, Brooklyn, the music being under the direction of Dr. W. H. Woodcock, of the Garden City Cathedral, with Mr. Frank Wright, of St. John's, Brooklyn, at the organ. The service music was Martin in G, and the anthems, "It is high time to awake" (Steane), "Now when Jesus was born" (Cruickshank), and "Say, where is He born" (Mendelssohn). Eleven choirs participated—a total of, perhaps, 300 voices. The work was well done, barring the difficulties incident to so large and unwieldy a body of singers.

At the Connecticut Festival, held in St. John's, Bridgeport, Mr. F. E. Howard conducted, with Mr. William Weidenhammer at the organ. Only four choirs took part, and the service music was Stainer in A, the most important of the anthems being the "Hallelujah," from Beethoven's "Mount of Olives," and Dr. Martin's "Whoso dwelleth under the defence." Although this service was performed with a dangerously insufficient amount of rehearsal, it was notably good, so far as the voices were concerned.

On the first Sunday in Advent the choir of St. Ann's Church, Brooklyn, gave an unusually fine rendering of Spohr's "Last Judgment," at St. James's Church, New York, where Mr. Hall, formerly of St. Ann's, has just taken charge of the choir in the room of the late Mr. Alfred L. Baker. Owing to Mr. Baker's illness and absence, the St. James's choir has become badly disorganised, and is being entirely reformed by the new choirmaster.

Ten days later the same work was given by the choir of Calvary Church, New York, under Mr. Clement R. Gale, and between the two came an excellent rendering of Dr. Garrett's "Two Advents," by the choir of Calvary Church, Summit, New Jersey—one of the most beautiful of the churches of New York's suburbs—where Mr. W. Irving Lyon is getting a new surpliced choir of men and boys well in hand.

The first week in Advent was marked at the Church of the Advent, Boston, by a service commemorative of the twenty-fifth anniversary of Mr. Samuel B. Whitney's incumbency as organist of the church. The music was all from Mr. Whitney's pen, that of the Communion Office being composed specially for the occasion. The Prelude was an arrangement for organ and orchestra, on themes from the processional hymn tune, and the anthem was Mr. Whitney's "O God, my heart is ready." Local accounts speak in high praise both of the music itself and of the manner of its performance by the Advent choir and the band (selected from the members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra) who assisted.

WE understand that a Choral Society, consisting of 150 members, has been formed in Reigate. Lord Richard Brown is the president, and Viscount Oxenbridge, the Hon. Henry Cubitt, M.P., and others are vice-presidents Mr. Stewart Macpherson has been appointed the conductor.

THE prospectus of the "Feis Ceoil," or "Irish Musica Festival," has just been published, and announces definitely that the Festival will take place in Dublin on May 18, 19, 20, and 21, 1897. The scheme of Concerts has already been outlined in these columns, and the prospectus chiefly deals with the prize competitions. About £430 is offered in prizes. The principal prize for choral societies is £50. The vocal competitions are sixteen in number, including larger and smaller choral societies, choirs of equal voices, quartets, solos, and sight-singing. The instrumental competitions are twenty-one in number, including bands, quartets, and instrumental solos. The prizes for the composers' competition are eleven in number, amounting to £82, as follows: £30 for the best Cantata on an Irish subject, or to words by an Irish author, for solos, chorus, and full orchestra, about forty minutes in performance; £10 for the best Concert-Overture for full orchestra, about ten minutes in performance; £10 for the best arrangement of Irish Airs for wind band; £10 for the best String Quartet, only part of which may be performed; £5 for the best Anthem or Motet, with or without organ accompaniment; £3 for the best Unaccompanied Part-Song; £3 for the best Song on Irish subject, or Ballad in style of ancient Irish melody to words by Irish author; £3 for the best Violin and Pianoforte Duet; £3 for the best Pianoforte Fantasia on Irish Airs; £3 for the best Harp Solo; £2 for the best arrangement of an Irish Air as a Part-Song. The competitions for composers are open to both professional and amateur Irish composers. The term "Irish composer" will include not only those of Irish birth or parentage, whether resident in Ireland or elsewhere, but also those of British or foreign parentage who will have been resident in Ireland for at least three years on May 1, 1897. The last date for receiving MSS. is February 15, 1897.

THE Catford Choral Society gave a Concert at St. James's Hall, Forest Hill, on the 16th ult., when the programme included Dr. C. H. Lloyd's "Song of Balder," Goring Thomas's cantata "The Sun Worshippers," Professor Stanford's pastoral "Diaphenia," and Dr. Charles Wood's beautiful part-song "Full fathom five." The choir has increased in numbers since we last heard it, but as the additions to its ranks are chiefly in the "ladies' department" the balance has been somewhat detrimentally affected. Apart from this, the performance, under the honorary conductor, Mr. Alfred Furse, told once more of very careful training of good material. Beauty of tone is never a great feature of suburban choral societies, in which a good will is sometimes a member's sole compensation for the absence of a good voice. However, Mr. Furse's choir is not more deficient in this respect than the majority of its rivals, while it stands well in the front rank as regards finish, expression, and general intelligence. The soloists in the cantatas were Miss Kate Cherry and Mr. Samuel Masters, who left little to be desired. They also contributed songs plus the usual encores. Mrs. Furse sang Goring Thomas's "A summer night" with much expression, the violoncello obbligato being effectively performed by Mr. J. D. D. Mackenzie. Miss Ethel M. Brissenden, the honorary accompanist to the Society, in addition to playing the accompaniments in the two cantatas, was heard in solos by Mdlle. Chaminade, Mr. T. A. Matthay, and Mr. J. L. Nicodé. She has vastly improved, both as regards technique and expression, since we last heard her. Miss Isabella Donkersley played Kiel's fine Solostück for violin as well as the charming Menuet (Love Duet), and the spirited and highly effective Tarantelle from Mr. E. German's "Gipsy Suite." In response to enthusiastic applause after the last-named she added Fauré's Berceuse.

THE Bow and Bromley Institute Choir and Orchestra, which has Dr. W. G. McNaught for conductor, on the 5th ult. introduced Mr. Arthur Somervell's setting for chorus and orchestra of Tennyson's "Charge of the Light Brigade." To adequately reflect in music, without lapsing into the merely strident and commonplace, the animation and impulse pervading this poem was not an easy task, but Mr. Somervell has accomplished it with a directness and sincerity warranting the heartiest approval. Starting with the regulation field-call, as used at the famous charge, he has contrived, without the appearance of effort, to make every phrase harmonise with the stirring or reflective line it illustrates. The vigorous and picturesque orchestration does its share in emphasising the sternly dramatic situation. The music, which is free from complication, is altogether worthy the text, and there can be no doubt that it will soon be in great request by choral societies. Dr. McNaught's forces did such justice to the work as to ensure for it an enthusiastic reception. The choralists were also heard in part-songs, and Miss Elsie Horne distinguished herself by an exceptionally neat rendering of the first movement of Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in C minor and a couple of pieces by Mdlle. Chaminade.

Miss Beatrice Frost, who has appeared at several London Concerts, gave, on the 14th ult., associated with Madame Minnie Shatel, her first Concert at Steinway Hall. Both ladies justified their appearance as exponents of vocal art. Miss Frost is gifted with a fine-toned mezzo-soprano voice, which is well produced, and manifestly has been trained on sound principles. Her interpretation of the exacting aria "Suicidio," from Ponchielli's "La Gioconda," testified to the possession of dramatic intuition, and Schumann's "Widmung" and Goring Thomas's much-favoured song "A Summer Night" were sung with much charm of expression. It is satisfactory to know that Miss Frost has been trained entirely in England, and to find that she learns her songs by heart. Madame Shatel would do well to cultivate a more refined style, which would make her singing more acceptable to cultured musicians. Miss Ada Walter gave an attractive reading of Schumann's "Carnaval" (Op. 9), and several violin pieces were played with master-like command of the instrument by Miss Irma Sethe.

The London Academy of Music students creditably acquitted themselves at St. George's Hall, on November 25, in a generally brisk performance in English of Cimarosa's "Il Matrimonio Segreto." The musical no less than the dramatic spirit of the work (now over a hundred years old) was fairly caught by all concerned, and Mr. A. Pollitzer, as conductor, succeeded in keeping his forces well together. As the opera, though containing several bright and melodious numbers, is but little known to the present generation, the representation had the charm of curiosity. Interest was not impaired by the interpretation, which, if lacking strength, showed intelligence and zeal. The trio, "My Lady the Countess," once such a favourite on the concert platform, was sung with marked effect by the Misses Jennie Higgs, Mabel South, and Mary Hulburd. At very short notice Mr. Richard Temple, who had superintended the production, played the buffo part Geronimo (in lieu of Mr. Arthur Charles), and his unforced humour was invaluable in all the scenes in which he took part.

The pupils of the Allen-Olney School, on the 5th ult., at the Vestry Hall, Haverstock Hill, performed Miss E. M. Woolley's cantata "The Captive Soul," for the benefit of a charity. The book, written by Miss Ethel C. Pedley, treats of a fay who, capturing a soul on its flight from earth, takes up her abode among mortals. She brings misfortune with her, and being denounced as a witch is burned at the stake, whereupon the captive soul is released. This theme—half fantastic, half dramatic—has been very cleverly dealt with by the composer, who undoubtedly possesses the gift of melody together with judgment to turn it to the best account. Grace and feeling are the leading characteristics of a work that can boast more variety than the majority of cantatas in which female voices have been chiefly studied. The pupils were assisted in a commendable rendering by Misses Selina Quick, Clara Hardy, K. Hemming, and Maude Barnes. The Misses B. Jones and C. F. Booth were at the pianoforte and organ respectively.

In St. Paul's Cathedral, on the 1st ult., "The Last Judgment" was performed, according to the excellent custom that for many years has prevailed here on the first Tuesday in Advent. At this period of the year there is no more popular work than that by which Spohr's melodic grace, united with devotional feeling, is so strikingly manifested. It is given by church choirs and choral societies in every quarter, and unvaryingly obtains acceptance. No more convincing testimony to the loftiness of the oratorio or to its influence could be tendered. The effect upon the vast congregation in the Cathedral was as noticeable as before, the most reverential attitude being observed throughout. The work was efficiently rendered by the ordinary choir of the Cathedral, no vocal assistance from elsewhere being called in, and the accompaniments were played by a small orchestra. Dr. Martin conducted, and Mr. Charles Macpherson was at the organ.

Miss Pauline Joran appeared both as vocalist and violinist at St. James's Hall on the 10th ult. Of efficiency in the double capacity, made known to the public by her performance of the gipsy youth in Mascagni's "L'Amico Fritz," further proof was afforded in more important works. As instrumentalist, Miss Joran took part with her sister, Miss Elise Joran (a competent pianist), in Eduard Schütte's attractive Suite (Op. 44), the final "Rondo à la Russe" being played with exceptional neatness; and she evinced taste as well as executive facility in a Romanza and Scherzo by Franz Ries. Her vocal contributions included a couple of airs from Puccini's "Manon Lescaut," the Valse from "Roméo et Juliette," and the Habanera from "Carmen," the last-named as an extra; and her delivery of each deserved the applause obtained. Miss Elise Joran gave some well contrasted pianoforte solo pieces effectively, and Mr. Richard Green assisted with songs.

The Hampstead Popular Concerts, held in the Vestry Hall, are progressing satisfactorily. At the second of the series, on the 4th ult., justice was done to Mozart's String Quartet (No. 1) in G, by Messrs. Ludwig, Collins, Gibson, and Whitehouse, all the principal points being brought out with a clearness and effect that materially conduced to adequate appreciation of this charming work, as fresh to the ear now as when it was penned. Equal praise was earned by Madame Haas and Messrs. G. A. Clinton and Whitehouse for their finished rendering of Brahms's Trio in A minor (Op. 114) for pianoforte, clarinet, and violoncello. Between these compositions came the Adagio from Spohr's Violin Concerto, given in the most artistic manner by Mr. Ludwig; Chopin's Barcarolle in F sharp and Ballade in A flat, sympathetically interpreted by Madame Haas; and songs from Mr. Henschel, who was encored in his own "Jung Dieterich."

The Bernhard Carrodus String Quartet Party gave their second Concert, in the Queen's (Small) Hall, on Nov. 26, when the programme consisted of Beethoven's String Quartet (Op. 59, No. 3), Mendelssohn's "Variations Concertantes" for pianoforte and violoncello, and G. A. Macfarren's Quintet for pianoforte, violin, viola, violoncello, and contra-bass, each being ably performed. The pianist was Miss Suzanne S. Stokvis, and Miss Jessie King was welcomed in some songs. For the final Concert, on the 7th ult., there was a novelty in the shape of a MS. Sonata in A for violin and pianoforte, by Mr. Edward Iles, a skilful and telling work excellently interpreted by Mr. B. M. Carrodus and the composer. Spohr's Quartet (No. 2) in G minor and Beethoven's Septet in E flat respectively opened and concluded the Concert, the vocal portion of which was acceptably supplied by Madame Bertha Moore.

The Finsbury Choral Association, one of the most enterprising of suburban bodies, commenced another season, on November 26, at Holloway Hall, under most promising conditions. "The Spectre's Bride," a fine specimen of Dvorák at his best, although so strangely neglected in central London, was selected for the purpose, and its vividly dramatic music, no less than the capable rendering throughout, held the attention of the audience. The choralists covered themselves with honour by the care and intelligence with which they executed their share of the work. The balance of tone was unaltered even at the most delicate points. The soloists were Madame Clara Samuell, Mr. Iver McKay, and Mr. Bantock Pierpoint, the latter singing with genuine power. Mr. Cecil J. Sharp, the zealous conductor, is entitled to congratulations on the happy result of his labours.

Professor Bridge directed the Christmas performance of "The Messiah," given by the Rochester, Strood, and Chatham Choral Society, on the 16th ult., and was afterwards presented by the citizens with an address, expressing their admiration at the high position attained by Dr. Bridge in his profession and their congratulations on his appointment as Conductor of the Royal Choral Society. The address is signed by the Mayor and Dean of Rochester. It is illuminated in colours on white vellum, at the foot of which are two water-colour sketches of Rochester Bridge and Westminster Bridge, intended as a play on the Professor's name. The frame is carved in solid oak, having on it shields bearing the arms of Rochester Cathedral, Westminster Abbey, Manchester Cathedral, the University of Oxford, the Gresham Society, the Royal College of Music, and the Royal Choral Society.

The so-called "grand" evening Concert given by Mr. Delafosse at St. James's Hall, on the evening of the 10th ult., consisted entirely of compositions by the French composer, M. Gabriel Fauré, who, like his compatriot, M. Saint-Saëns, evinces German tendencies. The principal feature of the programme was the Pianoforte Quartet in G (No. 2), in which the composer appeared, and was assisted by Messrs. Johannes Wolff, Hobday, and Ludwig. That charming vocalist, Miss Landi, gave supreme satisfaction in various songs, and Mr. Delafosse was highly commendable in several minor pianoforte pieces; but it must be confessed that the effect of an entire programme by a composer possessed of great talent, but not of genius, was rather monotonous, though the performances were entirely praiseworthy.

Miss Fanny Woolf's Violin Recital at Steinway Hall, on the 10th ult., claims notice both for its unconventional character and the ability exhibited by the young executant in both ancient and modern compositions. Among the latter was Godard's Second Concerto (Op. 131), which derived the utmost advantage from Miss Woolf's brilliant and unerring execution, together with fulness of tone. A high degree of excellence was also attained in the performance of Bach's Prelude and Fugue in G minor. Miss Woolf's powers were further satisfactorily tested in Spohr's Duet for two violins in D minor, with Mr. Johannes Wolff as her associate. Mr. Charles Copland and Miss Frances Holliday gave some vocal pieces, and Mr. F. A. Sewell was the accompanist.

Mr. W. A. Gardner gave his sixth annual Concert, at Stanley Hall, Highgate, on the 10th ult., when a special feature was the performance of Schumann's Pianoforte Concerto in A minor. Miss Jessie Reeve played the solo part with remarkable brilliancy, and showed much appreciation of the romantic spirit of the work. The Brookfield Orchestral Society efficiently played the accompaniments and the Choral Society sang a part-song and chorus under the able direction of Mr. Gardner. A juvenile violinist, Miss Dorothy Clarkson, proved (equally with Miss Reeve) the capability of Mr. Gardner's teaching by the performance of Corelli's Sonata in A. Miss Florence Armriding and Mr. Maurice Aubrey were the vocalists, Miss Amy Mukle gave some excellent violoncello solos, and Mr. Charles Fry recited.

The Amphion Glee Men—consisting of Messrs. Charles Ray, Sidney Marion, R. E. Strickland, and Frederick Habbijam—did good service, both with part-music and solos, on the 7th ult., at a Concert at the Cripplegate Institute, in aid of the Cripplegate Without Boys' School Country Camp Fund. In an arrangement of "Robin Adair" and in other pieces their voices blended admirably, equality of balance being accompanied by a corresponding regard for light and shade that betokened frequent and assiduous rehearsal. Cooke's well-known duet "Love and war" was capitally sung by Messrs. Marion and Habbijam. Madame Belle Cole, Miss Lily Pearce, Mr. Mandeno Jackson, and Mr. Dettmar Dressel (violinist) also successfully contributed to the programme.

Several young vocalists were heard at Madame Sophie Löwe's Concert, which took place on the 2nd ult., at St. James's Hall. The most promising was Mr. Alison Philips, who has an excellent baritone voice and evinced artistic perception. The Concert-giver took no part in the programme. It included numerous songs and Brahms's "Liebeslieder" (Op. 52), the last-named being sung by Miss Estella Linden, Miss Louise Watson, Mr. Robert Hensler, and Mr. Alison Philips, with Miss Nancy Linden and Mr. Henry Bird at the pianoforte. The most successful vocalists were Miss Florence Shee and Miss Louise Dale, the voice and style of the latter recalling the charm of the singing of Miss Liza Lehmann.

Miss Elizabeth Torrens-Johnson, with the assistance of Mr. Richard Gompertz and Miss Fillunger, submitted an interesting programme at the Queen's (Small) Hall, on the 10th ult. At the outset she won favourable recognition by playing with accuracy and spirit the pianoforte part of Brahms's Duo-Sonata in D minor (Op. 108), having, of course, one of the most artistic of companions in Mr. Gompertz. Subsequently Miss Torrens-Johnson interpreted Beethoven's Sonata in E flat (Op. 27, No. 1) and Schumann's "Papillons" with a success that a little more warmth of expression would have made complete. By her finished rendering of songs by Schubert and Schumann, Miss Fillunger agreeably relieved the instrumental pieces.

At Marylebone Parish Church performances of "The Last Judgment" have been given by the choir. On the 2nd ult. the choruses were rendered with considerable precision—notably, "Destroyed is Babylon" and the concluding number. A deep impression upon the congregation was made by the tenor solos, and by the beautiful duet "In this dread hour." Between the two parts of the oratorio Canon Barker delivered a short address, in the course of which he said that in music people found a language for the emotions which could be expressed in no other way. Music was a divine thing. If churches cultivated musical expression, spiritual worship, adoration, and emotion would be increased and deepened.

Miss Margaret Gyde gave her second annual Concert, on the 7th ult., at the Kensington Town Hall. The first part of the programme was executed by pupils of the Kensington Music Academy and calls for no criticism, but in the second part Miss Gyde played successfully Beethoven's Sonata in C sharp minor (Op. 27, No. 2) and took part with Messrs. Aurel and Mirko Belinski in Mendelssohn's Trio in D minor for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello. A feature of the evening was the rendering, by Mr. Arthur Fayne and Miss Amy Halliday, of a scene from Molière's "La malade imaginaire," which proved Mr. Fayne to possess a perfect Parisian accent and great dramatic ability; Miss Halliday was also excellent.

Mr. Newman is a man of enterprise and resource. Apparently having firmly established in public favour his Saturday evening Promenade Concerts, he now announces a short series of orchestral performances on Saturday afternoons, to commence on the 30th inst., and to be called the Queen's Hall Symphony Concerts. Mr. Henry J. Wood and his hundred instrumentalists will be entrusted with the carrying out of the programmes, the first of which will be devoted chiefly to works by Schubert. If supply creates a demand, Mr. Newman will assuredly make orchestral music popular, and that will be a good deed to have accomplished.

Though opposed in principle to the exhibition of precocious musical children in public, it is only fair to say that Miss Maud MacCarthy, who gave a Violin Recital at the Queen's (Small) Hall, on Tuesday afternoon, the 15th ult., showed no signs of nervousness or immaturity. Alike in Beethoven's "Kreutzer" Sonata, which she played with Miss Fanny Davies at the pianoforte, Wieniawski's "Airs Russes," and pieces by Nardini and Professor Stanford, this little Irish girl seemed to be quite easy and confident, and in due course she should take a high position as an artist. Miss Louise Phillips contributed with much acceptance an interesting selection of high-class songs.

The last of Mr. Sarasate's Concerts for the winter season took place at St. James's Hall, on Monday afternoon, November 30. Only formal mention of the programme is required, for musicians do not need to be informed how the Spanish violinist would play Bach's Sonata in E (No. 3) and Saint-Saëns's Sonata (Op. 102), both for pianoforte and violin, in which Mr. Sarasate was associated with Dr. Otto Neitzel. The gifted fiddler's solos were his own "Zigeunerweisen" and a Bolero, but of course he was asked for more. The next series of Concerts will be given in the summer of the present year.

Messrs. Louis Wolff and Co., of the International Galleries, Tottenham Court Road, have just published an exquisitely beautiful photogravure of a painting by the eminent Italian artist, N. Attanasio, representing Mozart as a boy playing before the Court at Versailles. The scene and portraits (Mozart excepted) are entirely the artist's own composition. The admirable way in which the faces are modelled and the embroideries on the ladies' dresses are brought out by the art of the reproducer, and the generally soft and delicate tone of the picture is worthy of the highest praise.

Miss Anna Lang and Madame Vitelleschi gave a Recital of old and modern Italian music at the Queen's (Small) Hall, on the afternoon of the 4th ult. The programme commenced with one of Corelli's string trios, and other antique pieces by Salvator Rosa, Jomelli, and Locatelli followed. Coming to later times, we had examples by Mercadante, Paganini, Sgambati, Martucci, and Enrico Bossi. The Concert-givers, who are respectively an able violinist and a competent pianist, were assisted by Miss Atkinson, Mr. Paul Ludwig, Mr. Edwin Wolseley, and Madame Clara Samuell.

The post of organist at Gloucester Cathedral, which, through ill-health, Mr. C. Lee Williams has unfortunately been obliged to resign, has been given to Mr. A. Herbert Brewer, a native of Gloucester and formerly a choirboy in the Cathedral. Mr. Brewer studied the organ under Dr. C. Harford Lloyd, and as assistant-organist has often proved his fitness for the duties which will now devolve upon him. Mr. Lee Williams has received a most kind and sympathetic letter from the Dean and Chapter, expressing their high appreciation of his services.

Rossini's original manuscript of "Guillaume Tell" was sold on November 25, at the Hôtel Drouet auction-rooms, in Paris, for £168 on a reserve price of £20. The score, consisting of four volumes, was given by Rossini to his publisher, M. Troupenas, and went to the latter's heirs. At the same sale a portrait of Rossini by Ary Scheffer, the great painter, and Renan's father-in-law, went for the nominal sum of £40, the purchaser having agreed with the heirs of M. Troupenas to present it to the Conservatoire.

At the Abney Literary Society, Stoke Newington, on the 14th ult., a Concert-Lecture was given under the direction of Mr. Leonard C. F. Robson. The Lecture included a brief account of the history of opera to the seventeenth century, leading up to the works of Henry Purcell, and the musical illustrations consisted of that composer's "Dido and Æneas," which was sung by Mrs. Herbert Green, Misses Minnie Cowley, Kate Waites, and Nellie Hepburn; Messrs. J. Sinclair, Hepburn, and Frederick Hosking.

The Streatham Choral Society gave an excellent performance of Sullivan's "Golden Legend" at the Streatham Town Hall, on the 21st ult., preceded by Stanford's fine choral ballad "Phaudrig Crohoore" (the first performance of this work in London). The principals were Madame Blanche Powell, Miss Helen Saunders, Messrs. H. Lewis Thomas, Douglas Powell, and A. J. Gritton. Mr. Stewart Macpherson conducted and Mr. Harold E. Macpherson presided at the organ.

The Clarence Orchestral Society gave its first Concert of the season on the 17th ult., at the Athenæum, Camden Road. The programme included Beethoven's C minor Pianoforte Concerto, the solo part of which was played by Dr. J. M. Ennis. Mr. Lennox Clayton conducted throughout, and vocal pieces were contributed by Miss Lilian Turnbull and Mr. Montague Borwell, the accompaniments to which were played by Miss McKenzie.

At Wandsworth Presbyterian Church a Recital of sacred music was given by the Wimbledon Male-Voice Choir, on November 30. Mr. Henry W. Weston played Mendelssohn's Overture in C, Handel's Organ Concerto in D, and Bach's Fugue in G minor, and also directed the choir in several choruses, motets, &c. Master Herbert Harden sang two solos, and Mr. W. C. Carter (organist of the church) acted as accompanist.

Spohr's "Last Judgment" was sung on the 11th ult., at St. James's, Paddington, by the choir of the church, combined with that of Holy Trinity, Marylebone, numbering together about eighty voices. The solos were sung by Miss Serpell, Miss Barratt, Mr. Gilbert Denis, and Mr. Frederick Winter, the performance being under the direction of Mr. Henry J. B. Dart, who presided at the organ.

On the 8th ult., at Brondesbury Baptist Chapel, a Concert in aid of the Organ Completion Fund was given, when Gaul's "Holy City" and Mendelssohn's "Hear my Prayer" were sung by a choir of fifty voices. The solos were taken by Misses Flack, Edwards, Johnson, Blunden, Price, and Messrs. A. Blair and James Brand. Mr. John Spink, the organist of the church, conducted.

On November 26 the Bermondsey Settlement Choral and Orchestral Union gave a "Jubilee" performance of Mendelssohn's "Elijah," in the Bermondsey Town Hall, the principal parts being taken by Madame Kate Cove, Madame Emily Himing, Mr. Edward Branscombe, and Mr. Dan Price. The band and chorus, numbering about 200, conducted by Mr. John E. Borland, were highly efficient.

On the 14th ult. "The Messiah" was sung by the choir of Holy Trinity Church, Paddington, strengthened by eighty selected voices. The soloists were Master Stanley Marchant, Master William McLean, Mr. Harry Stubbs, and Mr. George Stubbs. Mr. Walter Morrow played the trumpet obbligato, Mr. H. W. Richards was the organist, and Mr. Edwin Barnes conducted.

The first Concert this season of the Clapham Choral Society was given at St. Anne's Hall, High Street, Clapham, on the 14th ult. The principal artists were Miss Lilian Coomber and Mr. Walter Mackway (vocalists), Mr. Percy H. Miles (violinist), and Miss Edith Pratt (pianist). The programme included Brahms's "Song of Destiny" and a new part-song, "Songs of our Land," by Alicia Needham.

Madame Fiammetta Waldahoff, who has recently been appointed a teacher of the mandoline at the Guildhall School of Music, gave the last of her Recitals in the practice-room of the Institution during November, and displayed remarkable capabilities as an exponent of this instrument, which she plays with admirable expression and technique.

Every fortnight a Concert is given at the South-West London Polytechnic Institute, illustrating the work of a great composer, under the direction of Mr. John W. Ivimey, head of the music section. On the 13th ult. the evening was devoted to Haydn, and the programme included the Symphony in D, the Trio (No. 1) in G, and the Quartet (Op. 76).

On the 19th ult., in the hall of the Goldsmiths' Institute, New Cross, "The Messiah" was given under favourable auspices. The choruses in the main were well rendered. The solo vocalists were Madame Medora Henson, Madame Annie Buckland, Mr. Charles Ellison, and Mr. Dan Price. Mr. C. J. Smith was the organist, and Dr. Frost ably conducted.

The Dedication Festival at Christ Church, West Green, Tottenham, was celebrated on the 13th ult., when the music included Smart's Te Deum and Evening Service in F, Ouseley's "It came even to pass," and the "Hallelujah" chorus from "The Messiah." Mr. A. M. Flack presided at the organ.

At the special Advent Services at St. Mark's, Kennington, on the 2nd, 9th, and 16th ult., Spohr's "Last Judgment" was sung with full orchestral accompaniment. Mr. Hamilton Robinson presided at the organ, and Mr. Warren Tear, the organist and choirmaster, conducted.

Schumann's Advent Hymn was sung after the Evening Service, on the 13th ult., at the Church of St. Mary, Brookfield. Mr. H. Try played the accompaniment on the organ, and the performance was conducted by Dr. J. M. Ennis.

Mr. H. W. Weston has given a series of four Organ Recitals on Saturday afternoons, November 28 and the 5th, 12th, and 19th ult., at Holy Trinity Church, Wandsworth. The programmes were well selected and very interesting.

Mr. A. Williams, who has for the past four years been bandmaster of the Royal Marine Artillery at Eastney, has been appointed bandmaster of the Grenadier Guards, in succession to Lieutenant Dan Godfrey.

At a meeting held in Bournemouth early last month, under the presidency of the Mayor, it was resolved that another Musical Festival should be held, probably in May next.

The next Chester Triennial Festival will take place on July 21, 22, and 23 next. It has been decided to include special musical features to commemorate the sixtieth year of Her Majesty's reign.

We understand that Mr. Daniel Mayer will to-day become the sole proprietor of Messrs. Erard's business in England. He will introduce some new and very artistic models early in the year.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Agram.—A new opera, "Armida," by the Czech composer Ivan Zajc, was produced on November 21, at the Landes Theatre, and on account of its melodious score was received with much favour. The subject is a Venetian love story and has nothing in common with that of Gluck's opera.

Aix-la-Chapelle.—The second Municipal Subscription Concert of the season was devoted to an excellent performance of Liszt's oratorio "Christus," under the direction of Herr Schwickerath, and with Frau Walter-Choinanus and Professor Messchaërt amongst the soloists. The performance, which was the first here, had attracted a number of musicians from the Rhenish districts, as well as from Belgium and Holland.——The Musical Festival of the Lower Rhine is to be held here in Whitsuntide, with Dr. Hans Richter as principal conductor.

Antwerp.—An opera, "Mazeppa," by the Vicomtesse de Grandval, was brought out on November 27, at the Royal Theatre, and very favourably received, the music being somewhat old-fashioned, but pleasing and cleverly instrumented.

Barcelona.—An Orchestral Society has been formed here for concert performances, under the direction of the Belgian violinist, M. Crickboom.——Representations of opera have been resumed at the Liceo, where "Falstaff," "Mefistofele," "Samson et Dalila," "Tannhäuser," and "Lohengrin" will be amongst the works in the répertoire.——Señor Ruperto Chapi, the popular Castilian composer, has just completed a new operetta, "La Virgen de Piedra," which will shortly be brought out here.

Bayreuth.—A project is gaining favour here for the erection of a monument to Richard Wagner in the shape of a circular temple, with an imposing cupola supported by a number of columns, to be inaugurated on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Festspiele, in 1901.

Berlin.—The performance at the Royal Opera of the entire "Ring des Nibelungen," in accordance, as near as might be, with Bayreuth traditions, and with many of the artists recently engaged there, which concluded on the 13th ult., must be described as a distinct and even a brilliant success. Madame Sucher was the Sieglinde, Madame Gulbranson (of Christiania), the Brünnhilde; Herr Grüning, the Siegfried; and Herr Vogl, the Munich veteran, the Loge; while Herren Perron, Schelper, and Lieban were admirable representatives respectively of Wotan, Alberich, and Mime. The Emperor, at whose instance the performance had been specially organised, was present on all four evenings, and at the conclusion bestowed a decoration on Herr Weingartner, who throughout conducted the work with consummate skill. The series was to be repeated three times, owing to the great demand for tickets.—— Berlioz's opera "Benvenuto Cellini" was produced, for the first time in Berlin, on November 21, and, assisted by an altogether excellent performance, under Herr Weingartner's direction, was greatly appreciated by a numerous audience.——An opera, "Elsi," by Herr Arnold Mendelssohn, a nephew of the celebrated composer, has been accepted for performance at the Royal Opera.——The Philharmonic Concert of November 30, under Herr Nikisch's direction, included the first performance of Herr Richard Strauss's symphonic poem "Thus spake Zarathustra," regarding which rumour had been busy in various ways for some months past. The new work of the gifted young Munich conductor purports to be a paraphrase of some portions of Friedrich Nietzsche's book bearing the above title, and represents the most advanced phase of the composer's development. Though difficult to grasp at a first hearing, it produced a powerful impression upon a highly critical audience, and is summed up by Herr Lessmann, in the Allgemeine Musik Zeitung, in these words: "I look upon this work as representing a mark-stone in the domain of absolute instrumental music, conspicuous beyond every other similar production of our time; whether for good or evil, the future alone can show." The work was also produced last month at Cologne and Frankfort, under the composer's direction.

Brussels.—Massenet's early opera, "Don César de Bazan," was produced for the first time at the Théâtre de la Monnaie, on November 21, but failed to attract much attention on account chiefly of its considerably faded score.——On the 2nd ult. M. Saint-Saëns's "Phryné," first performed at the Paris Opéra Comique in 1893, was brought out, but, notwithstanding the composer's great popularity here, it was likewise somewhat coldly received.——A new Society for the performance of chamber music, with M. A. Dubois as leading violinist, has been founded here and gave its first Concert, devoted to modern composers, on the 3rd ult.——M. Ysaye's excellent Orchestral Concerts entered upon their second season, on November 29, with a programme including Beethoven's "Eroica" and the performance by M. Raoul Pugno of Grieg's Pianoforte Concerto, which created immense enthusiasm.——At the Conservatoire M. Gevaërt, the director, has been preparing, for the last two months, Bach's "St. Matthew" Passion, two performances of which are shortly to be given. The work has not been performed in Brussels before.——A grand national Musical Festival is to be held here, probably in May next, when, amongst other works, Peter Benoit's cantata "Rubens" is to obtain a hearing.——Herr Richard Strauss was the conductor, by invitation, of the Concert Populaire, on the 6th ult., which was devoted almost entirely to his compositions, including the symphonic poem "Tod und Verklärung" and the "Eulenspiegel" escapades, as well as songs, admirably interpreted by Mdlle. Ternina. The reception accorded to the Munich conductor and his works was an enthusiastic one.

Budapest.—A two-act opera, entitled "Carén," by the young Hungarian composer, Carl Czobor, was brought out at the National Opera, on November 28, and received with high favour, the composer being recalled many times.

Cairo.—The operatic season commenced here on November 21, amongst the works to be produced being "Tannhäuser," Gluck's "Orpheus," Reyer's "Sigurd," and several operas by Saint-Saëns and Massenet.

Carlsruhe.—Under its German title of "Der Fluthgeist," a three-act opera, "Le Drac," by MM. Paul and Lucien Hillemacher, was performed for the first time on any stage on November 16, at the Hof-Theater, a number of French musicians and critics being present. Herr Mottl, who had prepared the interesting work with much care, conducted, and his talented wife sustained the principal female part in an altogether highly successful performance. The brothers Hillemacher furnish an almost unique instance of two composers collaborating in the score not only of this but of many other important works, including the opera "Saint Mégrin," successfully brought out at Brussels in 1886; a comic opera, "Une Aventure d'Arlequin," also produced at Brussels two years later, several orchestral pieces, and even a number of songs, in which one brother suggests an idea which the other elaborates. The composers are natives of Paris, and have each been awarded the Prix de Rome at the Conservatoire.——On the 6th ult. a very fine performance of "Tristan und Isolde," which had not been heard here for some years, was given, with Fräulein Meilhac and Herr Gerhäuser in the titular parts.

Cassel.—The 200th performance (since 1814) of "Don Giovanni" was recorded at the Hof-Theater last month, and the 100th of Weber's "Oberon."

Cettigne.—Prince Mirka, the younger son of the reigning Prince of Montenegro, has written an opera, entitled "The Empress of the Balkans," which is shortly to be produced at the newly-built Opera House here.

Christiania.—The twenty-fifth anniversary of the Musical Society founded by Grieg in this capital was celebrated last month by three grand concert performances, conducted respectively by Grieg, Svendsen, and Selmer. Edvard Grieg, who has been ailing somewhat lately, is just now in Vienna, where he was to conduct a Concert of his own compositions on the 19th ult.

Cologne.—A new opera, "Wulfrin," by Herr Reinhold Hermann, was brought out at the Stadt-Theater on November 28, and received with some favour. In it the composer aims at a sort of compromise between grand opera and modern music-drama with unquestioned ability, though, as might be expected, not altogether satisfactory results.

Copenhagen.—Johann Svendsen, the eminent Norwegian composer, who conducted the first Symphony Concert of the Royal Orchestra this season, was the recipient of a series of ovations on the occasion, the programme including his Symphony in D and others of his compositions. At the Opera Wagner's "Die Meistersinger" is about to be produced for the first time here.

Frankfort-on-Main.—Professor Julius Stockhausen, we are glad to learn, has entirely recovered from the effects of his recent operation for cataract, and has resumed the personal superintendence of his celebrated vocal academy here.

Heidelberg.—Dr. Th. Wolfrum, the musical director of the University, has been appointed to a professorship in the philosophical faculty for musical history and theory.

Helsingfors.—There was recently produced here, and enthusiastically received, the first Finnish opera, entitled "Tornissa oliga Impi"—i.e., "The maiden of the Tower"—the work of a talented young native composer, Jean Libelius.

Leipzig.—At a recent Concert of the Liszt-Verein a new symphonic poem entitled "Rosmersholm," founded on Ibsen's play, attracted considerable attention amongst musicians present on account of its inventive power and characteristic instrumentation. The composer is a young man of seventeen, Gustav Brecher by name, a pupil of Herr Schlemüller, the well-known composer and author, and he has been much encouraged in his studies by Herr Richard Strauss and Professor Krause. There can be no doubt that the work in question is one of high promise.——A new four-act opera, "Kukuska," met with a most favourable reception on its first performance, at the Stadt-Theater, on November 27. The composer, Herr Franz Lehar, is a resident of Trieste, and the present is his first operatic venture.——Herr Robert Papperitz, a highly esteemed professor at the Conservatorium and organist of the Nicolai Kirche, celebrated his seventieth birthday on the 4th ult., amidst tokens of esteem from far and near.——A string quartet from the pen of Madame Teresa Carreño, the well-known pianist, has just been published by E. W. Fritsch here.

Longjumeau.—The erection of monuments upon however slight a pretext is undoubtedly one of the fads of the age. There is, however, a certain fitness in the proposal to dedicate a statue here to Adolphe Adam, for which purpose a committee has lately been formed. The obscure little town, in which the once popular composer resided for some years, suddenly leaped into European notoriety when the famous "Postillon de Longjumeau" began to crack his whip on the lyrical stage some forty years ago, and the fact merited a record of their gratitude on the part of its citizens.

Lucca.—A committee has been formed here for the twofold purpose of erecting a monument to Boccherini, the distinguished composer of chamber music, and to Alfredo Catalani, the recently deceased musician, both natives of this town.

Mayence.—A new one-act opera by Herr Reinhold Becker, entitled "Ratbold," was brought out at the Stadt-Theater recently, and very well received, several numbers, including a grand quintet with chorus, being redemanded. The instrumentation is throughout picturesque, while the composer has also made effective use of a Scottish melody which forms a leading feature in the score.

Milan.—The season at La Scala was announced to commence on the 26th ult., with Wagner's "Götterdämmerung," the first performance of the work in Milan. It is to be followed by Giordano's "Andrea Chenier" and a revival of Rossini's "William Tell."——M. Saint-Saëns's opera "Phryné" was produced at the Teatro Lirico recently with much success, Mdlle. Sybil Sanderson singing the titular part.

Moscow.—The Concerts of the Philharmonic Society will be conducted during the present month by Herren H. Zumpe, of Munich, and J. L. Nicodé, of Dresden. At the Concert of the Society on November 21 Herr Willy Burmester was the violinist, and met with a most flattering reception.

Naples.—Madame Adina Idone will be the leading prima donna of the present season of opera at the San Carlo Theatre, which was to commence on the 26th ult., with Franchetti's "Christoforo Colombo."

Nuremberg.—A two-act comic opera, "Eppelein von Gailingen," founded upon a popular mediæval legend, and set to music by Herr Eduard Ringler, director of the chorus here, was brought out with great success last month at the Stadt-Theater.

Prague.—Negotiations are in progress with a view to an extensive tour in the United States of the entire personnel of the National Czech Opera, for the purpose of introducing Smetana's operatic masterpiece "The Bartered Bride" to Transatlantic audiences.——Alexander Neumann's amusing new operetta, "Der Pumpmajor," is drawing full houses at the German Theatre here.

Rome.—Performances at the Argentina Theatre were to be resumed on the 26th ult., with Franchetti's "Asrael," to be followed by Giordano's "Andrea Chenier," brought out with such signal success last season at Milan, and later on by the long-expected first production here of "Götterdämmerung."

St. Petersburg.—The following works by Russian composers will be included in the répertoire of the Imperial Opera this season—viz., "Eugène Onégin," by Tschaïkowsky; "Prince Igor," by Borodin; "Russalka," by Dargomyszki; "Rogneda," by Serow; "Oresteia," by Tanejeff; and Rubinstein's "The Demon." At the Imperial Conservatoire French and Italian opera is now being given, amongst leading artists being Mesdames Sigrid Arnoldson and Marcella Sembrich, MM. Vidal, Tamagno, and De Lucia——Professor Erdmannsdörfer, the newly appointed Munich Capellmeister, is directing the Philharmonic Concerts here, as in several previous seasons.——The projected performance here of Kienzl's successful opera, "Der Evangelimann," has been prohibited by the authorities, on "religious grounds."

Turin.—Two new operatic works are to be brought out at the Royal Theatre during the coming Carnival—viz., one entitled "Giuliana," by Signor Buzzi Peccia; and another, as yet unnamed, by the Maëstro Albertini.

Verviers.—A Mass for three voices, with organ accompaniment, is shortly to be performed here, the composer of which is Alphonse Nelis, aged eleven, an inmate of an Institute for Blind Children. He is of middle-class parentage and almost blind from birth. He composed his Mass sitting at the pianoforte and dictating to his brother.——A Popular Concert Society has just been founded here for the performance of high-class music, under the direction of a very able artist, M. Louis Kefer.

Vienna.—André Messager's opera "Le Chevalier d'Harmenthal," in a German version by Dr. Kalbeck, was brought out at the Imperial Opera on November 27. Herr Jahn conducted, and the principal parts were sung by Frau Forster, Herren Van Dyck, Ritter, and Hesch. The work had been lavishly mounted, and this, together with a very good performance, secured for it a certain amount of success, but it is not likely to remain in the répertoire very long.——The late Anton Bruckner has bequeathed his autograph scores to the Imperial Library. They include his eight symphonies and three movements of a ninth, a string quartet, the Mass in D minor, the 150th Psalm, a male chorus, "Helgoland," and the Te Deum. The stupendous Mass in D minor will be performed for the first time by the Philharmonic Society, under Dr. Richter, at its Concert of the 17th inst. Under the auspices of the "Leo Society," a committee has been formed for the purpose of erecting a monument to Bruckner in this capital; a similar memorial being planned at the Abbey Church of St. Florian, in Upper Austria, where he was laid at rest.——Frau Amalie Materna, the great interpreter of Wagnerian parts, has just retired from the personnel of the Imperial Opera, and, in acknowledgment of her distinguished services, has been granted a full pension by the authorities, although the time prescribed for that purpose had not nearly expired. ——Amongst the manuscripts of the late Franz von Suppé have been found some thirty unpublished songs, as well as the nearly completed score of a mass, the latter coming as a surprise to his still numerous admirers. These compositions will shortly be published.——The Leo Society gave a first performance here, on the 18th ult., of Liszt's oratorio "Christus." Frau Cosima Wagner had been invited by the president to be present on the occasion, but was detained in Italy.——Herr Jahn is about to retire from his conductorship at the Imperial Opera and his place, it is stated, will most likely be taken by Dr. Muck, of the Berlin Opera, who is an Austrian by birth.

Weimar.—The first performance of Herr Hugo Wolff's opera "Der Corregidor" was announced to take place at the Court Theatre last month. Amongst novelties to be brought out during the present season may be instanced Goldmark's "The Cricket on the Hearth" and Kienzl's "Der Evangelimann." M. Saint-Saëns's "Samson et Dalila" and Ritter's comic opera "Der faule Hans" are likewise to be produced.——Dr. Ludwig Wüllner, son of the well-known director of the Cologne Conservatorium, who has already achieved some reputation as an actor, essayed the part of Lohengrin here recently, but, though greatly admired histrionically, his voice was not considered equal to so trying a part.

Zurich.—A highly successful first performance took place here, on November 13, of a new opera, "Maruzza," by the Sicilian composer P. Floridia, who is also the author of the libretto. The work, which was produced in a German version by Ludwig Hartmann, though of the "Cavalleria Rusticana" type, has some distinctive merits, especially as regards the music, and is likely to make its way to other opera houses.

OBITUARY.

With Richard Pohl, whose death is announced, on the 17th ult., at Baden-Baden, one of the earliest, most consistent, and most formidable champions of Wagner has passed away. His numerous writings in book form or otherwise on the subject were erudite and instructive, and all the more effective because he was invariably courteous to his adversaries, and, though an enthusiast, he was no fanatic. He also did much by his pen for the appreciation in Germany of the works of Berlioz and Liszt. He was born at Leipzig in 1826 and studied at the Göttingen University and the Polytechnic School in Carlsruhe with the intention of becoming an engineer. Mixed up in some degree, like Wagner, in the revolutionary movement of 1848, his chances of state employment were rendered very remote, and, his musical talent having been early cultivated, he eventually found his true vocation in devoting himself to the art. He was at one time editor of the Neue Zeitschrift für Musik and contributed largely to other German musical periodicals. He also published several orchestral and choral compositions. Since 1864 Pohl has resided at Baden-Baden, where, on September 12 last, he celebrated, apparently in excellent health, his seventieth birthday, gratified by numerous tokens of esteem, including those from quarters antagonistic to the art principles he represented.

The death occurred, on November 13, at Madrid, of Antonio Peña y Goni, composer and musical author, the friend of Gounod and Wagner, and one of the most distinguished musical critics of Spain. He was born at San Sebastian in 1846, and being left an orphan at an early age was educated by Manterola, the friend of Don Carlos. For more than thirty years, until his death, he was the musical critic of the Madrid Imparcial, and it was largely owing to his writings that the public of his country were kept informed of the important musical development during that period, and that an interest was aroused more particularly in the Wagnerian movement, which is still a growing one in the Peninsula. He was the author of a History of Opera in Spain and the composer of a number of pianoforte pieces, of a mass, and of the Basque National Hymn, "Viva Hernani," first sung by the tenor, Tamberlik, at the Royal Theatre, Madrid, in December, 1875. His death, in his prime, has caused a painful sensation in the capital, and his funeral was the occasion of an imposing manifestation of popular sympathy.

Eugène Henry Frène, a composer and pianist of some distinction, died in Paris, on the 7th ult., at the early age of thirty-six. He was a native of Strasburg, studied at the Conservatoire, and at the age of eighteen attracted the attention of musicians by an operetta, "Quand on aime," successfully produced in Paris, and also in Strasburg. He was the conductor, at one time, of the Alsatian Choral Society in Paris, and afterwards of the theatre at Ostend, and was one of the founders of the Paris Société d'Art.

The death is announced, on November 30, at New York, of William Steinway, head of the pianoforte manufacturing firm of Steinway and Sons. He was born at Seesen, near Brunswick, in 1836, where his father, Henry Engelhard Steinweg (the original family name) was a successful pianoforte manufacturer. He early displayed considerable musical talent, and at fourteen was an accomplished pianist, while at the same time serving an apprenticeship under his father. In 1853 his father and his brothers, Charles and Henry, founded the house of Steinway and Sons in New York. The business prospered, and William was entrusted, in due course, with the mercantile and financial affairs of the firm. The factory was largely increased from time to time, and in 1872 the firm completed its twenty-five thousandth pianoforte. They now employ over eighteen hundred hands. Mr. Steinway, who took an active interest in public affairs in the States, and proved himself on more than one occasion a public benefactor, was greatly esteemed in America and in this country, where he was almost as well known.

We record with regret the death, on the 13th ult., in London, of William Dorrell, for upwards of forty-five years a professor of the pianoforte at the Royal Academy of Music. He was born on September 5, 1810, and became a student at the Royal Academy in 1825, when that Institution was in the third year of its existence, he being a pupil of Cipriani Potter, Dr. Crotch, and Haydn. Here he formed a close friendship with Sterndale Bennett (who entered the Institution two years later) which lasted through life. In 1844, Mr. Dorrell continued his studies in Paris under Kalkbrenner and Stephen Heller, and in the following year was appointed to the professorship at the Academy which he held for so many years, and where for a long period he was a member of the committee of management. He was one of the founders of the first Bach Society, and one of the oldest members of the Royal Society of Musicians and the Philharmonic Society, both of which latter institutions, as well as the Royal Academy of Music, will benefit materially under his will. The funeral, which took place at Highgate Cemetery, was attended by numerous friends and brother professors, including representatives of the three institutions referred to.

John Samuel Bowley, an Associate of the Royal Academy of Music, and one of the oldest students of that Institution, died on the 6th ult., at his residence in Battersea, in his eighty-second year. He entered the Academy as far back as January, 1830, during the principalship of Dr. Crotch, and remained a pupil until 1836, since which time, for nearly sixty years, he has been a much esteemed professor of his art.

J. van Santen Kolff, a musical author and critic well known on the Continent, died on November 29, at Berlin, where he had resided for some years past. He was a contributor to a number of musical journals, including the Leipzig Musikalisches Wochenblatt, the Weekblad voor Musik, of Amsterdam, and the Bayreuther Blätter. An ardent student and admirer of Wagner and Berlioz, he contributed some valuable papers to the short-lived Revue Wagnérienne, of M. Dujardin, and some interesting essays from his pen, especially on "Lohengrin," were published in the Bayreuther Taschenbuch, and on the "Faust" music of Wagner and Berlioz in the Guide Musical, of Brussels. Van Santen Kolff was a native of Rotterdam, where he was born in 1848.

Frans Bouman, organist and composer of much promise, died at Hertogenbosch, in Holland, on the 10th ult., aged thirty. He belonged to a family of musicians, and studied under his father and at the Academy of Utrecht. In 1887 he was appointed organist at St. Katharine's Church and conductor of the Choral Society in Hertogenbosch. Among his compositions are an Overture, produced at the Arnhem Musical Festival some years since, and also last year by the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra; a choral work with orchestra, entitled "Hoffnung," frequently performed in Holland, and an opera, "Boete," all of which display considerable talent.

Dionys Pruckner, the eminent Stuttgart pianist and teacher, died at Heidelberg, on the 1st ult., from the effects of an operation, in his sixty-third year. He was a pupil of Liszt at Weimar, and in concert tours throughout Europe established a great reputation as an interpreter of both the classical and modern repertory of his instrument. In 1859 he was appointed to the senior professorship at the Stuttgart Conservatorium, in which position he remained until his death, wielding a most beneficial influence upon the musical life of that capital.

Buenos Ayres papers announce the death there of Bianca Blume, the once celebrated prima donna, who, a German by birth, was the first to interpret Wagnerian heroines in Italian theatres, notably at the Teatro Communal of Bologna, and La Scala, of Milan, where she created an immense enthusiasm. But her star did not continue very long in the ascendant, and some years since the really excellent artist, in greatly reduced circumstances, went to Buenos Ayres, where she devoted herself to teaching. She died in poverty, and almost unknown, in an hospital of that town.

We have also to record the following deaths:—

On November 16, at Flensburg, A. Heinebuch, conductor, organist of the Marienkirche, aged fifty-three.

On November 15, at Columbus (Ohio), Hermann Eckhard, orchestral conductor, formerly of the Dresden Opera, composer of church music for orchestra, aged seventy-three.

On November 18, at Schwerin, August Studemund, pianist and composer.

On November 20, at Leavenworth (U.S.), Franz Simon, composer and teacher, aged seventy.

On November 24, at Renaix, Abel Regibo, director of the Ecole de Musique, organist, aged sixty-one.

Recently, at New York, Nicolas Barilli, operatic singer, half-brother of Madame Adelina Patti, aged seventy.

On November 27, at Lisbon, João Lazaro Azinhaes, oboe soloist of the San Carlos Theatre.

On November 27, at Weimar, August Machts, violinist of the Court orchestra, aged eighty.

On November 28, at Christiania, John G. Conradi, Norwegian composer, aged sixty-six.

On November 29, at Paris, Louis Nicholas Battaille, composer of songs and also of a number of revues, aged fifty-six.

On November 30, at Vienna, Heinrich Ritter von Seyfried, musical critic, aged seventy-seven.

On the 1st ult., at St. Peter's Grove, Hammersmith, Gustave Buels, for many years connected with the Kensington School of Music, South Kensington.

On the 2nd ult., at Milan, Giuseppe Menozzi, composer for the pianoforte, professor at the Collegio Reale.

On the 9th ult., at London, W. B. Healey, the well-known concert agent, formerly trombone player in the orchestra of Her Majesty's Theatre.

On the 10th ult., at Paris, M. Trotebas, pianist.

Mr. Frank Swinford.—We are glad to say that the announcement we made of the death of a gentleman of this name in our last issue does not refer to the well-known baritone vocalist, who is happily alive and well.

At the terminal examinations held at the Royal College of Music the Council Exhibitions were awarded as follows: Hilda Foster (singing), £7 10s.; Edward Mason (violoncello), £7 10s.; Marjorie Richardson (pianoforte), £7 10s.; Louisa C. Gibson (singing), £7 10s.; Katherine Kips (singing), £10; and Louisa C. Jones (violin), £15. A competition also took place for the Erard Exhibitions for pianoforte and harp, the gift of Daniel Mayer, Esq., and resulted as follows: Pianoforte, Alfred R. Cripps; harp, Edwardine Wilson.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE NEGLECT OF HENRY LAWES.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

Sir,—In a time of revivals, when there is so much desire to know better and honour more our old English masters of music and poetry; when one or two of Shakespeare's plays have been produced nearly as originally acted, so that we might see his characters almost in their habits and surroundings as they lived when first given to the world; when Marlowe and the older dramatists are now and again reverently brought upon the stage; when the excellent Purcell Society exists and flourishes, why is Henry Lawes still neglected and left a precious "alms for oblivion"?

> Harry, whose tuneful and well-measured song
> First taught our English music how to span > Words with just note and accent, says Milton, in his well-known sonnet, "To Mr. Lawes on his Airs," and again:—

> To after-age thou shalt be writ the man
> That with smooth air could'st humour best our tongue.

Shall then this "after-age" be quite indifferent? Milton, we may be sure, was no mean judge of music. Born into a musical household, he was himself, according to Aubrey, an accomplished organist. In his scheme of education he gave music a high place, and when he came home from Italy he brought with him two chests of rare new music, by Marenzio and other masters. Besides, no one but a musician could have written his wonderful Ode, "At a solemn music." Milton's testimony, therefore, is weighty.

Lawes, who was a Gentleman of the Chapel Royal and one of His Majesty's private musicians, preceded Purcell, who was only a child when Lawes died in 1662. Beside many other compositions, including an anthem for the Coronation of Charles II., Lawes wrote music to songs by Milton, Carew, Herrick, Walter, and Cartwright. His skill was celebrated by Herrick. His music was in great general favour, and there can be no question of its historical value. But I need not labour this point. The "Encyclopædia Britannica," in its last edition, says of Lawes: "His careful attention to the words of the poet, the manner in which his music seems to grow from the words, the perfect coincidence of the musical with the metrical accent, all put Lawes' songs on a level with those of Schumann and Liszt or any modern composer." In despite of this fine criticism, how generally unknown his music remains!

Two hundred and sixty-two years have passed since Milton's "Comus," the most perfect masque in the language, was produced on Michaelmas Day at Ludlow Castle, under the management of Lawes, who asked Milton to write the imperishable verse and himself wrote "with just note and accent" the music to the songs, and no doubt arranged the complicated and graceful scenery. In the scene where Comus, with his wand, changes the "wild wood" to a "stately palace," there was, we are told, "soft music"—this would doubtless be also by Lawes, and as the five songs of the masque are in the British Museum, this may by good chance be there as well.

Now, I beg to suggest, through The Musical Times, to the Royal College of Music or the Purcell Society, or both, that they should do honour to Henry Lawes and themselves by reproducing, as an historical study, on Michaelmas Day, 1897, if not earlier, the "Masque of Comus," and permit us to hear again this early music and to judge of it in its original setting.

The whole thing would be most interesting. The old masques were elaborately put upon the stage, so that the marvellous scenery, in which the modern theatre revels, would here be strictly in place. We should see the "drear wood" with "bushy dell" and "bosky bourn," its "shady brows" "nodding horror"; the "sable cloud" with her "silver lining"; then Comus with his riotous enchanted crew amid "all manner of deliciousness"; and, as Finale, the transformation scene of the ancient town and castle of Ludlow.

The declamation of Milton's stately and melodious verse should be as delightful to us as to our ancestors. The poetry of Comus is not only perfect, but full of variety, and rises now and then to heights of eloquence, as where the elder Brother apostrophises the power of Purity :—

If this fail
The pillared firmament is rottenness
And earth's base built on stubble.

Consequently there is great scope, if not for acting, for that dramatic recitation which is an art in itself.

The antiquarian interest would be great of seeing accurately performed one of those masques which entertained our forefathers so much, even at the time when the theatre was in its fullest, freshest glory; but this is not the main object. We all love to believe in a great—perhaps a near—future for English music; but in Music, as in Letters and all Art, the Future grows out of the Past, and an English School, if it is to be really English, must know and cherish its early masters.

That is why we should do this honour to Lawes.

I am, &c.,

Great Tew, Oxon. W. T. MALLESON.

BACH'S ORGAN FUGUE IN E MINOR.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—Mr. F. G. Edwards, in his article on "Bach's Music in England," in the November MUSICAL TIMES, makes frequent reference to "the little E minor" Fugue. Can you kindly inform me if this is the one in the "Eight Short Preludes and Fugues"?—Yours faithfully, EDNA.

[No. It is the Prelude and Fugue in E minor in Book II. of the Bridge and Higgs edition; or in Vol. III. (last Fugue) of Peters' edition.—ED., M.T.]

BACH'S MUSIC IN ENGLAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—It is interesting to learn from Sir John Stainer's autobiographical note that we owe the expression marks in the chorales of the "St. Matthew" Passion to a suggestion of Hogarth and the sanction of Sir Sterndale Bennett.

The late Sir Joseph Barnby (to whom, as Mr. Edwards rightly says, choral singing in England owes so much) was adversely criticised on many occasions for turning the chorales into sentimental hymn-tunes.

But those who, like the present writer (a contemporary of "young" Docker at St. Andrew's, Wells Street, and one of the boys specially trained by Sir Joseph to sustain the soprano ripieno in the opening chorus "Come, ye daughters"), remembering not only the rehearsals, but the performances, can testify to their wonderful impressiveness when rendered with all the variety that light and shade can give.

By the way, Mr. Edwards errs in placing Madame Sainton-Dolby among the solo vocalists at the performance in Exeter Hall on April 6, 1870. It is true that she was announced, but Mdlle. Drasdil really sang, and her name appears in the book of words. Sir George Macfarren's instructive notes, subsequently issued with the octavo edition of the score, appeared as a preface to the book of words.

I might add, in conclusion, that Bach's music in this country owes much to the late Sir Joseph Barnby. He not only revived the "St. Matthew" Passion and found for it its true home—within a sacred building—when he conducted it at Westminster Abbey, but he initiated and directed for many years the Lenten Services at St. Anne's, Soho, where the "St. John" Passion was so impressively given.

Yours faithfully,

HENRY KNIGHT.

Umfreville Road, Harringay, N.,
December 2, 1896.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* Notices of Concerts, of which programmes must invariably be sent, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted.

Our correspondents will oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music is always kept in stock, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

ABERGAVENNY.—Haydn's "Creation" was sung in a meritorious manner in the Town Hall, on the 7th ult., by the Choral Society, under the conductorship of Mr. W. R. Carr. The soloists were Miss Summers, Mr. C. Morgan, and Mr. D. Harrison. Mr. Arthur Angle was the principal violin, and Mr. F. Bumford gave assistance at the pianoforte.

BEDFORD.—An excellent performance of Sullivan's popular cantata "The Golden Legend" was given on the 9th ult., by the Musical Society, under the able direction of Mr. P. H. Diemer. The solos were effectively sung by Miss C. Gray, Miss K. Allen, Mr. J. Leyland, Mr. W. H. Brereton, and Mr. A. Beagley; and the choir did full justice to the choral numbers, the "Evening Hymn" having to be repeated.

BLACKBURN.—The St. Cecilia and Vocal Union gave an impressive performance of Handel's "Judas Maccabæus" on the 9th ult., in the Exchange Hall, under the experienced conductorship of Mr. J. H. Rooks. The principal vocalists were Miss Emily Davies, Miss Hannah Jones, Mr. Dudley Buck, and Mr. Witham Thornton, who received able assistance in minor solo parts from Miss C. Schutt and Miss G. Walsh. The orchestra consisted of about fifty instrumentalists, and Costa's additional accompaniments were used.

BRADFIELD COLLEGE, BERKS.—A meritorious performance of Professor Stanford's "Revenge" was given, on the 19th ult., under the conductorship of Mr. Abdy Williams.

BRIDGWATER.—The Amateur Choral Society began its eighth season on the 3rd ult., with a miscellaneous programme, which included Mendelssohn's "Hebrides" Overture and the music from "Loreley," Brahms's "Song of Destiny," Schubert's "Chorus of Shepherds," Leslie's "Lullaby of Life," Beethoven's Violin Concerto (the soloist in which was Mr. T. Carrington), and several songs, the last-named being effectively sung by Miss Marjorie Eaton, who was the principal soprano vocalist. The music was excellently rendered, and testified to the ability of the new conductor, Mr. Herbert Parsons, both as director of choral and orchestral works.

BRIERLEY HILL.—The Choral Society gave an excellent performance of "Elijah," on the 7th ult., in the Town Hall. The principals were Miss B. Gough, Miss N. Pritchard, Mrs. W. Molineaux, and Mr. W. Evans, who were admirably supported by Miss L. Yeomans, Miss A. Spence, Mr. C. Barrett, Mr. C. Pountney, and Mr. W. Pountney. Mr. J. S. Lewis presided at the organ, and Mr. J. Lewis conducted.

BRIGHTON.—The recently-formed Choral and Orchestral Society at Preston gave its first Concert, on the 8th ult., at the Royal Pavilion. Barnby's "Rebekah" was performed, with Miss M. Bond, Mr. W. C. James, and Mr. Merei as soloists, and the rendering testified to Mr. H. Botting's skill as a conductor and the promising abilities of his forces, which comprise a complete orchestra, with Mr. J. L. Meunich as first violin.——The series of choral performances by the Sacred Harmonic Society, in celebration of the fiftieth year of its existence, may be said to have culminated on the 12th ult., when an impressive rendering was given of "Elijah," at the Dome. The principal soloists were Miss A. Holman, Miss E. Hands, Mr. B. Newth, and Mr. Bantock Pierpoint, able assistance being given in the concerted numbers by Mrs. W. J. Mobsby. Miss B. Day, Mr. T. H. Mappett, and Mr. W. Barnard. Mr. W. A. Baker led an efficient orchestra, and Mr. P. Starnes presided at the organ. Mr. Robert Taylor conducted. This gentleman, who, for more than twenty-five years, has directed the above Society, has recently received a handsome testimonial in recognition of his valuable and honorary services.——A meritorious performance of Mr. F. Corder's cantata for ladies' voices, entitled "Margaret," was given, on the 18th ult., in the Athenæum Hall, by the students of the Brighton School of Music, under the direction of Mr. R. Taylor. The solos contributed by several pupils in the second half of the programme testified to good training.

Burton-on-Trent. — The Musical Society gave its opening Concert for the season on the 2nd ult., in the Town Hall. The programme was of a miscellaneous character, and consisted of Handel's "Ode to St. Cecilia's Day," Gounod's setting of the 137th Psalm, a chorus by Schumann ("The Gipsy Life"), Beethoven's Eighth Symphony, and Grieg's "Peer Gynt" Suite. The principal vocalists were Miss Ada Loaring and Mr. Kemp, who gave artistic renderings of the solos in the "Ode." Mr. Fred. Ward was principal of an exceptionally good orchestra, and Mr. W. Stewart Dove presided at the organ. Dr. Plant conducted.

Bushey (Herts).—A successful Concert took place on November 27 at the Herkomer Theatre. The pianist, Miss Ethel Bonavia, gave a varied and interesting programme, and was ably assisted by Miss Conrad, the possessor of a powerful contralto voice of sympathetic quality, and by Mr. Rupert Bococoski, a young violinist of the greatest promise.

Chichester.—A fine performance of Handel's "Israel in Egypt" was given by the Musical Society, on the 7th ult., under Dr. Read. The tone and attack of the choir were admirable.

Chigwell.—Farmer's "Christ and His Soldiers" was very effectively given in the Parish Church, on the afternoon of Advent Sunday, by a choir of seventy voices, under the direction of Mr. Henry Riding.——A selection of Christmas Carols, including some new settings, was sung in the Grammar School Chapel on the last Sunday of the term. Mr. H. Riding accompanied.

Cleckheaton.—Mr. F. H. Cowen's cantata "The Sleeping Beauty" was admirably rendered, on the 9th ult., by the Philharmonic Society, in the Town Hall. The solo vocalists were Miss H. Jackson, Miss E. Thornton, Mr. H. Piercy, and Mr. W. H. Dawson.

Cobham.—The Orchestral Society gave its first Concert on the 9th ult., in the Village Hall, before a large and fashionable audience. The orchestra consisted of thirty performers and played an Overture by Gurlitt, Minuet and Gavotte (Handel), and other pieces, and accompanied Miss S. Lushington in Beethoven's Romance in F for solo violin. Miss Edith Leslie sang Meyerbeer's "Nobil Signor" and other songs, and Mrs. Cushing, Mr. Maitland, and Dr. and Mrs. Hudson also assisted. The conductor was Mr. W. Tavenor, who, with Miss Lushington, has formed and trained this village orchestra, which is to become a permanent institution.

Dover.—A most successful Jubilee performance of Mendelssohn's "Elijah" was given, on the 2nd ult., by the Dover Choral Union, under the conductorship of Mr. H. J. Taylor. The soloists were Miss Emily Davies, Miss Hannah Jones, Mr. Dudley Buck, and Mr. William Llewelyn. The performance was excellent throughout, the expressive and vigorous singing of the chorus being a marked feature.

Eastbourne.—A meritorious performance of "The Messiah" was given on the 3rd ult., at the Town Hall, by the Musical Society, under the able direction of Dr. W. H. Sangster, to whose enterprise the recent resuscitation of the Society is due. The soloists were Miss L. Burns, Miss K. Allen, Mr. C. Hunnybun, and Mr. S. Kelly.

Gloucester.—The president of the Choral Society, Mr. Joseph Bennett, gave an interesting Lecture-Recital on the "Life and Works of Schubert," on the 9th ult., in the Guildhall. Mr. Bennett spoke with the utmost sympathy of the "wonderful boy" who was born in 1797, and of the musical legacy he had bequeathed us. A number of his greatest songs were sung by Madame Medora Henson and Mr. Ben Davies, and several of the smaller pianoforte pieces were played by Mr. Waddington Cooke.

Handsworth.—On the 6th ult. the choir of St. James's Church sang as the anthem Hugh Blair's Advent cantata, "Blessed are they who watch," the solos in which were admirably rendered by Miss Aimée Watheu. The organist and choirmaster of the church, Mr. Richard Richards, played the accompaniments.

Hemel Hempstead.—A successful performance of the first part of "The Messiah," and selections from the second and third parts, was given on the 16th ult., in the Town Hall, by the Musical Society, under the conductorship of Mr. J. T. Bavin. The choir of sixty voices sang the choruses very creditably. Miss Phipps, Miss Bessie Grant, Mr. Henry Slaughter, and Mr. Montague Borwell proved themselves efficient soloists, and Mrs. W. C. Evetts and Miss Lilian Jones accompanied respectively on the harmonium and pianoforte.

Herne Hill.—Mr. F. W. Holloway's annual Concert took place on the 3rd ult. The Concert-giver played Beethoven's "Moonlight" Sonata, and other works by Chopin, Mendelssohn, &c., with artistic perception and executive dexterity. Three pieces from his own pen were also warmly received. Schumann's Sonata for pianoforte and violin was rendered by Mr. Holloway and Miss A. M. Holloway, and the vocalists were Miss Isobel Constantine, Mr. J. H. Williams, and Mr. G. H. Davis.

Hollinwood.—At St. Margaret's Parish Church, on the 6th ult., selections were sung by the choir from Handel's oratorio "The Messiah." The soloists were Miss May Allen, Mr. Harry Chadderton, and Master Willie Ashworth. Mr. John E. Campbell, the organist and choirmaster of the church, was at the organ.

Leek.—Mendelssohn's "Walpurgis Night," Grieg's first "Peer Gynt" suite, the Prelude to the third act of "Lohengrin," and De Bériot's Seventh Violin Concerto formed the programme of the eighty-fifth Concert given by the Musical Society, under the conductorship of Mr. James Gwynne, on the 4th ult., in the Town Hall. The solo vocalists were Miss A. Gwydyr, Mr. G. K. Dixon, and Mr. John Ridding. Miss Mabel Smith was the soloist in the Concerto, and Mr. J. Nichols was the principal of an efficient orchestra. The performance, on the whole, attained a high standard of excellence.

Loughton.—The Choral Society gave its first performance of the season, in the Public Hall, on the 14th ult. The programme consisted of a selection from Handel's "Acis and Galatea" and Mendelssohn's "Athalie," the readers in the latter work being Mr. H. W. Elphinstone and Miss Sheila Pither. The choruses were effectively rendered, and the orchestra specially distinguished itself in the accompaniments to the solos. Mr. Henry Riding conducted.

Margate.—An excellent performance of "Elijah" was given on the 10th ult., by the Choral Society, under the direction of Mr. T. Russe. The principal solos were effectively sung by Miss J. Scott, Miss J. Rankin, Mr. Kearton, and Mr. J. Sandbrook, who received admirable assistance from Miss M. Dredge, Miss Malden, Mr. C. Poole, and Mr. P. Webster. Dr. E. J. Bellerby and Mrs. H. Lewis rendered valuable service at the organ and pianoforte.

Melksham.—The choir of the Parish Church gave three successful renderings of Blair's Advent cantata "Blessed are they who watch," on the Wednesday evenings in Advent, under the direction of Mr. C. H. Ogle. The treble solos were sung by one of the choristers.

Middlesbrough.—The Musical Union gave an impressive interpretation of "Elijah," on the 16th ult., in the Town Hall, under the conductorship of Mr. Kilburn. The principal vocalists were Miss Maggie Davies, Miss Hannah

Jones, Mr. Edward Branscombe, and Mr. Santley, assistance being given in the minor solo parts by the Misses Barnby, Ballan, E. Calvert, Jensen, and Blakey, and Messrs. W. Shaw, H. Wright, J. H. Taylor, and J. Nutton. The choir, now over 200 in number, was admirably balanced and sang with precision and dramatic intelligence. Mr. J. H. Beers was the principal of an excellent orchestra.

MODBURY.—Mr. Frank Pemberton's Concert Party gave, on the 4th ult., an interesting programme selected from the Rev. Baring-Gould's "Traditional Songs of the West," in the Assembly Rooms. The artists were Miss Evelyn Lara, Miss Emlyn Jones, Mr. G. H. Crampton, Mr. F. Pemberton, and Mr. E. Trowbridge, all of whom acquitted themselves admirably of their respective tasks.

NEWPORT, SALOP.—The Choral Society's performance of Smart's "Bride of Dunkerron" took place on the 10th ult., in the Town Hall, in the presence of a crowded audience. Miss Fannie Sellers, Mr. Kemp, and Mr. D. Harrison were the principal vocalists, and Mr. Hood was first violin of a small but compact band. A special feature was the engagement of Mr. Percy Miles (Macfarren scholar of the Royal Academy of Music), whose brilliant violin playing was greatly appreciated. Mr. Smart conducted.

READING.—The Orpheus Society's Orchestral Concert, on the 2nd ult., under Dr. Read's direction, was very successful. Beethoven's First Symphony, the Overtures to "Titus" and "Ali Baba," Entr'actes from "Rosamunde" and "Philémon," &c., and some part-songs by the members were all well rendered and highly appreciated by a large audience.

RICHMOND, SURREY.—An admirable programme was presented by the Philharmonic Society, under the conductorship of Mr. James Brown, on November 25, at the "Star and Garter." The principal works were Spohr's "God, Thou art great," Professor's Stanford's choral ballad "The Battle of the Baltic," and Beethoven's Eighth Symphony. The vocal solos were entrusted to Miss Saidee E. Kaiser, Miss Cope, Mr. H. Haysman, and Mr. F. Figg.

ST. ALBAN'S.—Gounod's "Redemption" received a very effective interpretation on the 10th ult., at the County Club Hall, from the Oratorio Society, under the conductorship of Mr. W. H. Speer. The soloists were Madame Isabel George, Miss Beatrice Wilson, Mr. Dyved Lewys, and Mr. Harold Charles, the two first-named vocalists being assisted in the trios "How shall we?" and "The Lord is risen again" by Miss Maud Powell, a member of the choir.

ST. GEORGE'S, SHROPSHIRE.—On the 17th ult. the Choral Union gave a very fair rendering of the "Hymn of Praise" and a selection from "The Messiah" in the large Workmen's Dining Hall of the Lilleshall Company's Works. Miss Mabel Cross and Mr. Anstice Eyre were the soloists. Mr. Frederick Ward was solo violinist, and gave an effective rendering of the Andante and Molto vivace from Mendelssohn's Concerto. Mr. Smart conducted.

TORONTO.—A Jubilee performance of Mendelssohn's "Elijah" was given in Massey Hall, on November 28, when Mr. F. H. Torrington, who has been incorrectly represented as having retired, again resumed the bâton and was welcomed with enthusiasm. A very fine performance was given, the chorus of 250 voices deserving special praise for its singing in "Thanks be to God" and the "Baal" choruses, while the band, composed of the Buffalo Symphony Orchestra, was also excellent throughout. The soloists were Madame Emma Juch, Madame Van der Veer Green, Mr. Williams, and Mr. Beresford; but the latter was, owing to a severe cold, unable to sing the whole part, which was most admirably concluded by Mr. Fred. Warrington, whose rendering of "It is enough" was one of the greatest successes of the evening.

UTTOXETER, STAFFORDSHIRE.—On the 4th ult. the Uttoxeter and Tutbury Choral Unions gave their first Concert of the season in the Town Hall. Rossini's "Stabat Mater" was performed, with a miscellaneous second part. Miss Ethel Winn, Miss Bessie Elliot, Mr. Iver McKay, and Mr. Walter Dodds were the principal soloists, and an excellent band had for its principal Mr. F. Ward. Mr. Herbert Drury, as usual, conducted.

WESTBOURNE.—The recently established Philharmonic Society is to be congratulated on the success of its first Concert, which took place on the 8th ult., in the Shaftesbury Hall. A choir and orchestra of about eighty performers gave an excellent rendering of Van Bree's cantata "St. Cecilia's Day," the soprano solos in which were effectively rendered by Miss M. Eaton. The lady also sang with notable success in a miscellaneous second part, which included some brilliant violin playing by Mr. R. A. Bauer, A. H. Jackson's setting for chorus and orchestra of "Lord Ullin's Daughter," and Pinsuti's part-song "Moonlight and Music." Mr. William Lee proved himself an able conductor.

WINDSOR.—The Windsor and Eton Choral Society gave, on the 7th ult., a fine performance of Mendelssohn's "Elijah," in the Albert Institute. The soloists were Miss Agnes Nicholls, who sang remarkably well throughout; Miss May Hayden, Mr. Harry Stubbs, and the Rev. L. d'Arcy Hildy, who, at short notice, most kindly undertook the part of the Prophet in place of Mr. Robert Grice. The chorus had been carefully trained and sang excellently. The orchestral accompaniments were well rendered by the Orchestral Society, supplemented by brass and wood-wind from London. Sir Walter Parratt conducted.

WORCESTER.—The Musical Society, under the experienced direction of Mr. W. M. Dyson, gave a meritorious performance of Spohr's "Last Judgment," on the 8th ult., in the Public Hall. The solos were rendered by Mrs. G. Eaton, Miss S. Walker, Mr. J. A. Smith, and Mr. F. J. Domney. The second part of the programme consisted of an interesting selection from the works of Sir H. R. Bishop, and included the quintet "Blow, gentle gales," which was sung by Mrs. G. Eaton, Miss S. Walker, Messrs. Smith, Large, and Watkins. Mr. W. C. Bose rendered valuable assistance at the pianoforte and organ.

ORGAN APPOINTMENTS.—Francis G. Sanders, Organist and Choirmaster to All Saints', Ennismore Gardens.—Mr. D. A. Fox, Organist and Choirmaster to All Saints' (English) Church, San Remo, Italy.—Mr. John J. Simpson, to All Saints' Church, Nuneaton.—Mr. Charles H. Dean, to St. Matthew's, Marylebone.—Mr. Arthur Mangelsdorff, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, Weedon.—Mr. Norman Appleton, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Luke's, Woodside, Surrey.—Mr. Fred. Whiteley, Organist and Choirmaster to Bo'ness Parish Church, N.B.—Mr. Clement M. Spurling, Organist and Choirmaster to Oundle Parish Church.—Mr. J. Williams Burt, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, Potterne, Devizes.—Mr. Sims Albert Ryder, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Saviour's Episcopal Church, Glasgow.

CHOIR APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. W. H. Cradock (Bass), to Manchester Cathedral.—Mr. Thomas Curry, Choirmaster to St. Matthew's, Marylebone.—Mr. Charles B. Mabon, Choirmaster to the Garnethill Synagogue, Glasgow.

MADAME THRUM (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, 74, Cobourg Road, Old Kent Road, S.E.

MISS MARIE BISHOP (Contralto)
Of Sir Charles Hallé's, St. James's Hall, Manchester, Scotch and Welsh Concerts.
"An excellent, sympathetic, powerful, rich, and flexible contralto voice of extensive range."—Vide Press.
Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 31, Great Western Street, Alexandra Park, Manchester.

MADAME HADINGHAM (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c. New address—
13, Spurstowe Road, Hackney; and Waterloo Road, Wolverhampton.

MISS CLARA HARDING, A.R.C.M. (Contralto)
Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes.
Devizes Rd., Salisbury; and 23, Oppidan's Rd., Primrose Hill, N.W.

MR. J. G. BLANCHARD
(Principal Tenor, Italian Church, Hatton Garden).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 41, Savernake Road, N.W.

MR. W. T. PENDLEBURY (Baritone)
Oratorios, Cantatas, Concerts, &c.
Address, 92, Embden Street, Hulme, Manchester.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

MOLIQUE, BERNHARD—March from the Oratorio "Abraham." Arranged for Military Band by GEORGE MILLER. 7s. 6d.

SPOHR, L.—Selection from the Oratorio "Calvary." Arranged for Military Band by GEORGE MILLER. 7s. 6d.

BERGER, FRANCESCO—Album of Five Pianoforte Pieces. 3s. 6d. For contents, see advertisement, page 63.

ELGAR, EDWARD—Scenes from the Saga of King Olaf. 1st Violin, 5s.; 2nd Violin, 5s.; Viola, 5s.; Violoncello and Bass, 8s.

—— "The Light of Life" ("Lux Christi"). 1st Violin, 3s.; 2nd Violin, 3s.; Viola, 3s; Violoncello and Bass, 4s. 6d.

HANNAM, W. S.—Three Pieces. For Violin and Pianoforte. 3s. For contents, see advertisement, page 63.

BRADFORD, JACOB—"The Song of Jubilee." A Thanksgiving Cantata. For Solo Voices, Chorus, Orchestra, and Organ. New Edition. 1s. 6d.

GOUNOD, CHARLES—Communion Service. Troisième Messe Solennelle (De Pâques). Arranged from the Full Score by BERTHOLD TOURS. The English adaptation by F. A. W. DOCKER. 2s. 6d.

THE ORGANIST AND CHOIRMASTER'S DIARY for 1897. Compiled by RALPH HINDLE BAKER. Cloth, 2s. 6d.

MUNDELLA, EMMA—The Day School Hymn-Book. New and enlarged edition. Words only. Linen cover, 6d.; cloth, 1s.

METCALFE, R. D., AND KENNEDY, ARNOLD—"Prince Ferdinand." An Operetta. For Schools and Classes. In Four Scenes. The libretto written by H. J. ASHCROFT. Words only, 12s. 6d. per 100.

CLEGG, DAVID—Litany Tune. Suitable to Litany of the Church. 1d.

MONK, EDWIN GEORGE—(in G). The Apostles' Creed. (No. 321. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 2d.

TURLE, JAMES—(in D). Benedictus. (No. 322. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 2d.

BARNBY, JOSEPH—Original Tunes to Popular Hymns. For use in Church. No. 29* (In remembrance of past worshippers). 2d.

BLAXLAND, BENHAM—Two Hymn Tunes. "There is a blessed home" and "God from on high hath heard." 1½d.

CRAMENT, J. MAUDE—"Praise the Lord, ye servants." Thanksgiving Anthem. (No. 561. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 4d.

WETTON, H. DAVAN—"Sing, O heavens." Anthem. For any Festival occasion. (No. 562. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 4d.

CHIGNELL, PHILIP—"O Western Wind." Part-Song. For S.A.T.B. The words written by GEORGE WELLS. 3d.

BRADFORD, JACOB—The National Anthem, "God save our gracious Queen." Specially arranged for Thanksgiving and other occasions, from "The Song of Jubilee." 6d.

FOSTER, MYLES B.—"One Queen, one Fleet, one Flag." A federal greeting. Four-part Song. For S.A.T.B., with Pianoforte Accompaniment. The words written by S. L. E. 1½d.

ANTHEMAU NOVELLO.

		O. N. Hen Nodiant.	Tonic Sol-fa.
3.	O cyfod, llewyrcha (Arise, shine) Syr G. J. ELVEY	2c.	1c.
4.	Awn yn mlaen yn awr hyd Bethlehem (Let us now go) .. .. .. E. J. HOPKINS	3c.	1c.
13.	O Dduw, o'th dosturiaethol ras (Lord, for Thy tender) .. .. R. FARRANT	2c.	1c.
15.	Iesu, planna, fy myfyrdod (Jesu, Word of God) CH. GOUNOD	2c.	1c.
17.	Felly carodd Duw y byd (God so loved the world) .. .. .. Syr J. STAINER	2c.	1c.
21.	O Brynwr mawr y byd (O Saviour of the world) .. .. Syr J. GOSS	2c.	1c.
28.	Tyr'd, Ysbryd Glân (Come, Holy Ghost) T. ATTWOOD	2c.	1c.
29.	O Ysbryd Glân, i'n meddwl ni (O Holy Ghost) .. .. Syr G. A. MACFARREN	2c.	1c.
34.	Chwi gewch drigo yn y tir (Ye shall dwell in the land) .. .. .. Syr J. STAINER	3c.	1½c.
36.	Mawr yw yr Arglwydd (Great is the Lord) B. STEANE	3c.	1½c.
39.	Cerwch yr Arglwydd (O love the Lord) Syr A. S. SULLIVAN	2c.	1c.
49.	Y boreu claer aeth heibio'n llwyr (The radiant morn) .. Parch. H. H. WOODWARD	3c.	1c.
52.	Teilwng yw yr Oen, ac Amen (Worthy is the Lamb) ("Messiah") .. .. HANDEL	3c.	1½c.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW. No. 55. Contains the following Music in both Notations:—"Sleigh Song.' Easy Two-part Song. For Soprano and Contralto. By GUSTAV ERNEST. Easy Studies in Time and Tune. 1½d.

NOVELLO'S SCHOOL SONGS.—Edited by W. G. MCNAUGHT. Published in two forms. A. Voice Parts, in Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, 8vo size; B. Voice Parts only in Tonic Sol-fa Notation.

		A.	B.
No. 270.	When the Christmas bells are ringing. Trio. For S.S.A. .. .. FRANZ ABT	1d.	—
„ 271.	Old Father Christmas. Two-part Song. For Soprano and Alto F. H. COWEN	2d.	—
„ 369.	Spanish Song. With Two-part Chorus THOMAS FACER	1½d.	—
„ 427.	The Song of the Gale. Two-part Song MYLES B. FOSTER	2d.	—
„ 445.	Sewing and Knitting. Two-part Action Song. For Girls .. F. A. CHALLINOR	1d.	—

—— Book 82. Interval Exercises. For Singing Classes. To which are added a few Two-part Time Exercises .. .. 6d. —

NOVELLO'S CHRISTMAS CAROLS.

No. 267.	What sudden blaze of song	CUTHBERT HARRIS	1d.
„ 268.	What sudden blaze of song ..	J. F. BRIDGE	1d.

ALCOCK, GILBERT A.—Two Christmas Carols. "Hark! the heavenly host rejoices," and "When Christ was born in Bethlehem." 3d.

HEYS, J. B.—Three Christmas Carols. 1. "Come again, Christmas"; 2. "Household Flowers"; 3. "While shepherds watched their flocks." 3d.

POWELL, JAMES BADEN—"The Child is born in Bethlehem." 1d. Words only, 1s. 6d. per 100.

NOVELLO'S PUBLICATIONS in the TONIC SOL-FA NOTATION. Edited by W. G. MCNAUGHT.

No. 952. God, that madest earth and heaven C. L. NAYLOR 1½d.

MOFFAT, ALFRED—"A Christmas Dream." 4d.

MR. ALFRED PINNINGTON (Tenor)
(Principal Tenor, St. Margaret's, Westminster).
For Oratorios, Concerts, Dinners, &c.
50, Overstrand Mansions, Battersea Park, S.W.

MR. C. R. TOMLINSON (Baritone)
For Concerts, Oratorios, and Opera Recitals.
Address, Lancaster.

MISS MARIAN JAY (Solo Violinist)
"The violinist, Miss Marian Jay, delighted the audience with her magnificent rendering of her solos. Her playing was characterised by perfect intonation, graceful bowing, facile execution, and artistic finish."—The Wyvern Leicester.
For Concerts, &c. 26, Wigmore Street, W.

MR. JOS. REED
(Principal Tenor, Trinity College).
For Oratorios and Concerts.
Terms, Garden Walk, Cambridge.

MISS ALICE MARY SMITH
(Mrs. Alfred Dymes)
Associate of the Royal College of Music
HARPIST
16, Lancaster Road, W.

SOPRANO, CONTRALTO, TENOR, and BASS REQUIRED, for mixed Choir at Church near City. Qualifications: good voice, proficiency in reading music, and acquaintance with Church of England service. Duties very light. Salary, £10 a year each. Choirmaster, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

ALTO WANTED, St. Andrew's, Stoke Newington. Salary, £20. For particulars of Services, &c., apply, by letter only, to Choirmaster, 16, Woodberry Down, N.

LINCOLN CATHEDRAL CHOIR.—BOYS WANTED. Competition, January 19, 1897. Apply, at once, to the Rev. The Precentor (H. R. Bramley), Lincoln.

UPPER HOLLOWAY BAPTIST CHAPEL.—ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED. Must be a member of a Free Christian Church. Applications, with copies of testimonials, and salary required, to be sent not later than Wednesday, Jan. 20, addressed, Organist, Fairbridge House, Upper Holloway Rd., N.

A VOLUNTARY ORGANIST REQUIRED, at a Wesleyan Church in the West of London. Apply, stating age, experience, and qualifications, B. T. Z., Novello & Co, 1, Berners St.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER (or as Assistant). Disengaged after March. Large and varied experience in Church work. Excellent testimonials. Country, within easy distance of London preferred. R. P. R., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

CONTENTS.

	Page
The Queen's Song	9
1897	9
Victorian Music	10
Franz Schubert	12
Occasional Notes	15
Facts, Rumours, and Remarks	17
Royal Choral Society	18
Queen's Hall Choral Society	18
Henschel Concerts	18
Crystal Palace Concerts	18
Promenade Concerts	19
Royal Artillery Band	19
Royal Engineers' Band	20
Monday and Saturday Popular Concerts	20
Pianoforte Recitals	20
Messrs. Walenn's Chamber Concerts	21
Musical Guild	21
Royal Academy of Music	21
Royal College of Music	22
The Guildhall School of Music	23
"The Messiah" in Westminster Abbey	23
Amateur Orchestral Societies	23
Sunday Concerts	23
Mr. Charles Fry's Recitals	24
Mr. Bantock's Concert	24
Mr. Gompertz's Concerts	24
"Elijah" at the People's Palace	24
The Highbury Philharmonic Society	24
Musical Association	24
Modern Greek Music	25
The Chamber Music of Purcell, Handel, and Bach	25
Manx National Music	26
Lincoln Musical Society	26
Mr. Edward German's Music to "As you like it"	26
The Loewe Centenary	26
Reviews	27
Music in Belfast	28
„ Birmingham	29
„ Bristol	29
„ Dublin	30
„ Dundee	30
„ East Anglia	30
„ Edinburgh	31
„ Exeter	31
„ Glasgow	32
„ Liverpool	32
„ Manchester	32
„ North Staffordshire	39
„ Northumberland and Durham	39
„ Nottingham	40
„ Oxford	40
„ Sheffield and District	40
„ Southern Counties	40
„ Yorkshire	41
„ Paris	42
„ America	42
Patriotic Part-Song—"The Queen—God bless her!" Arranged for Soprano Solo and Chorus.—Myles B. Foster	33
Anthem—"Lord of Life."—A. C. Mackenzie. An Illustration, "Schubert at Atzenbruck"; and two Schubert Fac-similes (Extra Supplements).
General News (London)	43
Foreign Notes	47
Obituary	49
Correspondence	50
Brief Summary of Country News	51
List of Music published during the last Month	52

THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines	0	3	0
Three Lines	0	3	4
For every additional Line	0	0	10
Half a Column	2	0	0
A Column	4	0	0
A Page	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.

A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To ensure insertion in proper position Advertisements should reach the Office

NOT LATER THAN THE TWENTIETH of each Month.

MR. HENRY SUNMAN

(BASS)

Licentiate of the Royal Academy of Music.

CONCERTS AT BLENHEIM PALACE.—"Our popular baritone, Mr. Sunman, sang several of his and our favourites with that intelligence and wealth of means which we have been taught to expect from him."—Oxford Chronicle, October 17, 1896.

"THE ROSE MAIDEN" (COWEN).—LEAMINGTON MUSICAL UNION.—"Mr. Sunman has a bass voice of very fine quality, which has often delighted Leamington audiences, and he was heard to conspicuous advantage on Tuesday. His singing of the solo 'Where gloomy pine trees rustle,' was especially noticeable for its dramatic treatment. Mr. Sunman again sang very finely in the charming solo 'But hast thou then forgotten?' and the duet, 'Soon as the mountain summits,' in which the soprano part was taken by Madame Scorey, merited the outburst of applause with which it was received."—Leamington Chronicle, October 31, 1896.

"CREATION."—CHELTENHAM MUSICAL FESTIVAL.—"Mr. Sunman achieved a gratifying measure of success by the way in which he discharged the portions of the work that fell to his share, although he was evidently suffering from a cold. He made a good deal of 'And God made the firmament,' and sang with tolerable freedom the great bass air 'Roaming in foaming billows.'"—Bristol Times, Nov. 6, 1896.

ST. AUSTELL PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.—"Mr. Henry Sunman, who possesses a grand resonant bass voice of good compass, gave a splendid rendering of Hungarian songs by Korbay, (a) 'Moliac's Field' and (b) 'Shepherd, see thy horse's foaming mane,' which were most enthusiastically encored, and he responded with 'Twankidillo,' an old English song. His recall after singing 'The Viking's Love Song' was even more determined, and he then gave Mattei's 'Oh, hear the wild winds blow.'"—Western Morning News, Dec. 5, 1896.

BACH'S "CHRISTMAS ORATORIO," OXFORD.—"Mr. Sunman was heard to great advantage in his various numbers."—Oxford Chronicle, Dec. 12, 1896.

"THE BIRTH OF CHRIST," ESSEX.—DEAL AND WALMER CHORAL SOCIETY.—"Mr. Sunman, of whom a Deal audience will never tire, gave considerable expression, as occasion required, to Gabriel's assurances and Herod's tyrannical threats. . . . Mr. Sunman's powerful rendering of 'Go and search diligently' was equally impressive."—Deal Mercury, Dec. 12, 1896.

"Another instance of an artist finding scope for his power was afforded by Mr. Henry Sunman, whose grand bass voice exhibited itself with effect in 'Hybrias the Cretan,' and captivated the audience. A touch of lightness was given to the Concert by his encore song 'The Jolly Blacksmith.'"—Deal Paper, Dec. 12, 1896.

"MESSIAH."—LEAMINGTON MUSICAL UNION.—"The artistic quality of Mr. Sunman's treatment of the bass solos deserves special praise."—Birmingham Daily Post, Dec. 15, 1896.

"MESSIAH."—LEAMINGTON MUSICAL UNION.—"One hardly need dwell, for Leamington readers, on Mr. Sunman's qualities as a vocalist. The oftener one hears him the more one is impressed by the fine quality of his voice, and the culture and refinement of his vocal method. Probably the superb air 'Why do the nations,' with its splendid dramatic declamation, has never been sung to more advantage from a Leamington Concert platform than it was by Mr. Sunman on Monday evening. If the rest had been but 'leather and prunello' one would have kept a place in one's memory for this special solo in the particular performance of 'The Messiah,' and the rest, as has been sufficiently indicated, far from being 'leather and prunello,' displayed musical 'worth' of a very high standard indeed."—Leamington Chronicle, Dec. 19, 1896.

Please address, Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER desires POST. 3½ years present post, and for 4 years Assistant at large Church. Ex. ref. Comm. Apply, C. M., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MUSIC GOVERNESS REQUIRED, for a Ladies' College in Calcutta. Piano, Class-Singing, and Theory. Salary, 230 rupees per month, with board and residence and a free passage. Applicants must have had experience, and must be between 25 and 35 years of age. Mr. T. Palmer, Mus.B., Oxon., 41, Berners Street, Ipswich.

VIOLIN PROFESSOR (Unmarried) WANTED, in the Country, in January. Salary, £200 a-year. Apply, Etal, care of C. Bechstein, Wigmore Street, W.

A.R.A.M. (Gold medal, Diplomas), to gain experience, will give SERVICES as SOLO PIANIST and ACCOMPANIST at Concerts, &c., for expenses. Would accompany professionals' private practice, vocal or instrumental. Excellent sight reader. Testimonials. A.R.A.M., Novello and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

MASTER, of great experience and tact, is open to an ENGAGEMENT as VISITING PROFESSOR. Organ, Piano, and Harmony. Thorough instruction. References, &c. Vivares Campbell, 22, Princes Street, Cavendish Square, W.

THE TRAINING OF TENORS. DAVIDSON PALMER'S METHOD. This method of Voice-Training, which has of late attracted much attention in the musical world, is of the utmost importance to Tenors.

MR. DAVIDSON PALMER, Mus. Bac., Oxon., gives Lessons at his residence, and at the West-End. For terms, &c., address, 2, Highwood Road, Upper Holloway, N.

VACANCIES for THREE RESIDENT PUPILS (either sex) in private Music School in Yorkshire. Training for any Exam. under a Mus. Doc. Unique advantages. Organ posts secured. Terms, 30 guineas per annum. Pascha, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PRIZES FOR FESTIVAL HYMN TUNES.

TWO PRIZES of TWO GUINEAS each, and TWO PRIZES of ONE GUINEA each. Leeds Wesleyan Sunday School Union.
Send stamp for conditions to Mr. J. W. Young, 80, Wade Lane, Leeds.

MUSICAL INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE,

LIMITED.
Founded 1878. Incorporated 1893.
Central Office: 113, Great Portland Street, W.
Principal: EDWIN M. LOTT, Mus. Doc.
Vice-Principal: JAMES H. LEWIS, Mus. Doc., D.C.L.
Next Local Theoretical Examination, May 25, 1897.
Practical Examinations throughout the kingdom.
W. A. PHILPOTT, Mus. Doc., Secretary.

A SPECIALTY for CONCERTS.—SOLOS on a PEAL of SILVER BELLS, with Pianoforte or Orchestral Accompaniment. Bell effects in works undertaken. R. B. Hopkins, Royal Campanologist, 17, Kellett Road, Brixton, S.W.

CONCERT ORGANISERS, CONDUCTORS of CHORAL SOCIETIES, &c., in the Provinces, should apply to the Albion Concert Bureau, 298, Regent Street, London, for particulars of Artists, who may be booked for neighbourhood or en route about the time of their fixture. Telegrams—"Intonate, London."

LADY, L.R.A.M., wishes to PURCHASE CONNECTION of Lady who is giving up Teaching. Piano, Harmony, and Counterpoint Singing. Many years' exp., and very successful in Exam. work. Churchwoman. Services given for small organ or harmonium. Olga, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER WANTED, who does his work thoroughly well and is a pushing man of business and of good character, for increasing business in Yorks district. State age, wages, particulars of experience, and last employment. Address, Place, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, an experienced PIANOFORTE TUNER, for Out-door Work. Send full particulars and photograph, to C. E. Godfrey and Co., Southampton.

WANTED, at once, Young Man as TUNER, who thoroughly understands Pianos, American Organs, and Harmoniums. Must be obliging. State age and salary. Must help in warehouse if required. Send photo; references indispensable. Commission on all sales. Thuell, Falmouth.

PIANOFORTE TUNER DISENGAGED. E. V. Bassett, care of Messrs. Aylward and Spinney, Canal, Salisbury.

FIRST-CLASS TUNER desires RE-ENGAGEMENT. Thorough knowledge of Organs and Harmoniums. A., 47, Beach Road, Sparkhill, Birmingham.

WANTED, SITUATION as SECOND TUNER. Country experience and well up in repairs of all kinds Moderate salary. B. S., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

TUNER.—IMPROVER seeks SITUATION, where he will gain experience. Excellent references. A. M., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

IMPROVER.—Young Man, fair Tuner and Salesman (abstainer), able to assist in repairs, desires SITUATION. Apply to A., The Lawns, Leighton Buzzard.

A YOUNG LADY seeks SITUATION in first-class Music Warehouse as ASSISTANT. Sen. Hon. Cer. Aged 18. A. M., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, RE-ENGAGEMENT in a good-class MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Well up in the Catalogues. Pushing saleswoman; excellent references. Apply, C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

FOR SALE.—ORCHESTRAL PARTS of "MESSIAH" and "CREATION"—16 String and complete Wind. Also, 30 octavo copies "Elijah." Good as new. Apply, Howell's, St. Mary's, Dover.

PIPE ORGAN. Two manuals, pedals, 3 ranks pipes, and 2 couplers. Swell. Fine tone; powerful. Good appearance. Nearly new. £35. Address, O., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

FOR SALE.—One-manual Pedal PIPE ORGAN. 7 stops. Handsome mahogany case. 30 guineas. A. Brown, Kingsley Road, Hounslow.

ORGAN (Three manuals), to be made to suit any place of worship. Organs (Two manuals), 9, 12, and 17 stops. W. E. Richardson, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester.

GRAND PIANO. Handsome carved rosewood case. Exhibition instrument. 7⅞ octaves. Maker, MOTT. £25. 80, New Cross Road, S.E.

PROVISIONALLY PROTECTED.

TOBIN'S SYSTEM OF KEY-LOADING.

This invention will reduce the lightness of touch to a minimum hitherto unattained. The inventor desires engagement, and, gifted with inventive talent, it is but one of a series of fresh ideas if an opportunity was afforded him of using the same. For particulars, apply Mr. J. Tobin, 20, Harmood Street, London, N.W.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

PUBLISHED ON THE 1ST OF EVERY MONTH. Price 1½d. ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION, INCLUDING POSTAGE, 2s.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW FOR JANUARY CONTAINS:—

GENERAL NOTES.
SCHUBERT AS A BOY. By F. G. EDWARDS.
CHRONOLOGICAL TABLE—BEFORE AND AFTER SCHUBERT.
A SCHOOL SIGHT SINGING DEMONSTRATION.—ADDRESS BY MRS. WALTER WARD.
GRADUATED EXERCISES FOR SCHOOL CLASSES.—STAFF NOTATION.
ADDRESS ON SCHOOL SINGING TO LONDON HEAD TEACHERS.
MOVABLE DOH DISCUSSIONS.
MISCELLANEOUS.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

FOR JANUARY,

CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING MUSIC IN BOTH NOTATIONS:—

"THE QUEEN—GOD BLESS HER!" A Patriotic Part-Song. Arranged for Soprano Solo and Chorus. By MYLES B. FOSTER.
EASY STUDIES IN TIME AND TUNE.

ALSO, A SPECIAL MUSIC SUPPLEMENT, CONTAINING SHEPHERD'S CHORUS FROM "ROSAMUNDE," "FORTH TO THE MEADOWS," by FRANZ SCHUBERT, arranged for Two parts, with Three-part Semi-Chorus by W. G. MCNAUGHT (No. 428, Novello's School Songs, price 2d.). This piece is given only with the present issue.

The Music and Exercises can always be obtained separately. Price 1½d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW OPERATIC SCHOOL CANTATA
BY GEO. SHINN, MUS. BAC., CANTAB.

THE QUEEN OF MERRY MAY

A Choral Scene, representing the Crowning of the May Queen. Composed for the use of Schools and Ladies' Choral Classes. Also suitable for Concerts and Entertainments. Can be performed with or without action and special dresses.
Price 1s.; Sol-fa, 6d.
London: HART and Co., 22, Paternoster Row, E.C.
SPECIAL NOTICE TO TEACHERS OF SINGING.
A specimen copy of the above work will be sent, post-free (for short time only), on the following terms: O.N., 6d.; Sol-fa, 3d. Address to GEO. SHINN, 234, Stockwell Road, Brixton, S.W. (not to Publishers).

SACRED SONG.

AVE MARIS STELLA

(HAIL, THOU STAR OF OCEAN)
Dedicated, by permission, to MADAME PATTI NICOLINI.
THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
BENJN. BARKER.
Price 2s. net.
London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.
Leeds: ARCHIBALD RAMSDEN and Co.

Awarded Medal of Honour at the International Inventions Exhibition, London, 1885.

THE ONLY AWARD.

RUMMENS' Organ Pedal Attachment

FOR PIANOFORTES.

DETACHABLE PEDAL BOARD.
EQUAL TO ORGAN PRACTICE.

Testimonials from all the Chief Organists of the day.
Write for particulars to
H. J. RUMMENS,
47, CHURCH ROAD, BRIXTON, S.W.

VACANCY, at once, for YOUTH to be trained as ORGANIST. Every chance for becoming proficient. Two good organs. Choral services. Live with Organist. Exceptional terms to boy making himself useful. Apply, C. F. Neal, Norfolk Road, Wangford, Suffolk.

FOR SALE, excellent VIOLIN CONNECTION, Playing and Teaching (lady's), in large town. A., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST.—MR. F. J. MARCHMENT takes VACATION or occasional SUNDAY WORK, Oratorio Accompaniments, &c. Wingfield, Hamlet Road, Upper Norwood, S.E.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—A Gentleman of great experience seeks an APPOINTMENT. Used to full choral services. Successful Choir-trainer. Excellent references. Address, Gamba, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

WANTED, a SITUATION as MUSIC TEACHER in a good school. Provincial town preferred. Has studied at the Academy. Certificated. Address, Hilda, Maeston, 4, Grosvenor Villas, Coventry.

TUNER WANTED, in country town. Experienced workman. State age, wages, &c. Address, Tuner, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER.—WANTED, First-class PIANO TUNER. Permanent and comfortable berth for a good pushing man. Salary, expenses, and commission. Enclose photo, with references, stating salary required, age, if married, &c., to Duck, Son and Pinker, Bath.

WANTED, a thoroughly competent TONER, REPAIRER, and REGULATOR. First-class references required. Piano Resonator Company (Daniel Mayer Patent), Ltd., 33, New Bond Street, W.

HIGH-CLASS TUNER WANTED, at once. State age, experience, capability, and terms required. J. M., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, a rough TUNER, as Improver. State age and salary required. W. Clabbon, 116/8, Northumberland Street, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

WANTED, ASSISTANT PIANOFORTE TUNER and REPAIRER, of good address. Aged over 21. Abstainer. Organs, Harmoniums, &c. Send full particulars, with photo. State salary required in addition to board and residence. Child, Wellingborough.

WANTED, PIANOFORTE and ORGAN REGULATOR and REPAIRER. Permanent employment to first-class man. Apply, Paterson and Sons, 27, George St., Edinburgh.

THOROUGHLY experienced TUNER, who can also regulate well. Good wages and permanency. Highest references required. S. and P. Erard, 18, Gt. Marlborough Street, W.

TUNER (21) seeks SITUATION. Understands Harmoniums and Organs. Six years' experienee. Pianist. Tuner, 18, Charles Street, Brecon, S. Wales.

MUSIC ASSISTANT.—YOUNG MAN, of good address, WANTED. With knowledge of Piano Tuning and small goods an advantage. State salary required, also previous experience. Total abstainer preferred. Alfred Phillips, Ltd., 19, The Mall, Ealing.

SALESMAN (Piano, Music, &c.), with knowledge of Tuning, seeks similar position. Highest references and credentials. Lancashire, Messrs. Novello and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

LADY requires SITUATION in MUSIC SHOP. Good references. Experienced. Apply, Miss S. Brotherton, 8, Victoria Street, Bishop Auckland, Durham.

ORGAN PRACTICE (City), 1s. per hour. Three manuals, C.O. pedals. Willis (from Minories), 2, Church Row, Aldgate, E.C.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three manuals; independent pedals. Terms, One Shilling per hour. Specification post-free. Blennerhasset's Studio, 1A, Vernon Street, King's Cross, W.C.

NEW ORGAN STUDIO, with Three-manual PIPE ORGAN, blown by water. Terms for Practice, 1s. per hour. At Smyth's Music Depôt, 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE, from £20, with pedals. Instruments for Church, Chapel, and College, built on the most modern principles, at Bedwell and Sons', Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge.

9 GUINEAS.—AMERICAN ORGAN (list price, 20 guineas), 11 stops, including two knee-stops and the beautiful solo stops voix celeste and vox humana, two octave couplers, handsome high case; in use about four months; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged. Packing and carriage free. Approval. Full price paid will be allowed within three years if exchanged for a higher-class instrument. D'Almaine and Co. (established 111 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

A LARGE New Two-Manual ORGAN for SALE. Tubular. Great organ, nine stops; swell organ, eleven stops; pedal organ, four stops; couplers, &c. To be seen at A. Hunter and Son's, Organ Builders, High Street, Clapham, S.W.

THREE-MANUAL ORGAN for SALE, now standing at Holy Trinity Church, Tulse Hill. 30 stops. Built by JONES. Space occupied, about 11 feet square. Two fronts, good condition. Price £300. Application to view to be made to Dr. Walmsley Little, Brakedene, Tulse Hill Park, S.W.; or, for further particulars, to Norman and Beard, 46, Queen Victoria Street, E.C.

HIGH GRADE AMERICAN ORGAN. 18 stops. Nearly new. £30. Particulars from C. Cooper, Robuck St., Crewe.

CHURCH ORGAN, 30 stops, fine tone, 2 manuals and pedals, compositions, &c. £180. Eustace Ingram, 361, Liverpool Road, London, N.

LARGE HARMONIUM for SALE. Two manuals, pedals, 20 stops. Blown by hand or foot. In very good condition. Price £30. Apply to Rev. W. Soames, Fernleigh, Westcombe Park Road, Blackheath, S.E.

HARPSICHORD. — Fine old Instrument, by KIRKMAN, in perfect working order, £40. Harp, double-action, ERAT. Perfect order. £25. Morley, Harp Maker, South Kensington Station.

GRAND PIANO (BROADWOOD'S), in handsome rosewood case, to be SOLD by order of Executors. Can be seen at any time. Apply to X. Y. Z., Novello and Co., Berners St., W.

14 GUINEAS.—PIANO, solid iron frame upright grand; worth 30 guineas; full compass, trichord, celeste action, &c.; in handsomely carved walnut wood case, four feet in height; in use only six months; sent on approval, carriage free, to any part of the United Kingdom; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged; full price paid will be allowed if exchanged for a higher class instrument within three years. D'Almaine and Co. (established 111 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, City. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

ORGAN PEDALS to PIANOS.—New method of Attachment by TUBULAR PNEUMATIC. This action surpasses all mechanical actions for prompt and Organ-like Touch. It is less expensive, easy to attach, and does not injure the most delicate Pianoforte. Prospectus, with full description and price lists, on application to Norman Bros. and Beard, Organ Works, Norwich.

VIOLIN STRINGS.—Send 9d. for samples of four best "E" Strings. Alphonse Cary, 3, Oxford Circus Avenue, London, W.

FIRST-CLASS PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS, in the Midlands, for SALE. Exceptionally fine premises. Proprietor retiring. Address, Midlands, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

VIOLINS AND CELLOS.

COLLIN-MÉZIN (OF PARIS),

VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, AND BOW MAKER.

Gold and Silver Medals at the Exhibitions of PARIS, 1878; PARIS, 1879 PARIS, 1889—Academical Palms (Fine Arts).

THE MOST PERFECT IN THE WORLD.
USED BY THE GREATEST ARTISTS,
AND CONSIDERED BY MASTERS
THE MODERN STRADIVARIUS.

"No comparison can be made, the Instruments of Collin-Mézin being the Instruments for Soloists."—CAMILLO SIVORI.

METZLER AND CO., 42, Marlborough Street, London, W.,
Sole Wholesale and Retail Agents.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. R. Willis (from Minories), 2, Church Row, Aldgate, London, E.C.

HYDRAULIC ENGINES for Organ Blowing. Blennerhasset's Patent "Perfect" Prize Medal Engines are the best. 1B, Vernon Street, King's Cross Road, London, W.C.

T. R. WILLIS (from Minories, est. 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Strings, Wire, Violins, Concertinas, &c. 2, Church Row, Aldgate, E.C.

CASSOCKS.—500 new Tailor-made, Black, Red, Violet, Blue, 9s. to 20s.; SURPLICES, from 3s. to 12s. "Surplice," The Church Agency, Limited, Lombard House, E.C.

CHEAP MUSIC PRINTING.—Four pages and title, 100 copies, £1 15s. Music exchanged. Traveller wanted on commission. Musical Co-operative Association, 16, Furnival Street, Holborn, E.C.

THE OLD FIRM.

P. CONACHER & CO.,
Organ Builders,
SPRINGWOOD WORKS,
HUDDERSFIELD.
TWO GOLD MEDALS.

NICHOLSON AND CO.,
ORGAN BUILDERS,
PALACE YARD, WORCESTER.
(ESTABLISHED 1841.)
Specifications and Estimates sent free.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.
MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 7, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights, Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

COMPLETE AND REVISED EDITION.

THE BRISTOL TUNE BOOK
CONTAINING
905 TUNES AND CHANTS.

A COMPANION TO ALL HYMN BOOKS.

Although nearly every denomination has its own Tune Book, the wealth of special tunes and metres contained in the Bristol Tune Book renders it indispensable to every well-equipped Choir.

		s.	d.
No. 17.	Limp Cloth	5	0
,, 18.	Cloth Boards, red edges	6	0
,, 19.	Small Edition	3	6
,, 20.	Tonic Sol-fa	3	6

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.
Bristol: W. CROFTON HEMMONS, Stephen Street.
And all Booksellers and Musicsellers.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.
THE TUNE BOOK, with the additional Tunes as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN, containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

GILL'S EASY VOLUNTARIES.—"Messiah," "Judas," "Elijah," "St. Paul," "Creation." 1s. each book.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Third Thousand.
TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in G. By ALFRED J. DYE. Price 4d.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Fourth Thousand.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat. By WILLIAM S. VINNING, Mus. Bac., Cantab. Price 3d.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW CHURCH MUSIC
BY
J. H. MAUNDER.

In the Press.
EASTER ANTHEM
"WE DECLARE UNTO YOU GLAD TIDINGS."
In preparation
A SHORT CANTATA FOR LENT USE.
Clergy, Organists, and Choirmasters desiring a specimen copy of the above on publication, or of the very popular easy Easter Anthem "Christ is Risen," write to J. H. MAUNDER, San Remo, Bromley, Kent.

CHURCH MUSIC
BY EDWARD BUNNETT, MUS.D., CANTAB.

SERVICES.

Two Settings of the Venite (in Chant Form). No. 1 (in G), No. 2 (in A)	2d.
Te Deum in E	3d.
Benedictus and Jubilate in E	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in E	3d.
Cantate and Deus in E	3d.
Communion Service	9d.
Preces and Responses	4d.
Tonic Sol-fa,
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F	1½d.
,, ,, ,, A	1½d.
,, ,, ,, E	1½d.

ANTHEMS.

The Lord hath prepared. Four Voices	3d.
The Lord is my Shepherd. ,, ,,	3d.
I was glad. Four Voices	3d.
,, Tonic Sol-fa	2d.

TWO NEW SONGS.—Just Published.

"Market Day" (Mezzo-Soprano) net	2s.
"A toi, Marie" (Mezzo-Soprano) ,,	2s.

SONG—"By the Wayside" (Soprano), with Violin Obbligato and Organ or Harmonium net	2s.
"The Last Prayer" (Contralto) ,,	2s.

ORGAN.

Twelve Short Easy Pieces net	2s. 0d.
Three Short Andantes ,,	2s. 0d.
Minuetto ,,	1s. 6d.
Ave Maria ,,	1s. 6d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

A NEW SACRED CANTATA
THE ROLLING SEASONS
BY CALEB SIMPER.

The words (with the exception of Two Hymns and a Carol) are selected from the Holy Scriptures.
Price 1s. 6d. net. A Sol-fa Edition will also be issued, and Orchestral Parts printed for Strings, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon, 2 Horns, 2 Cornets, 2 Trombones, Timpani, and Organ.
It will occupy 35 minutes in performance, and is written for Solo voices (Sop., Con., Ten., and Bass) and full Chorus. All the parts (both Vocal and Instrumental) are attractive, interesting, and not difficult. For Church use at Whitsuntide and Harvestide it will be especially suitable. The Vocal Score will be ready about January 25 and the other parts a few days later. Every Organist and Conductor should order a copy at once.
Also, by the same COMPOSER (ready about January 25),
NEW EASTER ANTHEM.
IF YE THEN BE RISEN WITH CHRIST.
Price 4d. Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.
New Anniversary Selection, No. 4, contains:—

Six Pretty Pieces and a new Anthem, complete	2d.
Ditto, Tonic Sol-fa Edition, complete	2d.
New and Favourite Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in D, partly in Unison. 5th 1,000	4d.
Sol-fa Edition (in the Press)	2d.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.
Chicago, U.S.A.: CLAYTON F. SUMMY Co., 220, Wabash Avenue.

FOR THE NATIONAL COMMEMORATION, 1897.
CANTATA
SONG OF JUBILEE
FOR SOLO VOICES, CHORUS, ORCHESTRA, AND ORGAN.
Special Edition, One Shilling and Sixpence.
BY
DR. JACOB BRADFORD.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NATIONAL ANTHEM.
GOD SAVE OUR GRACIOUS QUEEN
From "Song of Jubilee"
Specially arranged for thanksgiving and other occasions, by
DR. JACOB BRADFORD.
Price Sixpence.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MUSIC FOR LENT.

ANTHEMS.

*All ye who weep	Ch. Gounod	3d.
Art thou weary	C. H. Lloyd	6d.
*As pants the hart	Spohr	1½d.
Be merciful unto me	H. Purcell	6d.
Be merciful unto me	E. A. Sydenham	3d.
Blessed are they that mourn	A. W. Batson	3d.
Blessed Jesu, Fount of Mercy	Anton Dvorák	6d.
Bow Thine ear, O Lord	W. Byrd	3d.
*By Babylon's wave	Ch. Gounod	6d.
By the waters of Babylon	W. Boyce	4d.
By the waters of Babylon	H. Clarke	4d.
Call to remembrance	J. Battishill	6d.
*Cast thy burden upon the Lord	Mendelssohn	1½d.
*Come, and let us return	J. Goss	3d.
*Come, and let us return	W. Jackson	3d.
Come, let us worship	Palestrina	1½d.
*Come now, and let us reason together	R. Briant	1½d.
*Come unto Him	Ch. Gounod	2d.
Come unto Me	H. R. Couldrey	3d.
Come unto Me	M. Kingston	1½d.
Come unto Me	J. S. Smith	1½d.
*Comfort, O Lord	W. Crotch	1½d.
Daughters of Jerusalem	G. J. Elvey	1½d.
Daughters of Jerusalem	H. J. King	3d.
Distracted with care	J. Haydn	4d.
*Enter not into judgment	T. Attwood	1½d.
Flee from evil	W. J. Clarke	3d.
For our offences	Mendelssohn	1½d.
From the deep	Spohr	6d.
Give ear, O Lord	C. Oberthür	1½d.
*Give ear, O Lord	T. M. Pattison	2d.
Give ear, O Shepherd of Israel	A. Whiting	3d.
Give ear unto my prayer	J. Arcadelt	1½d.
*God so loved the world	J. Goss	1½d.
*God so loved the world	M. Kingston	1½d.
*God so loved the world	J. V. Roberts	3d.
*God so loved the world	J. Stainer	1½d.
Grant, we beseech Thee	J. Booth	1½d.
Grant, we beseech Thee	J. V. Roberts	3d.
Have mercy upon me, O God	J. Goss	4d.
Have mercy upon me	K. J. Pye	3d.
Have mercy upon me	J. Shaw	3d.
Have mercy upon me	J. White	1½d.
*Hear me when I call	King Hall	1½d.
*Hear my prayer	J. Kent	3d.
*Hear my prayer	Mendelssohn	4d.
Hear my prayer	C. Stroud	4d.
Hear my prayer	Winter	1½d.
Hear, O Lord	J. Goss	2d.
Hear, O Thou Shepherd	J. Clarke-Whitfeld	4d.
Hear, O Thou Shepherd	T. A. Walmisley	4d.
*Hear the voice and prayer	J. L. Hopkins	1½d.
Hear us, O Saviour	M. Hauptmann	1½d.
He in tears that soweth	F. Hiller	1½d.
Hide not Thy Face	K. J. Pye	2d.
*Hymn of Peace	W. H. Callcott	1½d.
*Incline Thine ear	Himmel	1½d.
In Thee, O Lord	S. Coleridge-Taylor	3d.
*In Thee, O Lord	B. Tours	3d.
In Thee, O Lord	J. Weldon	3d.
Is it nothing to you?	M. B. Foster	2d.
I will arise	C. Wood	1½d.
I will cry unto God	C. Steggall	3d.
*I wrestle and pray	J. C. Bach	4d.
Jesu, Blessed Word of God	Ch. Gounod	1½d.
Jesu, Lord of life and glory	G. A. Naumann	1½d.
Jesu, Saviour, I am Thine	B. Steane	1½d.
*Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	Ch. Gounod	1½d.
*Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	W. S. Hoyte	1½d.
*Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	Mozart	1½d.
Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	J. White	1½d.
Lead, kindly Light	R. Dunstan	3d.
Lead, kindly Light	C. L. Naylor	4d.
*Lead, kindly Light	J. Stainer	4d.
Lead me, Lord	S. S. Wesley	1½d.
Let the words of my mouth	J. Barnby	1½d.
Let the words of my mouth	H. Blair	1½d.
Let the words of my mouth	A. D. Culley	3d.
Let us come boldly	C. H. Lloyd	3d.
Like as the hart	T. Adams	3d.
*Like as the hart	V. Novello	1½d.
*Lord, for Thy tender mercies' sake	R. Farrant	1½d.
Lord, for Thy tender mercies' sake	G. R. Vicars	1½d.
Lord, I call upon Thee	A. D. Culley	1½d.
Lord, I call upon Thee	J. E. West	1½d.
Lord, on our offences	Mendelssohn	1½d.
Make me a clean heart	J. Barnby	3d.
Make me a clean heart	A. W. Batson	3d.
My God, look upon me	J. L. Hopkins	3d.
*My God, look upon me	J. Reynolds	1½d.
O come near to the Cross	Ch. Gounod	8d.
O day of penitence	Ch. Gounod	6d.
O God, Thou hast cast us out	H. Purcell	4d.
O have mercy	H. Leslie	1½d.
O Jesu! Victim blest	J. Powell	3d.
*O Lamb of God	J. Barnby	3d.
O Lamb of God	G. E. Lake	1½d.
O Lord, correct me	J. Coward	1½d.
O Lord God of my salvation	E. Ford	4d.
O Lord God, Thou strength	J. Goss	1½d.
O Lord, look down	J. Battishill	3d.
*O Lord, my God	C. Malan	1½d.
*O Lord, my God	S. S. Wesley	1½d.
O Lord, rebuke me not	H. Lahee	1½d.
O most merciful	J. W. Elliott	1½d.
O saving Victim	W. A. C. Cruickshank	3d.
O saving Victim	Ch. Gounod	4d.
O saving Victim	F. Kœnig	1½d.
O saving Victim	Rossini	3d.
O saving Victim	B. Tours	1½d.
*O Saviour of the world	J. Goss	1½d.
O Saviour of the world (A.T.T.B.)	J. V. Roberts	2d.
Out of the deep	F. E. Gladstone	3d.
Out of the deep	Mozart	1½d.
Out of the deep	J. Naylor	4d.
Ponder my words, O Lord	A. D. Culley	1½d.
*Remember not, Lord	H. Purcell	1½d.
*Remember now thy Creator	C. Steggall	4d.
Remember, O Lord	T. A. Walmisley	4d.
Rend your heart	J. Clippingdale	3d.
Save me, O God	C. S. Jekyll	1½d.
*Seek ye the Lord	C. Bradley	1½d.
*Seek ye the Lord	J. V. Roberts	3d.
Show me Thy ways	J. V. Roberts	3d.
Spare us, Lord, most holy	E. A. Sydenham	1½d.
*Teach me, O Lord	T. Attwood	1½d.
Teach me, O Lord	B. Rogers	1½d.
Teach me Thy way	W. H. Gladstone	1½d.
The path of the just	J. V. Roberts	1½d.
The sacrifices of God	H. Blair	1½d.
*The Story of the Cross	M. B. Foster	3d.
*The Story of the Cross	A. Somervell	3d.
*The Story of the Cross	J. Stainer	3d.
Think, good Jesu	Mozart	6d.
Through peace to light	J. H. Roberts	3d.
Thus saith the Lord	G. M. Garrett	6d.
Try me, O God (A.T.T.B.)	A. D. Culley	2d.
Try me, O God	C. Wood	1½d.
Turn Thee again, O Lord	T. Attwood	1½d.
*Turn Thy face from my sins	T. Attwood	1½d.
Turn Thy face from my sins	C. Steggall	4d.
*Turn Thy face from my sins	A. Sullivan	1½d.
Unto Thee have I cried	G. J. Elvey	3d.
Wash me throughly	S. S. Wesley	3d.
Watch ye and pray	G. R. Vicars	2d.
Word of God Incarnate	Ch. Gounod	3d.
Ye who from His ways have turned	Mendelssohn	3d.

Anthems marked thus * to be had in Tonic Sol-fa, 1d., 1½d., and 2d. each.

THE PASSION OF CHRIST. Set to Music by G. F. HANDEL. Octavo, paper cover, 3s.; paper boards, 3s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 5s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (The Seven Words of our Saviour on the Cross.) Set to Music by J. HAYDN. Octavo, paper cover, 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (The Seven Words of our Saviour on the Cross.) Set to Music by CH. GOUNOD. Octavo, paper cover, 1s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. ("Der Tod Jesu.") Set to Music by C. H. GRAUN. Octavo, paper cover, 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. Set to Music by HEINRICH SCHÜTZ. Octavo, paper cover, 1s.

OUT OF DARKNESS (Psalm cxxx.). For Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra. Composed by GEORG HENSCHEL (Op. 30). Price 2s. 6d.

OUT OF DARKNESS (De Profundis) (Psalm cxxx.). For Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra. Composed by Ch. GOUNOD. English or Latin words. Price 1s.; paper boards, 1s. 6d.; full score, 15s.; string parts, 4s. 6d.; Wind parts, 7s.; Vocal parts, 3s.

ZION'S WAYS DO LANGUISH. Soprano Solo and Chorus, from "Gallia" (Motet). Composed by Ch. GOUNOD. Price 1s.

THE MISERERE, &c., as used in St. Paul's Cathedral Lenten Services. Arranged by J. STAINER. 8vo. Price 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. The Music composed by J. BARNBY. 8vo. Price 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. Set to the well-known Ancient Chant, as arranged and harmonised by VINCENT NOVELLO; from the Appendix to the Accompanying Harmonies to the Brief Directory of Plain-song, by the Rev. THOMAS HELMORE, M.A. Price 2d.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

CAREFULLY REVISED & ENTIRELY NEW ENGLISH VERSION.

THE
PASSION OF OUR LORD
(ACCORDING TO ST. MATTHEW)
SET TO MUSIC BY
JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH.

THE ENGLISH TRANSLATION AND ADAPTATION BY THE
REV. DR. TROUTBECK, D.D.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

EXTRACT FROM PREFACE.

Thirty-three years have elapsed since the publication of the first English edition, and faithful to its original as that edition may have been in the main, it has been felt that closer adherence to the accepted standard text is attainable, and, as far as is at all practicable, should be attained. With this view the present edition is issued. The chorales, choruses, and solos have been newly and independently translated from the original German words, and the adaptation of the narrative of the Evangelist, a task rendered perhaps somewhat less difficult and hazardous by the aid of the Revised Version of the New Testament, has been carefully reconsidered and re-arranged so as to preserve unaltered, as far as may be, the musical text of the original.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE
PASSION OF OUR LORD
(ACCORDING TO ST. JOHN)
SET TO MUSIC BY
JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH.

THE ENGLISH TRANSLATION AND ADAPTATION BY THE
REV. DR. TROUTBECK, D.D.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS.
Paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ABRIDGED VERSION
AS USED IN
ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL
OF THE
PASSION OF OUR LORD
(ACCORDING TO ST. MATTHEW)
SET TO MUSIC BY
JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PASSION MUSIC
FROM THE ORATORIO "ST. PETER"
BY
SIR JULIUS BENEDICT.

Vocal Score, 1s. 6d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE REQUIEM
FROM
"MORS ET VITA"
BY
CH. GOUNOD.

8VO, PAPER COVER	2s. 6d.
PAPER BOARDS	3s. 0d.
FULL SCORE	£2 2s. 0d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE CRUCIFIXION
A MEDITATION
ON THE
Sacred Passion of the Holy Redeemer

THE WORDS SELECTED AND WRITTEN BY THE
REV. W. J. SPARROW-SIMPSON, M.A.

SET TO MUSIC BY
J. STAINER.

This Work is an attempt to supply the want long felt of an easy and short form of Passion Music suitable for use in ordinary Parish Churches. It is composed for two solo voices, a Tenor and a Bass, and for the church choir. At intervals hymns occur, in which the whole congregation can join. The performance will probably not extend over forty minutes in duration, thus giving an opportunity for a suitable "address" if thought advisable. No orchestra is required, the accompaniments being specially adapted for the organ only; much of the expense usually attending Passion Services will therefore be avoided. The book of the words, for distribution among the congregation, contains the music of the Hymns; by this means it is hoped that the congregation will be induced to take part heartily in the service.

VOCAL SCORE, PAPER COVER, ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE.
PAPER BOARDS, TWO SHILLINGS. TONIC SOL-FA, NINEPENCE.
WORDS ONLY, WITH HYMN TUNES, TWOPENCE EACH.
WORDS, COMPLETE, TEN SHILLINGS PER HUNDRED.
WORDS OF HYMNS, FIVE SHILLINGS PER HUNDRED.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE
STORY OF THE CROSS
FOR VOICES AND ORGAN
WITH SHORT INTERLUDES, GIVING OPPORTUNITY FOR MEDITATION
THE WORDS BY THE
REV. E. MONRO
SET TO MUSIC BY
J. STAINER
MYLES B. FOSTER
ARTHUR SOMERVELL
AND
J. VARLEY ROBERTS

PRICE THREEPENCE EACH SETTING.
Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

THE
STORY OF THE CROSS
WRITTEN BY THE
REV. E. MONRO.

WORDS ONLY. Price 1s. 6d. per 100.
Large Type Edition, 2s. 6d. per 100.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE EPIPHANY

OR

MANIFESTATION OF CHRIST TO THE GENTILES

A SACRED CANTATA

FOR SOLI, CHORUS, AND ORGAN

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

H. J. EDWARDS.

Price Two Shillings.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE LAST NIGHT AT BETHANY

A SHORT CHURCH CANTATA

THE WORDS WRITTEN AND COMPILED BY

JOSEPH BENNETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

C. LEE WILLIAMS.

Price 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.
Tonic Sol-fa, One Shilling.
String Parts, 8s. 6d.; Wind Parts, 15s. 6d. Full Score, MS.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

GETHSEMANE

A CHURCH CANTATA

THE WORDS WRITTEN AND COMPILED BY

JOSEPH BENNETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

C. LEE WILLIAMS.

Price Two Shillings.
Paper Boards, Two Shillings and Sixpence.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.
String Parts, 10s. 6d. Wind Parts and Full Score, MS.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

VEXILLA REGIS

(THE ROYAL BANNERS FORWARD GO)

The Latin Words from "The Seven Great Hymns."
Translated by the Rev. J. M. NEALE, D.D.

SET TO MUSIC BY

H. R. SHELLEY.

Vocal Score, paper cover, 2s. 6d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

IS IT NOTHING TO YOU

AN EASY CANTATA

For use during the Season of Lent, and on Good Friday, specially adapted for Country Choirs

BY THE

REV. E. V. HALL, M.A.

Late Precentor of Worcester Cathedral.

Price Eightpence.
Words, with Music to the Hymns, price Twopence.

This is an attempt to provide music for Lent and for Good Friday of the simplest kind, for use in country churches. The music is interspersed with well-known hymns, in which the congregation may be invited to join. The Cantata may be used at a special service on Good Friday afternoon or evening, or on any day in Lent, and requires only a solo voice and a small choir.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S COLLECTION

OF

RESPONSES TO THE COMMANDMENTS

EDITED BY GEORGE C. MARTIN,

Organist of St. Paul's Cathedral.

Bound in cloth, Five Shillings; or, 47 Numbers at Twopence each.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE VERSICLES & RESPONSES

AS USED IN

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL

(FERIAL USE)

EDITED BY

J. STAINER, MUS. DOC.,

AND

G. C. MARTIN, MUS. DOC.

Price Fourpence.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE PRECES and RESPONSES, with LITANY,
According to TALLIS.
Arranged for Four Voices, by JOSEPH BARNBY.
Price Fourpence.

THE FERIAL RESPONSES, with LITANY.
Edited by JOSEPH BARNBY.
Price Fourpence.

THE PRECES and RESPONSES, with LITANY,
Set in Monotone. The simplest Form of an Intoned Service.
By JOSEPH BARNBY.
Price Fourpence.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE BENEDICITE

SET TO MUSIC BY THE FOLLOWING

MODERN COMPOSERS.

GEORGE J. BENNETT (in E flat)	1½d.
GEORGE J. BENNETT (in G)	1½d.
GEORGE J. BENNETT (in D)	3d.
W. T. BEST	3d.
HUGH BLAIR	1½d.
J. F. BRIDGE, JAMES TURLE, and Dr. HAYES	1½d.
H. B. C.	1½d.
J. W. ELLIOTT	2d.
ALFRED J. EYRE (with a Quadruple Chant for the Te Deum)	2d.
ALFRED J. EYRE (No. 2, in F)	1½d.
MYLES B. FOSTER (in the Press).
PERCY H. FROST	2d.
HENRY GADSBY (in G, Chant Form)	1½d.
F. E. GLADSTONE (Chant Form)	3d.
F. E. GLADSTONE (Unison)	1½d.
F. A. J. HERVEY (in A flat). From the Canticles (second set)	2d.
W. HUGHES	1½d.
FREDERICK ILIFFE (No. 1)	1½d.
C. HARFORD LLOYD	2d.
GEORGE C. MARTIN (No. 1, in F; No. 2, in E flat; No. 3, in G)	each 4d.
T. R. MATTHEWS	1½d.
C. E. MILLER (second setting)	2d.
EDGAR PETTMAN (No. 1, in C; No. 2, set to Double Chants). Cathedral Psalter pointing	2d.
EDGAR PETTMAN (in E flat)	1½d.
J. VARLEY ROBERTS (in B flat)	4d.
BOYTON SMITH (in A flat)	1½d.
CHAS. W. SMITH (in C). For S.A.T.T.B., also simplified form for S.A.T.B.	6d.
J. STAINER, R. DE LACY, A. GIBBS, and F. CHAMPNEYS	1½d.
J. STAINER, W. WINN, and F. WALKER	1½d.
J. STAINER (in D). From the Canticles (second set)	2d.
J. BARNBY JOHN FOSTER MONTEM SMITH (two settings) J. TURLE (two settings)	1½d
C. A. WICKES (two settings)
JOHN E. WEST (in C)	1½d
W. G. WOOD (in D)	1½d

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WORKS

FOR

CHORAL SOCIETIES AND CHOIRS.

	s.	d.
THE SILVER STAR. Cantata. Ladies' voices	1	6
THE LORD IS MY SHEPHERD. 8vo	0	8
BY THE WATERS OF BABYLON. 8vo	1	0
Both for Chorus, without Soloists.
EVENTIDE. Part-Song. 8vo.	0	2

By N. KILBURN, Mus. B., Cantab.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HYMN TO THE CREATOR

(THE SONG OF ST. FRANCIS OF ASSISI)

MOTET

FOR SOPRANO SOLO, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

The Words translated by Mrs. OLIPHANT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

J. FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus. Doc.

(Organist of Westminster Abbey).

Price One Shilling net.
Orchestral Parts may be had.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

SPECIALLY SUITABLE FOR

CHILDREN'S SERVICES
CHURCH DAY SCHOOLS
CHURCH SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

THE CHURCH CATECHISM

IN METRICAL FORM, FOR SINGING AS HYMNS.

WORDS BY

THE RIGHT REV. BISHOP JENNER & AMABEL JENNER

MUSIC BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Other Musical Settings in preparation.

Music and Words, 3d.; Words only (suitable for tacking into a child's Hymn Book), 1d.; or, in packets of 50, 3s. 6d.

N.B.—These verses, which are written in simple style, and follow closely the words of the Catechism, contain Hymns on The Covenant; Faith; Duty (I.) to God; Duty (II.) to Neighbour, with Kyrie for either; Prayer; Sacraments (I.), Baptism (II.), Holy Communion.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SACRED SONGS

FOR

LITTLE SINGERS

WORDS BY F. R. HAVERGAL

MUSIC BY

A. RANDEGGER.

Illustrated, paper cover, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 5s.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HOLIDAY SONGS

Written by C. F. ALEXANDER

MUSIC BY

LADY ARTHUR HILL.

Reduced Price, 2s. 6d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR POPULAR CONCERTS, SCHOOLS, and CHOIRS.—"GOD BLESS VICTORIA." National Song and Chorus. Post-free, One Shilling. A. D. PARKER, P.G.O., Lichfield.

Now Ready. On the 1st of each Month, 228 Cols. 2d.; Post-free, 3½d.
MUSICAL OPINION and MUSIC TRADE REVIEW. 150, Holborn Bars, E.C.

THE LITTLE CHOIR BOOK

COMPILED BY

THOMAS CURRY

Every Chorister should be supplied with a copy of this concise little book, which contains:—

"MUSIC RUDIMENTS"
"EXPRESSION AND SPEED"
"PRONUNCIATION"
AND
"ROMAN NUMERALS"
ALSO
"CHANTING" AND "VOICE EXERCISES"
BY
J. STAINER.

Price Three-Halfpence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now Ready.

Sung at every Concert during Mr. Barton McGuckin's Irish Concert Tour.

SONGS OF OUR LAND

PART-SONG FOR S.A.T.B.
WITH PIANOFORTE ACCOMPANIMENT

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY

FRANCES BROWN

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

ALICIA ADÉLAÏDE NEEDHAM,

L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M.

Composer of "Irish Lullaby," "Maureen," "The Exile's Return," &c.

Price Threepence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WEBSTER'S

GROUNDWORK OF MUSIC. BOOK I:

4th Edition. 1s.; Key, 1s. 6d.

WEBSTER'S

GROUNDWORK OF MUSIC. BOOK II.

3rd Edition. 1s.; Key, 1s. 6d.

WEBSTER'S

CHILD'S PRIMER OF THE THEORY OF MUSIC.

3rd Edition. 1s.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HINTS ON CHOIR TRAINING FOR COMPETITIONS

BY

W. G. McNAUGHT.

REPRINTED, WITH ADDITIONS, FROM

"THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW."

"No choir-trainer need be ashamed to learn from that experienced musician, Mr. W. G. McNaught, whose 'Hints on Choir Training for Competitions' have just been issued as a little pamphlet, price 2d., by Messrs. Novello. Mr. McNaught's remarks are addressed more especially to conductors and choirs who are about to take part in the competitions at Kendal, Carlisle, and Morecambe this month, but they will be found equally serviceable by others; and it is astonishing to note how Mr. McNaught has succeeded in compressing into so small a space hints on almost every point of importance to choral conductors. The clear arrangement of paragraphs under the various headings, 'Tone—blend—attack—intonation—rhythm—pace—phrasing,' &c., adds to the value of the book."—Musical News, April 18, 1896.

Price Twopence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

FRANCESCO BERGER'S ALBUM

OF

FIVE PIANOFORTE PIECES.

INDEX.

No. 1. Moto contrario (Étude). | No. 3. The voice of the rivulet.
„ 2. Barcarolle. | „ 4. Polka.
No. 5. Marcia.

Price Three Shillings and Sixpence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

THREE PIECES

FOR

VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE

1. Minuet. 2. Adagio. 3. Lullaby.

COMPOSED BY

WILLIAM S. HANNAM.

Price Three Shillings net.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

GAUZY WINGS

Part-Song for S.A.T.B.
Words by FLORENCE HOARE
MUSIC BY RICHARD RICHARDS, A.R.C.O.

Price Threepence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.;
or, R. R., Cleut House, Booth Street, Handsworth, Birmingham.

SUNG WITH ENORMOUS SUCCESS by many celebrated artists in Germany.

Quite New. English Text by HUGH JONES.

"LOVE'S TRUST" (Zuversicht). Op. 10, No. 3.
"RESOLVE" (Vorsatz). Op. 7, No. 1.
By W. MAASE.

Published by A. BOCK, Düsseldorf, Germany.
Sold in England by NOVELLO, EWER and Co., London, W.

Seventh Edition.

The river floweth strong, my love

PART-SONG FOR S.A.T.B.

Words by E. RIDGWAY.

MUSIC COMPOSED BY ROLAND ROGERS.

Price Fourpence; Sol-fa, Twopence.

Sung with immense success by Eaton Faning's Select Choir at the Ballad Concerts, St. James's Hall; Wolverhampton Festival Choral Society, the Chester Festival Choral Society, the Cambrian Choral Society (Birkenhead), Huddersfield Glee and Madrigal Society, &c.

Also, NEW PART-SONG, by same COMPOSER.

THREE FISHERS WENT SAILING

Words by KINGSLEY.

Old Notation, Fourpence; Sol-fa, Twopence.
"An immense success."

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now Ready.

CAPRICE, by KATE WILLIS, for Violin or Flute, with Pianoforte.

Price Four Shillings.
C. WOOLHOUSE, 174, Wardour Street, W.

Played with great success at the Queen's Hall Promenade Concerts, the Queen's Hall Sunday Afternoon Concerts, the Strolling Players' Orchestral Society, &c.

THE BATTLE OF FLOWERS

DESCRIPTIVE OVERTURE

BY

T. H. FREWIN.

String Parts, Six Shillings.
Full Score and Wind Parts, MS.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CANTATA

THE

MAID OF ASTOLAT

COMPOSED FOR THE

WOLVERHAMPTON MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1886,

BY

C. SWINNERTON HEAP.

THIRD EDITION now Ready. Price 3s. 6d., in paper.

Extract from Birmingham Daily Post, November 20, 1896.

"Dr. Heap revels in his choral writing, and reaches the highest elevation in the chorus descriptive of the approach of the dead Elaine lying in the sombre barge. . . . The performance made a profound impression on the audience. . . . The demonstration at the close showed that there had been no error of judgment in reviving this cantata. We have no time for critical comment at this moment; but, having heard the composition four times, we do not hesitate to class it among works accepted as masterly."

A number of Lithographed Copies, Tonic Sol-fa Edition, may be obtained on hire. Application to be made to the Publishers:
H. TAYLOR and SON, Bridge Street, Walsall.

COMPOSITIONS

BY

JOHN M. W. YOUNG.

CANTATA.—"The return of Israel to Palestine" (3rd Edition). Performed at the Festival held in Lincoln Cathedral, June 15, 1892. Price 2s. 6d. The Orchestral Parts to be had of J. M. W. YOUNG. Triumphal March, from the above, arranged for the Organ. Pedal Obbligato. Price 1s. 6d.

AN EASY FESTIVAL SERVICE in G (22nd Edition, 24th Thousand): Te Deum, 6d.; Festival size, 1½d.; Jubilate, 4d.

AN EASY FESTIVAL SERVICE in C: Te Deum, 6d.; Festival size, 1½d.; Benedictus and Jubilate, 6d.; Kyrie (varied) and Nicene Creed, 6d.

AN EASY FESTIVAL SERVICE in F: Te Deum, 6d.; Festival size, 1½d.; Jubilate, 4d.

AN EASY CHANT SERVICE in A (on Turner's Chant), with varied Rhythm and Harmony: Te Deum, 4d.; Jubilate, 2d.

A CATHEDRAL SERVICE in D: Te Deum, Jubilate, Sanctus, and Kyrie (folio size), 3s.; vocal parts, 3s.; Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, 2s. 6d.; vocal parts, 2s.

AN EASY FESTIVAL ANTHEM.—"O Lord, Thou art great," 2s. (folio size); vocal parts, 4d. each.

A FESTIVAL ANTHEM.—"I will extol," 1s.; Festival size, 3d.

ANTHEM.—"O Lord God of my salvation," 2s. (folio); vocal parts, 2d. each.

LUTHER'S HYMN.—Varied throughout, with independent Accompaniment for the Organ, 6d.

THE LINCOLN PSALTER (2nd Edition), pointed for Chanting. Used in Lincoln Cathedral, 1s. 3d.

THE CANTICLES POINTED, with Directions for Chanting. Price 3d., in stiff paper covers.

FIFTY-FIVE SINGLE AND DOUBLE CHANTS, as sung in Lincoln Cathedral. The Chants for several of the Psalms are varied, with a Preface on the Anglican Chant. Price 1s. 6d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HUMOROUS PART-SONG FOR S.A.T.B.

TOM, THE PIPER'S SON. By A. BEN ALLEN, Composer of "Dickory, dickory, dock." Price 3d.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

OFFICIALLY ADOPTED IN THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC, AND IN ARMY SCHOOLS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

THE STAVE SIGHT SINGING METHOD
BY JOHN TAYLOR,
Organist, by appointment, to H.M. The Queen.

(1.) Applies the principles of the Modulator to the unaltered staff in a minimised practical course, ranging from the recognition of a simple musical tone to the ready sight singing of the most complex vocal passages of Wagner and the advanced modern school.

(2.) Makes the C and other clefs, and all keys equally easy, and at once solves the most difficult problems in modulation.

Choirboys take up a chant, hymn-tune, or anthem part at sight from this Modulator, in any clef or key, also any change of key.

The Method is also adopted in
THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,
WELLINGTON COLLEGE, KING'S COLLEGE,
SEVEN METROPOLITAN TRAINING COLLEGES,
TWO LONDON POLYTECHNICS,
THE BIRKBECK INSTITUTE,
THE BERMONDSEY SETTLEMENT,
And many Colleges, Schools, and Institutions in the BRITISH EMPIRE, AMERICA, AND ABROAD.
Detailed Prospectuses and Lists of Publications of the Method on application.

London: GEORGE PHILIP and SON, 32, Fleet Street, E.C.

Every Choral Society should perform this Cantata next year.

THE VICTORIAN AGE
A CANTATA
BY
F. E. WEATHERLY & J. L. ROECKEL.

Mr. Henry F. Frost, writing in the Music Trades Review, says:
"Mr. Weatherly's verses are partly courtier-like, partly radical, and wholly patriotic. The composer is chiefly known by his pleasing ballads, but he shows in this work that he can write stirring vigorous music, as well as sentimental. On paper the cantata looks really very effective, and it will probably be taken up."
The Queen says:
"Mr. Weatherly has contrived to touch a great many topics with a light hand, and to compress them within moderate limits, and Mr. Roeckel has set the twelve numbers of which the cantata consists to music which is always elegant and artistic, and occasionally—as in the chorus 'Fell ye the lofty pine and oak'—broad and massive. The composition is written for solo soprano, contralto, and baritone, and chorus; and it includes a Processional March of much gaiety and animation."

Prices: Staff Notation, Pianoforte Score, 2s.; Tonic Sol-fa, Vocal Score, 9d.; Words, 1d.; Orchestral Parts on hire.

 A copy of the Libretto will be posted free to any Conductor or Secretary of a Choral Society.

London: J. CURWEN AND SONS, 8 and 9, Warwick Lane, E.C.

8vo, 4d.
THE CYCLISTS
PART-SONG FOR S.A.T.B.
Words by EDWARD OXENFORD
MUSIC BY
W. W. PEARSON.
Orchestral Parts lent gratis for performance.
Apply to the COMPOSER, Elmham, Dereham.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWELVE NEW SONGS
BY
SOME OF THE BEST AND BEST-KNOWN
BRITISH COMPOSERS.

Constancy	Joseph Barnby.
Cradle Song	Alfred Cellier.
Love's Journey	F. Corder.
Truant Wings	F. H. Cowen.
In Summer Weather	Charles H. Lloyd.
Robin Sly	A. C. Mackenzie
A Song of the South	Hamish MacCunn.
The Maid of Elsinor	C. Hubert H. Parry.
A Pretty Maid	Arthur Somervell.
For ever mine	C. V. Stanford.
To welcome you	A. Goring Thomas.
The Windflower	Charles Wood.

EDITED BY HAROLD BOULTON
(With words by the EDITOR).

Frontispiece, "The Harpsichord," by FRANK DICKSEE, R.A.

In cloth, gilt lettered, price 12s. net.
Each Song may be had separately, price 2s. net.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Popular Part-Songs for S.A.T.B.
BY W. W. PEARSON.

The Skaters	3d.	The Oyster Dredgers	2d.
The Lake	3d.	Evening	2d.
*'Tis Morn	3d.	*Sweet to live (38th thou.)	2d.
Sweet Spring (Madrigal)	3d.	*Welcome, young Spring!	2d.
The River	3d.	*The Anglers (14th thou.)	2d.
Over the mountain side	3d.	The Dream of Home	2d.
Soul of living music	3d.	Summer and Winter	2d.
The Stormy Petrel	3d.	*Departed Joys	2d.
The Coral Grove	3d.	There's beauty in the deep	1½d.
Pibroch of Donuil Dhu	3d.	Soldier, rest!	1d.
Blow, Western Wind!	3d.	Woods in Winter	1d.
Stars of the Night	3d.	Autumn	1d.

HUMOROUS PART-SONGS.

*Three Doughtie Men. (60th thousand)	3d.
Three Children Sliding. (10th thousand)	3d.
A Ryghte Merrie Geste	4d.
The Snow-white Doe	4d.
*Ben Bowlegs (EDWARD OXENFORD)	3d.
The Carrion Crow	3d.
Call John!	3d.

DESCRIPTIVE CHORUSES.
With Pianoforte or Orchestral Accompaniments.

The Iron Horse	4d.	The Ocean	3d.
Off to Sea	4d.	*The Ironfounders (36th thou.)	3d.
Jäger Chorus	3d.	The Cyclists	4d.
The Lifeboat	4d.

Orchestral Parts on application to the COMPOSER, Elmham, Dereham.
Tonic Sol-fa Editions at half the above prices of those marked *.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

COMPOSITIONS
BY
T. MEE PATTISON.

	Staff. s. d.	Sol-fa. s. d.
CANTATAS.
The Ancient Mariner	2 6	0 6
Do. do. (Choruses only)	1 0
The Lay of the Last Minstrel	2 6
Do. do. (Choruses only)	1 0
May Day	1 0	0 6
The Miracles of Christ (Sacred)	1 0	0 6
ANTHEMS, &c.
All Thy works praise Thee (Harvest)	0 3	0 1
Thou visitest the earth (Harvest)	0 2
I know that my Redeemer liveth (Easter)	0 3
There were shepherds (Christmas)	0 2
Thirteen Offertory Sentences	0 4
Six Kyries	0 2
Te Deum laudamus (in F)	0 3

ORIGINAL ORGAN COMPOSITIONS.

Fifteen Introductory and Concluding Voluntaries	3s. 6d.
Five Concluding Voluntaries	1s. 6d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PERFORMED WITH GREAT SUCCESS AT ST. JAMES'S HALL, LONDON, MAY 11, 1896.

FOUR

ENGLISH DANCES

IN THE OLDEN STYLE

COMPOSED BY

F. H. COWEN.

1. STATELY DANCE. | 3. GRACEFUL DANCE.
2. RUSTIC DANCE. | 4. COUNTRY DANCE.

Arrangement for Pianoforte Solo by the COMPOSER.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE NET.

Orchestral Parts, Strings, 1s. 6d. each; Wind Parts, 12s.; Violin and Pianoforte, 3s. Arrangements for Military Band, 15s.

Arrangement for Small Orchestra by JOHN E. WEST.

Strings, 1s. 6d. each; Wind, 9s.

PRESS NOTICES.

THE TIMES.

A special attraction of the concert was the first performance, under the composer's direction, of a new Suite of "Four English Dances," by Mr. F. H. Cowen, a work no less effective and graceful than the Suite given last week at the Philharmonic. The opening movement, a "Stately Dance," is exceedingly characteristic and original; the second, a "Rustic Dance," has, among prominent parts for wood-wind instruments, a delightful flourish for oboe; the succeeding "Graceful Dance," though a good deal like several other compositions of Mr. Cowen, prepares well for the final "Country Dance," a most attractive measure.

DAILY TELEGRAPH.

These pieces, written for the most part "in the old style," are agreeable examples of a composer who is never at fault when he sets himself to charm by simple and graceful means. Orchestral societies desiring to cultivate works that are not too heavily strewn with stumbling-blocks cannot do better than make the acquaintance of this pleasing little Suite.

STANDARD.

A feature of the evening was the first performance of Four English Dances, written for orchestra by Mr. F. H. Cowen. These are respectively named "Stately Dance," "Rustic Dance," "Graceful Dance," and "Country Dance," names which well describe their several characters. As may be imagined, they are all scored in a most picturesque manner. They were excellently played under the direction of the composer, and the double recall he received to the platform testified to the pleasure his work had afforded the audience.

DAILY NEWS.

These brief, but highly effective, pieces avowedly imitate the old style, and they are entitled respectively a "stately" dance, a "rustic" dance—very quaint and pretty, and not without its traces of humour—a graceful, and a country dance. The composer, who conducted, was recalled to the platform, and his new Suite will beyond much question be heard of again.

MORNING POST.

Additional interest was imparted to the programme by its inclusion of "Four English Dances" for orchestra, by Mr. F. H. Cowen, which were heard on this occasion for the first time. These are attractive imitations of the forms in which our forefathers took delight. They are all most effectively scored, and are of that graceful and refined character which is expected in works by this gifted writer. They were warmly received, and doubtless will be often heard at the concerts of amateur orchestral societies, for which they are very suitable.

GLOBE.

An orchestral concert, under Mr. Cowen, was given last night at the St. James's Hall. Four charming English Dances in the old style, by Mr. Cowen, were performed for the first time, and achieved an undoubted success.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just Published.

The Day School Hymn Book

NEW AND ENLARGED EDITION

EDITED BY

EMMA MUNDELLA.

THE HYMNS ONLY, WITHOUT TUNES.

Price, in linen cover, 6d.; in cloth, 1s.

Music Edition, cloth, small demy 8vo, price 3s. 6d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

COMMUNION SERVICE

TROISIÈME MESSE SOLENNELLE

(DE PÂQUES)

COMPOSED BY

CHARLES GOUNOD.

THE ENGLISH ADAPTATION BY

F. A. W. DOCKER.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

Full Score, 40s.; Orchestral Parts, 31s.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FESTAL MARCH

FOR FULL ORCHESTRA

COMPOSED BY

GEORGE J. ELVEY.

String Parts	2s. 0d.
Wind Parts	4s. 9d.
Full Score, MS.

ALSO PUBLISHED FOR

Pianoforte Solo	2s. 0d.
Organ	1s. 6d.
Military Band	5s. 0d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WILLIAM J. YOUNG'S POPULAR PART-SONGS for S.A.T.B.

A merry Christmas to you all!	9th thousand	3d.
Hail! merry Christmas	24th ,,	2d.
Songs of praise the angels sang	7th ,,	3d.
A Happy New Year!	5th ,,	3d.
England's glory	8th ,,	3d.
Fairy Revels	13th ,,	3d.
Gaily thro' the greenwood	55th ,,	2d.
Gaily thro' (Duet for two Sopranos)	1st ,,	2d.
Blow, ye balmy breezes, blow	9th ,,	3d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; or, COMPOSER, 51, Barton Arcade Manchester.

IMPORTANT TO PIANO TEACHERS AND STUDENTS.

INDEX-PAGE to CZERNY'S 101 EXERCISES, with PREFACE by A. DIELMANN, Professor of Music (Leips. Cons.), giving the numbers in their progressive order of difficulty.

This sheet may easily be attached to any copy of Czerny's 101 Exercises.

Price 2d., from all Musicsellers.

Wholesale from A. DIELMANN, 277, Oxford Road, Manchester.

Sent Post-free for 2½d. in stamps.

CRITICISM AND THE CRITICISM OF MUSIC.

By ROENTGEN RAY.—Mr. Joseph Bennett writes in "Music of the Day": "'The Pilgrims' Progress' has done good, and so may the newest book on musical criticism." Price 7½d., post-free.

SANDERS PHILLIPS and Co., Ltd., 7, Upper Thames Street, E.C.

NURSERY RHYMES and RIGMAROLIA, with 164 Tunes. Old Nursery Rhymes and Songs, with 194 Tunes. By W. H. HAMMOND JONES. 2s. 6d. each.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR CELEBRATIONS OF THE QUEEN'S REIGN.

SACRED MUSIC.

CORONATION ANTHEM, "Let Thy hand be strengthened" .. .. .. Handel — s. 0 d. 6
Orchestral parts, with additional accompaniments by E. Silas, 4s.; Full Score, MS.

CORONATION ANTHEM, "My heart is inditing" .. .. Handel — 0 8
Chorus parts, 1s. 6d.; Orchestral parts, with additional accompaniments by E. Silas, 5s. 9d.; Full score, MS.

CORONATION ANTHEM, "The King shall rejoice" .. .. Handel — 0 8
Vocal parts, 1s. 9d.; Orchestral parts, with additional accompaniments by E. Silas, 6s.; Full score, MS.

CORONATION ANTHEM, "Zadok the Priest" Handel — 0 3
Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.; Vocal parts, 1s. 1½d.; Orchestral parts, with additional accompaniments by E. Silas, 4s.; Full score, MS.

FESTIVAL TE DEUM. For Soprano Solo, Chorus, Orchestra, Organ, and Military Band (ad lib.) .. .. .. Arthur Sullivan — 1 0
Paper boards, 1s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 2s. 6d.; Vocal parts, 4s.; String parts, 4s. 6d.; Wind parts, 11s.; Military Band parts, 5s.; Full score, 25s.

THANKSGIVING TE DEUM in D John Goss — 0 6
Folio, 2s.; Vocal parts (folio), 2s.

THE RESPONSES and PROPER PSALMS, with Chants for the Accession Service .. — 0 1½

LET EVERY SOUL BE SUBJECT UNTO THE HIGHER POWERS. Anthem. For Soprano and Tenor Solo and Chorus J. Stainer — 0 1½
Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

LORD, THOU ART GOD. Anthem. For Tenor Solo and Chorus .. .. .. J. Stainer — 0 8

THE KING SHALL REJOICE. Anthem. Robert Stewart — 0 6

BEHOLD, O GOD, OUR DEFENDER. Anthem. F. W. Hird — 0 4

HEAR, O GOD, HEAR MY CRY (Psalm lxi.). Hebrew and English Bible (Revised) Version A. M. Friedlander — 0 6

LORD OF LIFE. Prayer from "A Jubilee Ode." (S.A.T.B.) .. .. .. A. C. Mackenzie — 0 3

MY HEART IS INDITING. Anthem Myles B. Foster — 0 4
Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.
(In the Press.)

SECULAR MUSIC.

A JUBILEE ODE. For Soprano and Tenor Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra. (Op. 36.) A. C. Mackenzie — 2 6

MORE THAN CROWN OF MONARCH PRECIOUS. Soprano Solo from above .. — 2 0

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN. Arranged by Sir Michael Costa — 0 3
Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.; Vocal parts, 6d.; Full score, 2s. 6d.; Orchestral parts, 5s. 8d.

Ditto, ditto. Arranged by Vincent Novello — 0 3
Vocal parts, 6d.; Orchestral parts, 3s.

Ditto, ditto. Harmonised by Vincent Novello — 0 1½
Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.

Ditto, ditto. Arranged for Male Voices by J. Barnby — 0 2

* Ditto. Arranged for Three Parts (S.S.C.) .. — 0 1½

RULE, BRITANNIA. Harmonised by Vincent Novello — 0 1½
Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.

SECULAR MUSIC—continued.

THE QUEEN—GOD BLESS HER! A Patriotic Part-Song (S.A.T.B.) .. Myles B. Foster — 0 1½
Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.

* Ditto. Arranged for Solo and Three-part Chorus (S.S.A.) .. .. — 0 1½

VICTORIA—OUR QUEEN! .. J. Barnby — 0 3
Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

* Ditto. Arranged for Two Parts, S. and A. .. — 0 1

THE TRIUMPH OF VICTORIA. Madrigal. For Five Voices (S.S.A.T.B.) .. J. Stainer — 0 6
Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.

VICTORIA. An Ode (S.A.T.B.) .. G. J. Elvey — 1 0

QUEEN OF OUR ISLE. Chorus (S.S.T.T.B.) Sir Henry R. Bishop — 0 1½

THE EMPIRE FLAG. A Patriotic Song. For Solo and Chorus .. .. A. C. Mackenzie — 2 0

Ditto. Arranged for S.A.T.B. .. .. .. — 0 1½
Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

ENGLAND. (S.A.T.B.) .. .. J. L. Hatton — 0 3
Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.

Ditto. Arranged for S.S.A. .. .. .. — 0 2

YE GALLANT MEN OF ENGLAND. (S.A.T.B.) E. Hecht — 0 3

YE MARINERS OF ENGLAND. (S.A.T.B.) H. Hugh Pierson — 0 6
Chorus parts, 6d.; Orchestral parts, 5s. 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

Ditto. Arranged as a Song .. .. .. — 1 6

HURRAH FOR MERRY ENGLAND. Solo, with Chorus. (S.A.T.B.).. H. Hugh Pierson — 0 1½
Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.

Ditto. Arranged for S.S.A. .. .. .. — 0 2

HURRAH FOR MERRY ENGLAND. (S.A.T.B.) Francesco Berger — 0 1½

Ditto. Folio Edition, with Pianoforte Accompaniment .. .. — 1 0

NOW PRAY WE FOR OUR COUNTRY. (S.A.T.B.) .. .. Eliza Flower — 0 1½
Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.

PATRIOTIC PART-SONGS for the use of the Army, Navy, and Volunteers. Arranged and adapted by James Tilleard .. complete — 0 6
Or, in 19 Nos., 1d. each.

IN THE PRESS:—

IMPERIAL MARCH .. .. Edward Elgar

VICTORIA; or, THE BARD'S PROPHECY. Cantata. The Words by Rev. Charles Kent. The Music by G. F. Huntley, Mus. Doc. ..

THE BANNER OF ST. GEORGE. Choral Ballad. The Words by Shapcott Wensley. The Music by Edward Elgar .. .. ..

VICTORIA—OUR QUEEN! March. Founded on themes from Barnby's popular National Song by John E. West .. ..

SCHOOL SONGS.

(See also above for S.A. and S.S.A. arrangements of various Four-part Songs.)

TRIOS.

ALBION .. .. Marie Wurm — 0 2

* ST. GEORGE FOR ENGLAND G. A. Macfarren — 0 1½

TWO-PART SONG.

* YE MARINERS OF ENGLAND H. Hugh Pierson — 0 1½

UNISON SONGS.

* HURRAH FOR ENGLAND W. W. Pearson — 0 1

* OLD ENGLAND'S HEROES Rev. W. J. Foxell — 0 1½

* NEPTUNE AND BRITANNIA Rev. W. J. Foxell — 0 1½

For other Patriotic School Songs, see Novello's Catalogue and Lists.

 *The pieces marked * are issued in Staff Notation and Tonic Sol-fa combined.*

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

COMPOSITIONS OF J. S. BACH.

Cantatas, Motets, &c.

	s.	d.
Mass, in B minor	2	6
Missa Brevis, in A	1	6
The Passion (S. Matthew)	2	6
The Passion (S. Matthew), St. Paul's use ...	1	6
The Passion (S. John)	2	0
Christmas Oratorio	2	0
Magnificat	1	0
God goeth up with shouting	1	0
God so loved the world	1	0
God's time is the best ... ... (Sol-fa, 6d.)	1	0
My Spirit was in heaviness	1	0
O Light Everlasting	1	0
Bide with us	1	0
A Stronghold sure	1	0
Thou Guide of Israel	1	0
Jesu, Priceless Treasure	1	0
When will God recall my Spirit	1	0
Jesus, now will we praise Thee	1	0
Now shall the grace. Double Choir	0	8
Sanctus	0	6
Sanctus, No. 2, and Orchestra	0	4
Blessing, glory, wisdom, and thanks. 8 v. Voc. score, 3s. 6d.; 8vo, 6d.; Voc. parts	2	0
Come unto Me. Double Choir. Adapted by J. Stainer from the Passion (S. Matthew) ...	0	3
God, my King. Adapted by R. R. Ross. 4 v. Voc. score, 1½d.; Voc. parts	0	3
Motets or Anthems. English and German Words:—
No. 1. Sing ye to the Lord. Double Choir. Voc. score, 4s. 6d.; Voc. parts	4	1½
2. Be not afraid. Double Choir. Voc. score, 3s.; Do., 8vo, 6d.; Sol-fa, 4d.; Voc. parts	3	9
3. I wrestle and pray. Double Choir. Voc. score, 2s.; Do., 8vo, 4d.; Sol-fa, 2d.; Voc. parts	2	0
4. Come, Jesu, come. Double Choir. Voc. Score, 3s.; Voc. parts	3	0
5. Jesu, King of Glory. S.S.A.T.B. Voc. score, 5s. 6d.; Voc. parts	4	3
6. The Spirit also helpeth us. Double Choir. Voc. score, 3s.; Voc. parts	4	0

Literature.

J. S. Bach. His work and influence on the Music of Germany, 1685-1750, by Philipp Spitta. Translated from the German by Clara Bell and Fuller Maitland ... ... 3 vols.	42	0

Songs.

Three Songs (from Anna Magdalena Bach's "Musicbook"). Edited, with a Pianoforte Accompaniment, by C. A. Barry	2	0
1. "Gedenke doch, mein Geist zurücke" ("Consider well, my soul").
2. "Bist du bei mir" ("Stay thou with me").
3. "Erbauliche Gedanken eines Tabaks-rauchers" ("Edifying thoughts of a smoker").
Twenty Sacred Songs	1	6

Organ.

	s.	d.
The Organ Works of J. S. Bach. Edited by J. F. Bridge, Mus. Doc., and J. Higgs, Mus. Bac.
Book 1. Eight Short Preludes and Fugues ...	2	6
2. Preludes, Fugues and Trio	3	0
3. Fantasias, Preludes and Fugues ...	3	0
4. Sonatas for Two Manuals and Pedal	3	0
5. Sonatas for Two Manuals and Pedal	3	0
6. Preludes and Fugues	3	0
7. Preludes and Fugues	3	0
8. Preludes and Fugues	3	0
9. Toccatas, Preludes and Fugues ...	3	0
10. Toccata, Preludes and Fugues ...	3	0
11. Four Concertos	3	0
12. Fantasias, Preludes and Fugues ...	3	0
Grand Studies for the Organ	10	6
Six Short Preludes and Fugues. Edited by C. Steggall. In 2 Books ... ... each	2	0

Harmonium.

Gavotte in D minor. Arranged by Förster ...	1	6
Passacaglia. Arranged by L. A. Zellner ...	1	6
Six Celebrated Pieces. Transcribed by King Hall	1	0
Meditation. Arranged by Gounod for Harmonium and Pianoforte	2	0

Pianoforte.

Forty-eight Preludes and Fugues, in all the major and minor keys (The Well-tempered Clavichord). Edited and Collated with all former editions by W. T. Best	6	0
Short Preludes and other Pieces for the Clavier. Edited, with a short preface, by James Higgs	1	6
Inventions in Two and Three Parts for the Clavier. Edited, with a preface and short analysis of the several pieces, by James Higgs	1	6
Pianoforte Albums, Nos. 1, 2, and 3, each containing 20 pieces. Edited by Berthold Tours. In 1 vol. ... ... cloth	4	0
Or, singly ... ... each	1	0
Air and Gavotte from Suite in D, by Schulhoff	1	6
Bourrée, in E flat, by A. Zimmermann... ...	1	6
Bourrée, in C, by ditto	1	6
Gavotte, in G, by ditto	1	6
Gavotte, in B minor, from the 2nd Violin Sonata. Arranged by C. Saint-Saëns	1	3
Gavotte, in E...	1	3
Gavottes and Musettes, Two ... ... each	1	0
Menuet and Courante ... ... each	1	0
My heart ever faithful (C. Lahmeyer)	1	3
Prelude, in C, First	1	0
Sonata, No. 2, Suites Anglaises, in D minor ...	2	6
Suite Française, First	1	0

Pianoforte and Violin.

Chaconne with Variations. Accompaniment by Mendelssohn	3	9
Aria for the Fourth String...	1	0

Pianoforte and Flute.

Aria	1	0

NEW FOREIGN PUBLICATIONS.

	s.	d.
BOSLET, L.—Sonata, No. 2. For the Organ	6	0
BRAHMS, JOH.—Four Serious Songs. For Bass. German and English Words. Op. 121	8	0
—— The same. For Baritone or Mezzo-Soprano	8	0
CARREÑO, T.—Quartet (B minor). For Strings. (Two Violins, Viola, and Violoncello):—
Score .. .. net	3	0
Parts .. .. „	6	0
CASORTI, A.—Studies for the Violin (Double-stopping) net	4	0
DARGOMIJSKY — TSCHAÏKOWSKY. — Danse Cosaque (Cosakschoque):—
Pianoforte Solo	5	0
Pianoforte Duet	6	0
DVOŘÁK, A.—Te Deum:—
Full Score .. .. net	20	0
Vocal Score .. .. „	4	0
FUCHS, R.—Twenty Duets. For Two Violins (First position). Op. 55. Two Books .. .. each, net	1	6
—— "Amoretten." Easy Pieces (First position). For Violin and Pianoforte. Two Books .. .. .. each, net	4	0
GLAZOUNOW, A.—"Carnaval." Overture. For Orchestra (Organ ad lib.):—
Full Score .. .. net	10	0
Parts .. .. „	20	0
Pianoforte Duet .. .. „	4	0
—— Symphonie (in B), No. 5. For Orchestra:—
Full Score .. .. net	28	0
Orchestral Parts .. .. „	60	0
GLUCK—MOTTL.—Ballet-Suite. For Full Orchestra:—
Full Score .. .. net	8	0
GOUNOD, CH.—Larghetto (Œuvre Posthume):—
No. 1. For Violin, Viola, Cello, Pedal Piano, or Organ, net	4	0
„ 2. For Violin, Viola, Violoncello, and Pianoforte (Double-Bass ad lib.) .. .. net	3	0
„ 3. For Violin, Viola, Violoncello, and Harmonium (Double-Bass ad lib.) .. .. net	3	0
„ 4. For Violin and Pianoforte .. .. .. „	2	6
„ 5. For Violin and Harmonium .. .. .. „	2	6
GRIEG, E.—"Zug der Zwerge." Op. 54, No. 3. .. „	1	1
—— "Zwei nordische Weisen." For Piano Solo. Op. 63 „	1	8
—— The same. For String Orchestra. Full Score .. „	4	0
—— "Peer Gynt." For Two Pianos (Eight hands). Op. 46 „	3	3
HUMPERDINCK, E.—"Die Königskinder." Prelude to Act II.:—
Full Score .. .. net	10	6
Orchestral Parts .. .. „	12	0
—— The same. For Pianoforte Solo .. .. .. „	2	0
—— Prelude to Act III.:—
Full Score .. .. „	8	0
Orchestral Parts .. .. „	12	0
—— The same. For Pianoforte Solo .. .. .. „	2	0
KRETSCHMER, E.—"Wedding Music." Suite. For Orchestra. Op. 54:—
Full Score .. .. net	6	0
Orchestral Parts .. .. „	8	0
LACOME, P.—Berceuse. For Strings .. .. .. „	2	6
—— The same. For Violin and Pianoforte	4	0
LAUTERBACH, JOH.—Allegro Scherzoso. For Violin and Pianoforte. Op. 13	6	0
RAMEAU, J. PH.—Œuvres complètes. Vol. II. Containing: Four Concertos for Clavecin (Pianoforte), Violin (or Flute), Viola (or 2nd violin); Six Concertos for Strings (Sextet). Complete, Score and Parts .. .. net	24	0
SAINT-SAËNS.—Javotte (Ballet). Pianoforte Score .. „	10	0
—— Fifth Concerto (in F). For Piano and Orchestra. Op. 103:—
Full Score .. .. net	15	0
Orchestral Parts .. .. „	25	0
Pianoforte Solo .. .. „	8	0
Two Pianofortes (Duet) .. .. „	16	0
SALTER, N.—Scale Studies. For Violoncello .. .. „	5	0
SAURET, E.—"Gradus ad Parnassum." Studies for the Violin. Book IV.	12	0
SCHRÖDER, C.—Trio. For Two Violins and Violoncello. Op. 80	6	0
SCHÜTT, E.—Concerto (in F minor). For Pianoforte. Op. 47	16	0
—— "Carnaval mignon." Scènes pour Piano	8	0
SINDING.—Suite. For Pianoforte Duet .. .. .. net	3	3
—— Romanza. For Violin and Pianoforte .. .. .. „	1	8
SNOER, J.—Practical Method for the Harp .. .. „	8	0
STENHAMMAR, W.—Three Fantasias. For Piano. Op. 11	6	0
STIX, C.—Légende. For String Orchestra, Harp (or Pianoforte), and Organ (or Harmonium). Op. 141:—
Score .. .. net	2	0
Parts	5	0
—— Idylle. For String Orchestra (Harp or Piano ad lib.). Op. 48:—
Score .. .. net	1	6
Parts	4	0
TANÉIËW, S.—Second Quartet (C major). For Two Violins, Viola, and Violoncello. Op. 5:—
Score .. .. net	1	6
Parts .. .. „	10	0
THOMÉ—GUILMANT.—Andante religioso. For Organ ..	5	0
TSCHAÏKOWSKY, P.—Overture, "L'Orage." For Orchestra:—
Full Score .. .. net	8	0
Orchestral Parts .. .. „	24	0
Pianoforte Duet .. .. „	4	0

Sold at half-price, if not marked net.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just Published.

ENGLISH LYRICS

(FOURTH SET)

SET TO MUSIC BY

C. H. H. PARRY.

1. Thine eyes still shined for me .. .. .. Emerson.
2. When lovers meet again .. Langdon Elwyn Mitchell.
3. When we two parted .. .. Byron.
4. Weep you no more .. .. Anon.
5. There be none of beauty's daughters .. .. Byron.
6. Bright star .. .. Keats

Price Four Shillings net.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

(No. 54. Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Music Primers and Educational Series. Edited by Sir JOHN STAINER and Dr. C. HUBERT H. PARRY.)

SONATA FORM

BY

W. H. HADOW.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.
In paper boards, Three Shillings.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Will be Published immediately.

(No. 56. Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Music Primers and Educational Series. Edited by Sir JOHN STAINER and Dr. C. HUBERT H. PARRY.)

FORTY-EIGHT PRELUDES AND FUGUES

OF

JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH

ANALYSED FOR THE USE OF STUDENTS

BY

FREDERICK ILIFFE
M.A., MUS. DOC., OXON.

EXTRACT FROM PREFACE.

"The object of the present analysis is to place in the hands of students a detailed and exhaustive scheme of every Prelude and Fugue. In the Preludes the mode of procedure has been: (1) To give the Figure upon which each Prelude is built; (2) to give the Prelude itself in full and copiously marked, or in a reduced form showing the structure; (3) a 'Summary' of the piece; and lastly, general 'Remarks' upon the structure and treatment of the materials. For the Fugues a Tabulated Analysis—bar by bar—is first given, then a 'Summary' and 'Remarks' as before."

IN FOUR PARTS, PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH.
Or, complete in One Volume, Three Shillings;
in paper boards, Four Shillings.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S

LIST OF WORKS SUITABLE FOR PRESENTS & NEW YEAR'S PRIZES.

	s.	d.
J. S. BACH.—His Work and Influence on the Music of Germany, 1685-1750. By PHILIPP SPITTA. Three Vols. cloth	42	0
JOSEPH BENNETT.—Musical Biographies:
Hector Berlioz .. .. cloth	2	0
Frederick Chopin .. .. „	2	0
Cherubini .. .. „	2	0
Meyerbeer .. .. „	2	0
Rossini .. .. „	2	0
STERNDALE BENNETT.—Twelve Songs .. .. „	2	6
BERLIOZ.—A Treatise on Modern Instrumentation and Orchestration .. .. 8vo, cloth	12	0
BEETHOVEN.—Sonatas. A. ZIMMERMANN .. folio, cloth	21	0
—— Ditto .. .. Elegantly bound in whole Morocco, &c.	51	0
—— Ditto .. .. 8vo, cloth	7	6
J. BLUMENTHAL.—Two Books of Song .. paper, each	4	0
—— Ditto .. .. cloth, each	6	0
FREDERICK CHOPIN.—As a Man and Musician. By FREDERICK NIECKS. Two Vols.	25	0
CAPTAIN C. R. DAY.—The Music and Musical Instruments of Southern India and the Deccan. Illustrated with seventeen Plates. Handsomely bound	73	6
—— Ditto. Artist's proof copies, on finest Japanese paper ..	147	0
CATHEDRAL PRAYER BOOK (With Music):—
No. 1. Demy 8vo, 620 pp., large type. With Canticles and Psalter pointed for chanting .. Cloth, bevelled, red edges	6	0
No. 2. Demy 8vo, 592 pp., large type. With Canticles and Psalter pointed, set to appropriate Chants (Cathedral Psalter Chants) .. .. Cloth, bevelled, red edges	6	0
No. 3. Imperial 32mo, 692 pp., Pocket Edition. With Canticles and Psalter pointed for chanting. Cloth, bevelled, red edges	3	6
A large variety of Special Bindings in Stock.
CATHEDRAL PARAGRAPH PSALTER .. .. cloth	3	6
CHRISTMAS CAROLS.—New and Old. Rev. H. R. BRAMLEY, M.A., and J. STAINER. Beautifully Illustrated cloth, gilt	7	6
Library Edition, with historical Preface. Roxburgh binding	7	6
F. G. EDWARDS.—The History of Mendelssohn's Oratorio "Elijah" .. .. cloth, gilt	3	6
J. W. ELLIOTT.—National Nursery Rhymes and Songs. Beautifully Illustrated and elegantly bound	7	6
CARL ENGEL.—The Literature of National Music .. cloth	5	0
—— Researches into the Early History of the Violin Family cloth	7	6
SIR GEORGE GROVE.—Beethoven and his Nine Symphonies .. .. cloth, gilt	6	0
HANDEL.—"Messiah." Elegantly bound in whole calf. gilt edges, folio	34	0
—— Ditto .. .. folio, cloth	10	0
—— Ditto. Fac-simile of the Autograph Full Score cloth, gilt edges, toned paper	25	0
—— Ditto, ditto .. .. cloth, red edges	21	0
DR. EDUARD HANSLICK.—"The Beautiful in Music." A contribution to the revisal of Musical Æsthetics. Translated by GUSTAV COHEN .. .. cloth	6	0
MORITZ HAUPTMANN.—The Letters of a Leipzig Cantor. Translated and arranged by A. D. COLERIDGE. Two Vols. cloth, gilt	21	0
SIR JOHN HAWKINS.—The General History of the Science and Practice of Music. Two Vols. .. .. .. cloth	21	0
—— Supplementary Volume of Medallion Portraits, from the Original Plates .. .. cloth	16	0
H. HERKOMER.—Six Easy Pieces for the Violin. Illustrated	6	0
—— Ditto. Superior paper, illustrations on Japanese vellum, only a limited number printed (numbered and signed) ..	21	0
LADY ARTHUR HILL.—Holiday Songs..	2	6
A. J. HIPKINS.—A description and History of the Pianoforte and the older Keyboard Stringed Instruments paper boards	3	0
JENNY LIND.—A Record and Analysis of the "Method" of the late Jenny Lind-Goldschmidt. By W. S. ROCKSTRO cloth	2	0
A. C. MACKENZIE.—Eighteen Songs .. .. cloth, gilt	7	6
MENDELSSOHN.—Pianoforte Works (including the Lieder ohne Worte) .. .. folio, cloth, gilt	21	0
—— Ditto, ditto. Elegantly bound in whole Morocco folio, gilt edges	51	0
—— Ditto, ditto .. .. 8vo, cloth, gilt	10	0
—— Lieder ohne Worte. The only complete edition. Eight books (with Portrait of Composer) .. .. .. folio	12	0
—— Ditto, ditto .. .. folio, cloth, gilt	8	0
—— Ditto, ditto. Elegantly bound in whole Morocco .. folio	47	0
—— Ditto, ditto, ditto .. .. 8vo, gilt edges	17	6
—— Ditto, ditto .. .. 8vo, cloth, gilt	6	0
—— Ditto, ditto .. .. cloth, gilt	4	6
—— Symphonies (Solo) .. .. folio	12	0
—— Symphonies (Duet) .. .. „	15	0
—— Overtures (Solo) .. .. „	12	0
—— Overtures (Duet) .. .. „	15	0
—— "Elijah." Arranged by B. TOURS .. .. .. „	5	0
—— Songs .. .. folio, cloth, gilt	21	0
—— Songs .. .. 8vo, cloth, gilt	6	0
—— Songs (Deep Voice).. .. .. .. 8vo, cloth, gilt	8	0
MOORE.—Irish Melodies .. .. .. 8vo, cloth, gilt	4	0
—— Ditto .. .. folio, cloth, gilt	21	0
I. MOSCHELES.—Domestic Life. (Twenty-four characteristic Duets for Pianoforte). One Vol. .. .. cloth, gilt	4	0
MOZART.—Sonatas .. .. folio, cloth, gilt	18	0
—— Ditto .. .. .. bound in whole calf extra, gilt edges	48	0
—— Ditto .. .. 8vo, cloth, gilt	5	0
LIFE OF MOZART. By E. HOLMES. Including his Correspondence .. .. cloth	5	0
LIFE OF MOZART. By OTTO JAHN. Translated from the German by PAULINE D. TOWNSEND, with Five Portraits and Preface by Sir GEORGE GROVE, D.C.L. Three Vols. .. .. cloth	31	6
EMMA MUNDELLA.—The Day School Hymn-Book cloth, bevelled, red edges	3	6
NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S PIANOFORTE ALBUMS. Edited by BERTHOLD TOURS:— Pieces by Various Composers. Seventeen Vols. cloth, gilt, each	4	0
ORATORIOS, OPERAS, and CANTATAS (Novello's Original 8vo Edition). Any of the above can be had in Roan, rounded corners, red and gilt edges, price 3s. in excess of the marked price of the paper cover edition.
ALBERTO RANDEGGER.—Sacred Songs for Little Singers. Words by F. R. HAVERGAL. Illustrated .. cloth, gilt	5	0
RUBINSTEIN.—Eighteen Two-part Songs .. cloth, gilt	4	6
SCHUMANN.—Original Compositions for the Pianoforte. Edited by A. ZIMMERMANN. Vol. I. .. folio, cloth, gilt	21	0
—— Ditto, ditto .. .. 8vo, cloth, gilt	7	6
—— Ditto, ditto. Vol. II. .. .. .. folio, cloth, gilt	21	0
—— Ditto, ditto. Vol III. .. .. .. folio, cloth, gilt	21	0
—— Pianoforte Album for the Young.. .. .. cloth, gilt	4	6
—— Songs. Vol. I. Edited by N. MACFARREN folio, cloth, gilt	10	6
—— Vocal Album. Containing thirty of his most celebrated Songs .. .. cloth, gilt	4	6
SOUVENIR SONG BOOK. Containing forty-one Songs for Children by the best English and American Composers large 8vo, paper cover	3	0
C. STAINER.—A Dictionary of Violin Makers (paper bds., 3s.)	2	6
J. STAINER.—A Theory of Harmony. With Questions and Exercises for the use of Students .. .. cloth	7	6
—— A Dictionary of Musical Terms. By J. STAINER and W. A. BARRETT .. .. large 8vo, cloth	7	6
SUNLIGHT OF SONG.—A Collection of Sacred and Moral Songs. With forty-six Illustrations ..handsomely bound	5	0
—— Ditto .. .. paper boards	3	6
TWELVE NEW SONGS. By some of the best and best-known British Composers. Edited by H. BOULTON. With handsome Frontispiece by FRANK DICKSEE, R.A. .. cloth	12	0

Cheaper Editions of most of the above may also be had. For particulars see Catalogue.

	s.	d.
FREDERIC ARCHER.—The Organist's Journal .. cloth	15	0
J. S. BACH.—Grand Studies. Consisting of Preludes, Fugues, Toccatas, &c.	10	6
W. T. BEST.—Arrangements from Scores of the Great Masters. Five Vols. .. .. cloth, each	36	0
—— Fifteen Celebrated Marches. Arranged from Scores of the Great Masters	4	6
—— Collection of Pieces for Church Use .. .. cloth	12	0
—— Six Concert Pieces	8	0
SIR JOHN GOSS.—Collection of Voluntaries .. .. cloth	3	0
—— The Organist's Companion. Four Vols. .. cloth, each	5	0
CH. GOUNOD.—A Selection of Movements from "The Redemption." Arranged by Dr. G. C. MARTIN	5	0
—— A Selection of Movements from "Mors et Vita." Arranged by Dr. G. C. MARTIN..	5	0
HANDEL.—Six Organ Concertos	7	6
—— Choruses. Arranged by H. G. NIXON. Two Vols. each	20	0
JOHN HILES.—Hand-Book for the Organ	21	0
—— Short Voluntaries. Five Vols. .. .. .. cloth, each	5	0
LÉFÉBURE WÉLY.—Six Grand Offertoires	2	6
—— The Modern Organist .. .. cloth	12	0
J. LEMMENS.—Four Organ Pieces in the Free Style	6	0
—— Trois Sonates..	7	6
T. R. MATTHEWS.—The Village Organist .. .. cloth	5	0
MENDELSSOHN.—Six Grand Sonatas, and Three Preludes and Fugues. Edited by W. T. BEST	5	0
—— Twelve Lieder ohne Worte. Arranged for Organ paper cover, oblong	3	0
S. NEUKOMM.—Elementary Method for the Organ or Harmonium .. .. cloth	10	6
C. H. RINK.—Practical Organ School. Edited by W. T. BEST cloth	12	0
DR. W. SPARK.—The Organist's Quarterly Journal. Nine Vols. .. .. cloth, each	21	0
DR. W. J. WESTBROOK.—Voluntaries for the Organ. Three Vols. .. .. cloth, each	10	6
—— The Young Organist. Two Vols. .. .. cloth, each	7	6

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

NOVELLO'S
OPERETTAS AND CANTATAS.

SUITABLE FOR PERFORMANCE AT BAZAARS, FANCY FAIRS, &c.

YE OLDE ENGLYSHE PASTYMES

BY REV. F. W. GALPIN.

"The Rev. F. W. Galpin's skilful arrangement of 'Olde Englyshe Pastymes,' with its careful directions as to their performance, should be as successful in London as in the country, where the entertainment was first given. The music, mostly chosen from old sources and put together with real artistic ability, has an additional value as a collection of beautiful examples of English dances and songs."—The Times.

Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations combined, 1s. 6d.

DRUMS AND VOICES

OR,

THE GRENADIER CAP

AN OPERETTA FOR GIRLS, IN ONE ACT

WORDS AND MUSIC BY HAMILTON CLARKE.

"Mistresses of senior departments on the look-out for a work for entertainment purposes will find here a most effective operetta. Dialogue and music are bright and taking, and no difficulty should be found in delighting an audience with it."—Board Teacher.

Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations combined, 2s.
Tonic Sol-fa, 9d.

THE ELFIN QUEEN

CANTATA FOR GIRLS ONLY

ARTHUR CHAPMAN. CLEMENT LOCKNANE.

"This cantata presents to us musically a most smooth bit of work of almost faultless execution, but being easy and tuneful throughout."—The Journal of Education.

Staff Notation, 2s. 6d.

RED RIDING-HOOD'S RECEPTION

EDWARD OXENFORD. THOMAS FACER.

"A pretty and well-written operetta. The work is well conceived and happily arranged for performance. The music is bright, tuneful, simple, and in both notations."—Bristol Times and Mirror.

Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations combined, 2s. 6d.
Tonic Sol-fa, 9d.

THE

ENCHANTED PALACE

SHAPCOTT WENSLEY. ARTHUR SOMERVELL.

"Mr. Arthur Somervell's 'Enchanted Palace' is an exceedingly pretty treatment in easy operatic form of the Sleeping Beauty story; there is plenty of fun in it, the libretto by Shapcott Wensley provides speaking as well as singing parts, and the whole is as graceful an entertainment for the purpose as could be imagined. The Princess's last song has a deeper expression than the rest of the little work, and both it and the lovely waltz deserve to be heard apart from the piece as a whole."—The Times.

Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations combined, 2s.
Tonic Sol-fa, 8d.

THE HOURS

OPERETTA FOR FEMALE VOICES

SHAPCOTT WENSLEY. J. L. ROECKEL.

"In 'The Hours,' a cantata for female voices, by J. L. Roeckel, Mr. Shapcott Wensley has written a graceful little allegory, and collaborated with the composer of the melodious and dramatic music in producing a refined and charming work. The properties and scenes are easily attainable, and the number of the dramatis personæ may be readily increased by lengthening the series of 'The Hours.'"—Educational Times.

Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations combined, 2s.
Tonic Sol-fa, 9d.

ALL THE YEAR ROUND

CHARLES KARLYLE & AMY BRIAND. GUSTAV ERNEST.

"We are pleased to introduce to the notice of teachers a cantata so full of music, which, to say the least, is never meaningless or commonplace."—Schoolmaster.

Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations combined, 2s. 6d.
Tonic Sol-fa, 9d.

THE DAISY CHAIN

WORDS AND MUSIC BY HAMILTON CLARKE.

"Both music and libretto show the composer is equally at home when handling music of a comic character as when treating more serious and instructive work."—Daily News.

Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations combined, 2s. 6d.
Tonic Sol-fa, 9d.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUES FREE ON APPLICATION.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

OPINIONS OF THE LONDON AND PROVINCIAL PRESS

ON

A. R. GAUL'S CANTATA

"UNA."

COMPOSED FOR AND PRODUCED AT THE NORWICH MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1893.

"Has made its way wherever heard. . . . Full of the melodious tuneful spirit which breathes in all Mr. Gaul's work, and will add yet another leaf to the wreath which has crowned the efforts of the masterly composer of the 'Holy City' and other works."—Putney Borough News.

"'Una' differs considerably from some of the earlier works of Mr. Gaul. Mr. Frederick Enoch is the capable librettist, and in setting his words to music, Mr. Gaul has scored another marked success."—Nelson Chronicle.

"Mr. Gaul's music is, as usual with him, replete with spontaneous melody. The soprano solo, 'O love will love,' is really a delicious piece of writing."—Manchester Examiner.

"Mr. Gaul's choral writing is always fluent and pleasing, and this is fast becoming something to be thankful for."—Leeds Mercury.

"Is in keeping with Mr. Gaul's previous works. . . . Contains some beautiful numbers, especially the Angelus chorus, with the campanel introduction.—South-Western World."

"This composer sees no reason to change the method which has popularised his name wherever choral societies need music that is musicianly, melodious, and within the scope of moderate executive means. The result, in the present case, leaves no doubt that into all the places which know his previous compositions 'Una' will find a way and become as much a favourite as its forerunners. . . . Mr. Gaul considers before all things the elegance and symmetry of his melodic phrases. . . . The two orchestral numbers—an Introduction and an Intermezzo entitled 'Early morning in the woods'—are both in the gentle, flowing, and melodious style which seems the natural expression of Mr. Gaul's musical feeling."—Musical Times.

"To the list of works which have proved widely acceptable, 'Una' should be added, for the flow of pleasant unaffected tune and the simple and suave part-writing are just as noteworthy as in 'The Holy City' and 'Joan of Arc.'"—Athenæum.

"Over the country there exist hundreds of choral associations who demand music within their means. For these Mr. Gaul has catered, and it only remains to inquire whether he has done his work well. This undoubtedly can be answered in the affirmative. The best appreciated numbers to-night were an 'Angelus' chorus, with bell accompaniment; a tenor ballad, a duet for the tenor and contralto, a soprano solo for Una, and a chorus of the forest people with waltz refrain."—Daily News.

"Where our townsman is mostly at home is in his charming flow of melody and effective and flowing choral writing. The whole work is from beginning to end replete with delicious passages, and will prove one of the best productions from his fertile pen. No one knows better than Mr. Gaul what is suitable and acceptable to choral societies and what the masses like. He writes for his people, and his success lies in that direction. We may safely predict for 'Una' a similar popularity to that accorded to 'The Holy City.'"—Birmingham Daily Mail.

"Without doubt the Concert of Wednesday evening was the most popular feature of the whole Festival, for in addition to the attraction afforded by the appearance of M. Paderewski, the interest of the Norwich people was aroused to the fullest by the production of Mr. Gaul's 'Una,' a new work specially written for the occasion by a fellow-citizen by birth, and a distinguished musician as well. Every seat was occupied, and the audience included distinguished members of society, social and artistic, who, as the evening advanced, threw off all restraint and united together in giving a hearty East Anglican welcome to the Norwich musician and his artistic associate, M. Paderewski. The performance of Mr. Gaul's new work was a self-evident success. Mr. Gaul has his hand in a favourable position on the pulse of the public, and no one is better acquainted with the qualifications which go to make up a successful Cantata. The Angelus chorus made a lasting impression on its hearers, the introduction of the campanels (which were especially made for the occasion by Messrs. Martineau and Smith, of Birmingham) giving a most picturesque colouring to the whole. The heartiness which marked the performance augured well for the future of the work, and was also shown in the reception given to Mr. Gaul at the conclusion, when he was heartily congratulated. Further evidence of the favour with which the Cantata is regarded may be inferred from the announcement that six performances of it have already been arranged."—Norfolk Chronicle and Norwich Gazette.

"We believe that Mr. Gaul has attained greater popularity with small English provincial choral societies than any other composer, living or dead."—London Daily Graphic.

"Very pleasing it is, abounding in smoothly-flowing passages, and there is no doubt at all but that it will become very popular with the smaller choral societies, for which the composer has done a great deal already, and thereby placed the musical world under an obligation which cannot be gainsaid. There are many steps to the temple of the Muses, and those who render assistance at the middle height do as great a service as those who chant pæans of praise at the summit."—Norwich Argus.

"Musicianly, melodious, and pleasing. Mr. Gaul has for a long time been well known, and has done good service to the divine art. This new work of his, 'Una,' is quite one of his best."—Musical Standard.

"The general features of the work are those we have had occasion to notice before. Refinement and finish in the vocal writing, the accompaniment subordinated to the voices, whether solo or chorus; elegant part-writing, and well-rounded phrasing. The form is that of the classic school, before dramatic demands worked the revolution so conspicuous in the music of to-day. Mr. Gaul has apparently set himself limits he has no desire to overstep, but within those limits he moves with always increasing freedom; and the conviction is borne upon one that if he sought to be more ambitious he has the power to achieve his aim. . . . Distinguished by sound musicianship, if also with artistic restraint, and choral societies will heartily welcome this latest product of his pen."—Birmingham Daily Post.

"The pleasant and unaffected vein of melody noticeable in his 'Joan of Arc,' 'The Holy City,' and other works is evidently not exhausted. The Cantata may be heartily recommended to the notice of the innumerable smaller bodies which now flourish in every corner of the United Kingdom."—Standard.

"Is there not a definite mission for those who make good music possible without a London orchestra and expensive principals? I think there is."—Norfolk Daily Standard.

"Choral societies of moderate executive powers need a caterer able to supply them with pieces suited to their means, and they have long shown that Mr. Gaul is a composer whom they are glad to accept. 'Una' will find its way amongst them easily."—Daily Telegraph.

	s.	d.		s.	d.
Paper cover .. .. price	2	6	Tonic Sol-fa .. .. price	1	0
„ boards .. .. „	3	0	Vocal parts .. .. each „	1	0
„ cloth, gilt.. .. .. „	4	0	Words only .. .. per 100 „	7	6

The loan of Instrumental Parts may be had on application to the COMPOSER, and full liberty is given to perform this Cantata and to insert the words in any programme without further permission.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

FOR THE SCHUBERT CENTENARY (1797-1897).

COMPOSITIONS BY FRANZ SCHUBERT

PUBLISHED BY NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

MASS in F. Vocal score, 1s.; paper boards, 1s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 2s. 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 9d. Full score, 9s. 6d. Orchestral Parts, 18s.; Ditto, arranged for Strings, Two Trombones, Drums, and Organ, 12s.

DITTO. Arranged as Communion Service. 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 3s. 6d.

MASS in B flat. Vocal score, 1s.; paper boards, 1s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 2s. 6d. Orchestral and Organ Parts, 16s. Full score, 4s. 6d.

DITTO. Arranged as Communion Service, 2s.; cloth, gilt, 3s. 6d.

MASS in G. Vocal score, 1s.; paper boards, 1s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 2s. 6d. Orchestral Parts, 6s. Full score, 3s.

DITTO. Arranged as Communion Service. 2s.; cloth, gilt, 3s. 6d.

MASS in C. Vocal score, 1s.; paper boards, 1s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 2s. 6d. Orchestral and Organ Parts, 9s. Full score, 4s.

DITTO. Arranged as Communion Service, 2s.; cloth, gilt, 3s. 6d.

MASS in A flat. Vocal score, 1s. 6d.; paper boards, 1s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 2s. 6d. Full score, 13s.

DITTO. Arranged as Communion Service, 2s.; cloth, gilt, 3s. 6d.

MASS in E flat. Vocal score, 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s. Orchestral Parts, 19s. Full score, 12s. 6d.

The separate movements from the above are published separately, at prices varying from 2d. to 1s.

GREAT IS JEHOVAH ("Die Allmacht"). Arranged for Tenor Solo, Chorus of Men's Voices, and Orchestra, by FRANZ LISZT. Vocal score, with the accompaniment arranged for Organ (or Harmonium) and Pianoforte, 4d. Full score, 3s. Orchestral Parts, 8s.

FOUR SETTINGS of the KYRIE ELEISON. Arranged from the Masses in E flat, C, F, and G. 1½d.

FOUR SETTINGS of the KYRIE ELEISON. Arranged from the Masses in G, B flat, E flat, and A flat. 2d.

TANTUM ERGO (S.A.T.B.). 6d.

THE SONG OF MIRIAM. For Soprano Solo and Chorus (Op. 136). Vocal score, 1s.; Tonic Sol-fa, 6d. Full score (FRANZ LACHNER), 6s.; Orchestral Parts, 9s.; Vocal Parts, 8vo, 6d. each.; Tonic Sol-fa Edition, 6d. Words only, 5s. per 100.

THE CONSPIRATORS; or, DOMESTIC WARFARE. An Opera. Vocal score (German Words), 3s. 3d.; Vocal Parts (English Words), 4s.

PART-SONGS.

CHORUS OF SHEPHERDS—"Forth to the Meadows" (Rosamunde). (S.A.T.B.) 3d. Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.; Orchestral Parts, 4s. 6d.

HUNTING CHORUS—"How Merry is life" (Rosamunde). (S.A.T.B.) 2d. Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.; Orchestral Parts, 2s. 6d.

TO SYLVIA. (S.A.T.B.) Arranged by JOHN E. WEST. 1½d. Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.

DANCE WE SO GAILY. (S.A.T.B.) 3d.

GONDOLIER'S SERENADE. (T.T.B.B.) 4d. Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

HAIL TO THE CHIEF. (T.T.B.B.) 2d. Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.

THE NIGHT IS CLOUDLESS. (T.T.B.B., with Tenor Solo.) 6d.

FIVE CHORUSES for Female Voices. 1s.; or, singly:—

CORONACH. (S.S.A.) 3d.

THE LORD IS MY SHEPHERD. (S.S.A.A.) 4d. Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

GOD IN NATURE. (S.S.A.A.) 4d. Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

SERENADE—"Creeping lightly." (S.S.A.A., with Alto Solo.) 6d.

GLORY TO THE LORD ALMIGHTY. (S.S.A.) 3d.

SCHOOL SONGS.

Staff Notation and Tonic Sol-fa combined.

WHO IS SYLVIA? 1½d.

THE WANDERING MILLER. 1½d.

THE FISHERMAN. 1½d.

CRUSADERS. 1½d.

SCHOOL SONGS—continued.

HARK! HARK! THE LARK. 1½d.

CRADLE SONG. 1½d.

ROSE AMONG THE HEATHER. 1½d.

FORTH TO THE MEADOWS. Shepherd's Chorus ("Rosamunde"). Arranged for Two parts, S.A., with Three-part Semi-Chorus. 2d.

SONGS.

TWENTY SONGS. For a Mezzo-Soprano Voice. English words. 1s. 6d.

TWENTY SONGS. For a Contralto Voice. English words. 1s. 6d.

TWENTY SONGS. For a Soprano or Tenor Voice. English words. 1s. 6d.

SCHWANENGESANG (Swan Songs). Fourteen Songs. German and English words. 1s. 6d.

DIE SCHÖNE MÜLLERIN ("The fair maid of the mill"). Twenty Songs. German and English words. 1s. 6d.

WINTERREISE ("The winter journey"). Twenty-four Songs. German and English words. 1s. 6d.

PIANOFORTE.

FOUR IMPROMPTUS (Op. 90). (No. 47. Novello's Pianoforte Albums.) 1s.

FOUR IMPROMPTUS. (Op. 142). (No. 48. Novello's Pianoforte Albums.) 1s.

MOMENTS MUSICALS (Op. 94).
RONDO and ADAGIO (Op. 145). } (No. 49. Novello's Pianoforte Albums.) 1s.

The above three Books, bound in cloth, 4s.

THREE SETS of VARIATIONS, ANDANTE, and KLAVIERSTÜCK in A. (No. 50. Novello's Pianoforte Albums.) 1s.

ADAGIO, ALLEGRETTO, MARCH in E, and THREE KLAVIERSTÜCKE. (No. 51. Novello's Pianoforte Albums.) 1s.

FIVE KLAVIERSTÜCKE and TWO SCHERZOS. (No. 52. Novello's Pianoforte Albums.) 1s.

The above three Books, bound in cloth, 4s.

SCHERZO from Sonata in B flat. 1s.

MINUETTO from Quartet in A minor (Op. 29). Arranged by AGNES ZIMMERMANN. 1s. 6d.

POLONAISE in E (Op. 61, No. 6). 1s.

VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE.

SIX VALSES. Arranged by SIEGFRIED JACOBY. 2s. 6d.

SIX MARCHES. Arranged by SIEGFRIED JACOBY. 3s. 6d.

SIX POLONAISES. Arranged by SIEGFRIED JACOBY. In the Press.

HARMONIUM.

SIX MELODIES of SCHUBERT'S. Arranged by L. ENGEL. 2s. 6d.

SELECTED MOVEMENTS from SCHUBERT'S WORKS, arranged for the Harmonium, are also published in various collections of Voluntaries, &c.

PIANOFORTE AND HARMONIUM.

SERENADE and AVE MARIA. Arranged by L. ENGEL. 1s. 6d.

ORGAN.

A LARGE SELECTION of the CHOICEST MOVEMENTS from SCHUBERT'S WORKS, arranged for the Organ by JOHN STAINER, W. T. BEST, GEORGE COOPER, W. J. WESTBROOK, FREDERIC ARCHER, JOHN HILES, G. C. MARTIN, W. A. C. CRUICKSHANK, A. B. PLANT, JOHN B. LOTT, C. CHARLTON PALMER, and others, is published. Detailed list on application.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Printed by NOVELLO, EWER and Co., at 69 & 70, Dean Street (W.), and published at 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C). Sold also by KENT and Co., Paternoster Row (E.C.).—Friday, January 1, 1897.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 648.—Vol. 38. Registered for transmission abroad. FEBRUARY 1, 1897. Price 4*d.*; Postage, 1½*d.* Annual Subscription, Post-free, 5*s.*

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY,
ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Patron: HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF SAXE-COBURG AND GOTHA, DUKE OF EDINBURGH, K.G.
Conductor: Professor BRIDGE, Mus.D.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 11, AT 8.

MENDELSSOHN'S "ELIJAH."

Artists:

Miss ELLA RUSSELL.	Mr. BEN DAVIES.
Miss MAGGIE PURVIS.	Mr. AVALON COLLARD.
Miss MARIAN McKENZIE.	Mr. CHARLES ACKERMAN.
Madame EMILY HIMING.	Mr. SANTLEY.

Organist, Mr. H. L. BALFOUR.

Prices: Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Arena, 6s.; Balcony (Reserved), 5s.; Unreserved, 4s.; Gallery (Promenade), 1s.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,
TENTERDEN STREET, W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.

Patrons: HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND THE ROYAL FAMILY.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF SAXE-COBURG AND GOTHA.
Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus. Doc.

Lent Half-Term begins February 22, Entrance Examination therefor, Thursday, February 18, at 2.
Lecture by J. E. SHEDLOCK, Esq., Wednesday, February 3, at 3.15.
Lectures by FULLER MAITLAND, Esq., Wednesdays, February 10 and 17, at 3.15.
Lecture by WALTER MACFARREN, Esq., Wednesday, February 24, at 3.15.
Fortnightly Concerts, Saturdays, February 13 and 27, at 8.
Dove Scholarship for Violinists, last day for entry, February 1.
Goring Thomas Scholarship for Composers, last day for entry, March 15.
Prospectus, Entry Forms, and all information may be obtained from the Secretary. F. W. RENAUT, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,
Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.

PRINCE CONSORT ROAD, SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.
President: H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.
Director: C. HUBERT H. PARRY, Esq., D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.
Hon. Sec.: CHARLES MORLEY, Esq., M.P.

The EASTER HALF-TERM will commence on February 15.
ASSOCIATE of the ROYAL COLLEGE of MUSIC.
The Next Examination for Certificate of Proficiency with the above title will take place at the College in April, 1897. Last day for entering, March 10.
Syllabus and Entry Forms may be obtained of
FRANK POWNALL, Registrar.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.—
Established by the Corporation of London, 1880.
Principal, WILLIAM H. CUMMINGS, Esq.—Improvisation, Accompanying, Sight Singing, Elocution, Sight Reading (Instrumental), Choral, Orchestral, and Operatic Classes. Prospectus and particulars of Secretary. By order of the Committee, HILTON CARTER, Sec.
Victoria Embankment, E.C. (near Blackfriars Bridge).

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The solo playing tests or the Fellowship Examination in July will be:—Choral Vorspiel, "Christ unser Herr, zum Jordan kam," Bach (Peters, Novello and Co.); Fugue on the name of Bach, No. 4, Schumann (No. 248. Original Compositions for the Organ. Novello and Co.); and "Variations on a Theme by Beethoven," Op. 45, Merkel (Forberg, Leipzig; Novello and Co.).
A course of Educational Lectures, on the "Principles and Practice of Counterpoint," will be delivered by J. Higgs, Mus. Bac., on Wednesdays, March 24, 31, and April 7.
The College Library will be open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; also on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.
Members desiring practice on the College Organ may obtain particulars on application.
The large Hall, and sundry smaller rooms, may be hired for concerts, meetings, &c. E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.
Hart Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

QUEEN'S HALL,
LANGHAM PLACE, W.

LIST OF CONCERTS, SEASON 1896-97.
UNDER THE DIRECTION OF
MR. ROBERT NEWMAN.

QUEEN'S HALL SYMPHONY CONCERTS
Conductor: Mr. HENRY WOOD.
January 30, February 6 and 20, at 3 o'clock.
7s. 6d., 5s., 2s. 6d., 1s., at Robert Newman's Box Office.

THE QUEEN'S HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.
CONDUCTOR—MR. RANDEGGER.
FIXTURES, 1897.

February 4, at 8	"Golden Legend"	Sullivan.
March 3, at 3	"Stabat Mater"	Rossini.
	"Hymn of Praise"	Mendelssohn.
March 6, at 3	"Samson and Delilah"	Saint-Saëns.
March 18, at 8	"Faust"	Berlioz.
April 16, at 3	"Redemption"	Gounod.
May 13, at 8	"St. Paul"	Mendelssohn.
May 27, at 3	"Elijah"	Mendelssohn.

Artists:
Miss ELLA RUSSELL.
Madame DUMA and Miss CLARA SAMUELL.
Miss THUDICHUM and Miss EVANGELINE FLORENCE.
Madame MARIE BREMA.
Miss HILDA WILSON and Miss ADA CROSSLEY.
Madame BELLE COLE.
Mr. EDWARD LLOYD.
Mr. BEN DAVIES and Mr. HIRWEN JONES.
Mr. LLOYD CHANDOS and Mr. IVER McKAY.
Mr. SANTLEY.
Signor FOLI and Mr. ANDREW BLACK.
Mr. WATKIN MILLS and Mr. LEMPRIERE PRINGLE.

QUEEN'S HALL ORCHESTRA.
Principal Violin .. .. Mr. ARTHUR W. PAYNE.
Organist .. .. .. Mr. HENRY J. WOOD.
Single Tickets—7s. 6d. and 5s.; 2s. 6d. and 1s.
At usual Agents, and Robert Newman's Box Office, Queen's Hall.

QUEEN'S HALL.
LAMOUREUX ORCHESTRAL CONCERTS.
THIRD VISIT, SPRING, 1897.
March 22, 23, 26, at 8.30.
March 24, 25, 27, at 3.
Subscription for the Six Concerts .. .. £3 3s.
Subscription for Three Afternoon or Three Evening Concerts, £1 11s. 6d.
Single Tickets—12s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.; 5s. and 2s. 6d.
At the usual Agents, and at Robert Newman's Box Office.

QUEEN'S HALL.
SATURDAY PROMENADE CONCERTS
Every Saturday Night during the Winter, from 8 till 11 o'clock.
Smoking allowed.
GRAND ORCHESTRA OF ONE HUNDRED AND THREE.
Solo Cornet .. .. .. Mr. HOWARD REYNOLDS.
Principal Violin .. .. Mr. ARTHUR W. PAYNE.
Conductor: Mr. HENRY J. WOOD.
1s., 2s., 3s., 5s., at Robert Newman's Box Office.

QUEEN'S HALL.
SUNDAY AFTERNOON ORCHESTRAL CONCERTS
Every Sunday Afternoon during the Winter, from 3.30 till 5.
FULL ORCHESTRA OF SEVENTY.
Principal Violin .. .. Mr. ARTHUR W. PAYNE.
Organ and Pianoforte .. Mr. HENRY J. WOOD.
Conductor: Mr. RANDEGGER.
Tickets: 2s., 1s. 6d., 1s., 6d., at Robert Newman's Box Office.

QUEEN'S HALL.
SUNDAY EVENING CHAMBER CONCERTS
THE QUEEN'S HALL STRING QUARTET.
Señor ARBOS.
Mr. FERDINANL WEIST-HILL. Mr. ALFRED HOBDAY.
Mr. W. H. SQUIRE.
Every Sunday Evening at 7.30.

Tickets for all Concerts and Theatres may be obtained at ROBERT NEWMAN'S Box Office, Queen's Hall, Langham Place, W.
Telegrams—"Chord, London." Telephone—35216.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS FLORENCE ARMRIDING (Soprano)
(Pupil of Mr. Shakespeare and Medalist, R.A.M.).
Oratorios, Concerts, Lessons, &c., at 20, Conduit Street. Address, Leicester Villa, Ealing, W.

MISS MAUDE BALLARD (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Press notices and terms, 13, Herbert Road, Stockwell, S.W.

MISS ETHEL BARNARD (Soprano)
(Bronze and Silver Medals, Cert. of Merit, and Rutson Memorial Prizeholder, R.A.M.)
German Songs a specialty. 25, Upper Richmond Road, Putney, S.W.

MISS SIREMA BURTON (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Organ Recitals, and At Homes.
Address, Ivy Bank, Carlton, near Nottingham.

MISS ELLA CHALLIS (Soprano)
Oratorio, Opera, Concerts, At Homes.
Reference kindly permitted to Mr. Isidore de Solla.
3, Holmdale Road, Stamford Hill, N.

MADAME CONWAY (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, Lessons, Press Notices, &c.
444, Moss Lane East, Oxford Road, Manchester.

MISS CHARLOTTE DICKENS (Soprano)
(Medalist, R.A.M.).
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, Press Notices, and Lessons, North End House, Stanhope Street, Mornington Crescent, N.W.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 237, Katherine Street, Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS FUSSELLE (Soprano)
Licentiate (Artist), R.A.M.
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. 37, Harrington Square, N.W.

MRS. GLOVER-EATON, L.R.A.M. (Soprano)
(Of the Worcester Triennial Festivals, Oratorio, Ballad and Miscellaneous Concerts).
"MESSIAH"—WORCESTER.
"Mrs. Glover-Eaton . . . Altogether she was powerful, vigorous, and sweet, particularly in the air 'Rejoice greatly.'" CONCERT—WORCESTER.
"Weber's beautiful song 'Softly sighs' was then sung by Mrs. Glover-Eaton with a depth of feeling and finish of execution which fairly enraptured the audience. Mrs. Glover-Eaton has a splendid voice and good enunciation."
"SAMSON"—KIDDERMINSTER CHORAL SOCIETY.
"Mrs. Glover-Eaton gave the airs, &c., . . . but her grandest effort was decidedly 'Let the bright Seraphim.'"—Sun.
Address, Messrs. Elgar Brothers, Worcester.
Private address, Stourport. Terms on application.

MADAME GOODALL (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Address, Leeds.

MADAME NELLIE GOSNELL (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c., address, 37, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Square, N.W.

MISS EMMA HINES (Soprano)
MR. JOHN HINES (Tenor)
For Concerts, At Homes, &c.
Address, 45, Pattison Road, Plumstead, S.E.

MADAME RUTH LAMB (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
Recommended by Dr. Bridge, of Westminster.
17, Warwick Square, Carlisle.

MISS ADA LEE (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c. Address, 164, Strand, W.C.

MADAME MARIE MALLIA (Soprano)
Oratorios and Concerts. Claremont, Hermon Hill, Snaresbrook, N.E.

MISS FLORENCE MONK (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. 26, Portland Road, Finsbury Park, N.

MISS ANNIE NORLEDGE (Soprano)
For Oratorios and Ballad Concerts. For Press notices and terms, address, 221, South Lambeth Road, London, S.W.
Telegrams: "Norledge," London.

MISS MARGARET PEARSON (Soprano)
Concerts, Oratorios, &c.
Special: "Creation," "Elijah," and "Stabat Mater" (Rossini).
For terms, &c., 58, Castle Street, Stockport.

MISS FANNIE SELLERS (Soprano)
"JUDAS."—"The purity of style, perfect intonation, and genuine pathos of expression which Miss Sellers displayed contributed very largely to the general success of the performance, . . . gave most artistic readings of her solos, and was deservedly encored for the air 'From mighty kings.'"—Malton Gazette, December 26, 1896.
For terms, press notices, &c., address, Crag Cottage, Knaresbro'.

MISS KATE SHIELDS (Soprano, Medalist, R.A.M.)
(Of the Crystal Palace and Principal Provincial Concerts).
"The Messiah," "Elijah," "Creation," &c.
For terms and Press notices, apply, 137, Tweedale Street, Rochdale.

MISS C. THEODORIC (Soprano and Accompanist)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 37, Binfield Road, Clapham.

MISS EMMA THOMSON, R.C.M. (Soprano)
"An exceptionally fine voice."—Dundee Advertiser.
The Grove, W. Keptie Street, Arbroath, N.B.

MISS LILIAN TURNBULL (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Banquets, &c.
Address, 10, Cecile Park, Crouch End, N.

MISS FLORENCE VEREY (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Apply, care of N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork Street, W.

MISS AGNES WALKER (Soprano)
VOCAL RECITAL.—"An accomplished candidate appeared last evening in the person of Miss Agnes Walker, who, assisted by a few other singers, produced a programme good in quality. Possibly to demonstrate her physical as well as vocal powers, the artist set herself the arduous task of rendering 'right off' three items in each part, and certainly succeeded in her self-imposed task. Denza's 'May Morning,' Leoni's 'Stars' (with poetic expression), and a spirited rendering of Donizetti's 'Ah! tardai, troppo' and the aria 'O, luce di quest anima' were the first three. Later came 'Spring' (Henschel), 'Solveig's song' (Grieg), and 'The Spanish Gipsy' (Watson), which drew a very warm encore, to which Miss Walker finally responded with 'Dear heart.' The Concert-giver was also joined in the trio, 'This magic-wove scarf,' by the tenor and bass, and it was so well sung that it gained a recall."—Kentish Mercury, November 13, 1896.
"HEAR MY PRAYER."—"The solo was very well rendered by Miss Agnes Walker. In the second part 'The Wreck of the Hesperus' (Anderton) was performed. Miss Agnes Walker took the soprano solos in a very pleasing manner. Notwithstanding the important part Miss Walker took in the larger pieces, she was able to sing 'The Spanish Gipsy' very artistically."—Crystal Palace Chronicle, December 26, 1896.
104, Lewisham High Road, New Cross, S.E.

MISS NELLIE WILLIS, A.L.C.M. (High Soprano)
For Oratorios or Ballad Concerts,
Adwick-le-Street, Doncaster.

MADAME LAURA WITHY (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
Rockville, Polsloe Road, Exeter.

MISS CONSTANCE YORKE (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Ballads, At Homes, &c.
For terms, apply, Sunnyside, Sycamore Rd., Smethwick, Birmingham.

MISS MARY KNIGHT (Mezzo-Soprano)
For Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes, &c. 6, Oxford Road, Kilburn.

MISS MARY WILLIS (Mezzo-Soprano)
For Oratorios, Operas, Concerts, or Private Lessons, address, 9, Rochester Terrace, Camden Road, N.W.

MISS BERYL CLIVE (Contralto)
"Prominent among the artists was Miss Beryl Clive, a vocalist of more than average ability. She possesses a rich contralto voice of excellent range, and sang with the skill and intelligence of an accomplished artist."—Nottingham Daily Guardian, Dec. 4, 1895.
"MESSIAH," TOWN HALL, STOURBRIDGE.—"Miss Clive has a deep and powerful contralto voice, and her singing was marked by power, sweetness, and pathos. Although her interpretation of all her pieces was of a finished character, yet we think she reached her highest point of excellence in the exquisite air 'He shall feed His flock like a shepherd.'"—Stourbridge Advertiser, Jan. 4, 1896.
Address, 30, Pepys Road South, St. Catherine's Park, S.E.

MISS LILIAN CLOSE (Contralto)
"Rich, well-trained contralto voice, . . . faultless vocalisation."—Folkestone Herald.
For Oratorios, &c., address, 134, Goldhawk Road, W.

MADAME CLARA DORAN (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes.
39, Malvern Road, Kilburn, N.W.

MISS EMILY FOXCROFT, A.L.A.M. (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, At Homes, &c.
76, Calabria Road, Highbury Place, N.

MADAME HADINGHAM (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c. New address—
13, Spurstowe Road, Hackney; and Waterloo Road, Wolverhampton.

MISS CLARA HARDING, A.R.C.M. (Contralto)
Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes.
Devizes Rd., Salisbury; and 23, Oppidan's Rd., Primrose Hill, N.W.

MISS FLORENCE HAWKINS (Contralto)
Holding the I.S.M. Certificates.
(Pupil of Mr. W. H. Cummings, Principal of the G.S.M.).
For Concerts, At Homes, &c., 10, Belsize Park, Hampstead.

MADAME JENNY HOLDEN (Contralto)
Ashlynne, Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS ELSIE MACMILLAN (Contralto)
Oratorios, Concerts, Banquets, &c.
Address, 5, Hill Street, Rutland Gate, S.W.

MISS FANNY MILLSON (Contralto)
For Oratorio and Ballad Concerts.
For terms and vacant dates, Selwood House, Brigg.

MISS RINA ROBINSON (Contralto)
For Oratorio and Ballad Concerts. 80, Tufnell Park Road, N.
References kindly permitted to Dr. A. H. Mann, Dr. E. H. Turpin, and Mr. F. A. W. Docker.

MISS HELEN SAUNDERS, A.R.A.M. (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Banquets, At Homes, &c.
25, Cloudesley Street, Barnsbury, N.

MISS ALICE WOLSTENHOLME (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Address, Radcliffe, Manchester.

MR. G. BROUGHTON BRENTNALL (Alto, natural)
(Principal Alto, St. Werburgh's Parish Church, Derby).
For Organ Recitals, Concerts, Banquets, &c.
For terms and critiques, address, Mr. Edgar Horne, Music Publisher and Concert Agent, Market Place, Derby.

MR. HANDEL BAKER (Tenor)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
32, Union Grove, Clapham.

MR. WRIGHT BEAUMONT (Tenor)
(Bronze and Silver Medalist and Certificate, R.A.M.).
Address, 20, Lavender Gardens, Clapham Junction, S.W.

MR. J. G. BLANCHARD
(Principal Tenor, Italian Church, Hatton Garden).
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 41, Savernake Road, N.W.

MR. T. HENRY BREARLEY (Tenor)
HULL HARMONIC SOCIETY.—"MESSIAH."—"Mr. T. Henry Brearley, the tenor, made a good impression. He has a powerful tenor voice, well under control, and seems equally at home in all kinds of music. His rendering of 'Behold and see' was very fine."—Morning News, December 19, 1896.
For terms and open dates, address, Halifax.

MR. TOM CHILD (The Yorkshire Tenor)
(Principal Tenor, Parish Church, Leeds)
Winner of the 100 Guineas Prize, Music Trades Exhibition, 1896.
For terms and vacant dates, address, Hollingside, Horsforth.

MR. WALTER CLINCH (Tenor)
(Late of St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle).
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c., address, Athole House, Alfred Road, Acton, W.

MR. OTTO DENE (Tenor)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, Masonic Work, &c.
Address, 132, Norwood Road, S.E.;
or, to W. B. Healey & Son, 17, Great Marlborough Street, W.

MR. CHARLES ELLISON (Tenor)
(Late Principal Tenor, Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company, Crystal Palace, and St. James's Hall Concerts, &c.)
For Opera, Operatic Recital, Oratorio, Concerts. Address, 42, Florence Road, New Cross, S.E.

MR. ARTHUR C. HEWITT (Tenor)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
"Sang in excellent style. . . . Has a sweet, pure, flexible tenor voice, which will make him welcome wherever he goes."—Bradford Observer.
Address, 19, Evens Terrace, West Bowling, Bradford, Yorks.

MR. ARTHUR F. JOHNS (Tenor)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, Banquets, &c.
Address, 202, Grove Road, Bow, E.

MR. EDWIN KELLETT (Tenor)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
109, Cemetery Road, Beeston Hill, Leeds.

MR. ALFRED PINNINGTON (Tenor)
(Principal Tenor, St. Margaret's, Westminster).
For Oratorios, Concerts, Dinners, &c.
50, Overstrand Mansions, Battersea Park, S.W.

MR. GWILYM RICHARDS (Tenor)
Winner of Joseph Maas Memorial Prize,
" " Goldberg Prize,
" " Evill Prize,
At the Royal Academy of Music.
Of the Crystal Palace and St. James's Hall Concerts.
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts. 30, Redburn Street, Chelsea, S.W.

MR. THURGATE SIMPSON (Tenor)
For Oratorios, Operatic Recitals, Ballad Concerts
(Specially engaged for Oratorios).
For répertoire, Press opinions, terms, &c.
Address, Collyhurst, Manchester.

MR. JOHN W. STOKER (Solo Tenor)
(Llandaff Cathedral).
For Concerts, &c., address, The Cathedral.

MR. HERBERT STANSFIELD (Solo Tenor)
For Oratorios, Concerts, 94, Lowther Street; or, Minster Choir, York.

MR. HENRY TURNPENNY (Tenor)
(Robinson Prize-winner, G.S.M.)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., Southgate Road, Wood Green, N.

MR. NORMAN WALLS (Tenor)
(Pupil of Isidore de Solla).
Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, care of Mr. Coppock, 109, Grosvenor Road, Highbury New Park, London, N.

MR. HERBERT ALDRIDGE (Baritone)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, Saxonbury Villa, Buxton Road, Stratford, E.

MR. GORDON HELLER (Baritone)
Oratorios, &c., 20, Blenheim Terrace, Leeds.

MR. JOHN RIDDING (Baritone)
Permanent address,
20, Algernon Road, Birmingham.

MR. ALBERT BARNES
(Principal Bass, Halifax Parish Church).
For terms, address, Halifax.

MISS GRACE M. SMITH, L.R.A.M.
(Solo Pianist and Accompanist),
"Killiney," Hatherley Road, Sidcup.

MISS VIOLET NICHOLSON (Solo Mandolinist)
3, Upper Montagu Street, Hyde Park, W.
"Proved herself mistress of her mandoline by her delightful playing."—The Queen.

MR. E. JACKSON (Baritone) is now booking Engagements for Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, Masonic Banquets, &c. For terms and vacant dates, address, Principal Bass, New College, Oxford.

MR. TOM WATERHOUSE (Baritone) desires that all future communications be addressed 21, Compton Street, Stalybridge, nr. Manchester. For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Bookings for 1897 include Manchester, Hyde, Denton, Millbrook, Dukinfield, Oldham, Morecambe, &c. For terms, vacant dates, &c., address as above.

MR. EGBERT ROBERTS (Bass, Conductor, Italian Church, Hatton Garden) requests that all communications respecting Oratorios, Opera, or Concerts be addressed 45, Pentonville Road, N.

MR. MAGRATH. Returned Tour, "Shamus O'Brien." 12, Connaught Mansions, Brixton, S.W.

MISS LILIAN BEADLE, G.S.M. (First-class Certificate, Society of Arts), Solo Pianist and Accompanist. 2, Museum Mansion, W.C.

HAND-BELLS —Mr. ARTHUR J. MANGER. Concerts, Dinners, At Homes, &c. 100, Manor Road, Brockley, S.E.

A SPECIALTY for CONCERTS.—SOLOS on a PEAL of SILVER BELLS, with Pianoforte or Orchestral Accompaniment. Bell effects in works undertaken. R. B. Hopkins, Royal Campanologist, 17, Kellett Road, Brixton, S.W.

CHANGE of ADDRESS.—Mr. BRUCE STEANE has REMOVED to The Leas, Clyde Road, Wallington.

MISS
FANNY DE BOUFFLERS
(SOPRANO)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Recitals, address, Carlton House, Liverpool.
Agent: N. Vert.

MISS HONEYBONE
(SOPRANO)
Vacant dates, apply, 41, Hampden Street, Nottingham.

MISS ADA LOARING
(SOPRANO)
Merrion, Wellington Road, Peckham, S.E.

MADAME LAURA SMART
(SOPRANO)
Oratorios, Operatic Recitals, Ballad Concerts.
Address, 106, Bolingbroke Grove, Wandsworth Common, S.W.; or, 50, Church Street, Liverpool.

MADAME MARIE HOOTON
AND
MR.
EDWARD BRANSCOMBE
Beg to announce their return from Australia.
Address, 47, Ridgmount Gardens, W.C.

MISS ISABELLE WATERS

(CONTRALTO)

(Pupil of Signor Fiori, who states that "She has a good Contralto voice and sings well).

Further statements, &c.

"Miss Isabelle Waters, who made her first appearance in Barnet, sang in a fine, rich contralto voice, and with considerable vocal ability."—Barnet Press, November 21, 1896.

From HENRY PETTITT, Esq., Manager of the above Concert: "Everyone admired your beautifully rich contralto voice, and I do hope we shall have the pleasure of hearing you again."

"Miss Isabelle Waters nicely sang 'The old clock on the stairs,' and later on gave much satisfaction by her rendering of 'Nobody knows.'"—Reading Mercury, January 16, 1897.

ALFRED RYDER, Esq., Manager of the Queen's Hall, Reading, referring to the above, writes: "Allow me to say I was very pleased with your singing, and will give you another turn later on."

For terms and vacant dates for Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c., address, 34, Defoe Road, Tooting, S.W.

MR. CHARLES CHILLEY

Begs to announce that he has REMOVED to 38, Carson Road, West Dulwich, S.E.

MR. AVALON COLLARD

(TENOR)

(Engaged for Royal Choral Society, February 11).

"Mr. Collard has a charming tenor voice, and sings in great taste."—Daily Telegraph.

"Is an excellent singer."—Standard.

For Opera, Oratorio, or Concerts, address, Wealdstone, Middlesex.

MR.

HAMLYN CRIMP

(TENOR)

For terms and vacant dates, please apply, The Woodlands, Heathfield Road, Birmingham.

Concert Parties arranged.

MR. JAMES LEYLAND

(TENOR),

106, Bolingbroke Grove, Wandsworth Common, S.W.

MR. JOS. REED

(Principal Tenor, Trinity College, Cambridge).

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c.

PRESS REPORT.—Cumberland Festival, January 1, 2, 3; Tenor Soloists, Mr. Ben Davies and Mr. Jos. Reed.—"Mr. Reed was in good form on each occasion that his services were called into request. Mr. Reed possesses a very fine voice, over which he appears to have perfect control; hence he did not suffer by contrast with his popular rival of Saturday night. Mr. Reed's recits. and arias were all given with true artistic feeling, and the results were eminently successful."—Workington Star.

MR. WILLIAM WILD

(TENOR)

Of the Sir Charles and Lady Hallé South African Concert Tour, 1895.

(Pupil of Andrew Black, Esq.)

Specially recommended by the late Sir Charles Hallé. For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. Grosvenor Square, Stalybridge.

MR.

KEVERN BATTEN

(L.R.A.M., BARITONE)

For Concerts, &c., address, 9, Adelaide Road, N.W.

MR.

A. MONTAGUE BORWELL

L.R.A.M., A.G.S.M. (BARITONE).

Prize-winner, Solo Singing and Sight Reading, Stratford Musical Festival. Medalist, Soc. Arts.

For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. 16, Springfield, Upper Clapton, N.E.

MR. FREDERIC HOSKING

(BARITONE)

For Oratorio and other Engagements.

Address, 37, Lawford Road, Camden Road, N.W.

MR. ROLAND HOYLE

(BARITONE)

(Of Sir Charles Hallé's and Provincial Concerts).

Press notices, terms, &c., 22, Queen Street, Cheetham, Manchester.

MR. DANIEL PRICE

(BARITONE)

Westminster Abbey. Address, 18, Clarendon Road, W.

MR.

CHARLES COPLAND

(BARITONE).

Principal London appearances:

Royal Choral Society's Concerts, 1895-96.
Royal Albert Hall (Scotch Festival).
Queen's Hall (Choral Society's Concerts, Ballads, &c.).
St. James's Hall (Ballads, &c.).
Crystal Palace Orchestral Concerts.
Crystal Palace Promenade Concerts.
Royal Amateur Orchestral Society.
Highbury Philharmonic Society.
Covent Garden Promenade Concerts.
English Opera Season, Drury Lane.
Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company (London Season), &c.

For terms, address, Stalheim, 48, Greencroft Gardens, N.W.; Telegrams: "Stalheim, London"; or, to N. Vert, 6, Cork Street, W.

MR. EDWARD ILES

(BARITONE).

"A line to say how very much I enjoyed your singing on Saturday. I thought it so artistic, free and powerful."—William Shakespeare.

"The possessor of a highly cultivated and mellow baritone. His voice is full of music, and he thoroughly understands how to use it."—Morning Leader.

"His voice is very musical, and he sings with charming naturalness of expression."—Musical Courier.

Address, N. Vert, 6, Cork Street, Burlington Gardens, W.

MR. CHARLES TREE

(Winner of the 100-Guinea Grand Piano at the International Baritone Competition, London, July, 1896). 27, Cambridge Avenue, Kilburn, N.W.

MR. ARTHUR BARLOW

(BASS).

For Oratorios, Operas, Concerts, &c.

Address, 19, Oval Road, Regent's Park, N.W.; or, N. Vert, 6, Cork Street, W.

MR. HERBERT HILTON

(BASS)

For Concerts, &c., please address, 58, Lordship Lane, Wood Green, N.

MR. HENRY SUNMAN

(BASS)

Licentiate of the Royal Academy of Music.

"MESSIAH."—LEAMINGTON MUSICAL UNION.—"One hardly need dwell, for Leamington readers, on Mr. Sunman's qualities as a vocalist. The oftener one hears him the more one is impressed by the fine quality of his voice, and the culture and refinement of his vocal method. Probably the superb air 'Why do the nations,' with its splendid dramatic declamation, has never been sung to more advantage from a Leamington Concert platform than it was by Mr. Sunman on Monday evening. If the rest had been but 'leather and prunello' one would have kept a place in one's memory for this special solo in the particular performance of 'The Messiah,' and the rest, as has been sufficiently indicated, far from being 'leather and prunello,' displayed musical 'worth' of a very high standard indeed."—Leamington Chronicle, Dec. 19, 1896.

Please address, Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford.

"VOICE PRODUCTION, STYLE, AND ARTISTIC SINGING."

MR. F. ST. JOHN LACY,

A.R.A.M., &c.

Receives Pupils at his residence, Albany Chambers, York Street, Queen Anne's Gate (St. James's Park Station); or, at New Bond St.

THE GRIMSON FAMILY.

This remarkable family of Instrumentalists can be engaged either together or separately. Programmes suitable for an entire Concert or for small Choral Societies or Literary and Musical Societies. They play almost any combination of Chamber Music, from the Mendelssohn Octet downwards.

SOLO PIANISTS.

Miss ANNIE GRIMSON, A.R.C.M., and Hopkinson Gold Medalist, Covent Garden Promenade Concerts, Imperial Institute, &c.

Miss AMY GRIMSON, A.R.C.M., and Hopkinson Gold Medalist.

SOLO VIOLIN.

Miss JESSIE GRIMSON, Crystal Palace Saturday Concerts.

VIOLA.

Mr. S. DEAN GRIMSON.

For terms, Press notices, &c., S. Dean Grimson, Cremona, Ealing, W.

ROYAL WINDSOR GLEE SINGERS

(Of St. George's Chapel Royal and Eton College Chapel).

Mr. WALTER CLAY — Mr. ABEL STARKEY
Mr. DAVID HUMPHREYS — Mr. WALTER DODDS.

For Concerts, Banquets, &c. Terms on application to D. Humphreys, 19, The Cloisters, Windsor.

THE FOLK-SONG QUARTET.

H. ELLIOT BUTTON
(Principal Alto, Holy Trinity, Upper Chelsea).
WALTER TURNER.
HENRY BAILEY
(Principal Bass, Marylebone Parish Church).
ARTHUR HOWARD.

Répertoire includes Folk-Songs of various nations, English, Scotch, Irish, Swedish, &c., especially arranged for the Folk-Song Quartet by Professor Stanford and other eminent Musicians.

For Press criticisms, terms, &c., apply, H. Elliot Button, 13, Stratford Road, Kensington.

THE COWARD-KEMPTON QUARTET.

ALTO: Mr. PERCY COWARD; TENOR: Mr. ARTHUR COWARD; BARITONE: Mr. RANDULPH COWARD; BASS: Mr. BELL KEMPTON.

For Concerts, &c. Terms on application to Arthur Coward (care of Metzler and Co., Ltd.), Great Marlborough Street, W.

THE CRICHTON PART-SINGERS

HAYDN GROVER (Alto) | HERBERT DYER (Tenor)
HUGH COCHRANE (Baritone) | FREDERICK KING (Bass)

"For well-balanced harmony, delicate phrasing, and sweetness of voice it would be hard to find their peers. No wonder the audience cheered them again and again, and yet again."—Morning Leader, December 7, 1896.

Specially arranged numbers and novelties. Complete programmes arranged.

For Press critiques, vacant dates, and terms, apply, 40, Warbeck Road, Uxbridge Road, W.

THE AMPHION GLEE-MEN.

CHARLES RAY
(Principal Alto, Holy Trinity, Sloane Street, S.W.)
SIDNEY MARION
R. E. STRICKLAND
(Corporation, Mitchell and Webster Exhibitioner, G.S.M., 1885-6)
FREDERIC HABBIJAM
(St. Margaret's, Westminster, S.W.)

May be engaged for Concerts, At Homes, Masonic Banquets, &c. Terms, vacant dates, apply to Sidney Marion, 42, Norcott Road, Stoke Newington, N.

THE CONCERT TRIO PARTY.

Violin .. .. Mr. ERNEST NEWLAND SMITH.
Cello .. .. .. Mr. A. H. EARNSHAW.
Piano .. .. .. Mr. FRANK MUMMERY.

The above Trio Party is booking Engagements for the season. Performs Solos and Trios. For terms and vacant dates, address, Secretary, 35, Oseney Crescent, N.W.

MR. JOSEPH CANTOR'S
"GEMS OF THE OPERAS"
CONCERT COMPANY.

All communications, Church Street, Liverpool.

Telegrams—"Cantor, Liverpool."

THE NOVELTY OF THE SEASON.

THE BOYS' VOCAL TRIO.

MASTER ROLAND FORD
MASTER SHOWELL FORD
MASTER EDGAR FORD

For Concerts, Choir Festivals, Organ Recitals, &c.

The Boys may be engaged together or separately. Their répertoire comprises Trios, Duets, and Solos.

"These boys have been well trained. Their voices are sweet and clear, their intonation is excellent, and their phrasing and expression carefully observed. All their items were vociferously applauded."—Walsall Observer.

"The singing of Masters Edgar, Showell, and Roland Ford was enthusiastically encored."—Midland Evening News.

BIRMINGHAM TOWN HALL.

"That clever trio of youngsters, Masters Roland, Showell, and Edgar Ford, sang, much to the delight of the audience, trios and songs with signal success."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

"Masters Roland, Showell, and Edgar Ford created considerable enthusiasm. They sang trios with telling light and shade."—Birmingham Daily Mail.

For terms, address, Mr. S. Ford, Avondale, Park Road E., Wolverhampton.

THE MISSES TULLOCH'S

VOCAL, INSTRUMENTAL, AND DRAMATIC
RECITALS.

OPERATIC SCENAS AND ARIAS. BALLADS.
MANDOLINE AND GUITAR SOLOS AND DUETS.
ITALIAN, FRENCH, AND GERMAN SONGS.
SPANISH SONGS TO GUITAR ACCOMPANIMENTS.
RECITATIONS (POETIC AND HUMOROUS).

For Press notices and Programmes, address, Miss D. Tulloch, 16, Linden Gardens, London, W.; or, usual Concert Agents.

SOLO BOYS.

LONDON TRAINING SCHOOL FOR CHORISTERS.

PRINCIPAL, MR. JAMES BATES.

Solo Boys supplied for Oratorios, Festival Services, Organ Recitals, Concerts, &c.

Extracts from recent testimonials:—

ALBERTO RANDEGGER, Esq., Conductor, Queen's Hall Choral Society, &c.
"Too much praise cannot be given for your boys' excellent work."—May 11, 1896.

Professor BRIDGE, Mus. Doc., Conductor, Royal Choral Society, &c.
"Your boys are excellent."—June 30, 1896.

G. R. SINCLAIR, Esq., Organist, Hereford Cathedral.
"Your boys have sung the soprano solos of Spohr's 'Last Judgment' in the Cathedral for three consecutive Advents. They sing extremely well and give every satisfaction."—Aug. 21, 1896.
"Please book Marchant for 'Last Judgment' in the Cathedral, December 18."—November 11, 1896.

J. SPENCER CURWEN, Esq., President, Tonic Sol-fa College.
"I have been charmed with the sensibility, the phrasing, and the emotional power of your solo boys' renderings."—Sept. 11, 1896.

Over 100 boys are available for chorus work.

Sixty boys are engaged for "Creation," "Samson and Dalila," "Messiah," "Elijah," "Golden Legend," "St. Paul," "Hymn of Praise," "Stabat Mater" (Rossini), "Faust" (Berlioz), "Redemption," with the Queen's Hall Choral Society, at Queen's Hall, and forty boys for special chorus of "Redemption," at Royal Albert Hall.

For terms, photos of Solo Boys, and full particulars, address, Mr. G. E. Jeffries, Secretary, Church House, Porchester Terrace, Hyde Park, W.

MR. DUTTON'S SOLO BOYS.

FOR LENTEN ORATORIOS.

MR. DUTTON (St. Paul's Cathedral) supplies Solo Boys for Church Festivals, Organ Recitals, Concerts, &c. MR. DUTTON'S Boys are trained entirely by himself, and he guarantees their efficiency.

GEORGE C. MARTIN, Esq., Mus. Doc., Organist of St. Paul's Cathedral, writes: "I have almost exclusively employed Mr. Dutton's Solo Boys at Services at St. Paul's Cathedral and elsewhere when our own choristers were not available, and they have given me on all occasions the greatest possible satisfaction. I feel that Mr. Dutton has special and very great abilities in the art o training choristers; his boys sing with much expression and refinement."—December 20, 1896.

EDWARD GERMAN, Esq., writes: "The boys (Gough and Griffiths) sang beautifully yesterday."—November 24, 1896.

THOMAS ADAMS, Esq., F.R.C.O., Organist and Director of the Music at St. Alban's, Holborn, writes: "In his singing of Rossini's 'Stabat Mater' at St. Alban's during this month, Master Fryatt has rendered admirable service, and delighted all who heard him."—December 16, 1896.

HARRY DANCEY, Esq., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, Organist, All Saints', Putney, writes: "I was very pleased with the manner and singing of the boys—they afforded us great help. We were specially delighted with Gough's voice and singing."—Mendelssohn's 95th Psalm, November 7, 1896.

FREDERIC LEEDS, Esq., Mus. Bac., Cantab., Organist, Parish Church, Lewisham, writes: "Gough did his work well, and gave great satisfaction. He certainly is a credit to you."—Spohr's "Last Judgment," December 3, 1896.

EDGAR PETTMAN, Esq., Organist of St. James's, Piccadilly, writes: "Gough sang splendidly. The Bishop and all of us were delighted with him."—Spohr's "Last Judgment," December 20, 1896.

For vacant dates, terms, and further particulars, address, Mr. HENRY J. DUTTON, 19, Alpha Road, New Cross, S.E.

SOLO BOYS. SIX excellent SOLO BOYS available for permanent ENGAGEMENTS in London churches within easy distance of Hyde Park. Anglican services. Address, Secretary, London Training School for Choristers, Church House, Porchester Terrace, Hyde Park, W.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. New House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. AND MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, and Durham (1896) Universities, Diplomas of L.R.A.M. (1897, &c.), A.Mus. L.C.M., L.Mus. L.C.M., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O.; Appointments at College and School of Music, and as Chapel Royal, Cathedral, and Parish Church Organists; Gold Medals, Prizes, "Honours" and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of 500. Harmony, Counterpoint Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS. Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D. 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

MR. J. PERCY BAKER, A.R.A.M., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by post. Personal Lessons in Pianoforte or Theory at own or pupil's residence; or at 84, New Bond Street, W. Schools attended. Address, Willersley House, Old Charlton.

MR.

BLAXLAND'S SOLO BOYS

FOR LENTEN ORATORIOS,

CHURCH FESTIVALS, CONCERTS, BANQUETS, &c.

Testimonials from SIR JOHN STAINER, M.A., Mus.Doc., Oxon.; C. H. H. PARRY, M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon. et Cantab.; JOSEPH BRIDGE, M.A., Mus. Doc., &c., and many other leading musicians.

MR. BLAXLAND'S SOLO BOYS have successfully fulfilled engagements in all parts of London and the Provinces, amongst which are the following important SOLO ENGAGEMENTS:—

Chester Festival, Sheffield Festival, Leeds Philharmonic, Liverpool Philharmonic (booked), Leicester Choral Society, Brighton Choral Society, Newcastle and Gateshead Choral Union, Old Acquaintance Musical Society, The Chough Musical Society, The Civil Service Vocal Union, South London Musical Society, The Lothbury Choral Society, The Sutton Orpheus Glee Club, The Penshurst Choral Society, The Salisbury Philharmonic Society, The Cumnock Choral Union, The Amhurst Club, and at many other important Festivals, Concerts, &c.

The noted Solo Boy,

Master
STERNDALE BENNETT,
May be engaged for Concerts, Banquets, &c. His numerous testimonials on application.

Master
WILLIE CHILDS
A clever and artistic singer, and thoroughly reliable.
Solo Boy, St. Mary's, Stoke Newington.
(Pupil of Mr. H. W. Lovell and Mr. Blaxland).

Master
EDGAR FAVELL
(Pupil of Mr. Russel Lochner and Mr. Blaxland).
An experienced soloist, with a powerful and flexible voice of great compass.

Recent testimonials and press notices:—

January 20, 1897.—"I am delighted with the voice and method of Master Edgar Favell, and believe he will take a position as a famous chorister."—(Signed) J. MUNRO COWARD.

GLASGOW, January 16 and 17, 1897.—"Master Edgar Favell, the boy soprano, was accorded a splendid reception, his phrasing and intonation being exceptionally fine."—The Daily Record, January 18, 1897.

"Master Edgar Favell, a boy soprano, sang with wonderful taste and expression."—Evening Citizen, January 18, 1897.

"Master Edgar Favell sings with good taste, good expression, and his voice is bright and telling."—January 17, 1897.—(Signed) Signor G. MARTINENGO.

BIRMINGHAM, December 7, 1896.—"LAST JUDGMENT."—"Favell did his work splendidly, and gave us all every satisfaction, singing in a most tasteful and artistic manner."—(Signed) W. T. JENKINS, Organist and Choirmaster.

HORNSEY, December 9, 1896.—"LAST JUDGMENT."—"Everyone was very pleased with Favell's singing. I am sure no one could wish for anything more beautiful."—(Signed) HENRY J. BAKER, Organist and Choirmaster.

MR. BLAXLAND'S "BOYS' TRIO"

Are next month booked—at Liverpool (Philharmonic), Birkenhead and Blundellsands—to take part in a series of Concerts representative of "rising talent," in which Concerts the following artists are engaged to take part: Mark Hambourg, Jean Gérardy, Irma Sethe, Emlyn Davies, and Miss Greta.

Mr. Blaxland strongly recommends this Boys' Trio as a novelty for Concerts, &c. Répertoire—Trios, Duets, and Solos—on application.

Also the following Solo Boys: Masters BANNISTER, BEAMENT, HUXLEY, EVANS, LA TOUCHE, GRAY, PARRY, ROGERS.

Master BURFORD is no longer available for Solo engagements, he having been appointed to the Chapel Royal, St. James's.

Solo Boys open for permanent engagements may be heard by appointment.

For Testimonials and all particulars, address, Mr. BLAXLAND, 15, Tavistock Crescent, Westbourne Park, W.

DR. W. BENTHAM, Mus.D., T.C.T., F.R.C.O., L.Mus. L.C.M., Associate-Organist, T.C.L., Winner of the Hallé Gold Medal for Sight Reading, &c., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, INSTRUMENTATION, FUGUE, ACOUSTICS, &c., by Correspondence. Highly successful method. Preparation for ALL Examinations. Successes: Durham Mus. Bac. (First and Final), London Mus. Bac. (Intermediate and Final), A.R.C.O., F.R.C.O., L.C.M., and T.C.L., higher and local, &c. Terms very moderate. Address, Bonchurch, Isle of Wight.

A.R.C.M. TEACHERS' EXAM.—MISS B. FURZE, A.R.C.M. (Double Diploma), COACHES by CORRESPONDENCE in "Physiology of the Voice." Address, Northumberland College of Music, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.Mus.T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares CANDIDATES for ARTS and MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Latest successes, Mus. Bac: Oxford and Durham, L.R.A.M. A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., &c. Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

DR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab.; Mus. Doc., Trinity College, Toronto; L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS Personally or by post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, ORCHESTRATION, ACOUSTICS, &c., and prepares for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: MUS. BAC., DURHAM, 1896, also 1895 and all previous years; and FIRST, 1896, also 1895 and all previous years; A.R.C.M., 1896; CAMBRIDGE, FIRST MUS. BAC., 1896; OXFORD, MUS. BAC., 1896, and FIRST, 1896; F.R.C.O., 1897, A.R.C.O., 1896; CAMBRIDGE MUS. BAC.; LONDON, MUS. BAC.; DUBLIN, MUS. BAC.; L.R.A.M. (Composition and Pianoforte), 1896 and 1897; Mus. Bac. and Mus. Doc., Toronto, Gold Medalists, 1890, 1892, and 1893; L.Mus., L.C.M.; L.T.C.L., and A.T.C.L., 1896 and 1897; Senior Local R.A.M. and R.C.M. Special and individual attention given to Correspondents. Upwards of 350 Diplomas and Degrees and several Gold and Silver Medals gained by pupils. MSS. corrected and revised for publication. Terms moderate. Address, 70, Park Road, Haverstock Hill, London N.W.

MR. S. S. MARTYN, Mus. Bac., Oxon., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., personally or by post. 24, Killieser Avenue, Streatham Hill, S.W.

DR. FRANK MERRICK, Mus. D. (Dublin), L.T.C.L., L.R.A.M., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence, and prepares Candidates for the University and Metropolitan Examinations. 7, Hughenden Road, Clifton.

MR. W. E. PITMAN, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., teaches HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT, personally or by correspondence, and coaches for the Universities, Royal College of Organists, and other Musical Exams. Thorough grounding in the various subjects. For terms, address, W. E. Pitman, Sundridge, Sevenoaks.

DR. W. JOHN REYNOLDS, Mus. Doc., Lond., L.Mus., T.C.L. (Organist, St. Michael's, Cornhill), prepares CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS, personally or by post. Many successes. Particulars on application. 66, Highbury Grove, London, N.; or, at the Church.

MR. HAMILTON ROBINSON, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, F.R.C.O., Lecturer on Harmony in King's College, Lond., Organist and Choirmaster, St. Stephen's, South Kensington. PIANOFORTE and ORGAN LESSONS. HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, &c., personally or by correspondence. Preparation for University, R.C.O., and other Examinations. Classes. 54, Baron's Court Road, West Kensington, W.

MR. R. STOKOE, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.C.O., gives ORGAN LESSONS at Christ Church, Down Street, Piccadilly. Harmony, Counterpoint, &c., taught personally or by post. 86, Rossiter Road, Balham, S.W.

DR. TAYLOR, Mus.D., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.T.C.L. (Author of "Vocal Score Reading Exercises" and "Figured Bass and Melody Exercises," for R.C.O. Students), prepares CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Address, Wolverhampton Road, Stafford.

MR. A. W. TOMLYN, Mus.B., Dunelm, L.T.C.L., Berwick-on-Tweed, COACHES CANDIDATES for University and all other Exams. by post. Every possible attention and assistance guaranteed. Many past successes.

MR. W. H. TUTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., L.R.A.M., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, ACOUSTICS, &c., by Correspondence. Ashburn, Derbyshire.

THE TRAINING of ALTOS.—LESSONS in VOICE PRODUCTION and SINGING given by MUNRO DAVISON, L.R.A.M. (Singing), F.R.C.O., Professor of Alto Singing, Guildhall School of Music; Solo Alto, Temple Church, &c.; Professor of Singing, Organ, Pianoforte, and Harmony, 142, Stroud Green Rd., N.

THE TRAINING OF TENORS. DAVIDSON PALMER'S METHOD. This method of Voice-Training, which has of late attracted much attention in the musical world, is of the utmost importance to Tenors.

MR. DAVIDSON PALMER, Mus. Bac., Oxon., gives Lessons at his residence, and at the West-End. For terms, &c., address, 2, Highwood Road, Upper Holloway, N.

MR. GEORGE T. PATMAN, F.R.C.O., Organist and Choirmaster, All Saints', Scarborough, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL, to study Organ, Piano, Singing, Choir-Training, Harmony, &c., and to prepare for Examinations. Four-manual organ. Daily choral services.

RESIDENT PUPIL.—YOUTH REQUIRED, to train for Profession. Exceptional advantages. Univ. degree. Dr. Thomas, Carlyle, Boscombe, Bournemouth.

KING'S COLLEGE, Cambridge.—CHORISTERSHIPS.—The TRIAL of VOICES to fill vacancies in the Choir School will be held on Thursday, March 11. Candidates must have a good ear and good voice, and should be between 9 and 12 years of age. For particulars, apply to the Dean. Names to be sent in by March 4.

KING'S COLLEGE, Cambridge.—There will be a COMPETITION for a TENOR CHORAL SCHOLARSHIP on Thursday, March 4, 1897, value £80, for three years. The successful Candidate will be required to enter the College as a Member of the University not later than April 10, 1897. For further information apply to the Dean.

GRESHAM COLLEGE LECTURES.

HILARY TERM, 1897.

The Lectures in Music for this term will be delivered in the Great Hall of the City of London School, Victoria Embankment, E.C., by Professor BRIDGE, Mus.D., as under:

TUESDAY, February 16.—"The Development of the Oratorio," II. (Carissimi's "Jonah" will be performed.)

WEDNESDAY, February 17.—"Handel's Organ Concertos," II. (Illustrations with Organ and Small Orchestra.)

THURSDAY, February 18. / FRIDAY, February 19. — "Schubert's Music for the Stage," II. (The Operetta "Alfonso und Estrella" will be performed.)

The Lectures are free to the public and commence at 6 p.m.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

Instituted by the Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.
Incorporated, 1891.

Patrons:
The Rt. Hon. THE MARQUIS OF LORNE, K.T.
The Rt. Hon. THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

Director:
J. H. LEWIS, Mus. Doc., D.C.L.

Registrar:
GEORGE PRIOR, Mus. Doc., Oxon.

Bursar:
W. F. W. JACKSON, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

Local and Higher (Practical) Examinations are now being held at the various Centres.

Next LOCAL THEORETICAL EXAMINATION, April 7, 1897.

METROPOLITAN EXAMINATIONS, in all Subjects, and for all Grades, including the Diplomas of Associate (A.V.C.M.), Associate in Music (A.Mus.V.C.M.), Licentiate (L.V.C.M.), and Licentiate in Music (L.Mus.V.C.M.) will be held April 7, 1897.

The Educational Department is under the direction of Dr. Prior.

Local Secretaries required for towns not already represented.

Full particulars on application.

GEO. A. STANTON, F.G.C.M., Secretary.

Central Office: 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.

MUSICAL INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE,

LIMITED.

Founded 1878. Incorporated 1893.
Central Office: 113, Great Portland Street, W.
Principal: EDWIN M. LOTT, Mus. Doc.
Vice-Principal: JAMES H. LEWIS, Mus. Doc., D.C.L.
Next Local Theoretical Examination, May 25, 1897.
Practical Examinations throughout the kingdom.
W. A. PHILPOTT, Mus. Doc., Secretary.

OXFORD (New College).—CHORISTERSHIPS.—The TRIAL of VOICES to fill vacancies in the Choir School will be held on Wednesday, March 24. Candidates must have a good ear and good voice, and should be between nine and twelve years of age. For particulars, apply to the Precentor. Names to be sent in by March 20.

CHORISTERS.—Two LEADING BOYS WANTED, for the Choir of St. Bartholomew's Church, Dalston Lane, N.E. Apply at the Church on Friday evenings, between 8 and 9 o'clock, or by letter to Mr. W. Clark, 72, Evering Road, Stoke Newington, N.

BOY TREBLE SOLOIST WANTED, for West-End Church. Ordinary services; two on Sunday and one on week-day afternoon. £40 per annum (minimum). Apply, Conductor, 114, Mount Street, W.

ALTO WANTED, for City Church. Light duties. Salary, £10. Also, CHOIRBOY WANTED. Apply, by letter, Geo. F. Grover, 133, Aldersgate Street, E.C.

ALTO WANTED, for St. Olave's, Woodberry Down, Finsbury Park. Fridays and Sundays. Address, with one testimonial, Organist, 340, Green Lanes, Finsbury Park, N.

ALTO WANTED, for Holy Trinity Church (Park side), Knightsbridge. Good reader. £12. Apply to the Organist.

ST. PAUL'S, Tottenham.—ALTO and BASS WANTED. Must be good readers. Salary, £12 each. Apply, W. A. Hall, 49, The Avenue, Bruce Grove, Tottenham.

TENOR and ALTO WANTED (St. Paul's, Kilburn). Good readers. Salary, £15 each. Address, Mr. Leonard Butler, 1, Brondesbury Road, N.W.

TENOR WANTED, at St. Mary's, Vincent Square, Westminster. Salary, £10 per annum. Address, Charles C. Byers, 121, Brigstock Road, Thornton Heath, S.E.

CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL, Oxford.—There is a VACANCY in the Choir for a TENOR voice. Salary, £80 a year. Candidates must be Communicant members of the Church of England and must be under thirty years of age. Written applications, enclosing copies of two testimonials as to musical ability and two as to personal character, one of the latter being from a clergyman of the Church of England, should be sent by Wednesday, February 10, to the Organist, Dr. Basil Harwood, Christ Church, Oxford, who will give further particulars.

London College of Music,

INCORPORATED 1892.] [LIMITED.

GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET,
LONDON, W.

PATRON.

HIS GRACE THE DUKE OF LEEDS.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.

HORTON ALLISON, Esq., Mus.D., Dublin; Mus.B., Cantab.
W. H. LONGHURST, Esq., Mus.D., Cantuar, F.R.C.O.
WALTER H. SANGSTER, Esq., Mus. Doc., Oxon.

ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Esq., Mus. Bac., Cantab. (Principal, Education Department).
G. AUGUSTUS HOLMES, Esq. (Director of Examinations).
Dr. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (Vice-Principal).

EXAMINATIONS in PIANOFORTE PLAYING, SINGING, THEORY, and all branches of Music will be held in London and at 350 Provincial Centres in April next, when Certificates will be granted to all successful candidates.

SPECIAL ATTENTION is directed to the well-graded character of both Practical and Theoretical Examinations, commencing with the Elementary Grade—a section which the Council of this College were the first to introduce some ten years ago.

SYLLABUS and FORMS of ENTRY can be obtained of the Secretary, who will supply all particulars. The last day for receiving entries is March 15.

The DIPLOMAS granted by the College are Associate (A.L.C.M.), Associate in Music (A.Mus.L.C.M.), Licentiate (L.L.C.M.), Licentiate in Music (L.Mus.L.C.M.), and Fellowship (F.L.C.M.). Regulations on application.

In the EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT Students are received and thoroughly trained under eminent Professors at moderate fees. Day and Evening Classes are held in various subjects.

REHEARSALS of the OPERATIC CLASS, ORCHESTRA, and LADIES' CHOIR are held each week. Membership is free to Students of the College.

STUDENTS' CONCERTS, and LECTURES and RECITALS by Professors, are periodically given during Term in the Large Hall of the College. Full particulars will be found duly published in the daily papers.

T. WEEKES HOLMES, Secretary.

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

Examinations for Degrees in Music are held in March and September. Full particulars, with copies of former papers, of Dr. Armes, The Bailey, Durham.

DR. HOCH'S CONSERVATOIRE for all branches of Music, in Frankfort-on-the-Maine. The Summer Term commences March 1. Director, Professor Dr. B. SCHOLZ. Tuition is given by Frau P. Bassermann, and by Messrs. Director Dr. B. Scholz, Professor J. Kwast, L. Uzielli, F. Meyer, E. Engesser, Music Director A. Glück, K. Friedberg, and Ch. Eckel (in Pianoforte); Mr. H. Gelhaar (in Organ); Professor H. Heermann, Professor Naret-Koning and F. Bassermann, Concertmeister A. Hess (in Violin and Viola); Professor B. Cossmann, Professor Hugo Becker (in Violoncello); W. Seltrecht (in Contra-Bass); M. Kretzschmar (in Flute); R. Müns (in Oboe); L. Mohler (in Clarinet); F. Thiele (Fagotto); C. Preusse (in Horn); J. Wohllebe (in Trumpet); Frau Professor Schroeder-Hanfstaengl u. d. Herren Kammersänger Max Pichler, C. Schubart, S. Rigutini, Frl. Cl. Sohn, and Frl. A. Kolp (in Singing); Director Dr. Scholz and Messrs. Professor J. Knorr, C. Breidenstein, and B. Sekles (in Theory and Composition); Professor V. Valentin (in German Literature); Mr. K. Hermann (in Declamation and Mimics); Frl. del Lungo (in Italian Language). Prospectus to be had, gratis and franco, from the Secretaryship of the Dr. Hoch's Conservatoire, 4, Eschersheimerlandstrasse. Applications for entry should be made immediately as only a limited number of pupils will be accepted.

TRINITY COLLEGE LONDON

FOR MUSICAL EDUCATION AND EXAMINATION.—INST. 1872.

President: SIR RICHARD E. WEBSTER, G.C.M.G., Q.C., M.P.
Warden: Professor E. H. TURPIN, Mus.D.
Director of Examinations: Professor JAMES HIGGS, Mus.B.
Registrar: Professor GORDON SAUNDERS, Mus.D.

HIGHER EXAMINATIONS.

At the FORTY-SEVENTH HALF-YEARLY HIGHER EXAMINATIONS, held in January, 1897, the following Candidates passed:

LICENTIATES IN MUSIC.—Lucy Andrews, Eleanor A. Durnford, William Griffith, Mus.B., George D. Rawle.

ASSOCIATES IN MUSIC.—Caroline L. Brown, Sidney L. Coveney, William Fielden, Ida M. Knott, Agnes E. Lott, Mildred B. Mapleton, Mrs. Rose Mesham, Robina B. Nicolson, Gertrude Payne, Mary C. Sorsbie, Hugh B. Tabberer, M.A., Ellen Underhill, Margaret L. Wilcox.

PRELIMINARY CERTIFICATES FOR ASSOCIATES IN MUSIC.—Mabel W. Kittow, Elizabeth Steen.

MATRICULATION CERTIFICATES.—Honours: Blanche R. Cooper, Louise Z. Dugdale, Henry W. Eaton, Norman S. Hamer, Marguerite P. Laurie, Elsie F. B. Martin, Sydney W. Stevenson, Margaret E. Thomas, Kathleen L. Whitty. Pass: Nellie Eastaway, Jane E. Funge, Albert W. Gibbs, Mabel W. Kittow.

ASSOCIATE PIANISTS.—Mabel Foyle, Thomas Taylor, Maud A. Winter.

CERTIFICATED PIANISTS.—Mrs. Emma A. Allen, Margaret Allison, Ella B. Barber, Katie Brennan, Beatrice C. Brown, Ethel M. Burrow, Christina A. Culross, Mrs. Sarah A. E. Dean, Ethel A. Dear, Winifred Dixon, Kate L. Foster, Jessie M. Fowler, Edith F. R. Garaway, Elisabeth C. Gregory, Constance A. Harman-Brown, Herbert Higham, Nellie Hill, Kate E. Houchin, Harriet B. Jones, Charles S. Jones, Nellie C. Jones, Henrietta E. Kitson, Ethel M. Lea, Gertrude E. Mussett, F. Eva D. O'Neill, Nellie Peacock, Mabel Phillips, Annie E. Potterton, Ida R. Randall, May Rogers, Florence G. Shelton, Joseph Soar, John G. Spence, Rose E. Steel, Harriet E. Stevens, Mabel Stokes, Rosetta E. Tönnesen, Eleanor G. Trench, Elizabeth V. Trounce, Florence M. Underwood.

ASSOCIATE VOCALIST.—Lily Trickett.

CERTIFICATED VOCALIST.—Mabel Brooke, Mrs. Emma J. Seex.

HARMONY CERTIFICATES.—Annie F. Goulding, Edith M. Harlow, William Hodgkin, B.A., Nellie Peacock, Violet E. Puzey, Ellen M. Shorrock, Sydney W. Stevenson.

COUNTERPOINT CERTIFICATES.—Arthur Duxbury, A.T.C.L., George P. Greenhalgh, Edith M. Harlow, Richard Robinson, Sydney W. Stevenson, Sarah E. Underhill, A.T.C.L.

CHOIR-TRAINING CERTIFICATES.—Benjamin Higham, A.T.C.L., Fred. Royle, Mus.B.

Examiners.—G. E. Bambridge, L.T.C.L.; Francesco Berger, Henry R. Bird, L.T.C.L.; William Creser, Mus.D.; A. E. Drinkwater, M.A.; Charles Edwards, Alfred Gilbert, Arthur J. Greenish, Mus.D.; Prof. James Higgs, Mus.B.; Rev. H. G. Bonavia Hunt, Mus.D.; A. H. Mann, Mus.D.; M. J. Monk, Mus.D.; Tivadar Nachèz, C. W. Pearce, Mus.D.; Prof. Gordon Saunders, Mus.D.; C. E. Tinney; Prof. E. H. Turpin, Mus.D.; and A. H. Walker, B.A., Mus.D.

By Order of the Academical Board,
SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.

Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, W.

Will be Published February 10.

THE MUSIC TO

"AS YOU LIKE IT"

COMPOSED FOR THE PRODUCTION OF SHAKESPEARE'S PLAY AT THE ST. JAMES'S THEATRE

BY EDWARD GERMAN.

MASQUE

CONSISTING OF

No. 1. WOODLAND DANCE.
„ 2. CHILDREN'S DANCE.
„ 3. RUSTIC DANCE.

ARRANGEMENT FOR THE PIANOFORTE BY THE COMPOSER.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence net.

IT WAS A LOVER AND HIS LASS

DUET FOR SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO.

Price Two Shillings.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

John Broadwood & Sons

PIANOFORTE MAKERS

BY SPECIAL APPOINTMENT TO

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES
HER ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCESS OF WALES
HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH
(DUKE OF SAXE-COBURG AND GOTHA)

AND THE

REST OF THE ROYAL FAMILY.

John Broadwood & Sons

respectfully draw attention to, and invite inspection of, their newly introduced and improved straight and cross strung

HORIZONTAL

AND

UPRIGHT PIANOFORTES.

33 GREAT PULTENEY STREET (near Regent Street),
LONDON, W.

ESTABLISHED 1780.

ERARD

ROYAL

THE FINEST AND MOST DURABLE INSTRUMENTS.

PIANOS

THE ERARD TONE
THE ERARD ACTION
THE ERARD SCALES
THE ERARD CASES

REPRESENT THE

HIGHEST STANDARD

OF THE

PIANO MAKERS' ART.

Unequalled in their Singing Quality of Tone.
Artists and Amateurs Admit their Superiority.

MOST LIBERAL DISCOUNT FOR CASH.
Any Instrument may be bought on the Deferred Payment System.

S. & P. ERARD,
18, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W.

THE ASSOCIATED BOARD of the R.A.M. and R.C.M. for LOCAL EXAMINATIONS in MUSIC.

President—H.R.H. the PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.

The Rt. Hon. the Lord Charles Bruce, Chairman.
Thomas Threlfall, Esq., Deputy-Chairman.
Sir Alexander C. Mackenzie, Mus.D., Principal, R.A.M.
C. H. H. Parry, Esq., M.A., Mus.D., D.C.L., Director, R.C.M.

Prof. J. Dewar F.R.S., &c.
Cave. A. Randegger.
F. Westlake, Esq.
His Honour Judge Meadows-White, Q.C.
Hon.G.W.Spencer-Lyttelton,C.B.
Sir G. Grove, C.B.
Sir A. Sullivan.
Sir W. Parratt.
F. Taylor, Esq.

Hon. Treasurer—Charles Morley, Esq., M.P.
Hon. Auditor—Sir Charles Lister Ryan, K.C.B.
Hon. Secretary—Samuel Aitken, Esq.

LIST of PROFESSORS who are EXAMINERS to the BOARD.

E. F. Arbos, Esq.
J. F. Barnett, Esq.
O. Beringer, Esq.
H. Blower, Esq.
J. F. Bridge, Esq., Mus. Doc.
A. Burnett, Esq.
F. Cliffe, Esq.
F. Corder, Esq.
F. H. Cowen, Esq.
F. W. Davenport, Esq.
H. R. Eyres, Esq.
E. Faning, Esq., Mus. Bac.
H. Gadsby, Esq.
A. Gibson, Esq.
F. E. Gladstone, Esq., Mus.D.
R. Gompertz, Esq.
W. B. Haynes, Esq.
W. S. Hoyte, Esq.
H. Inwards, Esq.
T. B. Knott, Esq.
C. H. Lloyd, Esq., Mus. Doc.
G. C. Martin, Esq., Mus. Doc.
T. A. Matthay, Esq.
G. P. Moore, Esq.
A. O'Leary, Esq.
A. Oswald, Esq.
W. F. Parker, Esq
Sir W. Parratt, Mus. Doc.
E. Prout, Esq., Mus. Doc.
A. Randegger, Esq.
F. J. Read, Esq., Mus. Doc.
H. R. Rose, Esq.
E. Sauret, Esq.
H. F. Sharpe, Esq.
C. V. Stanford, Esq., Mus. Doc.
F. Taylor, Esq.
J. Thomas, Esq.
W. H. Thomas, Esq.
A. Visetti, Esq.
F. Walker, Esq.
F. Westlake, Esq.
W. E. Whitehouse, Esq.

LOCAL CENTRE EXAMINATIONS, 1897.

The PRELIMINARY LOCAL EXAMINATION (Paper Work) and also the HARMONY or COUNTERPOINT EXAMINATION will take place at the various Centres on February 24; and
The FINAL LOCAL EXAMINATIONS (PRACTICAL SUBJECTS) between April 1 and April 15.
—— See Syllabus A. ——

LOCAL SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS, 1897.

The LOCAL SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS will be arranged in Circuits. They will be held during the periods:—
(b) March, April. (c) June, July. (d) October to December.
Also ELEMENTARY and CLASS-SINGING EXAMINATIONS.
—— See Syllabus B and Supplement. ——

Copies of either Syllabus will be sent Post-free on application to the Central Office, 32, Maddox Street, London, W.
SAMUEL AITKEN, Hon. Secretary.

With this Number is presented gratis an Extra Supplement, consisting of an Anthem by Myles B. Foster, entitled, "My heart is inditing."

THE MUSICAL TIMES
AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.
FEBRUARY 1, 1897.

SCHUBERT'S MUSIC IN ENGLAND.

Many of the great musicians of the last two centuries—from Gluck to Wagner—visited England. There are, however, some notable exceptions. Bach, Beethoven, Schumann, and Schubert never set foot upon British soil. (We may all fervently hope that the name of Brahms will not have to be added to this list of non-visitants.) Bach's connection with the land of "Rule, Britannia" hangs upon the slender thread of his having composed his "English Suites" "for an Englishman of high standing." Although Beethoven never visited these shores, he had English friends in the persons of Smart, Potter, and Neate; and was not the "Choral" Symphony commissioned by our Philharmonic Society? Schumann's warm friendship for Sterndale Bennett is recorded in the eulogies he wrote upon the young Englishman's compositions, which are in strong and pleasant contrast to the vulgar jeers with which the London musical critics greeted the music of the German master. But we seek in vain for any link connecting Schubert with England or one of our countrymen. It should, however, be remembered that there were satisfactory reasons for this apparent neglect of so illustrious a master. Schubert's short life—less than thirty-two years—was not only passed in poverty and obscurity, but also in the shadow caused by the transcendent brilliance of his brother-musician and fellow-citizen—Beethoven. English pilgrims to Vienna who visited Beethoven and regarded him with the reverence with which they would gaze upon some sacred shrine, failed to seek out the young song-writer, Franz Schubert, of whose name they probably never heard during their sojourn in the gay city.

It is a little difficult to say when the name and compositions of Schubert first became known in England; but there is evidence to show that it was earlier than is generally supposed. I find that his name appears during his life-time—and probably for the first time in English literature—in the Quarterly Musical Magazine and Review for 1828 (Vol. X., p. 189). An article, entitled "The state of music in Vienna," contained the following reference to Schubert: "The other young composers who have distinguished themselves at Vienna are MM. Sechter, who is greatest in fugues, and Schubert, who composes beautiful melodies." Could Schubert's introduction be couched in more felicitous terms than as one "who composes beautiful melodies"? Schubert became known in England, as elsewhere, only as a song composer, and not as an instrumental writer; but, so far as my researches extend, the first composition of his printed in England was one of the smaller pianoforte pieces, and not a song. It was the custom sixty years ago for publishers to issue elaborate "Annuals" for New Year's gifts. In one of these—"The Cadeau" for 1831—I find one of Schubert's "Moments Musicals" (Op. 94), the dainty Gipsy melody in F minor, where it is called "Russian Air"! In the following year (1832), and in the same "Album," I find the earliest English reprint of a Schubert song in the familiar form of the "Erl-King." The Harmonicon, in reviewing the publication, said:

> Sir Walter Scott's version of Goethe's "Erl-King," adapted by M. d'Alquen to music by F. Schubert, comes next, and we confess our preference in favour of Callcott's mode of treating the words, though there is much to approve in the present composition.

The comparison between Callcott's simple glee (for two sopranos and a bass) and Schubert's dramatic song is absurd. The "Erl-King" was published separately (in 1832) by Wessel and Co., predecessors to Messrs.

Ashdown, as No. 7 of their excellent "Series of German Songs," which contained some of the finest songs by Beethoven, Schubert, and others, printed for the first time with both English and German words. A similar publication, entitled "Gems of German Song," began to be issued by Messrs. Ewer and Co. in 1837. The songs of Schubert received a great impetus by their being frequently sung by Madame Schroeder-Devrient and a Herr Kroff during their visits to England, 1832-36. "The Wanderer" (No. 31 of Wessel's "Series") is said to have been first sung in England by Herr Kroff at the Classical Quartet Concerts, April 8, 1836. "The music of Franz Schubert is highly intellectual," says a critic in noticing the concert, which, if not in the usual antagonistic style to anything new, was a somewhat cold criticism of a genuine inspiration. With the English publications above referred to, the songs of Schubert soon became known. Curiously enough, it appears that suspicions were aroused as to whether Schubert's posthumous songs were being forged, as the publishers were producing them in such vast numbers from the manuscripts. A writer in the Musical World (1839) makes the following droll remarks:

> A deep shade of suspicion, we regret to say, is beginning to be cast over the authenticity of posthumous compositions. The defunct popular composer not only becomes immortal in the poetical sense, but, by a curious felicity which publishers can best explain, actually goes on composing after he is dead. All Paris has been in a state of amazement at the posthumous diligence of the song-writer, F. Schubert, who, while one would think his ashes repose in peace at Vienna, is still making eternal new songs, and putting drawing-rooms in commotion.

Schubert's instrumental compositions did not become familiar till long after his songs, either here or in Germany. His chamber music was popularised by the Monday Popular Concerts, which were started in 1859, and also by the late Sir Charles Hallé at his excellent and educational Recitals, commenced in 1861. Hallé edited an English edition of the pianoforte works, which considerably helped their propagation in this country. He played the E flat Trio (Op. 100) at Manchester, October 31, 1850. John Ella, at his Musical Union, introduced the Posthumous Quartet in D minor, played May 4, 1852, when it was led by Joachim, who doubtless suggested it to Ella. In connection with the introduction of the E flat Trio at the Musical Union, the following amusing story against Ella is told by Hallé (though the year should be 1853 instead of 1849):

> Mr. Ella had written an analysis of this work, to be inserted in the programme, in which he had dismissed the "Menuetto" ["Scherzo"] with the short sentence, "This movement is not very interesting." When he showed me the proof on the day previous to the concert, I remonstrated and said he would probably find that this "Menuetto" was the gem of the whole Trio. He replied that he had carefully read it through, and that it had not struck him as particularly remarkable. We had a short discussion about it, but I felt I could not convince him. The conversation turned upon other things for some time, when just before taking leave he referred once more to the "Menuetto," and said: "Well, I do not mind making a slight change in the paragraph you object to." He showed me the proof again, and I read to my surprise: "This movement is . . . very interesting." The change was indeed slight—only one word omitted—but it could hardly have been greater.*

In regard to the orchestral music, a start was made by the Philharmonic Society when it performed the Overture to "Fierabras" under Mendelssohn's direction, and probably at his instigation, on June 10, 1844. The leading critic of the day welcomed Schubert's orchestral music in the following severe terms:

> The Overture of Schubert is literally beneath criticism. Perhaps a more overrated man never existed than the same Schubert. He has certainly written a few good songs, but what then? Has not every composer that ever composed written a few good songs? And out of the thousand and one with which Schubert deluged the musical world, it would, indeed, be hard if some half-dozen were not tolerable. And when that is said, all is said that can justly be said of Schubert.

At the following concert Schubert's "Die junge Nonne" was sung to French words, Mendelssohn playing the pianoforte accompaniment. The same critic thus anathematised the song: "The scene of Schubert is a very good exemplification of much ado about nothing—as unmeaningly mysterious as could be desired by the most zealous lover of bombast." The Philharmonic lost a magnificent chance in not producing Schubert's greatest symphonic work in 1839, as we shall presently see.

The history of Schubert's great Symphony in C is full of interest, especially in regard to its English career. This colossal work was written by Schubert in the last year of his life. He never heard it performed; but he presented the score to the Musikverein of Vienna, who rehearsed it a few times and then laid it aside because of its difficulties. Robert Schumann "discovered" the Symphony during his visit to Vienna in 1838. He was immensely struck with its greatness, and obtained permission to carry off the score (or a copy of it) to his friend Mendelssohn, then in the hey-day of his success as Conductor of the Gewandhaus Concerts at Leipzig. Mendelssohn at once caught Schumann's enthusiasm, and the Symphony was first performed at the Gewandhaus on March 21, 1839. "We recently," says Mendelssohn, in a letter of April 4, 1839, to Moscheles, "played a most remarkable and interesting Symphony by Franz Schubert. It is, without doubt, one of the best works we have lately heard. Bright, fascinating, and original throughout, it stands quite at the head of his instrumental works." Mendelssohn, whose relations with the Philharmonic Society (of London) had always been of the most cordial nature, was eagerly anxious that the Society and its patrons should hear this "bright and fascinating" work. Eight days after the Leipzig performance Mendelssohn wrote to the Secretary of the Society, in London, as follows:

* "The Life and Letters of Sir Charles Hallé." Smith, Elder and Co. 1896. Page 112.

Leipzig, March 29, 1839.

. . . I hope to be able to send you a very extraordinary and excellent Symphony of F. Schubert, the famous composer, which we performed here at our last Concert with great applause. I have written to Vienna to get the permission of sending the work to the Society, and shall send it immediately if allowed to do so.

Three weeks later Mendelssohn sent the MS. parts of the Symphony to the Philharmonic, accompanied by the following letter to the Secretary, which throws some light on the supposed "cuts" which Mendelssohn is said to have made at the first performance in Leipzig:

Leipzig, April 23, 1839.

. . . I send you to-day . . . the parts of the Symphony of F. Schubert (the celebrated ballad composer), of which I spoke in my last letter. It is a very extraordinary composition, which has created an uncommon sensation amongst the musicians here. I should strongly recommend you not to repeat the first part of the last movement, perhaps also not of the first and second parts of the Scherzo. The slow movement, and also the beginning, will be favourites with you, I believe.

Breitkopf and Härtel, the music publishers, have bought the copyright of this Symphony, and have been quite ready at my request to allow its being performed at your Society before the publication, but they rely on your and the Society's honour that it shall not be used to any other purpose than this performance, and that nobody else will get a copy of it in England. They beg you will return the parts immediately after you use them, which I promised them would be (at latest) early in July. Believe me, always very truly yours,

Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy.

Through the kindness of Mrs. Wach (of Leipzig), Mendelssohn's younger daughter, I am enabled to give the Secretary's reply to her father's letters:

[From Mr. Watts, Secretary of the Philharmonic Society, to Mendelssohn.]

London, July 28, 1839.

. . . The Symphony of Schubert it was thought necessary to score [to make a full score from the separate parts], and being a very long work, it could not be completed even for the last concert; but hoping that it may be performed next season, the parts have been detained beyond the time specified in your letter, our copyist, Mr. Goodwin, having been very unwell, so as to prevent the finishing the score as soon as he had expected.

I have taken the liberty of addressing the whole of the music to you, not being certain how far it would be right that the Symphony should be entrusted to any other hands.

The Symphony was not performed during the following season (1840), and it was laid aside for four years. Mendelssohn was still most anxious that it should be played by the Philharmonic Society. He rehearsed it during his conductorship of the concerts of 1844; but as the band laughed at the repeated triplets in the last movement, he indignantly, and very properly, withheld the work from performance. The Philharmonic did not play the Symphony till thirty-two years after Mendelssohn had sent the MS. parts over! So much for merit, interest, and a first-rate recommendation.

The English home of Schubert's orchestral music is, and always has been, the Crystal Palace, where for more than forty years it has been lovingly nurtured by two men whose names will be writ large when the musical history of this wonderful half-century comes to be written—Mr. August Manns and Sir George Grove. Shortly after Mr. Manns entered upon his distinguished régime at the Crystal Palace, he introduced Schubert's great C major Symphony to an English audience. It was first performed, in two instalments, on April 5 and 12, 1856—the first three of the four movements being played on the earlier date, and the last three (the Andante con moto and Scherzo being repeated) a week later. The first of these two Concerts took place "in the music room—by the Queen's apartments; north wing," a portion of the Palace which was afterwards burnt; but the second was given in the Centre Transept, at which time the Handel orchestra was not roofed in. As the permanent band was not increased for the occasion, the music must have sounded very thin in such a vast space. The programme of April 5, quite destitute of the familiar analysis by "G.," contained the following (and only) reference to the Symphony:

Though often performed and much admired in Germany, Schubert's Symphony is never heard in this country; the cause is, doubtless, its great length. In order that this may not be felt, the first three movements only will be given to-day, and on Saturday next the Andante and Scherzo will be repeated with the closing movement of the composition.

Not one of the newspapers seems to have recorded the introduction of this great musical classic into England! Although the leading critic of the day noticed nearly all the earlier concerts in the Musical World, he is significantly silent upon that of April 5, when the first instalment of the Symphony was given. In his notice of the second Concert (April 12) he records that "the principal feature" was—not the Schubert Symphony—but the performances of a lady flautist, a Mdlle. Cleopatrie Tornborg, "who created a great sensation." There is not one single word about Schubert and his great Symphony.

Mr. Manns has very kindly supplied me with some interesting recollections of that event, which are contained in the following letter:

"Crystal Palace, December 1, 1896.

"In regard to my first performance here of Schubert's grand Symphony in C, in April, 1856, I can safely report that at that early time of my career as conductor of the music very little attention was bestowed either by the manager or secretary of the Palace upon my doings beyond this: that I was frequently urged to avoid the works of unknown and unappreciated composers, amongst whom at that time were Schubert and Schumann.

"I had never heard Schubert's grand C major before I performed it here myself; but I was well acquainted with all that had been said and done for that marvellous work by Schumann and Mendelssohn. It was owing to the influence derived from those trustworthy sources that I purchased a full score and studied and performed the work. . . .

"I very vividly recollect that after the rehearsal I entered Mr. (now Sir George) Grove's office and stated in the most enthusiastic terms how deep an impression the Symphony had made upon me, urging him to come and listen to its performance. He (Sir George Grove) admired, but at the same time pitied, my enthusiasm [!], because the work would never receive the sympathy of a Crystal Palace audience. However, Sir George did come and listen to the performance; and it was from that time that his enthusiasm for Franz Schubert's genius took root and gradually developed into that active participation in the researches concerning Schubert's compositions which have borne such splendid fruit, and benefited musical art in England and abroad to such a great extent. My performances of Schubert's nine Symphonies in chronological order, in the spring of 1881, together with the many first performances of his works, have, I feel sure, not been without influence upon Breitkopf and Härtel's decision to publish their complete edition, which now benefits concert-institutions, musical students and amateurs to such a highly appreciative extent.

"I have reason to believe that my performance of the C major Symphony in 1856 was the first in England, although I remember hearing one of the members of my then very small band speak of a rehearsal of it under the late Dr. Wylde, when, at the close of the first movement, the principal horn called out to one of the first violins: 'Tom! Have you been able to discover a tune yet?' 'I have not,' was Tom's reply. I quote these remarks, made by two of the foremost artists in Costa's band (then the only band in England) in order to show how great was the prejudice at that time against any compositions which did not come from the sanctified Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, and Mendelssohn."

Mr. Manns concludes his letter with these words: "I feel thankful for having been able to help in the good work which has been accomplished in England during the last forty years."

Brief mention must suffice for the other Schubert compositions which obtained their first English hearing at the Crystal Palace. They include the overtures "Alfonso and Estrella," that "in the Italian style," "Freunde von Salamanka," and "Teufel's Lustschloss." The charming "Rosamunde" music was first played at Sydenham, November 10, 1866, and the irresistible "Air de Ballet" in G from the same work, on March 16, 1867, from MS. parts specially sent over by Spina, from Vienna. The B minor (unfinished) Symphony was introduced April 6, 1867. In the autumn of that year Sir George Grove, accompanied by Sir Arthur Sullivan, paid that memorable visit to Vienna, when he joyfully discovered certain dusty parcels of Schubert's MS. music in a cupboard in a lawyer's office. The account of this extraordinary find is graphically and amusingly told by Sir George Grove in the Appendix to Mr. A. D. Coleridge's translation of Kreissle's "Life of Schubert." The "Song of Miriam" (orchestrated by Franz Lachner) began its career of popularity at the Crystal Palace on November 14, 1868, which was its first performance in England. The work was published for that occasion by Messrs. Novello and Co.

The interesting subject of Schubert's setting of English—or, to be more accurate, British—poets is too important to introduce at the close of a long article. Its consideration may be deferred till some future occasion during this centenary year of Schubert's birth.

F. G. E.

VICTORIAN MUSIC.

II.—The Music of the Church.

In order to estimate the change which has passed upon Church music since the beginning of Queen Victoria's reign, it is needful, first of all, to ascertain what its condition was at the outset. In this there is no great difficulty. Plenty of evidence may be found in contemporary publications, to some of which I now invite the reader's attention.

The volume of the Spectator for 1839 contains remarks which show deep discontent with the then condition of Church music, and the remarks of that journal are so interesting, especially in relation to events which followed not many years later, that I am tempted to transcribe them:

"The ceremonies of the Established Church are exactly such as the circumstances in which they had their origin would bespeak them; that is to say, they are cold, prudish, and uninteresting. They appeal but little to the feeling, nothing to the fancy. They arose upon a foundation of no permanent stability; for how can the heat and temper of a popular reaction ever become a solid basis for national work? The church worship of our time is, with little exception, that which reflected the spirit of this reaction, including all the assumed and unnatural frigidity of manner by which a vexed generation sought to express by contrast their objection to the religious forms of their forefathers. But things originated in impulse can with difficulty sustain themselves. That which we would raise to a permanent station among human institutions, we must design in a manner consistent with permanent human principles, and not with the moral phenomena of our own or any other peculiar era."

Thus the Spectator; but I am not concerned to support the argument in all its connected bearings. The main point is that Church music reformers—of whom there was no lack sixty years ago—welcomed it gladly, and turned it to instant account. One of these gentlemen left to us a striking picture of worship-music as then practised: "A musical church-goer cannot now sit out a service without forgetting either his ears or his devotions, such is the irritation which the cacophony on all sides produces. Screaming charity children, the melody sung in all sorts of diapason by the congregation, basses made here and there different from the organ, inner parts volunteered full of offensive notes and wrong harmony; add to this the whole coarse and out of tune, and we have a true representation of the interior of a Protestant church during the Psalms." From the same writer I gather that the music was as bad as its rendering. Persons of taste revolted against abandonment of the solemn and stately old tunes in favour of Dr. Rippon's "sickly inspirations." "No music is too bad for the church, provided it be popular; the twang of the dissenting chapel is now perfectly orthodox." He goes on to demand choirs and anthems, using arguments now wholly superfluous, and leading, therefore, where we need not follow.

Another protestor of the period aims his shafts at the "pleasing prettinesses" which were finding their way into the Church, setting up a painful feeling of incongruity. He continues: "But see the manner in which these works are executed; nothing is excluded from them, the worst taste is pandered to, the harmonies are miserable and puerile, the tunes of all creeds and sects are jumbled together, every churchwarden, and churchwarden's wife, or other authority, suggests some pretty alteration in turn, and the service as now performed in most of the metropolitan churches is disgraceful."

A state of things no better, but, advantages considered, even worse, existed in the cathedrals. A capitular memorial from Bristol to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners in the very year of the Queen's Coronation, urged that "the confinement of a small number of these officials (vicars choral, whose number it had been proposed to reduce, and whose salaries it was intended to raise) to an almost unremitted repetition of routine duty, will tend to diminish their devotional feelings, and in the same proportion mar the effect of their services; and we are fearful that by raising their salaries in the manner suggested . . . an inducement will be held out to nepotic and corrupt appointments." Had it been proposed to raise the salaries of these smug memorialists, would they have put the increase from them on the same grounds? The lay-vicars at that time received forty guineas a year, but, on week days, only three were expected to attend service at the same time, and even that arrangement was not strictly observed. A gentleman who kept the Bristol Cathedral choir under observation for a fortnight reported: "On the week days during that period there were never more than three present; on three mornings only two, and on one evening there was but one. On the three Sundays, five vicars appeared—viz., two altos, two tenors, and one bass."

Here is further testimony, given in the same year: "The choirs of our cathedrals, with some few exceptions only, are in a most crippled and enfeebled condition. They are the living skeletons of what were once vigorous and effective bodies."

Another writer of the same period declared: "We believe our cathedrals are perhaps now the only foundations in this country which afford official asylums for persons who have neither by education, genius, nor learning secured to themselves any title for their appointments. . . . These are characters by no means rare in our cathedrals, where—it is vain to conceal the truth—sacred music has been long retrograding, fast dropping behind. The musical appointments in these places have ceased to be the rewards of eminence in the profession, and, this fact being incontrovertible, we have the public sanction to brand with ignorance and meanness the powers that be, whilst they continue to maintain a culpable indifference to the best interests of the endowments they have sworn to maintain."

Enough has been said for an idea of the apathy and indifference, the impoverished taste and the scandalous negligence connected with religious music when the Queen's reign began. But there were some bright spots amid the gloom. One such is indicated by the voices, preaching in the wilderness, whose words I have quoted, and another by contemporary testimony to the fact that, at this very period, the Nonconformist churches were showing signs of musical appreciation and setting themselves in order accordingly, in a humble manner, no doubt, yet with living force. There is distinct evidence of this in the journals of the day. Sixty years ago, in fact, religious music, like many another religious interest, had come very near a "parting of the ways." The Church as a whole was on the verge of an immense reform, though the position may have been unsuspected. The old state of lifelessness, of perfunctory labours and dead services, was about to pass away, and all things were to become new at the call of men who, once bitterly assailed and denounced, have since been justified as the children of Wisdom, and that none the less completely because many of their successors, animated by the same spirit, have not shown equal discretion.

It was fortunate—one might perceive the finger of Providence in it—that, with a revival of religious life in the English Church came a great forward movement in popular music. The sensitive among the musicians of the day seem to have perceived its approach, and one wrote: "If ever music be destined to have a chance in this country, the moment is assuredly not far distant." But improvement was very slow, and sorely tried the patience of the sanguine. In 1840 "An Amateur Precentor," writing to the Musical World, said: "In the department of Church music, how low has the Church of England sunk! For instance, in London alone, how many churches are there in which, of course excepting the cathedrals, there is a musical service at all decently performed? In not one, I believe, is there anything like a full choir to be found. Yet, in the Roman Catholic chapels the greatest attention is paid to this point, and in that at Moorfields there is a choir of no less than sixty performers, all of whom, with six exceptions, are amateurs. Should not a fact like this shame some of our Protestant clergy and laity into activity? . . . I long to see the time when every parish church shall possess not only an organ, but an efficient choir, and when the music shall be performed in a manner somewhat on a par with the sublime nature of our venerable ritual." I know not whether the writer "died without the sight" of that which is so familiar to us; at any rate, he had need of patience. A nation, especially one so reluctant to change as England, is not moved in a day. The task of overcoming even mere inertia is heavy; that of turning the mass in another direction is herculean. But we shall see that in time it was accomplished, to the honour of the toilers and to our own great gain.

In 1844 what was known as Tractarianism had gathered much strength, and more and more pressed the question (inter alia) of improved religious services upon public attention. There appears to have been but slight active resistance to progress in this particular matter, inasmuch as no distinctly Roman flavour attached to Milton's ideal of "service high and anthem clear." Indeed, a London paper, described as "especially remarkable for its determined opposition to anything like what is called 'Puseyism,' 'Tractarianism,' or any other of the isms about which we hear so much"—this paper conspicuously advocated improvement in Church music. So did many secular journals in the provinces, and it is interesting to note how far public opinion had accepted the teaching of those who, as I have shown, advocated the use of a higher class of music. I take the subjoined passage from the Liverpool Mail:—

"What the Church wants is the calling forth of the voice of praise from her lay members. To this end there are no better means than good metrical versions of the Psalms and other portions of Scripture, set to tunes of an impressive character; not the trash which we too often find in favour in our churches, such as Wesley's and Watts's Hymns, sung to 'Rousseau's Dream,' and piracies upon 'Drink to me only with thine eyes,' and other profane airs, which, though pleasing in the concert-room, are out of place in ecclesiastical edifices. . . . There is nothing more wanted in our churches than a good school of church music—liberality on the part of our congregations in the support of their choirs, and the attainment of so much musical knowledge as shall enable them to assist in this necessary part of public worship."

The first part of the foregoing quotation touches an interesting point in the development of Church music during the present reign. Evidently the writer had a strong feeling against the use of "Hymns" in the services of the Establishment, for no better reason, apparently, than that they were used by Dissenters. He stood then where many Scottish Presbyterians still stand, and refused to sing lyrics based upon anything short of the inspired Word, though it appears that he took up the position through a less exalted motive than the one which actuates them. Little did the writer foresee that the time was coming wherein the vast majority of the verses used in worship would be the "work of art and man's device"—when the names of Wesley, Watts, Cowper, and a host of other hymnodists would become as household words in every parish church. How was this change brought about? The question is an important one because inseparably connected with a corresponding change in the music of religious service.

Shall I go too far afield if I mention here the great wave of Romanticism which, in the early decades of the present century, swept over Europe, laden with change? The reader knows how Beethoven in German music, Goethe in German poetry, and a brilliant band of artistic Frenchmen in the "City of Light" originated that great and far-reaching movement—how, having at their command the agencies which most powerfully appeal to human nature, they acted upon public consciousness. Music, verse, fiction, criticism, oratory even, all became so many instruments in the hands of this new and potent factor in working out the destinies of humanity. Directly or indirectly, Romanticism leavened the more civilised nations of Europe, setting up keener susceptibility to emotion, to the influence upon emotion of the beautiful in all its forms, and to the charm of every manifestation tending to lift the mind above the prosaic humdrum of common life. All this, in my opinion, prepared the English public—though the masses may have been unconscious of the origin and nature of the operation—for the movement which sought to give a higher æsthetic and moral value to acts of public worship. It may seem a far cry from the romanticism of Byron or Shelley to the ordered beauty of Christian services, but there are points at which these show a common origin and attributes. The passion, the deep sentiment, the gracious charm of romantic secular poetry have their counterpart in the Church's hymns and music; while, let me add, the same lack of restraint not seldom appears in both. The tendency of all human endeavour into which feeling enters is towards excess, and, no doubt, there are hymns sickly in sentiment and in passion overdone. But, exceptions apart, the hymnody of the Church is now worthy of its high purpose. It often rises to the standard of poetry, and it shows, generally speaking, a just perception of what the poetry of worship should be.

Religious music has moved upon lines parallel to the advance of the sister art. The older Church composers, it is true, were not devoid of feeling or even that acute form of emotion which we know as pathos. But they expressed themselves with a certain austerity due to that in their art which shaped itself upon the formality of a formal age. Their music, as such, will ever present claims upon our homage and admiration, claims which, I trust, will never be denied; but, generally speaking, it is not adapted to the needs of a more romantic and impressionable age. Hence the change of manner which has come over Church music, as well as all other, during the last sixty years—a change sometimes carried to excess, even to the point where prettiness becomes so pretty as to be feeble, but on the whole demonstrating that sentiment, and even religious ecstasy, need not be divorced from musical worth.

While recognising the part played by the "spirit of the age" in developing religious music, the popularisation of the art which began with the fourth decade of our century should by no means be overlooked. I have referred to it before; I mention it again as a secondary means of the highest value. However imperfect the educational apparatus of Mainzer or Hullah, a man could not attend a course of lessons without having his interest in music, and his appreciation of it, materially quickened. He would end that course much less disposed than before to endure bad singing in church, and much more qualified to assist in making it better. It might almost be said that, in the early forties, the whole nation went to music school, and then, stimulated by new ideas of order and efficiency in Church service, the religious application of the art entered upon the path of improvement which has led to its present brilliant position.

I had intended to compress all my remarks upon Victorian Church music into a single article, but the subject expands as one dwells upon it, and now I am not sure that two will suffice. Next month consideration will be given to the progress and influence of Church composers during the sixty years.

—— Joseph Bennett.

FROM MY STUDY.

With this number of The Musical Times are presented a portrait of William Beale and an anthem from his pen. It may be that the name of this composer calls up no associations in the reader's mind. Beale was not a maker of epochs, but, like the vast majority of musicians, did good service during his day, helped on the cause by the contribution of his individual powers, and passed away, only to be remembered for a little time.

The portrait, now in the possession of Beale's son, is the only one known to exist, and was painted by an artist named Robertson, when the subject was thirty-one years of age. Robertson was probably Andrew of that ilk, a Scotchman, born at Aberdeen in 1777, dying at Hampstead in 1845. He walked to London in 1801, attracted the notice of Benjamin West, and ultimately became one of the foremost miniature painters of his day. Various members of the Royal Family, including the Prince Regent, sat to him, while the Duke of Sussex appointed him his own special artist in that line. The portrait of Beale shows every proof of veracity, and the kindly face with the beautiful eyes and Napoleonic brow at once prepossesses us in his favour.

The anthem, "Bow down Thine ear," now for the first time printed, is believed to be Beale's only sacred composition—a remarkable fact, seeing that he was church musician all his life. I need not enlarge upon the characteristics of the work. The reader has the music in his hand, and can form his own opinion. It seems to have been thrown upon paper in what we now consider a slovenly fashion, the accompaniment being indicated by a figured bass only, while there are scarcely any marks of expression or directions as to tempo. Moreover, the editor found it needful to alter certain notes. Nevertheless, the anthem is a sterling work of its kind, and will be found useful in "choirs and places where they sing."

Beale's life can be summarised very briefly. He was born at Landrake on New Year's Day, 1784, and educated as a choirboy in Westminster Abbey, under Dr. Arnold and Robert Cooke. On the breaking of his voice he entered the Royal Navy as a midshipman and served on board the Révolutionnaire, a forty-four gun frigate captured from the French. Beale's soul, however, seems to have longed for more harmonious thunder than that of guns, and he eventually returned to the peaceful pursuit of art. He was appointed a Gentleman of the Chapel Royal in 1816, and the title-page of his Madrigal, "What ho!" refers to him in that capacity. The late Mr. Husk, writing in Grove's Dictionary, declares that Beale never held the position thus accredited to him, but Mr. Husk's statement is incorrect. In 1813 our composer won the Madrigal Society's prize cup with his "Awake, sweet muse," and in 1820 (when he became organist of Trinity College, Cambridge) he published a collection of glees and madrigals, all from his own pen. His stay in Cambridge was brief, and he subsequently became organist of St. John's, Clapham Rise. In 1840 he carried off a prize offered by the Adelphi Glee Club. His death took place in May, 1854. With regard to Beale's compositions, Mr. Baptie, in his book "Sketches of English Glee Composers" (page 102), says: "His pieces number thirty-one (of which eleven were published after his death)."

George Onslow, whose portrait is also given this month, must be ranked among French musicians, despite his English name and half English extraction. He was the grandson of the first Lord Onslow, better known as "Mr. Speaker Onslow," whose services as "First Commoner" were rewarded, in the usual way, by a peerage. This was nearly all the connection existing between the composer and the land of his fathers; his mother's family—a branch of the De Brantomes—being purely French. Onslow, moreover, was born in France (Clermont, Puy de Dôme, July 22, 1784). It may be imagined that, when the Terror loomed ahead, the young aristocrat was hurried out of the country. They brought him to London, where he received the ordinary education given to a gentleman of the period. He studied the pianoforte under Hullmandel, and, later, under the more famous Dussek and Cramer. The instrument of his predilection was, however, the violoncello, which he studied at the solicitation of some neighbours, who wished, in their rural retirement, to have the solace of chamber music. Onslow developed a thorough passion for music of that class. "Each day," says Fétis, "he found in it more charm. Hearing it did not content him; he studied its construction, and scored the finest works of the great masters." This practical study of harmony served him instead of theory, concerning which he knew nothing, and prepared him for composition on his own account. He had passed his twenty-second year before trying what he could do as a creator of music, and then wrote a string quintet in the manner of Mozart. Of sufficient fortune, and living a country life, Onslow had ample leisure for such work and turned it steadily to account. Hence his compositions for the chamber are numerous.

W. Beale

Lord of life

COMPOSED BY A. C. MACKENZIE.

FIFTEEN VOLUMES NOW READY, BOUND IN CLOTH, PRICE 7s. EACH.

424. Abide with me ... R. Dunstan 3d.
478. A few more years shall roll H. Blair 3d.
247. All nations whom B. Luard Selby 4d.
113. All they that trust ... Dr. Hiller 8d.
30. All Thy works ... E. H. Thorne 3d.
475. All Thy works ... J. Barnby 4d.
503. All Thy works ... G. H. Ely 4d.
9. All ye who weep ... ... Gounod 3d.
261. And all the people saw J. Stainer 6d.
229. And it was the third hour Elvey 4d.
485. And Jacob was left alone J. Stainer 6d.
357. And the wall of the city Oliver King 3d.
402. And when the day of Pentecost C. W. Smith 3d.
228. Art thou weary ... C. H. Lloyd 6d.
311. As I live, saith the Lord E.T. Chipp 3d.
333. As it began to dawn Ch. Vincent 3d.
498. As Moses lifted up F. Gostelow 3d.
24. As the hart pants (S.S.T.B.) Gounod 3d.
24*. Ditto (T.T.B.B.) Gounod 3d.
147. Ascribe unto the Lord Travers 6d.
109. Ascribe unto the Lord S. S. Wesley 8d.
399. At the Lamb's High Feast we sing Rev. E. V. Hall 3d.
456. At the Sepulchre H. W. Wareing 4d.
56. Awake, awake, put on J. Stainer 6d.
149. Awake, awake, put on M. Wise 4d.
199. Awake, thou that sleepest Stainer 6d.
150. Awake up, my glory M. Wise 3d.
212. Be glad, O ye righteous H. Smart 4d.
440. Before the heavens H. W. Parker 3d.
349. Behold, how good (A.T.T.B.) A. J. Caldicott 3d.
349.* Ditto (S.A.T.B.) A. J. Caldicott 3d.
419. Ditto Hamilton Clarke 4d.
89. Behold, I bring you J. Barnby 3d.
296. Ditto Rev. E. V. Hall 3d.
348. Ditto J. Maude Crament 4d.
65. Behold now, praise J. B. Calkin 3d.
315. Behold, O God ... F. W. Hird 4d
524. Behold, the days come Woodward 4d.
501. Behold, two blind men J. Stainer 3d.
143. Be merciful ... ... H. Purcell 6d.
257. Be merciful E. A. Sydenham 3d.
471. Be ye therefore followers of God A. S. Baker 3d.
77. Blessed are they ... W. H. Monk 3d.
182. Blessed are they ... Arthur Page 3d.
390. Blessed are they A. W. Batson 3d.
15. Blessed be the God S. S. Wesley 4d.
183. Blessed be the Lord Dr. Heap 6d.
331. Blessed be the Lord C. L. Williams 4d.
400. Blessed City ... A. C. Fisher 4d.
262. Blessed is He ... C. H. Lloyd 8d.
284. Blessed is He F. E. Gladstone 2d.
292. Blessed is he ... A. C. Mackenzie 4d.
64. Blessed is the man ... Sir John Goss 4d.
206. Blessed is the man Clarke-Whitfeld 3d.
286. Blessed Jesu, Stabat Mater Dvorák 6d.
5. Blessing, glory, wisdom B. Tours 4d.
378. Bless the Lord ... M. Kingston 4d.
374. Bless thou the Lord Oliver King 3d.
450. Bless thou the Lord C. Bayley 4d.
97. Blow ye the trumpet Henry Leslie 3d.
118. Bow Thine ear ... W. Bird 3d.
92. Break forth into joy R. Prentice 6d.
415. Ditto S. Coleridge-Taylor 3d.
491. Ditto B. Steane 3d.
323. Brightest and best Rev. E. V. Hall 4d.
340. Bring unto the Lord F. E. Gladstone 3d.
98. Brother, thou art gone Sir J. Goss 4d.
379. By Babylon's wave Gounod 6d.
197. By the rivers of Babylon L. Samson 4d.
121. By the waters of Babylon Boyce 4d.
511. Ditto ... H. Clarke 4d.
116. Call to remembrance J. Battishill 6d.
497. Christ both died E. W. Naylor 3d.
368. Christ is risen ... J. M. Crament 3d.
454. Christ is risen G. B. J. Aitken 3d.
533. Christ is risen ... J. V. Roberts 3d.
307. Christ our Passover Rev. E. V. Hall 3d.
370. Christ the Lord Rev. E. V. Hall 3d.
488. Christians, awake ... J. Barnby 3d.
445. Cleanse me, Lord G. F. Wrigley 3d
52. Come, and let us return Sir J. Goss 3d.
95. Come, and let us return W. Jackson 3d.
201. Come, Holy Ghost ... J. L. Hatton 4d.
283. Come, Holy Ghost Sir G. Elvey 4d.
293. Come, my soul ... G. C. Martin 4d.
314. Come now, and let us H. W. Wareing 4d.
1. Come unto Him ... Gounod 2d.
103. Come unto Me (Bach) J. Stainer 3d.
256. Come unto Me H. R. Couldrey 3d.
334. Come, ye faithful Rev. E. V. Hall 3d.
356. Daughters of Jerusalem H. J. King 3d.
449. Dawns the day ... R. H. Legge 3d.
213. Day of anger (Requiem) ... Mozart 6d.
252. Death and life Walter Parratt 3d.
90. Distracted with care ... Haydn 4d.
277. Enter not into Judgment Dr. Clarke 2d.
362. Eternal source ... F. Brandeis 2d.
470. Eye hath not seen M. B. Foster 3d.
329. Far from their home, our fallen race Rev. H. H. Woodward 3d.
364. Father, hear the prayer F. Brandeis 2d.
46. Father of Heaven Dr. Walmisley 3d.
384. Father of Life ... S. J. Gilbert 3d.
28. Fear not, O land ... Sir John Goss 6d.
446. Flee from evil Rev. W. J. Clarke 3d.
254. For ever blessed ... Mendelssohn 3d.
198. For the mountains... L. Samson 3d.
273. From the deep I called Spohr 6d.
227. Give ear, O Lord T. M. Pattison 2d.
433. Give ear, O Shepherd A. Whiting 3d.
88. Give ear, O ye heavens Dr. Armes 3d.
309. Give the Lord ... C. H. Lloyd 8d.
383. Give unto the Lord H. W. Parker 4d.
2. Glory be to God ... S. S. Wesley 2d.
341. God be merciful ... A. H. Mann 4d.
49. God be merciful ... S. S. Wesley 3d.
236. God be merciful unto us C. F. Lloyd 6d.
105. God came from Teman Dr. Steggall 4d.
128. God is gone up ... Dr. Croft 4d.
131. God is our hope ... Dr. Greene 6d.
101. God is our refuge ... Dr. H. Hiles 6d.
332. God is our refuge ... A. Foote 4d.
75. God said, Behold Sir G. Macfarren 4d.
473. God so loved the world J. V. Roberts 3d.
342. God, that madest earth A. C. Fisher 2d.
344. God, who at sundry times J. H. Mee 4d.
388. Grant, we beseech Thee J. V. Roberts 3d.
187. Great and marvellous Dr. Monk 3d.
517. Ditto ... J. F. Bridge 4d.
223. Great is Jehovah ... Schubert 4d.
136. Great is the Lord ... Dr. Hayes 4d.
237. Great is the Lord Sir F. Ouseley 6d.
481. Great is the Lord ... B. Steane 3d.
220. Grieve not the Holy Spirit Stainer 3d.
427. Hail! gladdening Light J. T. Field 2d.
545. Hail! gladdening Light Martin 4d.
326. Hail, thou that art ... A. Carnall 4d.
499. Hallelujah, Christ is risen Steane 3d.
382. Hallelujah! the Light O. King 3d.
173. Happy is the man ... E. Prout 8d.
487. Hark the glad sound E. V. Hall 3d.
345. Hark, the herald angels E. V. Hall 3d.
444. Hark! what news... ... O. King 3d.
404 Harvest Hymn ... F. Tozer 2d.
377. Have mercy upon me Kellow J. Pye 3d.
401. Have mercy upon me J. Shaw 3d.
535. Have mercy upon me J. Goss 4d.
389. Hear me when I call T. Distin 2d.
146. Hear my prayer ... C. Stroud 4d.
339. Hear my prayer Mendelssohn 4d.
442. Hear my words C. H. H. Parry 8d.
310. Hear, O God ... A. Friedländer 6d.
138. Hear, O heavens P. Humphreys 3d.
94. Hear, O Lord Sir John Goss 2d.
139. Hear, O Lord ... C. King 2d.
162. Hear, O Lord Sir F. Ouseley 4d.
203. Hear, O Thou Shepherd Dr. Clarke 4d.
522. Ditto T. A. Walmisley 4d.
376. Hide not Thy face Kellow J. Pye 2d.
330. Holy Ghost to earth descending, Ludmila ... ... Dvorák 4d.
111. Holy, holy, holy ... Dr. Crotch 3d.
246. Ho! every one ... G. C. Martin 4d.
366. Ho! every one J. M. Crament 4d.
412. Honour the Lord ... J. Stainer 4d.
129. Hosanna ... ... O. Gibbons 3d.
43. Hosanna ... Sir G. A. Macfarren 3d.
260. How beautiful are the feet Handel 3d.
321. How excellent is Thy ... Cowen 6d.
373. How long wilt Thou Oliver King 2d.
104. How lovely are ... ... Spohr 8d.
539. I am Alpha ... J. V. Roberts 3d.
208. I am well pleased J. Rheinberger 3d.
120. I beheld, and lo ... Dr. Blow 6d.
280. I beheld, and lo ... ... Elvey 6d.
496. I came not to call C. Vincent 3d.
207. I cried unto the Lord Dr. Heap 4d.
537. I declare to you the Gospel W. A. C. Cruickshank 4d.
168. I desired wisdom ... J. Stainer 6d.
230. I did call upon the Lord Pattison 4d.
117. I have set God ... Dr. Blake 6d.
130. I have set God ... J. Goldwin 3d.
420. I have set God Hamilton Clarke 4d.
122. I have surely built ... Dr. Boyce 4d.
219. I have surely built T. T. Trimnell 4d.
396. I heard a voice Sir John Goss 2d.
171. I saw the Lord ... J. Stainer 6d.
114. I was glad ... ... T. Attwood 4d.
32. I was glad ... ... Sir G. Elvey 3d.
79. I was glad ... ... C. E. Horsley 6d.
379. I was glad ... T. T. Trimnell 4d.
119. I was in the spirit ... Dr. Blow 6d.
205. I will alway give thanks Dr. Clarke 3d.
73. I will cry unto God Dr. Steggall 3d.
502. I will extol Thee C. M. Hudson 4d.
29. I will give thanks ... J. Barnby 4d.
156. I will give thanks ... E. J. Hopkins 6d.
225. I will go unto ... Dr. Gauntlett 2d.
437. I will greatly rejoice Cruickshank 4d.
195. I will lay me down ... H. Gadsby 2d.
209. I will lay me down ... Dr. H. Hiles 3d.
495. I will lay me down A. C. Edwards 3d.
126. I will love Thee, O Lord J. Clark 4d.
394. I will love Thee, O Lord my strength ... Matthew Kingston 4d.
78. I will magnify Thee J. B. Calkin 4d.
27. I will magnify Thee Sir John Goss 3d.
153. I will magnify Thee ... J. Shaw 3d.
405. I will magnify Thee ... O. King 4d.
154. I will mention ... Sir A. Sullivan 6d.
519. I will open rivers ... E. Pettman 3d.
371. I will set His dominion H. W. Parker 4d.
100. I will sing a new song Dr. Armes 8d.
134. I will sing of Thy power Greene 4d.
192. I will sing unto the Lord Wareing 3d.
6. I will wash my hands E. J. Hopkins 3d.
53. If we believe that Jesus died Goss 3d.
453. If ye love Me H. W. Wareing 3d.
544. If ye love Me... ... B. Steane 2d.
469. If ye then be risen M. B. Foster 3d.
58. If ye then be risen ... Dr. Naylor 3d.
61. In Christ dwelleth Sir John Goss 3d.
403. In my Father's house J. M. Crament 3d.
102. In sweet consent ... E. H. Thorne 3d.
278. In that day ... ... Sir G. Elvey 8d.
33. In Thee, O Lord ... B. Tours 3d.
148. In Thee, O Lord ... J. Weldon 3d.
385. In Thee, O Lord S. C. Taylor 3d.
338. In the fear of the Lord J. V. Roberts 3d.
282. In the Lord ... Sir R. Stewart 6d.
467. Is it nothing to you M. B. Foster 3d.
91. It came even to pass Ouseley 4d.
180. It is a good thing ... J. Barnby 6d.
231. It is a good thing T. M. Pattison 4d.
215. It shall come to pass Dr. Garrett 6d.
397. Jesu, lover of my soul ... F. Iliffe 2d.
455. Jesus Christ is risen Oliver King 4d.
7. Judge me, O God ... Mendelssohn 4d.
179. King all glorious ... J. Barnby 6d.
37. Lead, kindly Light... J. Stainer 4d.
425. Lead, kindly Light... R. Dunstan 3d.
528. Lead, kindly Light C. L. Naylor 4d.
132. Let God arise ... Dr. Greene 6d.
375. Let God arise T. T. Trimnell 4d.
346. Let my complaint ... E. H. Thorne 3d.
509. Let not thine hand... J. Stainer 3d.
438. Let not your heart ... M. B. Foster 3d.
226. Let the peace of God J. Stainer 4d.
328. Let the words of my A. D. Culley 3d.
494. Let Thy merciful ears W. B. Bell 2d.
308. Let us now praise ... E. H. Thorne 3d.
96. Lift up thine eyes ... Sir John Goss 6d.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO ANTHEMS—Continued.

18. Lift up your heads... J. L. Hopkins 1½d.
499. Ditto S. Coleridge-Taylor 3d.
343. Lift up your hearts ... J. Barnby 4d.
408. Lighten our darkness G. R. Vicars 2d.
393. Like as the hart Thomas Adams 3d.
165. Lord, how are they... H. Clarke 6d.
391. Lord, I have loved... ...F. Iliffe 3d.
54. Lord, let me know mine end Goss 3d.
351. Lord of all power ... J. Barnby 2d.
459. Lord of our life ... J. T. Field 3d.
404. Lord of the rich and golden F. Tozer 2d.
411. Lord of the Harvest J. Barnby 4d.
318. Lord, Thou art God... J. Stainer 8d.
434. Lord, Thou hast ... A. Whiting 3d.
274. Lord, what love have I Dr. Steggall 6d.
267. Lord, who shall dwell Dr. Roberts 4d.
335. Lo, summer comes again J. Stainer 6d.
504. Lo! the winter B. Farebrother 3d.
350. Magnify His Name... G. C. Martin 4d.
290. Make a joyful noise A. C. Mackenzie 6d.
108. Make me a clean heart J. Barnby 3d.
431. Ditto A. W. Batson 3d.
436. Man goeth forth ... A. Carnall 3d.
222. Me ye have bereaved C. Morales 3d.
527. Mercy and truth are met J. Stainer 3d.
211. Mine eyes look unto Thee H. Baker 3d.
518. Ditto. E. Pettman 1½d.
500. Miserere mei, Deus J. Barnby 3d.
512. My beloved spake ... H. Purcell 6d.
428. My God, I love Thee G. J. Bennett 3d.
10. My God, my God ... Mendelssohn 6d.
288. My God, look upon .. J. L. Hopkins 3d.
353. My heart is fixed W. Cruickshank 4d.
460. My heart was glad ... A. Carnall 4d.
199. My hope is in the Everlasting ... J. Stainer 6d.
466. My mouth shall speak J. E. West 4d.
190. My soul is weary ... Dr. Beckwith 4d.
295. My soul, wait thou still F. J. Read 4d.
210 Not unto us, O Lord H. Gadsby 6d.
505. O all ye people . ... H. Purcell 3d.
506. O be joyful in the Lord G. Martin 6d.
217. O clap your hands ...T. T. Trimnell 3d.
133. O clap your hands ... Dr. Greene 4d.
82. O clap your hands ... J. Stainer 6d.
80. O clap your hands ...E. H. Thorne 6d.
202. O come before ... G. C. Martin 6d.
241. O come hither ... W. Jackson 3d.
12. O come near to the Cross Gounod 8d.
11. O day of penitence ... Gounod 6d.
16. O give thanks ... Sir G. Elvey 3d.
144. O give thanks ... H. Purcell 6d.
17. O give thanks ... William Rea 3d.
66. O give thanks ... S. S. Wesley 4d.
42. O give thanks ...Sir John Goss 3d.
520. O give thanks ... B. Steane 3d.
35. O God, have mercy... J. B. Calkin 4d.
106. O God, the King of Glory H. Smart 4d.
141. O God, Thou art my God H. Purcell 3d.
34. O God, Thou art worthy A. Sullivan 4d.
188. O God, Thou hast ... H. Purcell 4d.
418. O God, Who hast ... A. S. Baker 2d.
430. Ditto A. W. Batson 3d.
507. Ditto ...J. V. Roberts 2d.
47. O how amiable ... J. Barnby 3d.
233. O how amiable T. M. Pattison 3d.
347. O how amiable ... Oliver King 4d.
48. O how plentiful T. M. Pattison 3d.
490. O Jerusalem, look about E. Naylor 4d.
301. O Jesu! Victim Rev. J. B. Powell 3d.
56. O joyful Light ... B. Tours 4d.
543. O Lamb of God ... J. Barnby 3d.
251. O Lord God ... Ernest Ford 4d.
204. O Lord God... ... Dr. Clarke 3d.
184. O Lord, look down ... J. Battishill 3d.
306. O Lord of hosts ... Kate Boundy 3d.
25. O Lord, our Governor H. Gadsby 3d.
395. O Lord, Thou art ... Ch. H. Lloyd 6d.
3. O love the Lord Sir A. Sullivan 2d.
460. O my heart was glad A. Carnall 4d.
380. O perfect love ... J. Barnby 3d.
124. O praise God ... Dr. Clarke 6d.
40. O praise God T. T. Trimnell 4d.
429. O praise God ... G. C. Martin 2d.
355. O praise God Theodore Distin 3d.
479. O praise our God, ye people Boyce 4d.
14. O praise the Lord ... J. Barnby 4d.
232. O praise the Lord T. M. Pattison 3d.
178. O praise the Lord ...Sir John Goss 6d.
71. O praise the Lord ... Ouseley 3d.
266. O praise the Lord ... Zingarelli 8d.
358. O praise the Lord W. G. Wood 4d.
166. O pray for the peace E. H. Thorne 4d.
51. O Saving Victim (No. 2) Gounod 4d.
486. Ditto ... Rossini 3d.
492. Ditto W. A. C. Cruickshank 3d.
508. O Saviour of the world (A.T.T.B.) J. V. Roberts 2d.
142. O sing unto the Lord H. Purcell 6d.
8. O taste and see .. Sir John Goss 3d.
8*. Ditto. (Welsh Words) 3d.
263. O taste and see ... A. H. Mann 3d.
87. O that I knew where I might find him } Sir W. S. Bennett 3d.
123. O where shall wisdom Dr. Boyce 6d.
435. O worship the King Rev. E. V. Hall 4d.
135. O worship the Lord... Dr. Hayes 6d.
158. O ye that love the Lord Sir G. Elvey 4d.
196. Ditto H. W. Wareing 3d.
234. Ditto F. A. W. Docker 4d.
325. Ditto J. Naylor 3d.
392. Our Father, which art J. Barnby 2d.
303. Our God is Lord ... E. Mundella 3d.
170. Out of the deep ... Dr. Naylor 4d.
240. Out of the deep F. E. Gladstone 3d.
242. Out of the deep ... J. B. Calkin 3d.
81. Plead Thou my cause ... Mozart 6d.
55. Ponder my words ...Henry Gadsby 3d.
300. Ditto ... F. J. Sawyer 2d.
159. Praise God in His holiness B. Tours 3d.
521. Praise, my soul ... E. V. Hall 3d.
70. Praise the Lord ... Sir G. Elvey 4d.
172. Praise the Lord Sir J. Benedict 8d.
137. Praise the Lord ... Dr. Hayes 4d.
125. Praise the Lord ... J. Clark 3d.
59. Praise the Lord ... S. S. Wesley 6d.
208. Praise the Lord, O my soul Mozart 4d.
21. Ditto Sir John Goss 6d.
381. Ditto J. W. Elliott 3d.
63. Ditto Dr. Garrett 6d.
439. Ditto T. P. Royle 3d.
513. Ditto H. Purcell 6d.
298. Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem W. H. Bliss 3d.
316. Ditto Rev. E. V. Hall 4d.
510. Ditto ... H. Purcell 4d.
45. Prepare ye the way... Dr. Garrett 3d.
151. Prepare ye the way... M. Wise 3d.
416. Prepare ye the way J. M. Crament 4d.
60. Rejoice greatly Henry Gadsby 3d.
145. Rejoice in the Lord H. Purcell 3d.
164. Rejoice in the Lord F. R. Statham 4d.
200. Rejoice in the Lord G. C. Martin 6d.
258. Rejoice in the Lord J. Redford 3d.
317. Rejoice in the Lord Philip Armes 6d.
272. Rejoice, O ye righteous Rheinberger 3d.
38. Remember now ... Dr. Steggall 4d.
523. Remember, O Lord Walmisley 4d.
336. Rend your heart J. Clippingdale 3d.
170. Save, Lord, and hear us Dr. Hayes 6d.
287. Save me, O God ...J. L. Hopkins 2d.
451. Saviour, abide with us T. Hanforth 3d.
85. Say where is He born Mendelssohn 6d.
319. Seek ye the Lord Hague Kinsey 3d.
189. Seek ye the Lord Dr. J. V. Roberts 3d.
250. Sing aloud with gladness S. Wesley 6d.
185. Sing a song of praise J. Stainer 3d.
185*. Ditto (Welsh words) 3c.
238. Sing joyfully unto God W. Byrd 4d.
365. Sing, O daughter of Zion Dr. Rea 4d.
291. Sing, O heavens A. C. Mackenzie 6d.
369. Sing, O heavens T. T. Trimnell 4d.
169. Sing praises to the Lord Dr. Croft 4d.
36. Sing praises unto the Lord Gounod 6d.
542. Sing to the Lord ... J. Barnby 4d.
167. Sing to the Lord ... Henry Smart 1s.
99. Sing to the Lord ... Mendelssohn 8d.
525. Sing unto God (Chos. only) Purcell 2d.
410. Sing we merrily ... E. V. Hall 4d.
532. Sing we merrily F. A. W. Docker 4d.
68. Stand up and bless the Lord Goss 4d.
426. Sun of my soul ... R. Dunstan 3d.
297. Teach me, O Lord John W. Gritton 3d.
458. Thanks be to God ...J. W. Gritton 3d.
194. The blessing of the Lord Mackenzie 3d.
472. Ditto J. F. Bridge 2d.
421. The day is past J. C. Marks, jun. 3d.
461. The Day of Resurrection E. V. Hall 4d.
239. The earth is the Lord's Trimnell 4d.
289. The eyes of all ... Orlando Gibbons 4d.
482. The eyes of all wait T. Adams 3d.
448. The First Christmas J. Barnby 3d.
534. The first day of the week B. Steane 3d.
214. The fool hath said Sir W. Bennett 4d.
271. The fool within his heart hath spoken J. Rheinberger 3d.
413. The fost'ring earth J. L. Hopkins 3d.
177. The glory of the Lord ...Sir J. Goss 6d.
245. The God of Jeshurun ...Sir J. Goss 6d.
299. The hills stand about G. Gardner 4d.
313. The King shall rejoice Stewart 6d.
193. The Lord gave A. C. Mackenzie 2d.
270. The Lord give ear J. Rheinberger 3d.
526. The Lord hath commanded Mendelssohn 4d.
312. The Lord hath been E. T. Chipp 3d.
477. The Lord hath been S. S. Wesley 3d.
163. The Lord hath done ... H. Smart 4d.
224. The Lord hear thee J. Barkworth 2d.
248. The Lord is in Dr. G. Saunders 4d.
44. The Lord is great ... W. T. Best 3d.
83. The Lord is King Henry Gadsby 6d.
41. The Lord is King T. T. Trimnell 4d.
367. The Lord is King ... H. J. King 4d.
39. The Lord is loving Dr. Garrett 3d.
483. The Lord is loving...A. W. Batson 3d.
50. The Lord is my light Dr. H. Hiles 3d.
407. The Lord is my light C. W. Jordan 3d.
152. The Lord is my shepherd J. Shaw 3d.
67. Ditto Schubert 4d.
305. Ditto C. V. Stanford 6d.
243. The Lord is my strength Sir J. Goss 6d.
398. Ditto S. Coleridge-Taylor 3d.
422. The Lord is risen G. M. Garrett 4d.
304. The Lord preserveth ... Armes 6d.
474. The Lord shall be J. V. Roberts 4d.
84. The Lord that made J. Turle 2d.
112. The Lord will comfort... Dr. Hiles 6d.
464. The Miserere, &c. ... J. Stainer 3d.
86. The morning stars ... J. Stainer 6d.
465. The night is far spent M. B. Foster 3d.
174. The righteous live... J. Stainer 4d.
255. The righteous living Mendelssohn 3d.
155. The righteous shall flourish Calkin 4d.
140. The souls of the righteous Nares 3d.
249. Ditto Myles B. Foster 3d.
285. Ditto Rev. H. H. Woodward 3d.
294. Ditto Wm. Rea 6d.
452. The Story of the Cross J. Stainer 3d.
457. Ditto M. B. Foster 3d
531. Ditto ... A. Somervell 3d.
360. The strong foundations F. Brandeis 2d.
493. The whole earth J. V. Roberts 4d.
31. The wilderness ...Sir John Goss 6d.
110. The wilderness ... S. S. Wesley 8d.
19. Therefore with angels V. Novello 2d.
302. There is no condemnation Irons 3d.
85. There shall a Star ... Mendelssohn 6d.
253. There was a marriage J. Stainer 3d.
414. There was war in heaven W. A. C. Cruickshank 3d.
324. There were shepherds C. Vincent 4d.
447. Ditto H. W. Wareing 3d.
466. Ditto (Two-part) M. B. Foster 3d.
516. Ditto E. Pettman 3d.
93. These are they which came Dykes 1s.
157. They that go down T. Attwood 4d.
432. They that sow A. W. Batson 3d.
221. Think, good Jesu ... ...Mozart 6d.
359. Think not that they F. Brandeis 2d.
161. This is the day ... S. C. Cooke 3d.
327. This is the day Rev. E. V. Hall 4d.
13. This is the day ... John Sewell 2d.
4. This is the day ... J. Turle 3d.
462. This is the day A. W. Marchant 3d.
265. Thou Judge of quick & dead Wesley 3d.
259. Thou, Lord, art merciful Misericordia Domini Mozart 6d.
62. Thou, O God, art praised S. Wesley 3d.
281. Ditto Sir R. Stewart 4d.
354. Ditto. Rev. E. V. Hall 3d.
476. Thou shalt shew me C. Bowdler 3d.
191. Thou visitest the earth Callcott 2d.
244. Thou visitest the earth J. B. Calkin 4d.
480. Thou visitest the earth J. Barnby 4d.
72. Thou wilt keep him Dr. Gauntlett 3d.
107. Thou wilt keep him... S. S. Wesley 3d.
276. Thou wilt keep him C. L. Williams 2d.
484. Thou wilt keep him P. Armes 4d.
515. Through peace ...J. H. Roberts 3d.
216. Thus saith the Lord Dr. Garrett 6d.
320. Thy mercy, O Lord E. J. Hopkins 6d.
441. Thy mercy, O Lord G. Garrett 6d.
514. Thy word is a lantern H. Purcell 4d.
363. To bless Thy chosen F. Brandeis 2d.
322. To Thee, O Lord C. L. Williams 3d.
443. Try me, O God A. D. Culley 2d.
275. Turn Thy face ... Dr. Steggall 4d.
160. Unto Thee have I cried Sir G. Elvey 3d.
186. Wash me throughly S. S. Wesley 3d.
386. We beseech Thee John E. West 2d.
76. We give Thee thanks ... Macfarren 3d.
74. We have heard Sir A. Sullivan 6d.
387. We shall not hunger A. Mackenzie 3d.
127. We will rejoice ... Dr. Croft 4d.
57. What are these ... J. Stainer 3d.
235. Whatsoever is born of God Oakeley 3d.
538. When Christ, Who is our life J. V. Roberts 2d.
337. When God of old Rev. E. V. Hall 3d.
489. When Jesus W. A. C. Cruickshank 3d.
372. When the Lord turned E. Prout 6d.
69. Wherewithal shall ... Sir G. Elvey 6d.
26. Ditto ... Dr. H. Hiles 3d.
175. While the earth remaineth Dr. Heap 4d.
463. Ditto C. L. Williams 3d.
361. While with ceaseless F. Brandeis 2d.
529. While shepherds watched Barnby 4d.
264. Who is like unto Thee A. Sullivan 6d.
417. Who is this? ... Fred. Rayner 2d.
115. Who is this that cometh Dr. Arnold 4d.
181. Whoso dwelleth ... G. C. Martin 4d.
269. Why assemble the heathen ... J. Rheinberger 3d.
23. Why rage fiercely ... Mendelssohn 6d.
218. Why seek ye the living Alexander 3d.
423. Why seek ye the living F. Peel 4d.
468. Why seek ye the living M. B. Foster 3d.
20. With angels ... ...J. L. Hopkins 3d.
22. Word of God incarnate ...Gounod 3d.
352. Ye shall go out with joy J. Barnby 4d.

(To be continued.)

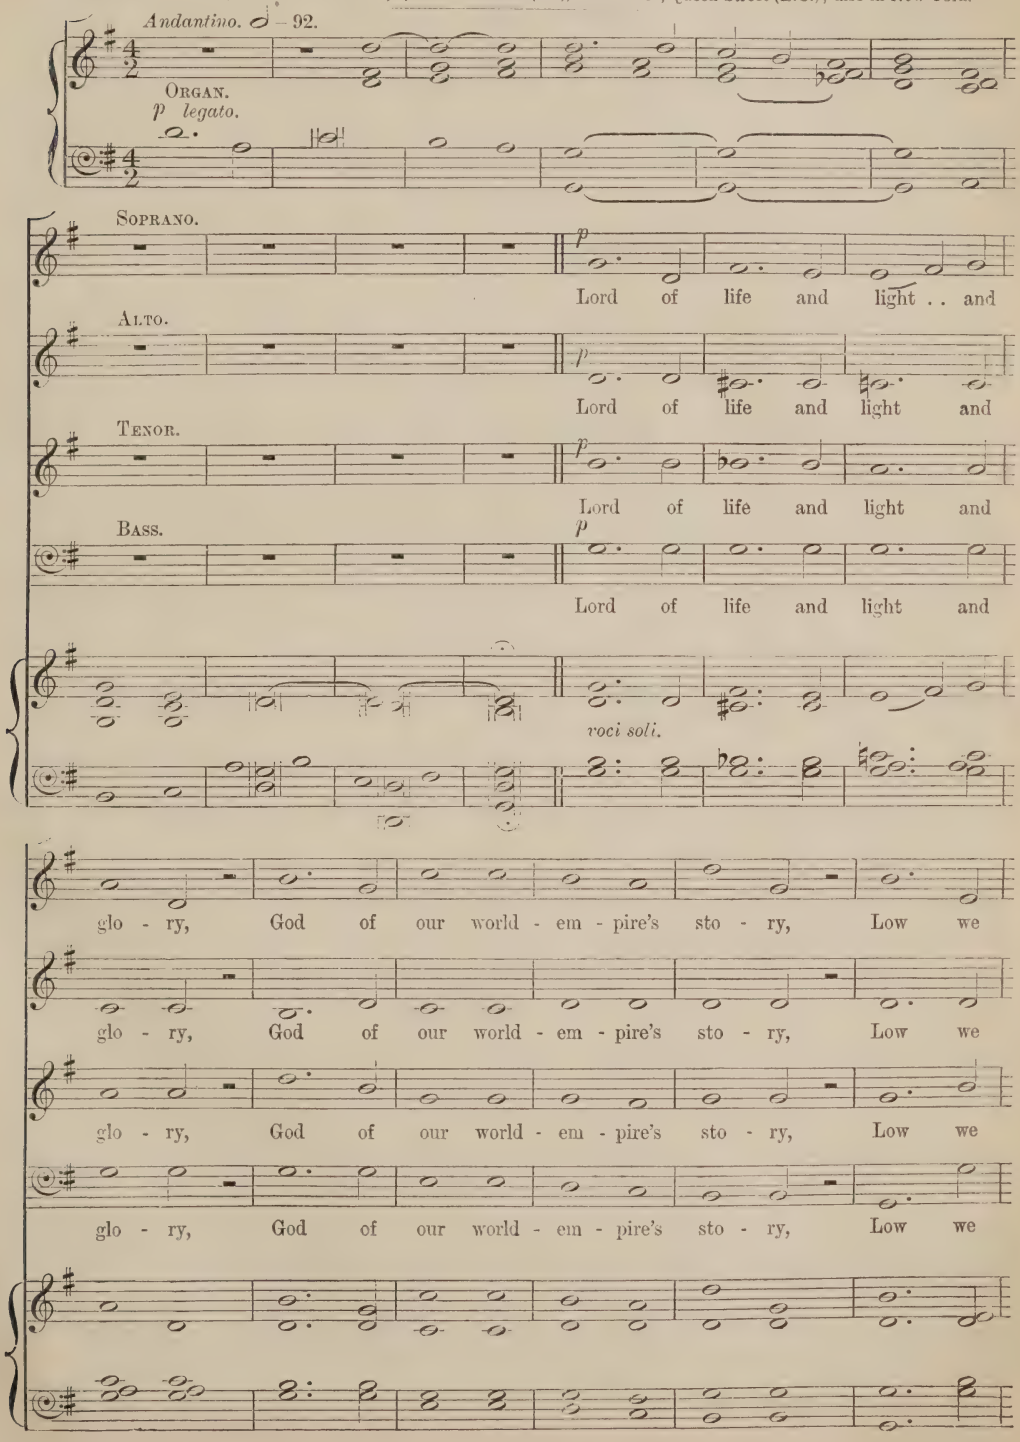
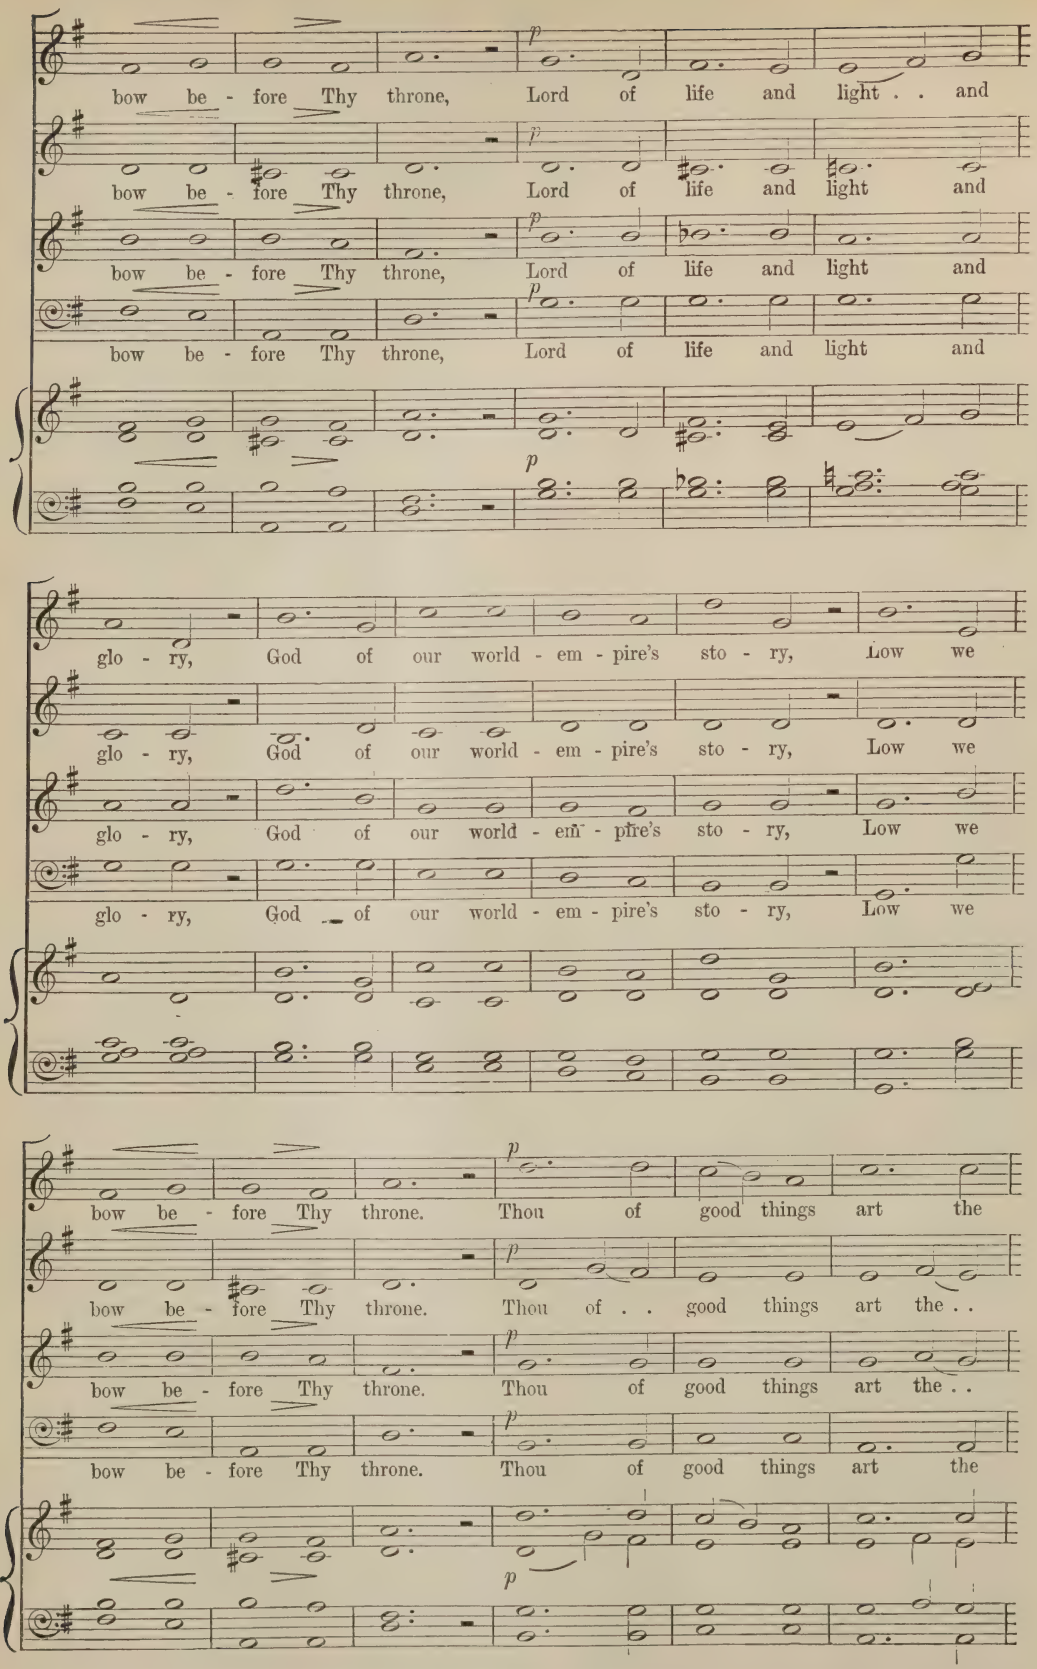
LORD OF LIFE

PRAYER FROM A "JUBILEE ODE"

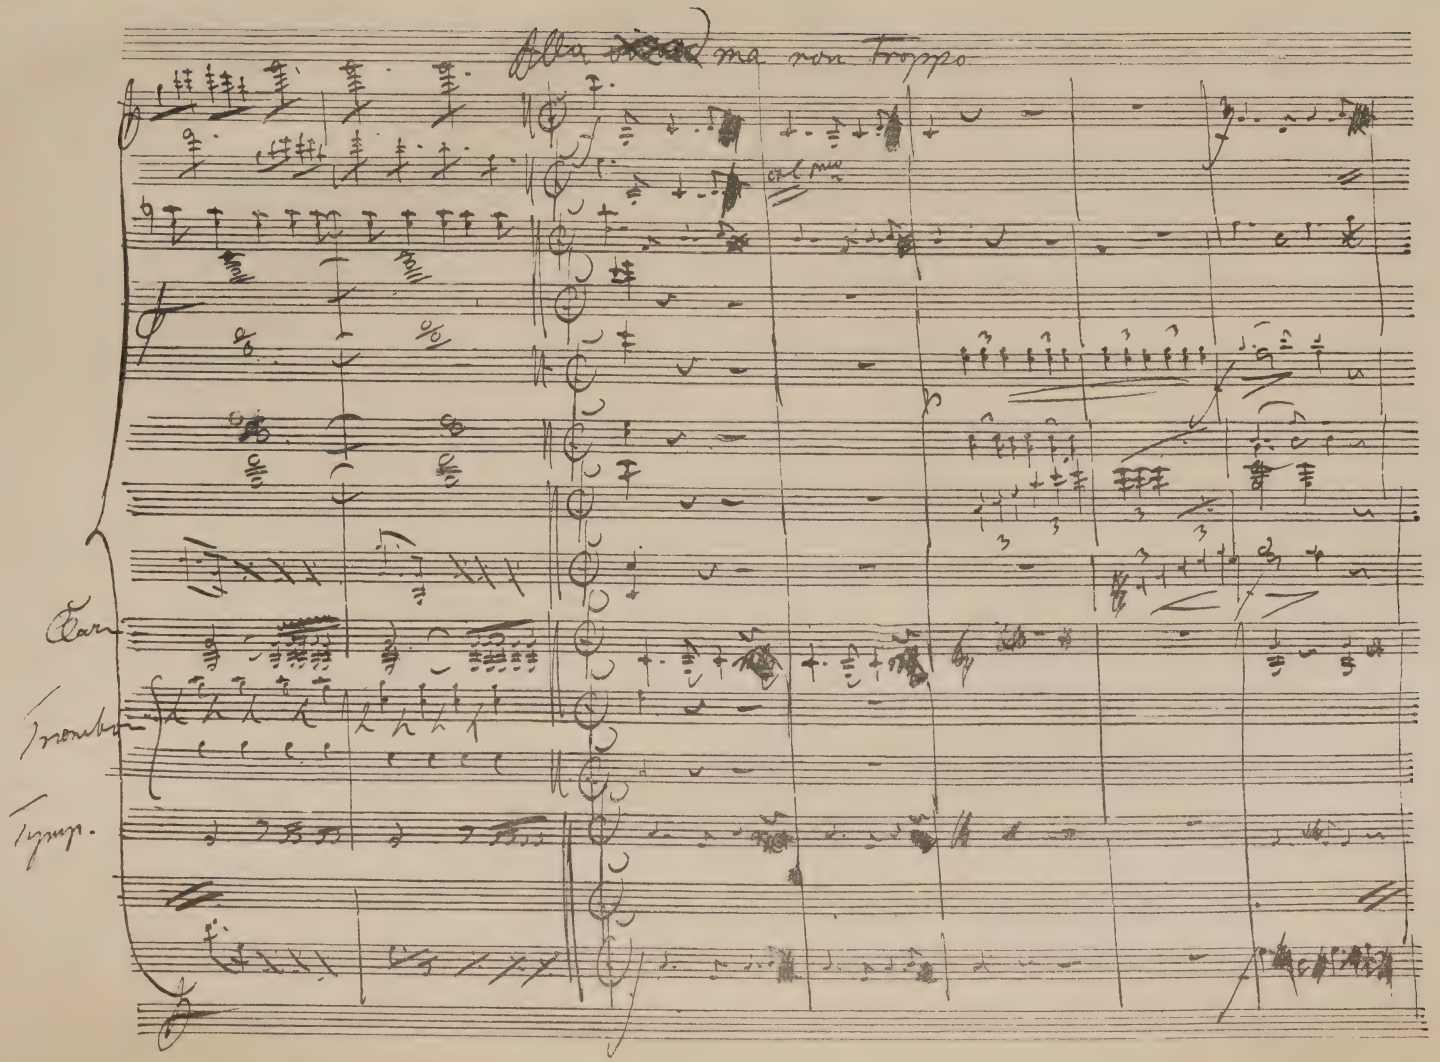
THE WORDS WRITTEN BY JOSEPH BENNETT



THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY



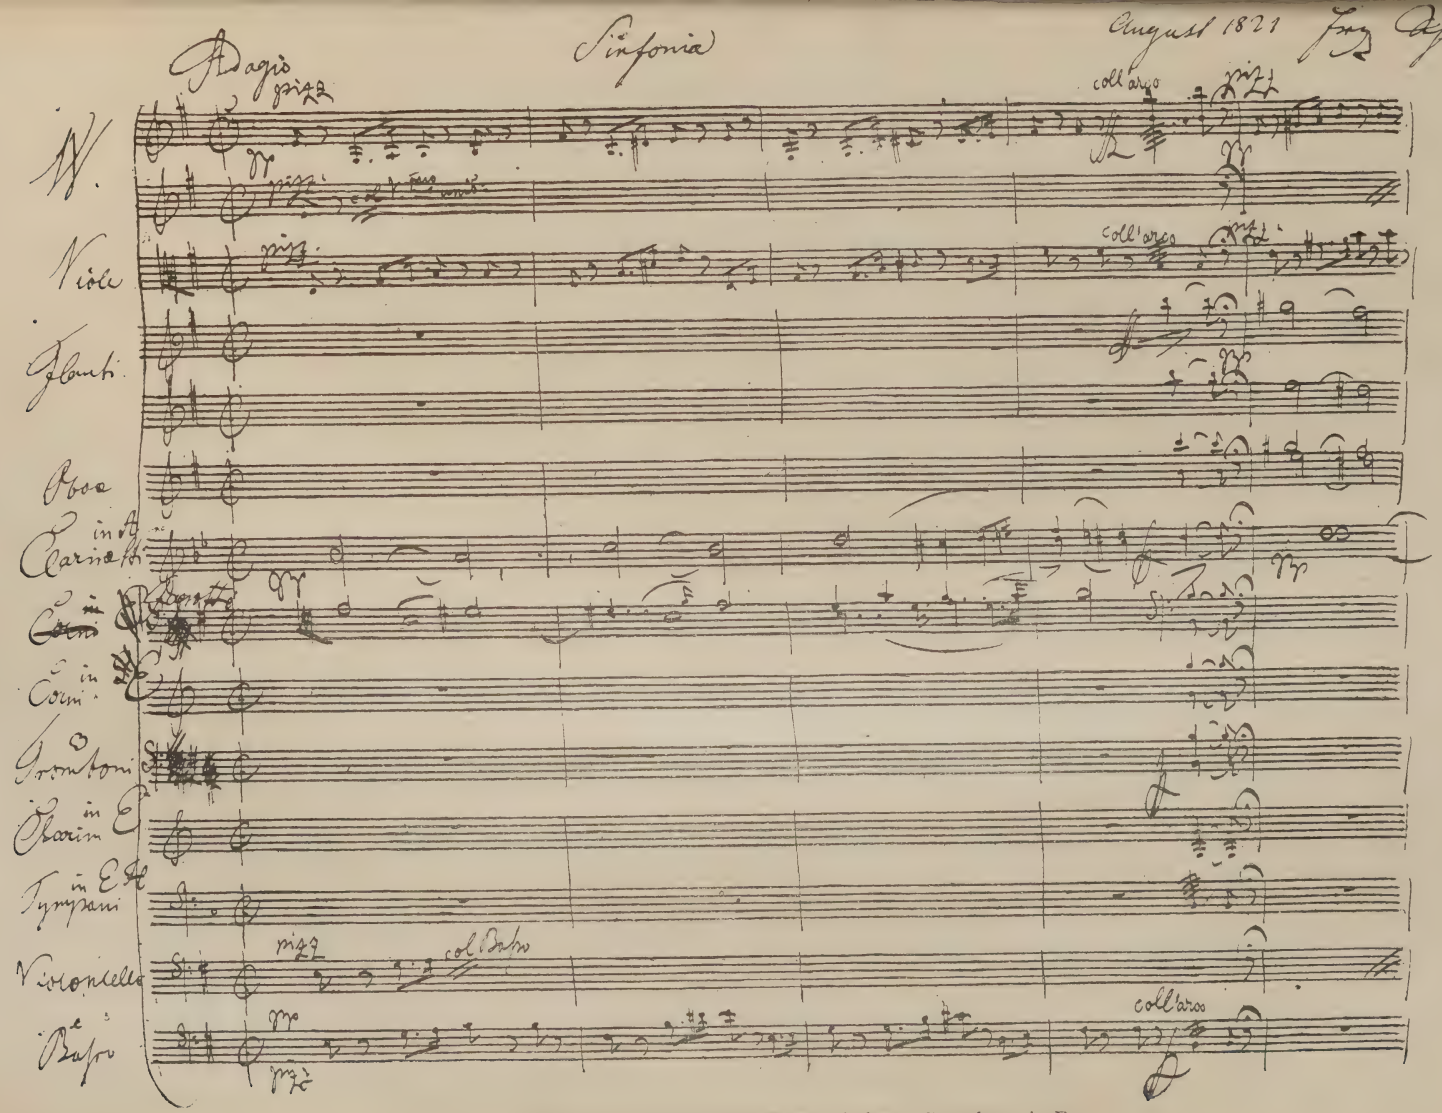
A. C. MACKENZIE.



Price Threepence.

(Op. 36.)

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.); also in New York.



bow be - fore Thy throne, Lord of life and light . . and bow be - fore Thy throne, Lord of life and light and bow be - fore Thy throne, Lord of life and light and bow be - fore Thy throne, Lord of life and light and glo - ry, God of our world - em - pire's sto - ry, Low we glo - ry, God of our world - em - pire's sto - ry, Low we glo - ry, God of our world - em - pire's sto - ry, Low we bow be - fore Thy throne. Thou of good things art the bow be - fore Thy throne. Thou of . . good things art the . .
bow be - fore Thy throne. Thou of good things art the . . bow be - fore Thy throne. Thou of good things art the Fac-simile page of the manuscript of Schubert's great Symphony in C, showing the alteration in the principal subject of the first movement.

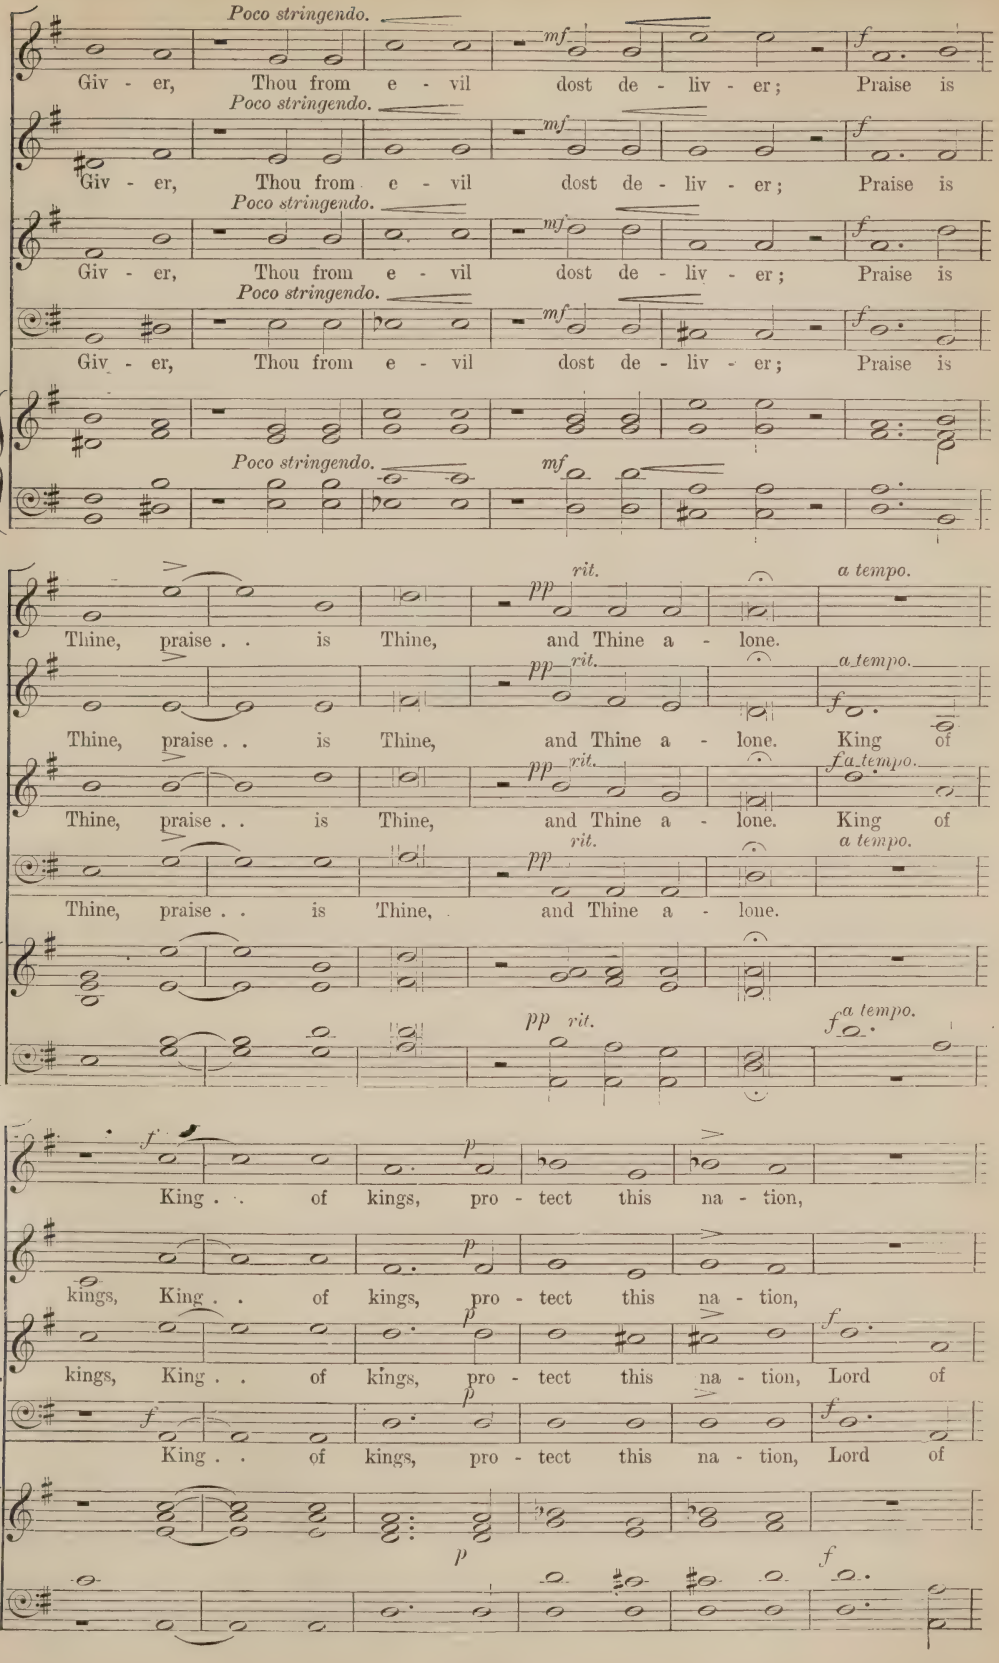
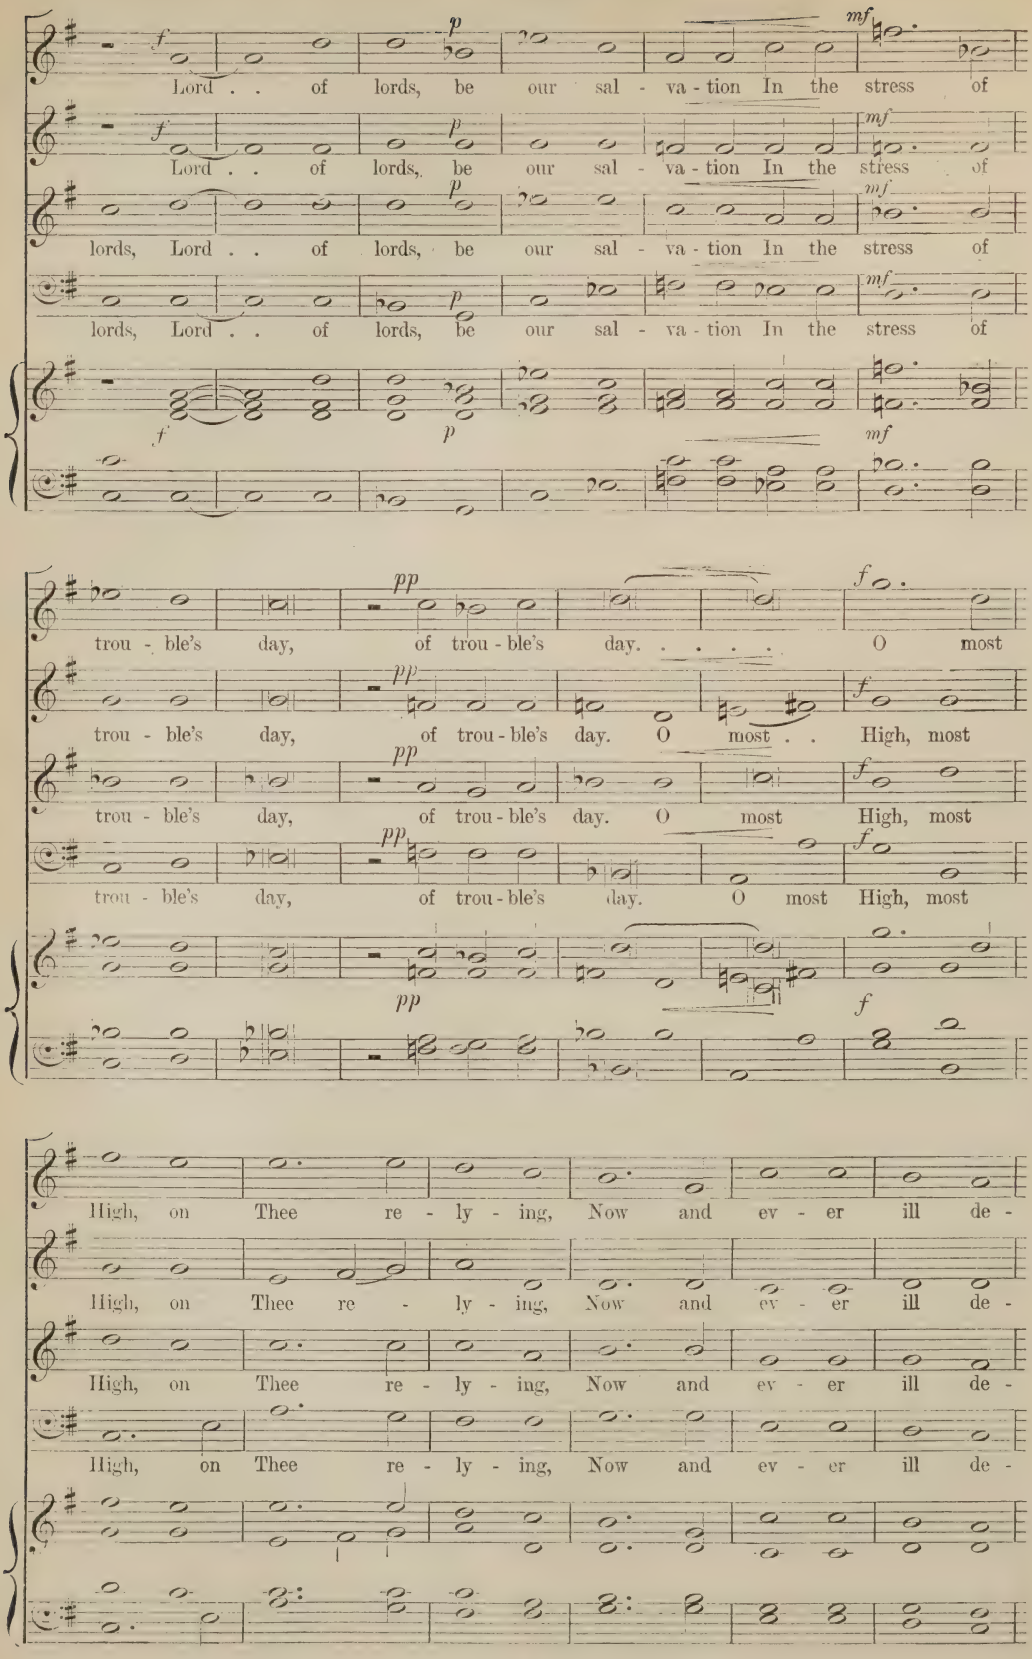
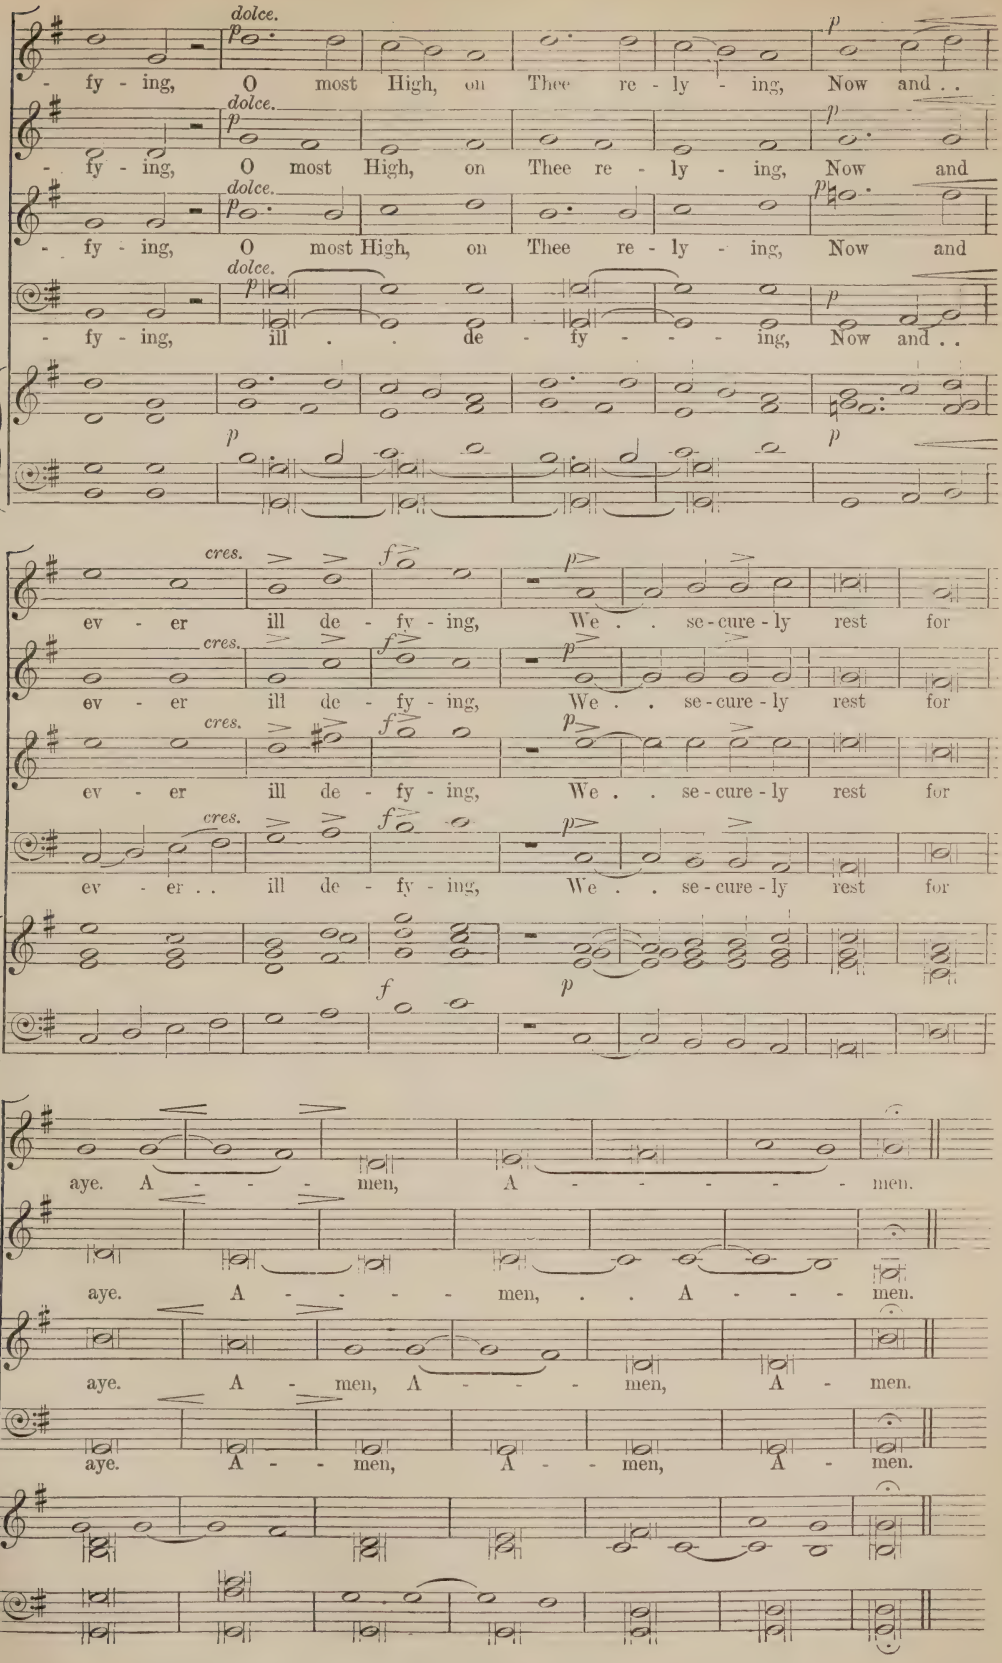
From the original autograph in the possession of the "Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde," Vienna.

Fac-simile page of the MS. of Schubert's Symphony in E.



From the original autograph in the possession of Sir George Grove C.B.





SCHUBERT IN THE CIRCLE OF HIS FRIENDS, AT ATZENBRUCK, NEAR VIENNA.

From a Water-Colour Sketch.

(Schubert is seated on the immediate right of the guitar player.)

Poco stringendo.
mf
Giv - er, Thou from e - vil dost de - liv - er; Praise is f
rit.
pp
a tempo.
Thine, praise . . is Thine, and Thine a - lone.
King of
p
King . . of kings, pro - tect this na - tion,
Lord of

Lord . . of lords, be our sal - va - tion In the stress of Lord . . of lords, be our sal - va - tion In the stress of lords, Lord . . of lords, be our sal - va - tion In the stress of lords, Lord . . of lords, be our sal - va - tion In the stress of trou - ble's day, of trou - ble's day. . . . . O most trou - ble's day, of trou - ble's day. O most . . High, most trou - ble's day, of trou - ble's day. O most High, most trou - ble's day, of trou - ble's day. O most High, most High, on Thee re - ly - ing, Now and ev - er ill de -
High, on Thee re - ly - ing, Now and ev - er ill de -
High, on Thee re - ly - ing, Now and ev - er ill de -
High, on Thee re - ly - ing, Now and ev - er ill de - dolce.

- fy - ing, O most High, on Thee re - ly - ing, Now and . .
- fy - ing, O most High, on Thee re - ly - ing, Now and
- fy - ing, O most High, on Thee re - ly - ing, Now and
- fy - ing, ill . . de - fy - - - ing, Now and . .
cres.
ev - er ill de - fy - ing, We . . se - cure - ly rest for ev - er ill de - fy - ing, We . . se - cure - ly rest for ev - er ill de - fy - ing, We . . se - cure - ly rest for ev - er . . ill de - fy - ing, We . . se - cure - ly rest for
aye. A - - - men, A - - - - - men.
aye. A - - - - men, . . A - - - men.
aye. A - men, A - - - men, A - men.
aye. A - - men, A - - men, A - men.

PRODUCED AT THE WORCESTER FESTIVAL, 1896.

THE LIGHT OF LIFE

(LUX CHRISTI)

A SHORT ORATORIO

FOR SOLI, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

THE WORDS WRITTEN AND ARRANGED BY THE

REV. E. CAPEL-CURE

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

EDWARD ELGAR.

(Op. 29.)

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.
Full Score and Wind Parts, MS. String Parts, 13s. 6d.

THE TIMES.

The oratorio, which is divided into sixteen numbers, including solos for all the principal voices and an orchestral prelude entitled "Meditation," occupies only the half of an ordinary evening's programme, and therefore has one attribute which makes for popularity. But it has many other besides. It is undeniably the work of a composer not only well cultivated and trained in his art, but also gifted in no small degree. . . . On a first hearing the most impressive pieces seemed to be the first chorus, "Seek Him," and that entitled "Light out of darkness." In both of them the handling of the orchestra is masterly, and in the former, and again in the short fugal number, "The wisdom of their wise men," the composer is seen at his best as a writer for chorus.

DAILY TELEGRAPH.

It seems to me absolutely a fact that Mr. Elgar is a composer with whom we shall all have to reckon. He is still a young man. His residence far from London keeps him outside the most vigorous musical life of the country, yet the work under notice bears the unmistakable stamp of distinction, and affords proof of exceptional resources. . . . Mr. Elgar's power in dealing with the orchestra is, for one thing, of extreme value, and we know that he can conjure up melodies from their lurking places. . . . Much might be said in praise of details, but the "Light of Life" will be heard again, and afford another opportunity of discussing it. Enough now that the oratorio, while more valuable as a promise than as an achievement, is as an achievement that which makes promise well nigh as good as assurance.

STANDARD.

Mr. Elgar has not adopted any special style of composition, and he seems to be able to write fluently and freshly in any way he chooses. The vocal part-writing should be agreeable to the singers, and the orchestration is masterly without being too ambitious. In short "The Light of Life" is a work of great merit.

DAILY CHRONICLE.

His instrumentation is ingenious and picturesque, without being unduly intricate; his solos are extremely grateful to the interpreters, and his choral writing is fresh and spirited. These are great recommendations for a work of this description.

SUNDAY TIMES.

The young Malvern teacher has uncommon talent . . . his sense of proportion and tone colour, and his knowledge of effect are quite exceptional, and albeit his themes are not always original, they impress in almost every case by their appropriateness of character and expressive force. . . . The best number in the work is the chorus "Light out of darkness," and this is of such excellence that I cannot help looking to Mr. Elgar for a really fine work when he comes across a "book" which appeals in every sense to his strong artistic temperament.

THE QUEEN.

His work excited considerable interest. Taken as a whole, we may without flattery, say that the high anticipations formed were fully realised. . . . Mr. Elgar has set the libretto to music melodious in the extreme, and in which skilful orchestration is by far the most prominent feature.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

PRODUCED AT THE NORTH STAFFORDSHIRE FESTIVAL, 1896.

SCENES FROM THE SAGA OF KING OLAF

BY

H. W. LONGFELLOW & H. A. ACWORTH, C.I.E.

SET TO MUSIC FOR

SOPRANO, TENOR AND BASS SOLI, CHORUS AND ORCHESTRA

BY

EDWARD ELGAR.

(Op. 30.)

Price Three Shilling.
Full Score and Wind Parts, MS. String Parts, 23s.
Tonic Sol-fa Edition (Choruses only), One Shilling and Sixpence.
Vocal Parts, One Shilling and Sixpence each.

DAILY TELEGRAPH.

Mr. Elgar knows how to write effectively, both for vocal solo and chorus, and, as a matter of fact, he shows a peculiar sensitiveness to the effects which can be produced by such means. This is, perhaps, the most important revelation made by the new work, because found in connection with a rare gift of writing for the orchestra. . . . To sum up a necessarily hurried judgment, "King Olaf" is a work of high importance, one which should turn expectant eyes upon its composer as a musician within whose reach, apparently, lies no common distinction. . . . Almost every number was applauded fervently, and, at the close, composer, soloists, band, and choir were privileged to divide amongst them the honours of an enthusiastic demonstration.

STANDARD.

Mr. Elgar has not only dealt with his subject in an extraordinarily spirited manner, but has written music full of energy, melodic beauty, and modern feeling in methods and general construction. . . . The music flows on with delightful freedom from laboriousness, the part-writing, both for voices and orchestra, is luminous, though certainly not easy, and if Mr. Elgar knows his Wagner, which unquestionably he does, there is no suspicion of plagiarism.

DAILY NEWS.

The choruses are, as a rule, very effectively written, particularly that devoted to the challenge of the god Thor, the two choral ballads, and the chorus in which the death of Olaf is described. The tenor solo descriptive of Olaf's return and two duets for soprano and tenor are also amongst the more important numbers. Mr. Elgar himself conducted the cantata, which had a splendid reception. . . . When the final chorus had been sung the audience, choir, and band simultaneously burst into enthusiastic applause and continued cheering loudly after the composer had left the platform.

DAILY CHRONICLE.

I have no hesitation in pronouncing it the most notable addition to native productions the year has hitherto afforded. . . . Mr. Elgar throughout his latest work makes considerable use of representative themes. He knows their value, and happily in his hands they are not dangerous tools. The ingenuity with which he employs them is remarkable, and as the majority are simple and well defined they are readily recognisable at any stage of the story. Great reliance is placed upon the orchestra for the expression of ideas growing out of the dramatic situation, the instrumentation being always vivid and bold in colouring. Of the grateful nature of the work for the chorus I have already spoken. To sum up, "King Olaf" is a work deserving another hearing as soon as possible.

ATHENÆUM.

Musicians spoke in praise of Mr. Edward Elgar's short oratorio "The Light of Life," produced at Worcester recently, and the Malvern composer has far surpassed his previous achievement in his latest work performed on Friday morning. The writing is from first to last luminous in design, picturesque in the orchestral colouring, and extremely felicitous as regards the vocal parts for soli and chorus.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Later on he studied harmony and counterpoint under Reicha, and, thus equipped, wrote with greater boldness and success, even aiming at the lyric stage, in the annals of which he figures as the composer of three operas. In 1842 Onslow had the doors of the Institute opened to him, and succeeded Cherubini as one of the Immortals. He died ten years later. "This death," says Fétis, "was a happy one for the artist, for if he had lived longer he would have learned that his repute had ended, and that no echo would carry forward the accents of his music. Who could have believed that the composer of thirty-four quintets, thirty-six quartets, three symphonies, seven pianoforte trios, three operas, and a multitude of other compositions, he whom Germany considered as the only French writer of instrumental music, and whose works were played in Vienna, Leipzig, Bonn, and Mainz, would be so soon forgotten? Such is the fate of music not dictated by genius!"

I have been looking for musical possibilities within the covers of Rudyard Kipling's new book, "The Seven Seas," and have found matter for a choral ballad of the most striking description in "The Last Chantey." This poem is full of very daring imaginativeness, and almost Blake-like in its weird conceptions. Few examples of English poetry transcend "The Last Chantey" in this respect, and a composer, also of daring imaginativeness, might give us a piece to be remembered. The poem has for motto a Scriptural text, slightly changed, "And there was no more sea." It opens in startling fashion. The Judgment Day has passed, and the Lord calls to the Angels and the Souls—

Lo! Earth has passed away
On the smoke of Judgment Day.
That Our word may be established shall We gather up the Sea?

There are responses from the Souls, and those of drowned mariners answer—

Plague upon the hurricane that made us furl and flee!
But the war is done between us,
In the deep the Lord hath seen us—
Our bones we'll leave the barracout, and God may sink the sea.

A single voice is next heard. It is that of Judas Iscariot, who, once a year, is permitted to cool himself upon an ice-floe. He complains—

And Ye take my day of mercy if Ye take away the sea.

The Angel of the Off-shore Wind next replies. He has to keep watch and ward over the wonders of God's deep—

And Ye take mine honour from me, if Ye take away the sea.

The mariners again strike in. They spoke in haste before, and now repent—

If we worked the ship together
Till she foundered in foul weather,
Are we babes that we should clamour for a vengeance on the sea?

Next rises a mournful chorus to the height of the Throne. It is sung by the souls of the slaves that men threw overboard—

Kennelled in the picaroon, a weary band were we,
But Thy arm was strong to save,
And it touched us on the wave,
And we drowsed the long tides idle till Thy trumpets tore the sea.

The "stout Apostle Paul" now speaks, referring to the grace and glory learned by the crew of his ship "under Malta by the sea," and after him the mariners again intervene. What consummate boldness is here? The sailors sing—

Plucking at their harps, and they plucked unhandily:
"Our thumbs are rough and tarred,
And the tune is something hard—
May we lift a Deep-sea Chantey such as seamen use at sea?"

Gentlemen-adventurers, who humbled Spain in the "spacious days," and an old Dundee whaler are heard in turn, before the mariners again take up the song—

Crying, Under Heaven, here is neither lead nor lee!
Must we sing for evermore
On the windless glassy floor?
Take back your golden fiddles and we'll beat to open sea.

The Lord hears the voice of His sailors. He calls the good sea up to Him—

And stablished his borders unto all eternity,
That such as have no pleasure
For to praise the Lord by measure,
They may enter into galleons and serve Him on the sea.

The poem ends with a stanza upon which a glorious finale might be built:

Sun, wind, and cloud shall fail not from the face of it,
Stinging, ringing, spendrift, nor the fulmar flying free;
And the ships shall go abroad
To the Glory of the Lord
Who heard the silly sailor-folk and gave them back their sea.

Here is a piece which, in its profound significance, in its picturesque force and vivid as well as hardy imagination, calls for musical expression. Someone qualified for such a task should take it up.

The same volume contains another poem which might well engage the attention of composers. It is entitled, "Hymn before Action," and marked by sustained dignity and devotion, every line uttered as it were in the presence of Death. A solemn note is struck at the outset—

The earth is full of anger,
The seas are dark with wrath,
The Nations in their harness
Go up against our path:
Ere yet we loose the legions—
Ere yet we draw the blade,
Jehovah of the Thunders,
Lord God of Battles, aid!

The second verse prays for strength to die, and the third is full of beautiful charity—

For those who kneel beside us,
At altars not thine own,
Who lack the lights that guide us,
Lord, let their faith atone.
If wrong we did to call them,
By honour bound they came;
Let not thy wrath befall them,
But deal to us the blame.

Another stanza carries this note fuller and higher, embracing enemy as well as friend—

Ah, Mary pierced with sorrow,
Remember, reach and save
The soul that comes to-morrow
Before the God that gave!
Since each was born of woman,
For each at utter need—
True comrade and true foeman—
Madonna, intercede.

Then again, by way of peroration, Jehovah of the Thunders is impressively invoked. Such material for a noble and patriotic Hymn should not go unregarded.

Some additional barrack-room ballads are placed at the end of the book, and already, I doubt not, musical pens have been busy with "Back to the Army again, Sergeant," and other capital examples of Mr. Kipling's very living verse. This volume, some say, is not literature; but that was the contemporary verdict on Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass." Literature or not it is verse which breathes and burns, which is vital and instinct with the spirit of the hour. That should be enough for composers who seek inspiration in the lines they set to music. X.

HANS VON BÜLOW IN HIS WRITINGS.*

Under the title "Hans von Bülow in his Letters," we gave some account in The Musical Times for March and April, 1896, of this remarkable master as he appeared in his correspondence during the period 1841-55. As the two volumes of Letters, then issued under the editorship of Bülow's widow, were grouped in chronological order, and were interspersed with explanatory notes of the circumstances and situations under which they were penned, we were enabled to furnish a brief, but more or less complete, account of the earlier period of his artistic career. These two volumes of Letters have recently been complemented by the issue, under the same editorship, of a volume of "Selected Writings" on musical subjects, contributed for the most part to various musical journals during the period 1850-92. It should be noted that the "Letters" and the "Writings" overlap each other by the space of about five years. From one of his letters we learnt that on entering himself as a student at the Berlin University, in 1850, he received his first regular appointment as musical critic to the democratic Abend-Post. Like his friend Berlioz, he had at this period to eke out his existence by contributing musical articles to local papers. Though not a very remunerative occupation, it was one for which, by his ready penmanship, as we have seen in his letters, and by his musical knowledge and attainments, he was eminently fitted. The immediate result is seen in a series of four articles from the said

* "Hans von Bülow, Briefe und Schriften." Band III. Ausgewählte Schriften (1850-92) herausgegeben von Marie von Bülow. Leipzig: Breitkopf und Härtel. 1896.

Abend-Post, with which the volume under notice opens. Though these most properly come under the denomination of concert reports, they might fairly, in common with most of those which follow, be dignified by the appellation of "Essays." On account of their literary and critical style they may be warmly recommended to present-day musical critics, who but too often content themselves with mere reporting. Even when having perforce to discuss the performance of the stalest Italian operas, Bülow never seems to have been at a loss for something to say which would at the same time prove entertaining, instructive, and to the point. On one occasion at this period (1850) he goes into ecstasies over Beethoven's Seventh Symphony, which he characterises as "a truly republican work of this heaven-storming giant." On another occasion, about the same period, he had to speak of Mendelssohn's Symphony in A major ("Italian"), which at that date had not been often heard, and was still unpublished. He writes: "It contains much that is beautiful, and especially testifies to much diligence in working by its roundness of form. The first movement seemed to us to be the most interesting; the motive of the second bears that same character of sadness as is to be found in northern folk-songs, and suffers somewhat from its monotony; the Minuet is not without charm, especially as regards its very original Trio, and the charming combination of both towards the close; the Finale is pervaded by that wanton elf-like element which forms Mendelssohn's most original characteristic. The Symphony is brought to a close in a remarkable manner in the minor key—a mode of proceeding which has seldom come before us." Bülow at this date had evidently not heard of the Italian origin of this Symphony, or he would have criticised it from a different standpoint. However, he was in no worse case than Schumann, who, having heard that Mendelssohn had written an "Italian" Symphony, criticised the "Scotch" as such. What a warning to composers of "programme" music who abstain from divulging their intentions! In the course of the same essay Bülow speaks of Mendelssohn "whose forename Felix he bore in the superlative," as having been overrated in his lifetime, and underrated since his death. Much as he revered Mendelssohn, he regarded him more as a talent than as a genius. And this gives rise to an interesting characterisation of the difference between talent and genius, but too lengthy for reproduction here. Speaking of the Tempo di Minuetto in Beethoven's Eighth Symphony, he points out that the proper pace of this is that of the old-fashioned solemn minuet, thus anticipating by nineteen years Wagner's famous, and now generally accepted dictum, laid down in his pamphlet "On Conducting," first published in 1869.

To our sorrow we meet with a most depreciative article (headed "An opinion of the minority") on Jenny Lind and Henrietta Sontag, dated Weimar, February 1, 1852. So bitter is it against two of the greatest vocalists that we can call to mind, that it will be read with astonishment, and can only be accounted for by the supposition that at this date Bülow's whole soul was bent on making propaganda for Wagner, Liszt, and the "music of the future"; and that as a means thereto he felt himself justified in entering as strong as possible a protest against the prima donna worship which then obtained, as well as against a style of smooth and florid singing which so militated against the declamatory style which Wagner and Liszt advocated. That these ladies and their friends did not forego the pleasure of revenge may be gathered from the "Letters."

In one of the letters we read of a visit to Munich, which, to the astonishment of our latter day experiences, Bülow stigmatised as an unmusical city. It is not surprising, therefore, that in a series of five articles contributed to the Neue Zeitschrift für Musik, and headed "The Opposition in South Germany," he should have expatiated at length on this idea. Their object was, of course, polemical, and intended to demonstrate that the cities of South Germany, especially Munich and Stuttgart, were at that period (1853) far behind those of North Germany in their culture of the "music of the future." He had had a previous experience of Stuttgart, where he resided with his parents during the latter part of the forties, and where classical music (e.g., that of Mozart, Beethoven, and Weber) might only be played during the absence of the King. Munich was then dominated by opera, mostly of a foreign source, and only gradually became the musical city it now is. The strongest impulse towards this end was on the accession of Ludwig II. to the throne, when Wagner was called to court from his exile in Switzerland, and with him Bülow, who headed the Royal Conservatory of Music, and was the first to conduct "Tristan und Isolde" and "Die Meistersinger." It remained, therefore, for Wagner, Bülow, and their successors, Richter, Levi, and others to raise Munich to the extraordinarily high musical status which it still unquestionably maintains.

On having to review a set of somewhat hypersentimental songs by the late Louis Ehlert—better known as a musical essayist and critic than as a composer—Bülow cleverly bridges over the difficulty of saying much about them by filling his paper with a comparative dissertation on the styles of that representative triad of German song-writers—Schubert, Schumann, and Franz. Even at the present date this will be read with interest and instruction. Attention is further due to it as furnishing one among many instances of the readiness with which Bülow was able to impart an interest even to subjects which he found uncongenial.

Among the most important and extended essays contained in the volume under notice may be enumerated—(1) That on the first performance at Weimar (March 20, 1852) of Berlioz's "Benvenuto Cellini," an opera for which Bülow seems to have had a special regard, seeing that he himself brought it forward repeatedly at Hanover, in 1878-9. (2) That on Wagner's "Faust" Overture, an explanatory communication addressed to the conductors, players, and hearers of this work. (3) A criticism of Taubert's opera "Macbeth," which bristles with musical quotations taken down from memory after the experience of but two performances—a truly wonderful feat. (4) An account of the first performance of Liszt's oratorio "St. Elizabeth," at the first Hungarian Musical Festival, held at Pesth in 1865. (5) A most impressive obituary notice of Carl Tausig, written shortly after the death (July 17, 1871) of this remarkable musician, of whom, beyond M. Lenz's genial and spirited portraiture of him in "Die grossen Pianoforte-virtuosen unserer Zeit," little seems to be known in England, from the fact that he never appeared here in his public capacity as one of the most famous pianists of his time. (6) An entertaining and instructive account of the first performance of "Lohengrin" at Bologna, couched in the form of a conversation between two friends during their journey thither, and, between the acts, in the theatre there.

(To be continued.)

JOHN DOWLAND.

(Continued from page 794, December, 1896.)

"Mr. Skidmore" was, as Dowland states, a son of Sir John Scudamore, of Kentchurch, in Herefordshire. Many notices of his activity among the Catholic fugitives abroad are to be found in the State Papers. He seems to have fled from Essex to Middelburg and Antwerp in the autumn of 1593, and at one time he was in Spain with Father Parsons. Nicholas Fitzherbert, his correspondent, was the son of a Catholic who died in prison after twenty-six years' incarceration. He was a graduate of the University of Douay, a member of the household of Cardinal Allen, of whom he wrote a biography, and in receipt of a pension of ten crowns from the Pope. Sir Henry Cobham was a brother of William, Lord Cobham, but it is not possible, with certainty, to identify Dowland's Lord Grey, the Priest Smith, and the Friar Bayly. Richard Verstigan was a man of some note. He was born in England of Netherlandish parents, and seems to have acted as agent for the King of Spain at Antwerp. He published, in 1587, a collection of engravings, in which the sufferings which the Catholics underwent are portrayed with terrible minuteness of detail, among them being the only contemporary representation of the execution of Mary Queen of Scots. Other works from his pen are a volume of sacred poetry, among which is the lullaby "Upon my lap my Sovereign sits," which was set to music by Martin Peerson, and has been quite recently reprinted by Mr. Lionel Benson. His best-known book was the "Restitution of Decayed Intelligence" (1605), dedicated to James I., which contains a sonnet by the younger Francis Tregian, who was in all probability the writer of the great collection of Virginal Music preserved in the Fitzwilliam Museum, Cambridge. Of Pierce we are able to give no details, but Dracot seems to have been a member of an old Shropshire or Staffordshire family, whose name occurs in connection with Babington's conspiracy. The mention of "one Mr. Johnson's" death enables us to correct the account given in the "Dictionary of National Biography" of Robert Johnson, lutenist. In this article it is evident that two individuals have been rolled into one. The elder was John Johnson, who was one of Queen Elizabeth's musicians in 1581 (see Nagel's "Annalen der Englischen Hofmusik," pp. 30, 31, 33). He probably died about 1594, and was the father of the more celebrated Robert Johnson, as is proved by a deed of apprenticeship of the latter to Sir George Carey, dated March 29, 38 Eliz. [1596]. In this document, which is preserved at Berkeley Castle, and was published in 1892 in Mr. Jeayes' Catalogue of Lord Fitzhardinge's Muniments, Robert Johnson is described as "Son of John Johnson, late of the Queen's Musicians." He was apprenticed as "allowes or covenaunt servaunt" for seven years, Sir George Carey undertaking to have him taught music, to board, lodge, and clothe him, and to give him "one penie" a year for salary. With regard to Dowland's "one Morgan, sometimes of Her Majesty's chapel," and "one Moris, a Welshman," by the light of other documents it is possible to prove that Sir Robert Cecil's petitioner made a curious mistake, writing the name of one where he should have written the other. Richard Morris, or Morrice, as it is spelt in the Cheque Book of the Chapel Royal, was sworn in as a member of the Chapel on April 1, 1579, when it is recorded that he came from Gloucester. In 1583 an entry is found chronicling that his place was filled by Anthony Harrison, from Windsor, Morris having "fled beyond the seas." The date of his flight is proved from the Diaries of the English College at Douay (then located at Rheims), in which it is stated on July 17, 1582, that "ex Anglia venerunt ad nos D. Christoferus Bagshawe, Edwardus Dodwell adolescens, Tho. Morrise, qui peritissimorum musicorum eorum, qui in sacello reginæ nostræ canere soliti sunt unus fuit." ("There came from England to us D. Christopher Bagshawe, Edward Dodwell, a youth, Thomas Morrise, who was one of the highly skilled musicians who are wont to sing in the chapel of our Queen.") In spite of the difference in the christian name, there can hardly be any doubt that these entries refer to the same person. In a letter written by Cardinal Allen to Father Agazzari, the Rector of the English College at Rome, and dated on, though evidently written prior to, the day of Morris's arrival, the Cardinal says: "Se ex capella Reginæ proripuerunt duo magni (ut apud nos æstimantur) musici, sed viri uxorati, qui dicuntur profecturi Romani ut exerceant suam artem et vivant ex ea; et ex hoc Regina incredibiliter dicitur offensa. Sunt adhuc Rothomagi, sed cogitant huc venire." ("Two notable (as they are deemed by us) musicians, married men, have escaped from the Queen's chapel, who are said to be going to Rome to exercise their art and gain their living by it; and by this the Queen is said to be incredibly displeased. They are at present at Rouen, but intend to come here.") Two days later Allen again wrote to Agazzari: "Mentionem me fecisse puto unius in alteris literis qui reliquerat Reginæ sacellum. Illi nomen est Moricius, notus Engeamo et simul cum ipso (ut dicit) educatus. Ille hic facile hujus ecclesiæ et loci omnes musicos (cum tamen hic habeamus Italos non infimi in ea facultate nomine et alios) longe superat, et tamen dicit alium esse Rothomagi in via ad nos, collegam in Reginæ sacello suum, qui ipso sit multo superior." ("I think that I mentioned in another letter one who had left the Queen's chapel. His name is Morice, and he is known to Ingham, with whom he says he was educated. He easily excels by a long way all the musicians of this church and place, although we have here Italians and others not contemptible in that art, and he says that another is at Rouen on his way to us, a colleague in the Queen's chapel, who is far superior to him.") He goes on to recommend that they shall be employed either by the Pope or at the English College, since they cannot be received as students, and he advises that the Pope should consider the good position which they have given up in the Chapel Royal, where they were educated, and that they should receive five or six gold pieces salary monthly. Morris is a very modest man and a true Catholic. His companion the Cardinal has not seen, but Morris says that other excellent musicians of the Queen's are thinking of leaving. The last information concerning him is an entry in the Diary on August 9: "Romane missi sunt Jo. Dolman nobilis et Mr. Thomas Morrise musicus." ("John Dolman, of gentle birth, and Mr. Thomas Morrise, a musician, were sent to Rome.") Who Morris's companion was it is impossible to say. There is no record in the Cheque Book of the flight of any other member of the Chapel, and it would seem from Cardinal Allen's letters that the second fugitive never came to Rheims after all. It is by no means improbable that the unknown individual may have been William Byrd, who at this period of his career, and for some time afterwards, was known to be a Catholic. If this is the case it must be concluded that he thought better of the plan of joining the English community abroad, and after getting as far as Rouen returned to England. But this is necessarily purely conjectural.

To return from this long digression to John Dowland. His letter to Cecil does not seem to have had any result, as was not to be wondered at. The information he gave as to the movements of the English party on the Continent was of no value to the minister, and without powerful interest and protection it was hardly likely that the composer—then only known as an excellent lutenist—would be able to return to his native country. Two years later he published his "First Booke of Songs," in the preface to which he printed a polite letter he had received from Marenzio, dated from Rome, July 13, 1695, when he was on his way to visit the great madrigal writer. Shortly after this we get some fresh information as to his movements. From A. Hammerich's "Musiken ved Christian den Fjerdes Hof" (Copenhagen, 1892), it seems that on November 11, 1598, he was installed as instrumentalist at the Danish Court, with a yearly salary of 500 dalers—a sum till then unheard of as the wages of a musician, and one that rivalled the salaries of the high officers of State. Besides this, various marks of favour are recorded which show that Christian IV. knew how to value the artist whose services he had secured. In 1600 he received an extra payment of 600 dalers, the autograph receipt for which is printed by Herr Hammerich, and in the following year he was decorated and presented with the King's portrait. From the Copenhagen Archives it seems that Dowland stayed in Denmark for eight years, though towards the end of the time it is evident that considerable friction arose about money matters. He received repeated advances, and an attempt to help him was made, by giving him the charge and education of one of the small choristers, to "teach and instruct upon the lute." Finally, on February 24, 1606, when Christian was absent at Brunswick, he received his dismissal, and at his departure there was a long account to be settled touching salary, advances, &c. Little is known concerning his later life. In 1609 he was living in Fetter Lane, London, and he seems to have survived so late as 1626, as is proved by a warrant to his son Robert, though the exact place and date of his death and burial are at present veiled in obscurity. Of his works this is not the place to speak: full lists of them will be found in most Dictionaries and Histories of Music.

W. B. S.

The increasing love of church music may, indeed, be claimed as one of the most earnest and striking signs of our forward march as a musical nation. In the year so recently closed this most gratifying development was a marked feature of our musical progress. Our clergy have wisely shown a larger interest in the growth of this chief department of sacred art, and the oratorio has been brought back to its original home, the church. Again, our composers, it may be fairly said, of their earnestness have created for us a genuine school of modern church music, in which the ancient contrapuntal art has been deftly strengthened by the resources of modern harmony, a judicious infusion of dramatic power and human emotional feeling, and made still more stately by logical forms and more varied tone-colouring. It needs no prophet to declare that, as time goes on, church music will expand and gain additional strength. Many questions which have already been raised regarding its difficulties and requirements will claim the attention of church workers of all types and grades. Among these the position of choirs and organs, the provision of adequate space in our larger churches for additional choral and orchestral performers for festival and oratorio services, the character of and conditions under which the larger types of church music may be employed and the pecuniary aid necessary with the attitude of the public in this connection, must engage the earnest attention of all interested. The position of choristers, organs, and instrumentalists is a matter of recognised and growing importance. The architects of old, in working out the plans of their great cross churches, could not anticipate the requirements of modern sacred music, and while rightly building in view of leading up to the altar as the head of the cross, they left no adequate, or, if adequate, no conveniently arranged central space adjacent to the chancel. The character of festival music and the conditions of its rendering are perhaps matters of still more vital importance, involving as they do the fitness of music available; the devotional and artistic attitude of the performers, a position intensely personal in a devotional sense, and largely impersonal from the artistic point of view; and the best and most complete available means of presenting the composer's score. With regard to the financial requirements, possibly the only present suggestion may be expressed in the words of the late Archbishop of Canterbury: "Trust the people." Surely the means will be forthcoming when the work has been proved by earnestness and resultant success, worthy of the just support of a nation both religious and musical. There is work in connection with the growth and elevation of church music calling for the labour of the Royal College of Organists, the Church Orchestral Society, as already in the field, and of all our musical bodies and educational institutions. One might even presume to hope for a congress of clergy, church musicians, and architects on this great subject—a subject which assuredly demands more attention at our church congresses than it has so far received.

In the programmes of the Organ Recitals given during the past few weeks English composers of the past and present have not been overlooked. Bach still holds his pre-eminent position as a composer of organ music, Rheinberger is evidently the living representative German writer, whilst Guilmant and Widor represent France. The evident desire to accomplish the difficult task of representing Wagner on the organ keyboard on the whole gains ground, and is a distinct recognition of the achieved potency of that master. A growing favourite piece in this connection is the "Vorspiel" to the third act of the "Meistersinger"—a movement which might be, but has not yet been, very satisfactorily set forth on paper as an organ arrangement.

On the 9th ult. Mr. W. H. Cummings distributed the Fellowship Diplomas to the twenty-two successful candidates at the Royal College of Organists, when he said that there were few institutions connected with any art that had done more good during the term of their existence than the Royal College of Organists. This high praise by an eminent authority has been well earned by the College, and will be fully endorsed by public opinion; for it is not too much to say that the high and consistently maintained standards of the College examinations have done much to advance and develop organ and church music during the past thirty years. On the 16th ult. Dr. H. A. Harding presented the Diplomas of Associateship to twenty-seven successful candidates, and, in a very practical address, urged the candidates, to faithfully continue their artistic labours, and to remain loyal supporters of the Institution to which they were so much indebted.

In our issue of December last we referred to the foot-note on the folio edition of S. S. Wesley's "The Wilderness," which states that the anthem was "composed for the re-opening of a Cathedral organ, 1831." We now propose to trace the history of this remarkable composition. In 1831 there was instituted the Gresham Prize, which took the form of a gold medal of the value of five guineas, awarded annually for the best sacred composition. Wesley became organist of Hereford Cathedral in 1832. He was then twenty-two, and very shortly afterwards competed for the Gresham Prize by composing a certain anthem. He records the despatch of his MS. to London in the first of the following letters, hitherto unpublished. Writing to his mother—who then resided at "No. 8, King's Row, Pentonville, nr. London"—under date "Hereford, Decr. 15 [1832]," Wesley says: "Dr. Mother,—Call on Monday morning at the coach-office for a parcel. It is an anthem I have written for a prize in London, and must be delivered Monday, or it is too late. . . . Pray don't fail to meet the coach, and open the parcel when you get it, and then do as I will tell you in the letter. You must keep father at home, as he will have to write something in a letter; it is only just to write a motto in Latin. You had better mention it at once. Tell him I wish it to be Let justice be done, or Weigh and consider, or anything he chooses—only in Latin it must be. . . . Yours, S. S. Wesley. If this music is not sent on Monday, I am too late." It is interesting to see from the original document that the elder Wesley has, in his characteristic "pothooks and hangers," endorsed his son's letter with the words "Fiat justitia," which we may assume was the motto adopted.

On the last day of the same year (1832) young Wesley again wrote to his mother in words which throw a sad light on the pecuniary struggles of his early days, when his salary as organist of Hereford Cathedral was at the rate of only £1 per week!: "Dear Mother,—. . . . If I get the gold medal, will Glenn buy it? It is worth 5 guineas. All I receive from the church [cathedral] at present is 52 pounds a year. At present I don't give a lesson. I am writing some voluntaries that I must sell. . . . If you like, you may treat me with a copy of this month's Harmonicon; it will be published the day you receive this. I suppose an account of the Gresham Prize will be in that. If anybody else gets it, you must go and fetch my manuscript back. . . . I don't say anything about coming to town, for the expense would ruin me. I suppose you can live without seeing me yet. I very much wish I could come, though." How terribly pushed Wesley must have been for money to have wanted to sell the gold medal for its intrinsic value.

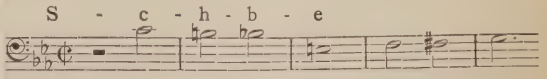
The anthem which Wesley sent in for the Gresham Prize was "The Wilderness," one of the finest anthem-creations in the whole range of English church music. What must have been his feelings when he heard that it failed to get the prize? The Harmonicon (February, 1833), which Wesley asked his mother to send to him, recorded the result thus: "Gresham Prize Medal for 1832. The gold medal, for the best original composition in sacred vocal music, has been adjudged to Mr. Kellow John Pye, of Exeter. Dr. Crotch, Professor of Music in the University of Oxford, R. J. S. Stevens, Esq., Professor of Music in Gresham College, and L. [? W.] Horsley, Esq., Mus. Bac., were the umpires by whom the prize was awarded. Mr. Pye was a pupil in the Royal Academy of Music." The Harmonicon might have added that the prize-winner received the first lesson ever given at the Royal Academy of Music, when it opened its doors in 1823. This was seventy-four years ago, but Mr. Kellow Pye is, happily, still spared to tell the tale of that initial lesson at Tenterden Street.



But to return to Wesley and his "Wilderness." It is said that Dr. Crotch, the senior adjudicator, objected to the novel form of the whole anthem; and that he expressed his opinion of the work in a very characteristic fashion, by drawing the portrait of a chorister boy with his face distorted with agony in his effort to reach the high A in the concluding quartet, "And sorrow and sighing." What of Dr. Crotch's "opinion" now?

We have not yet, however, cleared up the significant foot-note: "Composed for the re-opening of a Cathedral organ, 1831." Curiously enough this does not appear on the earliest printed copies of the work. Therefore, the information must have been added later, and, moreover, with Wesley's full cognisance. This is proved by a copy of the anthem, now in the possession of the present writer, which contains characteristic "corrections" in the composer's own hand, and which he made for a reprint in 1871, five years before his death. The question naturally arises: How are the above facts to be reconciled with the statement that "The Wilderness" was "composed for the re-opening of a Cathedral organ, 1831"?

In connection with the Schubert centenary, a correspondent sends the following interesting notes: Nearly all the great composers, from Bach onwards, have had compositions improperly ascribed to them; in some cases by composers of no special fame, so as to win favour for their music; in others, by publishers. An expressive song entitled "L'Adieu" was for a long time attributed to Schubert. An article, however, appeared in the Revue et Gazette Musicale (February 18, 1877), written by M. Théodore Parmentier, stating that it was composed at Dorpat, Livonia, by a distinguished amateur, M. Auguste Henri de Weyrauch, who published it in 1824. It was soon afterwards that it appeared in Paris under Schubert's name; M. Parmentier is of opinion that towards the success of Schubert's songs in the French capital "L'Adieu" contributed largely. M. Weyrauch then republished it at Berlin, with its proper German title, "Nach Osten," and in some strong prefatorial remarks declared himself the author; he thought, indeed, that the style of the melody was sufficient to distinguish it from that of the great composer. M. de Lenz, in his "Beethoven et ses trois styles," refers to the matter, and adds an amusing story. He says: "An amateur, the Prince Gr. W..., having one day declaimed with his beautiful voice the melody of Weyrauch in Parisian salons, declared that it was by Schubert, thinking probably that Paris would be grateful to him for sparing it the difficulty of having one more German name to pronounce.

The Trauerwalzer in the collection of Schubert dances (Breitkopf and Härtel edition, Series 12, No. 1; p. 2, No. 2) was once ascribed to Beethoven and published under his name by Cappi and Diabelli as Sehnsuchtwalzer. The question of the authorship of this waltz was mooted in the Allgemeine Musik-Zeitung of July, 1829. The writer was puzzled, finding it ascribed to two composers. It is said that the Arietta in the opera "Der Jurist und der Bauer," by Henneburg (d. 1822), is "as like the Sehnsuchtwalzer as one egg is to another." Dr. Kreissle von Hellborn, by the way, gives the date of the autograph as March 14, 1818; in the Breitkopf and Härtel edition, however, we find a different year (1816) and no month or day mentioned. Of Schubert's opera "Des Teufels Lustschloss," Kreissle gives the dates at which the three acts respectively were finished—they are as follows: January 11, 1814, March 16, 1814, and May 14, 1814. Then our biographer proceeds to speak of a second version with the first act finished on September 3 and the third on October 22, 1814; he even mentions a difference between the first and the second versions of the overture. It is therefore strange to find only one setting of the opera in the Breitkopf and Härtel edition, seeing that in the ten volumes of songs, of those which the composer wrote out, two, three, and even four times, every version is printed in full, though in many cases the differences are very small. Kreissle, by the way, says the opera was taken in hand by the young composer early in the year 1813; Breitkopf and Härtel, however, give at the head of the opera the date, October 30, 1813.

It is to be hoped that the Breitkopf and Härtel supplement will contain the Violin Concerto said to have been in the possession of Ferdinand Schubert. It was announced in the original prospectus; possibly it may be only a fragment. Also the pianoforte duet setting of the B minor Symphony, which once belonged to Josef Hüttenbrenner. An interesting Fugue, by the way, was written on Schubert's name by his friend from early youth, M. Stadler, and it was published in Vienna soon after the composer's death. The letters in his name are not, like those of Bach, Gade, and others, all musical, and this is the best Stadler could make of them:

On the title-page is written: "über den Nahmen des zu früh verblichenen Tonsetzers Franz Schubert."

Kansas, as a leading American journal candidly admits, is an amusing commonwealth, and no one is likely to dispute the accuracy of the observation after learning the nature of the ordinance which is agitating the municipal authorities of Paola City in that State. This is a proposition "to prohibit the local band from playing airs with high keys." Village bands in America have been renowned for their malign efficacy ever since the days of Artemus Ward, but the Paola City band is probably the first on either side of the Atlantic that ever had a municipal ordinance directed against it. But it was high time for such measures, if, as is insinuated, the band, playing in one of its high keys, brought Santa Claus from the roof of a church to the floor, and mortally injured him, besides fetching down an aeronaut who was floating in a balloon 300 feet above the town. What strikes us chiefly about this marvellous ordinance is the inadequacy of the remedy proposed. For, as a New York critic puts it, all that is needed to prevent fatal injuries to local Santa Clauses and travelling aeronauts is to stave in the big drum and lynch the cornet player. But this simple expedient is much too obvious to commend itself to the subtle Kansan intellect, and so it comes about that Paola City is about to frame an ordinance to prevent the emission of notes of an excessive altitude. One would much like to know where they are going to draw the line.

The complaint that is heard from time to time to the effect that British musical prophets have no honour in their own country certainly cannot be laid at the door of the Philharmonic Society. In the programme of new works to be given during the forthcoming season there are no fewer than eight novelties by native composers to one that comes from abroad. What is even more significant, the younger writers are represented as fully as those of maturer years or established reputations, works by Messrs. Cliffe, German, MacCunn, and Bunning being included in the scheme. It is to be hoped that the public will support the directors in a policy which forms so complete an answer to the manifesto recently issued by several young British musicians bewailing the preference shown to foreign composers. As regards the solitary foreign novelty included in the Philharmonic programme, the directors may be congratulated on their choice. Glazounoff's Symphony kills two birds with one stone: the performance of Russian music, ex ipso facto, involving a compliment to our susceptible Gallic neighbours.

FACTS, RUMOURS, AND REMARKS.

While our American friends are wrathfully protesting against the enormous sums paid in their country to foreign operatic artists, it may be of interest to quote a passage from the Journal du Maréschal de Castellane, which, being interpreted, is to the following effect: "This was the Marquis de Sémonville's last Concert; the famous Malibran took part in it; her terms are 300 francs, and often she sings at two Concerts in one evening." An esteemed correspondent who forwards the extract invites me to imagine Patti singing, in 1897, at one of the great London houses for £12! I simply cannot do it.

It is worthy of note, as showing the appreciation which the late Sir Joseph Barnby's music received in America, that a special Service has been held at the Second Universalist Church, Boston, for the benefit of the fund in aid of the composer's widow and children. All the music was taken from Barnby's works, and included the anthem "I will give thanks," as well as hymn-tunes, settings of the canticles, &c. Mr. G. W. Chadwick acted as conductor.

Lovers of Handel will probably think it worth while to go and hear "Susanna" at the People's Palace on the 6th inst., especially as the work is to be performed with the composer's own orchestral accompaniments.

It would seem from a concert notice in the Glasgow Herald that the critic of that journal does not love "The Messiah." Of course he has a right to hate it, and some may admire his candour in stating that the audience were much more interesting than the oratorio. Equally fresh is his opinion that Miss Sarah Berry "positively basted her solos with expression." A correspondent suggests that the writer had been watching the preparation of a seasonable bird for the table.

With reference to the project of making Newcastle-on-Tyne a festival city, a correspondent residing there writes: "I can say that the idea of a festival appeals very strongly to many music-lovers here, particularly now, when steps are being taken to build an Infirmary in honour of the Queen's long reign. The idea of a festival has been talked of for years, but there is an insuperable obstacle in the way, and that is the lack of a suitable building to hold it in. There is only one large building in the town suitable for concerts—viz., Olympia, which seats about 3,000 people; but it is only a temporary erection of wood and iron, while there is no platform accommodation for a large choir and orchestra, and no organ." The Town Hall, my correspondent says, is a perfect disgrace; and the Corporation have got no further than to talk about building a new one. A wealthy licensed victualler once offered to erect a concert-hall and present it to the city, but the Temperance party stopped that. This is all very strange. It is clearly of no use to discuss the holding of a festival till some place is provided in which to house it.

The printer's boy wrought havoc of a programme somewhere in Scotland not long since, the unlucky journalist, his victim, being made to speak of a "Bercense in A," an "Allegretta in D," a "Foccata," an "Andanti" by Mukel, Sullivan's "Lost Choir," and a March by Hoyti.

Talk of devotion to music! I read of an American lady, Mrs. Francis George Shaw, who, though eighty-six years old, recently travelled from New York to Chicago (1,000 miles) to hear Theodore Thomas's orchestra play a Beethoven programme. Mrs. Shaw is the lady who, when arrangements were making for a visit of the same orchestra to New York, headed the guarantee fund with 2,000 dollars.

Although the programme of the Festival to be held at Chester in July next is marked "subject to revision," it is not likely that any changes of importance will be made in it. The Festival week begins, as usual, with a special service in the Cathedral nave, at which the "Hymn of Praise" is to be performed with full chorus and orchestra. Monday and Tuesday are given up to rehearsal. Wednesday's selections stand thus:—Morning (celebration of the Queen's "Diamond Jubilee"): National Anthem, Coronation Anthem (Handel), Sullivan's Festival Te Deum, Part I. of the "Creation." Afternoon: Spohr's Symphony for double orchestra, "The Earthly and the Divine in Human Life"; Gounod's "Messe Solennelle." Evening: "Journey to Emmaus," orchestral piece by Jensen; "Judas Maccabæus." On Thursday, Dvorák's "Stabat Mater" will occupy the morning, the "Hymn of Praise" the afternoon, and a miscellaneous secular selection the evening. Friday begins with the Prelude and other music from "Parsifal," continuing with Tschaïkowsky's "Pathetic" Symphony, and a new sacred cantata for Easter, entitled "Resurgam," the work of the conductor, Dr. Joseph C. Bridge. The Schubert centenary will be observed in the afternoon by a performance of the Mass in E flat, and the Festival will close, in the evening, with "Elijah." It must be conceded that this is an excellent and interesting programme.

It is satisfactory to know that the proposal to present a testimonial to Mr. C. Lee Williams on his leaving Gloucester has been well received It is to be hoped that artists who have sung under the direction of Mr. Williams will take the opportunity of paying him a well deserved compliment.

Mr. L. C. Elson, who, I suppose, is the American critic of that name, has been dropping into poetry in a humorous vein, and, under the heading "Music in the United States," I read:

There was a fierce tenor in Fla,
Whose high notes grew horrid and ha;
When he tried for high C
All the neighbours would glee,
And wish him in climes that were ta.

Mr. Elson should persevere along this line. He is certainly diverting.

There may be value in the method adopted by an American teacher, Mr. F. Field Ballard, who carries on what he calls "Synthetic Classes in Musical Form." I read of his procedure: "Instead of analysing the classical sonatas, Mr. Ballard explains the vital principles of contrast and comparison upon which the sonata depends, and constructs a complete sonata in several movements with the assistance of the class, using original themes furnished by the pupils themselves." This, no doubt, affords relief from unvarying analysis, and is adapted to interest students, but it cannot supersede study of good models.

In its highest development, the art of advertising is wonderful. Madame Carreno has gone back to the United States, and her arrival there was preceded by a pretty little domestic story, telling how, on being informed that his mother would not be at home to light up the Christmas tree, Madame Carreno's little Puppi put his arms round her neck and sobbed, "You must not go from us!" Puppi was joined in words and tears by little Herto, and so it came about that the mother delayed starting till after Christmas. Quite natural and touching, but more fittingly, perhaps, kept within the family circle.

I see a term new to me in an American paper Miss Amy Fay is said to have given a "piano conversation." What is that? Does she play the pianoforte while the company talk? If so, the thing is old though the name may be new.

The Musical Courier (New York) formally begs Mr. Jean de Reszke to give American operatic artists a chance of showing what they can do. Why appeal to Mr. de Reszke? Americans are patriotic and wealthy enough to act for themselves in this matter.

Joseph Bennett.

THE ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

Schubert centenary observances will apparently last over several weeks, and they may be said to have commenced at the Albert Hall on Thursday, the 21st ult., when Handel's "Israel in Egypt" was preceded by the Viennese master's "Song of Miriam," written in the last year of his too brief life, though it is curiously unreflective of his mature style. The piece is simplicity itself in point of construction, though bright and melodious. It presented no difficulty to Miss Esther Palliser, who undertook the principal part, nor to the highly-trained choir, which subsequently distinguished itself in the oratorio. It is necessary to record that the duet "The Lord is a Man of War" was on this occasion sung, not as at so many previous performances by 400 tenors and basses, but by Messrs. Andrew Black and Watkin Mills. Miss Maggie Purvis, Madame Belle Cole, and Mr. Edward Lloyd were, of course, quite satisfactory. Professor Bridge conducted with much judgment.

QUEEN'S HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

The afternoon performance of "Elijah" on New Year's Day was in every way as successful as could be wished. Notwithstanding the number of times the work was given during the preceding twelve months in celebration of its jubilee, the interest evoked was as great as of old, proof being thereby afforded—if any were needed—of the capability of this masterpiece to withstand the customary effects of frequent repetition. The choruses were throughout well rendered. The Baal scene was sung with exceptional steadiness and dramatic impulse, whilst the spirit marking the delivery of the glorious Finale to the first part, "Thanks be to God," clearly reflected the jubilant emotions of an excited people. Mr. Randegger was justified in feeling proud of the large body of singers over which he presided. Mr. Santley repeated with undiminished effect his fine reading of the part of the Prophet, rousing the audience to enthusiasm by his superb singing of "Is not His word like a fire?" Madame Ella Russell was at ease with the leading soprano airs. Miss Ada Crossley displayed conscientiousness in all the contralto music falling to her share, and Mr. Ben Davies again acquitted himself satisfactorily as chief tenor. The second quartet consisted of Miss Hoare, Madame Himing, Mr. Reginald Brophy, and Mr. Hinchliff, each of whom was perfectly competent, and the band was not behind any other department in general efficiency.

The performance in oratorio form of M. Saint-Saëns's Biblical opera "Samson et Dalila," by the Queen's Hall Choral Society, in December last, was artistically so successful that Mr. Robert Newman wisely resolved to give it another trial, and the far larger audience at the second interpretation, on Saturday afteroon, the 16th ult., showed that the work is growing in public favour, which is not surprising, for the versatility of the French composer is extraordinary. He can write sensuous Gallic melody, Italian dramatic music, and Teutonic passages with equal facility. No further criticism is needed concerning "Samson et Dalila," and we have only to record a very fine performance under Mr. Randegger's direction. The soloists were the same as before, except that Mr. Watkin Mills replaced Mr. Andrew Black. A third rendering will shortly take place.

THE ROYAL CARL ROSA OPERA COMPANY.

The Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company began a three weeks' season on the 18th ult., at the Garrick Theatre. The stage of this house is far too small for the presentation of operatic works in a manner regarded as adequate by London amateurs, and the representation of "Tannhäuser," with which the season opened, suffered considerably in consequence, especially as the scenery and "appointments" used on this occasion were of the primitive sort that seems designed to thwart the natural "lusting of the eye" for fitness and beauty. The home of Venus and the terpsichorean entertainment therein, to name but one scene, were of such quality that Tannhäuser's anxiety to depart became intelligible on far less subtle grounds than usual. The title-rôle was played by Mr. Hedmondt, whose admirably thought-out conception of the part is well-known in the metropolis. His voice, unfortunately, showed signs of fatigue, and he forced it quite unnecessarily. Miss Rita Elandi, who essayed the part of Elizabeth, is a good singer, but as an actress is less satisfactory. The Venus was Miss Meisslinger and the remaining parts were taken by Miss Lily Williams (Shepherd boy), Mr. Ludwig (Wolfram), Mr. C. Tilbury (Landgrave), and Messrs. Frank Wood, H. Lind, Gillard, and Fox. Mr. Richard Eckhold conducted with much ability. The singing in the ensembles and choruses and the playing of the orchestra were quite the best features of the performance.

On the 19th Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet" was given, with Mr. Brozel and Miss Alice Esty as the lovers, both artists singing and acting effectively, and, much to their credit be it said, being most successful in the last scene. Miss Lily Heenan as the Page and Mr. Alec Marsh as Mercutio rendered excellent service, and several of the artists named above appeared in the other parts.

Godard's "La Vivandière" was played for the first time in London on the 20th, and was received with cordiality, but without enthusiasm. The libretto, though bright and pleasant enough, lacks sufficient dramatic interest to justify the three acts which it is made to fill, the characters are too sketchily drawn to interest greatly, and the incidents, both of the main plot and its setting, are of a type that has often done duty before. Its chief merit is that it affords numerous opportunities for effective stage pictures, the life and colour of which are for the most part due to military paraphernalia. "La Vivandière" was produced at the Paris Opéra Comique in April, 1885 (less than three months after the lamented composer's death), and was first played in England last March, at Liverpool. It was so widely discussed on both occasions that no need now arises for description of the plot. With regard to the music, there is not much to say. The scoring shows taste and is never noisy or overdone, there is plenty of melody of a not very striking, original, or distinguished sort, and free use is made of national melodies—patriotic, military, and saltatorial. The libretto is set to music throughout, and herein lies the chief weakness of the work, for page after page of dialogue that has not the remotest affinity with music is sung instead of being spoken, and, in consequence, not unfrequently approaches the regions of burlesque. The performance of the work, which was directed by Mr. Jacquinot, left little room for adverse criticism. The vocal ability, high spirits, and admirable stagecraft of Miss Zelie de Lussan find ample scope in the part of the matronly Vivandière, who acts the good fairy to all around her and is the one character of the piece that possesses something like individuality. The part of George (who must, we suppose, be called the "hero") is by no means worthy of Mr. Hedmondt's histrionic powers, and that of Joanne (Miss Bessie Macdonald) is still more colourless. A Captain, a Sergeant, and a Soldier were adequately impersonated by Messrs. Winkworth, W. Paull, and F. A. Wood, and Mr. Tilbury was a dignified Marquis de Rieul. The stage management on this occasion was exceptionally good.

The following evening Gounod's "Faust" was mounted. Miss Alice Esty as Marguerite once again proved herself a sympathetic singer and intelligent actress, although her reading was not sufficiently girlish in the earlier portions of the work. Mr. Philip Brozel was somewhat out of voice, but his impersonation had many admirable features. Miss Kirkby Lunn as Siebel, Mr. Alec Marsh as Mephistopheles, and Mr. George Fox as Valentine all merit praise. The chorus was excellent.

The important advantages arising from a company constantly acting together were strikingly shown on the 22nd, when "Die Meistersinger" was played for the first time in London, in English. It was produced by this company at Manchester, on April 16 last, since which date it has been repeatedly performed in the provinces. The management was thus enabled to present to a metropolitan audience an ensemble remarkable for its completeness and for the manner in which the executants played up to each other. The principal characters were also excellently embodied. Miss Alice Esty's sympathetic style rendered her impersonation of the somewhat forward heroine decidedly engaging, and Mr. Hedmondt's Walter showed his keen perception of the requirements of the Franconian knight. The crafty cunning and nervous apprehensions of Beckmesser were cleverly expressed by Mr. Homer Lind, Mr. Ludwig imparted an effective jovialness to the character of Hans Sachs, and sang the famous monologues with admirable emphasis, and the part of Pogner was well rendered by Mr. Charles Tilbury. Magdalena and David were effectively embodied by Miss Kirkby Lunn and Mr. F. A. Wood, and the other parts were no less well sustained. The orchestra was efficient, and, considering the nature of the work, Mr. Eckhold is to be warmly commended for the excellence attained in the interpretation.

The first week was closed on the following night by a performance of Ambroise Thomas's "Mignon," in which the two principal characters were effectively sustained by Miss Alice Esty and Mr. Robert Cunningham.

HENSCHEL CONCERTS.

Mr. Henschel provided a varied and most interesting programme for his third Concert, on the 14th ult. It began with a work that deserves more frequent hearing than it receives—the Overture to Schumann's ill-fated opera "Genoveva." Following this came Beethoven's divinely beautiful "Elegiac Ode" (Op. 118) for four voices and strings, which was sung with perfect sympathy by Mrs. Henschel, Miss Goudar, Mr. W. Ford, and Mr. G. Holmes. The mood created by it was admirably suited to the reception of the next number, Tschaïkowsky's "Pathetic" Symphony, the popularity of which, if we may judge by the crowded state of St. James's Hall on this occasion, appears to be increasing in geometrical ratio. Mr. Henschel's reading of the work offered many points of interest. There was abundant evidence of care and zeal, and the orchestra played with much refinement and precision. Under Mr. Henschel the barbaric force and passionate wildness of certain passages, accentuated by some conductors, were to a great extent toned down. There was a consequent gain of certain qualities, with, of course, a loss of others. Grieg's Pianoforte Concerto in A minor, the solo part in which was artistically played by Miss Ilona Eibenschütz, and the "Tannhäuser" Overture completed the scheme. At the next Concert, on the 4th inst., Brahms's "Requiem" will be heard.

MR. THEODORE WERNER'S RECITAL.

The violin is now a very popular instrument, and the first of six Recitals given by Mr. Werner, at St. James's Hall, on Friday afternoon, the 22nd ult., would doubtless have been better attended if the weather had been less forbidding. The artist has studied under Mr. Joachim, than whom a better master could not be conceived. That Mr. Werner has beautifully rich full tone and masterly technique may at once be gladly acknowledged, though his method is a trifle cold. His principal efforts were Rust's Sonata in D minor, the work of an industrious composer whose name is not at present frequently seen in concert programmes. He was one of those workers in the art who never tire so long as life is given them, but who leave no abiding-place owing to want of individuality. Another feature demanding mention was Raff's Suite in G (Op. 180), a work written in the deceased composer's best manner. Other selections by Spohr, Wieniawski, and Vieuxtemps served to confirm the impression that Mr. Werner is an admirable executant, and his further Recitals will be awaited with interest.

QUEEN'S HALL PROMENADE CONCERTS.

The Saturday evening Promenade Concerts, under the conductorship of Mr. Henry J. Wood, now occupy an important place in the musical events of the week, not only on account of the excellence of the performances, but also owing to the musical interest of the programmes and the many novelties introduced. Overflowing audiences attended the Boxing Day Concert and that of the 2nd ult., both occasions being devoted to Wagner's music, which was admirably interpreted. On the 9th ult. first performances in London took place of a "Cossack Dance" by Dargomijsky and the ballet music from "Kassya," an opera in four acts, by Délibes, produced at the Opéra Comique, Paris, in March, 1893. The "Cossack Dance" is one of the most popular of this Russian composer's miscellaneous works, and is a characteristic example of the new Russian school of music. The excerpts from Délibes's opera consisted of a spirited and attractive Polonaise and four ballet movements, respectively entitled "Obertas," "Dance Ruthène," "Sumka," and "Trépak." Of these the first-named is the best; the second is, however, very distinctive and remarkable for the part assigned to the flute; the third also contains some very expressive solo passages for the first violin. The first and last numbers are too heavily scored, but this must be attributed to Massenet, who completed the scoring of the work left unfinished by the composer at the time of his death. First performances were given on the 16th ult. of a Suite for orchestra, by Mottl, consisting of a selection from the "Ballet airs from the operas of Gluck," and a "Scène des Bacchanales," by Ernest Ford. The Suite is merely a collection of the best of Gluck's dramatic dance music, which, charming in themselves, are scarcely improved by being more heavily instrumented. Mr. Ford's movement is an arrangement for the concert-room of a portion of his clever "Faust" ballet, produced at the Empire Theatre. Much use is made of the instruments of percussion and the scoring is decidedly noisy, but its spirited character manifestly pleased the majority of the audience, and the clever composer was twice called to the platform. An interesting item at this Concert was the performance of three movements from the ballet music in Gounod's five-act opera "Polyeucte," produced at the Grand Opéra, Paris, in 1878. The numbers played were entitled "Vénus," "Danse de Vénus," and "Bacchanale," a very fine effect being produced in the last-named by the unexpected entrance of the "full" organ with the strains of a Christian hymn.

The novelty on the 23rd ult. was an Orchestral Suite, entitled "Izeyl," by Mr. Gabriel Pierné, a composer practically unknown in this country, but who gained the Prix de Rome at the Paris Conservatoire in 1881, and whose compositions include examples in the highest forms of musical art. The Suite comprises four numbers from Mr. Pierné's incidental music to Armand Sylvestre's Indian drama "Izeyl," written for Madame Sarah Bernhardt. The movements are all of an Eastern character, and are scored in a picturesque and master-like manner, a notable feature being the effective use made of the upper notes of the pianoforte. The vocalists have been Miss Lucile Hill, Miss Maggie Davies, Miss Sarah Berry, Madame Belle Cole, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, Mr. Hirwen Jones, Mr. Philip Brozel, Mr. William Ludwig, and the Concord Part-Singers.

MONDAY AND SATURDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

THE large audience in St. James's Hall on the resumption of these entertainments, on the evening of the 4th ult., was probably attracted mainly by Tschaïkowsky's superb Pianoforte Trio in A minor (Op. 50), "A la Mémoire d'un Grand Artiste." The great artist is Nicolas Rubinstein, Professor at Moscow and St. Petersburg, and brother of the far more celebrated Anton Rubinstein. The trio is truly inspired in each of its three movements, and the sad ending, as we said on a former occasion, may compare with that of the Russian composer's "Symphonie Pathétique." The trio was played to perfection by Lady Hallé, Mr. Leonard Borwick, and Mr. Piatti. Beethoven's comparatively brief but thoroughly characteristic Quartet in F minor (Op. 95) was placed at the head of the programme. Mr. Borwick was heard to more advantage in a trifle by Brahms than in two pieces by Chopin. Miss Evangeline Florence was charming in an unfamiliar air, "Care Selve," from Handel's "Atalanta."

The first Saturday performance of the year, on the 9th ult., drew an immense audience, attracted beyond question by Beethoven's melodious Septet (Op. 20), the popularity of which knows no decline, though the work is in the master's earliest manner. Schumann's "Märchenbilder" for pianoforte and viola (Op. 113) were given for the first time at these Concerts with the last-named instrument, a violoncello being usually substituted. The executants were Miss Ilona Eibenschütz and Mr. Alfred Gibson, the former giving in a delightfully crisp and refined manner three of Scarlatti's harpsichord pieces as her pianoforte solos. Mrs. Helen Trust was pleasant as usual in her songs.

Schubert's Octet in F (Op. 166) was the central feature in the programme of the following Monday, and was rendered in a way that can truly be described as superb by Lady Hallé, Messrs. Ries, Gibson, Clinton, Paersch, Wotton, Reynolds, and Piatti. Beethoven's finest Sonata for pianoforte and violoncello—that is to say, the work in A major (Op. 69)—was also perfectly played by Miss Eibenschütz and Mr. Piatti. The talented young pianist introduced three light and piquant trifles by the Norse composer, Ole Olsen, who seems to be following in the footsteps of Grieg. Miss Louise Dale was wholly commendable in songs by Rubinstein and Sullivan.

The scheme of Saturday afternoon, the 16th ult., commenced with a repetition performance of Professor Villiers Stanford's String Quartet in A minor (Op. 45), a work that grows upon the ear as it becomes familiar, and certainly it was beautifully interpreted on this occasion by Lady Hallé and her associates. That juvenile, but very promising, pianist, Miss Katie Goodson, made a most suitable selection in Schumann's "Kinderscenen" (Op. 15), playing the little pieces with easy grace. She has the making of a first-rate artist. Lady Hallé, in her customary polished style, played Handel's over-familiar Violin Sonata in D, and the Concert ended with Beethoven's effective String Trio in C minor (Op. 9, No. 3). Mr. Kennerley Rumford contributed, commendably, songs by Schumann, Mr. Somervell, and Professor Stanford.

A Quartet in D, by Tschaïkowsky (Op. 11), headed the programme on the following Monday. This appears to be the first of three String Quartets penned by the lamented Russian composer, the others being Op. 22 in F and Op. 30 in E flat minor. The early work is not remarkable for perfect workmanship, but it is by no means diffuse, and the Andante cantabile in B flat is very expressive, like most of Tschaïkowsky's slow movements. It cannot be said that Mr. Slivinski was wholly satisfactory in Schumann's Carneval, for the rendering of this favourite was rather cold and perfunctory, and at times technically inaccurate. Rubinstein's brilliant Pianoforte Trio in B flat (Op. 52), effectively played by Lady Hallé, Mr. Slivinski, and Mr. Piatti, brought the Concert to a cheerful conclusion. Miss Thudichum was an agreeable vocalist.

The programme of Saturday, the 23rd ult., opened with a repetition performance of Tschaïkowsky's String Quartet in D (Op. 11), mentioned above, and played by the same artists as before. Miss Fanny Davies was unduly modest in her pianoforte solos, which consisted of Rubinstein's Romance in E flat and Study in C. Both were exquisitely played, and an encore was exacted. Lady Hallé played once again Professor Stanford's delicate little Irish pieces for violin in her most delightful manner, and the Concert ended with Beethoven's Sonata in D for pianoforte and violoncello (Op. 102, No. 2), played by Lady Hallé and Mr. Piatti. The vocalist was Mr. Byard, who was moderately acceptable in songs by Salvator Rosa, Lotti, and Schubert.

SUNDAY CONCERTS.

THE excellent standard of Mr. Newman's Concerts on Sundays, at the Queen's Hall, has been fully maintained during the past month. At the afternoon orchestral performances, under the conductorship of Mr. Randegger, the Symphonies played have been Beethoven's in D (No. 2) and in F (No. 6), Schubert's in C minor (No. 4), and Mendelssohn's in A (No. 4). The overtures have comprised several of the masterpieces in this form by various composers, and the vocalists have been Mdlle. Amelia Sinico, Mdlle. Marie Titiens, Miss Lucile Hill, Miss Maggie Davies, and Mr. Ludwig; the instrumental soloists having been Mr. Ferdinand Weist-Hill, Mr. Percy Frostick, Mr. W. H. Squire, and Mr. Hollman.

The programmes of the Chamber Concerts on Sunday evenings in the Small Hall have also presented attractive selections of works by the great masters, and the vocalists have been Madame Clara Samuell, Madame Marie Hooton, Miss Maggie Davies, and Madame Belle Cole.

The National Sunday League has given performances, under the conductorship of Mr. Churchill Sibley, of Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" and "Elijah," Sir A. C. Mackenzie's "Dream of Jubal" (with Mr. Charles Fry as reciter), and Handel's "Samson"; the two last-named works having been presented on the 17th and 24th ult. respectively.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

An interesting and instructive series of Lectures has been given during the past month at the above Institution. On the 13th and 20th ult. Mr. William Nicholl discoursed on "The effect of singing on the speaking voice." At the first of these a graphic description was given of the vocal organs, and the re-inforcement of the tone by the resonant cavities of the head. The proper pronunciation of the vowels and consonants was described in detail, and the importance of never exceeding the tonal capacities of their voices was impressed upon his listeners. The flute, the lecturer said, was generally played with an excess of breath which caused a whistling sound, a hard tone was often produced on the violin by endeavouring to get a louder tone from the instrument than was consistent with its resonant power, and most unpleasant effects were produced from the pianoforte by over-striking the keys. Exactly the same result followed from forcing the voice. It was the dark or deep tones, not the most shrill, which carried the farthest. The first and last sound heard from an approaching and receding military band was the beat of the big drum, not that of the wind instruments, which seemed to be the most powerful. Very little more effort was required to sing in the Albert Hall than in a small concert-room. The remarkable carrying power of mezza-voce and the stage whisper proved that it was purity of tone, not force, which triumphed over distance. A tenor voice was not more delicate than any other, and the vocal organs were one of the strongest parts of the body. It was only bad production which destroyed them. No one heard a baby cry itself hoarse. Imperfect articulation in singing was the result of laziness in speaking, which caused the muscles of the lips and mouth effecting pronunciation to degenerate. Enunciation should be accomplished with the aid of the air that existed in the mouth and not by a puff from the lungs. The vowels should be pronounced purely and not split into two sounds. Concentration of thought should be assiduously cultivated and would prove a most valuable ally in study. The late Sir George Macfarren possessed this faculty in a remarkable degree. This might be attributed in great measure to his having, when he came to the Royal Academy, to practise the pianoforte in the same room with five other instruments all being similarly used, which, though at first distracting, the late principal had told the lecturer ultimately became perfectly undisturbing.

At the following Lecture the proper action of the tongue and lips was described in detail, and the causes of stammering and indistinct articulation explained, both being attributed to want of control of the breath. Much information of importance to vocalists and public speakers was also given, the lecturer concluding by exhorting his listeners "not to trace knowledge a little way and fancy they had found the end."

The competition for the Sainton Dolby Scholarship took place at the Academy on the 9th ult., when the scholarship was awarded to Elizabeth E. A. M. M. Webb (of Brighton). The competition for the George Mence Smith Scholarship took place on the 12th ult., the scholarship being awarded to Henry Alfred Rojas (of London). The examiners commended Hugh G. Cochrane.

MUSICAL ASSOCIATION.

At the third meeting of the Musical Association, held on the 11th ult. at the Royal College of Organists, Mr. F. Cunningham Woods read an interesting paper entitled "A consideration of the types of songs popular in England during the eighteenth century." After a brief reference to the much frequented Gardens at Vauxhall, Ranelagh and Marylebone, and other places, and to the good work done in these resorts in cultivating a popular taste for music, much of which was of an excellent kind, Mr. Woods proceeded to classify the ditties which enjoyed the widest popularity. In the first class was placed the blatant national song, in which we seemed to thank God we were not as other men were. The words of these songs were often fitted to well known airs, and were often in praise of some particular commander. The sentimental songs were described as the most artificial productions of a thoroughly artificial age. The Elizabethan poets, such as Green, Campion, Ford, and Morley, had left us graceful and, as they had been aptly termed, "full-throated lyrics," dealing with shepherds and shepherdesses. Celia and Delia "played for kisses" and eventually died of love, but they tended their sheep prior to their decease. In the eighteenth century popular song they died similarly, but they took longer over it—sometimes twelve verses—and appeared to think of nothing but dying. Of course there were some exceptions, a notable one being Arne's "Despairing beside a clear stream." What might be styled lampoon songs, in which allusions, the reverse of complimentary, to well-known people were made, were very popular. There was a hunting song in which occurred the line "Such harmony Handel never knew," which might be taken as an attempt to ridicule, or a desire to express admiration for, the great composer. A song called "Hodge Podge," which was sung by Beard, who was to be heard at the Ranelagh Gardens between the years 1742 and 1760, was a clever burlesque of the singing of the fashionable Italians of the day. It would appear, however, that if a singer desired to be both amusing and patriotic at once it was necessary to burlesque the French either in the matter of dress or speech. A leaflet song called "Raree Show"—supposed to be popular in 1727—was built upon a tune of about three notes, and appeared to correspond to what is known to-day as a "patter song." The wit was very laboured and the broken English quite childish in its persistency, but it was interesting to us owing to the singer having a few lines to speak between the first and second verses. Scotch songs also appeared to have enjoyed much favour at the "Gardens." Every occupation, trade, and profession seemed to have been made the subject of a song, and to have been deemed worthy of publication. When the pirated songs of Purcell, Handel, Boyce, Hook, Arne, and others were omitted, the serious claims to musicianship were usually of the slightest character. In a word, the music was influenced either by the classical school, of which it was a faint imitation, or by the dance measures then in vogue. As a general rule, the treble and a figured bass were given, but later in the century various fuller indications for the use of other instruments appeared, such as flute, guitar, violin, or horn. Many of the songs were scored for all these instruments. One of the characteristics of the eighteenth century popular song was the printed arrangement of the air for the flute, and at a later period for the guitar. The wide compass and florid nature of the vocal part were also very remarkable. This was probably the result of the arrival in England of so many Italian singers. Mr. Woods concluded his paper with some interesting particulars of the boy singers and popular vocalists of the period.

The instructiveness of the evening was increased by the subsequent remarks of the chairman, Mr. W. H. Cummings, who remarked that the popularity of Scotch songs in London might be said to have commenced in the time of Charles II. With regard to the great compass of the songs, he was inclined to think that at this period there was a more than usual number of professional vocalists gifted with voices of very extensive compass, although it must be remembered that we did not know how far the chest and falsetto voice was used. One reason why boys sang about so much was that those of the choir of St. Paul's Cathedral were apprenticed to the choirmaster, who, by a not very commendable arrangement with the Dean and Chapter, was permitted to make all the money he could out of them. In reply to a question by Mr. Southgate as to why the songs were sometimes in a different key to that of the flute arrangement, which was often printed at the bottom of the leaflet, Mr. Christopher Welsh said that at that period there were only two flutes in common use, the English flute-à-bec in F and the German instrument in G. Owing to the absence of keys it was only possible to play satisfactorily in F and C on the first-named instrument and in D and G on the latter. Mr. Ernest Clark drew attention to the fact that many songs commonly accredited as being Scotch were English in origin, notably "If a body meet a body," which was a popular song in a London pantomime produced at Christmas of 1795, and was calmly appropriated by James Johnson for Vol V. of his "Scottish Musical Museum," published in 1797.

TRINITY COLLEGE.

THE annual distribution of diplomas and certificates gained at the forty-seventh half-yearly examinations in connection with Trinity College took place on the 20th ult. The Warden (Dr. E. H. Turpin), in presenting the awards, stated that the total number of pupils entered for examination was the highest on record, and included twenty-seven in Australasia. The reports as to the latter had not yet arrived, but the ascertained passes gave a percentage of fifty. The pass list included the following licentiates in music: Lucy Andrews (Redditch), Eleanor Anne Durnford (Ashford), William Griffith (Durham University), George Daniel Rawle (Ealing). The following qualified as Associates: Caroline Lucy Brown (London), Sidney Louis Coveney (Dover), William Fielden (Liskeard), Ida Mary Knott (Barnet), Agnes Emily Lott (Great Wenham), Mildred Blanche Mapleton (London), Mrs. Rose Mesham (London), Robina Bruce Nicolson (Stoke, Devonport), Gertrude Payne (Westbury-on-Severn), Mary Catharine Sorsbie (Colchester), Hugh Benjamin Tabberer (Oxford University), Ellen Underhill (Croydon), Margaret Lucy Wilcox (London). Lily Trickett (Accrington) passed as an associate-vocalist; while the associate-pianists were Mabel Foyle (Southampton), Thomas Taylor (Burnley), and Maud Agnes Winter (London).

ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

THE following is the official list of those who passed at the examinations held last month at the above Institution:—Fellowship—A. E. Baker (Windsor), W. E. Beazley (London), A. L. Biggs (Doncaster), G. W. Bouttell (Coventry), C. J. Brennan (Shefford), A. H. Brewer (Gloucester), G. D. Cunningham (London), A. S. Dale (Birkenhead), F. S. Donnison (London), H. Evans (Dowlais), R. J. Forbes (Leigh, Lancs.), F. Greenwood (Todmorden), W. Griffith (Northampton), W. Groocock (Leicester), T. W. Hanforth (Sheffield), J. E. Hodgson (Leeds), P. E. Hughes (Ely), W. Jones (Swadlincote), W. C. Luttman (Maidstone), J. M. L. Martin (Plymouth), T. W. Ritson (Newcastle-on-Tyne), W. Williams (Galway). Associateship—Miss V. Baldwin (Keighley), A. K. Blackall (London), C. Bulmer (Huddersfield), F. W. Christall (Nottingham), R. Garrett-Cox (Great Brickhill), E. H. R. Goss-Custard (St. Leonard's), J. D. Daykin (Bishop Auckland), S. Hodkinson (Bolton), W. G. Hopkins (Rochester), F. W. Jeeves (Ampthill), A. Kitchingman (Wibsey), J. P. Lane (Salford), G. H. Lockett (Buxton), Miss M. M. Maddle (Bungay), A. W. Ogilvy (Windsor), S. Palmer (Ampthill), A. Reid (Canterbury), H. Sanders (Wolverhampton), R. A. Laslett-Smith (Adderbury), E. Standring (Oldham), W. Tomlinson (Accrington), E. Turner (Beckenham), A. W. V. Vine (London), J. M. Walters (Ilkeston), W. J. Wightman (Ipswich), W. H. Windus (Henfield), G. H. Woolston (Wellingborough).

The solo playing tests for the Fellowship Examination in July will be:—Choral Vorspiel, "Christ unser Herr, zum Jordan kam," Bach (Peters, Novello and Co.); Fugue on the name of Bach, No. 4, Schumann (No. 248, Original Compositions for the Organ. Novello and Co.); and "Variations on a Theme by Beethoven," Op. 45, Merkel (Forberg, Leipzig; Novello and Co.).

A course of Educational Lectures, on the "Principles and Practice of Counterpoint," will be delivered by Mr. J. Higgs, on Wednesdays, March 24, 31, and April 7.

INCORPORATED SOCIETY OF MUSICIANS.

THE annual Conference of the Incorporated Society of Musicians took place at Cardiff, beginning on December 29 and terminating on the 1st ult. The Mayor of the town having given the members a hearty welcome at the opening meeting, Mr. E. Chadfield, the general secretary, presented his report, which stated that the record of the proceedings of the Society during the past year was satisfactory from all points of view. The membership showed steady and continuous increase, although no special missionary work had been undertaken. From amongst the numerous applicants for membership, 201 new members had been elected, whilst the losses from death, resignation, and other causes amounted to 76, thus leaving an increase of 125 on the roll of membership. The financial position of the Society was equally satisfactory, the auditor having been able to report that during the year 1895 the income of the Society exceeded its expenditure by upwards of £300. The local examinations of the Society continue to grow year by year, and this was in itself a proof that the principles upon which they were conducted were more and more appreciated. The number of candidates entered in 1895 was 4,597, and in 1896, 5,644, an increase of 1,047. Of these 1,100 obtained honours, 3,450 satisfied the examiners, 922 failed, and 157 were absent. Regarding the registration of teachers, it was necessary to define what the future position of the profession should be. In the new Bill musicians would have no voice in the management and registration of their own profession, but would have to accept whatever the nominees of a non-musical council might dictate. It was not reasonable to imagine that musicians would be willing to occupy such an undignified position.

Mr. W. H. Cummings, the chairman of the day, read an interesting, attractive, and practical paper on "Musical Ethics." He said they, as professors of a noble art, were absolutely bound to make every effort to live up to the nobleness of their profession—by uprightness and integrity, by kindness and forbearance. In their dealings with each other they should adopt as watchwords, "Do as we would be done by," "Bear and forbear," and their own special motto, "Heart with heart in concord beats." They should try to divest themselves of jealousy and overweening egotism. When jealousy stepped in, their own self-interest, which they fancied they made a primary consideration, was almost sure to suffer. Why could not they honestly and enthusiastically praise the successful efforts of their brethren and sisters? Overweening egotism he believed to be more mischievous and distressing in its effects than jealousy. Respecting their duties as teachers, he felt that they would agree with him that during lesson-time they were bound to give their undivided attention to their pupils. It was unfair to occupy the time of a pupil by discussing extraneous subjects with them during lessons, or for a professor to read a newspaper or to do anything else except give his whole attention to his pupil. Dealing with the question how and what they should teach, he said that in large cities, as a rule, eminent professors taught only one specialty, greatly to the advantage of themselves and their pupils. In the provinces very frequently a professor was obliged to undertake tuition in more than one branch of musical knowledge; in such cases it should be considered a sacred obligation on him only to teach what he has studied and learned. By learning he did not mean mere book-reading; it should embrace more than that, and include a conscientious course of practical study under a well-qualified master. No number of scientific instruments—or quasi-scientific—such as voxometers, gasometers, graduated waistcoat buttons, or other quackeries, would supply the place of sound practical knowledge, patiently and painfully acquired in long years of art apprenticeship. There was one snare they should endeavour to shun, that of having their professional personality proclaimed in connection with bogus or shady institutions, of which there were unhappily too many in these days; and still more determined should they be to avoid and discourage all use of sham degrees and titles, whether of native or foreign manufacture. They respected academic distinctions, worthily obtained from lawfully constituted authorities; but the want of them could not be considered as certainly proclaiming absence of knowledge or skill. Although the cultured amateurs were necessary to the existence of professors, they should resent the interference of the amateur when it deprived them of their daily bread. Well cultivated moral, mental, and physical powers add immensely to the value and elevate the standard of a man's musical work.

The discussion which followed was taken part in by Mr. D. W. Rootham (Bristol), who said that by members being brought into contact with each other jealousy was in a great measure dissipated; Mr. Cole (London), who condemned the character of some advertisements in musical papers; Dr. Ebenezer Prout, who contended that some of the compositions of Bach were as good as any sermons; and Dr. Campbell.

Mr. John Thomas gave an admirable address on "Welsh Music" in the afternoon. He said the Eisteddfod had afforded the greatest encouragement to the study of music, as well as of poetry, the result being that music occupied a more exalted position in the Principality at the present time than it had ever done at any former period. In proof of this it was only necessary to call attention to the wonderful progress made in choral singing alone, and the great number of choral societies formed throughout the Principality. Choral competitions might be rendered still more perfect by choruses being sung with orchestral accompaniment, as the composers intended. They were unsatisfactory with pianoforte and harmonium accompaniment. The Welsh should use every means in their power to create an orchestra in every large town, and offer every possible encouragement to the study of orchestral instruments. Before this desideratum could be accomplished, classes should be formed for the study of the Staff Notation, a knowledge of which was absolutely necessary before any progress could be made in the study of instrumental music. Tonic Sol-fa was all very well as a stepping-stone for chorus-singers, but for instrumental music it was absolutely useless.

On the second day of the Conference the chairman was Dr. E. Bunnett, who related some "Reminiscences of Cathedral life during the last forty years." Speaking of the training of lads in his boyhood, he said various methods were tried with the boys to get them to open their mouths, and they used to practise with nuts between their teeth; but as the boys constantly cracked them that method was given up, and marbles and beans were substituted. Last of all a mouthpiece was tried to separate the teeth. In their early tuition they had to get a complete mastery over the tongue, which was not a very easy matter. Solo singing was a great feature in Norwich, and everything was sacrificed for it, the boys' general education being sadly neglected. The boys used frequently to practise at seven in the morning for an hour, again for an hour before morning service at ten o'clock, and afterwards at other periods of the day for an hour each time, and they had an hour-and-a-half teaching by one of the lay clerks, which was interrupted by services in the Cathedral. He had always thought cathedral training was a good thing for a young musician, and he might say for himself he always delighted to play from the old scores, as it taught him to read from different clefs. Norwich had turned out a good musician in the late Dr. Bexfield, organist and choirmaster.

Dr. C. W. Pearce gave an address on "Free Counterpoint." He said, after a careful perusal of most of the existing text-books, he did not think those modern treatises defined the limits of free counterpoint, or bestowed upon it the attention which was due to it. Having remarked that there were two courses generally open to a student after he had finished his studies in strict counterpoint, he proceeded to point out why counterpoint was one of the vexed questions in the musical world at the present day. It was mainly from the difference which ought to be preserved between students and free counterpoint. He noticed that free counterpoint must not be confused with free part-writing. There were five special points of distinction between strict and free counterpoint, and he discussed whether these were of sufficient importance to entitle free counterpoint to more attentive methods of teaching and practice than were at present accorded to it. He supplied practical examples showing the difference of treatment in all the five orders which the same canto fermo might receive from the respective application of the strict and free styles of counterpoint. He did not regard "free" as a synonym for "lawless." He would be satisfied with the general character of composers' counterpoint. It differed materially from that of students' counterpoint, and the difference was of sufficient magnitude and importance to entitle the former to a more effective method of practice than was at present provided by it.

Dr. Ebenezer Prout said that in the main he agreed with Dr. Pearce. He referred to the notable discussions on strict and free counterpoint which he had at Cambridge and Bristol with his good friend and opponent, Dr. Hiles. He would like for him to have been there now, as he would have been sure to enliven the discussion. He (the speaker) had always maintained the importance of a substratum of strict counterpoint before they got to free counterpoint. There were two things to be learned from strict counterpoint that could not be so surely acquired in any other way. First, in regard to melodic progression, it taught students to write smoothly within the key; and, secondly, they learned what to do with those harmonies that had no fixed progression, which they could not learn from free part-writing. Strict counterpoint was to free counterpoint what five-finger exercises were to the actual playing of pieces by Bach, Beethoven, and Schumann. If they wanted to get a grip of their subject, they must go through the strict before they went to the free, and then they could proceed to use their freedom. Freedom was only to be gained by obedience to law in the first instance.

In the afternoon Mr. G. G. Beale, organist of Llandaff Cathedral, gave a Recital in that building, a good many members being present; and at night the Cardiff Orchestral Society and the Cardiff Musical Society gave a Concert which was well attended.

On the third day the chairman was Mr. Carl Heinecke, who congratulated the assemblage on the unqualified success that had attended their Society during the year of which that was the last day.

Dr. Charles Vincent gave an address on "Sight singing from the Staff." Having disclaimed any intention to attack the Tonic Sol-fa Notation or to use the machinery of the Society to slight a notation which was so popular in Wales, he said that reading from the stave was undoubtedly difficult at first, but if properly taught, and studied with application, the difficulties could be overcome without undue effort. The Tonic Sol-fa Notation was not a satisfactory solution of the difficulty, as those who studied it could only be useful in works which were translated into that notation, while the staff music notation was used throughout the civilised world; therefore no musician could conscientiously assist in propagating a new notation, however simple. When Tonic Sol-fa was admitted into elementary schools, it was felt that as an introduction to the Staff Notation it might be valuable, but it was a fact that many persons now looked upon it as the end and not only as a means to the end. In this way it became a rival to the Staff Notation, and this musicians should not permit. Children left school without knowing even the names of the lines and spaces. He advocated a movement being adopted to insist on some acquaintance with the Staff Notation wherever music was taught. In secondary schools things were not altogether satisfactory. There were a few conscientious workers who were able to overcome the difficulties placed in the way of teachers in the secondary schools, and who were able to obtain excellent results. There were also some Sol-fa teachers who conscientiously used their notation as a stepping-stone to the Staff, and introduced the Staff as soon as possible. To those all honour was due, and he appealed to such to assist in a movement which appeared likely to bring about a more satisfactory state of affairs. To composers and music publishers he would say: In vocal music always indicate any change of key or tonic by the addition of capital letters above the stave, like the Sol-faists do. The chief difficulty in teaching sight-singing on the movable doh system was to get the pupil to understand when a modulation took place, and what the new tonic was. His paper was intended, firstly, as an appeal to musicians to teach sight singing on the movable doh system from the recognised music staff, or to urge its being done; secondly, to introduce a subject the discussion of which might prove of benefit to the advancement of the art of music in the country.

Thanks having been tendered to Dr. Vincent for his paper, a discussion ensued.

Mr. W J. Kidner (Bristol) said he was a Tonic Sol-faist and believed in the system down to the ground. He always led his pupils from the Tonic Sol-fa to the Staff Notation. His experience was that the best readers of the Staff Notation had previously learned Tonic Sol-fa. The movable doh applied to the Staff Notation had been taught in the classes of the Bristol Musical Festival Society for the last sixteen or seventeen years, and 3,000 or 4,000 pupils had passed through those classes. The Bristol School Board had arrangements to enable their pupil teachers to learn the Staff Notation and Tonic Sol-fa Notation.

Mr. W. H. Cummings observed that he recognised the splendid efforts of the Tonic Sol-faists, but he honestly believed their notation was a hindrance and not a help.

Professor Prout said in consequence of so many taking up Tonic Sol-fa and never getting beyond it the real progress of music in the country was hindered. He proposed the following resolution: "That the strongest obtainable deputation of members of the musical profession, both inside and outside the Incorporated Society of Musicians, be nominated to wait upon Sir John Gorst, and to place before him the opinion of this Conference, that in the interests of music in this country it is most desirable that the recommendation which the Educational Department have already issued, to the effect that singing should be taught from the Staff Notation, should now be acted upon, and such teaching should be rendered compulsory in the higher standards." If that resolution was passed, he suggested that Mr. Cummings be spokesman on the occasion.

Dr. Pearce seconded the resolution, which was carried unanimously and with applause.

When the company re-assembled after lunch, Mrs. J. L. Roeckel (Clifton) read a paper dealing with "Some of the advantages of Membership in the Incorporated Society of Musicians." Membership was equivalent to registration and a proof of qualification to teach. Considerable advantage resulted from attending conferences and taking part in discussions. Attached to the Society was a fund for helping members in the time of need, which fund in Bristol had been productive of much good. She expressed the hope that it might be found possible by-and-bye to provide for pensions to aged musicians. Again, through the Society they could make their strength and wishes felt and known in Parliament. The examinations by the Society were conducted on proper lines. Whatever position members held they were all students, for art never ends.

In the evening a Welsh Concert was given by the Royal Welsh Ladies' Choir and the Royal Welsh Male Choir.

On the last day of the Conference the annual general meeting was held, under the chairmanship of Mr. W. B. Broad, of Swansea.

Mr. Chadfield, the general secretary, read a letter from the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, as follows:—

"Clarence House, St. James's,
"December 10, 1896.

"Dear Mr. Chadfield,—In reply to your letter of the 2nd with regard to the proposed general meeting and banquet to be held by the Incorporated Society of Musicians in 1897, which you say the members are anxious to make a special feature, his Royal Highness thinks he can only promise to do his best to attend the meeting, owing to the numerous evening engagements which he will have during the season. I should be glad to see you if you can conveniently call on Monday next at 12 o'clock.

"Believe me, yours very faithfully,
"G. F. Bambridge."

It was decided to hold a general meeting of the Society in London in order to decide what should be done to commemorate the sixty years of the reign of her Majesty, and to consider plans for the establishment of an orphanage in connection with the musical profession. The meeting will be convened for the end of June or the beginning of July.

The members decided that the Conference should take place on January 3, 1898, in London, and terminate on January 7. The chairmen will be Sir John Stainer, Sir Arthur Sullivan, Dr. Henry Hiles, and Dr. Heap (Birmingham). The appointment of committees was left to the meeting of the general council in June.

Mr. J. A. Matthews (Cheltenham) proposed the following resolution: "That the time has now arrived when a Benevolent Fund should be formed according to the clause in the bye-laws, for the whole Society, and that from the invested funds of the Society a sum of money shall be voted to form a nucleus for such Benevolent Fund."

An amendment was proposed by Dr. C. Vincent, that a committee be appointed to consider plans, and report to the meeting next year.

Mr. W. H. Cummings submitted a second amendment: "That the formation of benevolent funds is desirable, but the details can be best devised and carried on in the sectional councils."

Professor Prout seconded this, and it was carried by a large majority.

Dr. F. Koeller (Belfast) proposed the following resolution: "That the general council be requested to consider such an alteration of the bye-laws as will admit to the Society as associates, ladies and gentlemen who have musical university degrees, whether they are professional musicians or not."

This resolution after a discussion was withdrawn.

In the afternoon a visit was paid to the Dowlais Ironworks and in the evening the annual banquet took place, Mr. W. H. Cummings presiding in the absence of Mr. F. H. Cowen. All the toasts were of a complimentary nature. During the evening the chairman, on behalf of the Society, presented to Mr. Arthur Page, who had been treasurer of the Society since its inauguration, a silver salver, bowl, and tea and coffee service.

CUMBERLAND MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

A musical Festival was held at Workington, in Cumberland, on the 1st and 2nd ult. The proceedings included two whole days' music competitions and the performance of two oratorios—"Judas" and "The Messiah." The Festival, now grown to such large dimensions, was initiated by Mr. W. Griffiths in 1872, and, so far as the institution includes general music competitions, is probably the oldest of its kind in the country. There were sections for violin, flute, trombone, cornet, pianoforte, solo singing, children's choirs, male-voice choirs, female voice choirs, church choirs, choral sight singing, writing by ear, &c. The whole proceedings were brimful of life and exhilarating activity. The Seaton Male-Voice Choir deserves a special commendation. It is composed of colliers and is led by a fellow workman. Their singing of "The Fisherman" (Price) was admirable. The Carlisle Choir also sang remarkably well. The children from Northside greatly distinguished themselves by a neat performance of the trio arrangement of "Blow, blow, thou wintry wind" (Stevens), the Seaton children coming only slightly behind. There were over thirty competitors in the solo singing section. The standard was not very high, but there were many evidences that this branch of study had been carefully cultivated. In this connection it is right to acknowledge the great assistance rendered by Mr. J. Goddard, a local professor, who throughout the Festival was always at hand to play accompaniments. The instrumental section did not bring forward any notable talent, but afforded assurance that there are some good teachers at work in the district.

The oratorio "Judas" was given in the Jubilee Hall on the evening of the 2nd ult., before a large audience, including a full representation of the local gentry. The soloists were Miss McCowan, Miss Maggie Wilson, Miss Moffit, Mr. Ben Davies, and Mr. John Browning, of Leeds. Of Mr. Ben Davies it is enough to say that he sang with his usual success, but of Mr. Browning, whose reputation is almost confined to the north country, we are glad to be able to write in high praise; he has a fine voice and an excellent style. The chorus, which had been trained by a local teacher, Mr. Joseph Scott, sang capitally. A small but fully competent band, led by Mr. F. Furnace, played the accompaniments, assisted by Mr. Goddard at the pianoforte.

On the Sunday evening following, after Church service hours, "The Messiah" was performed with nearly the same resources, Mr. Joseph Reed, of Trinity College Choir, Cambridge, singing the tenor solos with smooth execution and expression, and Miss McCowan showing good training in "Rejoice greatly" and other solos.

Dr. McNaught adjudicated at the competitions and conducted the oratorios. The Right Rev. the Bishop of Barrow-in-Furness presided on the first day, and the Rev. Canon Rawnsley on the second day. The greatest credit is due to Mr. W. Griffiths for his remarkable perseverance and patient plodding. He has at least some reward in noting the great progress made in musical study in the district as a direct consequence of his labours.

THE HISTORY OF THE DANCE AND ITS MUSIC.

Dr. Frank J. Sawyer read an attractive paper, entitled "The History of the Dance and its Music," on the 14th ult., at the London Institution. The lecturer premised his paper by remarking that the first thing that was necessary for a man to do in his position was to get in touch with his audience. This Dr. Sawyer, by his vivacious style and often humorous comments, very quickly accomplished. For the origin of the dance the lecturer went back to that very useful man in such questions, Charles Darwin, and showed that dancing might be briefly defined as the development of expressive gesture, the actions becoming quicker as the feelings became more intense. Reference was made to the representations of women dancing in Egyptian frescoes and to the religious dancing mentioned in Psalms cxlix. and cl. and other places in the Bible. The first reference to solo dancing was in Judges xi. 34, in which it was stated that Jephthah's daughter "came out to meet him with timbrels and with dances." In a Chinese manuscript, B.C. 550, was an account of certain festivities in which the people were taught some particular historical events by means of a series of dances. The lecturer humorously recommended this method to the attention of School Board teachers, as likely to prove acceptable to their young scholars. The line between grace and voluptuousness in dancing was very thin, and it was said that the first sign of the decadence of Rome was manifested in its dances. There was a remarkable difference in the method of dancing of the Latin and Northern races. The former danced with their whole body, even the fingers participating in the gestures; but Northern people kept the body and arms comparatively still and danced from the waist downwards; the only exception being the English hornpipe, in which various definite imitatory gestures were made by the body and arms. Dancing was previously to the Christian era so closely connected with religious observances that for many centuries the Christians had great difficulty in inducing the converted Pagans to relinquish it. Some of the early Fathers indeed commended sacred dancing, and to this day the Roman Catholic Church sanctioned it in certain churches in South America. In Anglo-Saxon times dancing was carried on by travelling glee men, who were accompanied by "tumbling women," the words dancing, tumbling, and vaulting at this period being used synonymously by old writers. Sufficient credit had not been given us for our dear old "country dance," which had been calmly appropriated by continental nations. It was popular down to the time of George IV., and there were few feet to-day who could keep still when the inspiriting strains of "Sir Roger de Coverley" were started. There were some very fine dance tunes in a MS., dating from the thirteenth century, in the Bodleian Library, and many a fine old English song had its origin in a country-dance measure. The lecturer described the various dances and the accompanying music which had prevailed in Europe in the Middle Ages, and concluded by referring to nationality in dancing. The salient points of the people's character, it was maintained, were shown in their national dances. The actual movements of the Greek dance were not known to us, but we might be sure that they were such as prominently produced all the most graceful curves of which the body was capable. If it were admitted that the influence of the Moor was obvious in the fancifulness and suggestiveness of Spanish dancers, the significance of nationality in dancing logically followed. Indeed, the dignity and grace of the Italian noble in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries were clearly reflected in the descriptions of the dances popular at that period in Italian courts. No less patent was the influence of the lively French character on the Italian dances introduced into France; the pretty sentimentality in the German character found graceful expression in the Ländler or German waltz, and the genuine, straightforward simplicity of our honest country-dances was equally an index of our national temperament.

The interest of the lecturer's remarks was considerably enhanced by the terpsichorean illustrations given by Miss Muriel Woodman, who danced in costume the various measures with remarkable grace and distinctiveness.

HERR BUNGERT'S "ODYSSEUS."

The first performance on any stage of Herr August Bungert's "Musik Tragödie" "Odysseus," which took place on December 12, at the Royal Theatre, Dresden, was an event of considerable interest in the annals of that Institution. The manifest importance of the new work, moreover, came as a distinct surprise upon the little army of critics, from all parts of Germany, whom its performance had attracted. Herr Bungert had been hitherto known chiefly by some symphonic works which attracted but little general attention, and by a number of songs, some of which have become universal favourites. It was understood, however, that he had been engaged for the last fifteen years in the elaboration of a dramatic composition, of gigantic proportions, with the general title of "Homeric World," divided into an "Iliad" and an "Odyssey," the former consisting of two dramas, entitled respectively "Achilles" and "Clytemnestra"; the latter of four—viz., "Circe," "Nausicaa," "Ulysses' Return," and "Death of Ulysses"—each of these filling an evening in performance. The ambitious scheme was treated with a shrug of the shoulders in many quarters, but, to judge from the enormous success of the first production of "Odysseus Heimkehr," the third drama of the Odyssey Tetralogy, the matter will have to be treated somewhat more seriously. The work, in fact, aroused a perfect storm of enthusiasm amongst an audience including many foreign visitors, and the composer was recalled over and over again, being compelled at last to speak a few words in acknowledgment. Herr Bungert, it should be said at once, is his own poet, and, to judge from the present work, is a dramatist of considerable talent, his book being replete with dramatic life and interest at least equal to that contained in the musical treatment thereof. As regards the distinctive merits of the latter, critical opinions are at present necessarily divided. Although copious use is made of the Leitmotif, the style is considered rather that of Schumann than of Wagner, while there are several excellent choral numbers in the work, which is pervaded throughout by a healthy idealism—a distinct recommendation to any operatic stage work in these latter days. It would lead us too far to give even an outline of the book of "Odysseus Heimkehr"; readers of Homer will be able to form an approximate idea of the subject for themselves. Suffice it to say that, in the opinion of many of those present, the work would prove highly effective merely as a drama, without the music. The performance, under Herr Schuch's direction, who had been rehearsing it for months past, was an excellent one, the principal parts being interpreted by Herr Scheidemantel (Ulysses), Frau Wittich (Penelope), Frl. Chavane (Telemachus), Frl. Frölich (Athene), Herr Anthes (Hyperion), Herr Wachter (Eumeus), and Herr Nebuschka (Laertes). The mounting of the work left nothing to be desired, and the management of the Dresden Opera may well be proud of its achievement. The performance has been several times repeated since the above date, and as a result of its extraordinary and continued success the right of producing the entire tetralogy has been acquired by the directors of the Royal Opera, Berlin. The latter—i.e., the tetralogy—is, we are informed, now

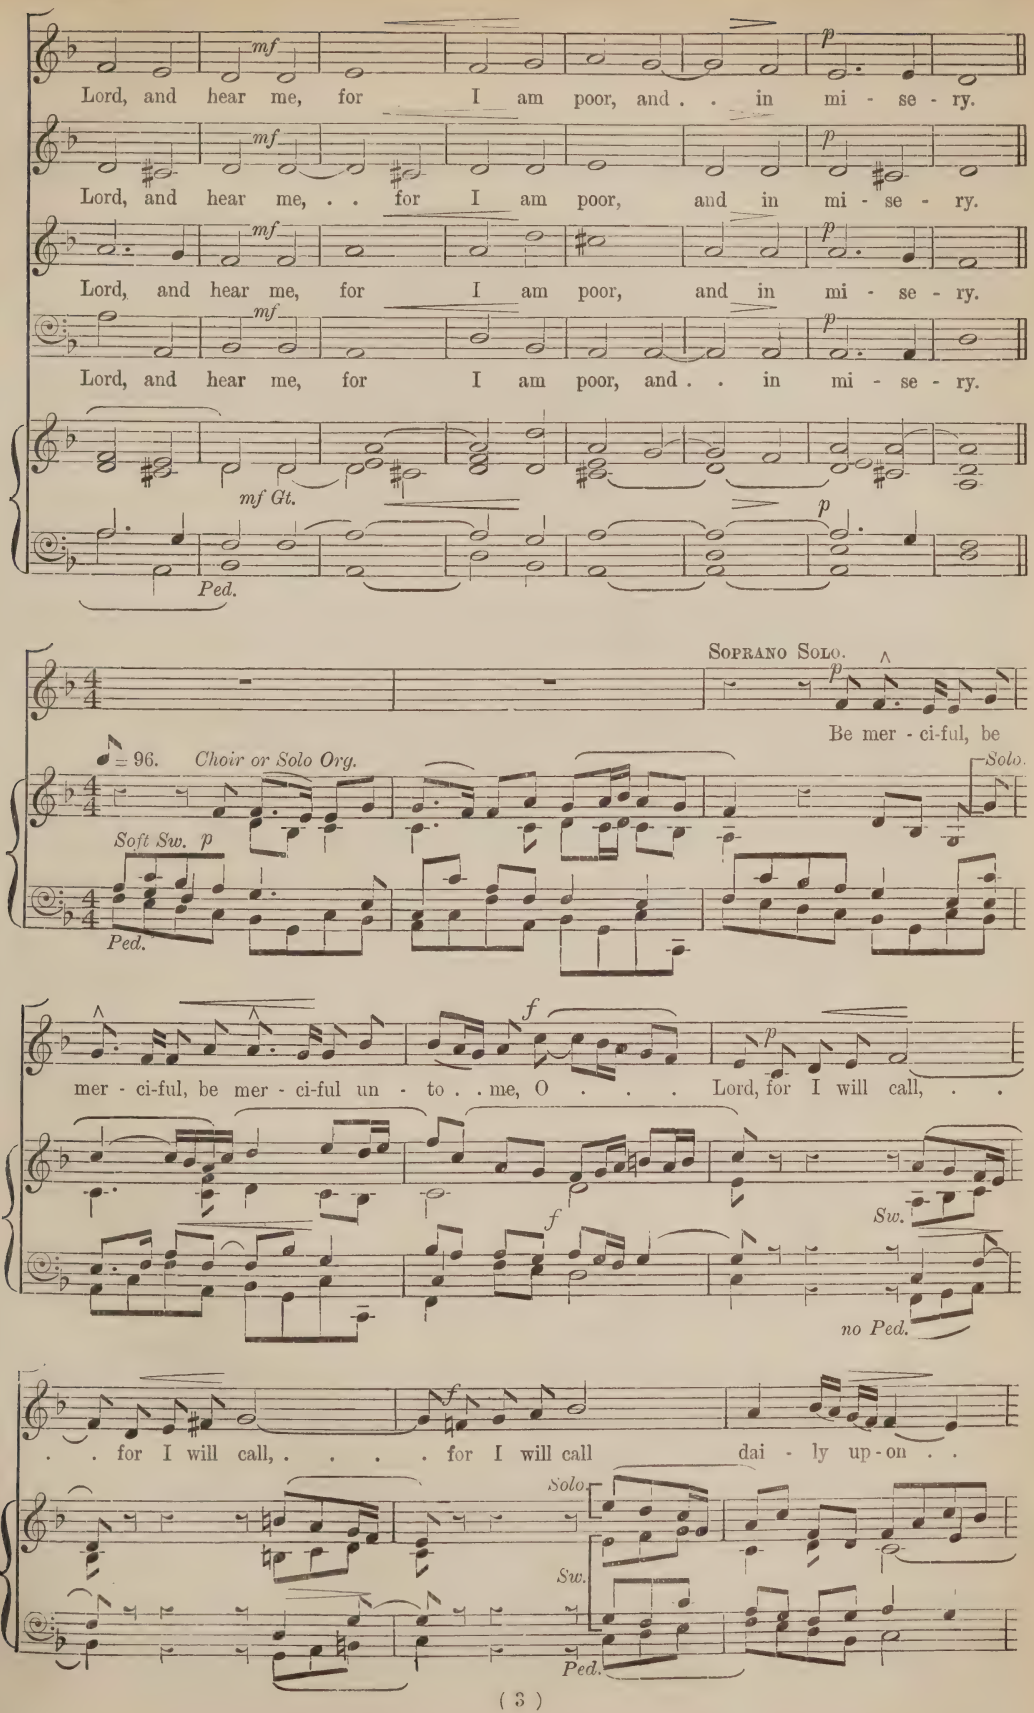
Bow down Thine ear

ANTHEM BY

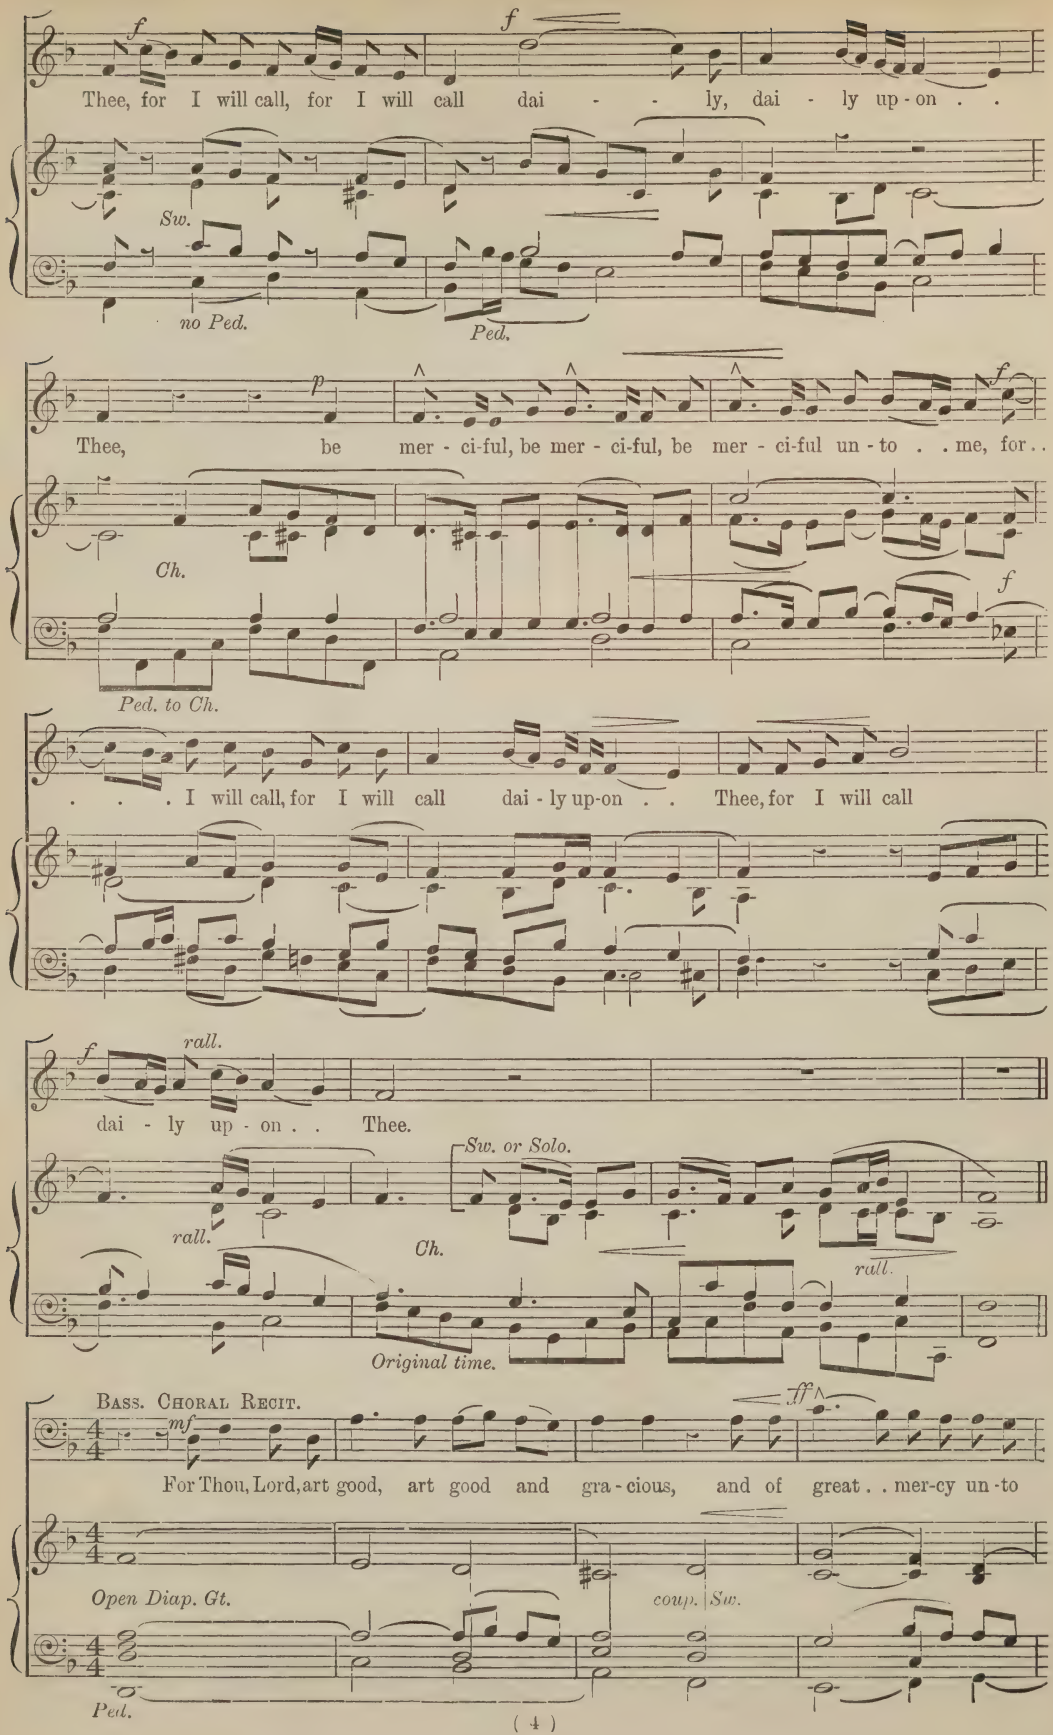
WILLIAM BEALE

Gentleman of His Majesty's Chapels Royal; b. Jan. 1, 1784; d. May 3, 1854.

Ps. lxxxvi. 1, 3, 5; xli. 1, 13. Edited by A. H. Mann.



London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.); also in New York.



Note.—The only Accompaniment written in the MS. score is a figured Bass, and the melody of the Introductory Symphony. There are neither marks of expression, with the exception of the word "Tenderly," beginning the fourth movement, nor any indications of speed, with the exception of "Slow" and "Brisk" at the commencement of the first and last movements. In a few instances, notes have been altered by the Editor, in such cases the small notes are those which appear in the MS. This Anthem is now published for the first time.

 Copyright, 1897, by Novello, Ewer and Co.

me, O Lord, and hear me, me, O Lord, and hear . . me, for . me, O Lord, and hear me, for I am poor, and in mi - se - me, O Lord, and hear me, for I am
Gt. coupd. to Sw.
Ch.
no Ped.
for . . I . . am poor, for I am . .
. . I . . am poor, I . . . am poor, . . for I am
- ry, I am poor, am poor, for I am poor, am poor, I am poor, for I am poor, for I am Gt.
Ped.
poor, for I am poor, and in mi - se - ry, bow down Thine ear, O poor, and, . . and in mi - se - ry, bow down Thine ear, O poor, I am poor, and in mi - se - ry, bow down Thine ear, O poor, I am poor, and in mi - se - ry, bow down Thine ear, O p Sw.
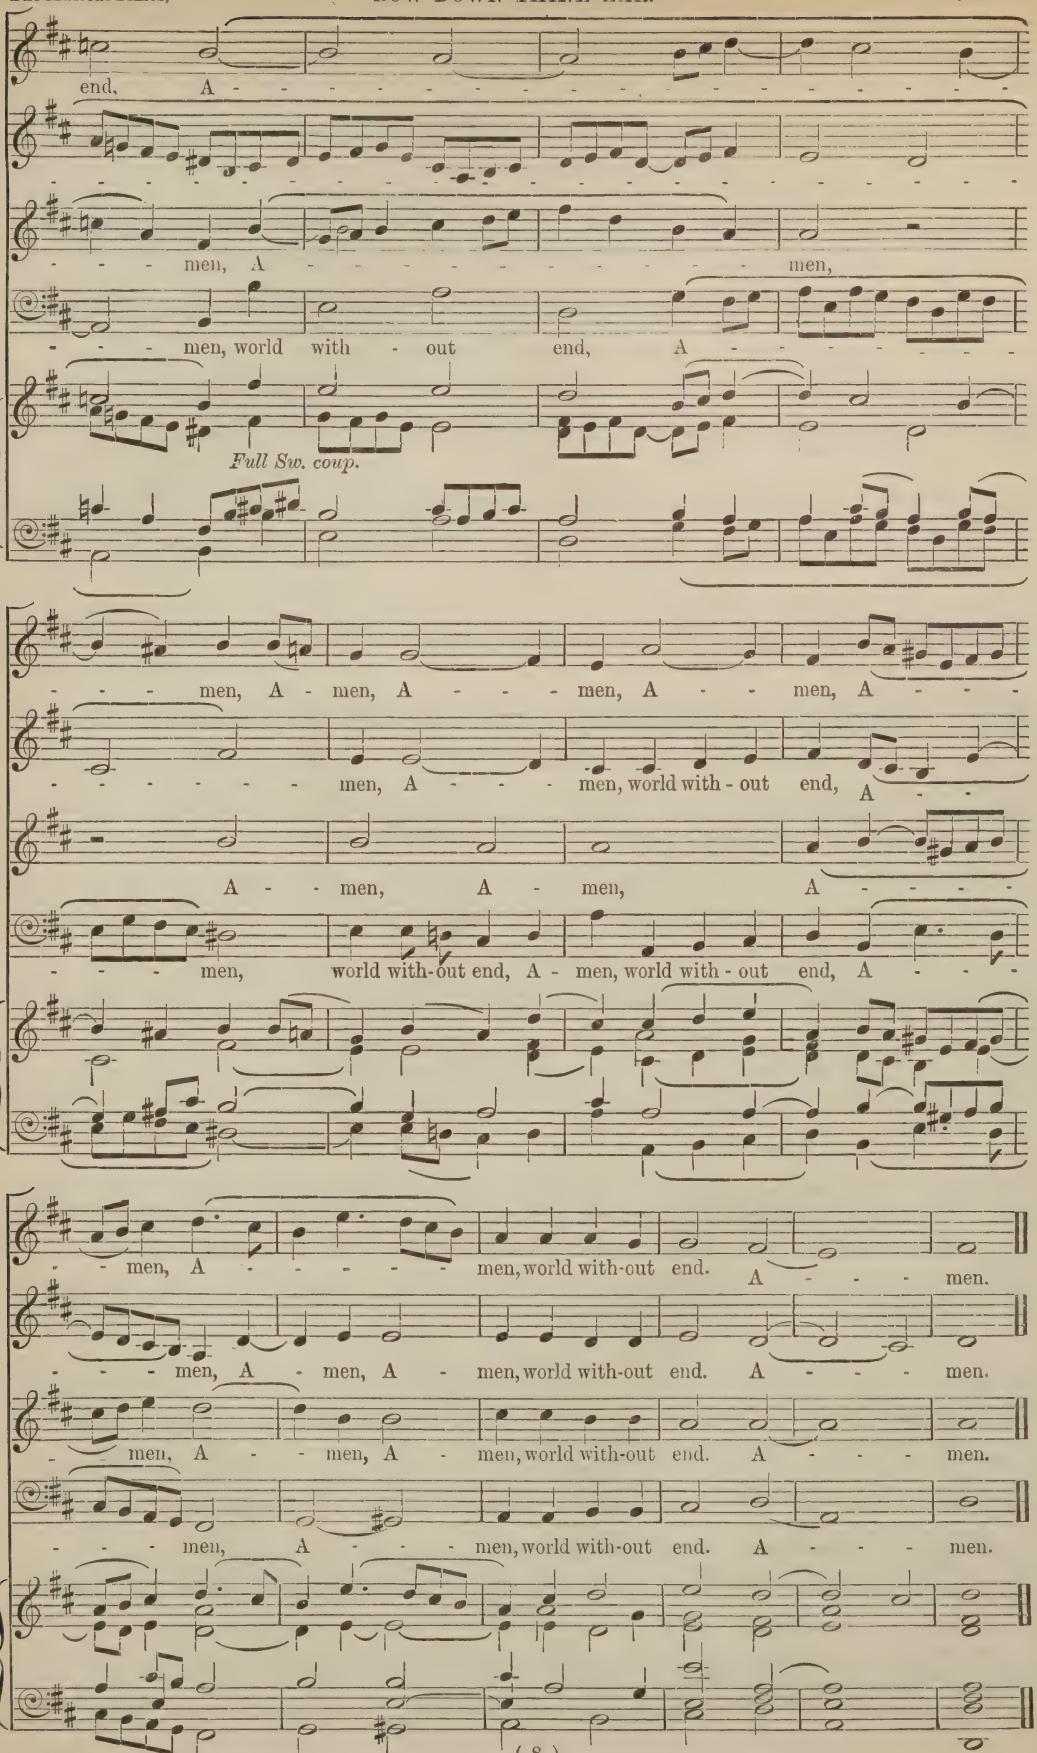
no Ped.



mf
p
Lord, and hear me, for I am poor, and . . in mi - se - ry.
Lord, and hear me, . . for I am poor, and in mi - se - ry.
Lord, and hear me, for I am poor, and in mi - se - ry.
Lord, and hear me, for I am poor, and . . in mi - se - ry.
mf Gt.
Ped.
Soprano Solo.
Be mer - ci-ful, be ♩ = 96.
Choir or Solo Org.
Solo.
Soft Sw.
Ped.
mer - ci-ful, be mer - ci-ful un - to . . me, O . . . . Lord, for I will call, . .
f
Sw.
no Ped.
. . for I will call, ... for I will call dai - ly up - on . .
Solo.
Sw.
Ped.

f
f
Thee, for I will call, for I will call dai - - ly, dai - ly up - on . .
Sw.
no Ped.
Ped.
p
f
Thee, be mer - ci-ful, be mer - ci-ful, be mer - ci-ful un - to . . me, for . .
Ch.
f
Ped. to Ch.
. . . I will call, for I will call dai - ly up-on . . Thee, for I will call
f rall.
dai - ly up - on . . Thee.
Sw. or Solo.
rall.
Ch.
rall.
Original time.
Bass. Choral Recit.
mf
ff
For Thou, Lord, art good, art good and gra - cious, and of great . . mer-cy un - to Open Diap. Gt. coup. Sw.
Ped.

Tenderly.
Full.
mf
Bless - ed is he that con - sid - er-eth the
Full.
mf
Bless - ed is he that con - sid - er-eth the Full.
mf
Bless - ed is he that con - sid - er-eth the
Full.
mf
all them that call up-on Thee.
Bless - ed is he that con - sid - er-eth the Tenderly. ♩ = 76.
Ch.
Ped.
f
ff poor, the poor and need - y, the Lord shall de - liv - er him, the
f poor, the poor.. and need - y, shall de - liv - er him,
f
poor, the poor.. and need - y, shall de - liv - er him,
f poor, the poor.. and need - y, shall de - liv - er him, f Gt.
ff
Repeat p
Lord shall de - liv - er him, the Lord shall de - liv - er him in the time of trou - ble.
Repeat p
ff
shall de - liv - er him, the Lord shall de - liv - er him in the time of trou - ble.
Repeat p
ff
shall de - liv - er him, the Lord shall de - liv - er him in the time of trou - ble.
Repeat p
ff
shall de - liv - er him, the Lord shall de - liv - er him in the time of trou - ble.
Repeat unaccompanied. coup. Sw.

Brisk.
f
Bless - ed be the Lord.
Bless - ed be the Lord . . God of Is - ra - el, world with - out . . end, Bless - ed be the Lord God of Is - ra - el, bless - ed be the Brisk. ♩ = 100.
f Ch.
no Ped.
Ped.
Bless - ed be the Lord.
. . God of Is - ra - el, bless - ed, bless - ed be the
A - - - - - - men, A - men,
Lord God of Is - ra - el, world with-out end, A - men,
. . God of Is - ra - el, bless - ed . . be the Lord . . God of Is - ra - el, Lord God of Is - ra - el, bless - ed be the Lord God of Is - ra - el, . . bless - ed be the Lord God of Is - ra - el, world with-out end, A - -
no Ped.

bless - ed be the Lord God of Is - ra - el, world with - out end, A - men, bless - ed be the Lord God of Is - ra - el, bless - ed
- men, world with - out end, A - - - - - men,
ff
bless - ed be the Lord . . God of Is - ra - el, world without end, A - - - men,
Gt. Diaps.
Ped.
ff
bless - ed
be the Lord God of Is - rael, world without end, A - - men, world
ff bless - ed be the Lord God of Is - rael, world without end, . . A -
ff
bless - ed be the Lord God of Is - rael,
no Ped.
be the Lord God of Is - rael, world without end, A - - men, world with-out with - out end, world with out end, A - - men, A -
- men, A - - men, A - - - - - men, A - - - bless - ed be the Lord God of Is - rael, world with - out end, A -
Ped.

end, A - - - completely finished, and the two "Iliad" dramas nearly so, so that the poet-composer's "life's work," as from the first he regarded it, has not absorbed very many of his years in its elaboration; while, if the remaining constituent parts thereof are equal in merit to the present one, the lyrical stage is likely to be the richer for another masterpiece, though managers would probably be better content if its proportions were less "gigantic."

THE VIENNA SCHUBERT EXHIBITION.

In anticipation of the composer's birth-centenary, on the 31st ult., a Schubert Exhibition was opened on the 20th ult., at the Künstler Haus, in Vienna, by the Emperor, in the presence of the members of the Imperial Family, the German, Italian, and French Ambassadors, and the principal local authorities. His Majesty delivered a speech, extolling Schubert as the representative of the purest art and creator of the noblest form of song, whom Austria, and Vienna in particular, was proud of being able to call one of her greatest sons. About a thousand objects are exhibited, the pictures and drawings of contemporary artists giving a clear idea of times and locality. "Among Schubert's manuscripts," says a Daily News correspondent, "is his music to the 'Lady of the Lake' and Ossian's Songs, which must be of particular interest to British visitors. In the large central room is the picture by Johann Schmidt of one of Schubert's parties of friends, to whom he is singing his new songs and accompanying them on the pianoforte. Over the picture, in the centre of a picturesque arrangement, hangs the guitar he played before he had a pianoforte. It is quaintly formed like an ancient lyre. Among the originals of the poetic persons in Schubert's works, two are of special interest. They are shown in pencil drawings lent by Professor Max Müller, of Oxford. They are the poet Müller, who wrote the famous 'Müllerlieder,' and his wife, who is the heroine of the songs. They are the father and mother of Professor Max Müller." The artistic portion of the centenary celebrations was announced to commence on the 30th ult., with a festal performance at the Imperial Opera, to be followed by four special Concert performances, three of which—choral and orchestral—were to take place on the 31st ult. and 2nd and 7th inst., in the great hall of the Philharmonic Society; and one, devoted to chamber music and songs, on the 4th inst., is to be held in the small hall of the Society. A number of Schubert Concerts, by different Viennese societies, are likewise announced.

REVIEWS.

Novello's Octavo Anthems. Nos. 546-553.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

The late Sir George Elvey was a prolific and very earnest Church composer, and if his Service music is not destined to survive for many years, it is at any rate characterised by intelligence and sincerity. This anthem, "They that go down to the sea," for five-part chorus with a tenor solo, is marked by contrapuntal ingenuity and general effectiveness. Elvey's "The eyes of all wait on Thee" (No. 547) is an easy and suavely flowing anthem for harvest-tide. Another harvest anthem is "Almighty Father, God of Love," by Bruce Steane (No. 548), characterised by dignified simplicity, if such a term may be pardoned. One more harvest anthem remains to be noticed. No. 549 is "Thou visitest the earth," by J. W. Elliott, an unpretentious but musicianly and effective little composition, capable of being rendered by voices in full. No. 550 is a very brief setting of the favourite Collect "Grant, we beseech Thee," for the twenty-first Sunday after Trinity, the composer being Mary Elvey, and the dedication to her late relative, Sir George Elvey. It is written in a musicianly manner, and in the purest style of English church music. No. 551, "O sing unto the Lord," by W. A. C. Cruickshank, is much more elaborate, and requires solo voices. It is penned in a somewhat ornate manner and is eminently suitable for festival use. No. 552, "The day Thou gavest," by the Rev. H. H. Woodward, is an expressive, though simple, full anthem for evensong, being a setting of No. 477, "Hymns Ancient and Modern," and No. 32, "Church Hymns," the words from the pen of the Rev. J. Ellerton. The last for the present (No. 553) is Sir John Stainer's very original and pathetic four-page anthem, "For a small moment have I forsaken Thee," written as far back as 1862.

In a Persian Garden. A Song Cycle for four solo voices with Pianoforte accompaniment. The words selected from the Rubaiyát of Omar Khayyám, with English translation by Edward Fitzgerald. The music by Liza Lehmann. [Metzler and Co.]

This cycle of songs, performed for the first time in public at the Monday Popular Concert, at St. James's Hall, in December, has already gained public favour and excited the esteem of musicians, and critical examination of the score proves this to have been well deserved. It could have been wished that the composer had chosen a text less pessimistical in spirit than Omar Khayyám's verses, the philosophy of which is contained in the line "I came like water, and like wind I go," with the moral deduction of "Waste not your hour." But it must be admitted that the choice of these verses from the writings of the twelfth century poet is justified by the powerful manner in which they have been set. Brahms has manifestly been the model on which the work has been designed, but beyond this all indebtedness ceases, and the music possesses individuality, the most striking feature of which is its masculine grip and expression. It may, in fact, be said unhesitatingly that "In a Persian Garden" is the strongest musical work of its kind which has emanated from a lady's pen. Although the numbers are detached, and complete in themselves, they are connected by the recurrence of phrases associated with particular sentiments, and by the repetition of themes in the pianoforte part in sympathy with the spirit of the words being uttered by the vocalist. The most attractive portions of the work are the bass solo, "Myself when young did eagerly frequent"; the tenor songs, "Alas, that Spring should vanish with the Rose" and "Ah! moon of my delight"; and the quartet, "They say the lion and the lizard keep"; but there are few pages which fail to excite the interest of the cultured music-lover.

Light of Light. Choral Processional March. By George F. le Jeune.

Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. Set to music in the key of B flat. By the Rev. W. T. Southward.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

The above March is admirably adapted for the opening of dedicatory or festal services, the music being broadly phrased and diatonic in character. Much of the accompaniment, however, is more suited to the genius of the pianoforte than the organ.

Mr. Southward has set the Magnificat in a vigorous manner that will sustain the interest of a well-trained choir. The part-writing displays considerable contrapuntal skill, and the words are well accented. The opening lines of the Nunc dimittis are given to the tenors in unison. The sopranos enter at the words "Which Thou hast prepared," the full choir at the phrase "To lighten the Gentiles," and the setting of the Gloria is a simplified version of that of the Magnificat.

Honey-Sweet. White Sails. Music by Alice Borton.
Let me ask. My songs would fly. Music by F. E. Gambogi. [Robert Cocks and Co.]

These lyrics are a continuation of the series of "Artistic Songs," which presumably are published with the commendable aim of cultivating a greater taste for the best in music. In such endeavours, however, it is highly necessary that the music should possess individuality, and this can scarcely be said to pertain to the first two of the above songs, which are chiefly distinguished by refinement. Miss Gambogi's music, however, has a melodic interest and is so gratefully written for the voice that it merits wide acceptance. Both of her songs are furnished with English as well as French words, the latter being by Armand Silvestre and Victor Hugo.

Life and Letters of Sir Charles Hallé. Being an autobiography (1819-60), with correspondence and diaries. Edited by his son, C. E. Hallé, and his daughter, Marie Hallé. With two portraits. [Smith Elder.]

This volume will be heartily welcomed by the music-lovers of Great (and Greater) Britain. Hallé, the conductor, the pianist, has been a familiar figure enough to millions any time during the past twenty years. But concerning Hallé, the man, or the private incidents of his career, how few of his many admirers ever possessed more than the scantiest information? The methods of Charles Hallé were not all "up-to-date." He did not encourage the "new journalist" to paragraph or interview him, with an eye to good advertisement; he pandered to no rage for sensations; he affected no singularities of personal appearance or eccentricities of conduct and behaviour; and in consequence his life, outside the concert-room, attracted less attention than that of perhaps any other artist occupying so prominent a position or wielding so commanding an influence. The delightful volume now under notice lifts the curtain which Hallé's modesty had so long allowed to remain undrawn, and permits us to see, "in his habit as he lived," the man to whom the England of to-day owes so much of her improved musical taste. More, it gives us glimpses of many among those who have moulded the artistic tendencies of the past half-century—for instance, Chopin, Wagner, Berlioz, Heller, Thalberg, Liszt, Meyerbeer, Spohr, De Musset, Heine, Lamartine; and of a host of "lesser lights": Rinck (under whom Hallé studied as a boy), Vieuxtemps, Molique, John Ella, Chorley, Costa, Ingres, and others. The book is divided into three parts, the first being the autobiography, which covers the period between 1819 and 1866 and fills 140 pages. Following this we have a chapter of forty pages, most sympathetically and skilfully written by Mr. C. E. Hallé, dealing with Hallé's life from 1865 to 1895, and describing his personal peculiarities in the most amusing way. The rest (more than half) of the volume contains the letters (of which there are 115), extracts from diaries, and notes of travel and appendices. Of the last-named, a complete list of the works performed at Hallé's Manchester concerts is not the least interesting or useful portion of the book.

The Organist and Choirmaster's Diary for 1897. Compiled by Ralph Hindle Baker.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

The completeness of this diary and the amount of admirable and useful information it contains should assure it a place on the organ desk of every church which possesses a choir. This year's additions comprise an interleaved church calendar, and still further improvements are intended to be inserted in next year's volume, concerning which the author in the preface invites suggestions. The efficiency of a choir is so greatly dependent upon details of management and method, that Mr. Baker's book may be warmly recommended to all those who are not already using it, for the comprehensiveness of its provision for attendance, salaries, and behaviour, and other items, together with pages devoted to the organist's voluntaries and other matters of interest to himself, are in themselves suggestive of a system which, if conscientiously carried out, could not fail to secure beneficial results. The quotations from acknowledged authors on church music are admirably chosen and may be read with profit by all.

Etude de Concert. Serenade. Valse Impromptu. For Pianoforte. By Oscar Beringer.
[Edwin Ashdown and Co.]

Of making of Etudes there is apparently no end, but happily the necessity for their containing some musical interest is recognised by most writers in this branch of the pianist's education. No one probably knows better than Mr. Beringer the requirements of the young pianist, and his study in F sharp is well calculated to cultivate the ability to sustain an expressive melody amidst chords distributed between the hands. The Serenade may be taken to be that of an accepted lover assured of his mistress's favour. It is bright and pleasing, and devoid of difficulties. The Waltz has also a graceful melody for its chief subject, and, tastefully played, would prove attractive.

Six Polonaises. Composed by Franz Schubert. Arranged for Violin and Pianoforte by Siegfried Jacoby.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

At this period, when musicians are busy singing the praises of the gifted Viennese composer, the publication of these pieces is very opportune. The Polonaise attained its highest development at the hands of Chopin, who imparted to its somewhat stiff form a life and variety which caused it to become the medium of tone-pictures of the deepest expression. In Schubert's Polonaises we have the form in its original shape with the strong emphasis frequently falling on the second beat of the bar, and the close of the phrases on the third beat preceded by a strong accent on the second. The melodies are distinguished by that facile grace so characteristic of Schubert's music, and Mr. Jacoby has done his work in an admirable manner, the pianoforte part frequently possessing considerable interest. No. 5 possesses a remarkable resemblance to the opening subject of Weber's Grand Polonaise in E flat (Op. 21). No. 6 is the most brilliant of the series, and would make an acceptable piece in the concert-room. The others are well fitted for home use, presenting but small difficulty of execution.

Three Sketches for the Pianoforte. By Walter Macfarren.
[Edwin Ashdown.]

These are three charming little pieces, severally entitled "Daffodils," "Lilies," and "Violets." The first is an Allegretto Scherzando, gay in spirit and irresponsible in character. The second is an Andante Serioso, and would seem to imply that the stateliness of the lily is not incompatible with impassioned sentiment. The third has the simplicity and pleasing attributes associated with the sweet smelling and modest flower.

The Office for the Holy Communion. Set to music in the key of B flat. By W. Monk Gould.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

This setting of the Communion Service is an excellent example of modern Church music, in which dignity and restrained emotional melodiousness is happily combined. The music comprises the Kyrie Eleison, Credo, Sanctus, Benedictus, Agnus Dei, and Gloria in Excelsis. These are set in four parts, with the exception of the Agnus Dei, which has solo passages for treble and tenor. The part-writing will present no difficulties to a fairly well-trained choir, although it possesses considerable musical interest. Mr. Gould has been specially successful in his setting of the Credo, the words being admirably accentuated and the music expressive. An effective Fourfold Amen is given for use after the Benediction.

Pianoforte Album. By Francesco Berger.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

This volume comprises five pieces for the pianoforte, the first of which is a study in contrary motion well calculated to develop independence of the hands. No. 2 is a "Barcarolle" of more musical interest, which will afford excellent practice for playing thirds legato. The next piece, entitled "The Voice of the Rivulet," calls for independence of finger action and a delicacy of style, and is a graceful little piece. A spirited Polka comes next, and the volume is effectively concluded with a vigorous March.

At the meeting of the Finance and Estate Committee of St. George's Hall, Liverpool, held on the 21st ult., the Report of the Examiners, Dr. E. J. Hopkins, Professor J. F. Bridge, and Professor Stanford, appointed to examine the six selected candidates for the position of organist, was submitted. The examiners recommended the candidate whose nom-de-plume was "Organum," and upon reference to the list it was found that the candidate recommended was Dr. Peace, of Glasgow. The committee eventually passed a resolution recommending the council to appoint Dr. Peace. There were forty-seven applications, and the salary attached to the position is £300 per annum.

M. Lamoureux has arranged with Mr. Robert Newman to give another series of six Concerts with his orchestra at the Queen's Hall, from March 22 to 27, three in the afternoon and three in the evening.

MUSIC IN BRISTOL.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The musical record in Bristol for the past month is not a very considerable one. Several school concerts took place at Christmas time at dates too late to enable their being noticed in the January issue of The Musical Times. Among the most important of these events were the Concerts at Clifton College, at the Cathedral School, and at the Grammar School, at which last-named establishment a praiseworthy performance of Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" was given by present and past boys and members of the chief musical societies of the city. Gaul's "Ruth" was sung by St. Bartholomew's Choral Society on the 7th ult.

The most important event of the month was the annual "Ladies' Night," on the 14th ult., of the famous Bristol Madrigal Society, the Concert being one of the best in its annals. The older madrigal writers represented in the programme were Morley, Marenzio, Weelkes, Benet, and Wilbye. Considerable interest was manifested by musical antiquaries in a composition — "Pastime with good company"—from the pen of King Henry VIII., and a charming piece entitled "Cuckow" (circa 1610), found in the British Museum and arranged by Mr. L. Benson. There were also compositions by Pearsall, S. Wesley, Mendelssohn, W. Macfarren, Smart, Savile, Horsley, Pinsuti, and also E. A. Dicks, whose melodious part-song "It was a lover and his lass" so captivated the large assemblage that its repetition was demanded. The singing of these varied pieces was almost as near perfection as it is possible to approach; the artistic taste and finish which marked their rendering affording intense enjoyment to those who came to listen.

Mr. George Riseley, the conductor of the Musical Festival and of the Choral Society, was presented with a cheque for £500 by his many friends, on the 12th ult., in recognition of his services to music.

Brief notice is deserved by the Lodway Gleemen, who pleasingly sang a number of carols and other pieces at Pill, on the 17th ult.

MUSIC IN BIRMINGHAM.

(From our own Correspondent).

The Birmingham Festival Choral Society's impressive performance of "The Messiah," on Boxing Night, attracted the largest audience ever known to have been present in the Town Hall at the annual Christmas revival of Handel's great epic. Indeed, the demand for admittance was so great that hundreds who besieged the ticket office were unable to procure tickets at any price. Dr. Heap conducted with rare skill and attention, and to him must be attributed one of the grandest performances of "The Messiah" it has been my good fortune to listen to. The singing of the chorus was without reproach, indeed, as for fine tone quality, precision, and clearness of enunciation our choristers almost surpassed all previous efforts. The orchestral accompaniments were given without a flaw and with subordination. The principals were Madame Marie Duma, Miss Alice Lamb, Mr. Henry Piercy, and Mr. John Sandbrook, the latter replacing Mr. Andrew Black, who, on account of illness, could not appear. Mr. Perkins presided at the organ.

The terminal Concerts in connection with the students attending the Midland Institute School of Music were given in the large Lecture Theatre just before Christmas, the most noteworthy being the Orchestral Concert under Mr. Fred. Ward's conductorship. The programme was an interesting one, and included Beethoven's Overture to "Prometheus," Mozart's "Jupiter" Symphony, and the same composer's Pianoforte Concerto (No. 7, Op. 82) in C minor, the solo part in the latter being most artistically rendered by Mr. H. J. Miller. An interesting novelty proved a pretty Reverie by A. W. Nicholson, arranged for orchestra by Mr. Fred. Ward. The scoring is extremely picturesque, a solo being given to the clarinet, including a brilliant cadenza for the same instrument, faultlessly played by Mr. Arthur Ward.

The Birmingham Amateur Opera Society, which is now affiliated to the Midland Institute, gave four performances of Gilbert and Sullivan's æsthetic opera "Patience," in the large Lecture Theatre, on the 12th, 13th, 14th, and 15th ult., in connection with the Midland Institute's annual Conversazione, which usually extends over four days. Mr. Fred. Ward conducted.

Mr. Pountney, an old local chorister, who took part in the original performance of "Elijah," under Mendelssohn's direction, was the recipient of an interesting letter from Mrs. Marie Benecke, Mendelssohn's daughter, who also presented Mr. Pountney with a photograph of a page of the original manuscript of "Elijah." The page embodies the bass solo "Lord God of Abraham." The manuscript is beautifully clear and sharply defined.

MUSIC IN CAMBRIDGE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The October term of 1896 has at least one interesting record—namely, the first appearance in Cambridge of the Royal College of Music Orchestra. The Cambridge public owe a deep debt to the Council of the College for showing them exceptional favour in allowing the students to play before them, and also to Professor Stanford for suggesting and conducting the performance. The programme included works of which, on account of their excessive difficulty, a hearing is denied to most country audiences. Tschaïkowsky's gigantic Symphonie Pathétique, the Overtures to "William Tell" and the "Meistersinger," Lalo's Symphonie Espagnole, and Ford's scene in "Falstaff" covered a large field of art. The spirit and vivacity with which the various pieces were rendered were very noticeable, and the enthusiasm which greeted the efforts of the young players was equally marked.

At the Cambridge University Musical Society's Recital, in Trinity Chapel, the principal pieces were Schubert's Mass in G, Haydn's "Insanæ et Vanæ Curæ," and S. Wesley's "Exultate Deo." Dr. Charles Wood (in the absence of Dr. Gray) conducted, and Mr. H. P. Allen was the organist.

There have been but few "visiting" Concerts. Entrepreneurs probably find that Cambridge is anything but a happy hunting ground for their efforts. Señor Sarasate with Dr. Neitzel, and Mr. Leonard Borwick with Mr. Plunket Greene, have given Recitals, and the Gompertz Quartet and the Meister Glee Singers have given Concerts during the term.

MUSIC IN DUBLIN.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The second Instrumental Concert of the Dublin Musical Society took place, at the Royal University Buildings, on the 20th ult. The Overtures "Oberon," "Fidelio," "Stradella," Meyerbeer's "Schiller" March, Mozart's Symphony in E flat, Grieg's "Peer Gynt" Suite, and the Intermezzo to "Philémon et Baucis" formed the orchestral part of the programme, and were, one and all, tastefully and soundly rendered. Madame Marie Duma delighted the audience by her singing of "Softly sighs" (Weber), "Springtide" (Gounod), and "O Divine Redeemer" (Gounod), and Mr. Evan Cox displayed his fine tenor voice in "Lend me your aid" (Gounod) and the "Rose" Song (Balfe). Sullivan's "Golden Legend" is announced by the same Society for the 2nd inst., with Miss Regina de Sales, Madame Belle Cole, Mr. Gawthrop, and Mr. Andrew Black.

The first public Concert of the Dublin Instrumental Club took place in the Antient Concert Rooms on the 13th ult. The programme was well varied, and consisted of orchestral, chamber, and vocal music. The orchestral selections included the Overtures to "Son and Stranger" (Mendelssohn) and "Raymond" (Thomas); Beethoven's Symphony (No. 2) in D major, which was capitally played, the flute (Mr. Fitzgibbon) and oboe (Mr. Brickley) specially distinguishing themselves; Massenet's "Scènes Pittoresques," and Berlioz's famous "Hungarian" March. A very fair rendering of four movements out of Beethoven's Septet (Op. 20), most excellently led by Mons. O. Grisard, and the Andante from Schubert's String Quartet in D minor, well piloted by Mr. P. J. Griffith, constituted the chamber pieces. Miss S. Bell displayed a pleasing and well-trained voice in a couple of songs by Mozart and Meyerbeer. The orchestra, numbering some seventy players, was led by Mr. P. J. Griffith, and Mons. O. Grisard conducted.

MUSIC IN EDINBURGH.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The first appearance of Mr. Kirkhope's Choir this season attracted the customary large audience. "Samson" presented no difficulties to this fine body of singers, and the energetic conductor secured a splendid rendering of the work. The solos were entrusted to Madame Lilian Tree, Miss Elsie Mackenzie, Madame Dews, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, and Mr. Peterkin, each of whom came in for a share in the warm applause so liberally bestowed. "Return, O God of Hosts," was particularly well sung. The accompaniments, as arranged by Dr. Prout, were played by the Scottish Orchestra.

The Choral Union gave its annual performance of "The Messiah," on New Year's Day, to a crowded and enthusiastic audience. Among the soloists, Madame Duma and Madame Belle Cole deserve special mention for excellent work, and Mr. Lloyd Chandos and Mr. R. A. Grant in the tenor and bass solos were also highly appreciated. In the evening the same artists took part in a Ballad Concert, which was thoroughly enjoyed.

Messrs. Paterson's series of Orchestral Concerts pursues its successful course under Mr. Kes. On the 11th ult. the high-water mark was reached in a "Wagner programme," which attracted a very large audience. The demonstration at the end of the Concert was unusually enthusiastic. The second part of the programme was devoted to the first act of the "Walküre," in which Mr. Hedmondt scored a great success. Mr. George Holmes proved himself an excellent exponent of Wagner's music as Hunding, and also (in the former part of the programme) in Hans Sachs's song. Mrs. Saddler-Fogg lent Mr. Hedmondt very careful support in the "Walküre" scene, but off the stage Sieglinde is apt to drop into a second rank of interest. Mrs. Saddler-Fogg had a better chance in the love duet from "Lohengrin," and took advantage of it. The orchestral pieces, save the "Procession of gods to Walhalla," were excellently rendered. The orchestra was augmented on this occasion.

At the other Concerts of the series (December 21, the 4th and 18th ult.) the points of interest were the appearances of M. Sapellnikoff in the Schumann Concerto and of Miss Ilona Eibenschütz in Grieg's A minor Concerto. Mrs. Henschel renewed acquaintance with her Edinburgh audience on the 18th ult. and had an extremely cordial reception. All three artists were successful in winning hearty recognition of their gifts.

The second Saturday Popular gave another evidence of the steady improvement of orchestra and performances. Mr. Sons in Max Bruch's G minor Concerto was altogether delightful, and Miss Kate Gray was well received in songs by Wagner, Bohm, and Mascagni.

A performance of Cowen's "Sleeping Beauty" was given by Mr. R. W. Pentland's choir, in Queen Street Hall, on the 21st ult. Fräulein Martini, Miss Riddell Henderson, Mr. C. Scott, and Mr. J. H. Kennedy ably sustained the solo parts, and the accompaniments were played by a small orchestra led by Mr. Winram.

MUSIC IN GLASGOW.

(From our own Correspondent.)

St. Andrew's Hall was, as usual, crowded on New Year's Day morning, when the Glasgow Choral Union gave its time-honoured performance of "The Messiah." Mr. Joseph Bradley conducted and the soloists were Miss Jenny Taggart, Miss Sarah Berry, Mr. Hirwen Jones, and Mr. Andrew Black. Handel's work was repeated in the City Hall on the evening of the 14th ult., also under the auspices of the Society just-named. The soloists comprised Miss Kate Forbes-Gray, Miss Florence Christie, Mr. James Wood, and Signor Foli.

It may not be too late to place on record what was, perhaps, the leading feature of the Choral and Orchestral Union Concert on December 29 last. The occasion was the first appearance for the season of Mr. Willem Kes in the rôle of solo violinist. The accomplished conductor of the Scottish Orchestra was heard in Tschaïkowsky's Violin Concerto, wherein the player's technique and artistic perception of the Russian composer's music were unexceptionably fine. A somewhat heavy programme was submitted at the ninth Concert of the series, on the 5th ult. Dvorák's Overture "In der Natur," Beethoven's No. 4 Concerto for pianoforte and orchestra, and Schumann's Symphony (No. 1, in B flat) were, inter alia, in the programme. The solo part in the Concerto was in the capable charge of Mr. Sapellnikoff, who also contributed examples of Mendelssohn and Liszt, and the orchestra distinguished itself by an excellent performance of the Symphony. On the following Saturday evening Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony and several other familiar pieces gave signal satisfaction to the habitués of the popular Concerts, and Mr. E. C. Hedmondt sang. This favourite artist was, however, heard to much greater advantage on the 12th ult., when he took part in an excellent Wagnerian programme. Mrs. Sadler-Fogg, a promising young soprano, was associated with Mr. Hedmondt, and Mr. George Holmes, the bass soloist, proved a well-trained exponent of the Wagnerian school. The Scottish Orchestra was augmented for this interesting occasion, and both Mr. Kes and his band earned the highest praise.

At the eleventh Concert of the classical series, on the 19th ult., Mrs. Henschel sang in her usual cultured style, Miss Ilona Eibenschütz played with marked distinction in Beethoven's Concerto for pianoforte and orchestra (No. 3 in C minor), and the band gave one of the finest performances of the overture to "The Flying Dutchman" heard here for a long time. Most interest centred, however, in Mr. Kes's new Symphony in E major, which was given for the first time. In his analytical notes the composer states that he has written his Symphony "for no other than purely musical purposes; it is, therefore, in a certain sense not a 'modern' work, for it has no 'programme' and is 'absolute' music." So much, then, for the composer's avowed intentions. We can only now, however, briefly say that Mr. Kes does not despise agreeable, even dainty melody, and if it is not always original, there can be no doubt as to the richly-coloured orchestration in each and all of the orthodox number of movements. The work met with a gratifying reception, and at the conclusion of a wholly admirable performance the composer was twice recalled.

Mr. Hamish MacCunn had every reason to be proud of the dimensions of the audience which greeted him at the Athenæum on the 14th ult. The young Scotch composer appeared on this occasion in a somewhat novel capacity, that of a lecturer. Mr. MacCunn would be the very first to disclaim such a cognomen in the usual acceptation of the term. All the same his Lecture was brimful with food for thought, as everyone who knows anything about "Scottish Music, Past and Present," must frankly admit. Many accomplished musicians labour, unfortunately, under misconceptions regarding the characteristics of Scottish music. Amongst these may be mentioned some prevailing notions regarding the "snap," the "flat seventh," the bagpipe, &c. Doubtless enough some of Mr. MacCunn's views on the music of the "Land o' cakes" were, perhaps, a little controversial, but there could be no doubt as to the absolute sincerity of the lecturer and the attention paid him by his audience. Mr. MacCunn was, moreover, singularly happy in his pianoforte illustrations.

MUSIC IN LIVERPOOL.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Although scarcely to be reckoned among those things which come under the heading of musical news, an event of such importance as the partial destruction of the Royal Court Theatre ought not to pass unnoticed in a column which has so often chronicled the operatic productions carried out beneath its roof. For nearly a quarter of a century this building was looked upon as the head-quarters, while for ten or fifteen years it was the actual home, of the Royal Carl Rosa Company. At Christmas-time, a year ago, the lyric drama was made to give place to something lighter, and again this season had the reign of clown and pantaloon commenced when the accident happened. On the morning of the 9th ult. fire broke out, with the result that the auditorium was laid bare to the skies, the gallery burnt out, the stalls and dress circle wrecked by water and falling débris, and a vast number of dresses and properties ruined. But the present management turned a fiasco into a triumph, and within the brief space of five days a temporary roof was erected, the gallery restored, the upholstery renewed, and all put in order for the re-opening of the theatre on the 14th ult. Such a record has surely never before been achieved, and the season of opera which is to shortly follow that of pantomime will in no way be interfered with.

The two most important artistic events of the month of the larger order have been one of the Winter Entertainments, at which a charming combination of players, the Probyn Ladies' Orchestra, performed most agreeably; and the seventh Concert of the Philharmonic Society, in the programme of which Mozart's not very familiar Symphony, No. 11, in B flat, figured as the leading feature. Mr. F. H. Cowen conducted.

The Orchestral Society had promised Beethoven's Septet for the 16th ult., but "owing to unforeseen circumstances," not further explained in the post card sent to subscribers, the performance has been postponed to April. The work in question will be welcome whenever it is given, as it has not been heard in Liverpool for several years in public, though it was presented to the congregation of Hope Street Church a couple of years or so ago by Mr. Carl Courvoisier.

Two Orchestral Concerts have been given by the Sunday Society, under Mr. Argent. At the first, Mendelssohn's "Italian" Symphony found a place, and, at the second, Mr. Welsing took the solo pianoforte part in Mendelssohn's Capriccio Brillante and Liszt's "Hungarian" Fantasia.

A Concert by the Schiever Quartet took place on the 10th ult., also under the auspices of the Sunday Society; and on the 17th Mr. Frank Pemberton's party gave a highly interesting programme of English folk-songs.

The Schiever Concerts were revived for the present season on the 23rd ult., in the Concert Hall of the College of Music, and an excellent programme was rendered by Messrs. Schiever, Akeroyd, Courvoisier, and Fuchs, forming the string quartet, with Mr. Maelor Thomas as vocalist. In the same room, on the 27th ult., the Corporation exhibitioners at the College of Music gave a very excellent Concert in the presence of a large number of city councillors and other friends and patrons of the Institution.

On the 21st ult. Dr. Peace gave a Recital on the new organ, built by Messrs. Norman and Beard, at Trinity Presbyterian Church, Claughton, Birkenhead.

Dr. Peace, of Glasgow, has been chosen Organist to the Corporation of Liverpool. There were originally forty-seven candidates for the post, but these were reduced to six for the final test. This took place at the Albert Hall, London, on the 19th ult., before Dr. Hopkins, Dr. J. F. Bridge, Dr. Stanford, and Alderman Oakshot, the latter representing the local municipal authorities. At the close of the contest the adjudicators recommended the candidate whose adopted cognomen was "Organum," with the result chronicled above. Dr. Peace will be cordially welcomed in Liverpool by his brethren of the Incorporated Society of Musicians, which has a register of over a hundred members in the city and district, and of which important body Dr. Peace has for some time been a member.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

THE performance of the "Samson and Delilah" of Saint-Saëns, at the last Concert of the past year, was in many respects excellent; the orchestration was clearly rendered, although there had been no opportunity for a single rehearsal, and the newly arranged choir with ease surmounted the small difficulties which the work presents. Miss Marie Brema infused into the part of the heroine a far greater dramatic force than any of her predecessors had exhibited, stimulating her lover (Mr. Lloyd) into the semblance of a real passion and exciting in Mr. Black and all her colleagues an ardent spirit of emulation.

The following Thursday (the 7th ult.) the novelties were the new Violoncello Concerto of Dvorák and Mozart's Symphony in B flat, the freshness of which admirably fits it to serve as the opening overture. The solo part of the Concerto, and other pieces, were very ably played by Mr. Carl Fuchs; but the work has even more than usual of that desultory effect which attaches to many of Dvorák's later compositions. Mr. Plunket Greene sang Purcell's "Ye twice ten hundred deities" carefully and some of Schubert's smaller Lieder with greater acceptance; but did not heighten the effect he produced at the Recital which, in happy conjunction with Mr. Leonard Borwick, he recently gave here. And it is regrettable that his softer singing is occasionally just a shade flat, a fault which should be checked in one endowed with such a wealth and variety of dramatic energy and expression.

The Concert of the 14th ult. was altogether the most enjoyable since the commencement of the season. The selection of Tschaïkowsky's "Pathetic" Symphony showed that Mr. Cowen now so entirely relies upon the prowess of his band as to shun no comparison which could be instituted, and the result entirely justified his confidence. The No. 6 of the lamented Northern composer was first played here under the direction of Sir Charles Hallé, at the close of the year 1894, and we have, even so recently as last October, enjoyed it as presented by the special orchestra of Dr. Richter, for whose autumn tour the work had been carefully rehearsed; but we have never so thoroughly entered into the spirit of the great "Swan Song" of the author as at its latest interpretation. Not merely were the "splendour of the brass" less painfully prominent and a truer balance maintained between the different sections of the orchestra; not only were the piquancy of the staccato themes in the third movement more crisp and the mysteriously sombre harmonies, assigned (after the Wagner fashion) to the unyielding tones of the wood-wind and brass, breathed with a delicacy which somewhat mitigated their occasional harshness without destroying their weird character; but the whole work—so greatly diversified, and sometimes so capriciously changing—was clearly grasped by Mr. Cowen, the colouring was laid on with high discrimination, and the repeated applause of the large audience (attracted mainly by the announcement of the work) showed thorough satisfaction with the manner in which the Manchester orchestra had justified its reputation and the confidence of its conductor. The repetition of the work, on the 11th inst., is announced, in compliance with a very general request. The exquisite delicacy now attainable under Mr. Cowen's control was further shown in the little "Rigadon de Dardanus" of Rameau. Miss Brema sang Purcell's "Mad Bess," to the orchestration of Dr. Stanford, and Schubert's "Doppelganger" with great effect; but in other songs, more entirely dependent upon suavity, purity, and steadiness of tone, she was somewhat less successful. Miss Teresina Tua played Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto, the inevitable Nocturne of Chopin, and one of Sarasate's comicalities with refinement of execution rather than of style, and with purity rather than strength of tone.

On Wednesday, the 20th ult., the Concert Hall was twice unusually crowded; in the afternoon for the delightful recital of Lady Hallé and Mr. Leonard Borwick; and in the evening to enjoy the perfect ensemble playing of Messrs. Brodsky, Rawdon Briggs, Simon Speelman, and Carl Fuchs. Anything more charmingly finished than the interpretation of the Quartet in G major of Mozart, and of the Op. 135, in F, of Beethoven, it would be difficult to imagine and vain to expect. The Quintet in E minor of Sinding—with Mr. William Dayas at the pianoforte—was interposed and formed a very highly contrasted episode in the programme.

The Saturday Popular Concerts, also under Mr. Cowen's direction, were resumed on the 16th ult., when to the attraction of the orchestra was added that of Mr. Slivinski (who played several pieces with great clearness and dexterity), of the veteran baritone, Mr. Santley (who was in fairly good voice), of Madame Conway, and Mr. Percy Bright.

On the 11th ult. a couple of hours were very pleasantly spent at the Concert Hall in listening to Greek songs and airs sung and played by Mr. Aramis, Miss Saint André, and Messrs. Lambelet and Fogg, which were preluded and interspersed by some very interesting and descriptive remarks by Mr. E. F. Jacques. The music was not presented as belonging to an earlier time than the last two centuries, but as simple peasants' ditties, taken down some twenty years ago by M. Bourgault-Ducoudray, or, more recently, by Mr. Aramis, himself an accomplished baritone well fitted for the patriotic duty he undertakes. There are many ancient Scottish airs of tonality quite as strange as any of those recently found in Smyrna and elsewhere, but every contributor to our knowledge of national folk-song should be encouraged, and Messrs. Aramis and Jacques deserve our warm thanks for drawing attention to a branch hitherto neglected.

On the following Thursday Dvorák's "Spectre's Bride" (with Miss Mabel Berrey, Messrs. Hedmondt and Santley as principals) was preceded by two happily contrasted English works—Dr. C. Hubert Parry's highly contrapuntal ode "Blest Pair of Sirens" and Dr. Stanford's dramatic cantata "The Revenge." The interest of the evening was to a large extent concentrated upon the work of the revised choir. The general ability and the more complete balance of power had already been shown, but the power to grapple with unfamiliar works of varied character, the independence, beauty of fresher tone and self-reliance of each section of voices, were well displayed in Dr. Stanford's ballad of the fleet; and the intricate eight-part writing of Dr. Parry was mastered with an ease which showed how well Mr. R. H. Wilson has disciplined his forces. We shall look forward with unusual pleasure to the annual performance of "Elijah."

It is unnecessary to say that Mr. Lane's Concert, on the 23rd ult., was as attractive and his audience as crowded as usual, although, perhaps, we have, for the present, had enough of Mascagni's "Rustic Chivalry."

MUSIC IN NORTHUMBERLAND AND DURHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

There has not been a single Concert of any importance in this district during the past month. The pantomimes reign supreme and appear to be very extensively patronised. No one expects a pantomime to have a beneficial effect upon popular taste in music, but it is not unworthy of mention that in some of our theatres an attempt is being made to improve upon the generally accepted state of things. To mention one instance only, Mr. E. J. Rogers, the musical director of the Tyne Theatre, Newcastle, has evidently bestowed much care upon the musical part of the entertainment under his direction, with results that are very satisfactory as far as they go. There is no doubt that a great deal of good could be done for music if the musical directors of our theatres would take the matter seriously to heart.

The various Christmas performances of "The Messiah" passed off very successfully, the attendances being decidedly above the average in number. In Newcastle and Sunderland the popular oratorio had not been heard for some time; as the performances were in both places remarkably successful from a financial point of view it is to be hoped that in both towns a Christmas performance of the work will again become an annual event.

MUSIC IN NOTTINGHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

"The Messiah" Concert of the Sacred Harmonic Society took place on December 26, Dr. William Lemare conducting. The principals were Miss Zipporah Monteith, Miss Ada Crossley, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, and Mr. Watkin Mills, with Mr. Tomlinson as solo trumpet. The choruses, as usual, were given with massive effect and the whole performance was a fine one.

The Amateur Orchestral Society gave a popular Concert on the 2nd ult., under the direction of Mr. Ralph Horner; the orchestral numbers being well received. Mrs. Couper Cripps made her first appearance in Nottingham as a professional vocalist and achieved considerable success, being recalled twice.

On the 14th ult. the second of the Nottingham Chamber Concerts took place, the players being Mr. Ellenberger, Miss Margaret Clark, Messrs. Johnson and Edwin Thorpe; and the vocalist, Mr. Arthur Lakin. The feature of the Concert was an excellent performance of Dvorák's String Quartet in G (Op. 106). The quartet is a welcome addition to the répertoire of Mr. Ellenberger's combination. Beethoven's String Quartet in A major (Op. 18, No. 5) concluded the programme, which was agreeably diversified by a violoncello solo of Godard's, played by Mr. Thorpe, and Mr. Arthur Lakin's singing of Leoncavallo's now famous prologue from "Pagliacci" and a ballad by Loewe.

The second Concert of the Midland Orchestral Union took place on the 22nd ult., under the direction of Dr. William Lemare. An enthusiastic ovation greeted Miss Cantelo at the conclusion of Mendelssohn's Concerto in D minor, in which she was ably seconded by the orchestra. The principal orchestral selections were Cowen's Four English Dances; Sullivan's March from "Henry VIII." and the Overtures to "Don Juan" and "Oberon." Dr. Lemare is to be congratulated on the increasing efficiency of the orchestra.

Organ Recitals were given on Saturday, the 23rd ult., by Mr. E. H. Lemare, at the Mechanics' Institution.

MUSIC IN THE SOUTHERN COUNTIES.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Woolston Choral Society (Southampton), conducted by the Rev. W. Claxton, gave a miscellaneous Concert on the 12th ult. The programme consisted of glees and part-songs, agreeably interspersed with songs contributed by Mrs. Claxton, Mrs. Cutting, Mr. Jurd, and Mr. Thompson. At the conclusion of the Concert a presentation was made to the conductor, the founder of the Society, who is leaving Woolston.

The third of Miss Alice Ivimey's Chamber Concerts was announced to take place at the Philharmonic Hall, Southampton, on the 23rd ult., when Schumann's Pianoforte Quartet in E flat and the "Kreutzer" Sonata were included in the programme. Mr. Charles Fletcher (violin), Miss Maud Fletcher (violoncello), and Miss Alice Ivimey (pianoforte) were the solo instrumentalists, and Miss Marie Hooton contributed songs.

A very successful Concert was given under the auspices of the Romsey Musical Society on the 13th ult. The orchestral numbers, which included Beethoven's Symphony in C major, were the chief features of the Concert, and were admirably played, under the conductorship of Mr. Moss. Mr. E. Tuck led the band, and Miss A. Tuck and Mr. W. Carey Bliss presided respectively at the pianoforte and organ. Lady Alice Ashley and Mrs. Barrington Browne were the vocalists, and Miss Florence Moss played Gade's Capriccio for violin solo.

The Bournemouth Musical Festival has been fixed for May 5. Gounod's "Redemption" (conducted by Mr. August Manns) and Dr. C. Hubert H. Parry's "Ode on St. Cecilia's Day" (conducted by the composer) are the chief works selected for performance.

MUSIC IN YORKSHIRE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

For the latter half of December, which still remains to be chronicled, the musical doings of Yorkshire resolve themselves chiefly into "Messiah" performances, of which the most creditable have been those given by the Leeds Philharmonic Society, under Mr. Beyschlag; the Bradford Old Choral Society, under Mr. Robertshaw; the Huddersfield Choral Society, under Mr. Bowling; and the performances at Halifax, Dewsbury, Morley, and Hull.

Beyond "Messiah" performances there are comparatively few musical doings of importance to record. At Leeds the Parish Church Choir, augmented for the occasion, gave Spohr's "Last Judgment" on December 16. The soloists were all members of the ordinary choir, which speaks well for their efficiency; Mr. Benton conducted, and Mr. Sinclair, of Hereford, adapted the orchestral part to the organ with great skill, and gave a short Recital after the service. On December 19 the Leeds Permanent Orchestra, assisted by the Choral Union, gave a Sullivan Concert that proved less attractive to the general public than might have been expected. "The Martyr of Antioch" was the chief thing in the programme, and, to tell the truth, seemed rather like champagne that has become flat. It does not wear well, nor will it bear comparison with either the earlier "Light of the World" or the later "Golden Legend." The "Di Ballo" and "In Memoriam" overtures represented the composer much more favourably, and were efficiently played, under the conductorship of Dr. C. Hubert H. Parry, who very kindly came in Sir Arthur Sullivan's place. The soloists were Miss Palliser, Mrs. Creser, Mr. Grover, and Mr. Browning, who were all completely satisfactory, save that Mr. Grover was troubled by hoarseness. Two of Messrs. Haddocks' Leeds Musical Evenings have to be chronicled. On December 15 the Meister Glee Singers, Madame Alva, Miss Lilian Hovey (an able contralto), with Mr. Isidor Pavia as pianist and Mr. Jacques Jacobs, as violinist, were the artists, and seem to have given very general satisfaction to those present. On the 12th ult. Miss Giulia Ravogli gave distinction to the programme, and Miss Travis, Mr. Lawley, and Mr. Stanley Cookson also sang. The violin playing of the young Hungarian artist, Mr. Louis Pecksai, was of a high order, and Mr. Arthur Ayres gave some pianoforte solos very ably. On the 5th ult. Mr. W. H. Hadow gave a brilliant Lecture, at Leeds, on "Melody," and showed very convincingly the elements of design, of balance of parts and beauty of curve, and of the charm of the unexpected that may be found on analysing good melody.

At Bradford the Royal Carl Rosa Company has had its usual Christmas season, giving many of the most popular of its recent productions, under the rather awkward conditions of St. George's Hall. On the 15th ult. one of the best Subscription Concerts for some time past took place. It was particularly distinguished by a fine performance of Tschaïkowsky's "Pathetic" Symphony, with which Mr. Cowen, who was quite at his best, had obviously taken extreme pains. Two Wagner pieces, Wieniawski's D minor Violin Concerto (brilliantly played by Mr. Burmester), and Miss Giulia Ravogli's dramatic singing were the other features of an exceptionally enjoyable Concert.

The Huddersfield Subscription Concerts were resumed on the 12th ult., when a miscellaneous programme was given, the Meister Glee Singers, Miss Amy Sherwin, Madame Belle Cole, and two able instrumentalists belonging to the neighbourhood took part. These latter were Mrs. E. Haley, a cultivated pianist, and Master Patrick Jordan, a highly promising young violinist, who in a favourable environment ought to become a first-rate artist. On December 22 the Huddersfield Glee and Madrigal Society gave an agreeable Concert of madrigals, part-songs, and the like, under Mr. J. E. Ibeson's conductorship. Mrs. Jackson, Miss Burton, Messrs. Siddle and Knowles, and Master Threappleton were the solo vocalists. The Oakworth Choral Society, a young association belonging to a town near Keighley, gave Cowen's "Rose Maiden" very creditably on the 12th ult., under Mr. R. H. Moore's direction. The principals were Miss Clara Marshall, Miss Riley, and Messrs. Murton and H. Brown.

MUSIC IN PARIS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Full rehearsals of M. Bruneau's "Messidor" have now commenced at the Opéra, and it is expected that the new work will be brought out on the 10th inst. No novelty has as yet appeared at the Opéra Comique. The musical interest, in fact, for the moment centres in the performances of the leading concert institutions.

At the Lamoureux Concert of December 27, the Pastorale from Bach's "Christmas" Oratorio was immensely appreciated. The programme also included a first performance of a "Fantaisie dialoguée" for organ and orchestra, by M. Boellmann; a musicianlike work, which was very favourably received and will certainly make the round of all those concert-rooms where an organ is available. Another new composition, "La Chasse fantastique," by M. Colomer, introduced in the Concert of the 10th ult., met with less favour. It certainly is wanting in plastic form, as it were, and makes use moreover of a number of phrases which appertain to a bygone period; notwithstanding all which, however, Mr. Colomer is undoubtedly an excellent musician. The Concert of the 17th ult. included three fragments from the symphonic poem "Axel," by Alexandre Georges, which were greatly applauded.

M. Colonne's Concert, on December 20, afforded a first hearing to the music written by M. Leroux for the "Persians" of Æschylus, a well-written score, by no means deficient in the dramatic element, but unfortunately breathing but very little of the spirit of antiquity. C. Franck's "Redemption" completed the programme. The Concert of December 27 included the Suite Pastorale, by Chabrier, in which the composer departs from his habitual manner, but, notwithstanding, it gained the favour of the audience. The Concert of the 17th ult. derived an exceptional interest from its being conducted by Herr Felix Mottl, the famous Carlsruhe Capellmeister, whose active interest on behalf of the works of French composers is well known. He met with a most cordial reception. Madame Mottl, who was the vocalist on this occasion, likewise achieved a very great success.

At the Conservatoire, Saint-Saëns's "La Nuit persane" was produced on the 3rd ult., while the first Concert of the Opéra, given on the 10th, included the first performance of a Symphony in three movements by M. Paul Dukas; a very acceptable production, well designed in its outline, but somewhat blurred in its developments.

Of the various Concerts devoted to chamber music, which are now re-commencing, I shall have to speak in my next letter.

The Directors of the Philharmonic Society announce seven Concerts at the Queen's Hall, on March 24, April 7, May 5, May 20, June 3, June 17, and July 1. The following new works will be performed: Glazounow's Fourth Symphony, conducted by the composer; Sir Alexander Mackenzie's Scottish Concerto for pianoforte and orchestra, the solo part by Mr. Paderewski; Herbert Bunning's overture "Spring and Youth"; a Vocal Scena by F. H. Cowen, to be sung by Mr. Ben Davies and conducted by the composer; English Fantasia, "In Commemoration," by Edward German; Dr. C. Hubert H. Parry, Orchestral Variations; Tschaïkowsky's Fantasia for violoncello and orchestra. In addition to this interesting list of novelties the following works will be performed for the first time at these Concerts: Frederick Cliffe's Concerto for violin and orchestra, the solo part by Mr. Tivadar Nachèz; Eugene d'Albert's Concerto for pianoforte and orchestra; Professor C. Villiers Stanford's Concerto for pianoforte and orchestra in G, the solo part by Mr. Leonard Borwick; and Hamish MacCunn's "Highland Memories" (three Scottish Scenes).

The New Year performances of the first two parts of Bach's "Christmas" Oratorio, at St. Mary Abbotts, Kensington, have for some time past shown steady improvement, and the rendering of this music on the 10th ult. attained a high standard of excellence. Mr. Henry Bird, who for the last twenty-five years has been organist of this fine church, makes the most of the resources he has at command, which are considerably more than falls to the lot of the majority of organists. The fact of there being five full services at this church every Sunday necessitates the engagement of a double choir, and thus Mr. Bird has at his command some fifty-six boys and twenty-six choirmen, who are of course all available for special occasions. The performance on the 10th ult. was the fourth given of this music, the early renderings of which at this church may be said to have rescued it from neglect. The soprano solos were on this occasion sung by Mrs. Hutchinson, to whom was given the tenor air "Haste, ye Shepherds," the flute obbligato of which was played by Mr. Barrett. Miss Hilda Wilson sang the alto solos, and the tenor and bass solo parts were respectively intrusted to Mr. Frame and Mr. Toy, members of the choir. Mr. Ludwig was the principal violin of an efficient small orchestra, consisting of strings, two flutes, drums, and the so-called Bach trumpets. Mr. Bird presided at the organ, and by his skilful treatment of the score greatly contributed to the effectiveness of the interpretation. Mr. S. Stagholl Highman conducted with marked ability.

In the presence of a very numerous audience, the Stoke Newington Choral Association gave its first Concert, on the 18th ult., at Morley Hall, Hackney. The Society has only recently been formed, with a present choral and orchestral force of one hundred and fifty performers, under the conductorship of Mr. Percy Taylor, and, having for its object the cultivation of high-class choral music, should prove a distinct boon to music-lovers in North-East London. There is plenty of good material in the choir, which only requires to be somewhat more evenly balanced in the voices, while the orchestra, ably led by Mr. R. H. Willis, likewise contains all the elements required for rendering it, ere long, a thoroughly efficient body. The performance on this occasion of Sir Alexander Mackenzie's cantata "The Bride" was a very creditable one, another principal piece in the programme being Sir Arthur Sullivan's "Kenilworth." Mesdames Annie Marriott and L. Owen, Messrs. Edward Branscombe and A. Beckwith were the soloists. Mr. Taylor, who conducted with energy and care, may be congratulated on the promising début made by the Society under his direction.

Madame Antoinette Sterling was warmly greeted at St. James's Hall, on the 15th ult., on making her re-appearance after an American tour. That travel has not injuriously affected her voice was abundantly manifested in the rendering of such songs as "The Lost Chord," Constance Maud's "A Life's Lesson," Schubert's "Der Leiermann," Liszt's "Roi de Thule," and other pieces. Vocal assistance was contributed by Mr. Orlando Harley with Handel's "Where'er you walk" and the air from Goring Thomas's "Esmeralda," "O vision entrancing." Miss Fanny Davies and M. Johannes Wolff joined in one of Beethoven's duo Sonatas, besides playing solos, the popular pianist selecting, with the accustomed successful result, a couple of Mendelssohn's "Songs without words," the same composer's "Caprice" in E minor, and examples of Chopin and Paderewski. M. Wolff gave Hubay's "Scènes de la Czardas" and his own Romance, and was associated with Mr. Waddington Cooke (who was also accompanist) in a movement from Grieg's second Sonata for violin and pianoforte.

Mrs. Leopold Farmer organised an interesting Concert at the Hampstead Conservatoire, on the 14th ult., for a charitable object, and received the assistance of several able artists. Her own contributions were Gounod's air "Far greater in his lowly state," and songs by Denza and Hartog. Mr. Edwin Wareham gave compositions by Schubert, Chaminade, and Gounod; Madame Kate Cove sang artistically, and Mr. W. A. Peterkin earned all the applause he obtained. The instrumentalists included Mr. John E. West (organ), Miss Adela Verne (pianoforte), and Master J. Hambourg (violin). Mr. Charles Fry recited with excellent effect "King Robert of Sicily," with the new musical accompaniment by Mr. West, in which Mr. Fry's choir of male voices, conducted by Mr. W. A. Gardner, took part, and the composer accompanied on the organ.

Sir Arthur Sullivan's cantata "The Golden Legend" was given at the People's Palace, Mile End, on the 23rd ult., under the conductorship of Mr. C. H. Allen Gill. There could be no doubt that the musical charm of "The Golden Legend" very successfully appealed to the crowded assemblage, whilst the performance throughout afforded evidence of careful and conscientious preparation. Miss Florence Bethell sang the soprano solos with fervour and refinement, Miss Marie Hooton effectively rendered the music of Ursula, and Mr. Edward Branscombe was quite equal to the responsible and thankful part of Prince Henry. The representative of Lucifer was Mr. Bantock Pierpoint, who accurately caught the cynical and mocking spirit so skilfully illustrated by the composer. Mr. Frederic Hosking did all that was possible for the Forester, and the instrumentation received justice. Mr. B. Jackson presided at the organ. Upon the result of the performance Mr. Gill may be sincerely congratulated.

Herr W. Kohn, conductor of the band of the 39th Fusiliers at Düsseldorf, perseveres in his attempt to familiarise music-loving Düsseldorfers with British music. On the 14th ult. he gave another Orchestral Concert with a programme representing in its three parts Italian, English, and German music, the specimens of the art of these isles being Sir Arthur Sullivan's overture, "Di Ballo," Sir A. C. Mackenzie's prelude to "Colomba," and three of Mr. F. H. Cowen's "Four English Dances in the olden style." At the moment of going to press we have not yet learned how these several pieces were received by the public and press, but we can scarcely doubt that they pleased both. Meanwhile, Herr Kohn deserves the thanks of British musicians for his disinterested propaganda for their music.

The State of Maine is to have a great musical Festival this year. The performances will be given at Lewiston—a spot probably chosen for its central position, for it is not the largest city in this State. Choruses, which will number 1,000 voices, are now engaged in rehearsing numbers from "Elijah," "The Messiah," and Rossini's "Stabat Mater"; besides which, choruses from "Trovatore," "Faust," and other operas will be sung. It is reported that one Matinée will be devoted to Maine composers exclusively—a rather narrow field for choice, one might imagine. The conductor will be Mr. William R. Chapman, who has for some years directed the Musurgia and Rubinstein Societies in New York. Engagements have already been made with Madame Nordica and other well-known vocalists for part of the dates.

The following students have passed the Intermediate Examination in Music at the University of London: First Division—Alfred Henry Barley, Helen Mary R. Cockman, and John Duffell. Second Division—John Philip Stephens Ashton, Walter Bevers, Frederic Arthur Ely, Paula Rodriguez Garcia, Thomas Henry Griffiths, Edith Alice Heel, Francis O'D. Hoare, Alfred Huddle, and David Henry Wassell. The examiners were Dr. C. H. Lloyd, Sir Walter Parratt, Professor J. H. Poynting, and Professor J. J. Thomson. In the B.Mus. Examination the following passed: Percy Bright, Augusta Mary R. Dobson, and William Herbert Sampson. The examiners were Dr. C. H. Lloyd and Sir Walter Parratt.

The Hornsey and Crouch End Orchestral Society inaugurated its sixth season with a successful Concert on the 14th ult. The orchestra continues to maintain an excellent standard, and, under the conductorship of Mr. Henry J. Baker, gave a good rendering of Bennett's overture "The Naiades" and Beethoven's No. 1 Symphony. Miss J. Ford played with skill and finish the solo part in De Bériot's "Scène de Ballet," and Miss Mabel Fines also deserves special mention for her artistic rendering of Bennett's Caprice for pianoforte in E major. The vocalist was Miss Lilian Turnbull, who sang the "Waltz Song" from Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet" and "L'Eté," by Chaminade.

The Rev. Charles Kent, senior curate of St. Andrew's, Westminster, has been presented by the parishioners with a cheque for £133 and an album containing the list of subscribers on leaving to recruit his health at Algiers. The presentation was made by the vicar, the Rev. the Hon. J. Stafford Northcote. Mr. Kent is known as the author of many cantatas, school operettas, and action songs, and, in conjunction with Dr. Huntley, has written a cantata entitled "Victoria; or, the Bard's Prophecy" (in commemoration of the Queen's long reign), now being published by Messrs. Novello, to be performed at the Crystal Palace, on May 8, by the Church of England Temperance Society (the London Diocesan Branch).

At St. Agnes', Kennington Park, on Christmas Day, Gounod's Messe Solennelle ("St. Cecilia") was sung at the morning service with orchestral accompaniment. The same composer's "Noël" ("O sing to God") was sung for the introit, and Adolphe Adam's "Cantique pour Noël" was the offertorium. The soloists were Madame Ada Patterson, Mr. J. E. Stroulger, and Mr. H. Dean. Gounod's Marche Solennelle in E flat, played by orchestra and organ, concluded an effective and impressive service.

Mr. H. G. McMurdie, the sub-organist of the church, presided at the organ, and Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock conducted.

THE Handel Society will perform Handel's oratorio "Susanna," with the original orchestral accompaniments, at the People's Palace, on the 6th inst. This work has not been given in London for over twenty years. Mr. Croager will be the organist, and Dr. A. H. Mann, of King's College, Cambridge, has undertaken to fill in the accompaniments to the airs and recitatives on the pianoforte, and Mr. J. S. Liddle will conduct.

THE Plain-song and Mediæval Music Society is about to publish, through Mr. Quaritch, some specimens of "Early English Harmony," from the tenth to the fifteenth century. The work will be edited by Professor Wooldridge, and will include nearly all the English music that exists to the end of the fourteenth century, closing with the works of Dunstable, which are at Bologna. The first volume (to be issued shortly) will contain fac-similes in collotype, the translations of which into modern notation will be published subsequently.

A MUSICAL Festival will be held in the Drill Hall, Carlisle, on May 6, entitled "Carlisle and District Musical Festival." There will be a series of competitions during the day for choirs (church and chapel), choral classes, and choral societies in Cumberland, and in towns and villages in adjacent counties within a radius of thirty miles of Carlisle. In the evening a Concert will be held in which several of the competing choirs will be united and take part, under the direction of the adjudicator, Dr. W. G. McNaught.

THE Barnby Memorial Trust Fund has been considerably increased by our American friends, whose handsome subscriptions have reached over £200, collected by the kindness of Mr. H. R. Elliot of the New York Evangelist, the latest additions being the results of special services held at Old South Church and Trinity Church, Boston. At Trinity Church a special sermon was preached by the rector, Dr. Donald, on "Sir Joseph Barnby, His Life and Works."

PROFESSOR VILLIERS STANFORD'S opera "Shamus O'Brien" was produced, for the first time in the United States, on the 6th ult., at the Broadway Theatre, New York, with a company and scenery brought from England, and made a great success. Mr. Joseph O'Mara sang the titular part. In the opinion of the New York critics it is the best comic opera which has been heard there for many years, while the performance also is greatly praised. There is no doubt that the work will have a long run.

AT Holy Trinity Church, Sloane Street, on the 21st ult., a Festal Evensong was rendered by the united choirs of the church itself; St. Peter's, Eaton Square; St. John's, Wilton Road; and St. Paul's, Knightsbridge. The service included Mendelssohn's "Lauda Sion" and some carols. The instrumental accompaniments were played by the Church Orchestral Society, Mr. W. G. Alcock was at the organ, and Dr. Huntley conducted.

HERR VOGL has been engaged by Mr. Schultz Curtius for the Mottl Concerts and will sing the rôle of Parsifal, at the Queen's Hall, in a selection from Wagner's opera; Frau Mottl will be the Kundry, and Herr Wachter, Gurnemanz. Berlioz's "Harold in Italy" will also be given. On April 13 a contingent of the Leeds Festival Choir will take part in Beethoven's Choral Symphony.

PROFESSOR VILLIERS STANFORD'S "Irish" Symphony was produced for the first time at the Sixth Concert Classique of the season, given at the Salle des Fêtes, Pau, on the 15th ult., with great success, the programme also including numbers by Mendelssohn, Handel, Beethoven, and Bach. M. Edouard Brunel conducted with much ability.

THE Open Court Publishing Company is about to issue "A Pilgrimage to Beethoven," being a novelette by Richard Wagner, with photogravure of M. Rödig's portrait of Beethoven. This little volume gives, under the guise of a mythical conversation with Beethoven, Wagner's own views of musical art.

MR. SINCLAIR DUNN has just returned from a successful tour round the Scottish Borders with his new entertainment, "Humorous Scotch Songs."

AT the Epiphany Service at St. Margaret Pattens, Rood Lane, Mr. W. M. Wait's Christmastide cantata "God with us" was sung by the choir. The composer, who is also the organist and choirmaster of the church, played the accompaniments.

ON the 7th ult. the members of the choir of All Saints' Church, Ennismore Gardens, presented Mr. F. W. Belchamber, the late organist and choirmaster, with an inkstand and pair of candlesticks, accompanied by an illuminated address.

THE Orchestral Association has removed its offices to new premises at 39, Gerrard Street, Soho.

FOREIGN NOTES.

AMSTERDAM.—A remarkably good first performance of "Die Walküre" was given on the 8th ult., by the very active Wagner Society here, under the energetic direction of M. Viotta, and with the co-operation of Mesdames Sucher, Staudigl, and Wittich; Herren Perron, Gerhäuser, and Wachtel. Frau Wittich as Sieglinde was particularly admired. These periodical performances, it need hardly be said, are undertaken solely from artistic motives, as they cannot, in any case, cover expenses incurred by the Society. Kienzl's "Der Evangelimann" was produced for the first time at the Nederlands Opera, on December 22, with considerable success.

BARCELONA.—The prize offered by the Circulo Artistico for a cantata for soli, chorus, and orchestra, to be performed in connection with the forthcoming centenary celebration of that Institution, has been awarded to Signor Geremia Pinzzano, an Italian composer.——A new lyrical comedy, "Las Mujeres," the libretto by Señor Javier de Burgos, the music by Señor Jimenez, performed with a very efficient cast, is drawing full houses just now at the Eldorado Theatre.

BERLIN.—The performance of the second cycle of the "Nibelungen Ring," before a crowded audience, terminated just before Christmas, the principal interpreters being the same as on the previous occasion, with the exception of Herr Friedrichs, who now represented Alberich. An interesting revival is in course of preparation at the Royal Opera—viz., of the two "Iphigenias" by Gluck, in the versions respectively of R. Wagner and Herr R. Strauss. Goetz's charming work "The Taming of the Shrew" is also being remounted. Schubert's "Domestic Warfare," and a new one-act opera, "Enoch Arden," by Herr V. Hausmann, were to be given on the 31st ult., the birth centenary of the former. The highest number of performances at the Opera during last season, it is interesting to note, was accorded to Goldmark's "Cricket on the Hearth," which was given on thirty-three occasions. Senhor Vianna da Motta, the well-known Portuguese pianist, gave a well-attended Lecture recently at the Scharwenka Conservatorium on the subject of "Parsifal"—surely a proof this of the cosmopolitan character of the Wagner cult!——At the Philharmonic Concert of the 11th ult., under Herr Nikisch's direction, a new Symphony (B flat major) was produced, for the first time, by Herr F. Gernsheim—an important work, which produced a highly favourable impression, the composer being present. Señor Sarasate was the solo violinist on this occasion.——A second performance of Carissimi's oratorio "Jephtha," in one of Dr. Reimann's excellent Concerts in the Emperor William Memorial Church, again attracted a very large audience, and there can be little doubt that other works by the "father of oratorio" will now also be rescued from comparative oblivion.——An important Schubert celebration will be given on the 1st inst., by the combined forces of the Philharmonic Society and several choral societies here, under the direction of Herr Siegfried Ochs, and with the co-operation of Dr. Reimann and others.

BREMEN.—Herr Weingartner's new Symphony, "King Lear," was produced for the first time at the Philharmonic Concert on December 28, under the composer's direction, and most favourably received. At the same Concert Mons. E. Sauret, who was the solo violinist, met with an enthusiastic reception.——A new oratorio, "The Birth of Christ," by Herr Herzogenburg, performed in St. Martin's Church, under Herr Schröter's direction, on Christmas Day, deservedly met with general appreciation.

Breslau.—A secular oratorio, "Crœsus," by Herr C. A. Lorenz, was produced for the first time recently by the Flügel'sche Gesangverein and proved to be a work of no ordinary merit, the composer, who was present, receiving quite an ovation at the conclusion of an excellent performance.

Brünn.—An admirable first performance here of Signor Mascagni's "Zanetto" was given on the 1st ult., at the Municipal Theatre, under Capellmeister Heller's direction, the work being, however, somewhat coldly received.

Brunswick.—A ballad, entitled "Harald," for male chorus and orchestra, by Herr Grunewald, a Magdeburg musician, was received with high favour both by the audience and in the press, on its first performance, December 19, by the Lehrer Gesangverein. An equally successful performance of the work has recently been given by the Arion Society, in Brooklyn (N.Y.), under Mr. Claasen's direction.

Brussels.—The first performance in Brussels of Bach's "St. Matthew" Passion, given at the Conservatoire on December 20, produced a most profound impression. M. Gevaert (the director of the Institution), who had been rehearsing the work for months past, had added some organ accompaniments to the score, which were highly effective, and amply proved the intimate acquaintance of the veteran musician with the works of the great Leipzig cantor. The oratorio was given uncurtailed by 500 executants, professors and pupils of the Conservatoire, and was divided into two parts, one being performed in the morning and the other in the afternoon.

Budapesth.—The action for breach of contract brought by the authorities of the Royal Opera against Herr Arthur Nikisch, its former principal conductor, has resulted in a verdict in favour of the latter. The directors had claimed the trifling sum of 200,000 francs as damages.

Cologne.—Worthily mounted, and with an excellent cast, Goldmark's "The Cricket on the Hearth" was produced for the first time at the Stadt-Theater, under Professor Kleffel's conductorship, on the 1st ult., with complete success, which was fully endorsed by subsequent representations.

Copenhagen.—Two new operas by Scandinavian composers are in course of being mounted at the Royal Opera—viz., one in three acts entitled "Vifandaka," by Alfred Tolp, and a one-act work, "Bagahgol," by Emil Hartmann. The Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra achieved a brilliant success at a Concert given here, under Herr Nikisch's direction, on December 28, more especially with Tschaïkowsky's E minor Symphony.

Darmstadt.—A successful revival has taken place recently, at the Court Theatre, of Offenbach's fantastic opera "Les Contes d'Hoffmann," under Capellmeister de Haan's direction. After a most successful début in "Fidelio," the gifted Leipzig dramatic singer, Frau Felicie Kaschowsky, has been engaged here for a period of three years, under very advantageous conditions. As the first novelty of the season, Herr Hans Pfitzner's remarkable opera "Der arme Heinrich" (first produced last year at Mayence) was to be brought out toward the end of last month.

Dresden.—A series of excellent Chamber Concerts, attracting to itself all that is most musical in this capital, is being given this season by Frau Margarethe Stern, Herren Henri Petri and F. von Liliencron, the performances comprising works by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Schumann, Schubert, Smetana, and others.——A new ballet, "Struwelpeter" (of nursery celebrity), by Herr Richard Heuberger, brought out last month at the Royal Theatre, met with the favourable reception which its quaintly-conceived scenarium and pleasing music merited. ——Mr. E d'Albert has completed a new opera, "Gernot," of which great things are predicted in some quarters. It is to be brought out in April next, at Mannheim, under the composer's direction, with his wife in the leading female rôle.

Düsseldorf.—Herr Richard Strauss, of Munich, was the conductor, by invitation, of the fourth Concert this season of the Musikverein, when the performances included his "Zarathustra" Symphony, "Wanderers Sturmlied" for chorus and orchestra, and orchestral excerpts from the opera "Guntram." As on the occasion of last year's Musical Festival of the Lower Rhine, the reception of the gifted composer and his works was most enthusiastic.

Frankfort-on-Main.—Herr Hans Pfitzner's music-drama "Der arme Heinrich" was brought out at the Stadt-Theater, on the 10th ult., under Dr. Rottenburg's direction, with very considerable success, and the work is acknowledged on all sides as one of the most remarkable operatic productions of recent years. The composer, quite a young man, was present and was recalled many times.

Hamburg.—The new four-act opera "Aucassin und Nicolete," by Herr August Enna, the Danish musician, composer of "Die Hexe" and "Cleopatra," was brought out on the 12th ult., at the Stadt-Theater, with considerable success.

Leipzig.—The first performance here of Handel's oratorio "Hercules," in Dr. Chrysander's version, was announced to take place on the 17th ult., by the Riedel Verein, under Professor Kretzschmar's direction. "Deborah," in the same version, it will be remembered, had already been produced here two months ago.——At the recent fifth Concert of the Liszt Society, Herr Mahler's new Symphony in C minor was produced for the first time, under the direction of the Hamburg composer, and very well received.

Lyons.—The first performance in France of Wagner's "Die Meistersinger," with M. Ernst's translation, took place here on December 30, with complete success. M. Catulle Mendès, the well-known Paris author, expresses himself in enthusiastic terms as to the performance and the profound impression it produced upon the audience, for which, he adds, he had been scarcely prepared. M. Vinzentini conducted.

Mannheim.—"Donna Diana," the successful comic opera by E. N. von Reznicék, was performed for the first time on December 20, under the direction of the composer, the recently appointed conductor of the Court Theatre, who was immensely applauded.——The annual meeting of the Allgemeine Deutsche Musikverein will be held in this town, in June, when some important new compositions are to obtain a first hearing.——On December 19 the Choral Society here signalised by a special performance the fortieth anniversary of its foundation, which coincided with the twenty-fifth anniversary of Herr Ferdinand Langer's conductorship. Amongst the artists taking part were Miss Marie Brema and the violinist, M. Marsick.

Milan.—The season of La Scala opened on December 26 with the first performance here of Wagner's "Götterdämmerung," under Signor Sanzo's very able direction. The carefully prepared work met with a somewhat inappreciative audience, but during the latter part of the performance applause became more frequent and general. Madame von Ehrenstein, as Brünnhilde, was greatly admired.——Signor Leoncavallo has just completed the score of his new opera "La Bohème" (not to be confounded with Puccini's successful work), the first performance of which is to take place at the Teatro Lirico.

Munich.—Special performances of Wagner's music-dramas have been resumed at the Royal Theatre and are attracting full houses. The first performance of Herr Humperdinck's new opera "Die Königskinder," the libretto by "Ernst Rosmer," was announced to take place on the 17th ult. Schubert's opera "Domestic Warfare" was to be given on the composer's birth centenary.

Prague.—A new four-act opera, "Dubrovsky," the libretto founded upon a novel by Pushkin, from the pen of M. Tschaïkowsky (a brother of the composer), the music by M. Eduard Nepravnik, of Czech nationality, was accorded a highly favourable reception at its first performance, on December 18, at the National Bohemian Theatre. A chorus for female voices, a love-duet, and some national dances, amongst other numbers, created a storm of applause. A successful revival took place, on December 26, of Dvorák's opera "Der Bauer als Schelm." ——Hans Pfitzner's music-drama "Der arme Heinrich" is shortly to be brought out at the German Theatre here.

St. Petersburg.—The sixtieth anniversary of the first production of Glinka's opera "The Life for the Czar" was signalised on December 16, at the Imperial Opera, by a gala performance (the 660th here) of the popular national work.——In the early part of December last the magnificent new building of the Conservatoire was inaugurated in the presence of their Imperial Majesties and numerous State dignitaries, the professors and their pupils. A "Solemn Overture," for chorus, orchestra, and organ, and concluding with the Russian National Hymn, composed by Anton Rubinstein shortly before his death with a view to this event, was the principal musical performance on the occasion, and produced a most profound impression, greatly intensified by its melancholy association with the late distinguished director of the Institution.

Stuttgart.—The posthumous papers of Anton Rubinstein are about to be published in the columns of the well known illustrated journal Vom Fels zum Meer. They are written in his accustomed epigrammatic style, and, representing the late pianist-composer's most intimate views on art and artists, cannot fail to create interest. They were bequeathed by him to his grandchildren.

Vienna.—The 100th performance of "Fidelio" was recorded at the Imperial Opera on December 17, the fact being chiefly noticeable on account of the comparatively small number of performances here of Beethoven's only opera, since its first production at the Theater-an-der-Wien, November 20, 1805.——At a private Concert given in the salons of the German Ambassador, Count Eulenburg, a performance took place of Adalbert von Goldschmidt's remarkable music-drama "Gœa." Several compositions by the ambassador himself, who is an accomplished musician, were interpreted by the Baroness Bach on the same occasion.——The two Concerts given here by Edvard Grieg, just previous to Christmas, attracted crowded audiences, who were most prodigal with their plaudits, the Norwegian master taking part both as conductor and pianist in programmes consisting entirely of his own compositions. Amongst other successful Concert-givers here last month were Mr. Ben Davies and Miss Camilla Landi.——The "Nibelungen" Tetralogy, newly mounted, is to be given this month at the Imperial Theatre.——The centenary of the Austrian National Hymn, one of Haydn's most beautiful melodies, was to be celebrated here on the 28th ult. On January 28, 1797, Count Saurau, President of the Executive, issued a decree that "Gott erhalte Franz den Kaiser" (the words by the priest Haschka) should be the Austrian national anthem, and on February 12 it was sung officially in all the Viennese theatres. Haydn's manuscript forms part of the present Schubert Exhibition.

OBITUARY.

By the lamented death, on the 10th ult., of Henry Stonex, of Great Yarmouth, at the age of seventy-three, East Anglia has not only lost one of the kindest hearted and most genial of her sons, but also one of her ripest musicians. Born in Norwich, Mr. Stonex received his earliest musical instruction from Mr. James Harcourt, some years festival chorus-master, later serving an apprenticeship to Dr. Z. Buck, then Cathedral organist, where he was contemporary with his lifelong friend Dr. Bunnett, and other students who have since become eminent in their profession. With Dr. Buck Mr. Stonex remained till June, 1850, when he was appointed organist of Great Yarmouth Parish Church, celebrated as being one of the largest, if not the largest parish church in the kingdom, and certainly possessing one of the finest organs in Great Britain. This position the deceased gentleman filled with conspicuous ability till failing health compelled his resignation about two years since. Mr. Stonex was also conductor of the Great Yarmouth Musical Society from its commencement, some forty years since, and under his guidance much good work has been done by that body. Although a very clever theoretical and practical musician, the compositions of Mr. Stonex were few, but several hymn tunes from his pen—notably a setting of "Brightest and best of the sons of the morning," sung at his interment—are in general use.

Wilhelm Joseph von Wasielewski, the distinguished German musician and musical author, died on December 16, at Sondershausen, in his seventy-fifth year. Only a few weeks before his death he had published, under the title of "Aus siebzig Jahren," a volume of his Reminiscences, rendered the more interesting because of the friendship which united him with many of the most prominent musicians of his day—Robert and Clara Schumann, Ferdinand Hiller, and Johannes Brahms amongst their number. Born at Gross Leesen, near Dantzig, on June 17, 1822, he entered the Leipzig Conservatorium in 1843, where he was a pupil of Mendelssohn and Hauptmann, and of David in violin playing, and, three years later, became a first violinist in the Gewandhaus orchestra of that town. In 1850, at the instigation of Schumann, he was appointed Concertmeister and leader in the Düsseldorf orchestra, and it was during this period that his intimate relations with the Schumann family were established. He subsequently assumed the conductorship of the Bonn Choral Society and afterwards held, for a number of years, a similar position in Dresden, finally taking up his residence, some ten years ago, at Sondershausen, where he held a professorship at the Conservatorium. Although some compositions from his pen are extant, Wasielewski's chief merit rests with his literary work, which is characterised by erudition and painstaking research, combined with artistic sympathy and an agreeable style. His "Life of Schumann," published in 1858, and revised in two subsequent editions, remains as yet the most satisfactory work on the subject. It has been translated into several languages, including an English edition published by Mr. W. Reeves. His "History of the violin in the seventeenth century" and "History of instrumental music in the sixteenth century," again, have been generally considered the most exhaustive and reliable monographies in their particular sphere. Amongst his other writings, in addition to numerous contributions to leading German journals, may be mentioned "The violin and its masters," a "History of the violoncello," and a biography of Beethoven.

The death is announced, on November 25, at Athens, of M. Spiridion, who had adopted the pseudonym of "Xyndas," one of the few notable musicians of modern Greece who, as yet, have devoted themselves to dramatic composition. His principal works of this order are the operas "The Two Rivals," "Count Julien," and "The Parliamentary Candidate," the latter having been produced, in Greek, at the Politeama Rosetti, in Trieste, some eight years since, when it was received with much favour. He was the early instructor of M. Spiro Samara, the successful composer of "Il Martire." In his native country, "Xyndas" will probably be longest remembered by his simple yet characteristic songs, many of which have taken root in the hearts of his people. He was in his eighty-fifth year.

The once highly popular tenor, Joseph Barbot, the original Faust in Gounod's opera, died in Paris on December 24, at the age of seventy-two. He was a native of Toulouse, and, as a boy, sang in the Cathedral choir of that town. He studied under Garcia at the Paris Conservatoire, and in 1848 was engaged for a short period at the Opéra. He subsequently for some years went on tour in various parts of the Continent in company with his wife, the distinguished prima donna, Caroline Barbot, and also, on several occasions, appeared in London. He was a member of the company of the Théâtre Lyrique when he was chosen by Gounod to interpret the titular part in the original representation of "Faust," in 1859. In 1875 Barbot was appointed to a professorship at the Conservatoire, vacated by Madame Viardot, from which post he retired some few years since.

Ludwig Grünberger, a composer of considerable merit, died on December 12, in Prague, at the age of fifty-seven. A native of the Bohemian capital, of German parentage, the deceased made his musical studies under Julius Rietz and Adolph Reichel, and began his career as a pianist of considerable attainments, Franz Liszt himself being amongst his admirers in that capacity. His numerous compositions have been much appreciated, both in his native country and elsewhere. They include orchestral works, amongst them a Suite which has been frequently performed; characteristic pianoforte pieces, in which the poetic element predominates, and a number of songs, many of which, as, for instance, the one "Klaus ist in den Wald gegangen," have obtained wide popularity. Grünberger was also the composer of some important incidental music to Theodor Loewe's drama "Königstraum," and an opera from his pen, entitled "Der Heimkehr," was successfully brought out two years ago at the Prague Theatre.

M. Halanzier, the former director of the Paris Grand Opéra, died in Paris, on December 27, at the age of seventy-seven. He was a native of the French capital, his father, a cavalry officer, having married an actress, Mdlle. Dufrenoy, who had obtained great popularity under the Restoration. Previous to his appointment at the Opéra, where he succeeded Emile Perrin in 1871, M. Halanzier had been the director successively of the theatres of Strassburg, Marseilles, and Bordeaux. Under his management were produced for the first time at the Opéra, "L'Erostrate," by M. Reyer; "Jeanne d'Arc," by M. Mermet; "L'Esclave," by M. Membrée; M. Massenet's "Le Roi de Lahore," and Gounod's "Polyeucte." In 1879 he retired from his post. He was president of the "Société des Artistes dramatiques" and an officer of the Legion of Honour.

Bina Steffenone, an operatic soprano greatly admired in her day, died at Naples recently, aged seventy-three. A native of Turin, she was a pupil of Bertinotti, at Bologna, and from the time of her début, in 1842, on a provincial Italian stage, her career was one of almost unbroken success. Owing to her grand and sympathetic voice and excellent dramatic qualities she became a favourite with the public at Rome, Florence, Venice, and other Italian musical centres, and subsequently also met with equal appreciation at Berlin, Vienna, and in this country. From 1855 to 1856 she was engaged at the Théâtre Italien, in Paris, and soon after undertook an extensive tour in different parts of the American continent with brilliant results.

The death occurred, on December 24, at Leipzig, of Town-councillor Wilhelm Volkmann, one of the managing proprietors of the eminent music publishing firm of Breitkopf and Härtel, a man most highly esteemed amongst all classes in the Saxon town. A grandson of the late Gottfried Härtel, he entered the business in 1860 as clerk, and in 1873 became a partner, in association with Dr. Otto von Hase, now the sole representative of the firm. Herr Volkmann, who had made his early studies at the Universities of Halle and Leipzig, had filled various honorary offices in the latter place with distinction, and in 1894 was elected treasurer of the German Booksellers' Exchange Association. He was in his sixtieth year.

The death is announced, on the 9th ult., at Munich, of Court-Capellmeister Otto Hieber, one of the most prominent and highly esteemed representatives of the musical profession in the Bavarian capital, at the age of forty-nine. He was a native of Munich, where his father, Ulrich Hieber, still occupies the post of organist and choirmaster at the Hof-Kirche, and was a pupil at the Royal Musik-Schule, then under the direction of Hans von Bülow, who, with Wüllner and Rheinberger, were his principal instructors. In 1877 he was appointed to an assistant-conductorship at the Royal Theatre, and a few years later, on the retirement of Rheinberger, became Court-Capellmeister and director of the King's choristers. He had also for some years past held a professorship at the Munich Royal Akademie der Tonkunst.

We regret having to record the death of Marcus Alfred Smythson, a veteran London musician, who died at his residence in Harpur Street, on Christmas Day. He was a pupil of W. M. Rooke, a well known musician in his day, and on the establishment in this country of the late Sir Michael Costa, was appointed chorus-master at Covent Garden and Her Majesty's Theatres, in which position he remained throughout the career of that eminent conductor, to whom he proved a much-valued assistant and right-hand man. He was also at one time associated in a similar capacity with the Pyne and Harrison and Royal Carl Rosa Opera Companies, while his connection also with the Sacred Harmonic Society extended over many years, and on his retirement from that institution he was presented with a handsome testimonial in acknowledgment of the sterling services rendered by him. Mr. Smythson, who was a very able and conscientious musician, and who in the course of his long professional life had gained the esteem of all with whom he came into personal contact, had attained the mature age of seventy-nine.

The death occurred on the 18th ult., at Swansea, of William B. Broad, who was well known in South Wales as the local representative of the Royal Academy and Royal College of Music. For many years he occupied the position of organist and teacher in Worcester, Monmouth, The Mumbles, and finally in Swansea; and many of his pupils have attained prominent positions in the profession. Although suffering from a cruel disease, he with indomitable courage organised the meetings of the Incorporated Society of Musicians recently held at Cardiff, and took an active part in the proceedings. The exertion, however, proved too much for him. He was fifty-seven years of age.

The death, on the 13th ult., in London, of Agostino Gatti, the well known entrepreneur and theatrical manager, removes a familiar and much respected personality from the public life of the metropolis. His connection with musical art was of the slightest, but it should not be forgotten that he, with his only surviving brother, Stephano, managed the earlier series of Promenade Concerts when under the conductorship of Sir Arthur Sullivan, Signor Arditi, and Alfred Cellier; and although the enterprise, like that of their subsequent joint-management of Covent Garden Opera, was conducted strictly upon business lines, the result was not an altogether unsatisfactory one also from an artistic point of view. The very large attendance of gentlemen distinguished in art and the professions at the funeral service, held at St. Patrick's Church, Soho Square, testified to the great esteem in which the deceased had been held. He was in his fifty-sixth year.

We have also to record the death, on the 15th ult., at his house in Kilburn, of Thomas Edward Mann, the distinguished French-horn and cornet-à-piston player. The deceased was a professor at the Royal Academy of Music and at the Royal Military School of Music at Kneller Hall, and as a virtuoso on both his instruments probably had few equals.

We have also to report the following deaths:—

On November 30, at Frankfort-on-Main, Martin Wallenstein, distinguished pianist, composer of an opera, "Das Testament," a pianoforte concerto, and other compositions, aged fifty-three.

On December 4, at Lisbon, João Emilio Arroyo, solo flautist at San Carlos Theatre, professor at the Royal Conservatorio, aged sixty-four.

On December 8, at Rosswein, C. Schluttig, cantor and choral conductor, at an advanced age.

On December 9, at Hamburg, Heinrich Degenhardt, for thirty years organist of St. Katharinen-Kirche, professor of the pianoforte at the Bernuth Conservatorium, aged sixty-eight.

On December 12, at Meiningen, M. Fleischhauer, violinist for thirty-two years of the Meiningen orchestra, and at Bayreuth, aged sixty-three.

On December 14, at Antwerp, Fräulein Constance Teichmann, founder and conductor of the "Dames du Charité" Choral Society, aged seventy-two.

On December 17, at Padua, Luigia Vanzan-Perelli, formerly celebrated prima donna.

On December 18, at Grünberg (Silesia), Albert Hartmann, violinist, formerly of Berlin, aged seventy-nine.

On December 21, at Littau, F. Lipowski, operatic baritone (assassinated).

On December 22, at Munich, Professor Wilhelm Seyboth, violinist for many years of the Royal Opera, by suicide in an access of melancholia.

On December 22, at Warsaw, Leopold Lewandowsky, orchestral director, popular composer of dance music, aged sixty-three.

On December 24, at Hamburg, Frau Adele Herbst-Jazedé, a once highly successful operatic singer, engaged at Munich, Berlin, Vienna, &c., aged eighty-one.

On December 28, at Liège, Adolphe Hacken, orchestral conductor, professor at the Conservatoire, aged sixty-three.

Recently, at Marona (Italy), Don Ramellini Achille, organist, successful composer of church music.

On December 30, at Morbegni (Italy), Pietro Bossi, organist, father of Signor Enrico Bossi, director of the Liceo B. Marcello, Venice.

On the 6th ult., at Leipzig, Johannes Zschocher, founder and director of the Musical Academy bearing his name, in his seventy-sixth year.

CORRESPONDENCE.

BACH'S MUSIC IN ENGLAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE MUSICAL TIMES."

SIR,—I regret that in Mr. Edwards's interesting articles on this subject there is no mention of three performances of the "Matthew" Passion Music (or portions of the same) which I think should not be overlooked. Although the performance at Hanover Square Rooms on April 6, 1854, is called the first in England, a short selection from the work had previously been given on March 22 by the New Philharmonic Society at St. Martin's Hall. In the Illustrated London News of the 25th, the musical critic delivered himself as follows:—

"A selection from the 'Passions-Musik' of John Sebastian Bach, from the manner in which it was announced in the programme, was evidently designed to be one of the most prominent points of the concert. But it failed to produce the expected effect; it was found dry and heavy, and very coldly received. Bach is a great and time-honoured name; but his vocal music is very little known in England, and what is known hardly seems to justify the veneration of his classical admirers."

The paper in which this criticism appeared gave no account of the performance of April 6.

The next performance of the Passion Music to which I would call attention is that in St. George's Hall, Windsor Castle, on Easter Eve (which was also St. George's Day), April 23, 1859. On this occasion Mr. Sims Reeves sang the part of the Narrator.

The third of the three performances to which I alluded at the beginning of this letter is that of the second rendering in Westminster Abbey, on Tuesday in Holy Week, March 26, 1872. I believe I am right in saying that on this occasion the beautiful chorus "O man, thy heavy sin lament," was included in the selection. I have reason to feel a special interest in all these three performances, inasmuch as my mother took part in the first as a contralto, whilst I sang in the second as a Windsor chorister, and in the third as an alto member of "Mr. Barnby's Oratorio Choir."

W. A. FROST.

16, Amwell Street, E.C., December 17, 1896.

[Two of the three performances referred to in Mr. Frost's interesting letter were fully known to me, and were only omitted owing to the exigencies of space. The first (which, by the way, was after that at Birmingham in 1837, duly noticed by me) was a very small "selection," and consisted of a "Recit., Air and Chorus." The Windsor performance was not recorded either in the Musical World or Athenæum. The Westminster Abbey performance of 1872 was practically a repetition of that in 1871, except that, as Mr. Frost says, the Chorale "O man, thy heavy sin lament," with the preceding Recit., was added. Should the articles ever be reprinted in permanent form, these three performances will be included.—F. G. E.]

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

 Notices of Concerts, of which programmes must invariably be sent, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted.

Our correspondents will oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music is always kept in stock, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

W. S.—M. Faure is a Baritone.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

ANDOVER.—Mr. Arthur C. Bennett's sixth annual Concert took place in the Town Hall, on the 12th ult. The vocalists were Miss Katie Thomas and Mr. David Jones, both of the R.A.M., and Miss Nellie Edwards of Andover. Mr. Prosper Burnett played several violoncello solos and Miss Dora Burns and Miss Nellie Edwards contributed some violin pieces. The orchestral selection included Mozart's Fourth Symphony in C, the Overture to "Zauberflöte," and the Adagio from Haydn's "Farewell" Symphony.

BANGOR—Two Carol Services took place at the Cathedral on December 28 and the 4th ult. respectively. Mr. Westlake-Morgan presided at the pianoforte and Mr. H. G. Brereton at the organ.——At the Penrhyn Hall Gaul's "Holy City" was given with band and chorus, Mr. D. R. Ellis conducting.——The Cathedral organ is now being improved at a cost of £2,000, whilst funds are being raised for a new instrument at St. Mary's Church.

CRIEFF.—A very pleasing performance was given on December 29, in the Porteous Hall, by Mr. Steven's Juvenile Choir of about 200 voices. The work chosen was Mr. W. H. Doane's cantata "Merry Christmas," which was sung with the greatest spirit and precision by the young vocalists, the principal characters being in costume. The pianoforte and organ parts were respectively played by Miss Campbell and Miss Clark, the whole performance reflecting the greatest credit on Mr. Steven, who, it is to be hoped, will continue his commendable efforts in thus cultivating the musical tastes of young people. On the following night, in the same hall, the Musical Association gave excellent renderings of selections from "The Messiah," "Creation," "Samson," and "Joshua." The choir showed decided improvement in balance of tone and precision of attack, and did credit to its clever conductor, Mr. Steven. The soloists were Miss A. M. Thomas and Mr. J. Flemming, whose singing of the soprano and bass solos respectively was fully appreciated. Miss Campbell presided at the pianoforte and Mr. Nicol at the organ.

DOUGLAS.—On the 7th ult. Mr. W. H. Gill gave a Concert of Manx national music, which attracted the largest patriotic audience ever brought together in the island. The Grand Theatre was crowded in every part, and in consequence of its success the programme was repeated on the 16th ult. The Manx fishermen's Evening Hymn created a profound impression, the whole audience standing.

DURBAN.—Meritorious performances of "The Messiah" were given in December, at the Town Hall, by the Musical Association, under the conductorship of Mr. Macdonald. The soloists were Miss Scrivener, Mrs. Mortimer Hall, Mr. G. C. Macfarlane, and Mr. Seker; and the instrumental portion was played by Mrs. Seidle and Mr. C. Hoby, respectively, on a pianoforte and organ.

GRIMSBY.—The fine new organ in the Congregational Spring Church was formally opened on the 14th ult., by Mr. W. H. Jude, who played a selection of pieces well calculated to display the resources of the instrument. Several songs were effectively sung by Miss Florence Smith and Mr. J. W. Smethurst.

HALIFAX (NOVA SCOTIA).—The first part of Handel's "Messiah" was effectively sung by the choir in place of a sermon at the Cathedral Church, on the 4th ult., under the direction of Mr. Frank Gatward.

HANLEY.—In the presence of the Prince and Princess of Wales and a large audience, the North Staffordshire Philharmonic Society gave a performance of Dr. Swinnerton Heap's cantata "The Maid of Astolat," the solos being sung by Madame Marie Duma, Madame Marian McKenzie, Mr. Branscombe, and Mr. Watkin Mills. The choruses were effectively rendered by about 400 vocalists, Mr. F. Ward was the principal violin of an orchestra of fifty performers, and Mr. W. Sherratt gave skilful assistance at the organ. Dr. Heap conducted, as usual, and at the close of the performance was presented to their Royal Highnesses, who congratulated the composer on the excellent manner in which his cantata had been interpreted.

LLANDUDNO.—On the 5th ult. Gaul's "Holy City" was given in Holy Trinity Church by the choir, assisted by friends. The solos, taken by local amateurs, were all admirably given, and the rendering as a whole was marked by great refinement. Miss Christine Ratcliff gave valuable assistance with the violin, and played Mackenzie's Benedictus between the two parts of the cantata. Mr. R. H. Whall, organist of the church, presided at the organ throughout the performance, merely leaving it to conduct the unaccompanied choruses, the rest of the work being sung with admirable precision without a conductor.

Melbourne (Australia).—Dr. Hubert Parry's oratorio "Judith" was performed for the first time in Melbourne, on November 21, at the Town Hall, by the Philharmonic Society. The work made a very favourable impression, and the performance reflected great credit on the conductor, Mr. George Peake. The title-rôle was dramatically sung by Madame Emily Spada; Miss O. Fawcett was the contralto soloist, the tenor and bass solo portions were respectively sung by Mr. Philip Newbury and Mr. Henry Rope, and the parts of Manasseh's children were effectively rendered by Masters M. Daniell and L. Elcoate. Mr. H. Curtis was principal of an efficient orchestra, and Mr. G. B. Fenton presided at the organ.

Montreal.—The Handel and Haydn Society opened its second season on December 10 with the performance of three short works—"Hear my Prayer" (Mendelssohn), "Blest Pair of Sirens" (Parry), and "The Lord is King" (Barnby). The soloists were from New York and were Miss Katherine Hilke, soprano; Miss Mary Louis Clary, contralto; and Mr. G. Miles, baritone. The chorus, which numbered about 130 voices, was heard to best advantage in Parry's work. The conductor was Mr. Horace W. Reyner. ——The Philharmonic Society's first appearance this season was on December 22, when the usual annual performance of Handel's "Messiah" was given. This was the thirteenth actual and the ninth annual performance by the Society. Constant rehearsing of the parts has made the members of the chorus so thoroughly familiar with the work that they now render the choruses with a breadth of style and a delicacy of shading closely approaching perfection. The soprano solos were well rendered by Miss Marie Hollinshead, a local singer who has recently returned from her studies in London; the contralto was Miss Jennie Mae Spencer, a débutante from Boston, who acquitted herself with distinction; Mr. J. H. McKinley was the tenor, and the veteran, Mr. M. W. Whitney, of Boston, sang the bass rôle with his accustomed skill. Mr. E. N. Lafricain played the obbligato to "The trumpet shall sound," and Mr. G. Couture conducted.

Portsmouth.—The Saturday Popular Concert, on Boxing Night, at the Town Hall, was of unusual merit. The programme included two string quartets by Haydn and Mozart, which were effectively rendered by Messrs. S. Grimson, G. March, E. Behr, and R. Grimson. The vocalist was Miss Valdez Obbard, who made a very favourable impression on her re-appearance after a long illness, all her songs being encored.

Southport.—The St. Philip's Choral Society, under the conductorship of Mr. James Young, gave a successful Concert on the 9th ult., in the new schools adjoining St. Philip's Church. The first part of the programme consisted of H. van Landaghem's cantata, entitled "Merlin; or, the Charmed Oak," the solo parts of which were meritoriously rendered by Miss Procter, Mrs. Mayall, and Messrs. G. W. Winterbottom, Ramsden, Nutt, and Fletcher. In the miscellaneous second part there also appeared Miss Chadwick, Miss B. Reynolds, Miss Taylor, and Miss H. Mason. Mr. Young contributed a pianoforte piece, and several glees and part-songs were well sung by the choir. Messrs. Briggs and Young were the accompanists.

Stourbridge.—The People's Concert Society gave the "Elijah," in the Town Hall, on December 28. The principals were Miss T. Blamey, Mrs. Bird, Mr. W. Pugh, and Mr. A. Barlow. The choruses were well sung, and Mr. Fred. Ward was the principal of a capable orchestra of about thirty instruments. Mr. Hedley Satchell conducted.

Tunbridge Wells.—Mr. Frederick Hunnibell's Choral Society gave, on New Year's Day, an excellent performance of "The Messiah," the choir and orchestra numbering about 130 executants. The soloists were Madame Kate Cove, Miss Edith Hands, Mr. Walter Clinch, and Mr. Arthur Walenn; Mr. H. D. Haarnack was principal violin, and the organist was Mr. P. Needham. Mr. Hunnibell conducted.

West Sheen.—The North London Male-Voice Choir, under the direction of Mr. Munro Davison, gave a selection of madrigals, glees, and part-songs on the 7th ult. The light and shade in the various pieces were carefully observed, and the audience showed a marked appreciation of the works presented.

Organ Appointments.—Mr. Frederic Just, to Riber Castle, Matlock.—Mr. C. H. Nutton, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Baldred's Episcopal Church, North Berwick, N.B.—Mr. G. B. Swainson, Organist and Choirmaster to SS. Mary-John-Cowley, Oxford.

Choir Appointments.—Mr. Tom Pinder (Alto Lay Clerk), to Bangor Cathedral.—Mr. W. Peacock (Bass), to Durham Cathedral.

CONTENTS.

	Page
Schubert's Music in England	81
Victorian Music.—II.	84
From my Study (with Portraits)	87
Hans von Bülow in his Writings	90
John Dowland	92
Occasional Notes	93
Facts, Rumours, and Remarks	96
Royal Choral Society	97
Queen's Hall Choral Society	97
The Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company	97
Henschel Concerts	98
Mr. Theodore Werner's Recital	98
Queen's Hall Promenade Concerts	98
Monday and Saturday Popular Concerts	99
Sunday Concerts	99
Royal Academy of Music	100
Musical Association	100
Trinity College	101
Royal College of Organists	101
Incorporated Society of Musicians	101
Cumberland Musical Festival	103
The History of the Dance and its Music	104
Herr Bungert's "Odysseus"	104
The Vienna Schubert Exhibition	113
Reviews	113
Music in Bristol	115
,, Birmingham	115
,, Cambridge	115
,, Dublin	115
,, Edinburgh	116
,, Glasgow	116
,, Liverpool	116
,, Manchester	117
,, Northumberland and Durham	118
,, Nottingham	118
,, Southern Counties	118
,, Yorkshire	118
,, Paris	119
Anthem—"Bow down Thine ear."—William Beale	105
Festival Anthem—"My heart is inditing."—Myles B. Foster. (Extra Supplement).
General News (London)	119
Foreign Notes	121
Obituary	123
Correspondence	125
Answers to Correspondents	125
Brief Summary of Country News	125
List of Music published during the last Month	127

MISS ALICE OWEN (Soprano)
Address, John Stedman, Esq., 58, Berners Street, W.

MR. W. H. WEBB (Bass)
For Ballad Concerts, Masonic, and Oratorio.
Vacant dates, &c., address, Danby Villa, The Avenue, Ladywell, S.E.
Lincoln Musical Union.—"The Messiah."—"Mr. W. H. Webb, who has a voice of great power and compass, thoroughly justified his selection for the interpretation of the bass solos. His vigorous and correct delivery of the recit. 'For behold, darkness,' and the succeeding air, 'The people that walked,' was very fine, whilst his rendering of 'Why do the nations' was admirable in every way, and gained for him quite an ovation at the close. Mr. Webb's concluding air, 'The trumpet shall sound,' was splendidly sung."—Lincolnshire Times.

DR. J. M. BENTLEY, Hon. F.R.A.M.—Instruction in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, and ORCHESTRATION per post. Address, Messrs. Novello and Co.

SOPRANO REQUIRED, for established Concert Party. Good opportunity for Young Lady about finishing studies. Good voice and appearance indispensable. Address, Musicus, care of Rose and Co., Sheppy Yard, Minories, E.C.

WANTED, a BOY with good voice and knowledge of music, for private chapel choir. Apply to Evelyn, Countess of Craven, Ashdown Park, Shrivenham.

WANTED, at once, TWO CHORISTERS for the Parish Church, Yeovil. Good readers. Terms: Free education at first-class Grammar School, free musical education (pianoforte, &c., by Organist), and six guineas per annum. Apply, Organist, 9, Kingston, Yeovil.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

BENDALL, W.—"A Legend of Bregenz." A Ballad. For Female Voices. The poem written by ADELAIDE A. PROCTER. Paper cover, 1s. 6d.

GAUL, A. R.—"Toilers of the deep." Cantata. For Female Voices. Verse by JAMES STRANG. Paper cover, 2s.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ—Six Polonaises. Arranged for Violin and Pianoforte by SIEGFRIED JACOBY. 3s.

ILIFFE, FREDERICK—The Forty-eight Preludes and Fugues of John Sebastian Bach. Analysed for the use of Students. (No. 56. Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Music Primers and Educational Series. Edited by Sir JOHN STAINER and Dr. C. HUBERT H. PARRY.) In Four Parts, 1s. each; or, complete in One Volume, 3s.; paper boards, 4s.

STUBBS, G. EDWARD—Practical Hints on the Training of Choirboys, with an Introduction by the Rev. J. S. B. Hodges. 3s. 6d.

ELGAR, EDWARD—Scenes from the Saga of King Olaf. Vocal Parts, 1s. 6d. each.

JONES, W. H. HAMMOND—194 Old Nursery Rhymes and Songs, with New Tunes. 2nd Series. 2s. 6d.

HANDLEY, EDWARD—"The Children's Supplement." Being a Collection of Hymns for Children's Services, to which are added Three Forms of Service for use in Church. Cloth, cut flush, 4d.; paper cover, 3d.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW. No. 56. Contains the following Music in both Notations:—"The Queen—God bless her!" A Patriotic Part-Song. By MYLES B. FOSTER. Arranged for Soprano Solo and Chorus. Easy Studies in Time and Tune. 1½d.

NOVELLO'S SCHOOL SONGS.—Edited by W. G. MCNAUGHT. Published in two forms. A. Voice Parts, in Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, 8vo size; B. Voice Parts only in Tonic Sol-fa Notation.

		A.	B.
No. 228.	Song of the Trees. Action Song. ROLAND ROGERS	—	1½d.
„ 273.	Victoria—Our Queen!.. .. J. BARNBY	—	1d.
„ 297.	Oh! the flowery month of June. W. JACKSON	1d.	—
„ 411.	The True Patriot. Two-part Song. Welsh and English words .. J. H. ROBERTS	1d.	—
„ 412.	To the woods away .. J. H. ROBERTS	1d.	—
„ 416.	The coming of Arthur. Two-part Song. Welsh and English words J. H. ROBERTS	1d.	—
„ 428.	Forth to the meadows .. FRANZ SCHUBERT	2d.	—
——	Book 75. Twelve School Songs, with Welsh and English words .. .. J. H. ROBERTS	—	4d.

COSTA, MICHAEL—"The Dream." A Serenata. Written by WILLIAM BARTHOLOMEW. Book of Words, 7s. 6d. per 100.

BEETHOVEN—Vesper Hymn (Two Versions). On card. (No. 329. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 1d.

DALE, ARTHUR—"Rejoice, the Lord is King." Hymn Tune. 1d.

WAY, GEORGE—Six Tunes, to Hymns 35, 235, 488, 515, 525, and 582 in "The People's Hymnal." 6d.

CLEMSON, WALTER J.—(in G). An easy choral Communion Service. 2d.

GODFREY, ARTHUR E.—(in G). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. (No. 326. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 4d.

STAMMERS, I. HERBERT—(in F). Te Deum laudamus (No. 1). 3d.

COOKE, HERBERT L.—(in E flat). Benedicite, omnia Opera. 1½d.

STEANE, BRUCE—"Benedicite, omnia Opera, Domini, Domino"; or, "The Song of the Three Holy Children." 1½d.

CHINNER, W. B.—"O Lord, Who by Thy presence." An Evening Prayer in the form of a Part-song. For S.A.T.B. 4d.

FOSTER, MYLES B.—"My heart is inditing of a good matter." Festival Anthem. For Soprano Solo, Chorus, Orchestra, and Organ. To commemorate Her Majesty's reign. (No. 564. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 4d.

MACKENZIE, A. C.—"Lord of Life." Prayer from "A Jubilee Ode." The words written by JOSEPH BENNETT. (No. 566. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

ROBERTS, J. VARLEY—"Behold, I send the promise of my father." Anthem. For Whitsunday. (No. 554. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 4d.

—— "The Story of the Cross." For Voices and Organ. With Short Interludes, giving opportunity for meditation. The words written by Rev. E. MONRO. (No. 557. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

MAUNDER, J. H.—"We declare unto you glad tidings." Anthem. For Easter and general use. 3d.

SCHUBERT, FRANZ—"Where Thou reignest." Anthem. For Quinquagesima or general use. The words written by the Rev. BENJAMIN WEBB, and adapted by F. A. W. DOCKER. (No. 563. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

WILSON, JOHN—Christmas Carol. On card. 1d.

BARNBY, J.—"Victoria—our Queen!" A Patriotic Chorus. The words written by A. C. AINGER. Words only, 3s. per 100.

HATTON, J. L.—"England." Arranged for S.S.A. by W. G. MCNAUGHT. The words written by MARY COWDEN CLARKE. (No. 309. Novello's Octavo Edition of Trios, &c., for Female Voices.) 2d.

PIERSON, H. HUGH—"Hurrah for Merry England." Arranged for Soprano Solo and Chorus (S.S.A.). The words written by BARRY CORNWALL. (No. 310. Novello's Octavo Edition of Trios, &c., for Female Voices.) 2d.

PARRATT, WALTER—"Carmen Scholare" (Past and Present). (No. 9. Eton School Songs.) 6d.

GALLWEY, GEORGE T.—"My Mother's Voice." Song. For Medium Voice. 2s.

LEWIS, HENRY KING—"Praise Notes." Song. For Medium Voice. The words written by C. E. MUDIE. 2s.

HULME, CONSTANCE M.—"Among the Brambles." Song. For Tenor Voice. 2s.

SPINNEY, T. E.—"The sea hath its pearls." Song. The words translated by H. W. LONGFELLOW from the German of HEINRICH HEINE. 2s.

NOVELLO'S ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS for the ORGAN:—

		s.	d.
No. 252.	Caprice .. .. .. W. WOLSTENHOLME	1	6
„ 253.	Fantasia in C sharp minor .. A. M. GOODHART	2	6
„ 254.	Andante in G .. .. G. F. WESLEY MARTIN	0	6

NOVELLO'S PUBLICATIONS in the TONIC SOL-FA NOTATION. Edited by W. G. MCNAUGHT.

No. 953.	The Village Blacksmith .. J. L. HATTON	1½d.
„ 954.	England .. .. J. L. HATTON	1d.
„ 955.	Hurrah for merry England H. HUGH PIERSON	1d.
„ 956.	The Queen—God bless her! .. MYLES B. FOSTER	1d.
„ 957.	Where is he? .. .. BEETHOVEN	1½d.

MACKENZIE, A. C.—"The Dream of Jubal." Choruses only. 1s.

ALTO WANTED, for a Church in the North of London. Stipend, £15 per annum. Duties: Two Services on Sundays; on Christmas and Good Friday mornings; and Dec. 31, at 11.30 p.m.; and Practice, Friday, at 8 p.m. Apply to S., 5, Northampton Park, Canonbury, N.

TENOR and ALTO WANTED. Salaries, £25. Address, Choirmaster, Choir Vestry, Christ Church, Lancaster Gate, W.

BASS (£16) WANTED, for Christ Church, Blackfriars Road, S.E. Communicant. Two Services on Sundays and a weekly rehearsal. Apply, by letter only (with one testimonial), to Mr. Ernest Winchester, Organist and Choirmaster, 16, Lambert Road, Brixton Hill, S.W.

BASSES (deep) WANTED, for Holy Trinity, Sloane Street. Salary, £25 to £35. Must be good readers. Apply (by letter only), Walter Alcock, The Vestry.

A GENTLEMAN (residing near the Oratory), who has studied at the Leipzig Conservatorium and at Dresden, would like to devote three hours a week to TRAINING two intelligent painstaking BOYS, aged between 11 and 14, in the art of PIANOFORTE PLAYING. They must show real talent for music, and be able to practise not less than two hours each day. Terms could be arranged with anyone possessing necessary qualifications. References given and required. Apply, in writing, to Serious Study, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER desires RE-ENGAGEMENT. 14 years' experience. Highest certificates and testimonials. H. W., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

MANAGER desires APPOINTMENT. Good buyer, smart salesman, tuner, and business man. Highest references and guarantee. Organo, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co.

FIRST-CLASS TUNER WANTED. Permanent. Must be pushing business man. State salary, age, and references. Enclose photo. Piano, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER.—Only thoroughly experienced reliable men need apply. Moon and Sons, Plymouth.

MUSIC, NEW AND OLD.

FREE ON APPLICATION.

ROBERT COCKS & CO.'S

"THEMATIC AND ILLUSTRATED ALBUM

OF

RECENT MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS"

(68 pages full music size), containing

60 SPECIMEN PAGES OF COMPOSITIONS AND 300 EXAMPLES IN MUSICAL NOTATION

OF

SONGS	DANCE MUSIC
VOCAL DUETS	VIOLIN MUSIC
CANTATAS & OPERETTAS	MANDOLINE MUSIC
CHILDREN'S SONGS	VIOLONCELLO MUSIC
ACTION SONGS	ORGAN MUSIC
RECITATION MUSIC	EDUCATIONAL WORKS
PIANOFORTE MUSIC	&c. &c.

TOGETHER WITH

55 PORTRAITS OF AUTHORS AND COMPOSERS AND 115 REPRODUCTIONS OF TITLE-PAGES

The whole forming an invaluable aid to the selection of New Music of every description.

Sent Post-free on application.

N.B.—The Works mentioned in this Album have been published since 1890.

ALSO

ROBERT COCKS & CO.'S

ILLUSTRATED ALBUM

OF

"SOME IMMENSELY POPULAR MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS"

(16 pages full music size),

CONTAINING

133 REPRODUCTIONS OF TITLE-PAGES OF SONGS, DUETS, PIANOFORTE MUSIC, EDUCATIONAL WORKS, &c.

Sent Post-free on application.

N.B.—The Works mentioned in the above Album were published prior to 1890.

LONDON: ROBERT COCKS & CO.,

Music Publishers to H.M. the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales,

6, NEW BURLINGTON STREET, W.

ESTABLISHED 1823.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

PUBLISHED ON THE 1ST OF EVERY MONTH. Price 1½d. ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION, INCLUDING POSTAGE, 2s.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW FOR FEBRUARY CONTAINS:—

GENERAL NOTES.
MUSIC COMPETITIONS AT WORKINGTON.
THE ASSOCIATED BOARD EXAMINATIONS.
SIGHT SINGING FROM THE STAFF. By DR. CHARLES VINCENT.
A NEW MUSICAL COLLEGE.
SIGHT SINGING. By TALLIE MORGAN.
GRADUATED EXERCISES FOR SCHOOL CLASSES.—STAFF NOTATION AND TONIC SOL-FA.
"VICTORIA," THE NEW PATRIOTIC SONG, AND "GOD SAVE THE QUEEN."
COMPETITIONS AT DOUGLAS, ISLE OF MAN.
TWO SCHOOL CONCERTS—THE GROCERS' COMPANY'S SCHOOL AND HIGHGATE SCHOOL.
MOVABLE DOH DISCUSSIONS.
CORRESPONDENCE.
MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

FOR FEBRUARY,

CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING MUSIC IN BOTH NOTATIONS:—

"HOW MERRILY WE LIVE." Glee for Three Voices. By MICHAEL ESTE. Arranged for S.S.A.
"THE ARETHUSA." Unison Song. By SHIELD.
EASY STUDIES IN TIME AND TUNE.

ALSO, A SPECIAL MUSIC SUPPLEMENT, CONTAINING "NOW PRAY WE FOR OUR COUNTRY." By ELIZA FLOWER. Arranged for S.S A. (No. 287, Novello's School Songs, price 1d.).

The Music and Exercises can always be obtained separately. Price 1½d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WANTED, at once, Young Man as TUNER, who thoroughly understands Pianos, American Organs, and Harmoniums. Must be obliging. State age and salary. Must help in warehouse if required. Send photo; references indispensable. Commission on all sales. Thuell, Falmouth.

WANTED, at once, First-class TUNER and REPAIRER. Special advantages offered to good man. State full particulars to Thanet Music Stores, Queen Street, Margate.

WANTED, for the Country, PIANOFORTE TUNER and REPAIRER. Must also thoroughly understand American Organs and Harmoniums. Apply, L. P., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER.—WANTED, an IMPROVER. Must tune well; reliable, energetic; of good appearance and address. State age, experience, and salary expected, enclosing photo. X. X., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

WANTED, thoroughly competent REGULATOR and REPAIRER of Pianofortes, American Organs, and Harmoniums, for permanency. Apply, E. F. Allen and Sons, Wolverhampton.

YOUNG MAN, able to Tune and assist in repairs, has had experience in selling pianofortes and small goods desires SITUATION. B., The Lawns, Leighton Buzzard.

TUNER.—Thorough good First-class and reliable MAN desires permanent APPOINTMENT. Highest references. M. A., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

CHURCH ORGAN.—2 manuals, 5 stops on swell, 4 on great, pedal Bourdon, 3 couplers tremulant. Neat case, decorated front. Part payment taken, balance by arrangement. Photo and specification free. W. Beales, Organ Builder, Limes Rd., Croydon.

PEDALIER WANTED (PLEYEL, WOLFF). Must be in good playing condition. J. B. Bernard, Northam, Bideford.

GOOD FRIDAY SERVICES. — Choirmasters Should write to the AUTHOR for a specimen copy of "THE MAN OF SORROWS," a Service specially arranged for the day. Published by WEEKES and Co., London. Price 6d., either notation. Author's address, Mr. E. MASON, Mus. Bac., Arbroath.

PROFESSORS of MUSIC.—A well-furnished large FRONT ROOM to LET, at 29, New Bond Street, for Tuition or Practice, by the hour or otherwise (Organ and Piano). Terms very moderate. Address, Z.

CAROLS.—"English Carols of the XVth Century." The Music in the Original and Modern Notations; Fac-simile of the "Agincourt Song," &c. (Pub. 10s. 6d.). Post-free, 5s. (abroad, 5s. 6d.). New copies. HERSEY Bookseller, Thornton Avenue, Chiswick.

SOUTHWELL CATHEDRAL.—LAY CLERK, with Bass voice, WANTED. Stipend, £60 per annum. Candidates must be Communicants of Church of England, and not exceeding twenty-six years of age. Apply, enclosing copies of testimonials, to R. W. Liddle, Esq., Rector Chori, Vicar's Court, Southwell.

BASS or BARITONE WANTED, for Chapel Choir, near Sydenham. No Week-day Services. State terms to H., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 80 & 81, Queen Street, E.C.

ST. MARY'S, Vincent Square, Westminster.—A TENOR WANTED. Salary, £10 per annum. Apply, by letter, to Charles C. Byers, 121, Brigstock Road, Thornton Heath, S.E.

VOLUNTEER CHOIRMEN with Tenor and Bass Voices WANTED. Communion and set Services. Apply to George Norris, Organist, St. Mary's Church, Graham Street, Eaton Square.

SOPRANO (R.A.M. Medalist) will accept ENGAGEMENTS for Concerts, Oratorios, At Homes, for expenses. Medalist, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

TO CONCERT AGENTS, MANAGERS, &c. Contralto requires Engagements, paid or otherwise, in London and suburbs. Pupil of eminent masters and excellent voice. Address, E. T., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TENOR (St. John the Baptist's, Holland Park) and BASS (St. Mary Abbotts, Kensington) are open to Engagements for Stainer's "Crucifixion" during Lent. Terms moderate. Address, P. B., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST WANTED, for St. John's Church, Wembley. Previous experience necessary. Testimonials. Salary, £20. For full particulars, apply, A. T. Ellison, Churchwarden, Wembley, Middlesex.

ORGANIST WANTED, for the Parish Church of a large Northern town. Salary, £60. Apply, Vicar, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER REQUIRED, for St. Catherine's Church, Leytonstone. Apply, by letter only, stating qualifications and salary expected, to the Rev. J. Kennedy, Vicarage, Hainault Road, Leytonstone, N.E.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for Peckham Rye Congregational Chapel. Salary, £20. Apply, with copies of testimonials, to Sec., 12, Carden Road, Peckham Rye, S.E.

WANTED, at once, a thoroughly efficient ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER, to live in parish, with no duties outside of musical profession, for small country town near Portsmouth. Must be able to train choir for choral communions and other musical services. Must be Communicant and earnest Churchman. Salary, £70 per annum, and if thoroughly competent to teach music and singing, £30 additional will be guaranteed for first year. Address, with copies of testimonials, A. B. F., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ASSISTANT-ORGANIST REQUIRED. Lessons and practice on organ in return (Church ten minutes from Bank). F. C. B., care of Breul and Co., 6, Ludgate Square, E.C.

ORGANIST.—MR. F. J. MARCHMENT takes VACATION or occasional SUNDAY WORK, Oratorio Accompaniments, &c. Wingfield, Hamlet Road, Upper Norwood, S.E.

PIANIST and ORGANIST requires DAILY ENGAGEMENT. Any capacity. Aged 20. References. H. Cocks, 45, Raymouth Road, S.E.

ORGANIST and C.M. of a Parish Church desires RE-APPOINTMENT. Experienced. Excellent testimonials. Willing to act as Assistant in large church. A.R.C.O., Newstead, Champion Park, Sydenham.

WANTED, good AMATEUR PLAYERS (Strings, Bassoon, Clarinet, Horn, and Drum), for the Church Orchestral Society. For particulars, apply to the Secretary, Hon. Richard Strutt, Rayleigh House, Chelsea, S.W.

VIOLINIST (Amateur) would be glad to meet with ACCOMPANIST for weekly practice. Write, B. C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, by Musical Student, BOARD and RESIDENCE in a thorough Musician's house, where first-rate accompanying can be given. References exchanged. Moderate terms. Z. T., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER and REPAIRER WANTED, at once. Must have knowledge of Organs and Harmoniums. Energetic and reliable. Apply, Mrs. Amfield, Music Warehouse, Dolgelly.

WANTED, first-class Country TUNER for East of England district. Must be energetic, pushing, and steady. Married man preferred. State full particulars, experience, age, and salary. S. B., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

OUT-DOOR TUNER (Country) for Piano and Organ work. None but thoroughly competent men need apply. B., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER WANTED. State age, experience, and terms. J. Nield and Son, Music Warehouse, Stockport.

TUNER (First-class) REQUIRED, for Out-door work; also Second Tuner for In-door work; the latter to live in. Send photo, also wages required, to G. A. S., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER.—WANTED, First-class PIANO TUNER. Permanent and comfortable berth for a good pushing man. Salary, expenses, and commission. Enclose photo, with references, stating salary required, age, if married, &c., to Duck, Son and Pinker, Bath.

SITUATION WANTED, by a thoroughly experienced PIANOFORTE and ORGAN TUNER, REPAIRER, and REGULATOR, for a permanency. Highest references. 15 years' practical experience. Address, Tuner, 8, Portman Street, Rowbarton, Taunton, Somerset.

WANTED, an ENGAGEMENT as REPAIRER and IMPROVER to the Tuning. Minim, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

GOOD ASSISTANT for Piano, Violin, and Music Trade WANTED, for Town in Midlands. Send photo. State age, references, previous experience, and salary required. C. W., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

APPRENTICE WANTED, where he will receive first-class training for Tuning, Repairing, and Selling Pianos, Organs, and Small Goods. Premium required. Abstainer preferred. Town near Birmingham. J. P. W., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MANAGER or SALESMAN. APPOINTMENT REQUIRED by Advertiser as above. Aged 33 years. Good appearance and address. 17 years' experience in best houses. Well up in small goods, sheet music, theatre tickets, concert agency, band and entertainment departments. Town or country. Wages moderate. B. H., 14, Oxford Circus Avenue, W.

PIANOFORTE and MUSIC TRADE.—Manager, thoroughly experienced, shortly DISENGAGED. Highest references. Allegro, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, RE-ENGAGEMENT in a good-class MUSIC WAREHOUSE. Well up in the Catalogues. Pushing saleswoman; excellent references. Apply, C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MANAGER-SALESMAN. Energetic man, aged 34, thoroughly experienced, will be DISENGAGED in February. Would not object to travel for Publisher or with Instruments. Address, Auto-harp, care of Willings, 162, Piccadilly.

PARTNER with £750 to £1,000 WANTED, by Music Publisher, proprietor of valuable copyrights in constant growing demand. Musical Instrument business attached. A splendid opportunity for an energetic man. Sleeping Partnership would be entertained. Write, Mackenzie, Nicholson and Co., 147, Cheapside, London, E.C.

ORGAN PRACTICE. Three manuals and pedals. One shilling per hour. The South London Organ Studio, 343, Coldharbour Lane, close to Brixton Station.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three manuals; independent pedals. Terms, One Shilling per hour. Specification post-free. Blennerhasset's Studio, 1A, Vernon Street, King's Cross, W.C.

NEW ORGAN STUDIO, with Three-manual PIPE ORGAN, blown by water. Terms for Practice, 1s. per hour. At Smyth's Music Depôt, 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE, from £20, with pedals. Instruments for Church, Chapel, and College, built on the most modern principles, at Bedwell and Sons', Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge.

A LARGE New Two-Manual ORGAN for SALE. Tubular. Great organ, nine stops; swell organ, eleven stops; pedal organ, four stops; couplers, &c. To be seen at A. Hunter and Son's, Organ Builders, High Street, Clapham, S.W.

ORGAN (Three manuals), to be made to suit any place of worship. Organs (Two manuals), 9, 12, and 17 stops. W. E. Richardson, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester.

CC ORGAN for SALE. A bargain. 3 manuals, 31 stops, 2 on pedals, 3 reeds. Suitable for Church, Chapel, Public or Gentleman's Hall. Apply, Organ, 21, Lynton Road, Leytonstone, E.

ORGAN for SALE. Two manuals, 13 stops, Bourdons, and pedals. Organs tuned and repaired. R. Cope, Jardin Street, Camberwell, S.E.

ORGANS for SALE on EASY TERMS.—Four 2-manual ORGANS (new): 30 stops; 21 stops; 16 stops; 15 stops. Three 2-manual Organs (second-hand): 22 stops; 15 stops; 14 stops. A grand Chamber Organ (just upon new), 15 stops, in a very elaborate case, with satinwood panels. Organs built to any specification, all constructed on the most improved principles of high-class work at low prices. Tuners sent to all parts of the kingdom. A. Monk's Organ Works, 550, Holloway Road, N.

FOR SALE.—Two-manual ORGAN (modern); handsome oak case, illuminated pipes, 18 stops, 3 composition pedals. Price £150. Address, Organ, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGAN, small, three (or two) manuals and pedals, WANTED, for private house. Specifications and dimensions to Y. K., 138, Holloway Road, N.

THREE-MANUAL ORGAN for SALE, containing 28 stops. Rebuilt by Bishop. Space wanted. No reasonable offer refused, Apply to Norman and Beard, 46, Queen Victoria Street, London, E.C.

CHURCH ORGAN for SALE. 2 manuals, 17 stops. Built by Robson. In good order. Price £125. Apply to Norman and Beard, 46, Queen Victoria Street, London, E.C.

FOR SALE.—The fine Three-manual ORGAN, recently removed from Bath Abbey. This instrument, originally built by Messrs. Hill, has been entirely reconstructed, and can be seen by appointment at our works at Norwich. For complete specification, price, &c., apply to Norman and Beard, 46, Queen Victoria Street, London, E.C.

ORGAN for SALE. New. Two manuals, 22 stops, 6 compositions. Tubular to pedals. Finest tone and workmanship. Space wanted. Henry Speechly and Son, St. Mark's Road, Dalston, N.E.

CHURCH ORGANS. Very fine. 2 manuals and pedals, 30 stops, compositions, &c., £180. Also, 16 stops, £130. Eustace Ingram, 361, Liverpool Road, London, N.

TWO-MANUAL and PEDAL AMERICAN ORGANS, at Bargain Prices for Cash. A 165-guinea "Bell," two manuals and pedals, for 75 guineas; a £350 three-manual and pedal "Mason and Hamlin," 31 stops, 21 sets; a £70 "Karn" Organ, with Suber's Patent Pedals, 25 guineas; a £220 two-manual and pedal "Mason and Hamlin," 65 guineas; a two-manual "Alexandre" Harmonium, 15 guineas. Also several large Organs and Harmoniums by Bell, Smith, Estey, Karn, Alexandre, Trayser, &c., at one-third usual price. Every instrument guaranteed. Packing or carriage free. Inspection invited. Messrs. Stagg and Sons, 56, Red Lion St., Holborn.

9 GUINEAS.—AMERICAN ORGAN (list price, 20 guineas), 11 stops, including two knee-stops and the beautiful solo stops voix celeste and vox humana, two octave couplers, handsome high case; in use about four months; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged. Packing and carriage free. Approval. Full price paid will be allowed within three years if exchanged for a higher-class instrument. D'Almaine and Co. (established 111 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

A. HUNTER AND SON have just built a Three-manual and Pedal Organ of 27 speaking stops, couplers, &c. The Organ is built on the Carl G. Weigle (of Stuttgart) system, with membrane chest with the ordinary combination pistons; also the free combination knobs; also the crescendo and decrescendo arrangements on all registers and couplers; also three pedals to act on all three manuals, pedals, and couplers collectively. A. H. and Son respectfully invite the Clergy and Profession and others interested in organs to inspect this organ at their Factory, 65A, High Street, Clapham, S.W. The Organ will be on view from February 1 every day in the week (except Sundays), from 10 a.m. till 5 p.m., until further notice.

A. HUNTER and SON also beg to state that they are appointed the Sole Agents for the sale of the Carl G. Weigle System for the United Kingdom and the British possessions.

TO ORGAN STUDENTS.—Set of PEDALS for SALE. Rushton's Patent. Splendid condition. No reasonable offer refused. Smith, 42, Belleville Road, Wandsworth Common, S.W.

TO ORGAN STUDENTS.—Pedal PIANOFORTE. Overstrung, Upright Grand, fitted with Norman Bros. and Beard's (Norwich) pneumatic pedals, C C C to F; Royal College of Organists' pattern. Sold at sacrifice. £40; cost £60 in 1895. Apply to Owner, by letter only, Rev. C. E. Carnegie, Bygrave Rectory, Baldock, Herts.

HARPSICHORD. — Fine old Instrument, by Kirkman, in perfect working order, £40. Harp, double-action, Erat. Perfect order. £25. Morley, Harp Maker, South Kensington Station.

14 GUINEAS.—PIANO, solid iron frame upright grand; worth 30 guineas; full compass, trichord, celeste action, &c.; in handsomely carved walnut wood case, four feet in height; in use only six months; sent on approval, carriage free, to any part of the United Kingdom; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged; full price paid will be allowed if exchanged for a higher class instrument within three years. D'Almaine and Co. (established 111 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, City. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

FOR SALE.—Old Italian VIOLIN. Sweet, refined, mellow tone. Price £35. On view at Klitz's Music Warehouse, 26, Hanway Street, Oxford Street.

FOR SALE.

A VALUABLE "OLD LOTT" Double-Bass. Made for the owner in the year 1843 from a "Dragonetti" Model by the above famous maker. In good condition, with two bows. Sole reason for parting, advanced age (79). Apply, Mr. George Sharp, Cobholm, Great Yarmouth.

VIOLINS AND CELLOS.

COLLIN-MÉZIN (of Paris),

VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, AND BOW MAKER.

Gold and Silver Medals at the Exhibitions of Paris, 1878; Paris, 1879; Paris, 1889—Academical Palms (Fine Arts).

THE MOST PERFECT IN THE WORLD.
USED BY THE GREATEST ARTISTS,
AND CONSIDERED BY MASTERS
THE MODERN STRADIVARIUS.

"No comparison can be made, the Instruments of Collin-Mézin being the Instruments for Soloists."—Camillo Sivori.

METZLER AND CO., 42, Marlborough Street, London, W.,
Sole Wholesale and Retail Agents.

Awarded Medal of Honour at the International Inventions Exhibition, London, 1885.

THE ONLY AWARD.

RUMMENS'
Organ Pedal Attachment

FOR PIANOFORTES.

DETACHABLE PEDAL BOARD.
EQUAL TO ORGAN PRACTICE.

Testimonials from all the Chief Organists of the day.
Write for particulars to

H. J. RUMMENS,
47, CHURCH ROAD, BRIXTON, S.W.

ORGAN PEDALS to PIANOS.—New method of Attachment by TUBULAR PNEUMATIC. This action surpasses all mechanical actions for prompt and Organ-like Touch. It is less expensive, easy to attach, and does not injure the most delicate Pianoforte. Prospectus, with full description and price lists, on application to Norman Bros. and Beard, Organ Works, Norwich.

VIOLIN STRINGS.—Send 9d. for samples of four best "E" Strings. Alphonse Cary, 3, Oxford Circus Avenue, London, W.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. R. Willis (from Minories), 2, Church Row, Aldgate, London, E.C.

T. R. WILLIS (from Minories, est. 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Strings, Wire, Violins, Concertinas, &c. 2, Church Row, Aldgate, E.C.

HYDRAULIC ENGINES for Organ Blowing. Blennerhasset's Patent "Perfect" Prize Medal Engines are the best. 1B, Vernon Street, King's Cross Road, London, W.C.

TORQUAY.

OLD BUSINESS IN "THE QUEEN OF WATERING PLACES" WITH EXTENSIVE
MUSIC, HIRING, AND TUNING CONNECTION FOR DISPOSAL,

Proprietor retiring from business.
Principals only. Apply, by letter, X. L., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

FIRST-CLASS PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS, in the Midlands, for SALE. Exceptionally fine premises. Proprietor retiring. Address, Midlands, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANISTS and others requiring only a limited number of their Compositions should send for DINHAM, BLYTH and CO.'s SPECIMENS (free) of their auto-litho printing. Anthems, Kyries, Songs, &c., from 24 copies and upwards. 28, Fenchurch Street, London. Established 1872.

THE OLD FIRM.

P. CONACHER & CO.,
Organ Builders,
SPRINGWOOD WORKS,
HUDDERSFIELD.
TWO GOLD MEDALS.

NICHOLSON AND CO.,
ORGAN BUILDERS,
PALACE YARD, WORCESTER.
(ESTABLISHED 1841.)
Specifications and Estimates sent free.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.
MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 7, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights, Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

FOURTEENTH MUSICAL PRIZE COMPETITION.—FOUR PRIZES of THREE GUINEAS each for Tunes suitable to be sung by Children at Sacred Festivals. Send stamps for conditions and words of Hymns.
JAMES BROADBENT, 13, Brunswick Place, Leeds.

TO COMPOSERS. — WANTED, ANNIVERSARY TUNES, with new Words and attractive Music; TEMPERANCE SONGS appropriate to the Band of Hope Jubilee this year; CANTATAS suitable for Children, &c. Composer should state price and enclose stamps for return of MSS. Address, Musical Editor, Sunday School Union, 57, Ludgate Hill, London, E.C.

JENNY LIND, Verdi, Gounod, Berlioz, Liszt, Chopin, &c. Catalogue of Interesting Musical Literature FREE. Home and abroad. Hersey, Bookseller, Thornton Avenue, Chiswick.

COMPLETE AND REVISED EDITION.

THE BRISTOL TUNE BOOK

CONTAINING

905 TUNES AND CHANTS.

A COMPANION TO ALL HYMN BOOKS.

Although nearly every denomination has its own Tune Book, the wealth of special tunes and metres contained in the Bristol Tune Book renders it indispensable to every well-equipped Choir.

		s.	d.
No. 17.	Limp Cloth	5	0
,, 18.	Cloth Boards, red edges	6	0
,, 19.	Small Edition	3	6
,, 20.	Tonic Sol-fa	3	6

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.
Bristol: W. CROFTON HEMMONS, Stephen Street.
And all Booksellers and Musicsellers.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.
THE TUNE BOOK, with the additional Tunes as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN, containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Third Thousand.
TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in G. By ALFRED J. DYE. Price 4d.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat, for Full Orchestra and Organ. By FELIX W. MORLEY, M.A., Mus.B., Cantab. Octavo score, with Organ Accompaniment, price 6d. The Orchestral Parts may shortly be had on hire from the COMPOSER.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Fourth Thousand.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat.
By WILLIAM S. VINNING, Mus. Bac., Cantab. Price 3d.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Second Thousand.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in F.
By ARTHUR CARNALL, Mus. Bac., Cantab. Price 4d.
Sample copies free from A. CARNALL, Penge.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

GILL'S EASY VOLUNTARIES. — "Messiah," "Judas," "Elijah," "St. Paul," "Creation." 1s. each book.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC FOR LENT.

BENEDICITE in B flat	EDWIN H. LEMARE	net 3d.
,, C	ARTHUR E. GODFREY	,, 3d.
REND YOUR HEART (Baritone Solo and Chorus)	ARTHUR E. GODFREY	,, 4d.
CREATE IN ME A CLEAN HEART (Treble (or Tenor) Solo and Chorus)	PERCY J. FRY	,, 3d.

Full list of "The Burlington Series of Modern Church Music" on application.
ROBERT COCKS and Co., 6, New Burlington Street, London, W.

EASTER ANTHEMS
BY
J. H. MAUNDER.

	Staff.	Tonic.
CHRIST IS RISEN (Easy)	3d.	2d.
WE DECLARE UNTO YOU (Just Published. Medium) ..	3d.	2d.
SING UNTO THE LORD (Difficult)	3d.	—

Also,
THREE POPULAR SETTINGS OF THE BENEDICITE:—
No. 1, in A, 1½d.; No. 2, in G, 2d.; No. 3, in F, 1½d.
and
THREE POPULAR EVENING SERVICES:—

Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in C	3d.	2d.
,, ,, in D	3d.	—
,, ,, in G (New)	3d.	—

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC
BY EDWARD BUNNETT, MUS.D., CANTAB.

SERVICES.

Two Settings of the Venite (in Chant Form). No. 1 (in G), No. 2 (in A)	2d.
Te Deum in E	3d.
Benedictus and Jubilate in E	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in E	3d.
Cantate and Deus in E	3d.
Communion Service	9d.
Preces and Responses	4d.
Tonic Sol-fa.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F	1½d.
,, ,, ,, A	1½d.
,, ,, ,, E	1½d.

ANTHEMS.

EASTER ANTHEM—"If we believe"	4d.
,, ,, ,, Tonic Sol-fa	1½d.
,, "I will magnify Thee"	3d.
,, ,, ,, ,, Tonic Sol-fa ..	1½d.
FESTIVAL—"O clap your hands"	4d.
,, ,, Tonic Sol-fa	2d.
,, "I was glad"	3d.
,, ,, ,, Tonic Sol-fa	2d.

SONG—"By the Wayside" (Soprano), with Violin Obbligato and Organ or Harmonium	net 2s.
"The Last Prayer" (Contralto)	,, 2s.

ORGAN.

Twelve Short Easy Pieces	net 2s. od.
Three Short Andantes	,, 2s. od.
Minuetto	,, 1s. 6d.
Ave Maria	,, 1s. 6d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Third Edition.
CANTATA
THE SONG OF THE REDEEMED
Composed for St. James's Church, New York.
Suitable for Easter.
BY GEORGE B. ARNOLD, MUS. DOC., OXON.
Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

NEW EASTER MUSIC, &c.,
BY CALEB SIMPER.

IF YE THEN BE RISEN WITH CHRIST.

Price 4d. Tonic Sol-fa, 2d. A powerful and inspiring Anthem, containing a grand and impressive Bass Solo.

ANNIVERSARY SELECTION, No. 4. Price 2d. Tonic Sol-fa, 2d. Interesting, stirring, catchy, and effective. Contains Six Pieces and an Anthem.

Also the following universal favourites:—

*O LET YOUR SONGS BE OF HIM. 7th 1,000 .. .. 3d.
*AND BEHOLD I AM ALIVE. 9th 1,000 .. .. 4d.
*TO HIM BE GLORY. 7th 1,000 .. .. 3d.
*KING OF KINGS. New and very popular Easter Anthem.. .. 4d.

Twenty-second Thousand. Now ready.

*CHRIST OUR PASSOVER. New Easter Anthem. 9th 1,000 .. 4d.
*I AM HE THAT LIVETH. 15th 1,000 .. .. 4d.

Sung at several Choral Festivals.

HE IS RISEN (77th ed.). O SING TO THE LORD (6th 1,000) each 3d.
WHY SEEK YE (22nd ed.). IF WE BELIEVE (15th 1,000) .. each 3d.
AND BEHOLD THERE WAS A GREAT EARTHQUAKE. 14th 1,000 .. 3d.
THE LORD IS MY STRENGTH 12th 1,000 .. .. 3d.
HALLELUJAH! NOW IS CHRIST RISEN. 16th 1,000.. .. .. 3d.

An easy arrangement of a portion of Handel's "Hallelujah" Chorus.

*THIS IS THE LORD'S DOING. 5th 1,000 .. .. 3d.
*AWAKE, THOU THAT SLEEPEST. 14th 1,000 .. .. 3d.
CHRIST IS RISEN. 12th edition .. .. 4d.
EASY HOLY COMMUNION SERVICE in E flat. 14th 1,000 .. .. 4d.
*EASY HOLY COMMUNION SERVICE in G. 5th 1,000 .. .. 4d.
HOLY COMMUNION SERVICE, in F. 10th edition .. .. .. 6d.
POPULAR FESTAL CHANT TE DEUM in A flat. 8th 1,000.. .. 2d.
TE DEUM in G. 13th edition. 4d. TE DEUM in F. 32nd edition 3d.
CELEBRATED MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS in F. 73rd edit. 4d.

Sung at Fifteen Choral Festivals.

FAVOURITE MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIM. in E flat. 27th edition 4d.

Sung at Three Choral Festivals.

MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS in G. 10th edition .. .. 4d.
NEW FESTAL MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIM. in B flat. 2nd 1,000 4d.
*NEW MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS in D. 9th edition .. 4d.

Partly in unison. Already a great favourite.

POPULAR BENEDICITES in A, B flat, F, and E flat.. .. each 2d.

Those marked (*) are also published in Tonic Sol-fa.

THE ROLLING SEASONS

A New Sacred Cantata. By CALEB SIMPER.

Price 1s. 6d. net. Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. net.

Band Parts are also printed for Strings, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon, 2 Horns, 2 Cornets, 2 Trombones, Timpani, and Organ.

With the exception of Two Hymns and a Carol, the words are selected from the Holy Scriptures. The music, both Vocal and Instrumental, is attractive, interesting, and not difficult. It requires Four Soloists and Full Chorus, and occupies 35 minutes in performance. This Cantata may be rendered with Organ Accompaniment only, but the Orchestral Parts add greatly to the effect. It is especially suitable for Church use at Whitsuntide and Harvest-tide.

London: WEEKES and Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.
Chicago, U.S.A.: CLAYTON F. SUMMY Co., 220, Wabash Avenue.

Very effective, and not difficult.

EDWYN A. CLARE'S

NEW AND ATTRACTIVE

EASTER ANTHEMS.

CHRIST SHALL GIVE THEE LIGHT

6th 1,000. Price 3d. Very pleasing, easy, and melodious.

THANKS BE TO GOD

7th 1,000. Price 4d.

Contains melodious and expressive Solos for Bass and Soprano (or Tenor), with Two animated, imitative, and telling Choruses. Also,

HE IS RISEN (13th 1,000). WHY SEEK YE (10th 1,000) .. each 3d.
HALLELUJAH! NOW IS CHRIST RISEN. 8th 1,000 .. .. .. 3d.
NOW IS CHRIST RISEN. 7th 1,000 .. .. 3d.
THE LORD REIGNETH. 5th 1,000 (Sol-fa, 2d.) .. .. .. 3d.
PRAISE THE LORD, O JERUSALEM. 16th 1,000 .. .. .. 3d.

A popular and easy Anthem, suitable for any season.

MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS, in D. 9th 1,000 .. .. 4d.

Sung at a Choir Festival at Petersham, New South Wales.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

COMPOSITIONS BY WM. HURST.

NEW SETTING of "THE STORY OF THE CROSS." Voices and Organ, with Solo (ad lib.) for Soprano or Tenor. 4d.
"A beautiful setting of this popular Lenten Hymn."—Burton Gazette and Press.
SIX OFFERTORY SENTENCES, with Threefold Amen for conclusion of a Service. In the Press. 4d.
BENEDICITE, with Quadruple Chant for Te Deum. 3d.
ANTHEM—"I will lay me down in peace." 3d.
"An effective Anthem for a well-balanced choir."—Church Bells.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR THE LENTEN SEASON.

THIRD THOUSAND.

SONG OF THE PASSION

(ACCORDING TO ST. JOHN)

A SACRED CANTATA

FOR

SOLO, RECITATIVE, AND CHORUS

With Hymns introduced to be sung by the Congregation, the words specially written for this work by MILDRED GAUNTLETT

THE MUSIC BY

WILLIAM S. VINNING

Mus. Bac., Cantab.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

"This composition is the work of a competent musician, and, from beginning to end, is full of reverent, tuneful, and appropriate music. We do not see how it could be better done."—Church Times.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

The Hymns, with Music, may be had separately, price Twopence.
Orchestral Parts may be hired.

Ninth and Tenth Thousand.

ALFRED R. GAUL'S

PASSION SERVICE

NEW SACRED WORK

FOR THE SEASON OF

LENT AND GOOD FRIDAY.

"Scholarly writing, combined with unmistakable talent, and eminently adapted to the purpose for which it was written and composed. The work will probably be largely used, and Mr. Gaul have to be congratulated upon another success."—Sheffield Independent.

"The course of sacred events connected with the Passion is laid out by the writer so as to form a series of six distinct 'scenes.' The subjects of these divisions, each occupied with a particular stage of the Mystery, are respectively—'The Traitor at the Table,' 'The Denial,' 'The Condemnation before Pilate,' 'The Mockery on Calvary,' 'The Shadow of Death,' and 'The Holy Sepulchre.' The style of the composition resembles generally that of Mr. Gaul's previous writings—the same effective, grateful part-writing, and the same expressive and melodious treatment of the solo voice. In those sections, notably that of the Unjust Condemnation, where the realistic element is predominant, the composer has manifested his ability to write with dramatic force and intensity as well as with lyric charm. In this respect the choral writing distinguished itself in comparison with that in the 'Holy City,' and other of the composer's works. Mr. Gaul has not written new hymn tunes for the author's lyrics; the tunes selected are from among those in ordinary congregational use. Altogether considered, Mr. Gaul's new work will, undoubtedly, greatly enhance his already high reputation in the line of sacred composition."—Musical Standard.

Price, paper cover, 2s. 6d.; paper boards, 3s.; scarlet cloth, 4s.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

The loan of Orchestral Parts on application to the COMPOSER.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

MUSIC FOR LENT.

ANTHEMS.

*All ye who weep	Ch. Gounod	3d.
Art thou weary	C. H. Lloyd	6d.
*As pants the hart	Spohr	1½d.
Be merciful unto me	H. Purcell	6d.
Be merciful unto me	E. A. Sydenham	3d.
Blessed are they that mourn	A. W. Batson	3d.
Blessed Jesu, Fount of Mercy	Anton Dvorák	6d.
Bow Thine ear, O Lord	W. Byrd	3d.
*By Babylon's wave	Ch. Gounod	6d.
By the waters of Babylon	W. Boyce	4d.
By the waters of Babylon	H. Clarke	4d.
Call to remembrance	J. Battishill	6d.
*Cast thy burden upon the Lord	Mendelssohn	1½d.
*Come, and let us return	J. Goss	3d.
*Come, and let us return	W. Jackson	3d.
Come, let us worship	Palestrina	1½d.
*Come now, and let us reason together	R. Briant	1½d.
*Come unto Him	Ch. Gounod	2d.
Come unto Me	H. R. Couldrey	3d.
Come unto Me	M. Kingston	1½d.
Come unto Me	J. S. Smith	1½d.
*Comfort, O Lord	W. Crotch	1½d.
Daughters of Jerusalem	G. J. Elvey	1½d.
Daughters of Jerusalem	H. J. King	3d.
Distracted with care	J. Haydn	4d.
*Enter not into judgment	T. Attwood	1½d.
Flee from evil	W. J. Clarke	3d.
For our offences	Mendelssohn	1½d.
From the deep	Spohr	6d.
Give ear, O Lord	C. Oberthür	1½d.
*Give ear, O Lord	T. M. Pattison	2d.
Give ear, O Shepherd of Israel	A. Whiting	3d.
Give ear unto my prayer	J. Arcadelt	1½d.
*God so loved the world	J. Goss	1½d.
*God so loved the world	M. Kingston	1½d.
*God so loved the world	J. V. Roberts	3d.
*God so loved the world	J. Stainer	1½d.
Grant, we beseech Thee	J. Booth	1½d.
Grant, we beseech Thee	J. V. Roberts	3d.
Have mercy upon me, O God	J. Goss	4d.
Have mercy upon me	K. J. Pye	3d.
Have mercy upon me	J. Shaw	3d.
Have mercy upon me	J. White	1½d.
*Hear me when I call	King Hall	1½d.
*Hear my prayer	J. Kent	3d.
*Hear my prayer	Mendelssohn	4d.
Hear my prayer	C. Stroud	4d.
Hear my prayer	Winter	1½d.
Hear, O Lord	J. Goss	2d.
Hear, O Thou Shepherd	J. Clarke-Whitfeld	4d.
Hear, O Thou Shepherd	T. A. Walmisley	4d.
*Hear the voice and prayer	J. L. Hopkins	1½d.
Hear us, O Saviour	M. Hauptmann	1½d.
He in tears that soweth	F. Hiller	1½d.
Hide not Thy Face	K. J. Pye	2d.
*Hymn of Peace	W. H. Callcott	1½d.
*Incline Thine ear	Himmel	1½d.
In Thee, O Lord	S. Coleridge-Taylor	3d.
*In Thee, O Lord	B. Tours	3d.
In Thee, O Lord	J. Weldon	3d.
Is it nothing to you?	M. B. Foster	2d.
I will arise	C. Wood	1½d.
I will cry unto God	C. Steggall	3d.
*I wrestle and pray	J. C. Bach	4d.
*Jesu, Blessed Word of God	Ch. Gounod	1½d.
Jesu, Lord of life and glory	G. A. Naumann	1½d.
Jesu, Saviour, I am Thine	B. Steane	1½d
*Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	Ch. Gounod	1½d.
*Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	W. S. Hoyte	1½d.
*Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	Mozart	1½d.
Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	J. White	1½d.
Lead, kindly Light	R. Dunstan	3d.
Lead, kindly Light	C. L. Naylor	4d.
*Lead, kindly Light	J. Stainer	4d.
Lead me, Lord	S. S. Wesley	1½d.
Let the words of my mouth	J. Barnby	1½d.
Let the words of my mouth	H. Blair	1½d.
Let the words of my mouth	A. D. Culley	3d.
Let us come boldly	C. H. Lloyd	1½d.
Like as the hart	T. Adams	3d.
*Like as the hart	V. Novello	1½d.
*Lord, for Thy tender mercies' sake	R. Farrant	1½d.
Lord, for Thy tender mercies' sake	G. R. Vicars	1½d.
Lord, I call upon Thee	A. D. Culley	1½d.
Lord, I call upon Thee	J. E. West	1½d.
Lord, on our offences	Mendelssohn	1½d.
Make me a clean heart	J. Barnby	3d.
Make me a clean heart	A. W. Batson	3d.
My God, look upon me	J. L. Hopkins	3d.
*My God, look upon me	J. Reynolds	1½d.
O come near to the Cross	Ch. Gounod	8d.
O day of penitence	Ch. Gounod	6d.
O God, Thou hast cast us out	H. Purcell	4d.
O have mercy	H. Leslie	1½d.
O Jesu! Victim blest	J. B. Powell	3d.
*O Lamb of God	J. Barnby	3d.
O Lamb of God	G. E. Lake	1½d.
O Lord, correct me	J. Coward	1½d.
O Lord God of my salvation (Male voices)	E. Ford	4d.
O Lord God, Thou strength	J. Goss	1½d.
O Lord, look down	J. Battishill	3d.
*O Lord, my God	C. Malan	1½d.
*O Lord, my God	S. S. Wesley	1½d.
O Lord, rebuke me not	H. Lahee	1½d.
O most merciful	J. W. Elliott	1½d.
O saving Victim	W. A. C. Cruickshank	3d.
O saving Victim	Ch. Gounod	4d.
*O saving Victim	F. Kœnig	1½d.
O saving Victim	Rossini	3d.
O saving Victim	B. Tours	1½d.
*O Saviour of the world	J. Goss	1½d.
O Saviour of the world (A.T.T.B.)	J. V. Roberts	2d.
Out of the deep	F. E. Gladstone	3d.
Out of the deep	Mozart	1½d.
Out of the deep	J. Naylor	4d.
Ponder my words, O Lord	A. D. Culley	1½d.
*Remember not, Lord	H. Purcell	1½d.
*Remember now thy Creator	C. Steggall	4d.
Remember, O Lord	T. A. Walmisley	4d.
Rend your heart	J. Clippingdale	3d.
Save me, O God	C. S. Jekyll	1½d.
*Seek ye the Lord	C. Bradley	1½d.
*Seek ye the Lord	J. V. Roberts	3d.
Show me Thy ways	J. V. Roberts	3d.
Spare us, Lord, most holy	E. A. Sydenham	1½d.
*Teach me, O Lord	T. Attwood	1½d.
*Teach me, O Lord	B. Rogers	1½d.
Teach me Thy way	W. H. Gladstone	1½d.
*The path of the just	J. V. Roberts	1½d.
The sacrifices of God	H. Blair	1½d.
*The Story of the Cross	M. B. Foster	3d.
*The Story of the Cross	A. Somervell	3d.
*The Story of the Cross	J. Stainer	3d.
*The Story of the Cross	J. V. Roberts	3d.
Think, good Jesu	Mozart	6d.
*Through peace to light	J. H. Roberts	3d.
Thus saith the Lord	G. M. Garrett	6d.
Try me, O God (A.T.T.B.)	A. D. Culley	2d.
Try me, O God	C. Wood	1½d.
Turn Thee again, O Lord	T. Attwood	1½d.
*Turn Thy face from my sins	T. Attwood	1½d.
Turn Thy face from my sins	C. Steggall	4d.
*Turn Thy face from my sins	A. Sullivan	1½d.
Unto Thee have I cried	G. J. Elvey	3d.
Wash me throughly	S. S. Wesley	3d.
Watch ye and pray	G. R. Vicars	2d.
Word of God Incarnate	Ch. Gounod	3d.
Ye who from His ways have turned	Mendelssohn	3d.

Anthems marked thus * to be had in Tonic Sol-fa, 1d., 1½d., and 2d. each.

THE PASSION OF CHRIST. G. F. HANDEL. Octavo, 3s.; paper boards, 3s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 5s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (The Seven Words of our Saviour on the Cross.) J. HAYDN. Octavo, 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (The Seven Words of our Saviour on the Cross.) CH. GOUNOD. Octavo, 1s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. ("Der Tod Jesu.") C. H. GRAUN. Octavo, 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. HEINRICH SCHÜTZ. Octavo, 1s.

OUT OF DARKNESS (Psalm cxxx.). For Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra. GEORG HENSCHEL (Op. 30). 2s. 6d.

ZION'S WAYS DO LANGUISH. Soprano Solo and Chorus, from "Gallia" (Motet). CH. GOUNOD. Octavo, 1s.

OUT OF DARKNESS (De Profundis) (Psalm cxxx.). For Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra. Composed by Ch. GOUNOD. English or Latin words. Octavo, 1s.; paper boards, 1s. 6d.; Full Score, 15s.; String Parts, 4s. 6d.; Wind Parts, 7s.; Vocal Parts, 3s.

THE MISERERE, &c., as used in St. Paul's Cathedral Lenten Services. Arranged by J. STAINER. 8vo. Price 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. The Music composed by J. BARNBY. 8vo. Price 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. Set to the well-known Ancient Chant, as arranged and harmonised by VINCENT NOVELLO; from the Appendix to the Accompanying Harmonies to the Brief Directory of Plain-song, by the Rev. THOMAS HELMORE, M.A. Price 2d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. The Music composed by EDGAR PETTMAN. Price 1½d.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

ANTHEMS FOR EASTER.

Above all praise and all majesty	Mendelssohn	1½d.
*All men, all things	Mendelssohn	4d.
As Christ was raised	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
*As it began to dawn	M. B. Foster	1½d.
As it began to dawn	C. Vincent	3d.
*As Moses lifted up the serpent	F. Gostelow	3d.
As we have borne	J. Barnby	1½d.
At the Lamb's high feast	E. V. Hall	3d.
At the Sepulchre	H. W. Wareing	4d.
*Awake, thou that sleepest	J. Stainer	6d.
*Awake up, my glory	J. Barnby	1½d.
Awake up, my glory	B. Haynes	1½d.
Awake up, my glory	M. Wise	3d.
Be glad, O ye righteous	H. Smart	4d.
*Behold, the Angel of the Lord	B. Tours	1½d.
*Behold the Lamb—All glory to the Lamb	Spohr	1½d.
*Blessed be the God and Father	S. S. Wesley	4d.
Blessed be Thou	Kent	4d.
Blessing and glory	Boyce	1½d.
*Blessing, glory	B. Tours	4d.
Break forth into joy	J. Barnby	1½d.
*Break forth into joy	S. Coleridge-Taylor	3d.
*Break forth into joy	T. R. Prentice	6d.
*Break forth into joy	B. Steane	3d.
*Christ being raised from the dead	G. J. Elvey	1½d.
Christ being raised from the dead	S. Webbe	1½d.
Christ both died and rose	E. W. Naylor	3d.
Christ is risen	G. B. J. Aitken	3d.
Christ is risen	M. Crament	3d.
*Christ is risen	G. J. Elvey	1½d.
*Christ is risen	E. H. Thorne	1½d.
*Christ is risen	J. V. Roberts	3d.
*Christ our Passover	J. Goss	1½d.
Christ our Passover	E. V. Hall	3d.
Christ our Passover	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
*Christ our Passover	B. Tours	1½d.
*Christ the Lord is risen to-day	E. V. Hall	3d.
Come, ye faithful	E. V. Hall	3d.
For it became Him	O. King	1½d.
For us the Christ	Ch. Gounod	3d.
*From Thy love as a Father	Ch. Gounod	1½d.
Give thanks unto God	Spohr	4d.
God hath appointed a day	B. Tours	1½d.
God, Who is rich in mercy	G. M. Garrett	1½d.
Hallelujah! Christ is risen	B. Steane	3d.
*Hearken unto Me	M. B. Foster	1½d.
*He is risen	H. Gadsby	1½d.
*If we believe that Jesus died	J. Goss	1½d.
If we believe that Jesus died	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
If ye then be risen	J. Naylor	3d.
I declare to you the Gospel	W. A. C. Cruickshank	4d.
I will alway give thanks	J. B. Calkin	1½d.
*I will alway give thanks	J. Clarke-Whitfeld	3d.
I will greatly rejoice	W. A. C. Cruickshank	4d.
*I will magnify Thee	J. B. Calkin	4d.
I will magnify Thee	B. L. Selby	1½d.
*I will mention	A. Sullivan	6d.
I will sing of Thy power	M. Greene	4d.
*I will sing of Thy power	A. Sullivan	1½d.
Jesus Christ is risen to-day	O. King	4d.
Let God arise	M. Greene	6d.
Lord, before Thy footstool bending	Spohr	3d.
Lord Christ! when Thou hadst overcome	Haydn	1½d.
*Lord, Thy arm hath been uplifted	Spohr	2d.
*Lo, the winter is past	B. Farebrother	3d.
Lo, the winter is past	H. Gadsby	3d.
Magnify His Name	G. C. Martin	4d.
My beloved spake	H. Purcell	6d.
My heart was glad	A. Carnall	4d.
Not unto us, O Lord	H. Gadsby	6d.
*Not unto us, O Lord	T. A. Walmisley	1½d.
*Now is Christ risen	G. B. Allen	1½d.
*Now is Christ risen	J. E. West	1½d.
*Now on the first day of the week	H. Lahee	1½d.
O clap your hands	M. Greene	4d.
*O clap your hands	J. Stainer	6d.
O clap your hands	E. H. Thorne	6d.
O clap your hands	T. T. Trimnell	3d.
*O give thanks	J. Goss	3d.
O give thanks	S. S. Wesley	4d.
*On the first day of the week	E. M. Lott	1½d.
Open to me the gates	F. Adlam	4d.
*Praise His awful Name	Spohr	2d.
Praise Jehovah	Mendelssohn	4d.
*Rejoice in the Lord	J. B. Calkin	3d.
*Rejoice in the Lord	G. J. Elvey	1½d.
Rejoice in the Lord	G. C. Martin	6d.
Rejoice, O ye people	Mendelssohn	1½d.
*Sing praises unto the Lord	W. A. C. Cruickshank	1½d.
*Sing praises unto the Lord	Ch. Gounod	6d.
Sing to the Lord	Mendelssohn	8d.
Thanks be to God	J. W. Gritton	3d.
The Day of Resurrection	E. V. Hall	3d.
*The end of the Sabbath	A. Carnall	1½d.
*The first day of the week	B. Steane	3d.
The Lord hath brought us	E. H. Thorne	3d.
*The Lord hath done great things	H. Smart	4d.
*The Lord is King	J. Pittman	1½d.
*The Lord is King	T. T. Trimnell	4d.
The Lord is my strength	S. Coleridge-Taylor	3d.
*The Lord is my strength	W. H. Monk	1½d.
*The Lord is my strength	V. Novello	1½d.
*The Lord is my strength	H. Smart	1½d.
*The Lord is risen	G. M. Garrett	4d.
*The strain upraise	A. Sullivan	1½d
*They have taken away my Lord	J. Stainer	1½d.
This is the day	S. C. Cooke	3d.
This is the day	E. V. Hall	4d.
This is the day	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
This is the day	A. W. Marchant	3d.
*This is the day	J. Sewell	2d.
This is the day	J. Turle	3d.
When Christ Who is our life shall appear	J. V. Roberts	2d.
When my soul fainted within me	J. F. Bridge	1½d.
*Who is like unto Thee?	A. Sullivan	6d.
*Why rage fiercely the heathen?	Mendelssohn	6d.
Why seek ye the living?	A. Alexander	3d.
Why seek ye the living? (Two-part)	M. B. Foster	3d.
*Why seek ye the living?	E. J. Hopkins	1½d.
Why seek ye the living?	F. Peel	4d.
Worthy the Lamb—Hallelujah!	Crotch	3d.
*Worthy is the Lamb	J. F. Barnett	1½d.

*Anthems marked thus * to be had in Tonic Sol-fa, 1d., 1½d., and 2d. each.*

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

IN THE PRESS.

CAROLS FOR EASTER.

REV. T. HELMORE. CAROLS FOR EASTER-TIDE. Words, 1½d.; Melody, 6d. .. .. Vocal score 1s.

J. T. FIELD. FOUR EASTER CAROLS .. .. 2d.

The Crown is on the Victor's brow.
Christ is risen!
Welcome, happy morning.
Easter flowers are blooming bright.

E. G. MONK. SING THE BATTLE SHARP AND GLORIOUS. Carol 1½d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SACRED SONGS
FOR LITTLE SINGERS

WORDS BY F. R. HAVERGAL

MUSIC BY

A. RANDEGGER.

Illustrated, paper cover, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 5s.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HYMN TO THE CREATOR

(THE SONG OF ST. FRANCIS OF ASSISI)

MOTET

FOR SOPRANO SOLO, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

The Words translated by Mrs. OLIPHANT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

J. FREDERICK BRIDGE, MUS. DOC.

(Organist of Westminster Abbey).

Price One Shilling net.
Orchestral Parts may be had.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HOLIDAY SONGS

Written by C. F. ALEXANDER

MUSIC BY

LADY ARTHUR HILL.

Reduced Price, 2s. 6d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CAREFULLY REVISED & ENTIRELY NEW ENGLISH VERSION.

THE
PASSION OF OUR LORD
(ACCORDING TO ST. MATTHEW)
SET TO MUSIC BY
JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH.

THE ENGLISH TRANSLATION AND ADAPTATION BY THE
REV. DR. TROUTBECK, D.D.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

EXTRACT FROM PREFACE.

Thirty-three years have elapsed since the publication of the first English edition, and faithful to its original as that edition may have been in the main, it has been felt that closer adherence to the accepted standard text is attainable, and, as far as is at all practicable, should be attained. With this view the present edition is issued. The chorales, choruses, and solos have been newly and independently translated from the original German words, and the adaptation of the narrative of the Evangelist, a task rendered perhaps somewhat less difficult and hazardous by the aid of the Revised Version of the New Testament, has been carefully reconsidered and re-arranged so as to preserve unaltered, as far as may be, the musical text of the original.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ABRIDGED VERSION
AS USED IN
ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL
OF THE
PASSION OF OUR LORD
(ACCORDING TO ST. MATTHEW)
SET TO MUSIC BY
JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE
PASSION OF OUR LORD
(ACCORDING TO ST. JOHN)
SET TO MUSIC BY
JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH.

THE ENGLISH TRANSLATION AND ADAPTATION BY THE
REV. DR. TROUTBECK, D.D.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS.
Paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PASSION MUSIC
FROM THE ORATORIO "ST. PETER"
BY
SIR JULIUS BENEDICT.

Vocal Score, 1s. 6d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE
STORY OF THE CROSS
FOR VOICES AND ORGAN
WITH SHORT INTERLUDES, GIVING OPPORTUNITY FOR MEDITATION
THE WORDS BY THE
REV. E. MONRO
SET TO MUSIC BY
J. STAINER
MYLES B. FOSTER
ARTHUR SOMERVELL
AND
J. VARLEY ROBERTS

PRICE THREEPENCE EACH SETTING
Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

THE
STORY OF THE CROSS
WRITTEN BY THE
REV. E. MONRO.

WORDS ONLY. Price 1s. 6d. per 100.
Large Type Edition, 2s. 6d. per 100.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE REQUIEM
FROM
"MORS ET VITA"
BY
CH. GOUNOD.

8VO, PAPER COVER	2s. 6d.
PAPER BOARDS	3s. 0d.
FULL SCORE	£2 2s. 0d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE CRUCIFIXION
A MEDITATION
ON THE
Sacred Passion of the Holy Redeemer
THE WORDS SELECTED AND WRITTEN BY THE
REV. W. J. SPARROW-SIMPSON, M.A.
SET TO MUSIC BY
J. STAINER.

This Work is an attempt to supply the want long felt of an easy and short form of Passion Music suitable for use in ordinary Parish Churches. It is composed for two solo voices, a Tenor and a Bass, and for the church choir. At intervals hymns occur, in which the whole congregation can join. The performance will probably not extend over forty minutes in duration, thus giving an opportunity for a suitable "address" if thought advisable. No orchestra is required, the accompaniments being specially adapted for the organ only; much of the expense usually attending Passion Services will therefore be avoided. The book of the words, for distribution among the congregation, contains the music of the Hymns; by this means it is hoped that the congregation will be induced to take part heartily in the service.

VOCAL SCORE, PAPER COVER, ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE.
PAPER BOARDS, TWO SHILLINGS. TONIC SOL-FA, NINEPENCE.
WORDS ONLY, WITH HYMN TUNES, TWOPENCE EACH.
WORDS, COMPLETE, TEN SHILLINGS PER HUNDRED.
WORDS OF HYMNS, FIVE SHILLINGS PER HUNDRED.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE EPIPHANY

OR

MANIFESTATION OF CHRIST TO THE GENTILES

A SACRED CANTATA

FOR SOLI, CHORUS, AND ORGAN

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

H. J. EDWARDS.

Price Two Shillings.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE LAST NIGHT AT BETHANY

A SHORT CHURCH CANTATA

THE WORDS WRITTEN AND COMPILED BY

JOSEPH BENNETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

C. LEE WILLIAMS.

Price 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.
Tonic Sol-fa, One Shilling.
String Parts, 8s. 6d.; Wind Parts, 15s. 6d.; Full Score, MS.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

GETHSEMANE

A CHURCH CANTATA

THE WORDS WRITTEN AND COMPILED BY

JOSEPH BENNETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

C. LEE WILLIAMS.

Price Two Shillings.
Paper Boards, Two Shillings and Sixpence.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.
String Parts, 10s. 6d. Wind Parts and Full Score, MS.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

VEXILLA REGIS

(THE ROYAL BANNERS FORWARD GO)

The Latin Words from "The Seven Great Hymns."
Translated by the Rev. J. M. NEALE, D.D.

SET TO MUSIC BY

H. R. SHELLEY.

Vocal Score, paper cover, 2s. 6d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

IS IT NOTHING TO YOU

AN EASY CANTATA

For use during the Season of Lent, and on Good Friday, specially adapted for Country Choirs

BY THE

REV. E. V. HALL, M.A.

Late Precentor of Worcester Cathedral.

Price Eightpence. Tonic Sol-fa, Threepence.
Words, with Music to the Hymns, price Twopence.

This is an attempt to provide music for Lent and for Good Friday of the simplest kind, for use in country churches. The music is interspersed with well-known hymns, in which the congregation may be invited to join. The Cantata may be used at a special service on Good Friday afternoon or evening, or on any day in Lent, and requires only a solo voice and a small choir.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SAVIOUR OF THE WORLD

(SALVATOR MUNDI)

A SACRED CANTATA

THE WORDS WRITTEN AND ARRANGED FROM HOLY SCRIPTURE BY

FREDERICK E. WEATHERLY, M.A.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

ARTHUR E. DYER,

Mus. Doc., Oxon.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

EASTER HYMN

(MANE PRIMA SABBATI)

SET TO MUSIC FOR

SOPRANO AND TENOR SOLI, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA (OR ORGAN)

BY

GEORGE J. BENNETT.

Composed for the Festival of the Sons of the Clergy, St. Paul's Cathedral, 1895.

Price One Shilling.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

RIDE ON! RIDE ON IN MAJESTY

HYMN FOR PASSION SUNDAY

Words by the Very Rev. DEAN MILMAN

SET TO MUSIC BY

ARTHUR HENRY BROWN.

Price Three-Halfpence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE BENEDICITE

SET TO MUSIC BY THE FOLLOWING

MODERN COMPOSERS.

GEORGE J. BENNETT (in E flat)	1½d.
GEORGE J. BENNETT (in G)	1½d.
GEORGE J. BENNETT (in D)	3d.
W. T. BEST	3d.
HUGH BLAIR	1½d.
J. F. BRIDGE, JAMES TURLE, and Dr. HAYES	1½d.
H. B. C.	1½d.
J. W. ELLIOTT	2d.
ALFRED J. EYRE (with a Quadruple Chant for the Te Deum)	2d.
ALFRED J. EYRE (No. 2, in F)	1½d.
MYLES B. FOSTER (in F, Chant Form)	4d.
PERCY H. FROST	2d.
HENRY GADSBY (in G, Chant Form)	1½d.
F. E. GLADSTONE (Chant Form)	3d.
F. E. GLADSTONE (Unison)	1½d.
F. A. J. HERVEY (in A flat). From the Canticles (second set)	2d.
W. HUGHES	1½d.
FREDERICK ILIFFE (No. 1)	1½d.
C. HARFORD LLOYD	2d.
GEORGE C. MARTIN (No. 1, in F; No. 2, in E flat; No. 3, in G) each	4d.
T. R. MATTHEWS	1½d.
C. E. MILLER (second setting)	2d.
EDGAR PETTMAN (No. 1, in C; No. 2, set to Double Chants). Cathedral Psalter pointing	2d.
EDGAR PETTMAN (in E flat)	1½d.
J. VARLEY ROBERTS (in B flat)	4d.
BOYTON SMITH (in A flat)	1½d.
CHAS. W. SMITH (in C). For S.A.T.T.B., also simplified form for S.A.T.B.	6d.
J. STAINER and B. BLAXLAND	1½d.
J. STAINER, R. DE LACY, A. GIBBS, and F. CHAMPNEYS	1½d.
J. STAINER, W. WINN, and F. WALKER	1½d.
J. STAINER (in D). From the Canticles (second set)	2d.
J. BARNBY JOHN FOSTER MONTEM SMITH (two settings) J. TURLE (two settings) C. A. WICKES (two settings)	1½d.
JOHN E. WEST (in C)	1½d.
W. G. WOOD (in D)	1½d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Will be Published on February 10.

THE

CROSS OF CHRIST

CANTATA FOR LENT AND PASSION-TIDE

THE WORDS SELECTED FROM THE HOLY SCRIPTURES, INTERSPERSED WITH APPROPRIATE HYMNS BY

W. MAURICE ADAMS

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

THOMAS ADAMS

Organist and Director of the Music at St. Alban's, Holborn.

Price One Shilling.
Tonic Sol-fa Edition, price Sixpence.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

Also, separately from the above,

NEARER, MY GOD, TO THEE

Anthem for Soprano Solo and Chorus, price Threepence.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR LENT.

THE

STORY OF THE CROSS

FOR VOICES AND ORGAN

BY

EDWARD BUNNETT, MUS.D., CANTAB.

PRICE TWOPENCE.

By same Composer:

TWO SETTINGS OF THE

BENEDICITE

One in E major and one in F major.

PRICE TWOPENCE EACH.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HYMNS FOR EASTER.

J. BARNBY.	CHRIST THE LORD IS RISEN TO-DAY	1½d.
W. T. BEST.	JESUS CHRIST IS RISEN	3d.
DR. IONS.	JESUS CHRIST IS RISEN TO-DAY	1½d.
J. B. CALKIN.	LIGHT'S GLITT'RING MORN BEDECKS	1½d.
V. NOVELLO.	JESUS CHRIST IS RISEN TO-DAY	1½d.

NINE HYMNS WITH TUNES FROM "THE HYMNARY" .. 1d.

Christ the Lord is risen to-day	G. J. Elvey.
Far be sorrow, tears, and sighing	C. Steggall.
Welcome, happy morning! age to age shall say	A. Sullivan.
Come, ye faithful, raise the strain	A. Sullivan.
At the Lamb's high feast we sing	German.
The day of Resurrection	H. Smart.
Jesus Christ is risen to-day	Ch. Gounod.
O Blessed Trinity	Old Melody.
Soon the fiery sun ascending	German.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Fourth Edition.

BENEDICITE, OMNIA OPERA. Set to music by W. H. HOLLOWAY. Price 2d.
"A pleasing and varied setting."—Manchester City News.

ALSO,

HE IS RISEN. Anthem for Easter. Duet and Chorus. Price 3d.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW EASTER ANTHEMS.

WHEN CHRIST, WHO IS OUR LIFE, SHALL APPEAR

BY

J. VARLEY ROBERTS.

Price Twopence.

OPEN TO ME THE GATES

BY

FRANK ADLAM.

Price Fourpence.

I DECLARE TO YOU THE GOSPEL

BY

W. A. C. CRUICKSHANK.

Price Fourpence.

LO! THE WINTER IS PAST

BY

BERNARD FAREBROTHER.

Price 3d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

IN THE PRESS.

O COME LET US SING

BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

In the Press.

BENEDICITE, OMNIA OPERA

(IN CHANT FORM)

SET TO MUSIC IN THE KEY OF F

BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

(No. 328. Novello's Parish Choir Book.)

Price Fourpence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Will be Published To-day.

THE CHILDREN'S SUPPLEMENT

BEING A COLLECTION OF

HYMNS FOR CHILDREN'S SERVICES WITH MUSIC

EDITED BY

THE REV. EDWARD HANDLEY, M.A.,

Magdalen Coll., Oxford.

New Tunes have been specially written for this book by Sir JOHN STAINER, Dr. CHARLES W. PEARCE, Dr. CHARLES VINCENT, Dr. STEGGALL, Mr. MYLES BIRKET FOSTER, and many other eminent Musicians.

Price Three Shillings and Sixpence.
Words only, cloth, Fourpence; paper covers, Threepence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWO £3 PRIZE TUNES and Four others Highly Commended. Suitable for Sunday School Festivals. For specimen copies of the set send two halfpenny stamps to C. SISSONS, Woodhead Road, Sheffield.

Now Ready. On the 1st of each Month, 228 Cols. 2d.; Post-free, 3½d.
MUSICAL OPINION and MUSIC TRADE REVIEW. 150, Holborn Bars, E.C.

FOR CELEBRATIONS OF THE QUEEN'S REIGN.

SACRED MUSIC.

WILL BE PUBLISHED IMMEDIATELY

A COLLECTION OF

HYMNS WITH TUNES

SUITABLE FOR USE AT SERVICES TO BE HELD IN COMMEMORATION OF

THE QUEEN'S LONG REIGN.

The Hymns have been written expressly for the occasion by the Rev. W. ST. HILL BOURNE, the Rev. S. CHILDS CLARKE, the Rev. W. J. FERRAR, the Rev. S. BARING-GOULD, the Rev. H. D. RAWNSLEY, the Rev. BERNARD REYNOLDS, the DEAN OF ROCHESTER, and FRANCIS T. PALGRAVE.

And are set to Tunes by Sir ARTHUR SULLIVAN, Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Sir JOHN STAINER, Sir WALTER PARRATT, Professor BRIDGE, Dr. MARTIN, Dr. LLOYD, DR. KEETON, Messrs. J. E. WEST, J. H. MAUNDER, BATTISON HAYNES, and the late Sir JOSEPH BARNBY.

These Tunes have, with one or two exceptions, either been written expressly for the Hymns or have not been previously published.

IN THE PRESS.

A SELECTION OF TUNES from the above Collection, arranged for Military Band by Dan Godfrey, Jun.

ANTHEMS.

	s.	d.
MY HEART IS INDITING. (Just Published) Myles B. Foster Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.	0	4
LET EVERY SOUL BE SUBJECT UNTO THE HIGHER POWERS. For Soprano and Tenor Soli and Chorus .. J. Stainer Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.	0	1½
LORD, THOU ART GOD. For Tenor Solo and Chorus .. .. J. Stainer	0	8
THE KING SHALL REJOICE .. R. Stewart	0	6
BEHOLD, O GOD, OUR DEFENDER. F. W. Hird	0	4
LORD OF LIFE. Prayer from "A Jubilee Ode." (S.A.T.B.) .. .. .. A. C. Mackenzie	0	3
BLESSED BE THE LORD THY GOD. For Bass Solo and Chorus, introducing the National Anthem and H.R.H. Prince Consort's Chorale "GOTHA" .. .. ..J. F. Bridge Tonic Sol-fa, 2d. Performed at the Royal Jubilee Service in Westminster Abbey, June 21, 1887.	0	6
HEAR, O GOD, HEAR MY CRY (Psalm lxi.). Hebrew and English Bible (Revised) Version A. M. Friedlander	0	6
CORONATION ANTHEM, "Let Thy hand be strengthened" .. .. .. Handel Orchestral Parts, with Additional Accompaniments by E. Silas, 4s.; Full Score, MS.	0	6
CORONATION ANTHEM, "My heart is inditing" .. .. Handel Chorus Parts, 1s. 6d.; Orchestral Parts, with Additional Accompaniments by E. Silas, 5s. 9d.; Full Score, MS.	0	8
CORONATION ANTHEM, "The King shall rejoice" .. .. Handel Vocal Parts, 1s. 9d.; Orchestral Parts, with Additional Accompaniments by E. Silas, 6s.; Full Score, MS.	0	8

ANTHEMS—continued.

	s.	d.
CORONATION ANTHEM, "Zadok the Priest" Handel Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.; Vocal Parts, 1s. 1½d.; Orchestral Parts, with Additional Accompaniments by E. Silas, 4s.; Full Score, MS.	0	3

RESPONSES AND CANTICLES.

	s.	d.
FESTIVAL TE DEUM. For Soprano Solo, Chorus, Orchestra, Organ, and Military Band (ad lib.) .. .. .. Arthur Sullivan Paper boards, 1s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 2s. 6d.; Vocal Parts, 4s.; String Parts, 4s. 6d.; Wind Parts, 11s.; Military Band Parts, 5s.; Full Score, 25s.	1	0
THANKSGIVING TE DEUM in D John Goss Folio, 2s.; Vocal Parts (folio), 2s.	0	6
THE RESPONSES and PROPER PSALMS, with Chants for the Accession Service ..	0	1½
*MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in C H. Gadsby	0	6
*MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in B flat (No. 3) .. .. J. Stainer	0	6
*MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in A (No. 2) .. .. J. Stainer	0	6
*MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in B flat H. Smart	0	6
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in B flat (Scored for Military Band) .. G. C. Martin	0	6

 Orchestral Parts, MS., can be hired.*

MARCHES FOR THE ORGAN.

	s.	d.
VICTORIA—OUR QUEEN! March. Founded on themes from Barnby's popular National Song .. .. .. John E. West Band Parts in the Press.	2	0
IMPERIAL MARCH .. .. E. Elgar Band Parts in the Press.	2	0

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

FOR CELEBRATIONS OF THE QUEEN'S REIGN.

SECULAR MUSIC.

CANTATAS.

WILL BE PUBLISHED IMMEDIATELY.

THE BANNER OF ST. GEORGE
A CHORAL BALLAD
The Words by SHAPCOTT WENSLEY
THE MUSIC BY
EDWARD ELGAR.

THE FLAG OF ENGLAND
A CANTATA
For Soprano Solo, Chorus, and Orchestra
The Words by RUDYARD KIPLING
THE MUSIC BY
J. F. BRIDGE.

VICTORIA; OR, THE BARD'S PROPHECY
A CANTATA
For Soli and Chorus
The Words by Rev. CHARLES KENT
THE MUSIC BY G. F. HUNTLEY, Mus. Doc.
Price 2s.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words only, 15s. per 100.

A JUBILEE ODE
A CANTATA
For Soprano and Tenor Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra
The Words by JOSEPH BENNETT
THE MUSIC BY
A. C. MACKENZIE.
Price 2s. 6d. Words only, 15s. per 100.
String Parts, 10s. 6d. Wind Parts and Score, MS.

CARMEN SÆCULARE
AN ODE
For Soprano Solo and Chorus
The Words by TENNYSON
THE MUSIC BY
C. V. STANFORD.
Price 1s. 6d. Orchestral Parts and Full Score, MS.

PART-SONGS AND CHORUSES.

THE QUEEN'S SONG
For Soprano, Alto, Tenor, and Bass
The Words by SIR EDWIN ARNOLD, K.C.I.E., K.S.I.,
THE MUSIC BY
EATON FANING.
Price 4d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 2d. Words only, 3s. per 100.
Band Parts (in the Press).
Arranged also for Female Voices.

ALL HAIL! THE GLORIOUS REIGN
For Soprano, Alto, Tenor, and Bass
The Words by CLIFTON BINGHAM
THE MUSIC BY
F. H. COWEN.
Price 4d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 2d. Words only, 3s. per 100.
Band Parts (in the Press).
Arranged also for Female Voices.

VICTORIA—OUR QUEEN
A PATRIOTIC CHORUS
For S.A.T.B. or Unison
The Words by A. C. AINGER
THE MUSIC BY
JOSEPH BARNBY.
Price 3d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d. Words only, 3s. per 100.
String Parts, 1s. Wind Parts, 2s. 3d.
Arranged also for Female Voices (S.A.), 1d.

THE QUEEN! GOD BLESS HER
A PATRIOTIC PART-SONG
For Soprano, Alto, Tenor, and Bass
The Words by MAY BYRON
THE MUSIC BY
MYLES B. FOSTER.
Price 1½d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1d. Words only, 3s. per 100.
Arranged for Solo and Three-part Chorus (S.S.A.), 1½d.
Male Voice Arrangement (in the Press).

MARCHES.

FOR PIANOFORTE.

VICTORIA—OUR QUEEN
Founded on themes from BARNBY'S popular National Song
BY
J. E. WEST.
Price Two Shillings.

IMPERIAL MARCH
BY
EDWARD ELGAR.
Price Two Shillings.

ORCHESTRAL MUSIC.

In the Press.

VICTORIA—OUR QUEEN
Founded on themes from BARNBY'S popular National Song
By J. E. WEST.
Band Parts and Military Band Arrangement (in the Press).

IMPERIAL MARCH
By EDWARD ELGAR.
Band Parts and Military Band Arrangement (in the Press).

SELECTION OF HYMN TUNES
For Military Band.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

FOR CELEBRATIONS
OF THE
QUEEN'S REIGN.

	s.	d.
MORE THAN CROWN OF MONARCH PRECIOUS. Soprano Solo from "A Jubilee Ode" .. .. .. A. C Mackenzie	2	0
GOD SAVE THE QUEEN. Arranged by Sir Michael Costa. Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.; Vocal parts, 6d.; Full score, 2s. 6d.; Orchestral parts, 5s. 8d. Words only, 1s. per hundred.	0	3
Ditto, ditto. Arranged by Vincent Novello. Vocal parts, 6d.; Orchestral parts, 3s.	0	3
Ditto, ditto. Harmonised by Vincent Novello. Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.	0	1½
Ditto, ditto. Arranged for Male Voices by (Sol-fa, 1d.) J. Barnby	0	2
*Ditto. Arranged for Three Parts (S.S.C.) ..	0	1½
Ditto. Gaelic words ("Dhia, Gleidh an crun"). Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.
RULE, BRITANNIA. Harmonised by (Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.) .. Vincent Novello	0	1½
THE TRIUMPH OF VICTORIA. Madrigal. For Five Voices (S.S.A.T.B.) .. J. Stainer. Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.	0	6
ALL HAIL, BRITANNIA. Madrigal, by A Lotti	0	3
QUEEN OF OUR ISLE. Chorus (S.S.T.T.B.) (Sol-fa, 1½d.) .. Sir Henry R. Bishop	0	1½
THE EMPIRE FLAG. A Patriotic Song. For Solo and Chorus .. .. A. C. Mackenzie	2	0
Ditto. Arranged for S.A.T.B. .. .. .. Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.	0	1½
ENGLAND. (S.A.T.B.) .. .. J. L. Hatton. Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.	0	3
Ditto. Arranged for S.S.A. (Sol-fa, 1d.) ..	0	2
YE GALLANT MEN OF ENGLAND. (S.A.T.B.) E. Hecht	0	3
YE MARINERS OF ENGLAND. (S.A.T.B.) H. Hugh Pierson. Chorus Parts, 6d.; Orchestral Parts, 5s. 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.	0	6
Ditto. Arranged as a Song	1	6
HURRAH FOR MERRY ENGLAND. Solo, with Chorus. (S.A.T.B.).. H. Hugh Pierson. Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.	0	1½
Ditto. Arranged for S.S.A. (Sol-fa, 1d.) ..	0	2
HURRAH FOR MERRY ENGLAND. (S.A.T.B.) (Sol-fa, 1½d.).. .. Francesco Berger	0	1½
Ditto. Folio Edition, with Pianoforte Accompaniment	1	0
HURRAH! HURRAH! FOR ENGLAND J. F. Bridge	0	2
NOW PRAY WE FOR OUR COUNTRY. (with new second verse by G. E. Troutbeck) (S.A.T.B.) .. .. Eliza Flower. Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.	0	1½
PATRIOTIC PART-SONGS for the use of the Army, Navy, and Volunteers. Arranged and adapted by James Tilleard .. complete	0	6
Or, in 19 Nos., 1d. each.

SCHOOL SONGS.

(See also above for S.A. and S.S.A. arrangements of various Four-part Songs.)

TRIOS.

ALBION .. .. Marie Wurm	0	2
*ST. GEORGE FOR ENGLAND G. A. Macfarren	0	1½

TWO-PART SONG.

*YE MARINERS OF ENGLAND H. H. Pierson	0	1½

UNISON SONGS.

*HURRAH FOR ENGLAND W. W. Pearson	0	1
*OLD ENGLAND'S HEROES Rev. W. J. Foxell	0	1½
*NEPTUNE AND BRITANNIA Rev. W. J. Foxell	0	1½

For other Patriotic School Songs, see Novello's Catalogue and Lists.

 The pieces marked * are issued in Staff Notation and Tonic Sol-fa combined.*

For the National Commemoration, 1897.

CANTATA

SONG OF JUBILEE

FOR SOLO VOICES, CHORUS, ORCHESTRA, AND ORGAN.

Special Edition, One Shilling and Sixpence.

BY

DR. JACOB BRADFORD.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Specimen copy to Conductors of Choral Societies and others seeking suitable Work, Post-free, One Shilling and Sixpence.
Address: Author, 157, Kennington Park Road, London, S.E.

NATIONAL ANTHEM.

GOD SAVE OUR GRACIOUS QUEEN

From "Song of Jubilee"

SPECIALLY ARRANGED FOR THANKSGIVING AND OTHER OCCASIONS

BY

DR. JACOB BRADFORD.

Price Sixpence.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ORGAN MUSIC

BY

DR. JACOB BRADFORD.

	s.	d.
OFFERTOIRE, No. I. .. .. price	1	0
OFFERTOIRE, No. VI., "Hanover" .. .. .. ,,	1	6

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THREE ANDANTES .. .. each	2	0
THREE PRELUDES and FUGUES .. .. .. ,,	2	0

London: Breitkopf and Härtel, Great Marlborough St., W.

MUSIC PUPILS' REGISTER

INVALUABLE TO THE PROFESSOR, SCHOOL PRINCIPAL, AND PUPIL

BY

DR. JACOB BRADFORD.

SIXTH EDITION. One Shilling.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just Published.

COMMUNION SERVICE

TROISIÈME MESSE SOLENNELLE

(DE PÂQUES)

COMPOSED BY

CHARLES GOUNOD.

THE ENGLISH ADAPTATION BY

F. A. W. DOCKER.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.
Full Score, 40s.; Orchestral Parts, 31s.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

AN EASY

CHORAL COMMUNION SERVICE

In the Key of G

COMPOSED BY

WALTER J. CLEMSON, M.A.

Price 2d. (8 cents).

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

COMPOSITIONS

BY

VINCENT MORGAN.

O LORD, HAVE MERCY. Anthem for Baritone Solo and Chorus. Suitable for Ash Wednesday or General use .. 6d.
ETERNAL SPRING. Sacred Song for Contralto or Baritone (Orchestra, MS.) 2s.
PART-SONGS (suitable for Choral Societies):—
In my lattice .. .. 2d.
Sleep, baby, sleep .. .. 3d.
The morn of May (Female voices) .. .. 3d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE VERSICLES & RESPONSES

AS USED IN

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL

(FERIAL USE)

EDITED BY

J. STAINER, MUS. DOC.,

AND

G. C. MARTIN, MUS. DOC.

Price Fourpence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO'S COLLECTION

OF

RESPONSES TO THE COMMANDMENTS

EDITED BY GEORGE C. MARTIN,

Organist of St. Paul's Cathedral.

Bound in cloth, Five Shillings; or, 47 Numbers at Twopence each.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE PRECES and RESPONSES, with LITANY,

According to TALLIS.

Arranged for Four Voices, by JOSEPH BARNBY.

Price Fourpence.

THE PRECES and RESPONSES, with LITANY,

According to TALLIS.

Arranged for Four Voices, by JOSEPH BARNBY.

Containing the Confession, harmonised (Ely use); also Organ Accompaniments to Lord's Prayer, Apostles' and Nicene Creeds, by Dr. J. F. BRIDGE.

Price Sixpence.

THE FERIAL RESPONSES, with LITANY.

Edited by JOSEPH BARNBY.

Price Fourpence.

THE PRECES and RESPONSES, with LITANY,

Set in Monotone. The simplest Form of an Intoned Service.

By JOSEPH BARNBY.

Price Fourpence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

A LEGEND OF BREGENZ

A BALLAD FOR FEMALE VOICES

THE POEM BY

ADELAIDE A. PROCTER

THE MUSIC BY

WILFRED BENDALL,

Composer of "The Lady of Shalott."

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

DEDICATED TO SIR WALTER PARRATT.

FANTASIA

IN C SHARP MINOR FOR THE ORGAN

COMPOSED BY

A. M. GOODHART.

(No. 253. Novello's Original Compositions for the Organ.)
Price Two Shillings and Sixpence net.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PERFORMED AT HANLEY, ON JANUARY 7, 1897,

IN THE PRESENCE OF

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

CANTATA

THE

MAID OF ASTOLAT

BY

C. SWINNERTON HEAP.

THIRD EDITION now Ready. Price 3s. 6d., in paper.

Extract from Birmingham Daily Post, November 20, 1896.

"Dr. Heap revels in his choral writing, and reaches the highest elevation in the chorus descriptive of the approach of the dead Elaine lying in the sombre barge. . . . The performance made a profound impression on the audience. . . . The demonstration at the close showed that there had been no error of judgment in reviving this cantata. We have no time for critical comment at this moment; but, having heard the composition four times, we do not hesitate to class it among works accepted as masterly."

Chorus Parts, and a number of Lithographed Copies, Tonic Sol-fa Edition, may be obtained on hire.
Application to be made to the Publishers: H. TAYLOR and SON, Bridge Street, Walsall.

HINTS ON CHOIR TRAINING

BY

W. G. McNAUGHT.

REPRINTED, WITH ADDITIONS, FROM

"THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW."

This Pamphlet is intended for Choralists as well as for Choral Society Conductors. All the points that contribute to make a fine choral performance are succinctly treated. For Choirs preparing to enter choral competitions these hints will be found especially useful. The heads under which adjudicators take notes are described and discussed, and a list of suitable test pieces for competitions is given.

Price Twopence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

ONE QUEEN, ONE FLEET, ONE FLAG

A FEDERAL GREETING

Four-part Song for S.A.T.B., or Solo and Chorus, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. The Words written by S. L. E.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Price Three-Halfpence. Orchestral Score and Parts may be hired.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

ROYALTY

A HYMN

FOR THE 60TH YEAR OF HER MAJESTY'S REIGN.

WORDS BY

REV. HON. CANON NEVILLE, M.A.

MUSIC BY THE LATE

REV. SIR F. G. OUSELEY, BT., MUS.D.

Price, Music and Words, 2d.; Words only, 1s. per 100.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

LOYAL SONG FOR 1897.

OH, NO! THE WORDS ARE NOT QUITE NEW. By the Rev. CANON TWELLS, M.A. The music by THOMAS WELBORN. Price 2d. each; or, 2s. per dozen, Post-free.

London: WILLIAM CLOWES and SONS, Ltd., 13, Charing Cross, S.W.

RECEIVED AND ACKNOWLEDGED BY HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

THE ROYAL CHORAL MARCH—"GOD'S BLESSING ON OUR SOVEREIGN REST." Arranged for Soprano or Tenor Solo and Chorus, by WILLIAM J. YOUNG, Composer of Popular Four-part Songs. Price 4d.

God's blessing on our Sovereign rest,
And on her subjects free;
May Queen and country both be blest
This year of Jubilee!
On history's page no fairer name,
No purer life appears;
What age can match, in deeds or fame,
Victoria's sixty years?

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.; or, COMPOSER, 51, Barton Arcade, Manchester.

THE NEW MARCH for 1897. Published at 4s; Post-free, 1s. 4d. "OUR EMPRESS QUEEN," Grand March, by EDWARD C. DOUGHTY; and "OUR EMPRESS QUEEN," Vocal Waltz, by EDWARD C. DOUGHTY. Separate Violin Part, 3d. extra. Trade write for novelty rates and specimen free. Bandmasters send card and penny stamp for Sept., or two stamps for Orch. March or Waltz. March Military Parts ready February.

HARMONIC PUBLISHING CO., 5, West Hill, Wandsworth, S.W.

Popular Part-Songs for S.A.T.B.

By W. W. PEARSON.

The Skaters	3d.	The Oyster Dredgers	2d.
The Lake	3d.	Evening	2d.
*'Tis Morn	3d.	*Sweet to live (38th thou.)	2d.
Sweet Spring (Madrigal)	3d.	*Welcome, young Spring!	2d.
The River	3d.	*The Anglers (14th thou.)	2d.
Over the mountain side	3d.	The Dream of Home	2d.
Soul of living music	3d.	Summer and Winter	2d.
The Stormy Petrel	3d.	*Departed Joys	2d.
The Coral Grove	3d.	There's beauty in the deep	1½d.
Pibroch of Donuil Dhu	3d.	Soldier, rest!	1d.
Blow, Western Wind!	3d.	Woods in Winter	1d.
Stars of the Night	3d.	Autumn	1d.

HUMOROUS PART-SONGS.

*Three Doughtie Men. (60th thousand)	3d.
Three Children Sliding. (10th thousand)	3d.
A Ryghte Merrie Geste	4d.
The Snow-white Doe	4d.
*Ben Bowlegs (EDWARD OXENFORD)	3d.
The Carrion Crow	3d.
Call John!	3d.

DESCRIPTIVE CHORUSES.

With Pianoforte or Orchestral Accompaniments.

The Iron Horse	4d.	The Ocean	3d.
Off to Sea	4d.	*The Ironfounders (36th thou.)	3d.
Jäger Chorus	3d.	The Cyclists	4d.
The Lifeboat	4d.

Orchestral Parts on application to the COMPOSER, Elmham, Dereham.

Tonic Sol-fa Editions at half the above prices of those marked *.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CRITICISM AND THE CRITICISM OF MUSIC. By ROENTGEN RAY.—Mr. Joseph Bennett writes in "Music of the Day": "'The Pilgrims' Progress' has done good, and so may the newest book on musical criticism." Price 7½d., Post-free.

SANDERS, PHILLIPS and Co., Ltd., 7, Upper Thames Street, E.C.

NEW SONG

BY

CHARLES SALAMAN.

THE BUTTERFLY SONG (from "For the Crown")

Translated from the French by JOHN DAVIDSON.

Two Shillings net.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Second Edition.

NARCISSUS AND ECHO

CANTATA FOR CHORUS, SOLI, AND ORCHESTRA

Price 3s.; Choral Parts, 1s. each. Also,

"GOD IS OUR REFUGE" (Ps. 46)

For Chorus, Soli, and Orchestra. Price 1s.

COMPOSED BY

EDWIN C. SUCH,

Mus. Bac., Cantab.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Seventh Edition.

The river floweth strong, my love

PART-SONG FOR S.A.T.B.

Words by E. RIDGWAY.

MUSIC COMPOSED BY ROLAND ROGERS.

Price Fourpence; Sol-fa, Twopence.

Sung with immense success by Eaton Faning's Select Choir at the Ballad Concerts, St. James's Hall; Wolverhampton Festival Choral Society, the Chester Festival Choral Society, the Cambrian Choral Society (Birkenhead), Huddersfield Glee and Madrigal Society, &c.

Also, NEW PART-SONG, by same COMPOSER.

THREE FISHERS WENT SAILING

Words by KINGSLEY.

Old Notation, Fourpence; Sol-fa, Twopence.

"An immense success."

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SUNG WITH ENORMOUS SUCCESS by many celebrated artists in Germany.

Quite New. English Text by HUGH JONES.

"LOVE'S TRUST" (Zuversicht). Op. 10, No. 3.

"RESOLVE" (Vorsatz). Op. 7, No. 1.

By W. MAASE.

Published by A. BOCK, Düsseldorf, Germany.

Sold in England by NOVELLO, EWER and Co., London, W.

8vo, 4d.

THE CYCLISTS

PART-SONG FOR S.A.T.B.

Words by EDWARD OXENFORD

MUSIC BY

W. W. PEARSON.

Orchestral Parts lent gratis for performance.

Apply to the COMPOSER, Elmham, Dereham.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WORKS

FOR

CHORAL SOCIETIES AND CHOIRS.

	s.	d.
THE SILVER STAR. Cantata. Ladies' voices	1	6
THE LORD IS MY SHEPHERD. 8vo	0	8
BY THE WATERS OF BABYLON. 8vo	1	0
Both for Chorus, without Soloists.
EVENTIDE. Part-Song. 8vo.	0	2

By N. KILBURN, Mus.B., Cantab.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NURSERY RHYMES and RIGMAROLIA, with 164 Tunes. Old Nursery Rhymes and Songs, with 194 Tunes. By W. H. HAMMOND JONES. 2s. 6d. each.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HUMOROUS PART-SONG FOR S.A.T.B.

TOM, THE PIPER'S SON. By A. BEN ALLEN, Composer of "Dickory, dickory, dock." Price 3d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

FRANCESCO BERGER'S ALBUM OF FIVE PIANOFORTE PIECES.

CONTENTS.

No 1. Moto contrario (Étude). | No. 3. The voice of the rivulet.
„ 2. Barcarolle. | „ 4. Polka.
No. 5. Marcia.

Price Three Shillings and Sixpence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

Berceuse Bohémienne

POUR

VIOLON ET PIANO

PAR

JOSEPH NEŠVERA.

Price One Shilling.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

THREE PIECES

FOR

VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE

1. Minuet. 2. Adagio. 3. Lullaby.

COMPOSED BY

WILLIAM S. HANNAM.

Price Three Shillings net.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Now Ready.

CAPRICE, by KATE WILLIS, for Violin or Flute, with Pianoforte.

Price Four Shillings.

C. WOOLHOUSE, 174, Wardour Street, W.

COMPOSITIONS BY T. MEE PATTISON.

	Staff. s. d.	Sol-fa. s. d.
CANTATAS.
The Ancient Mariner	2 6	0 6
Do. do. (Choruses only)	1 0
The Lay of the Last Minstrel	2 6
Do. do. (Choruses only)	1 0
May Day	1 0	0 6
The Miracles of Christ (Sacred)	1 0	0 6
ANTHEMS, &c.
All Thy works praise Thee (Harvest)	0 3	0 1
Thou visitest the earth (Harvest)	0 2
I know that my Redeemer liveth (Easter)	0 3
There were shepherds (Christmas)	0 2
Thirteen Offertory Sentences	0 4
Six Kyries	0 2
Te Deum laudamus (in F)	0 3

ORIGINAL ORGAN COMPOSITIONS.

Fifteen Introductory and Concluding Voluntaries .. .. 3s. 6d.
Five Concluding Voluntaries .. .. 1s. 6d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TWELVE NEW SONGS

BY

SOME OF THE BEST AND BEST-KNOWN

BRITISH COMPOSERS.

Constancy	Joseph Barnby.
Cradle Song	Alfred Cellier.
Love's Journey	F. Corder.
Truant Wings	F. H. Cowen.
In Summer Weather	Charles H. Lloyd.
Robin Sly	A. C. Mackenzie.
A Song of the South	Hamish MacCunn.
The Maid of Elsinor	C. Hubert H. Parry.
A Pretty Maid	Arthur Somervell.
For ever mine	C. V. Stanford.
To welcome you	A. Goring Thomas.
The Windflower	Charles Wood.

EDITED BY HAROLD BOULTON

(With words by the EDITOR).

Frontispiece, "The Harpsichord," by FRANK DICKSEE, R.A.

In cloth, gilt lettered, price 12s. net.
Each Song may be had separately, price 2s. net.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE MUSICAL TIMES.

CASES

FOR BINDING THE NUMBERS FOR THE PAST YEAR

VOL. XXXVII.,

Are now ready, and may be had of all Musicsellers in Town and Country.

CLOTH, BEVELLED BOARDS, HANDSOME DESIGN IN BLACK,

PRICE 1S. 6D.

Title-page and Index may be had gratis on application.
Cases for the Volumes from 1877 (Vol. xviii.) can also be had.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOW READY.

THE MUSICAL DIRECTORY, ANNUAL & ALMANACK for 1897

FORTY-FIFTH ANNUAL ISSUE.

Containing the Names and Addresses of the Musical Profession and Traders in the United Kingdom, Musical events of the past year, List of Music published during the year, Obituary, Patents, and other information.

Price, in cloth cover, 4s.; by Post, 4s. 3d.
„ paper cover, 3s.; by Post, 3s. 3d.

RUDALL, CARTE and Co., 23, Berners Street, London, W.

NEW MANDOLINE BOOKS.

THE MANDOLINE CABINET. Arranged by G. B. MARCHISIO. Two Books now ready, containing separate parts for first and second Mandolines, Guitar, and Piano. Each Book complete, 1s. net.

CONTENTS.

Book 1.—"Philomel," valse song; Rubinstein's Melody in F, "Capricciosa," by Francia; Handel's Largo, and Washington Post March.

Book 2.—Raff's Cavatina, Braga's "La Serenata," Clark's "Pizzicato," Boccherini's Minuet, and Mendelssohn's War March, "Athalie."

Of all Musicsellers and the Publishers,

KEITH, PROWSE and Co., Cheapside, E.C.

IMPORTANT TO PIANO TEACHERS AND STUDENTS.

INDEX-PAGE to CZERNY'S 101 EXERCISES, with PREFACE by A. DIELMANN, Professor of Music (Leips. Cons.), giving the numbers in their progressive order of difficulty.

This sheet may easily be attached to any copy of Czerny's 101 Exercises.

Price 2d., from all Musicsellers.

Wholesale from A. DIELMANN, 277, Oxford Road, Manchester.

Sent Post-free for 2½d. in stamps.

CHAPPELL & CO.'S PUBLICATIONS.

THE BEHNKE VOICE-TRAINING METHOD.

Price, in paper covers, Two Shillings; in cloth, Three Shillings.

VOICE-TRAINING PRIMER

By MRS. EMIL BEHNKE and DR. CHARLES W. PEARCE.

An easy Catechism of Vocal Physiology and Musical Theory, for the use of Vocal Students generally. This work is also intended as a Text-Book for preparing Candidates for Vocal Examinations, particularly those of the Associated Board of the R.C.M. and R.A.M., the Incorporated Society of Musicians, and Trinity College, London. It contains in one volume all the information required for answering the viva voce questions of Examiners.

Sixtieth Thousand. Price, in paper covers, One Shilling and Sixpence; in cloth, Three Shillings.

VOICE-TRAINING EXERCISES

In Six separate Books, for Soprano, Mezzo-Soprano, Contralto, Tenor, Baritone, and Bass.

By EMIL BEHNKE and DR. CHARLES W. PEARCE.

Third and Improved Edition. Price, in paper covers, One Shilling and Sixpence; in cloth, Three Shillings.

VOICE-TRAINING STUDIES

In Six separate Books, for Soprano, Mezzo-Soprano, Contralto, Tenor, Baritone, and Bass.

By EMIL BEHNKE and DR. CHARLES W. PEARCE.

"This work contains 24 Progressive Studies in different styles, and is intended as a companion or supplementary volume to 'Voice-Training Exercises.' Those of a more cantabile character are to be used as Solfeggi, the others are to be sung as Vocalises. In this Second Edition the accompaniments have been simplified. Highly favourable opinions of these Studies have been expressed by Sir John Stainer, Sir Robert Stewart, Mr. W. H. Cummings, and other eminent authorities."

POPULAR WORKS FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.

UP TO DATE; or, The Children of the 19th Centuree. A Cantata for Children. By W. H. Sonley Johnson and Reginald Atkins. Price 1s. 6d. net.

GRAY'S ELEGY. Cantata, by A. Cellier. Paper, 2s. 6d. net; cloth, 4s. net.

FAUST. Dramatic Legend, by Hector Berlioz. New Edition. 3s. 6d. net; cloth, 5s. net; Tonic Sol-fa, 2s. 6d. net.

GOD IS LOVE. A Sacred Cantata, by Mrs. Joseph Robinson. Paper, 3s. net; cloth, 10s. 6d. net.

KENILWORTH. Cantata, by Arthur Sullivan. Paper, 3s. 6d. net.

LALLA ROOKH. Cantata, by Frederick Clay. Paper, 3s. 6d. net.

FRIDOLIN; or, The Message to the Forge. A Dramatic Cantata, by A. Randegger. Paper, 4s. net; cloth, 6s. net.

THE JACKDAW OF RHEIMS. Comic Cantata, by Thomas Ingoldsby and George Fox. 2s. 6d. net. Voice parts, each 6d. net; Harmonium part, 1s. net; Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. 6d. net.

THE MARTYR OF ANTIOCH. Sacred Musical Drama, by Arthur Sullivan. Paper, 5s. net; cloth, 8s. net.

TRIAL BY JURY. Comic Operetta, by W. S. Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan. Paper, 3s. net.

POPULAR NUMBERS OF CHAPPELL'S PENNY OPERATIC PART-SONGS
FOR SOPRANO, ALTO, TENOR, AND BASS.

1. Hymn of the Fisherman's Children. Adapted to a Melody from Hérold's "Zampa."
2. Fays and Elves (In mia fe). From Flotow's "Marta."
3. Spring's bright glances (In Elvezia non v'ha). From Bellini's "La Sonnambula."
5. Here we rest (Qui la selva). From Bellini's "La Sonnambula."
6. Onward to battle (Squilli echeggi). From Verdi's "Il Trovatore."
7. Rataplan (Rataplan). From Donizetti's "La Figlia del Reggimento."
8. The Gipsy's Star (Vedi! le fosche). From Verdi's "Il Trovatore."
9. War Song of the Druids (Dell' aura tua profetica). From Bellini's "Norma."
11. Come to the Fair! (Accorete giovinette). From Flotow's "Marta."
12. Friendship (Per te d'immenso giubilo). From Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor."
13. Away, the morning freshly breaking (The Chorus of Fishermen). From Auber's "Masaniello."
14. Pretty Village Maiden (Peasants' Serenade Chorus). From Gounod's "Faust."
15. The soft winds around us (The Gipsy Chorus). From Weber's "Preciosa."
16. See how lightly on the blue sea (Senti la danza invitaci). From Donizetti's "Lucrezia Borgia."
18. On yonder rock reclining. From Auber's "Fra Diavolo."
19. Happy and light. From Balfe's "Bohemian Girl."
22. Come, old comrade (The celebrated Chorus of Old Men). From Gounod's "Faust."
23. 'Gainst the Powers of Evil (The Chorale of the Cross). From Gounod's "Faust."
28. The tuneful sound of Robin's horn. Tyrolese Chorus from Rossini's "Guglielmo Tell."
29. The Chorus of Huntsmen. From Weber's "Der Freischütz."
92. Hail to the bride! From Wagner's "Lohengrin."
34. A bridal wreath we twine. Chorus of Bridesmaids from Weber's "Der Freischütz."
35. Behold! how brightly breaks the morning. The Barcarolle from Auber's "Masaniello."
47. The Harvest Home. From Mozart's "Le Nozze di Figaro."

NEW SERIES (8vo size).

52. The Farandole. From Audran's "Olivette."
53. You swear to be good and true. From Cellier's "Dorothy."
54. From deep forest hoary. From Planquette's "Rip Van Winkle."

To be continued.

NEW SERIES OF
CHAPPELL'S VOCAL LIBRARY OF PART-SONGS (8vo size).

118. Venetian Song (F. Paolo Tosti). S.A.T.B. .. King Hall 3d.
119. Mighty Lord (Gounod's "Marche Religieuse"). S.A.T.B. King Hall 3d.
120. Soft and Low (from Gounod's "Mock Doctor"). S.A.T.B. King Hall 4d.
121. Crossing the Bar. S.S.A.T.B.B... .. Arthur M. Goodhart 3d.
122. Sigh no more, ladies. A.T.T.B.B. .. .. R. J. S. Stevens 3d.
123. Peace, perfect Peace. S.A.T.B.. .. .. .. Gounod 3d.
124. Beauty's Eyes (Tosti). S.A.T.B. .. .. King Hall 3d.
125. Hark! my soul (Gounod). S.A.T.B. .. .. King Hall 3d.
126. Soldiers' Chorus ("Faust"). S.A.T.B. .. Gounod 4d.
127. A Regular Royal Queen ("Gondoliers") .. Sullivan 6d.

To be continued.

Complete Lists on application to

CHAPPELL AND CO., Ltd., 50, New Bond St., London.

Printed by Novello, Ewer and Co., at 69 & 70, Dean Street (W.), and published at 1, Berners Street (W.) and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.) Sold also by Kent and Co., Paternoster Row (E.C.).—Monday, February 1, 1897.

No. 564. NOVELLO'S OCTAVO ANTHEMS. Price 4*d*.

My heart is inditing

COMPOSED BY MYLES B. FOSTER.

FIFTEEN VOLUMES NOW READY, BOUND IN CLOTH, PRICE 7s. EACH.

424. Abide with me ... R. Dunstan 3d.
478. A few more years shall roll H. Blair 3d.
247. All nations whom B. Luard Selby 4d.
113. All they that trust ... Dr. Hiller 8d.
30. All Thy works ... E. H. Thorne 3d.
475. All Thy works ... J. Barnby 4d.
503. All Thy works ... G. H. Ely 4d.
9. All ye who weep ... ... Gounod 3d.
261. And all the people saw J. Stainer 6d.
229. And it was the third hour Elvey 4d.
485. And Jacob was left alone J. Stainer 6d.
357. And the wall of the city Oliver King 3d.
402. And when the day of Pentecost C. W. Smith 3d.
228. Art thou weary ... C. H. Lloyd 6d.
311. As I live, saith the Lord E. T. Chipp 3d.
333. As it began to dawn Ch. Vincent 3d.
498. As Moses lifted up F. Gostelow 3d.
24. As the hart pants (S.S.T.B.) Gounod 3d.
24*. Ditto (T.T.B.B.) Gounod 3d.
147. Ascribe unto the Lord Travers 6d.
109. Ascribe unto the Lord S. S. Wesley 8d.
599. At the Lamb's High Feast we sing Rev. E. V. Hall 3d.
456. At the Sepulchre H. W. Wareing 4d.
56. Awake, awake, put on J. Stainer 6d.
149. Awake, awake, put on M. Wise 4d.
199. Awake, thou that sleepest Stainer 6d.
150. Awake up, my glory M. Wise 3d.
212. Be glad, O ye righteous H. Smart 4d.
410. Before the heavens H. W. Parker 3d.
349. Behold, how good (A.T.T.B.) A. J. Caldicott 3d.
349.* Ditto (S.A.T.B.) A. J. Caldicott 3d.
419. Ditto Hamilton Clarke 4d.
89. Behold, I bring you J. Barnby 3d.
296. Ditto Rev. E. V. Hall 3d.
348. Ditto J. Maude Crament 4d.
65. Behold now, praise J. B. Calkin 3d.
315. Behold, O God ... F. W. Hird 4d
524. Behold, the days come Woodward 4d.
501. Behold, two blind men J. Stainer 3d.
143. Be merciful ... ... H. Purcell 6d.
257. Be merciful E. A. Sydenham 3d.
471. Be ye therefore followers of God A. S. Baker 3d.
77. Blessed are they ... W. H. Monk 3d.
182. Blessed are they ... Arthur Page 3d.
390. Blessed are they A. W. Batson 3d.
15. Blessed be the God S. S. Wesley 4d.
183. Blessed be the Lord Dr. Heap 6d.
331. Blessed be the Lord C. L. Williams 4d.
400. Blessed City ... A. C. Fisher 4d.
262. Blessed is He ... C. H. Lloyd 8d.
284. Blessed is He F. E. Gladstone 2d.
292. Blessed is he ... A. C. Mackenzie 4d.
64. Blessed is the man ... Sir John Goss 4d.
206. Blessed is the man Clarke-Whitfeld 3d.
286. Blessed Jesu, Stabat Mater Dvorák 6d.
5. Blessing, glory, wisdom B. Tours 4d.
378. Bless the Lord ... M. Kingston 4d.
374. Bless thou the Lord Oliver King 3d.
450. Bless thou the Lord C. Bayley 4d.
97. Blow ye the trumpet Henry Leslie 3d.
118. Bow Thine ear ... W. Bird 3d.
92. Break forth into joy R. Prentice 6d.
415. Ditto S. Coleridge-Taylor 3d.
491. Ditto B. Steane 3d.
323. Brightest and best Rev. E. V. Hall 4d.
340. Bring unto the Lord F. E. Gladstone 3d.
98. Brother, thou art gone Sir J. Goss 4d.
279. By Babylon's wave Gounod 6d.
197. By the rivers of Babylon L. Samson 4d.
121. By the waters of Babylon Boyce 4d.
511. Ditto ... H. Clarke 4d.
116. Call to remembrance J. Battishill 6d.
497. Christ both died E. W. Naylor 3d.
368. Christ is risen ... J. M. Crament 3d.
454. Christ is risen G. B. J. Aitken 3d.
533. Christ is risen ... J. V. Roberts 3d.
307. Christ our Passover Rev. E. V. Hall 3d.
370. Christ the Lord Rev. E. V. Hall 3d.
488. Christians, awake ... J. Barnby 3d.
445. Cleanse me, Lord G. F. Wrigley 3d.
52. Come, and let us return Sir J. Goss 3d.
95. Come, and let us return W. Jackson 3d.
201. Come, Holy Ghost ... J. L. Hatton 4d.
283. Come, Holy Ghost Sir G. Elvey 4d.
293. Come, my soul ... G. C. Martin 4d.
314. Come now, and let us H. W. Wareing 4d.
1. Come unto Him ... Gounod 2d.
103. Come unto Me (Bach) J. Stainer 3d.
256. Come unto Me H. R. Couldrey 3d.
334. Come, ye faithful Rev. E. V. Hall 3d.
356. Daughters of Jerusalem H. J. King 3d.
449. Dawns the day ... R. H. Legge 3d.
213. Day of anger (Requiem) ... Mozart 6d.
252. Death and life Walter Parratt 3d.
90. Distracted with care ... Haydn 4d.
277. Enter not into Judgment Dr. Clarke 2d.
362. Eternal source ... F. Brandeis 2d.
470. Eye hath not seen M. B. Foster 3d.
329. Far from their home, our fallen race Rev. H. H. Woodward 3d.
364. Father, hear the prayer F. Brandeis 2d.
46. Father of Heaven Dr. Walmisley 3d.
384. Father of Life ... S. J. Gilbert 3d.
28. Fear not, O land ... Sir John Goss 6d.
446. Flee from evil Rev. W. J. Clarke 3d.
254. For ever blessed ... Mendelssohn 3d.
198. For the mountains... L. Samson 3d.
273. From the deep I called Spohr 6d.
227. Give ear, O Lord T. M. Pattison 2d.
433. Give ear, O Shepherd A. Whiting 3d.
88. Give ear, O ye heavens Dr. Armes 3d.
309. Give the Lord ... C. H. Lloyd 8d.
383. Give unto the Lord H. W. Parker 4d.
2. Glory be to God ... S. S. Wesley 2d.
341. God be merciful ... A. H. Mann 4d.
49. God be merciful ... S. S. Wesley 3d.
236. God be merciful unto us C. F. Lloyd 6d.
105. God came from Teman Dr. Steggall 4d.
128. God is gone up ... Dr. Croft 4d.
131. God is our hope ... Dr. Greene 6d.
101. God is our refuge ... Dr. H. Hiles 6d.
332. God is our refuge ... A. Foote 4d.
75. God said, Behold Sir G. Macfarren 4d.
473. God so loved the world J. V. Roberts 3d.
342. God, that madest earth A. C. Fisher 2d.
344. God, who at sundry times J. H. Mee 4d.
388. Grant, we beseech Thee J. V. Roberts 3d.
187. Great and marvellous Dr. Monk 3d.
517. Ditto ... J. F. Bridge 4d.
223. Great is Jehovah ... Schubert 4d.
136. Great is the Lord ... Dr. Hayes 4d.
237. Great is the Lord Sir F. Ouseley 6d.
481. Great is the Lord ... B. Steane 3d.
220. Grieve not the Holy Spirit Stainer 3d.
427. Hail! gladdening Light J. T. Field 2d.
545. Hail! gladdening Light Martin 4d.
326. Hail, thou that art ... A. Carnall 4d.
499. Hallelujah, Christ is risen Steane 3d.
382. Hallelujah! the Light O. King 3d.
173. Happy is the man ... E. Prout 8d.
487. Hark the glad sound E. V. Hall 3d.
345. Hark, the herald angels E. V. Hall 3d.
444. Hark! what news... ... O. King 3d.
404 Harvest Hymn ... F. Tozer 2d.
377. Have mercy upon me Kellow J. Pye 3d.
401. Have mercy upon me J. Shaw 3d.
535. Have mercy upon me J. Goss 4d.
389. Hear me when I call T. Distin 2d.
146. Hear my prayer ... C. Stroud 4d.
339. Hear my prayer Mendelssohn 4d.
442. Hear my words C. H. H. Parry 8d
310. Hear, O God ... A. Friedländer 6d.
138. Hear, O heavens P. Humphreys 3d.
94. Hear, O Lord Sir John Goss 2d.
139. Hear, O Lord ... C. King 2d.
162. Hear, O Lord Sir F. Ouseley 4d.
203. Hear, O Thou Shepherd Dr. Clarke 4d.
522. Ditto T. A. Walmisley 4d.
376. Hide not Thy face Kellow J. Pye 2d.
330. Holy Ghost to earth descending, Ludmila ... ... Dvorák 4d.
111. Holy, holy, holy ... Dr. Crotch 3d.
246. Ho! every one ... G. C. Martin 4d.
366. Ho! every one J. M. Crament 4d.
412. Honour the Lord ... J. Stainer 4d.
129. Hosanna ... ... O. Gibbons 3d.
43. Hosanna ... Sir G. A. Macfarren 3d.
260. How beautiful are the feet Handel 3d.
321. How excellent is Thy ... Cowen 6d.
373. How long wilt Thou Oliver King 2d.
104. How lovely are ... ... Spohr 8d.
539. I am Alpha ... J. V. Roberts 3d.
268. I am well pleased J. Rheinberger 3d.
120. I beheld, and lo ... Dr. Blow 6d.
280. I beheld, and lo ... ... Elvey 6d.
496. I came not to call C. Vincent 3d.
207. I cried unto the Lord Dr. Heap 4d.
537. I declare to you the Gospel W. A. C. Cruickshank 4d.
168. I desired wisdom ... J. Stainer 6d.
230. I did call upon the Lord Pattison 4d.
117. I have set God ... Dr. Blake 6d.
130. I have set God ... J. Goldwin 3d.
420. I have set God Hamilton Clarke 4d.
122. I have surely built ... Dr. Boyce 4d.
219. I have surely built T. T. Trimnell 4d.
396. I heard a voice Sir John Goss 2d.
171. I saw the Lord ... J. Stainer 6d.
114. I was glad ... ... T. Attwood 4d.
32. I was glad ... ... Sir G. Elvey 3d.
79. I was glad ... .. C. E. Horsley 6d.
379. I was glad ... T. T. Trimnell 4d.
119. I was in the spirit ... Dr. Blow 6d.
205. I will alway give thanks Dr. Clarke 3d.
73. I will cry unto God Dr. Steggall 3d.
502. I will extol Thee C. M. Hudson 4d.
29. I will give thanks ... J. Barnby 4d.
156. I will give thanks ... E. J. Hopkins 6d.
225. I will go unto ... Dr. Gauntlett 2d.
437. I will greatly rejoice Cruickshank 4d.
195. I will lay me down ... H. Gadsby 2d.
209. I will lay me down ... Dr. H. Hiles 3d.
495. I will lay me down A. C. Edwards 3d.
126. I will love Thee, O Lord J. Clark 4d.
394. I will love Thee, O Lord my strength ... Matthew Kingston 4d.
78. I will magnify Thee J. B. Calkin 4d.
27. I will magnify Thee Sir John Goss 3d.
153. I will magnify Thee ... J. Shaw 3d.
405. I will magnify Thee ... O. King 4d.
154. I will mention ... Sir A. Sullivan 6d.
519. I will open rivers ... E. Pettman 3d.
371. I will set His dominion H. W. Parker 4d.
100. I will sing a new song Dr. Armes 8d.
134. I will sing of Thy power Greene 4d.
192. I will sing unto the Lord Wareing 3d.
6. I will wash my hands E. J. Hopkins 3d.
53. If we believe that Jesus died Goss 3d.
453. If ye love Me H. W. Wareing 3d.
544. If ye love Me... ... B. Steane 2d.
469. If ye then be risen M. B. Foster 3d.
58. If ye then be risen ... Dr. Naylor 3d.
61. In Christ dwelleth Sir John Goss 3d.
403. In my Father's house J. M. Crament 3d.
102. In sweet consent ... E. H. Thorne 3d.
278. In that day ... ... Sir G. Elvey 8d.
33. In Thee, O Lord ... B. Tours 3d.
148. In Thee, O Lord ... J. Weldon 3d.
385. In Thee, O Lord S. C. Taylor 3d.
338. In the fear of the Lord J. V. Roberts 3d.
282. In the Lord ... Sir R. Stewart 6d.
467. Is it nothing to you M. B. Foster 3d.
91. It came even to pass Ouseley 4d.
180. It is a good thing ... J. Barnby 6d.
231. It is a good thing T. M. Pattison 4d.
215. It shall come to pass Dr. Garrett 6d.
397. Jesu, lover of my soul ... F. Iliffe 2d.
455. Jesus Christ is risen Oliver King 4d.
7. Judge me, O God ... Mendelssohn 4d.
179. King all glorious ... J. Barnby 6d.
37. Lead, kindly Light... J. Stainer 4d.
425. Lead, kindly Light... R. Dunstan 3d.
528. Lead, kindly Light C. L. Naylor 4d.
132. Let God arise ... Dr. Greene 6d.
375. Let God arise T. T. Trimnell 4d.
346. Let my complaint ... E. H. Thorne 3d.
509. Let not thine hand... J. Stainer 3d.
438. Let not your heart ... M. B. Foster 3d.
226. Let the peace of God J. Stainer 4d.
328. Let the words of my A. D. Culley 3d.
494. Let Thy merciful ears W. B. Bell 2d.
308. Let us now praise ... E. H. Thorne 3d.
96. Lift up thine eyes ... Sir John Goss 6d.

Copyright, 1897, by Novello, Ewer and Co.

MY HEART IS INDITING OF A GOOD MATTER

FESTIVAL ANTHEM FOR SOPRANO SOLO, CHORUS, ORCHESTRA AND ORGAN (TO COMMEMORATE HER MAJESTY'S REIGN)

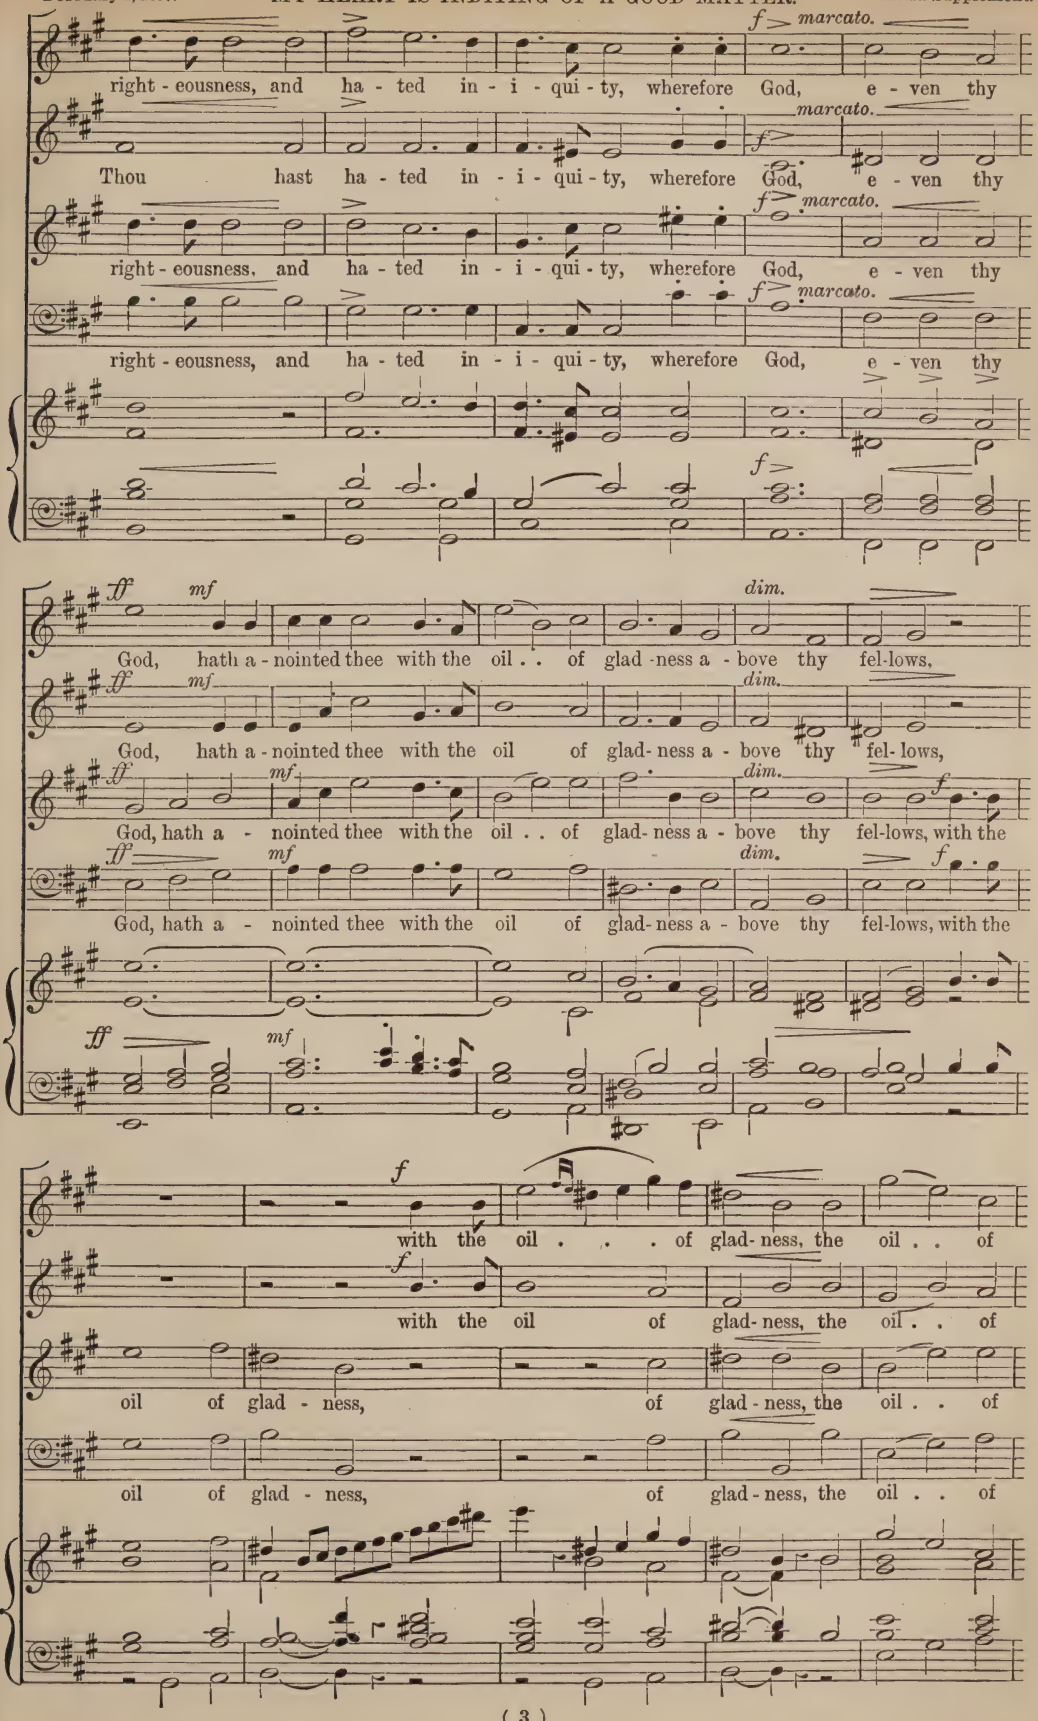
COMPOSED BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Words selected from The Book of Psalms.



Price Fourpence.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.); also in New York.

This Anthem is scored for Full Orchestra and Organ; also for Brass Instruments, Drums and Organ.

Copyright, 1897, by Novello, Ewer and Co.

f marcato.
right - eousness, and ha - ted in - i - qui - ty, wherefore God, e - ven thy Thou hast ha - ted in - i - qui - ty, wherefore God, e - ven thy right - eousness, and ha - ted in - i - qui - ty, wherefore God, e - ven thy right - eousness, and ha - ted in - i - qui - ty, wherefore God, e - ven thy ff mf dim.
God, hath a - nointed thee with the oil . . of glad - ness a - bove thy fel-lows,
God, hath a - nointed thee with the oil of glad - ness a - bove thy fel - lows,
God, hath a - nointed thee with the oil . . of glad - ness a - bove thy fel-lows, with the God, hath a - nointed thee with the oil of glad - ness a - bove thy fel-lows, with the
f with the oil . . . of glad - ness, the oil . . of
with the oil of glad - ness, the oil . . of oil of glad - ness, of glad - ness, the oil . . of oil of glad - ness, of glad - ness, the oil . . of

mf
glad-ness a - bove thy fel - lows.
Sw. Reeds.
rit.
Più lento.
This is the Lord's do - ing, this is the Lord's do - ing, and it is mar - vel-lous
Più lento. ♩ = 60.
Gt. Diaps.
Ped.
Sw. p
molto rall.
a tempo più maestoso.
cres.
in our eyes. . . . Thou hast lov - ed righteousness, and ♩ = 88.
Gt. to Sw.
coupled to Sw.

ha - ted in - i - qui - ty, thou hast lov - ed righteous-ness, and ha - ted in - ha - ted in - i qui - ty, thou hast lov - ed righteous-ness, and ha - ted in - ha - ted in - i - qui - ty, thou hast lov - ed righteous-ness, and ha - ted in - ha - ted in - i - qui - ty, thou hast lov - ed righteous-ness, and ha - ted in - add Sw. Reeds.

ff f

- i - qui - ty, wherefore God, e - ven thy God, hath a - noint-ed thee with the

- i - qui - ty, wherefore God, e - ven thy God, hath a - noint-ed thee with the

- i - qui - ty, wherefore God, e - ven thy God, hath a - noint-ed thee with the

- i - qui - ty, wherefore God, e - ven thy God, hath a - noint-ed thee with the Reeds.

ff f

oil . . of glad - ness a - bove thy fel - lows, with the oil of oil . . of glad - ness a - bove thy fel - lows, with the oil of oil of glad - ness a - bove thy fel - lows, with the oil of oil . . of glad - ness a - bove thy . . fel - lows, with the oil of

rit.
glad-ness a-bove thy fel - - - - - lows. . .
rit.
glad-ness a-bove thy fel - - - - - lows. . .
rit.
glad-ness a-bove thy fel - - - - - lows. . .
rit.
glad-ness a-bove thy fel - - - - - lows. . .
rit.
Andante espressivo.
rall. molto.
Soprano Solo. dolce.
O
Andante espressivo. ♩ = 54.
Choir Gamba.
mp espress. Sw.
cres.
sf p rall. molto.
molto espress.
cres.
Lord, Thou hast dealt gra - cious-ly, gra - cious-ly with Thy ser - vant, O p a tempo.
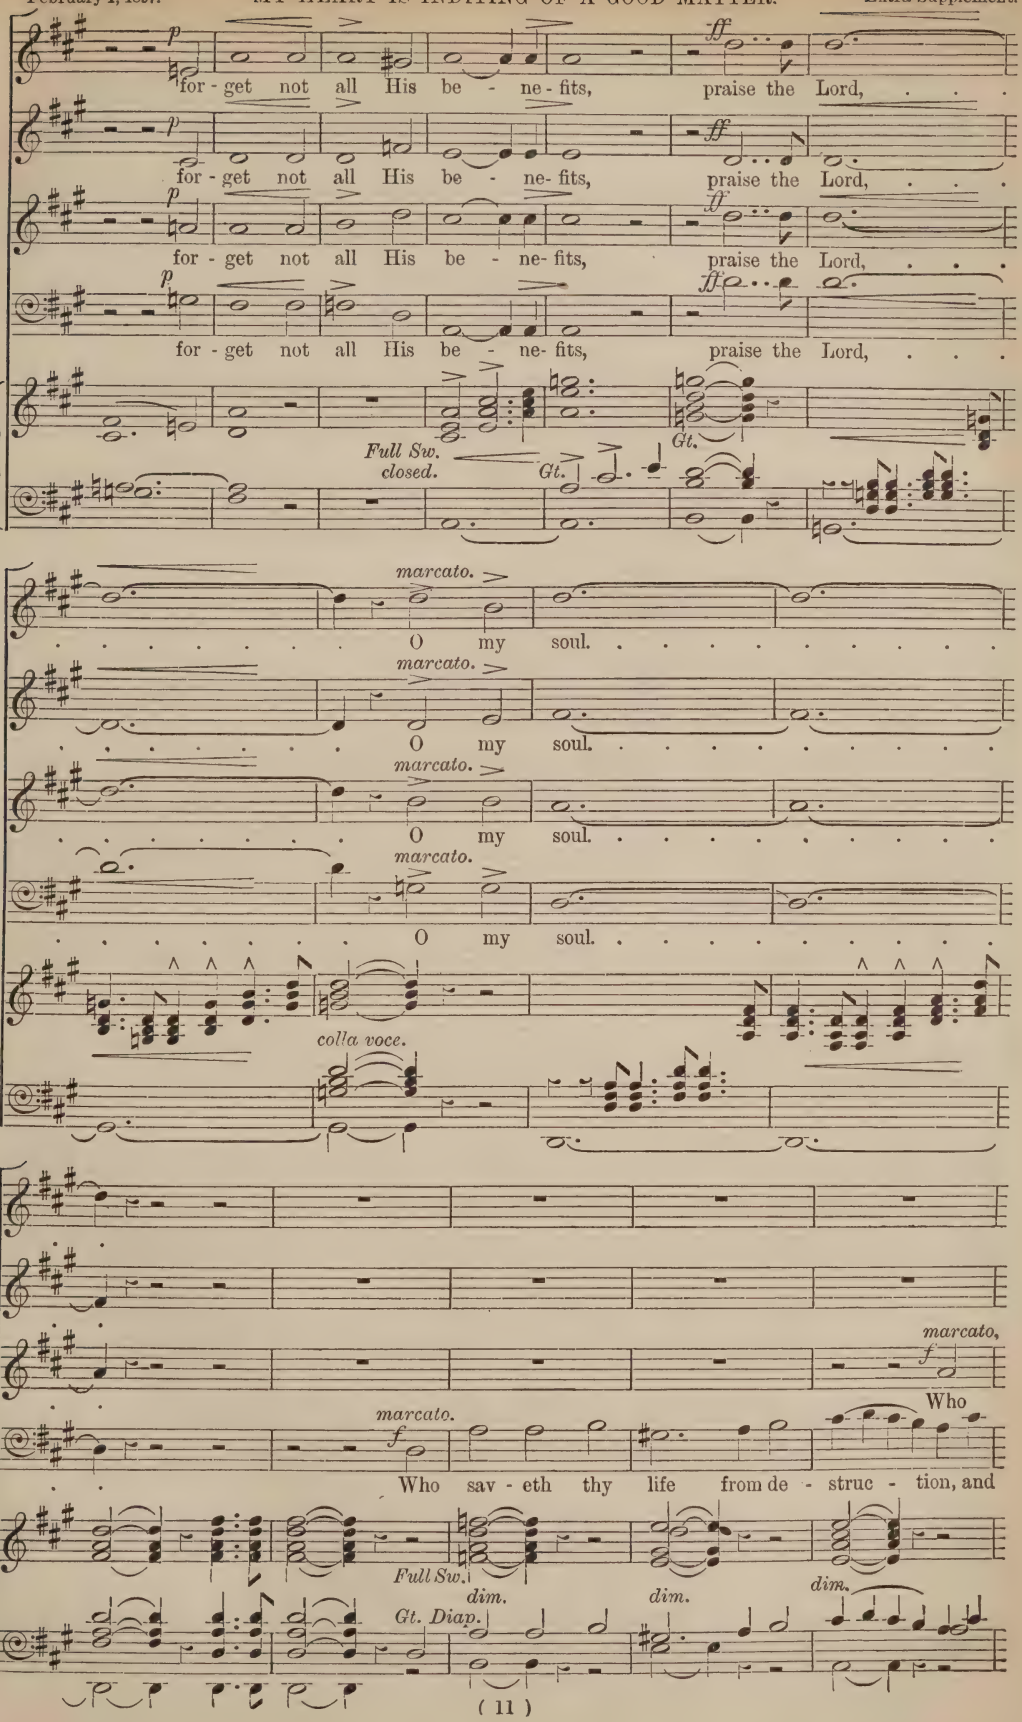
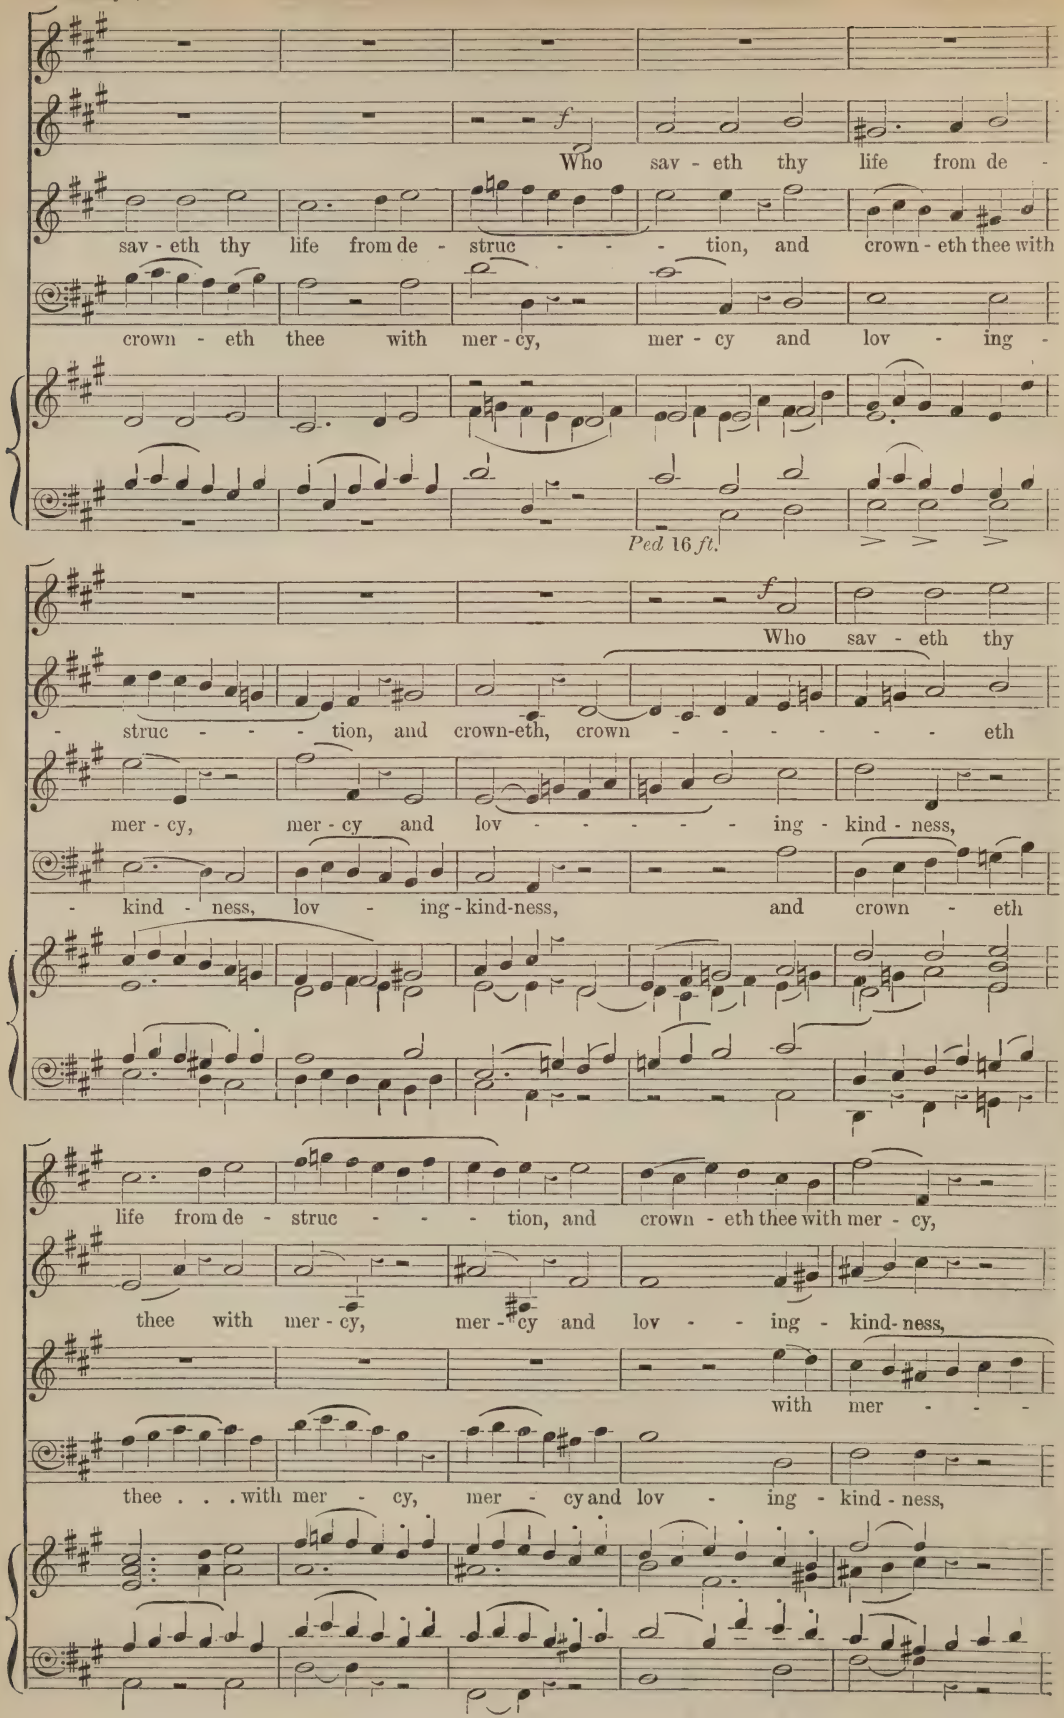
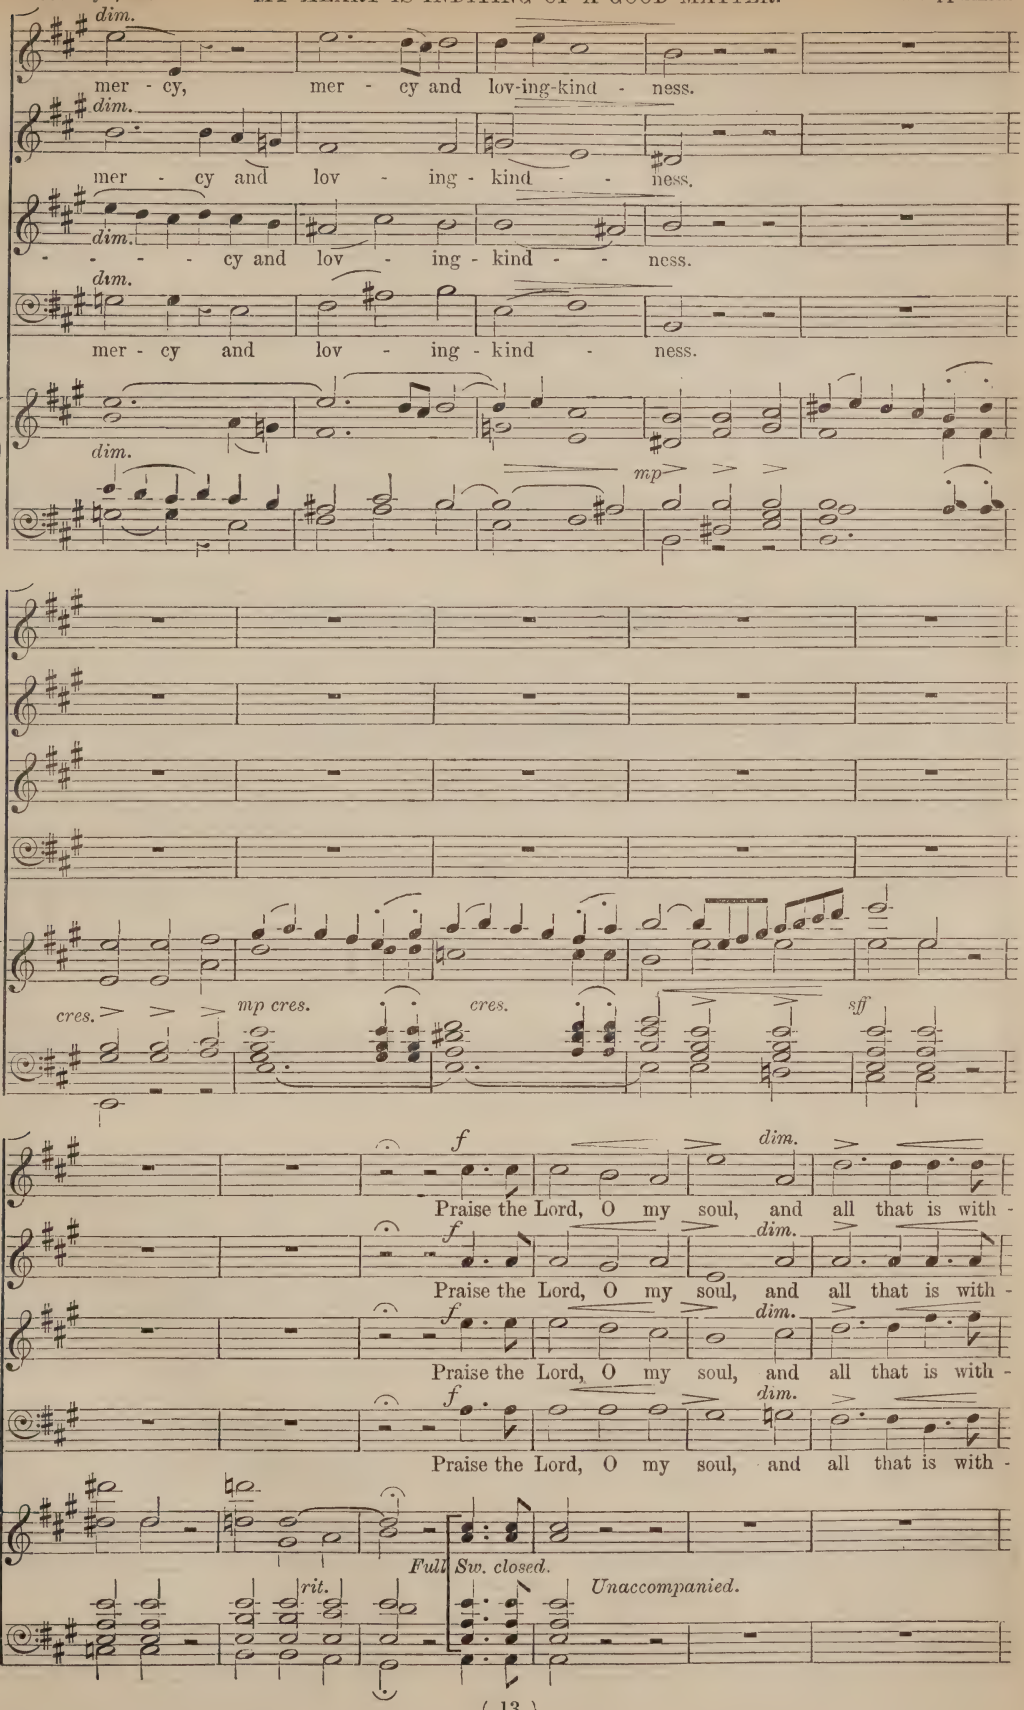
dim.
Lord, Thou hast dealt gra - cious-ly, O Lord, Thou hast dealt gra - cious-ly, ac -
Sw.
dim.
pp



MY HEART IS INDITING OF A GOOD MATTER.





rit.
rit. sempre.
thing shall He with - hold from them that live a god - ly life. . .
rit.
p
Sw. più p
Andante. pp dolce.
O Lord, Thou hast dealt Solo Stop.
dim. e rall. poco a poco al tempo 1mo. pp
dim.
pp sempre.
poco cres.
gra - cious-ly, gra- cious- ly with Thy ser - vant, O Lord, Thou hast dealt R.H. poco cres.
poco cres.
gra - cious-ly, O Lord, Thou hast dealt gra - cious-ly, ac - cord - ing to Thy
p
poco cres.
cres. marcato.
molto rall. e dim.
p
pp
Word, ac - cord - ing to Thy Word, ac - cord - ing to Thy Word. .
molto rall. e dim.
pp
pp

Solenne.
p cres. molto.
For the Lord God is her light and de - fence. . . . .
Solenne.
p
Con maesta. ♩ = 90.
Trumpet.
ff
Full.
sff
Poco allegro, con gioja.
Full.
f
Praise the Lord, O my soul, and all that is with -
Full.
f
Praise the Lord, O my soul, and all that is with -
Full.
f
Praise the Lord, O my soul, and all that is with -
Full.
f
Praise the Lord, O my soul, and all that is with -
Poco allegro, con gioja. ♩ = 112.
Unaccompanied.
f
- in me, praise, . . praise His ho - ly Name,
f
- in me, praise, . . praise His ho - ly Name,
f
- in me, praise, . . praise His ho - ly Name,
f
- in me, praise, . . praise His ho - ly Name,
ff

f praise the Lord, O my soul, and all that is with-in me praise . . His ho - ly praise the Lord, all that is with - in me praise . . His ho - ly praise the Lord, O my soul, and all that is with - in me praise . . His ho - ly praise the Lord, O my soul, and all that is with - in me praise . . His ho - ly
mf
Name. Praise thou the
Name. Praise thou the
Name. Praise thou the Lord, O . . my soul,
Name. Praise thou the Lord, O . . my soul,
mf sostenuto.
Sw. Reeds.
p
Lord, O . . my soul, and for - get not all His be - ne-fits,
Lord, O . . my soul, and for - get not all His be - ne-fits,
and for - get not all His be - ne-fits,
and for - get not all His be - ne-fits,
Ch. 8 to 4 ft.

p
ff
for - get not all His be - ne - fits, praise the Lord,
Full Sw. closed.
Gt.
marcato.
O my soul.
colla voce.
marcato,
f
Who
Who sav - eth thy life from de - struc - tion, and Full Sw.
Gt. Diap.
dim.

Who sav - eth thy life from de - sav - eth thy life from de - struc - - - tion, and crown - eth thee with crown - eth thee with mer - cy, mer - cy and lov - ing -
Ped 16 ft.
Who sav - eth thy
- struc - - - - tion, and crown-eth, crown - - - - - - - eth
mer - cy, mer - cy and lov - - - - - - ing - kind - ness,
- kind - ness, lov - ing - kind-ness, and crown - eth life from de - struc - - - - tion, and crown - eth thee with mer - cy, thee with mer - cy, mer - cy and lov - - ing - kind - ness, with mer - - - -
thee . . . with mer - cy, mer - cy and lov - ing - kind - ness,

dim.
mer - cy, mer - cy and lov-ing-kind - ness.
dim.
mer - cy and lov - ing - kind - - ness.
dim.
- - - - cy and lov - ing - kind - - ness.
dim.
mer - cy and lov - ing - kind - ness.
dim.
mp
cres.
mp cres.
cres.
sff
f
dim.
Praise the Lord, O my soul, and all that is with -
f
dim.
Praise the Lord, O my soul, and all that is with -
f
dim.
Praise the Lord, O my soul, and all that is with -
f
dim.
Praise the Lord, O my soul, and all that is with -
Full Sw. closed.
rit.
Unaccompanied.

f
- in me, praise, praise His ho - ly Name, praise the
Gt. to Sw.
sf
rit.
Lord, O my soul, and all that is with - in me praise . . . His ho - ly
Lord, . . . and all that is with - in me praise . . . His ho - ly
Lord, O my soul, and all that is with - in me praise . . . His ho - ly Lord, O my soul, and all that is with - in me praise . . . His ho - ly
ff
molto rit.
Name, praise the Lord, praise the Lord. . .
add Stops.

Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 958, price 2*d*.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

TENTERDEN STREET, W.

PATRONS—THE QUEEN AND THE ROYAL FAMILY.
PRESIDENT—H.R.H. THE DUKE OF SAXE-COBURG AND GOTHA, DUKE OF EDINBURGH, K.G.
PRINCIPAL—SIR ALEXANDER C. MACKENZIE, MUS. DOC.

METROPOLITAN EXAMINATION, 1896-7.

The following Candidates have passed:—

In HARMONY.—As TEACHER.—Emma Jane Bentley. Examiners: Messrs. George J. Bennett, F. W. Davenport, and F. Corder (Chairman).

In SINGING.—As PERFORMERS.—Munro Davison, Keith Boyd Ferguson, Charles Julius Joyce Herbert, and Mabel Eva Saw.

As TEACHER.—George Frederic Mason. Examiners: Messrs. Alberto Randegger, F. Paolo Tosti, and William H. Cummings (Chairman).

In PIANOFORTE.—As PERFORMERS and TEACHERS.—Sydney Frederic Blakiston, Ethel Emma Burbidge, Betty Anne Elmer Cole, Florence Amelia Crews, Regina Druiff, Hilda Mary Gardner, Percy Douglas Gordon, Henrietta Mabel Lowe, Hubert George Oke, and Ewart George West.

As TEACHERS.—George Parker Allen, Alfred Barnes, Agnes Stephanie Barratt, Flora Streets Bellamy, John William Brodie, Evelyn Mary Bull, Lizzie Cannell, Beatrice Mary Charters, Mrs. Ada Martha Coviello, Eliza Ann Craig, Florence Augusta Tootal Dawes, Julius Maximilien Delbos, Ada Constance Dixon, Henrietta Flexman, Mrs. Isabel Hamilton Fox, Jean McKerras Fraser, Georgie Fuhr, Grace Galloway, Annie Gard, Nellie Greenhill, Annie Florence Griffey, Mary Winifred Hele, Mary Hindley, George Evan Jones, Margaret Isabel Jones, Sister Mary Imelda Knowles, Theresa Larkin, Bessie Mudge Lee, Jessica Florence Leeson, Agnes Barclay MacDougall, Elsie Beatrice Manning, Henry Heber Livingstone Middleton, Nellie Miller, Esther Florence Mosely, Alice Mary Osborne, Frances Pamplin, Charles Ernest Paragreen, Annie Lamb Paviour, William George Peake, Eleanor Mary Perkins, Mabel Phillips, Kathleen Sarah Venn Roberts, Gertrude Rolls, Grace Emily Salsbury, Lilian Gertrude Sisling, Maud Steel, Mary Isabel Tanner, Gertrude Toussaint, Susanna Turnbull, Margaret Olympia Rosamund Voisin, Helen Elizabeth Ward, Harry Wharton Wells, Winifred Grace Westlake, Florence Annie Winter, and Lilian Woodcock. Examiners: Messrs. Henry R. Eyers, Frits Hartvigson, and Walter Macfarren (Chairman).

In PIANOFORTE.—As PERFORMERS and TEACHERS.—Emily Marion Emuss, Letitia Haselden, Elizabeth Jane Pettifer, Marie Soper, Mary Isabella Sutherland, and Hilda Mary Sykes.

As TEACHERS.—John Clark, Eleanor Kate Cunningham, Edith Mary Fenn, Ethel Frances Fowler, Florence Louisa Goodacre, Effie Marion Heard, Mary Bridget Jones, Harold Charles Lake, Bessie Lesingham, Herbert J. Miller, Lucy Elinor Richards, Evelyn Gertrude Roberts, Hilda Margaret Cabourn Simonds, and Nellie Viveash. Examiners: Messrs. Tobias A. Matthay, Adolphe Schloesser, and Frederick Westlake (Chairman).

In PIANOFORTE.—As PERFORMERS and TEACHERS.—Isabel Cole and Mary Emily Philpott.

As TEACHERS.—Alice Mary Andrews, Annie Eliza Bassett, Edith Mabel Blanchard, Ettie Louise Bridger, Helen Emily Choisy, Emily Louisa Collins, Hilda Katharine Dickin, Annie Marker Manley, Gertrude Palmer, and Bessie Isette Walters. Examiners: Messrs. Carlo Albanesi, Septimus Webbe, and Oscar Beringer (Chairman).

In ORGAN.—Leonard Harry Roger Henniker, Thomas Keighley, Arthur Ruddock. Examiners: Messrs. Rowland Briant, William Stevenson Hoyte, and Charles Steggall (Chairman).

In VIOLIN.—As PERFORMER and TEACHER.—Florence Woolland.

As TEACHERS.—Lena Fuller, Ida Louise Worsley Gibson, Nellie Harding, Jessie Hudson, Jessie Crew Hudson, Mary MacGregor Miller, Mortimer Reidy, Lizzie Robertson, Ernest William Rogers Toy, and A. G. Irene Williams.

In VIOLONCELLO.—As TEACHER.—Adelaide Frances Vernet.

In HARP.—As TEACHERS.—Eveline Beatrice Galsworthy, Florence Maye, and Ethel Emily Stephens. Examiners: Messrs. Hans Wessely, W. E. Whitehouse, and John Thomas (Chairman).

In BANDMASTERSHIP.—Henry James Cook, James Walter Anderson Eskdale, and Frederick Haines. Examiners: Messrs. J. A. Kappey, George Miller, and Ebenezer Prout (Chairman).

THE ASSOCIATED BOARD

OF

The ROYAL ACADEMY of MUSIC & The ROYAL COLLEGE of MUSIC

FOR LOCAL EXAMINATIONS IN MUSIC.

Elementary Examinations, 1897.

MESSRS. NOVELLO & CO. beg leave to announce that they have published the whole of the Music required for the Elementary Examinations, which will be issued in five Books as under:—

BOOK I.—PIANOFORTE.

EXERCISES:—Aloys Schmitt, as far as No. 20.
STUDIES:—Czerny, Op. 599, No. 59; Czerny, Op. 849, No. 3 (Franklin Taylor's Progressive Studies, Nos. 12 & 16, Book 1).
PIECES:—Beethoven, No. 2, in F, of Two Sonatinas, First Movement. Schumann, Stückchen in C, Op. 68, No. 5.

BOOK II.—VIOLIN.

EXERCISE:—No. 43, Nos. 1 to 4. (Page 29, Tours, "The Violin," Novello's Primers).
STUDIES:—Tours, "The Violin." No. 49, in C major. No. 50, in A minor (first bowing only).
PIECES:—Battison Haynes, "Twelve Sketches for Violin and Pianoforte." No. 1, "Thoughts."
Dolmetsch, Twelve Easy Pieces. No. 6, Polonaise.

BOOK III.—SINGING, SOPRANO.

SCALES:—To be sung in every key within the compass of the voice.
EXERCISES:—Concone's 50 Lessons for the medium part of the voice; Nos. 1 and 2 (Novello's Edition).
Song, Schubert, "Praise of tears."

BOOK IV.—SINGING, MEZZO-SOPRANO.

SCALES:—To be sung in every key within the compass of the voice.
EXERCISES:—Concone's 50 Lessons for the medium part of the voice; Nos. 3 and 4 (Novello's Edition).
Song, Randegger, "At night."

BOOK V.—SINGING, CONTRALTO.

SCALES:—To be sung in every key within the compass of the voice.
EXERCISES:—Concone's 40 Lessons for Contralto; Nos. 1 and 2 (Novello's Edition).
Song, Macirone, "Lullaby."

PRICE ONE SHILLING EACH NET.

Postage, 1d. each Book.

All orders should be accompanied by a remittance, unless an account has already been opened. In all cases an additional sum should be added to the remittance to cover the cost of postage.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 649.—Vol. 38. MARCH 1, 1897. Price 4d.; Postage, 1½d.

Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Post-free, 5s

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY,

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Patron: HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF SAXE-COBURG AND GOTHA, DUKE OF EDINBURGH, K.G.
Conductor: Professor BRIDGE, Mus.D.

ASH WEDNESDAY, MARCH 3, AT 8.

GOUNOD'S "REDEMPTION."

Artists:

Miss ESTHER PALLISER. | Mr. LLOYD CHANDOS.
Miss MAGGIE PURVIS. | Mr. ANDREW BLACK.
Mrs. KATHARINE FISK. | Mr. NORMAN SALMOND.

Organist, Mr. H. L. BALFOUR.

Prices: Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Arena, 6s.; Balcony (Reserved), 5s.; Unreserved, 4s.; Gallery (Promenade), 1s.

THURSDAY, MARCH 25, AT 8.

SPOHR'S "LAST JUDGMENT"

AND

HUBERT PARRY'S "JOB."

(Conducted by the COMPOSER.)

Artists:

Miss ANNA WILLIAMS. | Mr. IVER McKAY.
Miss ADA CROSSLEY. | Mr. DANIEL PRICE.
Mr. HENSCHEL.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,

TENTERDEN STREET, W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.
Patrons: HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND THE ROYAL FAMILY.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF SAXE-COBURG AND GOTHA.
Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus. Doc.

Lent Half-Term began February 22.

Chamber Concert at St. James's Hall, Monday, March 1, at 3.

Lecture by WALTER MACFARREN, Esq., Wednesdays, March 3, 10, 17, 24, and 31, at 3.15.

Fortnightly Concerts, Saturdays, March 13 and 27, at 8.

Goring Thomas Scholarship for Composers, last day for entry, March 15.

Sainton Scholarship for Violinists. Last day for entry, April 14.

Liszt Scholarship for Pianists and Composers. Last day for entry, April 14.

Prospectus, Entry Forms, and all information may be obtained from the Secretary. F. W. RENAUT, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.

PRINCE CONSORT ROAD, SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.
President: H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.
Director: C. HUBERT H. PARRY, Esq., D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.
Hon. Sec.: CHARLES MORLEY, Esq., M.P.

The MIDSUMMER TERM will commence on May 3.

ASSOCIATE of the ROYAL COLLEGE of MUSIC.

The Next Examination for Certificate of Proficiency with the above title will take place at the College in April, 1897. Last day for entering, March 10.

Syllabus and Entry Forms may be obtained of FRANK POWNALL, Registrar.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.—

Established by the Corporation of London, 1880.

Principal, WILLIAM H. CUMMINGS, Esq.—Improvisation, Accompanying, Sight Singing, Elocution, Sight Reading (Instrumental), Choral, Orchestral, and Operatic Classes. Prospectus and particulars of Secretary. By order of the Committee, HILTON CARTER, Sec.
Victoria Embankment, E.C. (near Blackfriars Bridge).

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The solo playing tests for the Fellowship Examination in July will be:—Choral Vorspiel, "Christ unser Herr, zum Jordan kam," Bach (Peters, Novello and Co.); Fugue on the name of Bach, No. 4. Schumann (No. 248. Original Compositions for the Organ. Novello and Co.); and "Variations on a Theme by Beethoven," Op. 45, Merkel (Forberg, Leipzig; Novello and Co.).

A course of Educational Lectures, on the "Principles and Practice of Counterpoint," will be delivered by J. Higgs, Mus. Bac., on Wednesdays, March 24, 31, and April 7, at 5 p.m.

The College Library will be open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; also on Tuesdays and Thursdays, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Members desiring practice on the College Organ may obtain particulars on application.

The large Hall, and sundry smaller rooms, may be hired for concerts, meetings, &c. E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.
Hart Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

QUEEN'S HALL,

LANGHAM PLACE, W.

LIST OF CONCERTS, SEASON 1896-97.

UNDER THE DIRECTION OF
MR. ROBERT NEWMAN.

QUEEN'S HALL SYMPHONY CONCERTS

Conductor: Mr. HENRY WOOD.
February 27, March 20, April 3.
7s. 6d., 5s., 2s. 6d., 1s., at Robert Newman's Box Office.

THE QUEEN'S HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

CONDUCTOR—MR. RANDEGGER.

FIXTURES, 1897.

March 3, at 3	"Stabat Mater" / "Hymn of Praise"	Rossini. / Mendelssohn.
March 6, at 3	"Samson and Delilah"	Saint-Saëns.
March 18, at 8	"Faust"	Berlioz.
April 16, at 3	"Redemption"	Gounod.
May 13, at 8	"St. Paul"	Mendelssohn.
May 27, at 3	"Elijah"	Mendelssohn.

Artists:
Miss ELLA RUSSELL.
Madame DUMA and Miss CLARA SAMUELL.
Miss THUDICHUM and Miss EVANGELINE FLORENCE.
Madame MARIE BREMA.
Miss HILDA WILSON and Miss ADA CROSSLEY.
Madame BELLE COLE.
Mr. EDWARD LLOYD.
Mr. BEN DAVIES and Mr. HIRWEN JONES.
Mr. LLOYD CHANDOS and Mr. IVER McKAY.
Mr. SANTLEY.
Signor FOLI and Mr. ANDREW BLACK.
Mr. WATKIN MILLS and Mr. LEMPRIERE PRINGLE.

Single Tickets—7s. 6d. and 5s.; 2s. 6d. and 1s.
At usual Agents, and Robert Newman's Box Office, Queen's Hall.

QUEEN'S HALL.

LAMOUREUX ORCHESTRAL CONCERTS.

THIRD VISIT, SPRING, 1897.
March 22, 23, 26, at 8.30.
March 24, 25, 27, at 3.
Subscription for the Six Concerts .. .. £3 3s.
Subscription for Three Afternoon or Three Evening Concerts, £1 11s. 6d.
Single Tickets—12s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.; 5s. and 2s. 6d.
At the usual Agents, and at Robert Newman's Box Office.

QUEEN'S HALL.

SATURDAY PROMENADE CONCERTS

Every Saturday Night during the Winter, from 8 till 11 o'clock.
Smoking allowed.
GRAND ORCHESTRA OF ONE HUNDRED AND THREE.

Solo Cornet .. .. .. Mr. HOWARD REYNOLDS.
Principal Violin .. .. Mr. ARTHUR W. PAYNE.
Accompanist .. .. .. Mr. PERCY PITT.

Conductor: Mr. HENRY J. WOOD.
1s., 2s., 3s., 5s., at Robert Newman's Box Office.

QUEEN'S HALL.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON ORCHESTRAL CONCERTS

Every Sunday Afternoon during the Winter, from 3.30 till 5.
FULL ORCHESTRA OF SEVENTY.

Principal Violin .. .. Mr. ARTHUR W. PAYNE.
Organ and Pianoforte .. Mr. PERCY PITT.

Conductor: Mr. RANDEGGER.
Tickets: 2s., 1s. 6d., 1s., 6d., at Robert Newman's Box Office.

QUEEN'S HALL.

SUNDAY EVENING CHAMBER CONCERTS

THE QUEEN'S HALL STRING QUARTET.
Señor ARBOS.
Mr. FERDINAND WEIST-HILL. Mr. ALFRED HOBDAY.
Mr. W. H. SQUIRE.
Every Sunday Evening at 7.30.

Tickets for all Concerts and Theatres may be obtained at ROBERT NEWMAN'S Box Office, Queen's Hall, Langham Place, W.
Telegrams—"Chord, London." Telephone—352216.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS FLORENCE ARMRIDING (Soprano)
(Pupil of Mr. Shakespeare and Medalist, R.A.M.).
Oratorios, Concerts, Lessons, &c., at 20, Conduit Street. Address, Leicester Villa, Ealing, W.

MISS MAUDE BALLARD (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Press notices and terms, 13, Herbert Road, Stockwell, S.W.

MISS ETHEL BARNARD (Soprano)
(Bronze and Silver Medals, Cert. of Merit, and Rutson Memorial Prizeholder, R.A.M.)
German Songs a specialty. 25, Upper Richmond Road, Putney, S.W.

MISS LOUISE BURNS (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, and At Homes.
Bronze and Silver Medalist, R.A.M.; Cert. Performer and Teacher, R.A.M. Apply, for terms, dates, and Press notices, to 2, Church Hill House, Chapter Road, Willesden Green, N.W.

MADAME CONWAY (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, Lessons, Press Notices, &c.
444, Moss Lane East, Oxford Road, Manchester.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 237, Katherine Street, Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS FUSSELLE (Soprano)
Licentiate (Artist), R.A.M.
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. 37, Harrington Square, N.W.

MADAME GOODALL (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Address, Leeds.

MADAME RUTH LAMB (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
Recommended by Dr. Bridge, of Westminster.
17, Warwick Square, Carlisle.

MISS ADA LEE (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c. Address, 164, Strand, W.C.

MADAME MARIE MALLIA (Soprano)
Oratorios and Concerts. Claremont, Hermon Hill, Snaresbrook, N.E.

MISS ANNIE NORLEDGE (Soprano)
For Oratorios and Ballad Concerts. For Press notices and terms, address, 221, South Lambeth Road, London, S.W.
Telegrams: "Norledge," London.

MISS MARGARET PEARSON (Soprano)
Concerts, Oratorios, &c.
Special: "Creation," "Elijah," and "Stabat Mater" (Rossini).
For terms, &c., 50, Bloom Street, Stockport.

MISS C. THEODORIC (Soprano and Accompanist)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 37, Binfield Road, Clapham.

MISS FLORENCE VEREY (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Apply, care of N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork Street, W.

MISS NELLIE WILLIS, A.L.C.M. (High Soprano)
For Oratorios or Ballad Concerts,
Adwick-le-Street, Doncaster.

MISS LILIAN CLOSE (Contralto)
"Fine contralto voice . . . distinct articulation."—North Hant Journal.
For Oratorios, Concerts, Lessons, 134, Goldhawk Road, W.

MISS FLORENCE CROFT (Contralto)
MR. D'ARCY CLAYTON (Tenor)
75, Brecknock Road, N.W.

MADAME CLARA DORAN (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes.
39, Malvern Road, Kilburn, N.W.

MISS EMILY FOXCROFT, A.L.A.M. (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, At Homes, &c.
76, Calabria Road, Highbury Place, N.

MADAME HADINGHAM (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c. New address—
13, Spurstowe Road, Hackney; and Waterloo Road, Wolverhampton.

MISS LUCIE JOHNSTONE (Contralto)
13, Cromwell Grove, West Kensington Park, W.
"St. Paul."—Royal Choral Society, December 10, 1896.—"The surprise of the evening lay in the admirable contralto singing of Miss Lucie Johnstone. Restrained, yet full of power and beauty, it well deserved the very cordial appreciation that was shown on every side. Her rendering of the touching melody 'But the Lord is mindful of His own,' was wonderfully tender and withal musicianly. We have been, as it seems, so poor of late in really good contralto voices, that singing so genuinely fine came with a double delight."—Pall Mall Gazette.

MISS FANNY MILLSON (Contralto)
For Oratorio and Ballad Concerts.
For terms and vacant dates, Selwood House, Brigg.

MISS RINA ROBINSON (Contralto)
For Oratorio and Ballad Concerts. 80, Tufnell Park Road, N.
References kindly permitted to Dr. A. H. Mann, Dr. E. H. Turpin, and Mr. F. A. W. Docker.

MISS HELEN SAUNDERS, A.R.A.M. (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Banquets, At Homes, &c.
25, Cloudesley Street, Barnsbury, N.

MISS ALICE WOLSTENHOLME (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Address, Radcliffe, Manchester.

MR. WRIGHT BEAUMONT (Tenor)
(Bronze and Silver Medalist and Certificate, R.A.M.).
Address, 20, Lavender Gardens, Clapham Junction, S.W.

MR. TOM CHILD (The Yorkshire Tenor)
(Principal Tenor, Parish Church, Leeds)
Winner of the 100 Guineas Prize, Music Trades Exhibition, 1896.
For terms and vacant dates, address, Hollingside, Horsforth.

MR. WALTER CLINCH (Tenor)
(Late of St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle).
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c., address, Athole House, Alfred Road, Acton, W.

MR. OTTO DENE (Tenor)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, Masonic Work, &c.
Address, 132, Norwood Road, S.E.;
or, to W. B. Healey & Son, 17, Great Marlborough Street, W.

MR. ARTHUR F. JOHNS (Tenor)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, Banquets, &c.
Address, 202, Grove Road, Bow, E.

MR. FRANK PEMBERTON (Tenor)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Recitals, &c.
24, Balcombe Street, Dorset Square, N.W.

MR. GWILYM RICHARDS (Tenor)
Winner of Joseph Maas Memorial Prize,
" " Goldberg Prize,
" " Evill Prize,
At the Royal Academy of Music.
Of the Crystal Palace and St. James's Hall Concerts.
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts. 30, Redburn Street, Chelsea, S.W.

MR. JOHN W. STOKER (Solo Tenor)
(Llandaff Cathedral).
For Concerts, &c., address, The Cathedral.

MR. HENRY TURNPENNY (Tenor)
(Robinson Prize-winner, G.S.M.)
(Pupil of Wallace Wills, Esq.)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., Southgate Road, Wood Green, N.

MR. HERBERT ALDRIDGE (Baritone)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, Saxonbury Villa, Buxton Road, Stratford, E.

MR. GEORGE DENHAM (Baritone)
"Mr. George Denham, the popular baritone, sang the solos with rare taste and expression."—Morning Leader.
312, Liverpool Road, N.

MR. GORDON HELLER (Baritone)
Oratorios, &c., 1, Craven Mansion, Craven Terrace, W.

MR. CHARLES SMITH (Baritone)
Concerts, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Fairmead, Woodriff Road, Leytonstone.

MR. TOM WATERHOUSE
(The Popular Baritone).
For Oratorios, Operas, Orchestral Concerts, Recitals, &c.
"Sang 'Why do the nations' with great dash and power, giving a fine interpretation of this spirited solo."—Vide Press.
For terms, &c., address, 21, Compton St., Stalybridge, nr. Manchester.

MR. MAGRATH, A.R.C.M.
On Tour, "Shamus O'Brien."

MISS GRACE M. SMITH, L.R.A.M.
(Solo Pianist and Accompanist),
"Killiney," Hatherley Road, Sidcup.

MISS JOYCE HARRIS, G.S.M.
Prof. Dip. I.S.M.
Accompanist.
(To Vocalists, Violinists, or Choral Societies.)
27, Brunswick Square, W.C.

MISS ALICE SIMONS (Soprano, late Parepa-Rosa Scholar, R.A.M.) will sing: Slough, March 2; "Creation," March 9; Finsbury Park, March 15; Highbury, March 17, "Creation"; Islington, March 25; Morley Hall, March 31; Hackney, April 1. For engagements, address, 19, Stamford Hill, N.

MR. EGBERT ROBERTS (Bass, Conductor, Italian Church, Hatton Garden) requests that all communications respecting Oratorios, Opera, or Concerts be addressed 45, Pentonville Road, N.

HAND-BELLS.—Mr. ARTHUR J. MANGER. Concerts, Dinners, At Homes, &c. 100, Manor Road, Brockley, S.E.

MISS
FANNY DE BOUFFLERS
(SOPRANO)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Recitals, address, Carlton House, Liverpool.
Agent: N. Vert.

MADAME ADA LOARING
(SOPRANO)
Merrion, Wellington Road, Peckham, S.E.

MADAME LAURA SMART
(SOPRANO)
Oratorios, Operatic Recitals, Ballad Concerts.
Address, 106, Bolingbroke Grove, Wandsworth Common, S.W.; or, 50, Church Street, Liverpool.

MADAME MARIE HOOTON
AND
MR.
EDWARD BRANSCOMBE
Beg to announce their return from Australia.
Address, 47, Ridgmount Gardens, W.C.

MISS ISABELLE WATERS
(CONTRALTO)
(Pupil of Signor Fiori, who states that "She has a good Contralto voice and sings well).
For terms and vacant dates for Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c., address, 34, Defoe Road, Tooting, S.W.

MR. CHARLES CHILLEY
Begs to announce that he has REMOVED to 38, Carson Road, West Dulwich, S.E.

MR.
HAMLYN CRIMP
(TENOR)
For terms and vacant dates, please apply, The Woodlands, Heathfield Road, Birmingham.
Concert Parties arranged.

MR. BRIGHT JONES
(TENOR)
Sullivan's "Light of the World."—". . . and Mr. Bright Jones, a magnificent young tenor, who on this occasion paid his first visit to Aberdare. He certainly well deserves the high encomiums bestowed on him by the musical press of the country."—South Wales Daily News, December 26, 1896.
Beethoven's "Engedi."—"Mr. Bright Jones, in the tenor rôle of David, created a marked impression. In the plaintive recitative, 'Jehovah! hear,' the purity and flexibility of his voice were brought out with splendid results, and the great aria, 'Oh! my heart is sore within me,' was rendered in a manner little short of perfection. At the conclusion of the performance a consensus of opinion existed that Mr. Bright Jones is the best tenor yet heard in oratorio in the town, an opinion fully sustained by fact."—Western Mercury and Somersetshire Herald, December 12, 1896.
For terms and vacant dates, apply, N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork St., W.

MR. WILLIAM WILD
(TENOR)
Of the Sir Charles and Lady Hallé South African Concert Tour, 1895.
(Pupil of Andrew Black, Esq.)
Specially recommended by the late Sir Charles Hallé. For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. Grosvenor Square, Stalybridge.

MR.
KEVERN BATTEN
(L.R.A.M., BARITONE)
For Concerts, &c., address, 9, Adelaide Road, N.W.

MR. ROBERT GRICE
(BARITONE VOCALIST)
Of the Royal Choral Society, Crystal Palace, St. James's Hall, Queen's Hall, Hereford, Chester, Cheltenham and Wolverhampton Triennial Festivals, Glasgow Choral Union, Edinburgh Choral Union, Birmingham and Bradford Festival Choral Societies' Concerts, &c., accepts Engagements for Oratorio, Ballad and Miscellaneous Concerts, "At Homes," Masonic and other Banquets. Also at liberty to join Touring Company.
Feb. 3, 1897.—"Golden Legend," Dublin Musical Society.—"Of Mr. Grice it seems almost unnecessary to say a word. His name has come to signify good taste, artistic singing and phrasing—in brief, vocal excellence. Mr. Grice has seldom sung with finer effect than in the music of Lucifer last night. It is difficult where all was sung so tastefully to point to any number in which Mr. Grice excelled. But perhaps his power was best shown in the fine number sung in the procession, 'Here am I, too, in the pious band.'"
For terms, vacant dates, &c., please address, 38, Tytherton Road, Tufnell Park, N.; or, usual Agents.

MR.
H. C. PORTWAY
(BARITONE)
From Milan, and R.A.M., London,
Is prepared to book Engagements for Opera, Concert, Oratorio, &c., after his success in English Grand Opera. For terms, &c., apply, The Croft, Halstead, Essex.
Gloucester Citizen, February 10, says: "Mr. Portway, as Count Raymond, was in every respect good. He looked the part, he played the part, and sang the music correctly and with success."
Gloucestershire Echo, February 9: "The great solo, 'Home of my childhood,' was grandly rendered by Mr. H. C. Portway, whose rich baritone made itself heard in every part of the house."
Mr. Portway's robust baritone is remarkably well suited for a theatre or large public hall.

MR. DANIEL PRICE
(BARITONE)
Westminster Abbey. Address, 18, Clarendon Road, W.

MR. EDWARD ILES
(BARITONE).
"A line to say how very much I enjoyed your singing on Saturday. I thought it so artistic, free and powerful."—William Shakespeare.
"The possessor of a highly cultivated and mellow baritone. His voice is full of music, and he thoroughly understands how to use it."—Morning Leader.
"His voice is very musical, and he sings with charming naturalness of expression."—Musical Courier.
Address, N. Vert, 6, Cork Street, Burlington Gardens, W.

MR. HERBERT HILTON
(BASS)
For Concerts, &c., please address, 58, Lordship Lane, Wood Green, N.

MR.
WILLIAM LLEWELLYN
(BASS)
Of the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden; the late Sir Augustus Harris's Drury Lane Opera Season, 1896; late Principal Bass, Carl Rosa Opera Company; of the Queen's Hall and Crystal Palace Concerts.

Oratorio, Opera, Operatic Recitals, and Ballads.

For terms and vacant dates, apply to Sole Agent, Concert-Direction Mendelssohn Parry, 11, Northumberland Mansions, London, W.

MISS ALICE MARY SMITH
(Mrs. Alfred Dymes)
Associate of the Royal College of Music
HARPIST
16, Lancaster Road, W.

"VOICE PRODUCTION, STYLE, AND ARTISTIC SINGING."
MR. F. ST. JOHN LACY,
A.R.A.M., &c.
Receives Pupils at his residence, Albany Chambers, York Street, Queen Anne's Gate (St. James's Park Station); or, at New Bond St.

THE GRIMSON FAMILY.
This remarkable family of Instrumentalists can be engaged either together or separately. Programmes suitable for an entire Concert or for small Choral Societies or Literary and Musical Societies. They play almost any combination of Chamber Music, from the Mendelssohn Octet downwards.
Solo Pianists.
Miss ANNIE GRIMSON, A.R.C.M., and Hopkinson Gold Medalist, Covent Garden Promenade Concerts, Imperial Institute, &c.
Miss AMY GRIMSON, A.R.C.M., and Hopkinson Gold Medalist.
Solo Violin.
Miss JESSIE GRIMSON, Crystal Palace Saturday Concerts.
Solo Cello.
Miss AMY GRIMSON.
For terms, Press notices, &c., S. Dean Grimson, Cremona, Ealing, W.

ROYAL WINDSOR GLEE SINGERS
(Of St. George's Chapel Royal and Eton College Chapel).
Mr. WALTER CLAY — Mr. ABEL STARKEY
Mr. DAVID HUMPHREYS — Mr. WALTER DODDS.
For Concerts, At Homes, Banquets, &c., address, D. Humphreys, 19, The Cloisters, Windsor Castle; or, N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork St., W.

THE COWARD-KEMPTON QUARTET.
Alto: Mr. PERCY COWARD; Tenor: Mr. ARTHUR COWARD; Baritone: Mr. RANDULPH COWARD; Bass: Mr. BELL KEMPTON.
For Concerts, &c. Terms on application to Arthur Coward (care of Metzler and Co., Ltd.), Great Marlborough Street, W.

THE AMPHION GLEE-MEN.

CHARLES RAY
(Principal Alto, Holy Trinity, Sloane Street, S.W.)
SIDNEY MARION
R. E. STRICKLAND
(Corporation, Mitchell and Webster Exhibitioner, G.S.M., 1885-6)
FREDERIC HABBIJAM
(St. Margaret's, Westminster, S.W.)

May be engaged for Concerts, At Homes, Masonic Banquets, &c. Terms, vacant dates, apply to Sidney Marion, 42, Norcott Road, Stoke Newington, N.

MR. JOSEPH CANTOR'S

"GEMS OF THE OPERAS"

CONCERT COMPANY.

All communications, Church Street, Liverpool.

Telegrams—"Cantor, Liverpool."

THE NOVELTY OF THE SEASON.

THE BOYS' VOCAL TRIO.

MASTER ROLAND FORD
MASTER SHOWELL FORD
MASTER EDGAR FORD

For Concerts, Choir Festivals, Organ Recitals, &c.

The Boys may be engaged together or separately. Their répertoire comprises Trios, Duets, and Solos.

"These boys have been well trained. Their voices are sweet and clear, their intonation is excellent, and their phrasing and expression carefully observed. All their items were vociferously applauded."—Walsall Observer.

"The singing of Masters Edgar, Showell, and Roland Ford was enthusiastically encored."—Midland Evening News.

Birmingham Town Hall.

"That clever trio of youngsters, Masters Roland, Showell, and Edgar Ford, sang, much to the delight of the audience, trios and songs with signal success."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

"Masters Roland, Showell, and Edgar Ford created considerable enthusiasm. They sang trios with telling light and shade."—Birmingham Daily Mail.

For terms, address, Mr. S. Ford, Avondale, Park Road E., Wolverhampton.

THE MISSES TULLOCH'S

Vocal, Instrumental, and Dramatic

RECITALS.

OPERATIC SCENAS AND ARIAS. BALLADS.
MANDOLINE AND GUITAR SOLOS AND DUETS.
ITALIAN, FRENCH, AND GERMAN SONGS.
SPANISH SONGS TO GUITAR ACCOMPANIMENTS.
RECITATIONS (POETIC AND HUMOROUS).

For Press notices and Programmes, address, Miss D. Tulloch, 16, Linden Gardens, London, W.; or, usual Concert Agents.

MR. DUTTON'S SOLO BOYS.

FOR LENTEN ORATORIOS.

MR. DUTTON (St. Paul's Cathedral) supplies Solo Boys for Church Festivals, Organ Recitals, Concerts, &c.

MR. DUTTON'S Boys are trained entirely by himself, and he guarantees their efficiency.

They are engaged for—Rossini's "Stabat Mater" (4), Gaul's "Passion" (2), "Ten Virgins," "Crucifixion" (3), "Redemption," "Lauda Zion," "Bethany," &c., &c., &c.

George C. Martin, Esq., Mus. Doc., Organist of St. Paul's Cathedral, writes: "I have almost exclusively employed Mr. Dutton's Solo Boys at Services at St. Paul's Cathedral and elsewhere when our own choristers were not available, and they have given me on all occasions the greatest possible satisfaction. I feel that Mr. Dutton has special and very great abilities in the art of training choristers; his boys sing with much expression and refinement."—December 20, 1896.

Edward German, Esq., writes: "The boys (Gough and Griffiths) sang beautifully yesterday."—November 24, 1896.

Thomas Adams, Esq., F.R.C.O., Organist and Director of the Music at St. Alban's, Holborn, writes: "In his singing of Rossini's 'Stabat Mater' at St. Alban's during this month, Master Fryatt has rendered admirable service, and delighted all who heard him."—December 16, 1896.

Harry Dancey, Esq., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, Organist, All Saints', Putney, writes: "I was very pleased with the manner and singing of the boys—they afforded us great help. We were specially delighted with Gough's voice and singing."—Mendelssohn's 95th Psalm, November 7, 1896.

Frederic Leeds, Esq., Mus. Bac., Cantab., Organist, Parish Church, Lewisham, writes: "Gough did his work well, and gave great satisfaction. He certainly is a credit to you."—Spohr's "Last Judgment," December 3, 1896.

Edgar Pettman, Esq., Organist of St. James's, Piccadilly, writes: "Gough sang splendidly. The Bishop and all of us were delighted with him."—Spohr's "Last Judgment," December 20, 1896.

For vacant dates, terms, and further particulars, address, Mr. Henry J. Dutton, 19, Alpha Road, New Cross, S.E.

SOLO BOYS.

LONDON TRAINING SCHOOL FOR CHORISTERS.

PRINCIPAL, MR. JAMES BATES.

Solo Boys supplied for Oratorios, Festival Services, Organ Recitals, Concerts, &c.

The following Boys can be strongly recommended as excellent Soloists:—

MASTER STANLEY MARCHANT,
Solo Boy, Christ Church, Lancaster Gate, W.
MASTER PERCY HALE,
Solo Boy, Holy Trinity, Sloane Square, S.W.
MASTER WILLIE GAMMAGE,
Solo Boy, Royal Military Chapel, S.W.
MASTER WILLIAM McLEAN,
Solo Boy, St. Peter's, Cranley Gardens, S.W.
MASTER EDWARD BOWLEY,
Solo Boy, Hon. Society of Gray's Inn, W.C.
MASTER JAMES McBEAN,
Solo Boy, Holy Trinity, Wandsworth, S.W.
MASTER WILLIAM McBEAN,
Solo Boy, Hampstead Parish Church, N.W.
MASTER ARTHUR WIDLAKE,
Solo Boy, St. Peter's, Hammersmith, W.
MASTER HENRY JEFFRIES,
Solo Boy, St. Mark's, Marylebone, W.
MASTER ARTHUR SIGGERS,
Solo Boy, St. Paul's, Paddington, W.
MASTER ERNEST GLENN,
Solo Boy, St. Thomas's, Kensington, W.
MASTER FREDERICK WESTON,
Solo Boy, St. Jude's, Chelsea, W.

Masters Albert Russell, Stanley Smith, Herbert Harden, Alfred Bartington, George Glasspoole, and George Edwards, thoroughly competent Solo Boys, are free to accept permanent engagements in West-End Churches (Anglican Services).

Extracts from recent testimonials:—

Alberto Randegger, Esq., Conductor, Queen's Hall Choral Society, &c.
"Too much praise cannot be given for your boys' excellent singing."—May 11, 1896.
Professor Bridge, Mus. Doc., Conductor, Royal Choral Society, &c.
"Your boys are excellent."—June 30, 1896.
John Spencer Curwen, Esq., President, Tonic Sol-fa College.
"I have often been charmed with the sensibility, the phrasing, and the emotional power of your solo boys' renderings."—Sept. 11, 1896.

Recent Newspaper cuttings:—

"The delightful singing of 'Killarney' and 'Birds in the night,' by Master Stanley Marchant, afforded a very enjoyable addition to the Meister Glee Singers' programme."—Bayswater Chronicle, Jan. 8, 1897.

"Master Marchant gave a very beautiful rendering of the soprano solos (Spohr's 'Last Judgment'); indeed, we think his singing better than any other boy we have ever heard in the Cathedral on similar occasions."—Hereford Times, Dec. 20, 1896.

"Master Percy Hale sang exquisitely 'With verdure clad' and 'On mighty pens.'"—Musical News, Oct. 17, 1896.

"'With verdure clad' was exquisitely sung by Master Herbert Harden."—Putney and Borough News, Oct. 16, 1896.

"The audience were delighted with his (Master W. McLean's) sweet and dulcet tones (Brahms's 'Lullaby' and Mendelssohn's 'Hear my Prayer')."—Yeovil Weekly News, Feb. 16, 1897.

Over 100 chorus boys available on week-days. These boys can be engaged for Musical Festivals, &c. Sixty boys have had a unique experience, as they take part in all the Queen's Hall Choral Society's Concerts. "Creation," "Elijah," "Samson and Dalila," "Messiah," "Golden Legend," "Stabat Mater" (Rossini), "Faust" (Berlioz), "Hymn of Praise," "Redemption," "St. Paul."

London critiques on the Boys at the Queen's Hall Choral Society's Concerts:—

The Times, Jan. 4, 1897.—The choir, materially assisted by a contingent of boys from the London Training School for Choristers, were more than admirable in every way, their quality of tone, power of expression, and precision of attack being as remarkable as they are uncommon."

Daily Telegraph, Jan. 24, 1896.—"The choruses gained in effect through the strengthening of the choir by a contingent of boys from the 'London Training School for Choristers,' whose bright young voices were heard to much advantage."

Morning Post, April 4, 1896.—"In speaking of the choir mention should be made of the excellent singing of the contingent of boys from the London Training School for Choristers.

Standard, Feb. 24, 1896.—"The sopranos and contraltos were reinforced by a large contingent of boys from the London Training School for Choristers. The bright, fresh voices of the juvenile singers blended excellently with those of the female executants."

For terms, photos of Solo Boys, and full particulars, address, Mr. G. E. Jeffries, Secretary, Church House, Porchester Terrace, Hyde Park, W.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. New House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. AND MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, and Durham (1896) Universities, Diplomas of L.R.A.M. (1897, &c.), A.Mus. L.C.M., L.Mus. L.C.M., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O.; Appointments at College and School of Music, and as Chapel Royal, Cathedral, and Parish Church Organists; Gold Medals, Prizes, "Honours" and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of 500. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS. Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D. 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

MR. J. PERCY BAKER, A.R.A.M., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by post. Personal Lessons in Pianoforte or Theory at own or pupil's residence; or at 84, New Bond Street, W. Schools attended. Address, Willersley House, Old Charlton.

DR. W. BENTHAM, Mus.D., T.C.T., F.R.C.O., L.Mus. L.C.M., Associate-Organist, T.C.L., Winner of the Hallé Gold Medal for Sight Reading, &c., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, INSTRUMENTATION, FUGUE, ACOUSTICS, &c., by Correspondence. Highly successful method. Preparation for ALL Examinations. Successes: Durham Mus. Bac. (First and Final), London Mus. Bac. (Intermediate and Final), A.R.C.O., F.R.C.O., L.C.M., and T.C.L., higher and local, &c. Terms very moderate. Address, 18, Russell Street, Bolton.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.Mus.T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares CANDIDATES for ARTS and MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Latest successes, Mus. Bac: Oxford and Durham, L.R.A.M. A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., &c. Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

DR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab.; Mus. Doc., Trinity College, Toronto; L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS Personally or by post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, ORCHESTRATION, ACOUSTICS, &c., and prepares for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: MUS. BAC., DURHAM, 1896, also 1895 and all previous years; and FIRST, 1896, also 1895 and all previous years; A.R.C.M., 1896; CAMBRIDGE, FIRST MUS. BAC., 1896; OXFORD, MUS. BAC., 1896, and FIRST, 1896; F.R.C.O., 1897, A.R.C.O., 1896; CAMBRIDGE MUS. BAC.; LONDON, MUS. BAC.; DUBLIN, MUS. BAC.; L.R.A.M. (Composition and Pianoforte), 1896 and 1897; Mus. Bac. and Mus. Doc., Toronto, Gold Medalists, 1890, 1892, and 1893; L.Mus., L.C.M.; L.T.C.L., and A.T.C.L., 1896 and 1897; Senior Local R.A.M. and R.C.M. Special and individual attention given to Correspondents. Upwards of 350 Diplomas and Degrees and several Gold and Silver Medals gained by pupils. MSS. corrected and revised for publication. Terms moderate. Address, 70, Park Road, Haverstock Hill, London N.W.

DR. F. R. GREENISH, Mus. Doc., Oxon., L.Mus. T.C.L., has a few VACANCIES for Private Correspondence PUPILS. Special Subjects: HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FORM, COMPOSITION, and ORCHESTRATION. Preparation, by correspondence, for all Theoretical Examinations. Every possible assistance given and no effort spared to ensure success. Terms moderate. Address, Dr. F. R. Greenish, Haverfordwest.

MR. S. S. MARTYN, Mus. Bac., Oxon., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., personally or by post. 24, Killieser Avenue, Streatham Hill, S.W.

DR. FRANK MERRICK, Mus. D. (Dublin), L.T.C.L., L.R.A.M., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence, and prepares Candidates for the University and Metropolitan Examinations. 7, Hughenden Road, Clifton.

MR. W. E. PITMAN, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., teaches HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT, personally or by correspondence, and coaches for the Universities, Royal College of Organists, and other Musical Exams. Thorough grounding in the various subjects. For terms, address, W. E. Pitman, Sundridge, Sevenoaks.

DR. W. JOHN REYNOLDS, Mus. Doc., Lond., L.Mus., T.C.L. (Organist, St. Michael's, Cornhill), prepares CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS, personally or by post. Many successes. Particulars on application. 66, Highbury Grove, London, N.; or, at the Church.

MR. HAMILTON ROBINSON, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, F.R.C.O., Lecturer on Harmony in King's College, Lond., Organist and Choirmaster, St. Stephen's, South Kensington. PIANOFORTE and ORGAN LESSONS. HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, &c., personally or by correspondence. Preparation for University, R.C.O., and other Examinations. Classes. 54, Baron's Court Road, West Kensington, W.

MR. R. STOKOE, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.C.O., gives ORGAN LESSONS at Christ Church, Down Street, Piccadilly. Harmony, Counterpoint, &c., taught personally or by post. 86, Rossiter Road, Balham, S.W.

London College of Music,

INCORPORATED 1892.] [LIMITED.

GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W.

PATRON.

HIS GRACE THE DUKE OF LEEDS.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.

HORTON ALLISON, Esq., Mus.D., Dublin; Mus.B., Cantab.
W. H. LONGHURST, Esq., Mus.D., Cantuar, F.R.C.O.
WALTER H. SANGSTER, Esq., Mus. Doc., Oxon.

ALFRED J. CALDICOTT, Esq., Mus. Bac., Cantab. (Principal, Education Department).
G. AUGUSTUS HOLMES, Esq. (Director of Examinations).
Dr. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (Vice-Principal).

EXAMINATIONS in PIANOFORTE PLAYING, SINGING, THEORY, and all branches of Music will be held in London and at 350 Provincial Centres in April next, when Certificates will be granted to all successful candidates.

SPECIAL ATTENTION is directed to the well-graded character of both Practical and Theoretical Examinations, commencing with the Elementary Grade—a section which the Council of this College were the first to introduce some ten years ago.

Application for the formation of NEW CENTRES should be made to the Secretary, who will supply all information.

SYLLABUS and FORMS of ENTRY can be obtained of the Secretary, who will supply all particulars. The last day for receiving entries is March 15.

The DIPLOMAS granted by the College are Associate (A.L.C.M.), Associate in Music (A.Mus.L.C.M.), Licentiate (L.L.C.M.), Licentiate in Music (L.Mus.L.C.M.), and Fellowship (F.L.C.M.). Regulations on application.

In the EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT Students are received and thoroughly trained under eminent Professors at moderate fees. Day and Evening Classes are held in various subjects.

REHEARSALS of the OPERATIC CLASS, ORCHESTRA, and LADIES' CHOIR are held each week. Membership is free to Students of the College.

STUDENTS' CONCERTS, and LECTURES and RECITALS by Professors, are periodically given during Term in the Large Hall of the College. Full particulars will be found duly published in the daily papers.

T. WEEKES HOLMES, Secretary.

DR. TAYLOR, Mus.D., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.T.C.L. (Author of "Vocal Score Reading Exercises" and "Figured Bass and Melody Exercises," for R.C.O. Students), prepares CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Address, Wolverhampton Road, Stafford.

MR. A. W. TOMLYN, Mus.B., Dunelm, L.T.C.L., Berwick-on-Tweed, COACHES CANDIDATES for University and all other Exams. by post. Every possible attention and assistance guaranteed. Many past successes.

MR. W. H. TUTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., L.R.A.M., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, ACOUSTICS, &c., by Correspondence. Ashburn, Derbyshire.

DR. A. MADELEY RICHARDSON, having commenced his duties as Organist of St. Saviour's Collegiate Church, Southwark, is prepared to receive additional PUPILS. For particulars, address, Bishop's College, Blackheath Hill, S.E.

RESIDENT PUPIL.—YOUTH REQUIRED, to train for Profession. Exceptional advantages. Univ. degree. Dr. Thomas, Carlyle, Boscombe, Bournemouth.

ROYAL NATIONAL EISTEDDFOD OF WALES,

NEWPORT, MON.,

August 3, 4, 5, and 6, 1897.

PRIZES IN MUSICAL SECTION, £900.

COMPETITIONS

(Open to all Comers).

Chief Choral (200 voices) .. 1st Prize, £200 .. 2nd Prize, £50
Second Choral (100 voices) .. 1st Prize, £75 .. 2nd Prize, £25
Male Voice Choirs (80 voices) .. 1st Prize, £70 .. 2nd Prize, £10
Female Voice Choirs (30 voices) 1st Prize, £25 .. 2nd Prize, £10
Glee Competition (30 voices), Prize, £15.
Orchestral Band Competition (40 performers), Prize, £50.
Brass Bands Competition (24 performers), 1st Prize, £25; 2nd Prize, £15; 3rd Prize, £5.
Military Bands Competition (30 performers), 1st Prize, £25; 2nd Prize, £15; 3rd Prize, £5.

For further particulars, see List of Subjects, published by William Jones, Printer, &c., Newport, Mon. Post-free, 7d. Or apply, Hon. Sec., Musical Section, 14, Church Road, Newport, Mon.

Entries close, May 31.

THE

GLASGOW AND WEST OF SCOTLAND TECHNICAL COLLEGE.

EVENING LECTURER ON MUSIC.

The Governors invite applications for the above appointment. The duties of the lecturer will be to deliver a course of Lectures upon the History and Theory of Music and upon the lives of eminent Musicians, and upon such branches of Acoustics as may be connected with and illustrate the science and practice of Music. Salary, £100 for the session (October till April).

Applications, with thirty-five copies of testimonials, to be lodged with the undersigned not later than March 15.

JOHN YOUNG, B.Sc., Secretary.

38, Bath Street, Glasgow.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

Instituted by the Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.
Incorporated, 1891.

Patrons:
The Rt. Hon. The Marquis of Lorne, K.T.
The Rt. Hon. The Earl of Dartmouth.

Director:
J. H. Lewis, Mus. Doc., D.C.L.

Registrar:
George Prior, Mus. Doc., Oxon.

Bursar:
W. F. W. Jackson, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

Local and Higher (Practical) Examinations are now being held at the various Centres.

Next Local Theoretical Examination, April 7, 1897.

Metropolitan Examinations, in all Subjects, and for all Grades, including the Diplomas of Associate (A.V.C.M.), Associate in Music (A.Mus.V.C.M.), Licentiate (L.V.C.M.), and Licentiate in Music (L.Mus.V.C.M.) will be held April 7, 1897.

The Educational Department is under the direction of Dr. Prior.

Local Secretaries required for towns not already represented.

Full particulars on application.

GEO. A. STANTON, F.G.C.M., Secretary.

Central Office: 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.

MUSICAL INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE,

Limited.

Founded 1878. Incorporated 1893.

Central Office: 113, Great Portland Street, W.

Next Local Theoretical Examination, May 25, 1897.

Practical Examinations throughout the kingdom.

W. A. PHILPOTT, Mus. Doc., Secretary.

DR. HOCH'S CONSERVATOIRE for all branches of Music, in Frankfort-on-the-Maine. The Summer Term commences March 1. Director, Professor Dr. B. Scholz. Tuition is given by Frau P. Bassermann, and by Messrs. Director Dr. B. Scholz, Professor J. Kwast, L. Uzielli, F. Meyer, E. Engesser, Music Director A. Glück, K. Friedberg, and Ch. Eckel (in Pianoforte); Mr. H. Gelhaar (in Organ); Professor H. Heermann, Professor Naret-Koning and F. Bassermann, Concertmeister A. Hess (in Violin and Viola); Professor B. Cossmann, Professor Hugo Becker (in Violoncello); W. Seltrecht (in Contra-Bass); M. Kretzschmar (in Flute); R. Müns (in Oboe); L. Mohler (in Clarinet); F. Thiele (Fagotto); C. Preusse (in Horn); J. Wohllebe (in Trumpet); Frau Professor Schroeder-Hanfstaengl and Herren Kammersänger Max Pichler, C. Schubart, S. Rigutini, Frl. Cl. Sohn, and Frl. A. Kolp (in Singing); Director Dr. Scholz and Messrs. Professor J. Knorr, C. Breidenstein, and B. Sekles (in Theory and Composition); Professor V. Valentin (in German Literature); Mr. K. Hermann (in Declamation and Mimics); Frl. del Lungo (in Italian Language). Prospectus to be had, gratis and franco, from the Secretaryship of the Dr. Hoch's Conservatoire, 4, Eschersheimerlandstrasse. Applications for entry should be made immediately as only a limited number of pupils will be accepted.

TO ORGANISTS.

MACDONALD SMITH'S SYSTEM.

("From Brain to Keyboard.")

LESSONS IN PEDAL TECHNIQUE.

Since July, 1895, lessons in Organ Pedal-playing, based on the principle of muscular development by "full contraction," have been taken by certain of Mr. Macdonald Smith's pupils, though for adequate reasons no public reference to this branch has been made. Mr. Smith begs to announce that he is now prepared to extend tuition in pedalling to Organists in general.

COMPLETE COURSE OF FOUR LESSONS,
BY CORRESPONDENCE,
Two Guineas (payable in advance).

THE SAME THOROUGHNESS OF RESULTS IS GUARANTEED
AS IN THE PIANOFORTE COURSE.

MACDONALD SMITH,

STEINWAY HALL, LOWER SEYMOUR STREET, W.

VOICES TRAINED (Altos included), and SIGHT-SINGING and the PIANOFORTE TAUGHT by Mr. W. A. FROST (Vicar-Choral of St. Paul's Cathedral), at 16, Amwell Street, E.C. Many of Mr. Frost's pupils have obtained Cathedral and other Choir appointments in open competitions.

VISITING MUSIC-MISTRESS DISENGAGED. Prepares for Exams., Harmony, Class Singing. Cert. G.H.S. Diplomée I.C.M. Very successful teacher. H., Miss Robertshaw, 102, New Bond Street.

SINGING LESSONS, with public introductions in London, &c., given by successful Trainer. Refs. to pupils. Also, Lady, resident or articled. Wallis, "Sharon," Acton, W.

OXFORD (New College).—CHORISTERSHIPS.—The TRIAL of VOICES to fill vacancies in the Choir School will be held on Wednesday, March 24. Candidates must have a good ear and good voice, and should be between nine and twelve years of age. For particulars, apply to the Precentor. Names to be sent in by March 20.

CANTERBURY CATHEDRAL.—Two MUSICAL SCHOLARSHIPS of £30 per annum are offered to sons of gentlemen (Clergymen preferred) aged between 9 and 10. The boys will be required to enter as boarders in Junior Department of the King's School and to sing in the Cathedral Choir. The Scholarships will be for one year, dating from May 1, and may be continued up to the age of 14, or until the voice breaks. Applications to be addressed to the Rev. Precentor Helmore, Canterbury.

CHOIRBOYS.—Two BOYS WANTED, for the Choir of the Brompton Oratory. Salaries, £20 and £15 yearly respectively. Apply to Mr. Nolan, 48, Leicester Square, W.

TRURO CATHEDRAL.—WANTED, ALTO Singer. Good reader. Duty light; salary small. Apply Canon Donaldson, Truro.

ST. MARGARET'S, Westminster.—ALTO VACANCY. Salary, £30. Must be a perfect reader. Compass up to E. Apply to E. H. Lemare.

VOLUNTEER CHOIRMEN, with Tenor and Bass Voices, WANTED. Communion and set services. Apply to George Norris, Organist, St. Mary's Church, Graham St., Eaton Sq.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER for St. Mary's Wesleyan Church, Truro, to assist the present Organist (who is in failing health) in Choir Training, and in his private practice, for which arrangements could be made. Apply, with testimonials, qualifications, and salary required, to Mr. R. Lean, Farley Terrace, Truro.

CHOIRMASTER and ORGANIST WANTED. £35 to £40. Address, Vicar, 26, John St., Bedford Row, W.C.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER REQUIRED, about Lady Day, for the West Cliff Tabernacle, Bournemouth. Salary, to a capable and suitable man, £30. Must be an earnest Christian. Applications to Octavius Carter, Nelson Road. Bournemouth.

CHOIR ORGANIST (£35 to £40) WANTED. Address, Vicar, 26, John Street, Bedford Row, W.C.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER for St. George's Free Church, Edinburgh. Large new organ, by Lewis. Apply, in writing, stating qualifications and with testimonials, to Convener of Organ Committee, 2, Buckingham Terrace, Edinburgh.

ORGANIST, holding the only professional position of that capacity in a country town of nearly 10,000 inhabitants, wishes to EXCHANGE (subject to approval) to a Church in or near London, Manchester, or the like. Particulars of present Church, Orchestral and Choral Societies, &c., of Addison Price, Stamford, Lincs.

ORGANIST.—MR. F. J. MARCHMENT takes VACATION or occasional SUNDAY WORK, Oratorio Accompaniments, &c. Wingfield, Hamlet Road, Upper Norwood, S.E.

WANTED, a first-class TUNER and REPAIRER, well up in Pianos, American Organs, and Harmoniums. Apply, stating age, experience, photo, references, and salary required, to Caractacus, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W. None but thoroughly reliable men need apply, and unexceptionable references required.

WANTED, first-class TUNER and REPAIRER. Permanent situation to good man. None but experienced need apply. Particulars to Bruton and Co., Ltd., 38, Stokes Croft, Bristol.

GOOD TUNER WANTED, on South Coast. Apply, S. Hermitage and Sons, Eastbourne.

GOOD TUNER requires SITUATION, in or around London. Thorough knowledge of Organs and Harmoniums. Good references. Apply, J. H. Parsons, Bramley, Surrey.

SITUATION WANTED, by a first-class TUNER, thoroughly experienced in Pianoforte, Organ, and Hermonium work. Presently employed with the leading firm in Scotland. Permanency and good wages required. Excellent character and of good appearance. Apply, H., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

LADY (L.R.A.M.) wishes to PURCHASE connection of lady who is giving up teaching. Piano, Harmony and Counterpoint, Singing, Harmonium. Many years' exp., and very successful in exam. work. Olga, Novello and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

WANTED, SITUATION as TRAVELLER in Music Firm. Good knowledge of the trade. H. W. Hobbs, The Polytechnic, 309, Regent Street, W.

ASSISTANT (22) requires SITUATION in Music Warehouse. Six years' experience. Good Pianist, Violinist, and Bookkeeper. Thorough knowledge of the Sheet Music, Catalogues, and Small Goods. Excellent references. J. T., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

A YOUNG MAN, of gentlemanly address (thorough good Organist and Pianist), requires a SITUATION in a Music Establishment. Town preferred. State salary. Organist, King's Sutton, Banbury.

ASSISTANT desires APPOINTMENT. Sheet Music, Small Goods, Pianos, Bookkeeping, Pianist, and Organist. Slight knowledge of repairs. Excellent references. Good salesman. Aged 20. K. M., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

LADY requires SITUATION in MUSIC SHOP. Good references. Experienced. Apply, Miss S. Brotherton, care of Mr. F. Wharldall, Music Warehouse, 41, Gillygate, York.

ORGAN PRACTICE (City), 1s. per hour. Three manuals, C.O. pedals. Willis (from Minories), 2, Church Row, Aldgate, E.C.

ORGAN PRACTICE. Three manuals and pedals. One shilling per hour. The South London Organ Studio, 343, Coldharbour Lane, close to Brixton Station.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three manuals; independent pedals. Terms, One Shilling per hour. Specification post-free. Blennerhasset's Studio, 1A, Vernon Street, King's Cross, W.C.

NEW ORGAN STUDIO, with Three-manual PIPE ORGAN, blown by water. Terms for Practice, 1s. per hour. At Smyth's Music Depôt, 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E.

THREE-MANUAL ORGAN for SALE, on which Blow and Purcell and Handel and Haydn played. Taken from the Danish Church. Splendid tone. Apply, Rev. Dan Greatorex, St. Paul's Vicarage, Dock Street, E.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE, from £20, with pedals. Instruments for Church, Chapel, and College, built on the most modern principles, at Bedwell and Sons', Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge.

A LARGE New Two-Manual ORGAN for SALE. Tubular. Great organ, nine stops; swell organ, eleven stops; pedal organ, four stops; couplers, &c. To be seen at A. Hunter and Son's, Organ Builders, High Street, Clapham, S.W.

ORGAN (Three manuals), to be made to suit any place of worship. Organs (Two manuals), 9, 12, and 17 stops. W. E. Richardson, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester.

THREE-MANUAL ORGAN for SALE, containing 28 stops. Rebuilt by Bishop. Space wanted. No reasonable offer refused, Apply to Norman and Beard, 46, Queen Victoria Street, London, E.C.

CHURCH ORGAN for SALE. 2 manuals, 17 stops. Built by Robson. In good order. Price £125. Apply to Norman and Beard, 46, Queen Victoria Street, London, E.C.

FOR SALE.—The fine Three-manual ORGAN, recently removed from Bath Abbey. This instrument, originally built by Messrs. Hill, has been entirely reconstructed, and can be seen by appointment at our works at Norwich. For complete specification, price, &c., apply to Norman and Beard, 46, Queen Victoria Street, London, E.C.

9 GUINEAS.—AMERICAN ORGAN (list price, 20 guineas), 11 stops, including two knee-stops and the beautiful solo stops voix celeste and vox humana, two octave couplers, handsome high case; in use about four months; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged. Packing and carriage free. Approval. Full price paid will be allowed within three years if exchanged for a higher-class instrument. D'Almaine and Co. (established 111 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

A. HUNTER AND SON have just built a Three-manual and Pedal Organ of 27 speaking stops, couplers, &c. The Organ is built on the Carl G. Weigle (of Stuttgart) system, with membrane chest with the ordinary combination pistons; also the free combination knobs; also the crescendo and decrescendo arrangements on all registers and couplers; also three pedals to act on all three manuals, pedals, and couplers collectively. A. H. and Son respectfully invite the Clergy and Profession and others interested in organs to inspect this organ at their Factory, 65A, High Street, Clapham, S.W. The Organ will be on view from February 1 every day in the week (except Sundays), from 10 a.m. till 5 p.m., until further notice.

A. HUNTER and SON also beg to state that they are appointed the Sole Agents for the sale of the Carl G. Weigle System for the United Kingdom and the British possessions.

HARPSICHORD. — Fine old Instrument, by Kirkman, in perfect working order, £40. Harp, double-action, Erat. Perfect order. £25. Morley, Harp Maker, South Kensington Station.

14 GUINEAS.—PIANO, solid iron frame upright grand; worth 30 guineas; full compass, trichord, celeste action, &c.; in handsomely carved walnut wood case, four feet in height; in use only six months; sent on approval, carriage free, to any part of the United Kingdom; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged; full price paid will be allowed if exchanged for a higher class instrument within three years. D'Almaine and Co. (established 111 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, City. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

GRECIAN HARP (double-action), in perfect order and good condition, by Erard. On view, 289, Edgware Road.

ORGAN PEDALS to PIANOS.—New method of Attachment by TUBULAR PNEUMATIC. This action surpasses all mechanical actions for prompt and Organ-like Touch. It is less expensive, easy to attach, and does not injure the most delicate Pianoforte. Prospectus, with full description and price lists, on application to Norman Bros. and Beard, Organ Works, Norwich.

VIOLIN STRINGS.—Send 9d. for samples of four best "E" Strings. Alphonse Cary, 3, Oxford Circus Avenue, London, W.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. R. Willis (from Minories), 2, Church Row, Aldgate, London, E.C.

T. R. WILLIS (from Minories, est. 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Strings, Wire, Violins, Concertinas, &c. 2, Church Row, Aldgate, E.C.

HYDRAULIC ENGINES for Organ Blowing. Blennerhasset's Patent "Perfect" Prize Medal Engines are the best. 1B, Vernon Street, King's Cross Road, London, W.C.

FIRST-CLASS PIANOFORTE and MUSIC BUSINESS, in the Midlands, for SALE. Exceptionally fine premises. Proprietor retiring. Address, Midlands, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

PRIEST'S WIFE supplies CASSOCKS, black or coloured, 9s. to 20s.; Choir Surplices, 3s. to 20s.; Priests' from 7s. 6d.; Stoles, 5s. 6d. to £3; Altar Linen, Bags, &c. Material cut out and placed or designed and prepared for working. Surplice Church Agency, Southampton Street, Strand.

TRINITY COLLEGE LONDON.

For Musical Education and Examination.—Inst. 1872.

President:
Sir RICHARD E. WEBSTER, G.C.M.G., Q.C., M.P.
Warden:
Professor E. H. TURPIN, Mus.D.
Director of Studies:
Professor BRADBURY TURNER, Mus.B.
Director of Examinations:
Professor JAMES HIGGS, Mus.B.

SESSION 1896-97.

TWENTY-FIRST ANNUAL SERIES of LOCAL EXAMINATIONS in MUSIC.

The next Half-yearly Local Examinations in Musical Knowledge (Theory) will be held on Saturday, June 19, throughout the United Kingdom.

Examination fees: Six Shillings (Junior), Seven Shillings and Sixpence (Intermediate), Half-a-Guinea (Senior).

Last day of entry, May 19.

These examinations will take place at Colonial and Foreign centres on June 5.

Three National Prizes of Five Pounds each are awarded annually after the June Examination.

The forthcoming Local Examinations in Instrumental and Vocal Music take place in March, April, May, June, and July at the various centres throughout the United Kingdom, and include pianoforte, organ, and violin playing, solo singing, and the performance on any orchestral instrument. The list of centres may be had on application.

Examination fee: Any Subject and Division, One Guinea.

These examinations will take place at Foreign and Colonial centres in August, September, October, and November.

A National Prize of Five Pounds is awarded annually after July in the Senior Division of Pianoforte playing.

Four Local Exhibitions of the value of £9 9s. each will be awarded in 1897 in connection with the Local Examinations held during the session in pianoforte, organ, and violin playing, and solo singing.

Any or all of the following printed papers may be had on application to the undersigned:—(a) Regulations and list of music to be performed for the local examinations in Instrumental and Vocal Music, and regulations for the (Theoretical) Local Examinations in Musical Knowledge; (b) List of Local Centres; (c) Regulations for the Higher Examinations for Diplomas and Certificates and list of music to be performed for the Higher Certificates in Vocal and Instrumental Subjects; (d) Prospectus of the Classes and Lectures Department; (e) General Prospectus, containing list of honorary officers; (f) Regulations for the Enrolment of Institutions in Union; (g) Regulations for Membership. By order,

SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.

Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, W.

Just Published.

THE MUSIC TO

"AS YOU LIKE IT"

COMPOSED FOR THE PRODUCTION OF SHAKESPEARE'S PLAY AT THE ST. JAMES'S THEATRE

BY

EDWARD GERMAN.

MASQUE

CONSISTING OF

No. 1. WOODLAND DANCE.
„ 2. CHILDREN'S DANCE.
„ 3. RUSTIC DANCE.

ARRANGEMENT FOR THE PIANOFORTE BY THE COMPOSER.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence net.

IT WAS A LOVER AND HIS LASS

DUET FOR SOPRANO AND CONTRALTO.

Price Two Shillings.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

John Broadwood & Sons

PIANOFORTE MAKERS

BY SPECIAL APPOINTMENT TO

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES
HER ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCESS OF WALES
HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH
(DUKE OF SAXE-COBURG AND GOTHA)

AND THE

REST OF THE ROYAL FAMILY.

John Broadwood & Sons

respectfully draw attention to, and invite inspection of, their newly introduced and improved straight and cross strung

HORIZONTAL

AND

UPRIGHT PIANOFORTES.

33 GREAT PULTENEY STREET (near Regent Street), LONDON, W.

THE

CROSS OF CHRIST

CANTATA FOR LENT AND PASSION-TIDE

The Words selected from the Holy Scriptures, interspersed with appropriate Hymns, by

W. MAURICE ADAMS

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

THOMAS ADAMS

Organist and Director of the Music at St. Alban's, Holborn.

Price One Shilling.
Tonic Sol-fa Edition, price Sixpence.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

Also, separately from the above,

NEARER, MY GOD, TO THEE

Anthem for Soprano Solo and Chorus, price Threepence.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

A LEGEND OF BREGENZ

A BALLAD FOR FEMALE VOICES

THE POEM BY

ADELAIDE A. PROCTER

THE MUSIC BY

WILFRED BENDALL,

Composer of "The Lady of Shalott."

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE ASSOCIATED BOARD of the R.A.M. and R.C.M. for LOCAL EXAMINATIONS in MUSIC.

President—H.R.H. the PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.

The Rt. Hon. the Lord Charles Bruce, Chairman.
Thomas Threlfall, Esq., Deputy-Chairman.
Sir Alexander C. Mackenzie, Mus.D., Principal, R.A.M.
C. H. H. Parry, Esq., M.A., Mus.D., D.C.L., Director, R.C.M.

Prof. J. Dewar F.R.S., &c.
Cave. A. Randegger.
F. Westlake, Esq.
His Honour Judge Meadows-White, Q.C.
Hon.G.W.Spencer-Lyttelton,C.B.
Sir G. Grove, C.B.
Sir A. Sullivan.
Sir W. Parratt.
F. Taylor, Esq.

Hon. Treasurer—Charles Morley, Esq., M.P.
Hon. Auditor—Sir Charles Lister Ryan, K.C.B.
Hon. Secretary—Samuel Aitken, Esq.

LIST of PROFESSORS who are EXAMINERS to the BOARD.

E. F. Arbos, Esq.
J. F. Barnett, Esq.
O. Beringer, Esq.
H. Blower, Esq.
J. F. Bridge, Esq., Mus. Doc.
A. Burnett, Esq.
F. Cliffe, Esq.
F. Corder, Esq.
F. H. Cowen, Esq.
F. W. Davenport, Esq.
H. R. Eyres, Esq.
E. Faning, Esq., Mus. Bac.
H. Gadsby, Esq.
A. Gibson, Esq.
F. E. Gladstone, Esq., Mus.D.
R. Gompertz, Esq.
W. B. Haynes, Esq.
W. S. Hoyte, Esq.
H. Inwards, Esq.
T. B. Knott, Esq.
C. H. Lloyd, Esq., Mus. Doc.
G. C. Martin, Esq., Mus. Doc.
T. A. Matthay, Esq.
G. P. Moore, Esq.
A. O'Leary, Esq.
A. Oswald, Esq.
W. F. Parker, Esq
Sir W. Parratt, Mus. Doc.
E. Prout, Esq., Mus. Doc.
A. Randegger, Esq.
F. J. Read, Esq., Mus. Doc.
H. R. Rose, Esq.
E. Sauret, Esq.
H. F. Sharpe, Esq.
C. V. Stanford, Esq , Mus. Doc.
F. Taylor, Esq.
J. Thomas, Esq.
W. H. Thomas, Esq.
A. Visetti, Esq.
F. Walker, Esq.
F. Westlake, Esq.
W. E. Whitehouse, Esq.
C. L. Williams, Esq , Mus. Bac.

—— See Syllabus A. ——

LOCAL SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS, 1897.

The LOCAL SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS will be arranged in Circuits. They will be held during the periods:—
(b) March, April. (c) June, July. (d) October to December.
Also ELEMENTARY and CLASS-SINGING EXAMINATIONS.

—— See Syllabus B and Supplement. ——

Copies of either Syllabus will be sent Post-free on application to the Central Office, 32, Maddox Street, London, W.

SAMUEL AITKEN, Hon. Secretary.

With this Number is presented gratis an Extra Supplement, consisting of a Part-Song by Eaton Faning, entitled "The Queen's Song."

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

MARCH 1, 1897.

VICTORIAN MUSIC.

III.

The general survey of the progress of Church music during Her Majesty's reign which appeared last month must now be supplemented by more particular considerations.

In Vol. V. of the Musical World (1837) is a significant letter from Mr. Egerton Lowe, entitled "Our Musical Wants." It is significant because we find the writer, at a time when, as is generally and, on the whole, rightly supposed, the old contrapuntal order of music prevailed—we find him bewailing the tendency of the age towards forms more free and, as he considered, more superficial. He complains that the "science" of music, or, as we now say, its scholasticism, is going out of fashion, and he holds up his hands in horror because fugue is spoken of as "something obsolete and contemptible." The new composers will not ground themselves in their art, urges Mr. Egerton Lowe: "Not only are the knots of science deemed unworthy of the pains of solution by any but mechanic hands, and every singing boy is, in that matter, his own Alexander, but those ingenuous youths—their country's hope—who undertake to console us for the loss of Beethoven and Weber are firmly, nay, logically convinced that, music being a thing of inspiration, and they being musical, it is but to elevate the pen's point heavenward, and protend the forefinger of the left hand to the upper angle of the forehead, and the charm at once descends—invisible, indeed, to vulgar eyes, but not to them, nor, which is better, to the fashionable publisher. They opine that, like 'reading and writing,' music too 'comes by nature,' that art is consequently an impertinence, or, at best, but a mean substitute, resorted to by those less favoured mortals whose natural gifts do not, as with them, amount to intuitive perfection. These masters-by-the-grace-of-God may be considered as forming the chief bulk of the 'eight hundred great living musicians'; they constitute the last figures of that term, having the double property of ciphers—of being multitude and naught at the same time." Mr. Lowe proceeds to insist upon the constraint of rule, of course within limits, remembering the Baconian precept: "A froward retention of custom is as turbulent a thing as an innovation, and they that reverence too much old times are a scorn to the new." . . . "The idleness inherent in our nature makes us too prone to embrace any excuse for delivering ourselves from discipline. In truth, nothing but confusion and absurdity can result from the pernicious notion that genius is fettered by rules; it is the mere offspring of vanity or weakness, and those who uphold such a doctrine imagine themselves to be vindicating genius while they are only flattering dunces." What is all this but the past generation shaking its head at the new, as it has done since the beginning and will do to the end? Here, however, it may be looked upon as the outward and visible sign of a tendency in music which, though not new, had just then come to be distinctly marked and threatening to the old order. Whereupon the champions of the old order, as we have just seen, spake sarcastically and in anger.

Revolt against scholasticism of the dry-as-dust order had, for some time, less effect upon Church music than upon other branches of the art. Tradition was strongly entrenched in choirs and organ galleries; hedged round by a kind of sanctity, like the ark of the Hebrew covenant, which it was death to touch. There, in the very nature of the case, change was bound to be gradual. Slow, though sure, it certainly has been, for even now, when fashion in music varies as quickly as that in feminine attire, the respectable old contrapuntists get a chance from time to time of parading their exercises in company with words which seem to have been attached to them by a sportive fate, just as in the army, it is said, all the short tunics go to the tall men. Better this, no doubt, than the light-headedness which welcomes novelty simply because it is new; but let us turn from inertia to the forces which made for movement.

Movement, in this case as in every other of a like nature, comes through men, and it is often extremely difficult to apportion the credit of it among a number of agents. There were many contributories to the great change in Church music which took place in and about the early part of the Victorian era, and all are entitled more or less to recognition and praise; but I shall not be far wrong in attributing much of the moving influence to Mozart, acting through his pupil, Attwood, and continuing through Attwood's pupil, John Goss. An indirect proof of Mozart's great power at that time may be seen in a curious circumstance, noted in the musical journals of 1839. A certain Jules Maurel, being, I should say, pot valiant, made bold to declare that "Mozart had neither the beautiful melody of the Italians, the powerful declamation of the French lyrical drama, nor the scientific invention of the Germans; to the first he appears a harsh and fantastic melodist; to the second, an insipid and monotonous one; undramatic and unpoetic to the third." Thus Monsieur Maurel, writing, it is charitable to hope, in his cups, and, just as young and timid foxhounds will act as chorus to the cry of an older or more daring dog, so did certain English musicians say ditto to the muddled Frenchman. One declared: "Mozart has been excelled in the Church by Handel, in the concert-room by Beethoven, and on the stage by Weber." Another protested that he thought one of Haydn's or Beethoven's Masses worth the whole lot of Mozart's, continuing: "When I want to enjoy choral effects, the 'lofty fugue' and the stern sublimity of pure Church music, I go to Handel; when I require profound and vigorous German harmony and artful instrumental combination, I look to Haydn and Beethoven; but when I am in the humour for the feminine graces of music—for the sweet or the brilliant, the pathetic or the gay—I find them all by turns in the operas of Rossini and Bellini." Why this homage to Mozart—homage it is—if that composer was not at the time a formidable power? His influence, however, was not so much directly exerted (although his Masses had then recently been published by J. Alfred Novello) as indirectly, through English composers trained in his school, and mingling with it English elements of expression. No safer influence could have been brought to bear than that of Mozart. The purest and most serene of the classics, he was, at the same time, a harbinger of romanticism in right of poetic spirit, of a fascination which bespoke the intense humanity of his music, and of, if nothing else, the pianoforte Fantasia in C minor, which enshrines the very soul of romantic art. Something of this is naturally reflected in Attwood, of whom it was said by a competent writer, just after death had removed him:

"His Italian education and want of intimacy with the great Protestant school of ecclesiastical music, as exhibited in the works of Sebastian Bach, led him to reject the energetic dissonances derived from the organ; hence his Church vocal music, although marked by a serene and elegant outline, is without that unction and raciness of spirit which distinguished the kindred effusions of his contemporaries, Charles and Samuel Wesley. The intricacies of counterpoint he had perfectly overcome, but he had not a mind of the character which leads its possessor to mould out of old conceptions the shapings of new and great thoughts. His strength lay in the elegance of his cantilena and the pure orchestral structure of his harmonies. The anthems, 'Be Thou my Judge, O Lord,' 'Grant, we beseech Thee,' 'Bow down Thine ear,' 'Teach me, O Lord,' and the Cantate Domino, are severally learned and elaborate compositions, well worthy the study of the amateur, while for correctness and chastity they are models, which stand unequalled in modern times."

Allowing for a certain measure of elegiac fervour, the foregoing estimate of Attwood is correct, and we must recognise in his church music a decided step towards the freedom, pliancy, grace, and, as regards structure, simplicity which the sacred compositions of various masters displayed later on. It is, however, as the master of Goss that Attwood did, perhaps, the greater service. No conjunction could have been more fit and fortunate than that of this teacher and this pupil. The nature of Goss might have been specially prepared for the seed which Attwood dropped into it. He was sensitive and sentimental, quick to recognise and respond to the appeal of musical beauty, and, at the same time, naturally impressed with a sense of the dignity and elevation of spirit without which the music of worship is but sounding brass and tinkling cymbal. How strange it now seems that not till long after his appointment as organist of St. Paul's (1838) did the full measure of his powers appear. The reason of this cannot now be discussed; it may, however, be said that they were partly personal, and connected with a retiring nature and a somewhat timid, diffident spirit. I have heard from his own lips of the torturing apprehensions which filled his mind when composing music for the funeral of the Duke of Wellington. Possibly nothing was lost by delay in the revelation of Goss's fullest powers. These were ripening for the time (1857) when the late Mr. Henry Littleton (Novello and Co.) determined to produce a series of new works for use in the services of the Church of England. In this resolve lay the beginning of the era of modern music for worship, and the great publisher could not, in the first place, have sought the help of a better man than John Goss, in whom were combined, as already suggested, a strong sense of the dignity and serenity of sacred art with the feeling for absolute beauty and grace which had its highest embodiment in the genius whom Goss used to call his musical grandfather. The first published anthem of the new series was one written in 1856 for the enthronement of Dr. Jackson, Bishop of London. It is now well known as "O praise the Lord," and so favourably was it received that Novello and Co. gave the organist of St. Paul's practically carte blanche with regard to others. "Christ our Passover" and "Behold, I bring you good tidings," speedily followed, and then, to use the words of the late W. A. Barrett, "the whole of the musical world became alive to the fact that there was a great genius in its midst—a genius whom circumstances had kept silent until he had arrived at the age when most men cease to speak." "From that time forward," continues Dr. Barrett, "until within a few years of his death, he enriched the stores of Church music with works heard every day in one or other of our cathedrals—works which preach the truths of religion more forcibly than many sermons."

This is not a biography of Goss, but I may invite the amateur of Church music to take up the Novello catalogue and read the list of Anthems and Services from his pen which are there set forth. He sees not only what are achievements in themselves, but also the immediate source of an influence which has affected the character of English Church music down to the present day. The power indicated lies in its happy blend of elevated seriousness with a graceful and expressive modern style. "His music," well said the late Mr. Husk, "is always melodious and beautifully written for the voices, and is remarkable for a union of solidity and grace, with a certain unaffected native charm which ought to ensure it a long life." That is the whole truth in a sentence.

The source of another powerful influence in shaping Victorian Church music must now be dealt with, and the reader already divines that my thoughts have turned to Samuel Sebastian Wesley. This remarkable musician, whose reward was infinitely smaller than his deserts, made himself known as a gifted composer long before Goss conspicuously took the field. It may be doubted, nevertheless, whether Wesley has exerted so great an influence upon Church music as the gentle and gracious organist of St. Paul's. He stood nearer to the rank of genius than Goss; he was erratic, daring, and altogether a "terrible fellow" to those who were at ease in the musical Zion. Such characters often stand in their own light, and Goss, who was not terrible at all, made easier way, though coming later, than did the bolder spirit who went before. Wesley has been dead these twenty years, and nothing can now rob him of his high rank in the world of sacred art. His musical lineage differed materially from that of his sometime rival. If Mozart was Goss's grandfather, Sebastian Bach stood in the same relation to Wesley; but, of course, these declarations of kinship must be taken with many grains of salt. In each case the family likeness between the elder and younger was of a modified and limited kind. Still, there it was, and without it neither of the younger musicians would have been himself as he is now known to us. From an early age Wesley, as a matter of course, was grounded in Bach. His father, as all amateurs know, was the apostle of the great Cantor in this country, and never ceased calling upon men to believe his gospel. The son must have taken in his father's teaching almost with his mother's milk, and, despite future changes, the influence remained with him, and may be detected in many and many a passage (in the anthem, "O God, Thou art my God," for example) where the old master may be found in material, if not in manner. Bach, however, though an influence, and a precious one, with Wesley, was not the determining influence. The bent of Wesley's mind, though susceptible to the claims of antique grandeur and profound scholasticism, was towards the then modern in style and expression. It had a leaning even to the romantic in spirit, but in that direction failed to develop great individuality. Wesley was all his life a hero worshipper. He had strong antipathies, which he never cared to conceal, and stronger affections, which found a free course in his music. This is important because it threw the weight of Wesley's influence on the side of modern art as then exemplified by Spohr and Mendelssohn. The fact was remarked upon early in the English master's career, but, as regards Mendelssohn, it has been contended that what in Wesley is Mendelssohnian comes, not through Mendelssohn, but by direct and independent inspiration. The point is curious and interesting, but can be no more than touched now.

An acute reviewer of Wesley's anthems, writing as far back as 1840, began by saying: "The first point that will strike the musician's eye on perusing these anthems is the extreme similarity of the style to that of Mendelssohn in his choral writing; many of those things, even, which are generally considered the peculiar mannerisms of the latter are here found in the same shapes and with nearly the same mode of treatment." He declares, however, that some at least of the anthems were composed years before their publication in 1840, and that the same "parallelism of thought" manifests itself in smaller works written before Mendelssohn was known in this country. This is remarkable, if true, and the reviewer feels himself bound to give some explanation. Hence he says: "That Wesley and Mendelssohn should fall on similar trains of ideas, and similar modes of arranging and working them out, is in nowise astonishing, if the parity of their musical education and likings be considered. Both early imbibed a reverence for the grandest kind of ecclesiastical music and the severest style of organ performance; into both was the wisdom of old Bach instilled at the earliest period of their musical existence, and both prove by their writings that their love for his sublime compositions is, at this day, in no degree diminished. Thus it is evident that the striking similarities to which we have referred cannot be rightly viewed otherwise than as kindred inspirations of like minds, journeying towards the same object and lighted by the same guide-star." It is easy to understand that when two students follow the same model they will each put on a likeness to it, and consequently to each other. But it is not so easy to explain the similar traits of a modern character in Mendelssohn and Wesley. These could not have been derived from Bach. However, that is not the main point just now. We have most to consider that, no matter how caused, much of the nobility and graciousness characteristic of Mendelssohn's sacred music is found also in that of Wesley. So with some of Spohr's characteristics. Who can mistake the spirit and manner of the final section in the "Wilderness"? I close this chapter by pointing out that we have already seen our Church music enriched by influences derived from three illustrious masters and, so to speak, translated into English by worthy hands. There are other cases to follow.

Joseph Bennett.

HANS VON BÜLOW IN HIS WRITINGS.*

(Continued from page 92.)

In his "Writings," Bülow has shown himself as a remarkably astute critic and commentator, a great teacher, a propagandist, and sometimes (as Liszt affirmed) as a humorous journalist. Next in importance to the articles already alluded to may perhaps be placed those which treat of Rubinstein, Volkmann, and Fr. Kiel.

Bülow seems to have been entirely free from artistic jealousy, and always proved himself a staunch supporter, not only of those of his personal friends in whom he recognised unusual talent, but also of those whom, though personally unknown to him, he regarded as undervalued by the public or unfairly treated by the press. This support he extended even to his most dangerous rivals—especially Rubinstein, whose concertos, &c., he was one of the first to play in England. Writing of Rubinstein's Pianoforte Concerto in G major (Op. 45), in 1858, he maintained that the best and most infallible critique of it would be a hearing of it at the hands of the composer, whom he hoped to greet in Berlin during the coming winter, adding at the same time, as an Avis aux lecteurs, or as a warning to critics, that it is impossible to form a due estimate of a new and important work without having carefully read the score and having heard it adequately performed. Neither one nor the other by itself suffices for more than a statement of first impressions. That so sharp-sighted and so keen-eared a critic as Bülow should have laid down this as a dictum must be consoling to present-day critics, from whom so much readiness is expected.

Robert Volkmann, a Saxon musician, who resided in Pesth and died there in 1883, is spoken of in terms of high admiration. Writing in 1853, Bülow could not then have known his subsequent and most important compositions. Hence we hear nothing of his Symphony in D minor, which is still regarded in Germany as a "classic," and is still frequently played. Regarding him as more nearly akin to Beethoven than to Mozart, he praises his pianoforte pieces as "masterworks," and has much to say in favour of his songs. As the most impressive of his then known works, he singles out his Trio for pianoforte and strings, dedicated to Liszt, which he says was a favourite work of Liszt's, and one which Liszt was in the habit of playing with Joachim and Cossmann, especially when he wished to provide visitors to Weimar with a genuine treat.

How Bülow could take up the cudgels in behalf of the oppressed is seen in his article on Fr. Kiel, whom he regarded as having been unjustly attacked in the Neue Zeitschrift für Musik, and with whom at the time (1863) he was not personally acquainted. Always ready to suggest and advocate improvements in matters in general, rather than to take things as he found them, he here seizes the opportunity of airing his views as to what should be the principal aims of a musical newspaper, and takes his editor to task for sundry shortcomings, to some of which his editor replies in footnotes. It forms an interesting and instructive discussion, and at the present day is probably more valuable than what he has to say in praise of the compositions of that great master of counterpoint, Fr. Kiel, to whom he remained faithful to the end, Kiel's Trio (Op. 17) having headed the programme of the last "Pianoforte Evening" which Bülow gave in Berlin, on October 4, 1892.

Much in a laudatory vein is said of Raff, who befriended him in his early Weimar days, and much of Brahms, whom Bülow so warmly befriended in his latter days, especially during his Meiningen period, when he took him and his works on tour with the far-famed Meiningen

* "Hans von Bülow, Briefe und Schriften." Band III. Ausgewählte Schriften (1850-92) herausgegeben von Marie von Bülow. Leipzig: Breitkopf und Härtel. 1896.

Orchestra almost throughout the length and breadth of the musical world. He speaks therein of Brahms's first Symphony as the "Tenth," not because he regarded it as the most worthy sequel to Beethoven's "Ninth"—its proper place, he says, would be between the second and the "Eroica"—but because, notwithstanding his admiration for some of Schubert's, Mendelssohn's, and Schumann's, he (in 1877) looked upon it as among the best of the post-Beethovenian period.

The remarks, which Bülow has scattered throughout his "Writings," upon Bach, Beethoven, Berlioz, Brahms, Chopin, Gade, Glinka, Gluck, Handel, Hummel, Jensen, Joachim, Liszt, Mendelssohn, Meyerbeer, Mozart, Raff, Rossini, Rubinstein, Schubert, Schumann, Spohr, Wagner, and Weber, if collated, might well serve as the groundwork of separate articles on each of these masters.

It has been truthfully said that the master-criticisms of works of art will be read long after the works which gave rise to them have been forgotten. This seems specially true of Bülow's "Writings," which certainly will be widely read, and which contain frequent allusions to many musicians, worthies in their time, who have either failed to make themselves known, at least in England, or have dropped out of remembrance. It seems needless to specify them. Thanks to a compendious index, this volume of "Writings" will serve as a useful book of reference for students in search of information respecting almost all the leading musicians of the greater part of the present century.

Bülow was always a rolling-stone, as perforce every pianiste ambulant must be. During his official sojourns in Munich, Hanover, Meiningen, and, latterly, in Hamburg, he had plenty to occupy him as a conductor, &c. It follows, therefore, that it was during his travels, especially during the latter part of his life, that he showed the greatest activity with his pen.

In 1874 we find Bülow in Milan, whence he addressed a long letter to the Allgemeine Zeitung, treating of the first performance of Verdi's "Manzoni" Requiem, which was by no means to his taste and which he thoroughly condemned. He speaks therein also of the scandalous reception by the Italians of Glinka's "Life for the Czar," on the first occasion of its being performed beyond the confines of Russia, where for thirty-five years it had enjoyed as great a popularity as "Der Freischütz" in Germany. Bülow was a great admirer of Glinka, and, at a later date, while holding the post of Court-Conductor at Hanover, brought forward this opera there. In the same article he speaks—quite prophetically, one might say—of Tschaïkowsky as the only Russian composer whom he knew worthy to put by the side of Glinka. He loudly praises a string quartet, which had already made its way in Germany, his overture "Romeo and Juliet," and two early symphonies. Would that he had lived to hear his "Pathétique"!

It was after Bülow's visit to the United States that a change came over his style of diction and that he won the soubriquet, with which Liszt invested him, of a "humorous journalist." This change of style he adopted wilfully, for in the first of a long series of letters addressed to the editor of the Leipzig Signale he writes: "You see, dear Sir, that I have not been to America in vain, and that I have studied the sensational style of the Yankee Press," &c. With these words he prefaces a number of communications written in 1877-8, from Brussels, Sydenham (where he treats at length of the Saturday Concerts at the Crystal Palace), Glasgow (where he conducted the concerts of the Choral Union), Birmingham, London, Liverpool, Sheffield, Manchester, and Bristol. Copious extracts from these figured at the time in English papers. It is, therefore, needless now to recapitulate their contents.

Similarly entertaining are the accounts of his Scandinavian musical tour, which he wrote from Copenhagen, Stockholm, and Christiania, in 1882.

The concluding chapter of this volume consists of the speech which Bülow addressed to the audience on the occasion of his conducting a Philharmonic Concert in Berlin for the fiftieth time. Beethoven formed the subject of it. After alluding to Hähnel's statue of Beethoven, erected some fifty years before in Bonn, and for which "a Hungarian musician, by name Franz Liszt," contributed the greater part of its cost, he recalled the fact that Hähnel, who was an ardent enthusiast for Beethoven, had very felicitously compared Beethoven's nine Symphonies to the nine Muses. "Thalia was the muse of the first, Melpomene of the fifth, Clio of the seventh, Terpsichore of the eighth, and Urania of the ninth; but the chief of them all was Calliope, the muse of the 'Heroic' Symphony, which we have just had the honour of performing before you." He then goes on to speak of them from his own point of view, and maintains that in his nine Symphonies Beethoven has furnished us with his own biography, not the history of his earthly private woes (Privatmisère), but the history of his ideals. "We see how these nine Symphonies together constitute nine scenes in the three acts of a drama. The first act culminates with the 'Heroic': the ideal hero; the second culminates with the 'Pastoral': Nature; and the third with the 'Choral': Mankind." Expatiating upon this idea, he points out that when Napoleon had proved himself unworthy of the dedication of the "Heroic," Beethoven transferred it to Prince Lobkowitz, and winds up by suggesting that now (1892) it should be passed on to Prince Bismarck!

This concluding chapter is supplemented by a long series of "Aphorisms," culled for the most part from the Prefaces and Annotations to Bülow's instructive editions of classical works, and by a list of the titles of fifty musical articles, written during the period 1850-82, and which are not included in the present volume.

That they will find a place in a future volume is as much to be desired as it is to be hoped that the present volume of "Writings" will come under the hands of Miss Constance Bache, who has recently done most excellent service in translating a goodly selection of Bülow's "Letters."*

C. A. B.

FROM MY STUDY.

Several persons named Broderip figure in our musical dictionaries, among them Robert of that ilk, who was for many years organist of St. James's, Bristol, and died in the Western city, May 14, 1808. Robert Broderip, like his relatives whose names are on record, was a composer, but immortality came to him very much more through the poet Chatterton than by reason of special merit in his works. Chatterton studied music a little, as he did most other things, and this may have led him to haunt organ galleries, where the forward youth was, no doubt, more free than welcome. Anyhow, his room rather than his company was desired at St. James's, and on one occasion Broderip ordered him out of the gallery, little suspecting what would follow upon that exercise of authority. "The marvellous boy who perished in his pride" was a marvellous good hater, and he never forgave. Hence we find the organist "gibbeted" by the poet in his satirical effusion, "Kew Gardens." At that time "pleasure had a hut at Jacob's Well," near the site of the old Bristol Theatre:—

A mean assembly-room, absurdly built,
Boasted one gorgeous lamp of copper gilt;
With farthing candles, chandeliers of tin,
And services of water, rum and gin.
There, in the dull solemnity of wigs,
The dancing bears of commerce murder jigs;
Here dance the dowdy belles of crooked trunk,
And often, very often, reel home drunk;
Here dance the bucks with infinite delight,
And club to pay the fiddlers for the night.

It is probable that Broderip presided over the music at this place, and that Chatterton brought Jacob's Well into "Kew Gardens" because thereof. At any rate, he goes on to assail the unfortunate musician:—

While Broderip's hum-drum symphonies of flats
Rival the harmony of midnight cats.
What charms has music when great Broderip sweats
To torture sound to what his brother† sets.
With scraps of ballad tunes, and gude Scotch sangs,
Which god-like Ramsey to his bag-pipe twangs;
With tattered fragments of forgotten plays;
With Playford's melody to Sternhold's lays,
This pipe of science, mighty Broderip, comes,
And a strange, unconnected jumble thrums.
Roused to devotion in a sprightly air,
Danced into piety, and jigged to prayer;
A modern hornpipe's murder greets our ears,
The heavenly music of domestic spheres;
The flying band in swift transition hops
Through all the tortured vile burlesque of stops.
Sacred to sleep, in superstitious key,
Dull, doleful diapasons die away;
Sleep spreads his silken wings, and lulled by sound,
The vicar slumbers, and the snore goes round,
Whilst Broderip at his passive organ groans
Through all his slow variety of tones.

Chatterton did not forget to aggravate the wound by extolling a rival. A Mr. Allen was at that time organist both of St. Mary, Redcliff, and Temple Church:

How unlike Allen! Allen is divine!
His touch is sentimental, tender, fine.
No little affectations e'er disgraced
His more refined, his sentimental taste.
He keeps the passions with the sound in play,
And the soul trembles with the trembling key.

A friend of Chatterton, Mr. T. Cary, appears to have remonstrated with the poet upon what he considered to be undue praise of Allen, and was answered, from London, as below:—

"You accuse me of partiality in my panegyric on Mr. Allen. Pardon me, my dear friend, but I believe there are very few in Bristol who know what music is. Broderipp (sic) has no taste; at least no real taste. Step into Redcliff Church, look at the noble arches, observe the symmetry, the regularity of the whole; how amazing must that idea be which can comprehend at once all that magnificence of architecture; do not examine one particular beauty, or dwell upon it minutely, take the astonishing whole into your empty pericranium, and then think what the architect of that pile was in building Allen is in music. Step aside a little and turn your attention to the ornaments of a pillar of the chapel; you see minute carvings of minute designs, whose chief beauties are deformity or intricacy. Examine all the laborious sculpture. Is there any part of it worth the trouble it must have cost the artist? Yet how eagerly do children and fools gaze upon these littlenesses. If it is not too much trouble, take a walk to the College gate, view the labyrinths of knots which twist round that mutilated piece, trace the windings of one of the pillars, and tell me if you don't think a great genius lost in these minutiæ of ornaments. Broderip is a complete copy of these ornamental carvers; his genius runs parallel with theirs, and his music is always disgraced with littlenesses, flowers, and flourishes. What a clash of harmony Allen dashes upon the soul! How prettily Broderip tickles the fancy by winding the same dull tune over again! How astonishingly great is Allen when playing an overture from Handel! How absurdly ridiculous is Broderip when blundering in and new modelling the notes of that great genius; how emptily amusing when torturing and twisting airs which he has stolen from Italian operas! I am afraid, my dear friend, you do not understand the merit of a full piece; if you did you would confess to me that Allen is the only organist you have in Bristol—but of this enough. If you have not music enough to enter into a dispute with me on the merits of Mr. Allen, engage one who has to throw down the gauntlet, and I shall be ever ready to take it up."

* "The Early Correspondence of Hans von Bülow." Edited by his Widow. Selected and Translated into English by Constance Bache. London: T. Fisher Unwin. 1896.

† John Broderip, Organist of Wells Cathedral.

Chatterton's letter to his friend clearly reveals the bent of his taste in music, as well as the arrogance which made enemies even of those who were disposed to be friends. In the same letter the unhappy boy seems to convey an impression that he had turned composer himself: "A song of mine is a great favourite with the town, on account of the fulness of the music. It has much of Mr. Allen's manner in the air. You will see that and twenty more in print after the season is over. I yesterday heard several airs of my Burletta sung to the harpsichord, horns, flutes, bassoons, hautboys, violins, &c., and will venture to pronounce, from the excellence of the music, that it will take with the town." This Burletta, "The Revenge," was sold to the proprietor of Marybone Gardens for five pounds, but not produced till nearly a year after Chatterton's miserable death.

Last month I pointed out, in Rudyard Kipling's "Seven Seas," a great subject for musical treatment, and now I would call attention to another, which might be made the groundwork of an impressive symphonic poem. The poetical works of the late James Thomson are not, I imagine, very widely read, but there is one, entitled "Shelley," which, for power of imagination and splendour of diction, deserves the highest honour. To that poem I refer, and I propose to indicate its scope and character, hoping that some musician, casting about for a suggestive theme, may give me the reward of his thanks.

The machinery of a dream—how useful are visions in such cases!—is employed by the poet, who, sleeping, sees things in heaven and earth which are revealed only to his like:—

> The stars are speeding in their companies;
> God's chariots in divine array, they roll
> Circling the sphere of three infinities,
> Our symbol of His thought-confounding Whole
> As Plato saw them with his clear-eyed soul,
> He saw, we saw; and each one tries to tell
> The Vision each one knows ineffable.

But—

> . . . as every dreamer seems to be
> The centre of the action of his dream, so, for the wondering onlooker, the centre of interest is our little Earth, in connection with which the solemn drama opens. A voice, "austerely sad," proclaims that our world has filled the measure of its iniquities, and demands:

> Who will go down amid these desolations
> Of fire and blood and lunacies and woe,
> To chant aloud to all the wildered nations
> Those heavenly truths no earth can overthrow,
> The changeless truths Eternal? Who will go
> To preach the Gospel of our Lord above,
> Chanting perpetually the law of Love?

There is no immediate answer from the hosts of heaven, but presently—

> A voice came trembling, ravishingly sweet—
> "O Raphael, beloved of God! the last
> And meanest of the spirits who repeat
> Eternal praises round the Judgment Seat
> Implores that he, if none of greater worth,
> May sing the self-same praises on that earth."

It is a "fervent Seraph, beautiful and bright," who speaks, and to him the great Angel says—

> "Thy service is accepted: thou shalt pall
> In mortal flesh thy seraphhood sublime;
> A witness of the one true Lord of all
> Amidst a world gone mad with sin and crime."

With the foregoing scene the first movement of a symphonic poem might fitly deal, and what a subject for expression in the language which transcends words!

The next movement finds a different theme. The dream stretches through twenty-five years of "fire and blood and frantic wars"—

> Amid whose terrors one stern human form,
> Above the mad crowds throned in haughty state,
> Appeared to wield the thunders of the storm,
> And hurl its dreadful lightnings, and dilate—
> The Captain-Executioner of Fate;
> Until dragged down, and with a galling chain
> Bound to a lonely rock amid the main.

Amid the noise of the Napoleonic tempest the poet hears nothing else, but it is different later. With the chaining of the Chief, and in the sequent hush, a voice is distinguishable—

> A voice of right amid a world gone wrong,
> A voice of hope amid a world's despair,
> A voice instinct with such melodious song
> As hardly until then had thrilled the air
> Of this gross underworld wherein we fare
> With heavenly inspirations, too divine
> For souls besotted with earth's sensual wine.
>
> All powers and virtues that ennoble men—
> The hero's courage and the martyr's truth,
> The saint's white purity, the prophet's ken,
> The high unworldliness of ardent youth,
> The poet's rapture, the apostle's ruth,
> Informed the Song, whose theme all themes above
> Was still the sole supremacy of Love.
> . . . . . .
>
> A voice divinely sweet, a voice no less
> Divinely sad; for all the maddening jar
> Of all the wide world's sin and wretchedness
> Swelled round its music, as when round a star
> Black storm-clouds gather and its white light mar:
> Pure music is pure bliss in heaven alone;
> Earth's air transmutes it to melodious moan.

Presently the rock-bound Titan dies, and—

> When the tomb
> Had held him but a little while in peace,
> I heard the singing voice for ever cease.*

Here indeed is a subject for a second movement—one of storm and thunder, with the foundations of the great deep upheaved, and men's hearts failing them for fear; then the subsidence and the voice ever singing higher and higher till the music dies away in solemn, funereal strains, a "melodious moan."

The dream here swings back to the scene of the first movement. What now does our poet see?

> Upon his central field of burning gold
> Great Raphael stood, and there with meek head bowed
> And drooping wings and suppliant hands, behold
> The Seraph knelt, whom still the sullen cloud
> Of mortal life enveloped like a shroud,
> Through which his native glorious beauty shone
> Star-sad, star-pure, star-tremulous, star-wan.

Raphael speaks words of sympathy with the sadness and pallor of the returned Seraph, who abases himself as unsuccessful and unworthy:

> Breathing for ever Heaven's inviolate calm,
> I knew not how on earth the wild winds blow;
> Singing for ever Heaven's ecstatic psalm,
> I knew not how on earth the wails of woe
> And shrieks of rage to maddening discord grow;
> Circling for ever in the Sun's full light,
> I knew not Earth's black clouds and sphereless night.
>
> I could not understand men; all their hearts
> Had secrets which I could not even guess.
> Their greed for dross upon the daily marts,
> Their pride and fawning in the palaces,
> Their solemn church-attending worldliness,
> Their servile fear of Custom's lawless law,
> Filled me with sad perplexity and awe.

* Napoleon died in 1821; Shelley in 1823.

So, baffled, defeated, and ashamed, the Seraph has returned to bow low, in humility and self-abasement, at the feet of the Angel. But Raphael raises him to his embrace—

> Then stood erect, to all the heights revealing
> The fulgent beauty of his solemn face,
> And flung abroad his voice to dwell through space
> And thrill on all the ever-rolling spheres
> Triumphant music for celestial ears.

He calls heaven and earth to witness the justice of his decree—

> Thou hast not failed; where holy love and truth
> Contend with Evil failure cannot be:
> Their sorest scars claim reverence not ruth,
> Their worst repulse is still a victory.
> Thou, well belovèd, who didst bend the knee
> In pure self-sacrifice to meet God's frown,
> Kneeling, wert circled with the martyr's crown.

Then the dreamer sees the Seraph transfigured—

> And there amidst the wheeling constellations,
> Upon the central disc of burning gold
> That throbbed harmonious with their palpitations,
> He stood with Raphael glorious to behold—
> Then all the Vision from my brain was rolled;
> For that broad disc of palpitating fire,
> Consuming far through heaven the dead night's pyre,
> And bridging the deep bay with golden splendour,
> Was our own Sun . . . The sky was clear and calm,
> The morning air most fragrant, fresh, and tender;
> The green earth glittered with its dewy balm:
> The flashing waters sang a joyous psalm,
> All was as beautiful and pure that morn
> As if a sinless world had just been born.

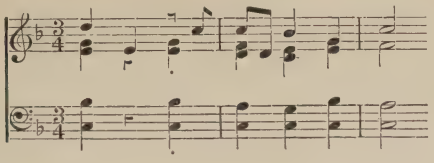
Have we no composer who, in the intervals of writing for a living, will express this noble subject in music for the love of it? To be sure there will be no reward of a material kind. Money does not come through such exalted work. But the true artist knows a recompense far more precious than an order on a bank.

Mr. D. W. Rootham, the able chorus-master of the Bristol Festivals, sends me the following remarks upon William Beale: "I was much pleased to see the portrait of William Beale; we do his madrigals frequently. But was he ever organist of Trinity College, Cambridge? My father was in the choir of both Trinity and St. John's from 1815 till 1852, and I always seem to remember his speaking of William Beale as at St. John's. You know John Clarke-Whitfeld was organist at Trinity, but not at St. John's; at least, all his Services were in our books at Trinity College, written in by himself, and signed at the end of each "John Clarke" (he took the name of Whitfeld afterwards), but none of the St. John's books, that I can remember, contain his writing. By the way, I have often heard my father say, talking of Clarke-Whitfeld, that he could not sing a musical phrase, but had to play it. When he tried to sing, the men and boys all laughed. Here in Bristol I have seen a portrait of him, in a buff cloth suit and wig. His son lived here as a wine merchant, and it was at his house that I saw it. He has been dead now some years."

I am obliged to Mr. Rootham for his letter, and hope some other reader will be able to give further information concerning Beale. By the way, it now appears that the Anthem published last month as a Supplement to The Musical Times is not the composer's only sacred work. On this point more in due time. X.

RICHARD WAGNER'S METHODS.

III.



His Form, Counterpoint, &c.

To examine adequately the manner in which the great music-dramas are built up would require a book several times larger than Sir George Grove's analysis of the Beethoven Symphonies. Probably at some future date such a labour will be at least attempted. There already exists a minute analysis of them by H. von Wolzogen, but as yet I think no one has attempted to examine their synthesis. The least technical reader will be capable of perceiving that "The Fairies," "Rienzi," and "The Flying Dutchman" are operas in the old sense of the word; that is, that the music consists of separate and complete pieces in ordinary musical form with recitative in between for the "padding" or unlyrical parts. In "Tannhäuser" and "Lohengrin" the vocal numbers are much reduced in length, often consisting of single strains of sixteen bars or so, while their number is of course much increased, and the recitative being more fully accompanied a greater homogeneity results. But what is the plan pursued in the later works? Wagner's imitators have appeared to think that the music to these was a mere improvisation, following the text as best it could but without any laws of its own. Never was there a greater error; the form of each scene in each drama is modified wherever dramatic exigencies demand, but it is almost always clearly discernible, and follows a uniform plan. There is a principal subject, or Leitmotif, embodying the chief idea or sentiment of the scene, and this is worked symphonically with any other appropriate motives that have been introduced before, either as counterpoints to it or as episodes in between the repetitions of this chief theme. One of the earliest and clearest examples of this form is to be seen in Act II. of the "Valkyrie"—the scene between Wotan and Fricka, which has—for its principal subject. So well-defined are the episodes and the returns to the central idea that this scene might be said to be in Rondo form. In other cases—the scene between Siegmund and Brynhildr, for instance—the subject-matter of the episodes is derived from the chief theme itself. In "Tristan" and "The Mastersingers," indeed, the episodes are almost entirely evolved from the principal Leitmotiven—in "Parsifal" absolutely so. For the student desirous of becoming acquainted with this form "The Mastersingers" offers plenty of scope. From the very first scene with the subject allotted to Magdalena— down to the great scene in Act III. which culminates in the Quintet and has all its material germinating from the first line of the hymn to "John the Baptist"?—

we have a succession of brilliant proofs that the last word on musical form was not uttered by Beethoven.

It is not possible here to do more than point out the mine of wealth which Wagner's compositions offer in this direction to the student. Turning to other features, is there any other musician who has produced in the domain of characteristic or illustrative art any examples to compare with the Preludes to "Lohengrin" (Acts I. and III.), the Introduction to "The Valkyrie," and the famous "Ride" and Fire Music? The Storm in Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony is the only movement I know of which does not shrink into insignificance beside these. Then in mere feats of counterpoint, what a giant is Wagner! Any good musician, I have heard it said, could have written the Finale to Act II. of "Tannhäuser"; but this is child's play compared with the polyphony of "Tristan" and "The Mastersingers." In both of these combinations of three and even four themes together are frequent, and are effected with a deftness and unobtrusive skill which Mozart himself might have envied. The Fugue on a choral in the street-riot scene excites admiration, not because of its technical merit, for that is a mere matter of course, but because the composer is even more spirited and humorous under these fetters than without them. To write a Fugue or a Sestina is merely a matter of patient labour; but it is only a Wagner or a Rudyard Kipling* who can make these feats admirable by performing them as if they were a mere joke.

In the last Act of "The Valkyrie" there is an ensemble piece (rarely performed) for eight sopranos, in as many real parts, with an independent accompaniment, which has always seemed to me especially fine from the dramatic vigour with which it is written. It was not necessary for the composer to set himself such a tremendous task, but he accomplishes it in quite a casual way, as if such things were all in a day's work. Similarly in Act II. of "The Dusk of the Gods," when the day dawns over the Rhine, finding that the "Gibichung" motive:

will take a canonic imitation at the distance of two bars, he thought it would be a nice change to make an eight-part canon for horns out of it, which he does with charming effect. In "Parsifal" Wagner surpasses anything hitherto achieved in the way of harmonies on a ground bass; but the most startlingly brilliant feat of counterpoint is his adding to an old Mastersinger's tune of the sixteenth century—the two magnificent melodies which form the chief gems of his drama, the three coming together as the climax of the Overture and the last scene. One used to regard Gounod's "Ave Maria" as a brilliant tour de force, but what are we then to think of the man who can invent two really noble melodies as counterpoints to a third given one?

Bach and Wagner alone of all musicians have employed counterpoint as a resource in intense dramatic moments. If one thinks for a moment of the death of Tristan, the final portion of the "Siegfried" love-duet, or the tremendous conclusion of "The Dusk of the Gods," one cannot fail to perceive that the profound emotional effect is the outcome of this gorgeous edifice of combined themes, which impresses the mind with an almost awful feeling of vastness. What a world of tender emotion is revealed in the suave polyphony of the "Siegfried Idyll"! What a dignity and nobility sweep out from the combined subjects of the "Kaisermarsch"! When one turns from the contemplation of these masterpieces to the contrapuntal attempts of smaller musicians, which only impress you with the idea that the composer wanted to show how clever he was (the last thing an artist should do), one is tempted to think very badly of those who—by no fault of their own—are not of the sons of Anak.

A few words on Wagner's instrumentation. In the early works this followed contemporary models—Weber and Spontini—but from an early period the master-mind conceived effects of a breadth quite unparalleled. The second scene of "Tannhäuser," with its shepherd's pipe and unaccompanied song, its unaccompanied male chorus, its sheep bells and hunting horns, all these strike on the ear with an immensity of contrast and consequent emotional effect never before known. The idea in "Lohengrin" of characterising each person by particular instrumentation was another brilliant novelty, and the use of wood-wind in threes will doubtless become the normal arrangement before long. The formidable array of wind instruments required for the "Nibelung's Ring" is less likely to be imitated, unless the hidden orchestra should become general; but what an infinity of novel effects is evolved therefrom! In the "Rhinegold" some of the experiments are not completely successful, but by the time "Siegfried" was reached the master had got to handling his new tools with exquisite facility and certainty. In the works of his last years his polyphony grew so abstract that he seemed rather to ignore what we may call the primary colours of the orchestra—strings, wood, and brass—and thereby to lose some of that brilliancy of tone-colour which was one of his most striking gifts.

* Sestina of the Tramp Royal ("The Seven Seas").

In this very hasty and inadequate survey I have endeavoured to explain to the general reader what the actual achievements are by right of which Richard Wagner takes his place among the greatest musicians.

In conclusion, I would point out that the public estimate of his merits has followed a course similar to that of all the acknowledged great masters; he was first reviled as an impostor, then declared a foe to melody, then his music was impossible to sing, then a foolish fashion of the hour, then he became popular, and now his works are indispensable to the concert-programme. Shall we not take the crowning measure of dubbing him a classic? It might have the effect of stopping those out-of-date criticisms which still appear every now and then in the minor papers. Once this step is taken, his few remaining antagonists will have only one arrow left in the quiver: they will call him "Academic." We don't in the least know what this epithet means, but the minor critic regards it as the bitterest utterance of his dislike and contempt; and as he has applied it to all the great musicians, from Bach to Brahms, Wagner will doubtless have to endure it one day. F. C.

MUSIC FOR ANIMALS.

In Southey's "Commonplace Book" there is an amusing entry relating to a wealthy nobleman in the Low Countries who, once a month, regaled all his horses—and he kept a large number—with a concert of orchestral music performed by his private band. The reference is tantalizing, however, in that it gives no details as to the exact pieces performed and their effect upon what the young lions of Peterborough Court would call the equine auditors; but we learn that the nobleman, who was either a humorist or an eccentric, was under the impression that it was good for their health, and we have no doubt that in the matter of attention and general courtesy the noble animals compared most favourably with, say, an audience of fashionable folk, such as those at Baron de Bunsen's, as described in Sir Charles Hallé's memoirs. A few years ago a writer in one of the weekly journals gave, under the heading of "Orpheus at the Zoo," an interesting account of the effect of music on beasts in captivity, which has now been supplemented by an exceedingly entertaining paper in the Orchestral Association Gazette. Many of us have, no doubt, witnessed the ludicrous experiment of making a dog sing to the accompaniment of a pianoforte or other musical instrument. The present writer remembers very well one Skye terrier who would follow (approximately) the course of a melody when played on a harmonium. His voice was agonising in quality and atrocious in production, but he seemed rather proud of his accomplishment. It has probably fallen to the lot of other readers to notice how a dog, which has lain peacefully on the rug during a pianoforte solo, will break forth into dismal ululations when someone begins to sing or play the violin. But such crude and unconvincing performances are thrown entirely into the shade by the critical acumen of a dog belonging to a modern pianist, mentioned in the article in question. This animal, we learn, would listen attentively to Op. 19 of Dussek until the forty-eighth bar was reached, when the discord at that point drove it away yelping to a hiding-place beneath the chair or table. This anecdote prompts one to wonder what Wagner's dogs—to which he was notoriously devoted—thought of his harmonies. The biographies are mute on this point, but then it is only fair to recall the fact that Wagner composed silently. Otherwise we should have been quite prepared to learn that the verdict was unfavourable. For just as no man is a hero to his valet, no great composer is likely to be appreciated—as such—by his faithful hound. And then we must remember that, although there are some points of contact between man and beast in regard to music and sounds generally, our standpoint differs physiologically and æsthetically from theirs. Take, for example, the rapture displayed by cats in their concerted vocal music, which, to the well-regulated human being, is nothing short of the abomination of desolation. Well, cats probably think much the same of our most exquisite efforts. We gather from "Professor" Garner's remarkable and romantic work on Chimpanzees and Gorillas that of all the appalling sounds that are heard on the face of this earth the hoot de poitrine of the gorilla is by far the most horrific. It transcends the united efforts of Signor Tamagno and Sister Mary Jane. But our inability to enjoy it is largely due to human prejudice. If Professor Garner had remained long enough in his steel cage in the wilderness to master the simian language in its entirety, he would probably have learnt in time to take the same pleasure in the gorilla's top notes that home-keeping amateurs take in the silvery tones of Sarasate's fiddle or the siren strains of Madame Melba's voice.

On the whole, it must be admitted that animals and birds are much more appreciative of our music than we are of theirs, for when we do like it we reward the executant by shutting him up in a cage for life. How much more gracious and genial than our so-called humanity is the behaviour of the elephant of the Jardin des Plantes, in whose honour a concert was once organised! A set of brilliant variations for violin solo made no impression on the elephant, who remained equally unmoved during the performance of one of Boccherini's quartets. But when a distinguished violinist gave the simple air "O ma musette" the animal "evinced great pleasure." The predilection thus displayed for the school of tender sentiment "induced the horn-player, Duvernay, to oblige with 'Charmante Gabrielle.' The magic notes of his horn drew the beast nearer and nearer, marking the time all the while with its ponderous trunk and occasionally roaring in unison. Finally, it was almost the cause of hampering the movements of Duvernay, whom it attempted to caress." What a charming picture is here given of elephantine condescension, and what a vista it opens up of new combinations in concerted music! As, for example, a trio for giraffe, trombone, and bloodhound, or a quintet for elephant, gorilla, triangle, ostrich, and cobra a cappella. Think, again, of the exhilarating effect of a pianoforte duet à quatre pieds for two kangaroos!

Whether animals like our music or not, there are very few of them, great or small, who remain entirely unaffected by it. The writer of the article from which we have already quoted vouches for the musical proclivities of the hare, and tells a story of a band of choristers out for a pic-nic on the banks of the Mersey, who observed the appearance of a hare whenever they sang and its disappearance whenever they left off. Those movements by J. S. Bach to which the name of "double" is assigned ought certainly to appeal with peculiar force to the hare. The present writer has often seen seals on the South-West coast of Iceland following a boat in which the passengers were singing, and it is recorded of a prisoner in the Bastille that the loneliness of his lot was materially solaced by the companionship of spiders, which he lured forth from their crannies by the notes of his flute. Mice and rats, again, are notoriously fond of music, and the latest writer on the subject states that mountebanks have been known to teach several of them to dance on a rope in perfect time to the tune of an old fiddle. And, à propos of animals keeping time to music, we have ourselves been struck at a circus with the admirable precision displayed by performing horses when going through their evolutions to the accompaniment of the band. We know that sceptics say, "Oh, it isn't the horses who keep time to the music; it is the music that is played so as to keep time with the horses"! But surely this is not the case. Besides, the faculty in question is not really indicative of a high level of intelligence at all. The rhythm sense is anterior to the sense of melody, as is conclusively proved by the accounts of savages who execute dances in the most perfect time, while their tunes may be not unfairly described as "songs without notes."

Further instances of the influence exercised by music on animals might be multiplied to an indefinite extent. It is almost an insult to the intelligence of our readers to recall the exploits of Orpheus, who is credited with having reduced the most savage animals to a state of comparative domesticity by the strains of his golden harp. The writer in the Orchestral Association Gazette mentions a certain H. Stephanus as giving an account of his having seen a lion leave his prey to listen to music, and there is the curious anecdote related by Playford of the herd of stags who were brought all the way out of Yorkshire to Hampton Court by two men who played the bagpipes and the violin. Need we mention the memorable achievement of the Pied Piper of Hamelin? Enough has been said to indicate that if the musical education of animals were systematically taken in hand, and conservatoires established for their training under properly qualified professors, results of a most interesting and surprising character would probably be obtained. The only serious difficulty that we see in connection with this subject is that while the executive and appreciative faculties of brute creation might be cultivated to a high pitch, as auditors they labour under the radical drawback of being unable to express their approval in a tangible form. Of course it is possible that in a few centuries animals may develop the financial sense, insist on being paid salaries for their services, and accumulate balances at the bank. But, as at present constituted, they only appeal, from the musical point of view, to the sympathies of disinterested and affluent amateurs.

Readers who are interested in the attitude of men of letters towards music will find much to interest and amuse them in the excellent article on "Literature and Music" in the February number of Macmillan's Magazine. The writer takes his stand on the contention that while "nobody is to blame for being ignorant of the technicalities of an art which he has not learned, everybody is to blame who wilfully writes about what he does not understand." An irreproachable canon this, but one which few modern writers have put into practice. Witness the wonderful musical solecisms of Messrs. Charles Reade, Marion Crawford, and William Black. Of the purely literary men of the century, none showed a more intelligent interest in music than De Quincey, and yet he was capable of tremendous "howlers," attributing "St. Paul" to Spohr, muddling up Mendelssohn's father with his grandfather, the philosopher, and alluding to Beethoven's music "composed as an opening to Bürger's 'Leonore.'" Scott's limitations are happily illustrated in the article, and the writer deserves our thanks for reminding us once more of that delightful story of Scott and the Duke of Hamilton's fiddles. Finally, we may quote the amusing anecdote of James Hogg, "the Ettrick Shepherd." Hogg, it appears, "could hardly be kept awake at the Opera, and when he did give his attention to any part of the performance, his eyes were observed to be fixed on Costa, the conductor. Indeed, his curiosity was entirely centred on the man with the bâton, and at length he exclaimed: 'Wha, and what the deil's that fellow that keeps waggin' the stick?' The simple shepherd had no idea of marking time in that way."

One does not look to the judicial bench to furnish us with sound musical criticism; but the unexpected is always happening, and Mr. Justice North has provided us with an agreeable specimen of this commodity in his remarks on a recent theatrical case in which an inability to discriminate between meum and tuum was alleged to have been shown by the authors and proprietors of two songs. Here were two songs—one embellished with the tasteful burden, "She never did the same thing twice," and the other decorated with the exquisite refrain, "Do you ever see the same bird twice?" On these the learned judge pronounced as follows: "With regard to the first song, strange to say, two people claimed the authorship of it; for anything more contemptible or inane than this song he never saw in his life, and he never heard a more extravagant contention than that the two songs, 'Do you ever see the same bird twice?' and 'She never did the same thing twice,' were the same thing." One of our contemporaries remarks, not without just cause, that it seems like getting a Nasmyth hammer to crush an egg-shell to set Mr. Justice North to adjudicate about music hall songs, encored seven times nightly, and yet actually "inane and contemptible." None the less we are by no means sorry to hear the outrages that are perpetrated in the name of music occasionally called by their true names.

We are indebted to an American correspondent—Mr. William M. Ramsdell, of Buffalo—for calling our attention to the words of Handel's well-known song from "Semele," "Where'er you walk." Mr. Ramsdell's enthusiastic zeal has elicited some interesting information on the subject from Mr. Ruskin. It is well known that the libretto of "Semele, an opera," was written by William Congreve and published in 1710. It was subsequently altered (by whom it is not known) for Handel, who set it to music as a "secular oratorio" in 1743. The alterations, however, are insignificant compared with the interpolations from other sources. In fact, as Mr. Ruskin has pointed out, the words of "Where'er you walk" are not by Congreve at all, but by Pope. They will be found in lines seventy-three to seventy-six of his second Pastoral, "Summer, or Alexis," written in 1704, when he was only sixteen years of age. It is additionally interesting to know that these familiar and beautiful lines were after-thoughts. Pope originally wrote—

> While you your presence to the groves deny,
> Our flowers are faded, and our brooks are dry;
> Though with'ring herbs lay dying on the plain,
> At your return they shall be green again.

But for this alteration of the poet's, it is more than probable that we should have been deprived of what a well-known authority calls "perhaps the loveliest of Handel's many lovely songs."

Our readers may be interested to learn that, amongst the other recreations indulged in on board the Fram, music played no insignificant part. The list of instruments on board Dr. Nansen's historic ship was as follows: an accordion, on which Johansen, who accompanied his leader on the famous sledging expedition, was a skilled performer; a flute, violin, and several Jew's harps belonging to one of the ship's company. It was commonly alleged that there was a grand pianoforte on board, but Dr. Nansen candidly dispels this illusion. It was not a pianoforte, but an organ turned by a handle. Describing an average evening, he says: "About half-past seven or eight, cards or other games were brought out, and we played well on into the night, seated in groups round the saloon table. One or other of us might go to the organ, and, with the assistance of the crank handle, perform some of our beautiful pieces, or Johansen would bring out the accordion and play many a fine tune. His crowning efforts were 'O Susanna' and 'Napoleon's march across the Alps in an open boat.'" Not very high class music, some of our readers may say, but then it should be remembered that the qualities which go to make a virtuoso are not precisely those which are most essential in members of an Arctic exploring expedition.

An important accession, which will be of interest to all musical antiquaries and bibliographers, has recently been made to the collection of music in the British Museum. The new acquisition consists of the bass part books of the following three works, all printed at Venice by Petrucci at the beginning of the sixteenth century:

1. "Misse Alexandri Agricole," printed March 23, 1504; other copies are to be found at Bologna, Vienna, Berlin, and Rome.

2. "Misse de Orto," printed March 22, 1505. A complete copy is at Munich, another (wanting the bass) at Vienna, and a Superius (formerly belonging to Henry VIII.) was already in the British Museum.

3. "Misse Gaspar," printed January 7, 1506 (not 1509, as stated by Fétis and Rockstro), the only complete copy of which is at Bologna, another set of part-books (wanting the bass) being at Vienna.

The British Museum already possessed a goodly array of the rare works which issued from Petrucci's press. The new acquisition, with that of the splendid copy of the "Motetti de Passione" of 1503—the only complete example of the work known—which was bought a few years ago, places the collection on a par with the Vienna, Berlin, and Munich libraries.

Are American children, amongst their other precocious accomplishments, addicted to insomnia? We are moved to ask this question by the momentous announcement which reaches us from across the Atlantic. For it is stated that a number of pupils are now being trained in the leading vocal schools and colleges "to visit the nurseries and sing to the children at bed-time." This, be it remarked, is not with a view to gratifying a purely philanthropic instinct, but as a means of earning an income. You hire the lullabist—if she is not called the lullabist already she is sure to be in time—and pay her what may be called "hush-money," presumably by results. The only thing that we feel doubtful about is the assertion that the exponents of the new industry "have already found a general appreciation." We should like to have an unbiassed opinion on this point from a representative selection of American children. Surely it should be within the resources of one of our enterprising New York contemporaries to organise a nursery plébiscite on the value of the new industry.

The report in another column of Mr. Carl Armbruster's interesting Lectures on "Neglected Italian and French composers," reminds us that Richard Wagner, like most reformers, was to some extent anticipated in his methods, though no one will grudge the Bayreuth master the full measure of the honour due to him on this account. Spontini, of whom Mr. Armbruster gave an interesting account, was a prototype of Wagner in moulding his singers to his will, and in educating them in operatic discipline. In fact, he out-Wagnered Wagner in being a martinet of the most despotic type. He not only frequently kept his band and singers at rehearsal from 8 a.m. till 4 p.m., or from 5 p.m. till 11 at night, but wearied them to death by endless repetitions. His eye was as keen on the stage as his ear in the orchestra; scenery and costumes had to be arranged, even to the minutest details, to express his ideas. He actually sent his wife to Count Brühl, Intendant of the Royal Theatre, to request that a sleeve of a dress should be altered! He was most particular in regard to the personal appearance of his singers. A distinguished basso was recommended to him for the part of high priest; but Spontini would not allow this singer of high standing to open his mouth because he was "at least a foot and a half too short." It would seem as if the exacting composer took too literal a view of the qualifications of a stage high priest.

Spontini used to employ the strongest accents and most startling contrasts. "His forte," says Dorn, "was a hurricane; his piano a sigh; his crescendo made everyone open their eyes; his diminuendo induced a feeling of delicious languor; his sforzando was enough to wake the dead." A story is told of him that in a bass passage of one of his operas he could not get it loud enough, the players in vain doing their utmost, till at last—to Spontini's delight—the violoncellists hit upon the idea of singing their notes as well! Spontini does not seem to have advocated the hidden orchestra, which is so important a feature at Bayreuth, Even if he had done so he would have been anticipated in this by Peri, two hundred years before. At the performance of Peri's "Euridice," in 1600, the orchestra, which consisted of a harpsichord, chitarrone, lira grande or viol da gamba, and the theorbo or large lute, with the occasional addition of three flutes, were placed behind the scenes. There is a great gulf between Peri and Wagner, but it was filled by such musicians as Monteverde, Allessandro Scarlatti, Gluck, and Weber, who each made valuable contributions to the development of the music-drama which is so magnificently exemplified in the colossal works of Richard Wagner.

Professor C. V. Stanford's "Revenge" will be performed, for the first time in Germany, by the Berlin Philharmonic Choir (conductor, Herr Siegfried Ochs), on April 20, under the direction of the composer. The excellent German version of Tennyson's stirring "Ballad of the Fleet" is by Fräulein Sophie von Harbou. We believe this will be the first performance in Germany of a choral work by a British composer since the production of Sir Arthur Sullivan's "Golden Legend," at Berlin, in 1887. At that time the majority of the Berlin critics were, rightly or wrongly, thought to be more or less openly hostile to "English" music. Since then much water has flowed down the Spree and events have moved. Professor Stanford himself has given several concerts of British music in the German metropolis, and met with praise and encouragement. We may therefore look forward to an unbiassed judgment on his capital sea piece. On the following evening Professor Stanford will be present at the first performance of his new String Quartet in D minor, by Professor Joachim and colleagues. On his way back from the Fatherland he will visit Amsterdam to conduct a performance there of his Fifth Symphony, "L'Allegro ed il Pensieroso," on April 29. Of other recent performances of English music abroad, we may mention those of Dr. C. H. H. Parry's fine Pianoforte Quartet in A flat at Frankfurt, on the 8th ult., and of Mr. Algernon Ashton's Quintet for flute, oboe, clarinet, horn, and bassoon at Cologne, and the Prelude to Sir Alexander Mackenzie's "Colomba" at Dusseldorf, on the 11th ult. (second time). Dr. Parry's Quartet was very favourably received by the public, while the press spoke of it in terms of warm praise.

FACTS, RUMOURS, AND REMARKS.

A correspondent writes:—

We all know that King Charles I. walked and talked six months after his head was cut off, but the following information with regard to Schubert may be new to some: "In March, 1828, he was emboldened to give his first public concert. It was a thorough success. The next one was given to defray the expenses of his funeral. Six months later, broken in health and spirit, he turned his face to the wall and passed away."

Mr. John Thomas, having spoken against the too exclusive devotion shown to Tonic Sol-fa in Wales, is naturally out of favour with some of his countrymen, especially, it would seem, with Mr. David Jenkins, who declares that "thousands have acquired a knowledge of music, vocal and instrumental, and have obtained a thorough mastery of the old Staff Notation who would never have done so but for the Sol-fa system." I am glad to know this, though I do not quite understand why the thousands could not learn the Staff Notation by beginning with it, as many more thousands do. Mr. Jenkins seems to be quite angry with Mr. Thomas, and says: "We are sorry that the Pencerdd takes upon himself to speak for Wales in prominent places when he knows so little of our history, for he lives and has his being in London." Here, again, I am unable to follow the argument, but an explanation may come later, seeing that the South Wales Daily News assures us "there is more to follow."

I take the following sentences from a journal published in Lancashire. The critic is dealing with an artist's concert, at which a soprano vocalist sang, and of her the writer says: "Miss —— has a phenomenal voice that can apparently stand anything; up and down she is equally easy and ready, and when she can push an upper phrase in anyhow does not fail to do so. Nor is it vocal gymnastics in which she indulges, but genuine chest work. She is, however, like most other singers, susceptible to atmospheric 'growth'—i.e., she sings better as she becomes accustomed to the atmosphere in which she warbles." Speaking of a violinist, the critic observes: "Miss —— is a violinist whom to hear is to love. Her bowing is a match to her person, her stopping is clear and liquid, and her taste remarkably fine." A flautist took part in the concert, and of him I read: "When we say that he amply demonstrated that the flute is not, and never can be, a lady's instrument, we say a great deal in his praise." Alas, poor music!

A writer in the Chicago Post having attributed to Wagner, as a dying declaration, the words "Seidl pleases me greatly," was severely taken to task by an indignant Wagnerian, who declared that the master said "Seidl delights me greatly." I am glad to find that the erring man took correction in a meek spirit, remarking, "It is pleasant to know that the great master passed away in a condition of delight rather than in an ordinary state of pleasure, and it is the simplest justice to Herr Seidl that we should give him full credit as the cause of these transports." Not content with this handsome declaration, the writer made a peace offering of poetry:

There is a land of pure delight
Where soulful song holds sway,
Where "Siegfried" is performed all night
And "Lohengrin" all day,
And kindred spirits all in white
On heavenly trombones play.

This is said to be a quotation from "Herr Fink, the greatest living Wagnerian poet."

Wishing well to music all the world over, I rejoice to know, on the authority of a transatlantic critic, that "sound and sane criticism" is on the increase. This remark appears in an article which contains also the following observations on the singing of a certain choir: "What particularly struck me was the descriptive characteristic produced by his singers—what in painting is called tone, and in literature atmosphere. . . . A lullaby was given—was breathed forth—that seemed to voice the tenderness of eternal motherhood. . . . It (a lady's voice) has a wide compass, is capable of infinite inflection, beautiful in tone, and seems like what someone has named 'a beautiful efflorescence,' the ideal outcome of a healthy and beautiful body—the blossom of a vigorous plant." Very pretty indeed!

From the Globe of the 17th ult:—

Musical culture is making giant strides in our midst. We read, for example, in a widely circulated contemporary, that an Italian artist will sing "The Neapolitan Boat Song," at Notting Hill Gate, this day, "in four keys (C, D, E flat, and F)." That really beats Sir Boyle Roche's bird.

It is well to see a large congregation at such services of sacred music as are given monthly in St. Luke's, Bromley Common, where Mr. Walter E. Stark is organist. Such services cost money, and it would be doubly well to know that the people take a practical view of their duty in that regard. I note that the Vicar of St. Luke's (Rev. E. L. Colebrooke) recently brought this matter before his flock, complaining that frequently, "when the church has been full at these services, the collection amounted but to between one and two pounds!" It is to be hoped that there has since been a falling off in the demand for threepenny pieces and coppers at Bromley. The Vicar and Mr. Stark should be well supported in their most praiseworthy endeavours. They have enlisted the services of an orchestra, chiefly composed of local amateurs, and, with competent soloists and choristers, performances are given which from an artistic as well as devotional point of view have genuine value. But a full church and less than two pounds in the offertory bags! For shame!

Besides presenting Mr. Lee Williams, on his retirement from the post of Cathedral organist, with a cheque value £135 and a complete set of the Badminton Library, the good people of Gloucester decorated his bâton with a silver band, on which was inscribed the city arms and the legend: "Gloucester Musical Festival; Gloucester Choral Society; Cathedral Recitals, 1882-97. C. Lee Williams." The implement deserved this honour, for it had officiated at five festivals, forty-five choral concerts, fifteen choral festivals, and one hundred and seven Cathedral recitals. In returning thanks, Mr. Williams said:—

When Mr. Cooke went to him a week ago for the loan of his old bâton, he (Mr. Williams) did not say much, but like the parrot thought all the more, but now his old friend had come back to him again evidently a "knight of the garter." It looked exceeding smart and fit to conduct the Concert of Europe.

Whereat the assembled friends laughed; but the departure of Mr. Williams from Gloucester is certainly no matter for mirth, but a heavy blow and sore discouragement to lovers of music in the old city.

The Boy has recently been at work in Kent, and here are some of his achievements: Wildstein for Waldstein; A mino for A minor; stacato for staccato; velse for valse; motto for molto; and prectissimo for prestissimo!

Joseph Bennett.

CHURCH NEWS.

One of the earliest, if not the first of notable renderings of church oratorio music, which, year by year, comes upon us with unabated and impressive effect, is the large selection from Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" which is so appropriately given annually in St. Paul's Cathedral, on St. Paul's Day, January 25. In connection with this work the words "Church Oratorio" have special significance, for Mendelssohn's work is practically the last of the musical epics in which the choral form is present for congregational use, not to add that there are movements of solid ecclesiastical character in this truly spiritual work befitting church surroundings. The rendering of this music by vocal and instrumental performers of high competence, under the experienced guidance of Dr. G. C. Martin, is, as regards efficiency, seriousness, and becoming reverence, the very model of what an oratorio in church may and should be like. The offering of Christmastide music has this season exceeded in quality and completeness, as well as in the number of occasions, the record of preceding years, a truly hopeful sign. Again, notwithstanding a recent lament concerning the growing neglect of the poetical Festival of Epiphany and its beautiful old-world customs, Twelfth-tide (as our forefathers called the last of the Christmastide Festivals) has this year not been without musical recognition in our churches. In this connection must be named a rendering of Dr. Edwards's musicianly oratorio "The Epiphany" in the Parish Church of Barnstaple, his own church and town.

Mr. James Capener, formerly assistant-organist of Gloucester Cathedral, has been recently appointed organist of Hackney Parish Church. In connection with his new office he has organised musical services on the lines of those held in the Cathedral above-named, under the auspices of his former chief, Mr. Lee Williams. At the first of these Recitals, Mr. Capener gave, with much effect, organ works by Bach, Guilmant, Widor, Henry Smart, &c., and also Liszt's "Fantasia on the name of Bach." Mr. Morgan, of the Gloucester Cathedral tenors, rendered with artistic judgment three vocal pieces. Opening and closing prayers, with two hymns, connected the refining influence of artistic emotion produced by sacred art more directly with the duties of worship. The intention of such a service is obviously the joining together the active and passive attitudes of divine worship. One thought rises in connection with this subject. This is the reflection that there are growing up side by side two forms of musical service: one as the oratorio, built upon Scriptural narrative, and the other a selection of less contingent vocal and instrumental pieces having a general spiritual bearing and not being intended to convey or enforce religious influence by the teaching power of sacred history. Those who have experience in the work of presenting oratorio music done by the Kyrle Society have long been conscious of the preference of poor if not of mixed congregations for the narrative form of oratorio; hence the popularity from one point of view of the "Creation," "Elijah," &c. On the other hand, musical teaching in church of a more lyrical type, with selected words without the epic instinct, however well woven together and musicianly treated, attracts, if in a somewhat less degree. Still there are places for both types of the oratorio, as illustrated by, say, "St. Paul" and the "Hymn of Praise," and there is a place for such musical services as those so successfully inaugurated by Mr. C. Lee Williams, whose work in this and other directions has been so deservedly and so kindly recognised upon his retirement from the organistship of Gloucester Cathedral. A new work, "The Cross of Christ," will supply choirs with an exceptionally suitable Lenten cantata. The composer, Mr. Thomas Adams, has written in a truly devotional spirit, displaying sound musicianship with full knowledge of vocal and organ effects, tempered with a flavour of old-world Plain Song.

There are too many practical matters of interest as well as encouraging signs in the recently issued Report of the Norwich Diocesan Church Choral Association to allow of that document being passed over. One notable feature of the work done was the excellent rendering in the Cathedral of works by Mendelssohn and Gounod at the celebration of the 800th anniversary of the consecration of that venerable and stately church last year. A chorus of 280 selected voices and a band of forty-two assisted upon this occasion, under the direction of Dr. Bates. The offertory, however, did not nearly cover the expenses and the Association had, in connection with this Service, to encounter a loss of £11. Hopeful and practical was the statement that the choir-trainer, Mr. Hornagold, had given a course of Lectures to the various choirs. Increased knowledge will give increased power to the earnest choristers who are seeking the strength which comes of union. At the opening services, on the 16th ult., of the renovated Cathedral of St. Saviour's, Southwark, one of which the Prince of Wales attended, impressive music was to be heard. As in other places, Choral Service will here prove an oasis of rest in a wilderness of worldly turmoil. Devotional choral services are never more precious than when rendered in quiet old churches in the busy marts of the world. May the worship at St. Saviour's be such "a pattern of celestial peace."

ORGAN NEWS.

Rarely is an appointment made in the world of art of such exceptional professional and, for that matter, general interest as the recent election of Dr. Albert Lister Peace to the office of organist of St. George's Hall, Liverpool. Dr. Peace, as everyone knows, enters upon his work armed with a well-earned and commanding reputation. He is therefore in a position to continue the splendid artistic labours of his predecessor, Mr. W. T. Best. As a fine player of classical organ music, and as a master of the resources of the organ, he will be listened to with a respect both prompt and earnest. He will command attention, again, as a performer who, with a due sense of the classic dignity of his instrument, has fully recognised in organ effects a great power of picturesque tone-colouring. In this direction his views are distinctly broad, and he has the courage of his artistic opinions. It is surely too late in the day not to remember that the organ stands supreme as the most complete exponent of arranged music, just as it is, from its own individual standpoint, acknowledged to be the "King of instruments." Again, the history of music shows a by no means distant relationship between the orchestra and organ—"Emperor and King," as even Berlioz allowed, of the realms of music. Then the old organs were not without their imitative stops, which must have had some employment upon the lines of orchestral suggestiveness. Once more, Bach, with prophetic judgment, made organ arrangements of sundry concertos of his time, and it may be reasonably supposed he knew how to play them with effect. The argument has been advanced that the great concert-room organ may be used too much in place of the orchestra; and it has been further observed that in capital cities the organ does not thus usurp the function of the orchestra; it is where orchestral music is most common that the organ is "kept in its place," as someone pointedly observes. All the same, there is a great work for the organist of high position and adequate opportunities to perform, and everyone knows this work will be thoroughly well done by the new organist of St. George's, Liverpool. In several respects great changes, which Dr. Peace's predecessor largely contributed to bring about, to his lasting honour, have taken place in connection with organ music and organ playing during the past forty years or so. In the first place, the library of the organ-player has received many additions of great variety and importance. Then organs have been largely improved, not only as regards tone-quality, but perhaps still more in connection with greatly increased mechanical facilities. Again, thanks to the progress of musical education, not forgetting the influence of sundry high-class institutions, and notably of the Royal College of Organists, virtuosity is no longer strikingly exceptional. There are many fine players where only a quarter of a century ago they were comparatively few in number.

The growing importance of the Organ Recital as a recognised institution is, as programmes of the recitals so frequently given go to show, well calculated to encourage the composition of new organ music. At the re-opening of the organ at St. Gabriel's, Walthamstow, lately enlarged by Mr. A. Kirkland, Dr. W. J. Reynolds played an Adagio from his own Sonata, No. 1, in A minor; and Mr. Alfred Hollins, the well-known gifted blind organist, recently performed in Nottingham a new Concert-Overture of his own for the organ.

No more consistent efforts in the way of popularising good organ music are being made than are to be noted in connection with the weekly Recitals given by Dr. C. J. Frost, at the Goldsmiths' Institute, New Cross. During the past few weeks the organ music has been practically an exposition of the works of that representative maker of German music for the instrument, Joseph Rheinberger. The selection has been of marked interest, including a goodly number of the really noble organ sonatas, together with sundry miscellaneous pieces perhaps less generally known. After the useful fashion of the day, Dr. Frost has supplied analytical notes dealing with the works performed.

With regard to the vexed question of registering, it will not be out of place to note that experienced English organists are in the habit of judiciously modifying the broader and louder combinations suggested by Rheinberger. The massive harmonies, freely employed dissonant chords, and chords extending often into the lower octave of the keyboard are, in truth, more pungent on many English organs than on average German instruments, owing to the presence on our own organs of more individually powerful stops, of larger scaled pipes, and the general employment of heavier wind pressures; not to add our doubtful habit of placing large and powerfully voiced organs in comparatively small buildings. German organ-builders are, however, moving on apace, and are erecting many instruments which, in addition to the presence of sundry excellent tone qualities of their own, display not a few of the modern varied and powerful effects which we in England are comparatively familiar with already. All the same, the music written for the average German organ calls for a somewhat modified treatment, especially as regards forte passages, when transferred to English organ keyboards.

In the list of pieces played by Mr. G. H. Cole upon the fine organ in St. John's Church, Cardiff, in connection with the recent Conference of the Incorporated Society of Musicians, a Fantasia by Dr. Peace and an Overture by the late Mr. W. G. Wood may be named as representing our own modern organ music upon an occasion of interest to English musicians. Mr. W. A. Roberts's programme for the opening of a new organ built by Messrs. Norman and Beard, for the Baptist Church at Blackburn, included a movement from the too much neglected, though very well known, Organ Sonata by the organ Professor at the Brussels Conservatoire, M. Alphonse Mailly. The work seems generally to be found too long for Recital purposes to be given in its entirety. It is pleasant to note that Henry Smart's well-written organ music is again coming into favour. A Pastorale in E flat of his, together with a Scherzo from the pen of a composer whose name is, rightly or wrongly, expressed as "Tilbourghs" on a printed programme, were played by Mr. R. Sharpe at Southampton.

A programme from the other side of the Atlantic contains Freyer's not too often played Fantasia in F minor, with a "Communion" and "Grand Chœur" by Georges MacMaster, a comparatively new name in the world of organ music. The presence of the title of Suppé's Overture, "The Poet and the Peasant," on this same list, calls for a word of remonstrance from two points of view. The selection of so light and even frivolous an orchestral work is a degradation of the instrument; and the use of secular music, though it may be instrumental, which carries worldly and even theatrical associations into church is a practice to be deprecated as calculated to bring organ recital playing into the range of deserved criticism, by proving that the performers of such music in church have still something to learn in connection with the laws which dictate good taste.

A fine new organ has been generously given to the Cathedral, Boulogne, from the factory of Merklin et Cie., of Paris. A very artistic performance by M. Guilmant, a native of Boulogne, formed part of the opening ceremony. The instrument is remarkable for its excellent mechanisms and for admirably contrived appliances for the convenience of the player.

It would appear to be quite the fashion now to present organs to churches. Another generous donor, a lady whose gift is in memory of her husband, has presented, at the cost of £4,000, a new organ, built by Messrs. Lewis and Co., to St. Saviour's Cathedral, Southwark.

THE ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

More than usual interest was attached to the performance by the Royal Choral Society of Mendelssohn's "Elijah," at the Albert Hall, on the 10th ult., owing to this being the first occasion that the work had been interpreted at Kensington Gore since the appointment of Professor Bridge as conductor of the Society. Expectancy was consequently somewhat excited concerning possible variations to previous readings, and in some measure these anticipations were justified. Professor Bridge adopted, in the majority of the numbers, a quicker tempo than that heard at previous renderings, and manifest attention had been paid to the phrasing and general effectiveness of the orchestral portions. The quicker tempo imparted increased dramatic force in a marked degree to several passages, and gave to the interpretation a character of strenuous earnestness, specially noticeable in the Baal choruses, the conclusion of the first part, and the choral answers to Elijah's and Jezebel's words. No little of the impressiveness of the performance was, however, due to the magnificent declamation of the part of the Prophet by Mr. Santley. This impersonation has long been unsurpassed for loftiness of conception and consummate power, but on this occasion the artist was in better voice than he had been of late, and the dramatic force and truth of his reading consequently became more apparent. Miss Ella Russell sang the principal soprano solos with intensity and commanding emphasis, but at times overstepped the narrow line which divides the dramatic expression of the stage from that of the oratorio. The other principal singers were Miss Marian McKenzie and Mr. Ben Davies, the former singing the principal contralto solos with her usual sympathy, and the latter imparting to the tenor music much dramatic significance. An admirable secondary quartet was provided in Miss Maggie Purvis, Madame Emily Himing, Mr. Avalon Collard, and Mr. Frederick Bevan, and Mr. H. L. Balfour again gave valuable assistance at the great organ. In its entirety the performance was one of the finest that has been given by this renowned body of choristers, and entitles Professor Bridge to be considered one of the best conductors we possess of large choral forces.

QUEEN'S HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

Mr. Randegger conducted a capital performance of Sullivan's "The Golden Legend," on the 4th ult. He had the band and chorus under perfect command, so that the more delicate points as well as the dramatic features of the score were conscientiously reproduced from beginning to end. A better rendering of the lovely "Evening Hymn" has never been heard in London, and the audience insisted on a repetition. It was a treat to hear the choral and instrumental parts so excellently delivered throughout. Nothing could have been smoother or more telling. The solo parts also had almost faultless exponents. Mr. Edward Lloyd sang the grateful Music of Prince Henry with as much charm of style as when he helped to float this beautiful work on the sea of public favour. Miss Thudichum sang with great feeling as Elsie, and Miss Hilda Wilson had no difficulty in repeating her accustomed success as Ursula. Mr. Watkin Mills once more gave the best effect to the malignity and cynicism of Lucifer, and Mr. F. B. Ranalow was acceptable in the slight character of the Forester. The performance was in every way worthy the Society which of late has acquired such deserved popularity.

QUEEN'S HALL SYMPHONY CONCERTS.

On January 30 the enterprising Mr. Robert Newman launched yet another concert venture—viz., a short series of Saturday afternoon Orchestral Concerts. The three originally announced have since been extended to four, by reason of the patronage accorded to the opening Concert. The band is that which has made the Saturday evening Promenade Concerts so successful, and the conductor, it need scarcely be said, is Mr. Henry J. Wood. In honour of Schubert, the first portion of Mr. Wood's inaugural programme consisted of the B minor ("Unfinished") Symphony, the "Rosamunde" Overture and Entr'acte in B flat, and two songs, "The Erl-King" and the "Lay of the imprisoned huntsman," sung by Mr. Watkin Mills. The Symphony received a rendering that for finish and delicacy of detail, clearness, poetic charm, and dramatic power need not have feared comparison with the finest ever heard in London—or out of it. (It is worthy of note that the orchestra consists of 103 players, of whom but fourteen bear foreign names.) The chief feature of the second half of the programme was a first performance in England of Glazounoff's fifth and latest Symphony—that in B flat (Op. 55). This composer, though still a young man (he was born in St. Petersburg in 1865), has written a great number of works, owing to the fortunate accident that, coming of a wealthy family, he has been able to devote himself since his school days exclusively to composition. Two suites from his pen had previously been heard in London, and we are to make the acquaintance of his Fourth Symphony at a forthcoming Philharmonic Concert. The work now under notice shows that its writer is not so exclusively Russian as some of his contemporaries. A large measure of eclecticism seems to have influenced the making of at least three of its movements, and the first Allegro is founded on a theme so similar to the "Sword" motive in Wagner's "Ring" that it is difficult to believe the resemblance can be accidental. Yet, though it would seem that Glazounoff cannot as yet be credited with the possession of an individual style, his music shows talents and acquirements of a high order of merit. Everything is direct, clearly defined, and logically coherent; the movements are not too lengthily spun out, and there is abundance of life and charm. The last movement—a thoroughly Russian piece, full of barbaric effects and abounding in percussive noises—seemed on a first hearing to have little to do with those that preceded it, which are far more restrained. The Symphony, very finely played under Mr. Wood's spirited and sympathetic direction, met with a cordial reception. Wagner's "Seigfried" Idyll and the "Malagueña" from Moszkowski's opera "Boabdil" completed the scheme.

A great crowd attended the second Concert, on the 6th ult., when, with one exception, the programme was exclusively devoted to excerpts from Wagner's operas and music-dramas. The exception was Dvorák's "New World" Symphony. Mr. Wood and his forces were again on their mettle, and exceedingly fine readings of the various numbers were given, praise being more especially due to the rendering of the slow movement of Dvorák's work and that of the "Venusberg" music from the Paris version of "Tannhäuser." The Prelude and Death Song from "Tristan and Isolde" were also played with exquisite effect. The programme included the "Walkürenritt," the Trauermarsch from "Götterdämmerung," the Overture to "Die Meistersinger," and part of the Grail Scene from "Parsifal."

The Concert on the 20th ult. was of exceptional interest. Two works new to English audiences were presented, and the programme included Tschaïkowsky's magnificent Sixth Symphony in B minor. The most important of the novelties was the Overture by Tschaïkowsky to A. N. Ostrovsky's drama "L'Orage." The music apparently aims to suggest the frenzied anguish of the heroine (who finally commits suicide) rather than to seek to follow the outlines of the story. It is intensely tragic in conception, and contains several impressive orchestral effects; but although there are many good contrasts the storm and stress of the music becomes somewhat oppressive. The other new piece was Raff's arrangement for orchestra of Bach's famous Chaconne in D minor for violin alone. This has been cleverly done, but the result does not enhance the beauty of the music, and such procedures are not to be commended. A very fine interpretation was given of the Symphonie Pathétique, the performance once more proving the superb quality of this orchestra and the remarkable power wielded over it by its conductor. A very attractive Suite from the ballet of Tschaïkowsky's "Nutcracker" was also played with delightful verve and delicacy. An impressive reading was given of the "Good Friday" music from "Parsifal," and the programme concluded with Beethoven's second "Leonora" Overture.

QUEEN'S HALL PROMENADE CONCERTS.

Mr. Newman's excellent and much appreciated Orchestral Concerts on Saturday evenings, at the Queen's Hall, have been continued with notable artistic success. On January 30 was given the first performance in England of Arensky's Second Suite (Op. 23), entitled "Silhouettes." This consists of five numbers, respectively headed "A Learned Man," "The Coquette," "Punchinello," "The Dreamer," and "The Dancer." Judging by the music, the learned man in the composer's estimation is a somewhat pompous personage, but the nature of the other movements justify their respective titles. The Suite is very cleverly and daintily scored, and in its entirety is decidedly attractive. The novelty on the following week was an Orchestral Legend called "Undine," by Miss Amy Elise Horrocks. This lady was for many years a pupil of the Royal Academy of Music, of which she was last year elected a Fellow, and her published works include a Sonata for pianoforte and violoncello, a set of Variations for pianoforte and strings, and a number of songs and smaller compositions which testify to creative ability and excellent training. "Undine" has for its poetic basis a well-known legend, the incidents of which are musically suggested in a graceful and effective manner. The work is deftly orchestrated and possesses considerable interest. The 13th ult. being the anniversary of Wagner's death in 1883, the entire first part of the Concert was devoted to excerpts from this master's works. Exceptionally fine interpretations were given of the Venusberg music from "Tannhäuser" (Paris version), the beautiful "Siegfried" Idyll, and the "Ride of the Valkyries," and the other pieces were given with scarcely less impressiveness. Miss Lucile Hill and Mr. Lloyd Chandos were the vocalists. The programme attracted such an enormous audience that the selections on the two following Saturdays were of a similar character.

HENSCHEL CONCERTS.

The chief feature of Mr. Henschel's fourth Concert of the present season, which took place on the 4th ult., at St. James's Hall, was Brahms's "Requiem," which, on the whole, was very effectively interpreted. It was, however, a mistake to place such a work at the end of the programme, for the inevitable exodus which takes place towards the end of every musical performance was more than usually disturbing in a work of this solemn character. The vocalists were Miss Evangeline Florence and Mr. George Holmes. The former sang with notable purity of expression, but the latter, owing to insufficient resonance in his voice, was less acceptable. The choruses were intelligently sung by Mr. Henschel's choir. The remainder of the programme consisted of the Prelude to Wagner's "Lohengrin" and Brahms's Pianoforte Concerto in D minor (Op. 15), the solo part of which was finely played by Miss Fanny Davies.

On the 18th ult. Mr. Henschel gave his usual Concert In Memoriam of Wagner. A good selection was made from this master's writings, the most successful performances being those of the Good Friday's Spell music from "Parsifal" and the orchestral arrangement consisting of the Prelude and Finale from "Tristan and Isolde." The final scene from the "Valkyrie" was also given, the parts of Brünnhilde and Wotan being respectively rendered by Madame Marie Duma and Mr Charles Clark. Both these artists sang excellently, and showed keen appreciation of the requirements of the music; but the voice of the latter is not sufficiently heavy in quality to give due emphasis to the music of Wotan. The performance of Beethoven's "Eroica" Symphony was at times somewhat perfunctory and wanting in distinctness of phrasing. The Concert was concluded with the oft-repeated "Ride of the Valkyries."

SAVOY THEATRE.

We have now a new "Savoyard," in the person of the Principal of the Royal Academy of Music, and so far as impressions derived from a first night may be trusted, Sir Alexander Mackenzie's assumption of the cap and bells (musically speaking) is likely to lead to excellent results, alike for himself and for his hearers. Those who best appreciate his talents may regret that he should have turned his face away from grand opera for so many years, but, seeing how little encouragement in this direction is given by the public to native composers, his attitude scarcely affords matter for surprise. On the other hand, the paucity of composers capable of writing good comic opera music has gradually awakened us to the fact that ability to do so deserves more respect than had heretofore been accorded (even the "superior person" no longer turns up his nose at Sir Arthur Sullivan for devoting so great a portion of his delightful talent to the amusement of his fellows); and, in consequence, musicians of eminence have of late shown themselves more amiably disposed towards a form of art that they once regarded as fraught with danger to their reputations. Sir Alexander's music to "His Majesty, or the Court of Vingolia" (by F. C. Burnand, R. C. Lehmann, and Adrian Ross), a comic opera in two acts, produced on the 20th ult., at the Savoy Theatre, is a step in the right direction. It will help to make comic opera more reputable still, and will certainly do nothing to diminish the fame of its composer. He has "stooped to conquer," and, indeed, had he stooped still more his artistic victory would have been even greater; for in all artistic work the highest merit is fitness, and, for a Savoy opera, Sir Alexander's music is at times far from sufficiently "obvious." It is full of life, variety, and colour; lacks neither grace, energy, nor humour; and is orchestrated in the masterly fashion familiar to all acquainted with the composer's chief works; but it is music that, in many places, seems to belong to a libretto dealing with human feelings in deeper fashion than does that of "His Majesty." Five or six numbers were encored at the opening performance, and the audience of cognoscenti derived much amusement from the numerous and very funny "quotations" which the composer has allotted to the orchestra. The production took place too late for detailed analysis in our present number, the plot alone being so complex that its description occupies six closely printed pages of the libretto. Madame Palmay and Miss Florence Perry, Messrs. George Grossmith, Walter Passmore, Charles Kenningham, Scott Russell, and Jones Hewson impersonate the chief characters, which have been designed with careful regard to the individualities of these clever artists. Scenery, costumes, and stage management reveal ample liberality and intelligence, and the orchestra is even better than usual. Sir Alexander conducted the first representation, and was exceedingly well received.

THE ROYAL CARL ROSA OPERA COMPANY.

The Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company concluded its brief season of three weeks at the Garrick Theatre on the 6th ult., previous to which the most important performances were those of "Lohengrin," on January 28, and "The Valkyrie," on the 3rd ult. The rendering of the former was far less satisfactory than that of the latter. Seeing that the chief strength of the company is in its chorus, it was a decided mistake to cut out several of the finest choral numbers, and the stage management on this occasion was manifestly defective. The principal parts were sustained by Miss Rita Elandi, Miss Meisslinger, Mr. Brozel, and Mr. Alec Marsh, all of whom were more praiseworthy for intention than accomplishment. The staging of the second section of Wagner's colossal tetralogy was excellent, and a more effective presentation of the close of the second act has rarely been seen. Much praise is also due to the principal impersonators. Mr. Hedmondt, who throughout the season was a most valuable member of the company, gave a manly and finished reading of Siegmund, and Miss Alice Estey was a most sympathetic exponent of Sieglinde. Miss Elandi failed to impart sufficient dignity into her impersonation of Brünnhilde, but Miss Kirkby Lunn showed much intelligence as Fricka, and Mr. Ludwig's impersonation of Wotan was remarkable for its impressiveness in gesture and declamation. No opera season would apparently be complete without the presentation of "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci," and these works were several times mounted. In the former Madame Marie Duma and Mr. Hedmondt appeared with their usual success, and in the latter the part of Canio was sustained by Mr. Brozel with his usual intensity of expression and completeness. Miss Bessie McDonald, a young singer of much promise, made a distinct impression as Nedda, and the other characters were capably sustained. Reviewing the season as a whole, it cannot be said to have been entirely satisfactory, but though mismanagement was apparent in more than one department, no doubt the directors will see that the responsibilities which undoubtedly rest upon this company with regard to the satisfactory progress of English opera are more adequately discharged in future visits to the metropolis.

PAER'S "IL MAËSTRO DI CAPPELLA."

A very interesting first piece to "A Pierrot's Life," now being played at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, was mounted on the 16th ult. This is Paer's opera-buffa "Il Maëstro di Cappella," which was originally produced at the Feydeau, Paris, in 1821. The libretto provided by Madame Sophie Gay, although a mere episode, is of a diverting character. The Maëstro has composed a grand opera, entitled "Cleopatra," and has invited his nephew to a private rehearsal given in his own room with the aid of his servant Gertrude. The Maëstro not only strives to represent the principal male characters, but also the orchestra, and Gertrude is called upon to execute the intricate vocalism assigned to the prima donna. Abundant opportunity is thus afforded for grotesque effects and satirical allusions to the affectations of operatic singers, of which the composer has made excellent use. The music reflects the style of Cimarosa, with a touch of Mozart and sometimes Rossini, and possesses considerable musical interest. The three characters were effectively played by Miss Pauline Joran, Signor Maggi, and Mr. Austin Boyd, and the instrumental portion was well rendered under the conductorship of Mr. E. Levi.

MONDAY AND SATURDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

Resuming our record of these entertainments, we have first to speak briefly of the Concert on Monday, January 25. This opened with Mozart's Quartet in B flat, known as No. 9, though it is really the last but one of the master's works in this form, being written in 1789, two years before Mozart's death. A fine performance was given of Schumann's lovely Sonata for pianoforte and violin in A minor (Op. 105), by Lady Hallé and M. Slivinski, and the pianist was heard to considerable advantage in three pieces by Chopin. Madame Bertha Moore sang with her usual charm airs by Mendelssohn and Thomé.

By desire, Beethoven's Septet in E flat was repeated on the following Saturday, January 30, with the same executants as before, and the same master's curiously constructed Pianoforte Sonata in E flat (Op. 27, No. 1) was well played by Miss Adela Verne. The programme likewise contained the two movements of Mendelssohn's "Unfinished" Quartet in A minor.

Schubert was born on January 31, 1797; but as St. James's Hall is unavailable for Concerts on Sundays, the centenary had to be observed on the following Monday, the 1st ult. A fine programme was arranged, commencing with the Viennese composer's truly inspired Quartet in G major (Op. 161), a finer work than the companion Quartet in D minor, which is saying a great deal. The G major Quartet, beautiful as it is, suffers, however, comparative neglect, perhaps on account of its extreme length. It was exquisitely performed by Lady Hallé and Messrs. Ries, Gibson, and Piatti. The Quintet in G major, which some have declared to be the finest chamber work ever written, worthily concluded the In Memoriam Concert. Miss Fanny Davies played the Impromptu in B flat (Op. 142, No. 3) delightfully, and Miss Bertha Salter contributed some songs in fairly commendable fashion.

At the Saturday Concert of the 6th ult. Miss Liza Lehmannn's delightful cycle of songs "In a Persian Garden" was repeated. Beethoven was represented by his early Quartet in C minor (Op. 18, No. 4) and the bright Pianoforte and Violin Sonata in C minor (Op. 30, No. 3), the executants in the latter being Miss Katie Goodson and M. Johannes Wolff. The gifted young pianist rendered Brahms's early Scherzo in E flat minor and the Intermezzo from Op. 119 charmingly.

The remaining Concerts that can be dealt with at present call for very brief record. On Monday, the 8th ult., the principal concerted work was Mendelssohn's Quintet in B flat (Op. 87), which some may remember served to open the enterprise in February, 1859. Miss Adela Verne played Chopin's somewhat hackneyed Ballade in A flat and Lady Hallé was perfect in Professor Stanford's Irish pieces for violin, "A Lament," "Hush Song," and "Reel." Madame Alice Gomez contributed Lieder by Schubert and Brahms.

There was an exceedingly large audience at the Concert on Saturday, the 13th ult. Schubert's Quartet in G (Op. 161) was repeated, but without doubt Beethoven's "Kreutzer" Sonata for pianoforte and violin was the main attraction. This marvellous effort of genius was superbly played by Mr. Leonard Borwick and Lady Hallé. The most gifted of living English male pianists had an enthusiastic reception when he first came on the platform to play Bach's "Italian" Concerto—this no doubt being a message of sympathy, as it were, to the young artist, having respect to his recent severe bereavement. Mr. James Leyland gave much satisfaction in songs by Scarlatti and Dvorák.

The programme of the following Monday, the 15th ult., was to have included a String Quartet in C sharp minor by Sgambati, but this had to be postponed until the 22nd ult., just too late for notice this month. Brahms was therefore very strongly represented, for we had not only his melodious and comparatively light String Quintet (Op. 111), but the revised version of the early Pianoforte Trio in B major (Op. 8), played by Mr. Frederic Lamond, Lady Hallé, and Mr. Hallé. Mr. Lamond gave as his pianoforte solo Brahms's very difficult Variations on a theme by Paganini (Op. 35), the whole of which the young Scottish pianist rendered with praiseworthy breadth and dignity and with faultless technique. The Misses Florence and Bertha Salter were extremely pleasing in vocal duets by Schumann, Brahms, and Délibes.

The Concert on the 20th ult. was opened by Lady Hallé and Messrs. Ries, Gibson, Ludwig, and Piatti, with a fine performance of Schubert's magnificent Quintet in C (Op. 163). Mozart's Duet in G for violin and viola, written in 1783, also received a finished interpretation from Lady Hallé and Mr. Gibson, and that clever young pianist, Miss Adela Verne, played with notable success Schumann's Nachtstück in F (Op. 23, No. 4) and Rubinstein's Staccato Study in C (Op. 23, No. 2). The vocalist was Madame Lena Law, who sang with admirable effect "Chi vive Amante," from Handel's twenty-fourth Italian opera "Poro."

AMATEUR ORCHESTRAL SOCIETIES.

It was of course a matter for regret that Mr. George Kitchen, who so ably directs the Stock Exchange Orchestral and Choral Society's Concerts, was unable to be in his place at the second Subscription Concert, in the Queen's Hall, on Tuesday, the 9th ult., in consequence of ill-health, but an excellent substitute was secured in Mr. Arthur W. Payne for the orchestra and another in Mr. S. J. Edwards for the male-voice choir. The scheme commenced with a delightful Symphony in D by Haydn, styled No. 5, a number that is misleading, because it was the first of the twelve masterpieces that were performed under the composer's direction at the Salomon Concerts in the Hanover Square Rooms in 1791. This, and the overture and one of the ballet airs from Schubert's "Rosamunde" music were admirably rendered. A new elegiac overture, "Les Ténèbres," by Miss Edith Swepstone, is founded, according to a quotation, on Tennyson's "In Memoriam." It is clever, vigorously scored, and has no touch of femininity. The end is appropriately sombre. Professor J. F. Bridge gave a capital performance of Handel's Organ Concerto in B flat, No. 2 of the first set, with a well-written cadenza from his own pen, and the violin solos offered by Miss Irma Sethe were very warmly received. The unaccompanied part-music, by the choir, was rendered with all requisite refinement.

The scheme of the Royal Amateur Orchestral Society, also in the Queen's Hall, on the following evening, opened with a Wagnerian selection including familiar excerpts from "Tristan und Isolde," "Der Fliegende Holländer," "Tannhäuser," and "Die Meistersinger," rendered conscientiously, if somewhat tamely, under the direction of Mr. George Mount. Madame Alva and Mr. George Holmes were fairly creditable as the vocalists. In the second part were the overtures to "Ruy Blas" and "Mireille." There was a Smoking Concert, also in Queen's Hall, on Tuesday, the 16th ult., but the programme of this was not of sufficient importance to call for criticism.

The Strolling Players' Amateur Orchestral Society gave its third members' Concert of the fifteenth season on the 18th ult., when the performance reflected the greatest credit on Mr. Norfolk Megone, the conductor, and on all concerned. Schumann's beautiful first Symphony in B flat has rarely been more effectively interpreted by amateurs, and the playing of the orchestra throughout the evening was admirable. Three novelties were included in the programme, the first two of which were performed on this occasion for the first time. These were "Three Japanese Dances," by Mr. Albert Fox, and a Concertstück for pianoforte and orchestra, by Mr. A. W. Ketelbey. The former can scarcely claim originality, but they are neatly scored and show appreciation of rhythm. The latter is a brilliantly written movement, particularly with regard to the pianoforte part, to which full justice was done by the composer. The other novelty was a suite for orchestra, entitled "Scénes Poétiques," by Benjamin Godard, which it was stated had not previously been performed in London. The work is of a pastoral character and consists of four movements, the third of which, entitled "On the mountain," possesses great beauty of a placid nature. The work is effectively concluded by an animated movement in dance rhythm. No small part of the attractiveness of the suite consists in the exquisite finish and delicacy of the instrumentation. The singing of Mrs. Helen Trust and Miss Florence Hoskins contributed to the enjoyment of the evening.

THE GOMPERTZ STRING QUARTET.

Considerable interest was attached to the fourth Concert of the present season of Mr. Richard Gompertz's Chamber Concerts, at the Queen's (Small) Hall, by the first performance in England of a String Quartet in A flat (Op. 105) by Dvorák. The work consists of the usual four movements, of which the last is the least satisfactory. The opening Allegro appassionata is preceded by a brief Adagio, and may be described as a tone-picture of moods. The themes are expressive, but the development seems, at a first hearing, to lack cohesion. The second number is practically a Scherzo, and chiefly consists of solo work for the first violin. The Lento, which follows, is very expressive, and at times impassioned, and many portions are of great beauty. The Finale gives the impression of having been written much less recently than the rest of the work, many of its figures belonging to the early part of the present century. The Quartet in its entirety cannot be placed amongst the finest examples of chamber music that the Bohemian composer has given us. The other Quartet played on this occasion was by Beethoven, in A minor (Op. 132). Brahms's Vocal Quartets (Op. 92) were also included in the programme, and were sung by Mrs. Hutchinson, Madame Hope-Glenn, Mr. Walter Ford, and Mr. Herbert Thorndike, with Mr. Henry Bird at the pianoforte.

No novelty was presented at the second Concert, but admirable interpretations were given of Brahms's fine Quartet in B flat (Op. 67) and Beethoven's Quartet in F major (Op. 135), which was one of the latest utterances of the great master. The vocalists were Miss Alma Ribolla and Mr. Stephen Ribolla, the singing of neither calling for comment.

WALENN CHAMBER CONCERTS.

More than usual interest was attached to Messrs. Walenn's fourth Chamber Concert, on the 16th ult., at the Queen's (Small) Hall, by the programme being headed with a Trio in A for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello, by Paul A. Pabst, one of the new school of Russian composers, but whose music is practically unknown in this country. The work opens with a tersely written Allegro, in which melodious themes are skilfully developed. A well contrasted Intermezzo and Trio follows, and is succeeded by a Rêverie elégiaque of great beauty. The Finale is a very striking movement. The pianoforte begins in an impetuous manner with an agitated figure in triplets, which is heard almost throughout the entire number. Over this the principal theme, of a pathetic nature, is announced by the strings in two-part harmony. The second subject is broad and majestic in character, and from these materials the number is developed with much musical interest until reiterated notes from the pianoforte, suggestive of the tolling of a bell, seems to arrest further progress, and the music impressively dies away pianissimo. The work is dedicated to the memory of Anton Rubinstein, which fact accounts for the nature of the third and last movements. The music was admirably interpreted by Madame Frickenhaus, Mr. Gerald Walenn, and Mr. Herbert Walenn, who subsequently played several solos with equal skill. The vocalists were Mdlle. Paolina Gilardoni and Mr. Arthur Walenn.

MR. THEODORE WERNER'S VIOLIN RECITALS.

As Mr. Werner proceeds with his present series of Violin Recitals, at St. James's Hall, esteem for his great abilities increases. The chief works brought forward on the 4th ult. were Tartini's celebrated Sonata in G minor, Spohr's "Dramatic" Concerto, and Beethoven's Romance in F. In the rendering of these works Mr. Werner showed great power, both as an executant and in intellectual expression, the first-named work in particular being finely played. At the Recital on the 18th ult. Bach's famous Chaconne in D minor was interpreted with a breadth and dignity that placed Mr. Werner in the front rank of modern violinists. Paganini's Grand Concerto in B minor served to emphasize still more the remarkable facility with which Mr. Werner executes passages of the utmost difficulty. Between these pieces Svendsen's Romance in G formed an effective contrast, and was played with greater warmth of expression than had previously characterised the executant's performances. Similar sympathetic charm was noticeable in Robert Schumann's "Garden Melody" and in Wieniawski's "Romance sans Paroles et Rondo Elegant," which concluded an enjoyable afternoon.

MESSRS. PLUNKET GREENE AND LEONARD BORWICK'S RECITALS.

Three Song and Pianoforte Recitals were announced to be given in St. James's Hall by the above-named esteemed artists, and the first took place on Friday, the 5th ult. This took the form of a Schubert In Memoriam performance, the programme containing the splendid Pianoforte Sonata in C minor in which the Viennese composer so nearly approaches Beethoven, some minor solos, and no fewer than ten Lieder. How these were interpreted by two such well-equipped performers there is no occasion to say in detail. Enough that the most fastidious must have been well satisfied. The second Recital, on Friday afternoon, the 19th ult., opened with a Fantasia in C minor by Bach, and this was followed by Brahms's Variations and Fugue on a theme by Handel (Op. 24). Mr. Borwick played them splendidly, showing perfect command of the keyboard. A fine selection of songs by Bach, Handel, Schumann, Mendelssohn, and Brahms came next, and were sung with the utmost expressiveness by Mr. Plunket Greene. Other pieces by Professor Villiers Stanford and Mr. R. H. Walthew succeeded, and all gave supreme satisfaction to a large audience.

MR. FREDERICK LAMOND'S PIANOFORTE RECITALS.

In spite of much discouragement in consequence of scanty attendances, Mr. Lamond has pluckily continued his Recitals at St. James's Hall, and has given some very fine performances. At the second Recital, on January 26, he set himself the arduous task of playing Beethoven's great Sonata in B flat (Op. 106) and Schumann's Etudes Symphoniques (Op. 13) in succession. But he mastered both with apparent ease, and indeed we have rarely heard so few false notes in the arduous fugal Finale of the Sonata, a work that is rarely played on account of its length and enormous difficulty. The masterpiece of Schumann was also faultlessly rendered. The minor pieces in the programme were by Field, Chopin, Henselt, and Liszt.

At the next Recital, on the 2nd ult., the principal pieces were Beethoven's penultimate Sonata in A flat (Op. 110) and Schumann's inspired Fantasia in C (Op. 17). In the latter work Mr. Lamond again displayed splended technique, the famous passage at the close of the second movement, where so many pianists come to grief, being rendered with the strictest accuracy and yet without coldness. The rest of the programme consisted mainly of virtuoso music.

On the 9th ult. there was a capital scheme, including Beethoven's wonderful final Sonata in C minor (Op. 111) and Schubert's "Wanderer" Fantasia in C (Op. 15); also Brahms's very clever Variations on a theme by Handel (Op. 24) and a number of minor pieces of a legitimate character by Mendelssohn, Chopin, Schubert, Henselt, Rubinstein, and Liszt.

"SUSANNA" AT THE PEOPLE'S PALACE.

The Handel Society, which has done such excellent service in reviving unjustly neglected works, on the 6th ult. made another claim upon the gratitude of the musical public by performing Handel's oratorio "Susanna," which had not previously been given in London for many years. Dating from 1748, prior to any perceptible waning in the composer's powers, "Susanna" exhibits several of the qualities that secured for him such fame. The choruses are fresh and vigorous, though, for the most part, purely reflective, whilst the solos are more interesting than in some of Handel's productions about the same period. The time, perhaps, has gone, never to return, for audiences to pay much attention to the lengthily told hopes and fears of the principal characters in these sacred musical dramas; but this does not involve the withholding of the admiration due to such an imposing chorus as "Righteous Heav'n." The few among the crowded assemblage on this occasion who remembered the performance at the Alexandra Palace in the spring of 1876, when Miss Anna Williams, Miss Julia Elton, Mr. William Shakespeare, and Signor Foli were the leading soloists, were glad to renew acquaintance with the work, whilst for the remainder there was the attractive element of curiosity. The result was success. The choruses were, on the whole, steadily sung, and the solos were carefully rendered by Miss Gertrude Sichel (Susanna), Mrs. Kyd (an Attendant), Miss Tancred (Daniel), Miss Muriel Foster (Joachim), Mr. Harry Stubbs (First Elder), Mr. Francis Harford (Second Elder), and Mr. Arthur Wills (who doubled the parts of Chelsias and the Judge). Mr. J. S. Liddle conducted with much ability, Mr. E. G. Croager was the organist, and Dr. A. H. Mann presided at the pianoforte, substituted for the harpsichord.

THE MUSICAL GUILD.

The first Concert of the sixteenth series given by this Society took place, on the 9th ult., at Kensington Town Hall. It was only too evident from the number of empty seats that the residents of this fashionable quarter felt little interest in the occasion. To this apathy it is impossible to refer in terms of complacency. With admirable perseverance the Musical Guild has, for eight years, endeavoured to enlist the sympathies of those who love what is "of good report" in the art of music. The programmes have been the delight of the connoisseur, and the performances, while varying in merit, as such things must in an imperfect world, have seldom, within our recollection, been such as could fail to satisfy reasonable requirements. Indeed, the opinion may be hazarded that the playing at these Concerts, at its best, is rarely excelled—outside St. James's Hall, at any rate. Nor, bold as such an assertion may sound to some, need it cause surprise; for music-lovers are aware, if an indifferent public is not, that the Guild has among its members some of the finest young artists of the day, whose names have travelled far beyond parochial boundaries and whose fame may be safely predicted to become world-wide, or, at all events, European, at no very distant date. Yet it is upon players such as these that the dwellers in a well-to-do London parish turn their backs, leaving what should be the concern of all who regard themselves as "cultivated" (and what Kensingtonian does not?) to the support of a faithful few, gathered from far perhaps more frequently than from near. Only a few lines can be devoted to the proceedings on the evening in question. The programme comprised Beethoven's Quartet for strings in F minor (Op. 95), which provoked Mendelssohn not only to admiration, but it would seem to imitation also; Schütt's Suite for pianoforte and violin in D minor (Op. 44) and Brahms's Pianoforte Quartet in C minor (Op. 60), with songs by Schubert and Coleridge Taylor, sung by Mr. Francis Harford. The playing of the instrumental works by Miss Ethel Sharpe, Messrs. A. Bent, W. Sutcliffe, E. Tomlinson, and Paul Ludwig was notable for precision and unanimity of feeling, the result of obvious careful preparation for which the performers cannot be too highly commended. Of Mr. Harford it may be said that when experience (which, apparently, he lacks) has come to the aid of youth (which he possesses) he may be confidently expected to prove an excellent vocalist. At present we admire his voice more than his method of using it.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

A new Pianoforte and Violin Sonata in D minor, by William Hurlstone, a scholar of the College, was produced at the Chamber Concert of the 3rd ult. It possessed more interest than attaches generally to students' compositions, for there were few, if any, traces of immaturity either in the well-conceived subject-matter or the singularly able workmanship. Of the three movements the opening Allegro soars highest, and there the composer succeeds in occasionally reaching a degree of impressiveness which raises great hopes for his future. The Andante moderato, interrupted by a spirited Allegro built on Hungarian rhythms, and the final Allegro scherzando are both legitimately effective pieces; they sound well, and the composer's resourceful invention holds the attention to the end. The work was excellently performed—and from memory—by the composer and William Read, the latter an exceptionally talented young violinist, whose technique, intonation, and tone are equally good, and who, moreover, plays with considerable fervour. Weber's Duo-Concertante for clarinet and pianoforte (Op. 48) gave Frederic Moss an opportunity of showing that, with further study, he is likely to develop into a finished player on his beautiful instrument. Mansel Lewis's singing was too loose in rhythm and his pronunciation too indistinct to do justice to Schumann's "Two Grenadiers." But his voice is of excellent quality. Alice M. Hodder is also gifted with a good voice, and evidently feels deeply what she sings. In her endeavour to express her feelings she went, however, too far on this occasion, and her enunciation in Brahms's "Maytime" and Schumann's "Springtime" appeared somewhat erratic, through the persistency with which she formed her notes on the consonants. But since the latter were, at all events, clearly heard, the fault was on the right side. Dvorák's E flat String Quartet (Op. 51) was played by Marie Motto, Mary Noverre, Edward Behr, and Ethel Uhlhorn-Zillhardt; but the two movements which we heard did not reach the standard which previous quartet performances at the College have given us.

At the Orchestral Concert, on the 15th ult., the miserable pitch question played sad havoc with some of the music performed. The clarinets and other wind instruments were abominably out of tune, and to listen to them was a sore trial. When will this question of English versus Continental pitch be settled for good? Orchestral music, under the present circumstances, is distinctly not calculated to "soothe the savage breast"! We know not whether the state of affairs at this Concert affected the orchestra generally, but think it most likely. At any rate, the playing was not up to the College standard, even after making allowance for the difficulties which such works as Schumann's "Manfred" Overture and Brahms's E minor Symphony present. A great lack of precision was the chief drawback. Tschaïkowsky's first Pianoforte Concerto, a bombastic work, which pleases us less each time we hear it, was attempted by Beatrice Foster, who, though lacking the requisite physical strength to quite overcome the enormous difficulties of the solo part, played with so much intelligence and spirit that she may be expected to give an excellent account of herself in a less trying work. A "Legend" from a Concertstück for violin and orchestra, by S. Coleridge Taylor, is as original a piece as we have heard for some time. It is, however, by no means one of his most beautiful or effective compositions, at least as regards the solo part. The accompaniments are scored with masterly skill, being picturesque and sensuous, though subdued in colour; they prove once more that Mr. Taylor thinks in the language of the orchestra, instead of merely "arranging" his sketch score laboriously for the latter. We repeat that his music is as unconventional and un-English as the staunchest champion of "national" or "characteristic" music could wish, and it does not offend by being excessively "explosive." What a pity Mr. Taylor does not own a Russian name. He might get his very original Symphony or even this comparative trifle performed at our chief concert halls, sandwiched between a hackneyed Wagner selection, and the audience might feel compelled to like it! Marie Motto played the solo part without being fully equal to it, her intonation being frequently at fault and her tone thin. G. Ruby Shaw sang the beautiful song "Where art thou, father dear?" from Dvorák's "Spectre's Bride," and may be commended for a dramatic and facile rendering, though her voice sounded tired and overtrained. Professor Stanford conducted, as usual.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The Organ Recital given by the students, on the 11th ult., at the Queen's Hall, gave proof of excellent teaching. The most successful executants were Mr. T. W. Lardner, Mr. Walter S. Vale, and Mr. G. D. Cunningham, all of whom played with admirable clearness of touch and phrasing, and showed much skill in the manipulation of the tonal resources at their command. Mr. Eustace Turner gave a meritorious performance of a Toccata by Bach, and the rendering by Mr. B. C. Flanders and Mr. W. H. Reed of Rheinberger's Air with Variations in A minor was one of the most pleasant episodes of the afternoon. Miss F. McCulloch, who possesses a voice of fine quality and considerable power, which, however, is at present marred by a tendency to vibrato, gave an admirable interpretation of Saint-Säens's poetic song "La Cloche"; and Mr. Walter Ford's pleasant bass voice was used with skill in Gounod's Cavatina "She alone charmeth my sadness." Miss L. M. Grime gave a neat version of "I am Titania," from Ambroise Thomas's "Mignon," and Miss A. M. Child showed marked dramatic perception in her recitation of Christina Rossetti's poem "A Royal Princess."

The Liszt and Sainton Scholarships will be competed for on April 30 and May 1 next respectively. The former is open to persons of either sex and any nationality between the ages of fourteen and twenty, and will be awarded for proficiency in musical composition or pianoforte playing, or, at the option of the candidate, each of these subjects. The Sainton Scholarship is for proficiency in violin playing, and is open to all British-born subjects of either sex under the age of eighteen. Preliminary literary examinations will be held on April 28, and all applications must be sent in by April 14.

The competition for the Dove Scholarship took place on the 13th ult., when the Scholarship was awarded to Edwin Spencer Dyke, of Plymouth. The examiners commended Margaret S. Holloway.

"LOVE'S MAGIC," AT WOOLWICH.

Grace and humour combined with dramatic effectiveness are so rarely to be found in modern operettas that it is pleasant to record the great success obtained by "Love's Magic," at the Royal Artillery Theatre, Woolwich, on the 9th ult. It was first played here seven years ago, and, like a few other good things, has not suffered by keeping. There was no trace of such a lapse of time either in the development of the romantic story or its accompanying strains. The fact is, the book written by Lieut.-Colonel J. R. J. Jocelyn, R.A., is not only admirably adapted for the stage, but abounds with bright and fanciful touches. Devoid of a dull moment, it engages attention from beginning to end, and possesses all the attributes commanding the favour of audiences appreciative of superior workmanship. Lieut.-Colonel Jocelyn had a worthy coadjutor in Cavaliere L. Zavertal, R.A., whose music is as melodious as it is telling. Seldom are an author's ideas so clearly reflected by a composer. This agreeable production went remarkably well throughout and was loudly applauded. Mr. Broughton Black played the Magician with skill and judgment, and Mr. Arthur Court acquitted himself well, considering that at short notice he was the substitute for Mr. Courtice Pounds, indisposed. The part of the Magician's supposed daughter was neatly sustained by Miss Maisie Turner. The orchestra was occupied by the band of the Royal Artillery, conducted by Cavaliere Zavertal. The remainder of the programme, including a new burletta, "Marie Tanner," by Messrs. Broughton Black, Roland Henry, and John W. Ivimey, the last-named being responsible for the music, was also ably carried through.

HIGHBURY PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

The performance of the Highbury Philharmonic Society, on January 26, was fully as successful as usual. Mr. Erskine Allon's cantata "The Oak of Geismar" is decidedly the best thing he has done, being brighter and fresher than much that has been put forward by this clever musician. It deals with the conflict between Christianity and Paganism, the former, of course, triumphing in the end. The words are adapted from the story under this name by Henry van Dyke, of New York, by Florence Perugini-Campbell. Mr. Allon's music is melodious and genial, and the orchestration is very piquant. Under Mr. G. H. Betjemann's direction an admirable general performance was secured, and full justice was rendered to the solos by Miss Evangeline Florence, Mr. Ben Davies, and Mr. Bantock Pierpoint. Professor Villiers Stanford's Irish ballad, "Phaudrig Crohoore," produced at the Norwich Festival last October, followed, and was also extremely well interpreted.

Special interest will attach to the Concert on the 9th inst., when Mendelssohn's music to Racine's "Athalie" will be performed in its proper connection with the play. The usual "illustrative verses" will be discarded, and the translation of the play (in an abridged form), by the late W. Bartholomew, will be recited by several elocutionists, the part of Athalie being entrusted to Mrs. G. H. Betjemann, and Mr. Charles Fry being specially engaged for that of Joad, making his hundredth appearance as reciter in this work on that occasion.

FINSBURY CHORAL ASSOCIATION.

The Finsbury Choral Association, at Holloway Hall, on January 28, offered a specially attractive programme in Mr. Arthur Somervell's new "Elegy" (originally heard last autumn at the Hovingham Festival) and Sullivan's "The Golden Legend." The first-named is a setting of Mr. Robert Bridges' "Elegy on a Lady whom Grief for the Death of her Betrothed killed," and consists of two choruses with a contralto solo dividing them. In its clever part-writing, breadth, and freshness it is a good example of the best style of a composer who of late has made a remarkable advance in his art. Though the theme is solemn, there is a picturesqueness and evidence of purpose in the work certain to render it acceptable to choral societies anxious to keep pace with modern productions of the loftiest type. The "Elegy" made a great impression on the audience, and it was excellently performed, under the direction of the composer; the chorus singing with dramatic intention and the contralto solo being unaffectedly delivered by Miss Muriel Foster. The ever-welcome "Golden Legend" had for soloists Misses Esther Palliser and Alice Long, Messrs. Maldwyn Humphreys, H. J. Dunn, and Watkin Mills, the latter again specially distinguishing himself as Lucifer. With Mr. Cecil J. Sharp at the conductor's desk the choruses were sung with steadiness and regard for expression.

ST. CUTHBERT'S CHORAL SOCIETY.

The St. Cuthbert's Hall Choral Society, at Kensington, made a highly promising start on the 16th ult. The Association has only recently been formed, but the singers and instrumentalists, obedient to the bâton of Mr. Cyril Miller (organist of St. John Baptist, Kensington), displayed, in Niels Gade's "The Erl-King's Daughter" and Schubert's "Song of Miriam," an amount of zeal and intelligence seldom forthcoming at an initial Concert by an amateur body. In the Danish composer's work they paid exceptionally close attention to light and shade. Evidently interested in their labours, the choralists continued to improve, both in attack and strength of tone, until they fully earned the approval bestowed by a discriminative assemblage. The soloists, who were quite at ease, were Miss Lucy Broadwood, Miss Grainger Kerr, and Mr. Charles Philips, the first-named capable artist also undertaking, with satisfactory results, the solo portion in the "Song of Miriam." Barnby's exquisite part-song "Sweet and low" and Pinsuti's "The Watchword" further testified to the natural ability and excellent training of the choir, which certainly deserves a word of encouragement. The vocal pieces were relieved by fine performances of Max Bruch's "Romance" for violin and Sarasate's "Zigeunerweisen," by Miss Ethel Barns.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC LECTURES.

Mr. J. S. Shedlock, on the 3rd ult., gave some results of his analysis on the Clavier Suites of Kuhnau, Bach, and Handel, the remarks concerning the first-named composer being specially interesting. Kuhnau, the lecturer said, was born in the year 1660, or, according to some authorities, 1667. He wrote two sets of seven Partien, under the title of "Neuer Clavier Ubung." According to the old edition in the Berlin library, the first set appeared in 1689 and the second in 1695. The lecturer, however, had reason to think that both Partien originally appeared in 1689, but the second without the Sonata in B flat at the end, as in the edition of 1695. Kuhnau's Partien might be said to represent the cyclic form of the suite on its highest point. There was no lack of science in them, yet the Folkslied character of the dance movements was never obscured, as sometimes the case with Bach and Handel. These two composers sometimes used the movements of the suite merely as a vehicle to express their ideas; Kuhnau always kept in mind the particular character of each movement. The examples of Bach and Handel might be in many respects greater and more interesting, but in the lecturer's opinion these composers did not leave such perfect specimens of suites as Kuhnau. Bach wrote three sets of suites—first, the French Suites, written about 1725; secondly, the English Suites, about 1727; and thirdly, the Partitas, about 1731. Besides these there were three very interesting short suites, supposed to have been intended for the French collection: the first was in A minor, the second was in E flat, and had a Bourrée and two Minuets after the Sarabande, but no Gigue. The third, in E minor, was supposed to have been originally written for the lute. Handel wrote two collections, the first published in 1720, the second in 1733. A third collection appeared in print long after his death. They were called "Lessons." The Suite in E of the first collection included the famous "Harmonious Blacksmith" variations. Kuhnau, Bach, and Handel all had certain points in common, but each had certain peculiarities of cadence, figuration, melody, or sequence of harmonies, whereby the writings of the one could be distinguished from those of the other—in other words, each composer displayed individuality. This individuality only became manifest by careful study of the music, as in short movements the points in common naturally first attracted attention. Much instructive information was also given concerning the construction of the various movements, a considerable number of which were effectively played by the lecturer.

On the 10th ult. Mr. J. A. Fuller Maitland gave the first of two Lectures on "The relation of the older keyed instruments to the pianoforte." After some remarks concerning the interest now taken in old music, the lecturer said his chief object was to give his listeners some practical hints on the style in which the clavier writings of Bach and Handel should be played. To do this it was necessary to explain to them the construction of the instruments for which the old masters wrote. This he proceeded to do at considerable length, displaying a remarkable knowledge of the mechanism of the different instruments. Bach recommended practice on the clavichord for the production of a perfect legato touch, and the use of the harpsichord for the development of brilliancy. The clavichord was the greatest teacher of tone production that a pianist could have. At the second Lecture was given a description of the salient points in which the harpsichord excelled, the lecturer enforcing his remarks by playing on a fine harpsichord, dated 1798, numerous excerpts from some of the finest music written for this instrument by Bach and Scarlatti. Comparison of the effects producible from the harpsichord and pianoforte showed that the purity of tone of the former instrument caused bass chords played on the harpsichord to be much clearer than when struck on the pianoforte. The variety of timbre at command of the harpsichord player made Scarlatti's sonatas much more effective when played on this instrument than on the pianoforte, as the repetition of figures which become monotonous on the latter instrument became dialogues on the former. Bach, as usual, exhausted all possible harpsichord effects; the famous "Goldberg Variations" were the ne plus ultra of this class of music. In conclusion, the lecturer said that while it would be absurd to attempt to imitate all the effects natural to the harpsichord, attention should be paid to certain points when playing harpsichord music on the pianoforte. The clear brilliancy in rapid passages on the former instrument could be approached by a semi-staccato touch, and the expression should be produced by contrast of timbre rather than by gradation of tone. The "loud" pedal should obviously be very sparingly used, but the soft pedal might advantageously be employed to imitate the echo effects common to the harpsichord.

GRESHAM LECTURES.

Professor Bridge gave his usual series of Hilary term Music Lectures in connection with Gresham College, from the 16th to the 19th ult., at the City of London School. At the first of these was resumed his interesting account of the development of oratorio, the chief part of his remarks being concerned with Carissimi's "Jonah." An admirable sketch was given of Carissimi's writings and of the happy manner in which this composer combined in his work what was termed the "new music" with that of the old kind of writing. He attracted the notice of Handel, who paid him his usual compliment of appropriating several of Carissimi's effects. "Jonah" was in the form of the oratorio of to-day. It opened with a short overture, called an introduction, and the story was told by narrators. There was much of the word-painting in the music to which Handel was addicted, and the vocal passage describing the fish swallowing Jonah consisted of the descent of an octave and a fifth. Jonah's prayer was a beautiful tenor solo and the work concluded with a double chorus for the Ninevites. In its entirety the work was one of the earliest well constructed oratorios, and its plan and style showed that we had not greatly altered the form of this branch of musical art. It was very interesting to hear this old music, much of which, notably Jonah's prayer, was remarkably modern in character. The executants were Miss Bertha Wise, Messrs. Oakely, Avalon Collard, Fell, Webster, Ackerman, and choristers of Westminster Abbey, who sang the by no means easy music excellently.

The second Lecture appealed specially to organists, being concerned with Handel's organ concertos. These works belonged to the third and greatest period of Handel's career. Three sets were published, but only the first and third were really organ concertos. Handel's first works in this form contained an independent pedal part, which supported the tradition that the organ at St. Paul's Cathedral, upon which Handel used to play frequently, possessed pedals. The Concertos chosen for illustration were No. 4, Op. 4, and No. 1, Op. 7; Mr. J. Winter presiding at the organ in the former and Professor Bridge in the latter.

The two final Lectures were more than usually attractive, and consisted of the history and performance of Schubert's romantic opera in three acts, "Alfonso and Estrella." This was the most important effort of Schubert on the dramatic stage. The first two acts were completed in the autumn of 1821, and the third act in the following year. It was a serious opera on a large scale, and dealt with battles, love, hunting, conspiracy, and peasant life. Its first performance took place at Weimar, twenty-six years after Schubert's death, when it was given in an abbreviated form arranged by Liszt. The professor gave an amusing sketch of the story, which has been aptly described as "absurdly impossible." An admirable translation of the libretto had been prepared by Mr. J. E. Borland, who also accompanied the Recital, which was excellently carried out by Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Ellen Jaxon, Mr. Avalon Collard, Mr. C. Ackerman, Mr. John McMillan, Mr. W. Fell, and Mr. Archdeacon. Several of the numbers were very charming, notably the opening chorus and some of the soprano and tenor solos; but, as a whole, the opera does not present Schubert in his happiest vein.

ROYAL INSTITUTION.

Mr. Carl Armbruster concluded, on the 6th ult., at the Royal Institution, an interesting series of three Lectures on "Neglected Italian and French Composers." The first discourse was devoted to Luigi Cherubini, who, Italian by birth, made Paris his dwelling-place during the greater part of his life, and became director of the Paris Conservatoire. A brief but comprehensive sketch was given of Cherubini's life and the events explained which influenced his artistic career. Much interesting information was also given concerning his operas, and particulars of several of his masses and other sacred music. Considering the high-class character of Cherubini's compositions, the lecturer certainly established his right to consider him a neglected composer. The illustrations included excerpts from "Medea," "Les deux Journées," and "L'hôtellerie Portugaise," the expressiveness of which supported the lecturer's contention that much enjoyment would be derived from a revival of Cherubini's music.

Gasparo Spontini formed the subject of the second Lecture. Few people, the lecturer said, knew a note of the music of this composer, who was not only neglected in life, but in death. A few of his works were performed in Germany, where only was his name remembered. He was the second of five children; his three brothers became priests, and his only sister a nun. He himself was trained for the Church, but his musical abilities were too pronounced to permit of their neglect, and, at the age of seventeen, he entered the Naples Conservatoire. His genius naturally led him to the composition of opera. In this branch of the art he was much influenced by Gluck, whom he endeavoured to copy. He was an indefatigable worker, and corrected and re-corrected his proofs until he reduced his publishers to despair. His best works were "La Vestale" (finished about 1805) and "Olympia," the latter being produced in revised form in 1821 with brilliant success. Its career, however, was checked by the production, five weeks later, of Weber's "Der Freischütz." Spontini had a very high opinion of himself and his works, and he did not hesitate to say that no future work could surpass "Olympia." He left Berlin in 1842 after having been there twenty-three years, and said at a farewell dinner: "I leave Berlin with a heavy but grateful heart." He died in 1851. Several vocal pieces from Spontini's operas were sung and justified the eulogistic remarks of the lecturer on their composer's great abilities.

At the final Lecture an admirable sketch was given of the life-work of Auber. In common with many other successful men, Auber's first efforts in the path in which he was destined to achieve such remarkable distinction were failures. It was not until he collaborated with Eugène Scribe, in 1822, that his long series of successes in light opera commenced. It was to be regretted that so few of these were known to English amateurs, for although some of them were extremely light in texture they possessed the genuine spirit of comic opera, and in refinement and piquancy presented a pleasing contrast to the majority of modern effusions in the same branch of art. Wagner always spoke in the highest terms of the charm of Auber's music, and was wont to say that French light opera reached its highest summit in Auber's "Masaniello," the bold effects produced in the orchestration of which he described as splendid. This work, of unequal merit and at times descending to the commonplace, was remarkable for the graphic manner in which the atmosphere of life at Naples was suggested, the more so when it was remembered that the composer had never been there. Undoubtedly Auber did much to advance orchestral development, and his works presented features which were most attractive to musicians, but it was too much to say that he was to France what Weber was to Germany. Personally, Auber was affable, kind-hearted, and witty—attributes which doubtless contributed to his success. He called music his bride until he was thirty-five, and after that his wife, from which it had been cynically inferred by some that his ardour for the art had cooled.

The vocal illustrations at the above Lectures were very effectively sung by Miss Pauline Cramer, Mr. Henry Stockwell, and Mr. B. H. Grove.

SOCIETY OF ARTS.

A comprehensive Lecture on voice production was delivered on January 27, at the Society of Arts, by Mr. William Nicholl, the well-known tenor vocalist. The lecturer said that his experience, as a student, singer, and teacher, convinced him that the real art of voice production was yet in its infancy. The knowledge which enabled a teacher accurately to diagnose all voices coming under his instruction was indeed rare, and it must remain so until those who taught had had practical experience, not only in the production of their pupils' voices, but in the production of their own. The singing voice was compared to the violin, the bow being likened to the breath, the strings to the vocal cords, and the body of the instrument to the resonators of the voice; the voice, however, having movable resonators as well as fixed ones, which the violin only possessed. The first object in playing the violin was to master the bowing; the first object in voice production was to master breathing. What was known as the costal method of breathing was the most advantageous; it increased the strength of the abdominal muscles, gave greater capacity and control, and increased the brightness of the vocal tone. The lecturer maintained that what were known as false vocal cords, or ventricular bands, exercised important influence on the control of the breath, and stated his opinion that teaching on the system which divided the voice into a number of so-called registers was the cause of much mischief. That there were breaks in the voice must be conceded, but that these breaks arose from natural causes or belonged to such a perfect instrument as the human voice he utterly disbelieved. Perfect management of the voice depended on the knowledge of how to use its resonators. Many artists in their vocal exercises could produce good tones which, however, suffered considerably the moment they attempted to articulate. All singers and speakers might attain excellence of articulation by forming consonants with economic impulses of the pharynx instead of the wasteful explosion of breath from the chest. By this method the best effects were produced with the minimum of labour and fatigue. It was the undue emission of breath from the chest instead of the utilisation of the air in the mouth which caused the first line of the National Anthem to be rendered "God save our gracious squeen." Our linguistic faults were, as a rule, traceable to imitation in infancy. Flexibility of the lips was rare among untrained voices, and flexibility at the tip of the tongue was still more so. We worked with our throats and the base and root of our tongues. In the majority of cases of bad tone we blamed the voice, when we ought to blame its user. Experiments with the phonograph showed that bad results were due to excessive force. If anything approaching a pure tone was made, however loud, a good record was the result. This applied to both the singing and speaking voice. A forced word or tone always showed a broader scratch than the fine indentation which the needle otherwise made. Dr. Hubert Parry occupied the chair, and the paper was followed by a discussion on the lecturer's remarks.

SOCIETY FOR THE ENCOURAGEMENT OF FINE ARTS.

Mr. Hermann Klein gave a comprehensive survey, on January 28, at the Society for the Encouragement of Fine Arts, of the progress of opera in this country during the Queen's reign. The lecturer said that before beginning his subject proper it was but fitting on this particular occasion that he should pay a personal tribute to our sovereign, whose sympathy with the cause of music had been so conspicuously beneficial to the progress of the art in her reign. Her Majesty was one of the privileged few who could yet recall the tones of the great singers who flourished between the third and sixth decades of the present century. It was indeed difficult to realise how young the world of opera was when Queen Victoria, then a girl of eighteen, came to the throne of England. In 1837 Verdi and Wagner were both young men of twenty-four, and neither of them had yet produced an opera. Ambroise Thomas, who died a few months ago at the ripe age of eighty-five, brought out in that very year his first opera, "La double Echelle." Gounod was a youth of nineteen, and had just gained the second Prix de Rome at the Paris Conservatoire. Rubinstein was a boy of eight; Ponchielli, one of the founders of the modern Italian school, was not yet three; while Camille Saint-Saëns was an infant of eighteen months. As for Bizet, Massenet, Boïto, Tschaïkowsky, Dvorák, or our own Arthur Sullivan, they were none of them born.

At Her Majesty's accession the opera was, as it always had been, the amusement of the wealthy and one of the principal resorts of fashion. But for some three or four seasons it had not been supported by the nobility with the customary freedom and generosity, and when the management of the King's Theatre (afterwards to become known as Her Majesty's) passed into the hands of M. Laporte, it was already a losing concern. M. Laporte's leading prima donna at this time was the renowned Grisi, and his company included Persiani, Viardot-Garcia, Mario, Rubini, Tambourini, and Lablache, with Costa as conductor. In the following year there was an unsuccessful season at St. James's Theatre, in the course of which the novelties included Weber's "Euryanthe," Marschner's "Templar and Jewess," and Spohr's "Faust" and "Jessonda." The only noteworthy member of this troupe was the famous basso Staudigl. Mr. Benjamin Lumley began his reign at Her Majesty's Theatre in 1842. For the next five years the artists were at loggerheads with the management and each other, and the public and the critics were dissatisfied with the performances. Ultimately, in 1847, a split took place, and on April 6 Covent Garden, which had been rebuilt, was opened for the first time under the name of the "Royal Italian Opera." The conductor was Costa, and it was at this period of his career that that remarkable man may be said to have begun to wield the power which was destined, for upwards of thirty years, to exercise so vast an influence upon the progress of music in England. That it was an influence entirely for good the lecturer was not prepared to say, but there could be no doubt that it was so to a very great extent, especially with regard to choral music. After interesting references to the débuts of many famous singers, the lecturer said that the enterprise known as the Pyne and Harrison Company started in 1856, with Louisa Pyne, William Harrison, and Santley as principal artists, and Alfred Mellon as conductor. For seven years this celebrated troupe gave irregular seasons of English opera at different theatres with varying success, producing, among other works, Balfe's "Rose of

To my friend W. H. SQUIRES, Organist and Choirmaster of Calvary Church and the Burd Orphanage, West Philadelphia.

The Musical Times. March 1, 1897.

The strife is o'er.

ANTHEM FOR EASTER.

St. Luke xxiv. 5—7;
and part of Hymn 135, A. & M.

Composed by BRUCE STEANE.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street, (E.C.); also in New York.

Andante.

ORGAN. ♩ = 95.

mf

VERSE. BASS. mf

Why seek ye the liv - ing a-mong the dead? He . . is not here, . . He is not here, but is ris - - -

FULL. SOPRANO. mf

Why seek ye the liv - ing a- mong the dead? He is not here,

FULL. ALTO. mf

Why . . . seek . . ye the liv - ing a- mong the dead? He is not here,

FULL. TENOR. mf

Why . . . seek . . ye the liv - ing a- mong the dead? He is not here,

- en. FULL. BASS. mf

Why seek ye the liv - ing a- mong the dead? He is not here,

p

Copyright, 1897, by Novello, Ewer and Co.

He is not here, but is ris - en:
He is not here, but is ris - en:
He is not here, but is ris - en: VERSE.
He is not here, but is ris - en: re - mem - ber how He spake un - to you when He was yet in Ga - li - lee, Say - ing, The Son of . . man must solemnly.
be de - liv - er - ed . . in - to the hands of sin - ful men, and be cru - ci - fied, and the third day rise a - Slowly.
Slowly.
cres.

Full. ♩ = 100.
He is ris - en, He is
Full.
Verse. deliberately. accel.
He is ris - en, He is ris - en.
Full.
deliberately.
- gain, He is ris - en,
He is ris - en.
He is ris - en, He is
Full.
He is ris - en, He is ♩ = 100. mf Full Sw.
Ped. 16 ft.
ris - en, He is ris - en, He is ris - - - en, Al - le - lu - ia,
ris - en, He is . . ris - en, He is ris - - - en, Al - le - lu - ia,
ris - en, He is . . ris - en, He is ris - - - en, Al - le - lu - ia,
ris - en, He is ris - en, He is ris - - - en, Al - le - lu - ia,
Al - le - lu - ia, Christ is ris - en from the dead, Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - ia,
Al - le - lu - ia, Christ is ris - en from the dead, Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - ia,
Al - le - lu - ia, Christ is ris - en from the dead, Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - ia,
Al - le - lu - ia, Christ is ris - en from the dead, Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - ia,

Christ is ris - en from the dead, Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - - ia. The Christ is ris - en from the dead, Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - - ia. The Christ is ris - en from the dead, Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - - ia. The Christ is ris - en from the dead, Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - - ia. The
A little faster.
strife is o'er, the strife is o'er, the bat - tle done; Now is the Vic - tor's strife is o'er, the strife is o'er, the bat - tle done;
strife is o'er, the strife is o'er, the bat - tle . . done; Now is the Vic - tor's strife is o'er, the strife is o'er, the bat - tle done; Now is the Vic - tor's tri - umph
A little faster.
tri - umph won, now is the Vic - tor's tri - umph won, tri-umph won;
Now is the Vic - tor's tri - umph won;
tri - umph won, the Vic - tor's tri-umph won;
won, now is the Vic - tor's tri-umph won, the Vic-tor's tri - umph won; O let the

The Musical Times, EXTRA SUPPLEMENT. March 1, 1897.

No. 764. NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK. Price 4*d.*
(SECOND SERIES.)

DEDICATED, BY GRACIOUS PERMISSION, TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

THE QUEEN'S SONG

A.D. 1897

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY SIR EDWIN ARNOLD, K.C.I.E., C.S.I.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

EATON FANING.

London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.); also in New York.

Allegro maestoso. ♩ = 112.

ff

SOPRANO. ben marcato.

f

For this great Reign, now round - ed To three-score gold-en years, With pride and joy un -

ALTO. ben marcato.

f

For this great Reign, now round - ed To three-score gold-en years, With pride and joy . . un -

TENOR. ben marcato.

f

For this great Reign, now round - ed To three-score gold-en years, With pride and joy un -

BASS. f ben marcato.

For this great Reign, now round - ed To three-score gold-en years, With pride and joy un -

f ben marcato.

mf

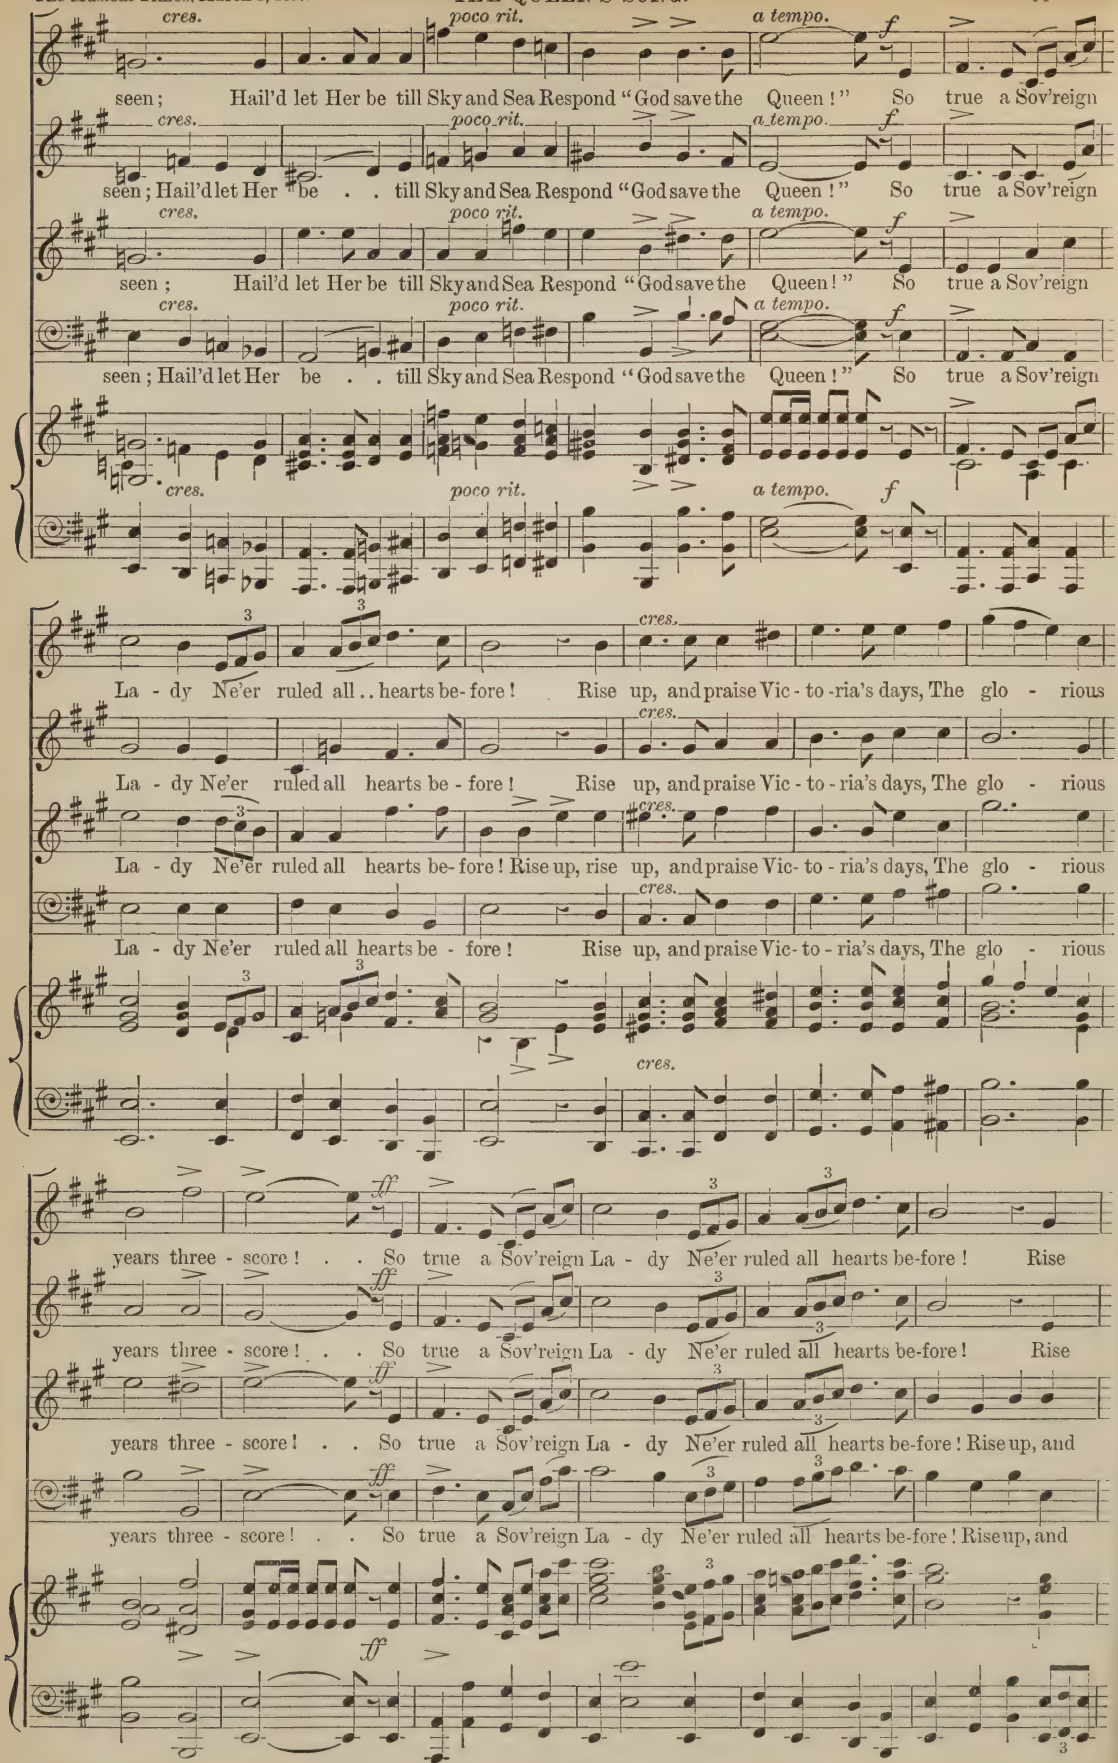
- bound - ed We raise a Na - tion's cheers; So well - beloved, so No - ble Ere now was no-where

mf

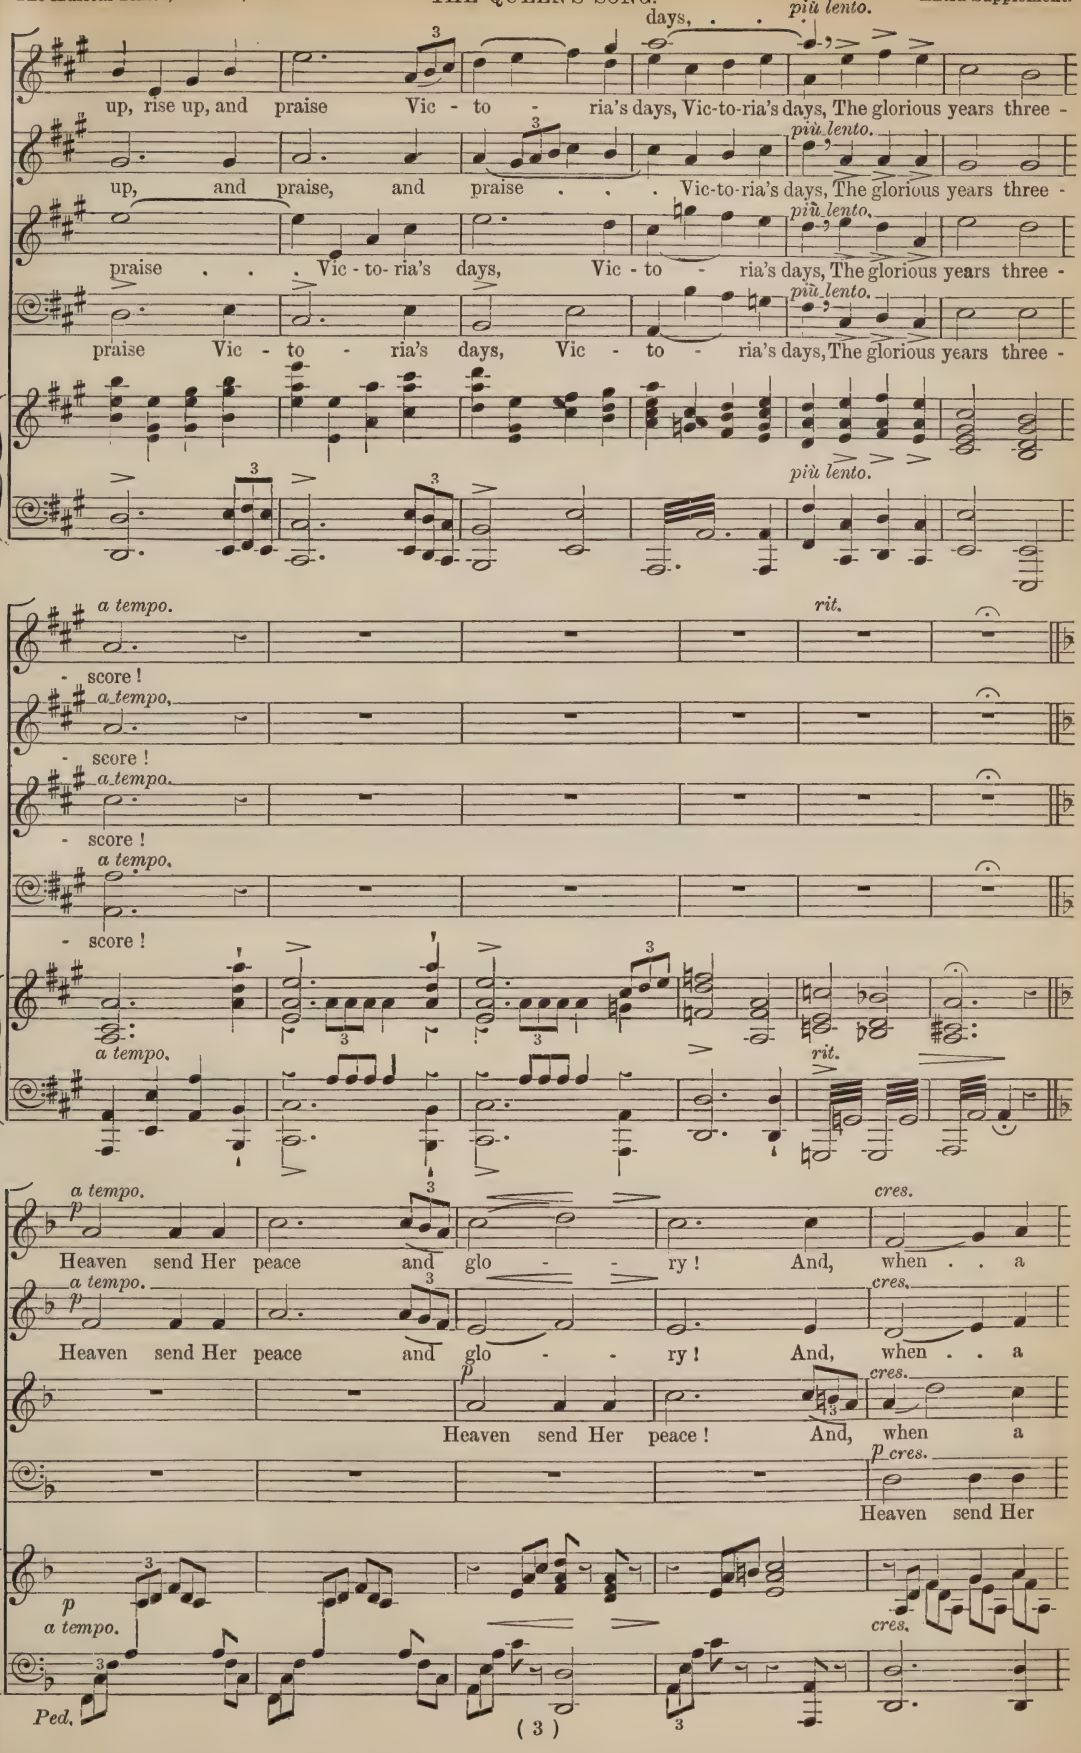
- bound - ed We raise a Na-tion's cheers; So well - beloved, so No - ble Ere now was no-where

mf

- bound - ed We raise a Na-tion's cheers; So well - beloved, so No - ble Ere now was no-where

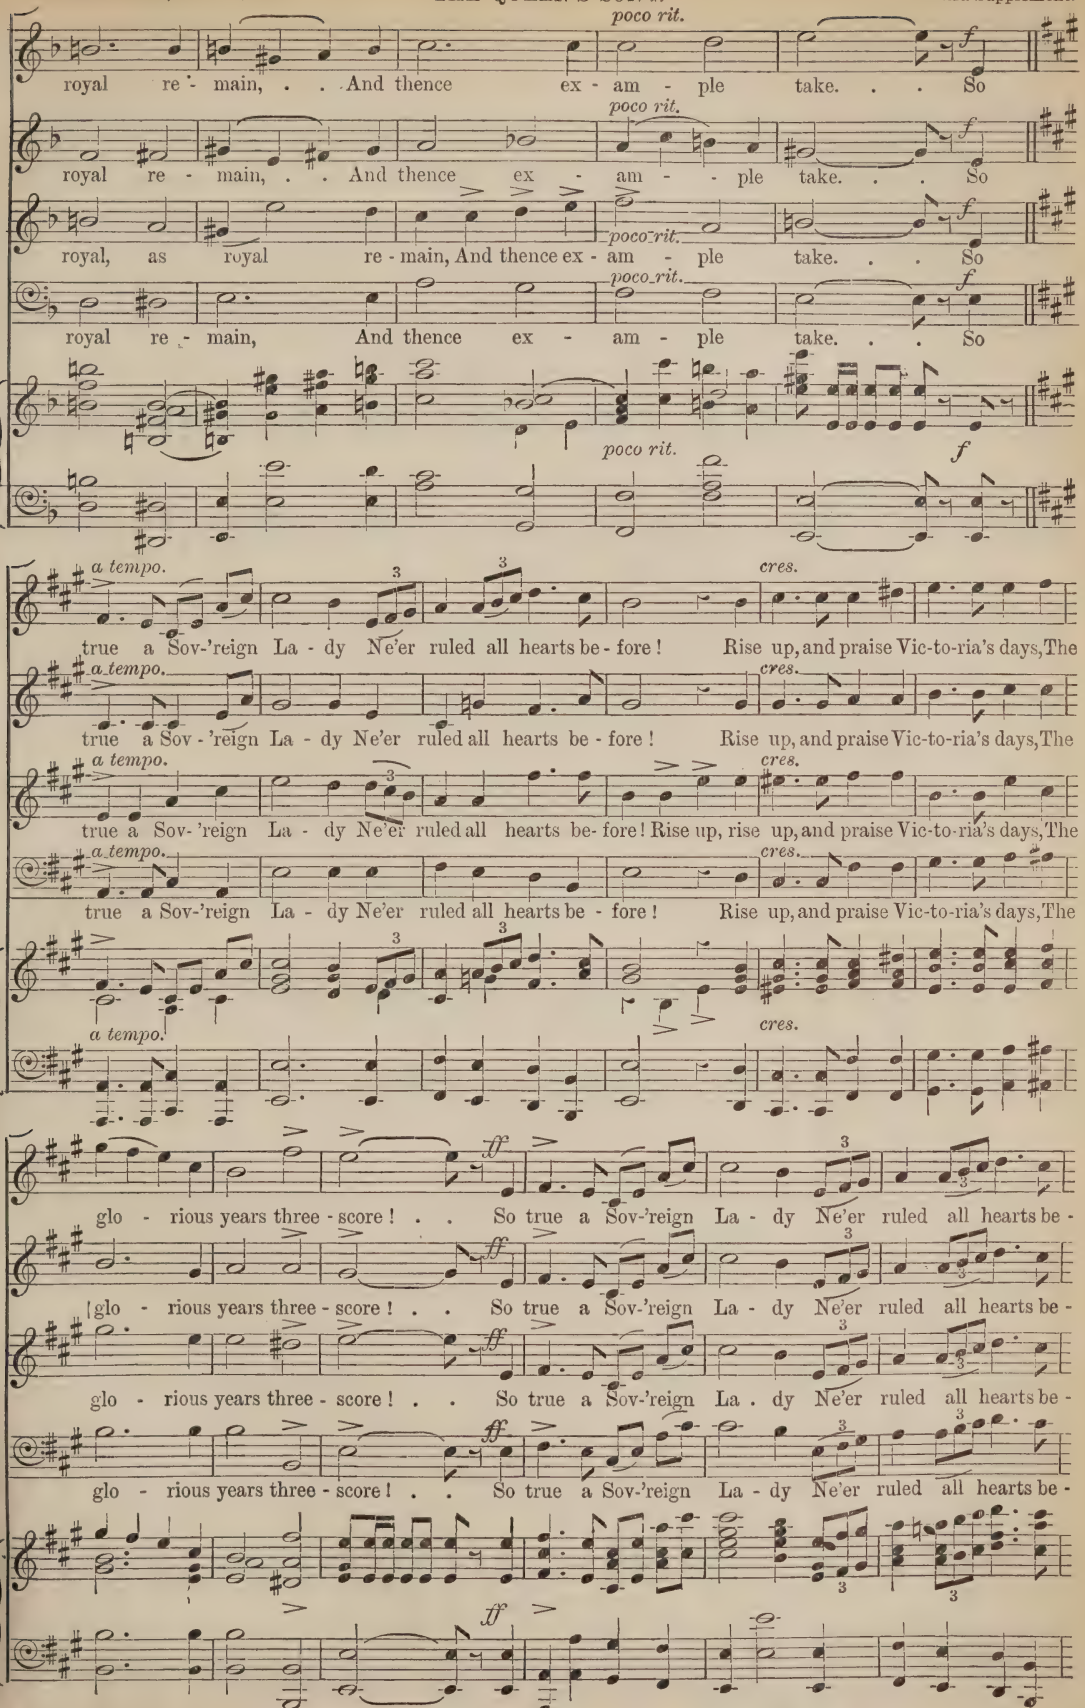


mf



- bound - ed We raise a Na-tion's cheers; So well - be-loved, so No - ble Ere now was no-where

mf



Orchestral Parts and Military Band Arrangement in the Press.

Copyright, 1897, by Novello, Ewer and Co.

cres.
poco rit.
a tempo.
f seen; Hail'd let Her be till Sky and Sea Respond "God save the Queen!" So true a Sov'reign seen; Hail'd let Her be . . till Sky and Sea Respond "God save the Queen!" So true a Sov'reign seen; Hail'd let Her be till Sky and Sea Respond "God save the Queen!" So true a Sov'reign
seen; Hail'd let Her be . . till Sky and Sea Respond "God save the Queen!" So true a Sov'reign
La - dy Ne'er ruled all . . hearts be - fore! Rise up, and praise Vic - to - ria's days, The glo - rious
La - dy Ne'er ruled all hearts be - fore! Rise up, and praise Vic - to - ria's days, The glo - rious
La - dy Ne'er ruled all hearts be - fore! Rise up, rise up, and praise Vic - to - ria's days, The glo - rious
La - dy Ne'er ruled all hearts be - fore! Rise up, and praise Vic - to - ria's days, The glo - rious
ff
years three - score! . . So true a Sov'reign La - dy Ne'er ruled all hearts be - fore! Rise years three - score! . . So true a Sov'reign La - dy Ne'er ruled all hearts be - fore! Rise years three - score! . . So true a Sov'reign La - dy Ne'er ruled all hearts be - fore! Rise up, and years three - score! . . So true a Sov'reign La - dy Ne'er ruled all hearts be - fore! Rise up, and days, . . .

più lento.
up, rise up, and praise Vic - to - ria's days, Vic-to-ria's days, The glorious years three - up, and praise, and praise . . . Vic-to-ria's days, The glorious years three - praise . . . Vic - to - ria's days, Vic - to - ria's days, The glorious years three - praise Vic - to - ria's days, Vic - to - ria's days, The glorious years three - a tempo.
rit.
- score !
Heaven send Her peace and glo - - ry ! And, when . . a
Heaven send Her peace and glo - - ry ! And, when . . a Heaven send Her peace ! And, when a Heaven send Her
cres.
Ped.

poco rit.
a tempo.
p
Crown . . a - bove— Ful - fil - ling earth's fair sto - - - - -
Crown . . a - bove— Ful - fil - ling earth's fair sto - - - - -
Crown, a Crown . . a - bove— Ful - fil - ling earth's fair sto - - - - - peace . . and glo - ry! And, when . . a Crown a - bove— . . . . .
mf
- ry— Is grant - ed by God's love, Be this His grace to Eng - -
- ry— Is grant - ed by God's love, Be this His grace to Eng - -
. . Is grant - ed by God's love, Be this His trem.
cres.
- land That, for her death - less sake Reign af - ter Reign . . as
- land That, for her deathless sake Reign . . . af - ter Reign . . as royal, . . as
- land That, for her death - less sake Reign af - ter Reign as grace That, for her deathless sake Reign . . af - ter Reign as royal, as

poco rit.
royal re - main, . . And thence ex - am - ple take. . . So royal re - main, . . And thence ex - am - ple take. . . So royal, as royal re - main, And thence ex - am - ple take. . . So royal re - main, And thence ex - am - ple take. . . So
f
a tempo.
cres.
true a Sov-'reign La - dy Ne'er ruled all hearts be - fore ! Rise up, and praise Vic-to-ria's days, The true a Sov - 'reign La - dy Ne'er ruled all hearts be - fore ! Rise up, and praise Vic-to-ria's days, The true a Sov-'reign La - dy Ne'er ruled all hearts be - fore ! Rise up, rise up, and praise Vic-to-ria's days, The true a Sov-'reign La - dy Ne'er ruled all hearts be - fore ! Rise up, and praise Vic-to-ria's days, The
ff glo - rious years three - score ! . . So true a Sov-'reign La - dy Ne'er ruled all hearts be - glo - rious years three - score ! . . So true a Sov-'reign La - dy Ne'er ruled all hearts be - glo - rious years three - score ! . . So true a Sov-'reign La . dy Ne'er ruled all hearts be - glo - rious years three - score ! . . So true a Sov-'reign La - dy Ne'er ruled all hearts be - days,

più lento.
- fore! Rise up, rise up, and praise Vic - to - - ria's days, Vic- to-ria's days, The glo-rious
- fore! Rise up, and praise, and praise . . . Vic - to-ria's days, The glo-rious
- fore! Rise up, and praise . . . Vic-to-ria's days, Vic - to - - ria's days, The glo-rious
- fore! Rise up, and praise Vic - to - ria's days, Vic - to - - ria's days, The glo-rious più lento.
a tempo.
years three - score! Then, o'er Her sub-ject Wa - ters, Her Realm, Her wave-link'd Lands, On Britain's sons and daugh - ters, And o'er Her sub-ject Wa - ters, Her Realm, Her wave-link'd Lands, On Britain's sons . . and daugh - ters, And o'er Her sub-ject Wa - ters, Her Realm, Her wave-link'd Lands, On Britain's sons and daugh - ters, And o'er Her sub-ject Wa - ters, Her Realm, Her wave-link'd Lands, On Britain's sons and daugh - ters, And cres.

mf la- bours of their hands, Sweet sure - ty, strength, and jus - tice Shall dwell, as now hath been, And la- bours of their hands, Sweet sure - ty, strength, and jus - tice Shall dwell, as now hath been, And God a - la- bours of their hands, Sweet sure- ty, strength, and jus - tice Shall dwell, as now hath been, And God a - poco rit.
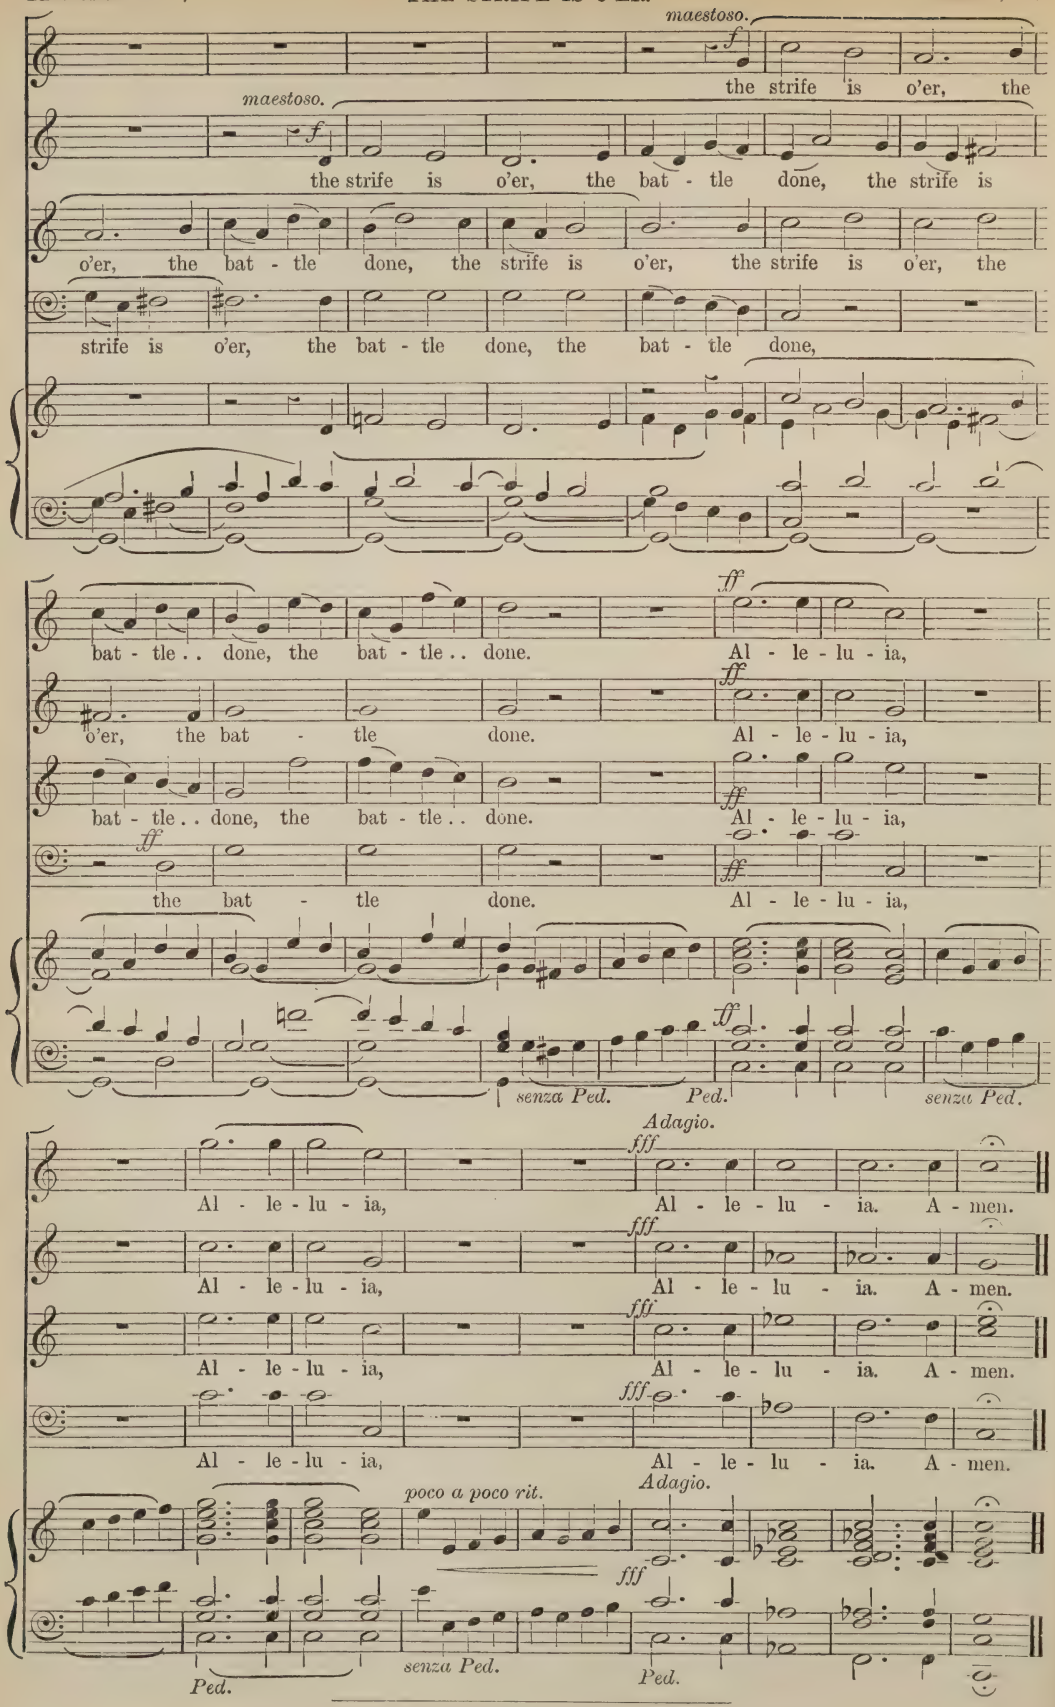
a tempo.
f
God above, this Isle will love, Who loved and saved our Queen. . . So true a Sov -'reign
- bove, . . this Isle will love, Who loved and saved our Queen. . . So true a Sov - 'reign
God a-bove, this Isle will love, Who loved and saved our Queen. . . So true a Sov -'reign
- bove, . . this Isle will love, Who loved and saved our Queen. . . So true a Sov -'reign
La - dy Ne'er ruled all . . hearts be - fore! Rise up, and praise Vic - to - ria's days, The glo - rious
La - dy Ne'er ruled all hearts be - fore! Rise up, and praise Vic - to - ria's days, The glo - rious
La - dy Ne'er ruled all hearts be-fore! Rise up, rise up, and praise Vic - to - ria's days, The glo - rious
La - dy Ne'er ruled all hearts be - fore! Rise up, and praise Vic - to - ria's days, The glo - rious

THE QUEEN'S SONG.



Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 963, price 2*d*.
And as a Trio for Female Voices (S.S.A.), price 3*d*.

O let the song of praise be sung, O let the song of
O let the song of praise be sung, O let the song of O let the song of praise be sung, O let the song of song . . . . of praise be sung, ... O let the song of ff
♩ = 120.
praise . . be sung. Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - - ia.
praise be sung. Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - - ia.
praise be sung. Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - - ia.
praise . . be sung. Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - - ia.
f Basses.
Death's mightiest powers have done their worst, And

ff ♩ = 76.
Let shouts of praise and
Let shouts of praise and
Let shouts of praise and
Je - sus .. hath His foes dis - pers'd;
Let shouts of praise and ♩ = 76.
joy out - burst, let shouts of praise, let shouts of praise,
joy out - burst, let shouts of praise, let shouts of praise,
joy out - burst, let shouts of praise, let shouts of praise,
joy out - burst, let shouts of praise, let shouts of praise, let shouts of praise and joy out - burst. The strife is .. o'er, the strife is o'er, the let shouts of praise and joy out - burst. The strife is o'er, the strife is o'er, the let shouts of praise and joy out - burst. The strife is o'er, the strife is o'er, the let shouts of praise and joy out - burst. The strife is o'er .. the strife is o'er, the accel.

ff
bat - tle done, Al - le - lu - ia,
bat - tle done, Al - le - lu - ia,
bat - tle done, Al - le - lu - ia,
bat - tle done, Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - ia,
Al - le - lu - ia, The strife is o'er, the strife is Al - le - lu - ia, The strife is o'er, the strife is Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - ia, The strife is o'er, the strife is Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - ia, The strife is o'er, the strife is o'er, the bat - - tle done,
o'er, the bat - tle done,
maestoso.
f o'er, the bat - tle done, maestoso. the strife is o'er, the bat - tle done, the strife is o'er, the bat - tle . . done, the maestoso.

f
the strife is o'er, the maestoso.
f
the strife is o'er, the bat - tle done, the strife is o'er, the bat - tle done, the strife is o'er, the strife is o'er, the strife is o'er, the bat - tle done, the bat - tle done,
ff
bat - tle . . done, the bat - tle . . done. Al - le - lu - ia, o'er, the bat - tle done. Al - le - lu - ia, bat - tle . . done, the bat - tle . . done. Al - le - lu - ia,
ff
the bat - tle done. Al - le - lu - ia, senza Ped. Ped. senza Ped.
Adagio.
fff
Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - ia. A - men.
Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - ia. A - men.
Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - ia. A - men.
Al - le - lu - ia, Al - le - lu - ia. A - men.
poco a poco rit.
Adagio.
fff
Ped. senza Ped. Ped.

Castille," "Satanella," and "Lily of Killarney." In 1864 the undertaking collapsed. In 1869 Mr. Gye and Mr. Mapleson joined their forces with satisfactory results. The first opera by Wagner performed in this country was the "Flying Dutchman," which was given in 1870, under the conductorship of Signor Arditi, at Drury Lane, where a disastrous season was given under the management of Mr. George Wood. In 1871 Messrs. Gye and Mapleson dissolved partnership, the latter taking Drury Lane. The next year "Tannhäuser" and Verdi's "Aïda" were produced. Carl Rosa held his first London season at the Princess's Theatre in the autumn of 1875, and this company had subsequently produced Cowen's "Pauline" (1876), "Esmeralda" and "Nadeshda" (Goring Thomas), "Colomba" and "The Troubadour" (Mackenzie), "The Canterbury Pilgrims" and "The Veiled Prophet" (Stanford), "Nordisa" (Corder), and "Jeanie Deans" (MacCunn). Sullivan's "Ivanhoe" was produced in 1891, at what is now known as the Palace Theatre, and achieved the longest and most brilliant run ever associated with serious opera in England. The lecturer then reviewed the later schools of Verdi, Ponchielli, and Boïto, making special reference to Ponchielli's "Gioconda," which Mr. Ernest brought out in 1883, and which had exerted a powerful influence over the composers of the young Italian school of to-day. A brief sketch was given of the unhappy operatic struggles which preceded the revival of opera under the management of the late Sir Augustus Harris, the introduction of Wagner's music-dramas, and those of the modern Italian school. In conclusion, the lecturer said it would be idle to speculate on the consequences of the loss of Sir Augustus Harris. It was true that the institution which he restored to life still existed, and, for the time being, rested upon a sufficiently firm basis to engender the belief that it would continue to flourish.

MUSICAL ASSOCIATION.

On the 9th ult. Dr. Frederick Iliffe, organist of St. John's College, Oxford, read before the members of the Musical Association a remarkably able paper on "The Construction as to Form of John Sebastian Bach's Forty-eight Preludes." After remarking that nowhere in the whole range of music was there a collection of pieces standing on a level with Bach's "Forty-eight Preludes and Fugues," and briefly referring to the dates and object of their composition, the lecturer divided the Preludes into seven groups, the first of which he said obviously owed their existence to Bach's gift for and love of preludising. These were Nos. 1, 2, 5, 6, 11, 15, and 27. Group 2 were attributed to Bach's love of fugal and imitation work, and consisted of Nos. 4, 7, 9, 12, 13, 14, 18, 19, 20, 23, 24, 25, 28, 31, 32, 34, 35, 37, 40, 41, and 43. In Group 3 were those built up with Blocks of work, which as the movement proceeded were bodily transplanted into attendant keys, with more or less episodal matter between each appearance. Such were Nos. 3, 20, 35, 41, 44, 46, and 48. It would be observed that Nos. 20, 35, and 41 were also included in the fugal and imitative group. In Group 4 were placed those which might be said to fall under the head of a "Cantilena accompanied," Nos. 8, 10, and 16. Group 5 contained notable experiments in structure, and were Nos. 3, 21, 22, 28, 38, 46, 47, and 48. Group 6 embraced those in early sonata form, Nos. 26, 33, 34, 39, and 42. Group 7 comprised those prophetic of the splendour of the modern sonata form, and were Nos. 29, 36, and 45. There was still one Prelude unassigned. It was No. 17, which was most probably developed from the germ of a dance movement. The lecturer then drew the attention of his audience to early examples of sonata form, bringing forward a "Corrente" by Domenico Zipoli, composed in 1716, an Adagio from Galuppi's Sonata in D, and a movement of Bach called "Air," from the French Suite (No. 4, in E flat). In these specimens there was no pronounced entry of what was now termed the second subject proper, but in each case there was for some bars a stress laid on the complimentary key—i.e., the dominant—and in the second part of the movement those bars were transplanted into the tonic key. The lecturer showed that Bach had pursued a similar method in the Preludes in group 6. It seemed pretty clear that the three earliest editions were printed at Zurich, Bonn, and Leipzig respectively, in 1800 and 1801. The first English edition was printed through Wesley's influence, by Robert Birchall, in 1810, and was edited by Wesley and Horn. The interest of the paper was considerably enhanced by the admirable manner in which the lecturer showed on the pianoforte the harmonic structure of the Preludes, the mere sequence of the chords on which the movements were based possessing in many instances much musical charm.

During the discussion Mr. Prout, who occupied the chair, said that Bach was the idol of his adoration, and that, in his estimation, the Forty-eight Preludes and Fugues were the musician's Bible. Referring to Bach's system of polyphony, Mr. Prout thought that Bach's plan was to get his harmonic progressions right and to see that each part possessed melodious interest, and then to let the progression of the counterpoint take care of itself. Dr. Iliffe's harmonic outlines were most happy in conception, but he thought that a group might have been given to those Preludes which were developed from a single germ, which in some cases consisted of a few notes. Dr. Parry, being invited to say "a few words," replied that he worshipped Bach as much as any man, but that a few words on such a subject were impossible. He, however, would warn students not to fall into the common error of thinking that a few examples showed the musical tendency of a certain period; at least four or five hundred examples were necessary to justify such deductions. Other speakers were Dr. Maclean, Dr. Pearce, and Dr. Vincent.

THE VIENNA SCHUBERT CELEBRATIONS.

The birth-centenary of Franz Schubert, which occurred on January 31, was celebrated in the Austrian capital, his native place, by all classes of society in Concert and other performances extending over more than a week. We can only refer here to the leading features of the Festival, if so it may be called, though there was a conspicuous absence of any central organisation, which would have rendered the proceedings far more imposing and the occasion more of a truly national one. On the eve of the anniversary a festal performance was given at the Imperial Opera of "Der häusliche Krieg" and the Singspiel "Der vierjährige Posten." The former, first produced here in 1861, was preceded by the Overture to "Rosamunde," and met with an excellent performance under Court-Capellmeister Fuchs's direction, with Mesdames Sedlmair, Forster, and Renard, and Herr Ritter in the principal parts. The choruses, which in this work form an essential element, produced an admirable effect. "Der vierjährige Posten" (the words by the poet Koerner) had been skilfully adapted by Dr. Robert Hirschfeld, with some numbers added from others of Schubert's compositions, and had in this form been produced some time since at Dresden, but met with its first performance here on this occasion. It, too, was well given, with Fräulein Abendroth, Herren Dippel and Hesch in leading parts. The proceedings on the birth-anniversary proper opened with the performance, at the Liechtenthal Church, of the Mass in F major, by the Schubertbund and the Ladies' Choir; and there was also a procession by the Saengerbund of Lower Austria, and other societies, to the composer's monument in the Stadt-park, on which wreaths and emblems were deposited. In the afternoon the first grand festal Concert took place in the hall of the Musikverein, in which the Philharmonic orchestra, under Dr. Hans Richter; the choral society of the Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde, under Herr R. von Perger, and the Vienna Maennergesang-Verein took part. The programme included the "Unfinished" Symphony, the Overture to "Fierrebras," the choral numbers "Nur wer die Sehnsucht kennt," the "Gondelfahrer," the "Gesang der Geister," and the "Ständchen" (for female voices only). The second "Fest-concert," held at the Musikverein on the 2nd ult., had been organised by the Schubertbund, a truly excellent choral society, reinforced on this occasion by the Singakademie and Female Teachers' Choir, the conductor being Herr Kirchl. The very lengthy programme included the Overture to "Die Zauberharfe," excerpts from "Rosamunde," Miriam's "Siegesgesang," and many other choral numbers, amongst them, curiously enough in the case of so prolific a composer as Schubert, one or two which had also formed part of the preceding Concert. A feature on this occasion was the performance, on the part of Fräulein Caroline Geisler-Schubert, a grand-niece of the composer, of the grand Sonata in G. On the 4th ult. a special Schubert Chamber Concert was given, in the small hall of the Musikverein, by the famous quartet parties of Herren Hellmesberger and Rosé, when, amongst others, the Quartets in D minor and G major obtained a hearing. Herr Gustav Walter, who long since has made the interpretation of Schubert's Lieder his special province, was the vocalist. On the same day a "People's Concert" had been organised by Dr. Felix Kraus, one of the few truly "popular" undertakings on a large scale of the series taking place in the great hall of the Musikverein, which was completely filled. In the latter the Hellmesberger Quartet likewise took part, and the audience were most enthusiastic. At the Conservatorium a performance took place, on the 8th ult., under the direction of Dr. Fuchs. Here a number of works were produced which had seldom or never been heard in public before, such as the Overture in E minor, a duet from "Fierrebras," scenes from the unfinished opera "Adrast," some minuets, "Deutsche Tänze," and other numbers. Amongst celebrations of a more intimate character may be mentioned one taking place at the house, No. 54, Nussdorfer Strasse, where the composer was born, and the art-loving owner of which, Herr Rudolf Wittmann, gave a festal entertainment on the 3rd ult. Amongst those taking part were members of the Schubertbund and of the Berlin Liedertafel, while Herr Niggli, of Aarau, the well-known musical author, contributed a number of pianoforte pieces. The most interesting and the most worthy of all these various commemorations, however, has been the Schubert Exhibition, which, relatively complete as it is, and most admirably arranged, continues to form a source of attraction and delight to the numerous music-lovers visiting the Austrian capital.

REVIEWS.

The Cross of Christ. Cantata. For Lent and Passiontide. The words selected from the Holy Scriptures, interspersed with appropriate hymns by W. Maurice Adams. The music composed by Thomas Adams.

[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

The multiplication of short cantatas suitable for the Church's seasons is eminently desirable, and the work by Mr. Adams is excellently designed to fulfil the requirements of the large majority of congregations. The words have been selected with good judgment, and the melodies of the hymn tunes, in which it is intended the congregation should join, are such as are quickly learnt by ear. Effective use has also been made of the ancient tonalities. The first hymn tune is "Audi benigne Conditor," and the following chorus for tenors and basses, "He shall give His angels charge over thee," is based upon the eighth tone (Rouen Mediation), fifth ending. The next number, "God is faithful," is written for soprano solo and chorus, and is of a flowing and graceful character. Two hymns, and a recitative for a bass voice, bring the work to the point where it is suggested an address should be given. After this the music is resumed by an impressively harmonised hymn, and a very graceful duet for soprano and tenor, "God will provide," occurs shortly afterwards. Another effective number is a quartet for male voices, "Come unto me." The favourite lines "Nearer, my God, to Thee," are set in an appropriately devotional manner for soprano and tenor soli and chorus, and the work concludes with a hymn of a bright character. The part-writing is simple, but possesses musical interest, and is calculated to sustain the attention of the choristers, while at the same time it will present no difficulties to choirs of average attainments.

Victoria; or, the Bard's Prophecy. A Dramatic Cantata for soli and chorus, with orchestral accompaniment. The words written by the Rev. Charles Kent. The music composed by G. F. Huntley.

[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

This cantata has been especially written for performance by a choir of 4,500 voices at the Crystal Palace, on May 8 next, when will take place what will doubtless prove one of the most memorable celebrations of the unique reign of our Queen. These circumstances have to be taken into consideration in reviewing this cantata, for it is obvious that they dictate very distinctly the character both of the words and of the music. The former must be patriotic in sentiment, and the latter must be of a kind that will prove effective when executed by an exceptionally large body of vocalists. Above all, there must be bold and impressive contrast. How fully these requirements have been met can only be entirely estimated when the music has been heard under the conditions for which it was written, but it may at once be said that both librettist and composer seem to have keenly felt the peculiar needs they were called upon to supply, and it may be added that in several instances they have undoubtedly succeeded. No finer contrast could be presented in a nation's history than the comparison presented by the stalwart Britons, under their heroic Queen Boadicea, struggling against the Roman invader, and the imperial greatness our country has acquired in the reign of our present Queen. This appreciation of contrast is also shown in the sentiment of the individual numbers, and also in the variation of metre. There is, moreover, in some of the lines a genuine ring of patriotism which should stir the pulse of every Englishman, as in the following:—

England, glorious England,
Bright jewel of the sea,
Across the trackless foam have sailed
Thy sons to victory;
Unloos'd the chains of slavery
From many a fetter'd hand,
And banished superstition
From many a darkened land.
Glorious is thy mission,
Immortal, born on high—
The angels strike their harps of gold
And laud thee thro' the sky.

The work opens after a few bars of instrumental introduction with a semi-chorus for soprano and alto, who represent the women and children calling upon the warriors to awake as the foe is in sight. This leads into an animated full chorus and general call to arms. The women and children subsequently sing a prayerful number of melodious character, chiefly written in two-part harmony, and the arrival of Boadicea again provides an admirable contrast. The part of the outraged Queen is set for a mezzo-soprano, and clever use is made of the alternation of common and triple time in the music in her agitated recital of the wrongs she has suffered from the invaders. An impressive chorus for tenors and basses in unison relates the mystic rites of the Druids, and is followed by "The Bard's Prophecy," which is set as a tenor solo with harp accompaniment. This number is written in a flowing style and very effectively laid out for the voice. The battle-cry of the Romans, "Cæsar et Victoria," is heard in the distance and is followed by several dramatic numbers, which bring the first part to an effective close. Part two opens with the "Commemoration Festival of Queen Victoria's long reign," the second number in which will probably prove one of the most popular of the work, being a chorus in unison for female voices in tempo di gavotta. The introduction of St. George, assigned to a bass voice, who announces that "England's island story has won approval in the realms above," infuses new interest into the development, and leads to the chorus "England, glorious England," the most important choral number of the work, and in which the composer has manifestly put forth his full strength. The result is a movement which, by reason of the appropriateness of the means employed, appeals to the musician, and from the boldness of its progressions should prove equally attractive to the uncultured listener. Some choral numbers for female voices follow, and effectively prepare the way for the final chorus. The first bar of the introduction to this gives the figures 1897—that is to say, the melody consists of the keynote followed by its octave, ninth, and seventh. By a curious coincidence these notes are practically identical with the opening of the national anthem, an accident of which excellent use is made in the subsequent choral number. Although the chief part of the music is of a diatonic character, and frequent use is made of unison, the part-writing possesses much independence, and musician-like recourse is frequently made to contrapuntal devices, notably in the chorus "England, glorious England," in which a ground bass is impressively reiterated for sixteen bars. It is hardly necessary to add that the work is admirably suited to choral societies, both small and great, by whom its performance this year would be peculiarly appropriate and could scarcely fail to be attractive.

Victoria—Our Queen! March for full orchestra. By John E. West.
Imperial March. By Edward Elgar. Op. 32.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

Joyous marches will, of course, be much in demand as the "Diamond" celebrations approach, and the attention of musical directors may be drawn to the two examples above-mentioned. The first is founded on themes from the late Sir Joseph Barnby's "Patriotic" chorus and is arranged for pianoforte solo. The brief introduction savours of Wagner in a slight degree, but the spirited principal theme, in E flat, is bold and thoroughly English in character. Later on the music becomes more elaborate, but although clear in design and not difficult to play, the March comes to a most jubilant and triumphant conclusion.

Mr. Elgar's March is wholly original, and is well worthy of the composer, who wrote two of the most successful works produced at last year's autumnal festivals. It is in the key of B flat and is in strict march form—that is to say, a principal section, followed by a so-called trio in the subdominant key, and then a recapitulation. Very strong rhythm is preserved throughout, and the style is distinctly modern and free, but without lawlessness. The march would assuredly prove effective if rendered by an orchestra, the present edition being for pianoforte solo only.

The Queen's Song. By Eaton Faning.
All hail the Glorious Reign. By Frederic H. Cowen.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

With words supplied by such an eloquent poet as Sir Edwin Arnold, it would have been strange indeed if Mr. Eaton Faning had failed to do justice to his reputation, and he has certainly sustained it in the present instance. The two compositions above-named form Nos. 764 and 778 of Novello's Part-Song Book. The first is very vigorous, and the principal refrain is most inspiriting. There is an alternative section of a more placid and peaceful nature, and the words of this are prayerful.

Mr. Cowen's composition is styled a Commemoration Ode for chorus and orchestra, or for unaccompanied chorus, the joyous words being from the pen of Mr. Clifton Bingham. The piece is very similar in character to the last-named, and the two might well be bracketted in programmes of orchestral concerts.

Twelve Hymns with Tunes. Suitable for use at Services held in commemoration of the Queen's long reign.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

This is a handy little publication in ordinary hymn-book size, and it should be specially noted that the words and music are, in most instances, new. The verses are by esteemed authors, including the Rev. S. Baring-Gould, the Rev. W. J. Ferrar, Mr. Francis T. Palgrave, the Rev. Bernard Reynolds, and the very Rev. the Dean of Rochester. Some of them are beautiful in idea and expression, but we will not be invidious and make comparisons. With regard to the music, it would be difficult to collect a stronger list of names. Among the most effective tunes are those to "Children, send a song of praise," by C. H. Lloyd; "English hearts and English voices," by Walter Parratt; "From the deep heart of our people," by A. C. Mackenzie, somewhat in the olden style; "Happy children we have been," by Arthur Sullivan; "Let all the land with one accord," by Haydn Keeton; and "O King of kings," by J. F. Bridge. These tunes are some of the best, but all are good, and the whole series might well be sung at the Services of song which are likely to be numerous in June next. The other composers included are Joseph Barnby, Battison Haynes, G. C. Martin, and J. H. Maunder.

Of Winter Blossoms. Song. Words by Mrs. Fuller Maitland. Music by Catherine Adelaide Ranken.
[E. Ascherberg and Co.]

Some poetical and dainty lines have been set in a most pleasing and sympathetic manner in this song, which may be warmly recommended to cultured soprano and tenor vocalists. The little ditty is pre-eminently one to which the quotation "Short and sweet," in its best sense, may be aptly applied.

Caprice for Pianoforte and Violin (or Flute). By Kate Willis. [Charles Woolhouse.]

Miss Willis has written a melodious Andante which amateur violinists, with a moderate amount of executive facility, will find a pleasing medium for the display of their power of expression and skill. The pianoforte part is simple, but by no means devoid of interest.

MUSIC IN BIRMINGHAM.

(From our own Correspondent).

The Festival Choral Society gave, on the 4th ult., Dvorák's dramatic cantata "The Spectre's Bride," Dr. Hubert Parry's exquisite choral setting of Milton's Ode "Blest Pair of Sirens," and Schumann's Pianoforte Concerto in A minor (Op. 54). Dr. C. Swinnerton Heap appeared on that occasion in a dual capacity—that of conductor and pianist. The revival of "The Spectre's Bride," after a lapse of eleven years, came upon the audience as a revelation, and was followed with the keenest interest. The performance was a magnificent one and showed the most careful preparation on all sides. The principals—Miss Ella Russell, Mr. Edward Branscombe, and Mr. Bantock Pierpoint — discharged their duties with the utmost satisfaction. Dr. Parry's "Blest Pair of Sirens" was rendered by the choir with wonderful tone-power and precision, and, in my opinion, received an even better rendering than at the Festival of 1891. Dr. Heap played the Pianoforte Concerto with marked intelligence and faultless technique, the orchestral accompaniments being directed by Mr. Fred. Ward.

Mr. Stockley's Orchestral Concert, which took place on the 12th ult., included in its programme Beethoven's Symphony in C minor, the "Tannhäuser" Overture, Scharwenka's "Andante Religioso," Overture to "Athalie," a Romance for small orchestra by Mr. E. W. Rickett, a local musician, and Raff's Suite (Op. 200) for pianoforte and orchestra. The Romance is scored for strings, flutes, oboes, clarinets, bassoons, and four horns, and shows considerable talent in the direction of orchestral colouring; but the composition is too restless in character, too impetuous, as if the composer intended to put a life's history into a short form. Dr. Winn played the Cavatina and the Gavotte from the Suite by Raff with scholarly conception. Mr. Meacham presided at the organ.

The Midland Musical Society gave, under Mr. H. M. Stevenson's conductorship, a praiseworthy performance of Mendelssohn's "St. Paul," which has not been heard here for many years. The performance took place in the Town Hall, on the 13th ult., and attracted a large and popular audience. The principals were Miss Maggie Jaques, Mr. Samuel Roper, Mr. William Evans, and Miss Minnie Hackett. Mr. George Halliley presided at the organ in place of Mr. C. W. Perkins, who has been indisposed for some time past and is still confined to his house.

Messrs. Harrison's third popular Concert of the current series was given in the Town Hall, on the 15th ult. The artists were Miss Ada Crossley, Mr. Edward Lloyd, and Mr. Watkin Mills, the Royal Welsh Ladies' Choir, Mr. Mark Hambourg (pianoforte). Mr. W. Henley (violin), Mr. Jean Gérardy (violoncello), and Mr. Speaight, accompanist.

MUSIC IN BRISTOL.

(From our own Correspondent.)

St. Phillip's Choral Society gave its annual Concert on the 11th ult., when it brought forward Van Bree's cantata "St. Cecilia's Day," the tuneful numbers of which were well sung. Miss Marion Harris was the soloist and Mr. C. R. Fothergill, the conductor.

Mr. Harold Bernard, a skilful young local violinist, gave a Concert on the 8th ult. He was assisted by Mr. F. S. Gardner, Mr. Percy Lewis, and Mr. G. F. Blanchard. The concerted works performed were Schumann's Quartet in E flat (Op. 47) and Raff's Trio (Op. 102) for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello. Instrumental solos and songs by Miss Lucile Hill (accompanied by Mr. Rickman) completed the programme.

Miss Lock's second Chamber Concert of the season, on the 15th ult., was a striking artistic success. The works performed were Mendelssohn's Quartet in E flat (Op. 44, No. 3) for strings, Haydn's Quartet in D minor (Op. 76, No. 2), and Beethoven's Sonata in A (Op. 69) for violoncello and pianoforte. The executants were Messrs. Carrington, Duys, Wetten, Van Gelder, and Miss Lock. Mr. Ernest Young sang compositions by Mr. J. L. Roeckel, who accompanied them.

At Radstock, on January 27, a fairly good performance was given of the first and second parts of Haydn's "Creation," by the Choral Society of that town, Mr. H. T. Sims being the conductor. Miss Cromey and Mr. C. E. Poole sang the soprano and bass solos with clearness and taste; but owing to the unaccountable absence of Mr. Wetten, the principal tenor, for whom there was no substitute, the performance was in a measure spoiled.

A new opera, entitled "The lady of Bayonne," which proved to be of more than average merit, was produced at the Cheltenham Theatre, on the 9th ult. The libretto by Dr. Macgowan is powerful and well written, whilst the music composed by Dr. Dyer is melodious, scholarly, and dramatic. In accordance with modern custom, the music is based on representative themes, and by his varied treatment of the same the composer displays great ingenuity and sound musicianship. Two melodic gems—namely, a quartet and a love duet—also prove him to be a melodist of no mean order. The opera would doubtless be improved by the addition of a chorus; still, it is a work of considerable power and charm and deserves recognition as a high example of native art. The performance, though not faultless, was, on the whole, good. The characters were sustained by Messrs. D'Arcy de Ferrars, H. C. Portway, H. Taylor, Miss V. Vandeleur, and Mrs. Ferguson, and an excellent orchestra, led by Mr. Lewis Hann, performed its duties well under the composer's direction.

MUSIC IN DUBLIN.

(From our own Correspondent.)

"Feis-Ceoil," the Irish Musical Festival, has emerged from the preliminary into the positive stage of existence. The 15th ult., having been the last day for receiving works for the composers' competitions, brought a large number of manuscripts into the hands of the secretaries. Cantatas, overtures, string and vocal quartets, part-songs, solo compositions—in fact, all classes for which prizes were offered are forthcoming.

The Royal Dublin Society's prize of £50 for the best choir heads the prize list, and most of the £430 offered in prizes has been subscribed by individual donors.

The Dublin Musical Society performed Sullivan's "Golden Legend," at the Royal University, on the 2nd ult. The principal vocalists were Miss Regina de Sales, Madame Alice Lamb, Mr. James Gawthrop, and Mr. Robert Grice, who took the place of Mr. Andrew Black, who was unable to fulfil his engagement. A very beautiful performance of the contemporary master's work was supplemented by his March movement from "Henry VIII.," admirably played by the band, and his song, "Thou'rt passing hence," given by Mr. Grice with dramatic fervour; also songs from Miss de Sales and Madame Lamb. The band and choir of the Dublin Musical Society were never in better form, and the performance was most creditable to the conductor, Dr. Joseph Smith. Mr. John Horan was organist, and Mr. Arthur Darley led the strings. The same Society announces a non-subscription Concert for the 8th inst., consisting of Haydn's "Creation" and Rossini's "Stabat Mater," with Miss Agnes Molteno, Miss Alex Elsner, Mr. Hirwen Jones, and Mr. Charles Kelly as principal vocalists.

A performance of Haydn's "Creation" was given in St. Michan's Church on the 7th ult., under the direction of Mr. Peter Goodman, with full band and chorus. Miss Rose Byrne, Mr. F. Gilbert, and Mr. L. Mooney were the soloists; Mr. A. Darley, leader of the band, and Mr. C. L. Murray, organist.

At the Royal Dublin Society's weekly Recital of classical chamber music, on the 15th ult., the programme was made up of Beethoven's Quartet in A (Op. 18) for strings, Rubinstein's Sonata in G major (Op. 13, No. 1) for pianoforte and violin, and Dvorák's Quartet in E flat (Op. 87) for pianoforte and strings. The executants were Signor Papini, Mr. A. Darley, Mr. Grisard, Herr Bast, and Signor Esposito.

Dr. J. C. Culwick lectured before the National Literary Society, on the 15th ult., on the "Distinctive characteristics of Irish Music." The lecturer, who was assisted in his illustrations by Mrs. Culwick and Miss Rose Byrne, protested against the wanton "improvement" of those sacred relics of antiquity, the songs of our dead forefathers.

Madame Jeanie Rosse held her annual Concert at the Antient Concert Rooms, on the 6th ult., when her Ladies' Choral Society produced a cantata, entitled "The Fishermaidens."

The University of Dublin Choral Society announced a Mendelssohn Concert to take place in the Examination Hall, Trinity College, on the 27th ult. (too late for notice), and to include the unfinished opera "Lorelei" and some of the composer's least known open-air part-songs, under the direction of Mr. Charles G. Marchant.

MUSIC IN DUNDEE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

On the 3rd ult. the third and last of the present series of Messrs. Paterson, Sons and Co.'s Scottish Orchestral Concerts was given, under the conductorship of Mr. Kes, and was one of the finest Concerts ever heard in Dundee. The chief orchestral piece was the "Pathétique" Symphony in B minor by Tschaïkowsky, and the programme also included Schubert's "Rosamunde" music, the Overture to "The Flying Dutchman," and an excerpt from "Das Rheingold." Mr. Willy Hess appeared as solo violinist, and made a great impression by his performance of Spohr's Concerto (No. 9) and Saint-Saëns's Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso.

An Orchestral Concert was given on the 9th ult. by the Scottish Musical Society, with Mr. David Stephen as conductor.

MUSIC IN EAST ANGLIA.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The fifty-first Concert of that flourishing vocal society, the Norwich "Gate House" Choir, came off in Noverre's Room on the 5th ult. Mozart's Mass (No. 3, in F) was the principal work for the choir, and a successful rendering may be recorded, thanks to the energy of Mr. Kingston Rudd, who has conducted the Society almost from its inception. The solos were sung with much care and taste by Miss Stannard, Miss Annie White, Mr. S. H. Burton, and Mr. A. T. Springall, all members of the choir. Heretofore the conductor has been satisfied, when producing similar works to the Mass in question, with pianoforte and harmonium accompaniment; but on this occasion a happy innovation was made, and the work was produced as written, with the first and second violin, violoncello, double-bass, and organ accompaniment, played by Mr. F. W. B. Noverre, Miss Florence White, Rev. Boyton Smith, Mr. G. Kirby, and Dr. Bunnett, with Miss Josephine Woodrow at the pianoforte, so that visitors had the opportunity of hearing the work as the composer originally intended. Further pieces for the voices were Bishop's "Daughter of error" (solo by Mrs. E. Nuthall), Hatton's "Ever True," and Evans's spirited chorus "A wet sheet and a flowing sea," while songs were sung by Miss de Caux, Mrs. J. C. Boswell, and Mr. F. T. Moffitt. Following the plan adopted some years since of engaging some prominent professional instrumentalist for their Concerts, the committee brought down Miss Fanny Davies for their fifty-first Concert, and that lady delighted the large audience by the true artistic taste brought to bear upon excerpts from Schumann, Brahms, Mendelssohn, Chopin, and Rubinstein.

The oldest Musical Society in Norwich, the Philharmonic, appeared before the public for the ninety-second time on the 17th ult., conducted, as usual, by Dr. Horace Hill, and led by Mr. F. W. B. Noverre. The veteran instrumental Society appears to have taken a new lease of life, the last five or six Concerts having certainly shown an all-round improvement. An excellent performance of Beethoven's Symphony, No. 1, opened the Concert, followed later by Macfarren's Overture to "Robin Hood," Mozart's Overture to "La Clemenza di Tito," and three very taking pieces for strings by Purcell. A rising local amateur, Mr. E. Lake, played a clarinet solo in good style, while a wind quintet by Onslow, for flute, clarinet, oboe, horn, and bassoon, was an interesting novelty, splendidly played by Messrs. Waters, Coe, Davies, Smith, and Hall, the two first-named being members of the Society and the other three being importations from town. Vocal solos and duets were sung by Miss A. Ribolla and Mr. S. Ribolla.

The Glee Club formed from the voluntary choir singing at the special Sunday evening services held in the Nave of Norwich Cathedral gave its annual Concert, in Noverre's Rooms, on the 15th ult. Conducted by Mr. H. J. Brookes, the members gave a satisfactory rendering of several part-songs, while Miss Lefroy, Mr. S. Barton, Mr. S. H. Burton, and Mr. Brockbank were responsible for vocal solos. Miss M. Lefroy was heard with much pleasure in two violin solos, although it must be admitted that Sarasate's "Zapateado" was beyond her powers. Banjo solos were contributed by Captain Langworthy, and Mr. E. Lake played two movements by Niedmann on the clarinet.

Under the direction of Mr. P. H. Chignell, the parish organist, a society was established recently at Kirkley, a suburb of Lowestoft, for the purpose of practising madrigals and part-songs, and on the 9th ult. the members ventured before the public in the Public Hall, Lowestoft. The event proved highly successful and was a source of pleasure to a large audience, the part-singing being a very satisfactory first performance. Mrs. Albert Henning, Miss Evelyn Ray, Mr. Herbert Crimp, and Mr. J. J. Manning formed a capable solo quartet, varying the programme with a miscellaneous selection of songs.

The choir of the Wesleyan Church, Deneside, Great Yarmouth, with the assistance of a few outside friends, gave a praiseworthy rendering of Mendelssohn's 42nd Psalm and other pieces, on the 11th ult., under the conductorship of Mr. J. Easto. Miss Blanchflower, Miss M. Chapman, and Mr. H. Bond sang the solo numbers in the Psalm, Mr. W. M. Chapman presiding at the organ.

The Beccles Orchestral Society gave a successful miscellaneous vocal and instrumental Concert on the 1st ult., conducted by Mr. W. Harvey, the band being led by Mr. Delf.

MUSIC IN EDINBURGH.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The tenth series of Messrs. Paterson's Orchestral Concerts was brought to a close on the 15th ult. The interest attaching to the occasion and to the expected statement of Mr. Paterson, combined with the only appearance this season of Madame Ella Russell, sufficiently accounted for the crowded audience. Mr. Kes and Mr. Sons, his capable leader, came in for their individual share in the enthusiasm of the public. Mr. Paterson's statement revealed no state secret. The deficit has been rather serious this season, but if subscriptions come in the scheme will be carried on next winter. Everything, however, depends on the Society's headquarters in Glasgow.

At the preceding Concert, on the 1st ult., Mr. Kes secured a magnificent rendering of the great C major Symphony, in commemoration of Schubert. The soloist was Mr. Willy Hess, who created an immense sensation by his brilliant playing.

At the last Saturday Popular Orchestral Concert of the season, on the 6th ult., Miss Elsie Mackenzie was much applauded for her singing. Saint-Saëns's Tarantelle for flute and clarinet was played with great skill by Messrs. Halstead and Fawcett, who were warmly recalled.

Mr. Borwick is to appear at the last of Professor Niecks's historical Concerts at the University this month.

The high level of interest and importance at which Professor Niecks has aimed in the programmes of these Concerts was well maintained on the 10th ult., when a selected choir of about fifty voices, under the bâton of the Professor, sang the "Stabat Mater" as set to music by Astorga and by Pergolesi, and also Durante's "Magnificat." If easily understood exigencies made the performance somewhat less excellent than the programme, it must be acknowledged that the large audience had a very fair opportunity of becoming acquainted with the wonderful charm of these works. Miss Marion Brown showed much artistic appreciation of the expressive music assigned to the contralto voice, and Fräulein Martin was almost equally successful in the soprano part. The tenor and bass solos were sustained with great acceptance by Messrs. J. Y. Stronach and P. Glencorse. Mr. A. Scott Jupp contributed a Bach Toccata and a Handel Concerto to the programme.

Lady Hallé, assisted by Miss Olga Néruda, gave a Recital in the Music Hall, on the 10th ult.

A Lecture on "Hungary and its Music" was delivered to the members of the Edinburgh Philosophical Institution and a large audience of the general public in Queen Street Hall, by Mr. Franklin Peterson, on the 9th ult. Vocal and instrumental illustrations were given by Mr. L. A. Guthrie, Miss Lichtenstein, and the lecturer.

MUSIC IN GLASGOW.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The twelfth Choral and Orchestral Union Concert (January 26) should not altogether escape notice. Mr. Leonard Borwick, owing to the sudden death of his father, could not fulfil his engagement. However, Mr. Philip E. Halstead, a local pianist, came bravely to the rescue and once more made his mark—an appearance of really no uncertain merit—in Mozart's Concerto in C minor. He was no less successful in his solos—examples of Stavenhagen at, possibly, his best, and rendered more or less familiar by the composer himself when he last met his many Glasgow friends. On the following Saturday the outstanding feature of the "popular" programme was Schubert's grand Symphony in C major, and Miss Annie Morrison, a promising young vocalist, sang.

The Classical Concert, on the 2nd ult., proved eminently attractive, inasmuch as Beethoven's Seventh Symphony was in the programme, and an old favourite, Mr. Willy Hess, made his welcome appearance as solo violinist. Spohr's Concerto (No. 9) served again to show the high artistic attainments of one of the most popular artists of the day. Goldmark's prelude to "Merlin" was played for the first time in Glasgow, but the work could not be said to have created a favourable impression; and the vocalist of the evening was Miss Florence Oliver, who took the place of Madame Agnes Janson. At the fourteenth Classical Concert, Mr. Maurice Sons, the accomplished leader of the Scottish Orchestra, essayed, with conspicuous success, Dvorák's Concerto, a work which he has long since made his own. Mr. Sons's reception was, it ought to be said, marked by great enthusiasm, renewed again and again after his beautiful performance of Max Bruch's Romance—the one dedicated to the late Herr Heckmann. The Symphony of the evening was Beethoven's No. 8, and Miss Elsie Mackenzie contributed the vocal pieces in a programme which also included the "Tannhäuser" Overture. The conductor's new Symphony was repeated at the Popular Concert on the 13th ult., but renewed acquaintance with the work did not seem to stamp it with the hall-mark of genius. The programme also included Sir A. C. Mackenzie's "Burns" Rhapsody (No. 2). Mr. Daniel Price sang, and Miss Nora Clench was undoubtedly the feature of the evening by reason of her talents as a violinist. The new-comer very promptly aroused keen attention, and more will doubtless soon be heard of her artistic style.

A Beethoven programme signalised the final Concert of the classical series on the 16th ult. The "Ruins of Athens" will, we are afraid, earn a long rest hereabouts, inasmuch as it seemed hardly possible to galvanise any life into its somewhat archaic strains. The Choral Symphony followed, and, in a word, it will suffice to say that in the experience of many amongst the audience the performance was a record one. In both works the Choral Union sang to admiration; the instrumental movements in the Symphony were played with rare artistic care; and both Mr. Kes and Mr. Joseph Bradley, the conductors, earned hearty congratulations on the success of their labours. The soloists of the evening were Miss Taggart (who sang in place of Miss Thudichum at a few hours' notice), Miss Greta Williams, Mr. Lloyd Chandos, and Mr. Daniel Price. The result of the plébiscite, taken at both a classical and a popular Concert, showed that Tschaïkowsky headed the symphonies with his "Pathétique" Symphony, which had 455 votes; Schubert's "Unfinished" registered 447, and Dvorák's "From the New World" 159 marks. Grieg's "Peer Gynt" came first by a long way amongst the Suites. The Overtures to "Tannhäuser," "The Flying Dutchman," and "Die Meistersinger" were the first three favourites in this section. Wagner again headed the "Miscellaneous" pieces with the Introduction to the third act of "Lohengrin." The programme for the last popular Concert, on Saturday evening, the 20th ult., was drawn up largely in accordance with the voting.

On Saturday afternoon, the 13th ult., Mr. Kes commemorated the anniversary of the death of Richard Wagner by a performance of selections from the "Flying Dutchman," "Lohengrin," the "Walküre," and the "Meistersingers." A special choir had been organised for the occasion, a contingent from the Scottish Orchestra worthily assisted their accomplished conductor, and the soloists comprised Misses Underwood and Thomas, Messrs. D. Price and H. A. L. Seligmann. The Concert was a private one, and the invited guests included all the subscribers to the Scottish Orchestra.

A musical Matinée was held, on the 15th ult., in the new premises of Messrs. J. D. Cuthbertson and Co. The Recital, which consisted of selections from Chopin, Mendelssohn, Liszt, &c., was given by Mr. Harold Ryder, and was very satisfactory.

MUSIC IN LIVERPOOL.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Musical Society gave, at its last Concert, Sullivan's "Golden Legend," in which the chorus again displayed generally excellent training.

The Philharmonic Society have given, under Mr. F. H. Cowen's bâton, three Concerts since our last record of events. The first of these took place on January 26 with Brahms's C minor Symphony (No. 1) in the place of honour; for the second, on the 9th ult., Cowen's "Transfiguration" was announced; and on the 23rd, Raff's "Lenore" Symphony was given. The Orchestral Society gave a Schubert programme on the 6th ult., in which this composer's famous Ninth Symphony found a fitting place, Mr. Rodewald conducting with his accustomed discretion and inspiration. On the 2nd ult. that older and now rejuvenated institution, the Società Armonica, gave the same writer's "Unfinished" Symphony in B minor. The locale of the Concert—that under notice was registered as the 110th—has been changed to the small Concert-room of St. George's Hall, and what with this and the installation of Mr. V. V. Akeroyd as conductor, a gratifying change was noted all round.

The Mount Pleasant Choral Society has been celebrating its jubilee, under Mr. William Lee, who now carries on the good work initiated by one Mr. T. D. Walker in 1847. A programme, including Sullivan's Festival Te Deum and other works worthy of the occasion, was successfully gone through on the 2nd ult.

Among the most pleasant events of the past month may be noted two Recitals of Greek music by Mr. Aramis. The first of these took place at the house of a fellow-countryman of the gentleman named, and the second on the 15th ult., in the Bell Room of the Adelphi Hotel. Other performances have been given by Messrs. Zagury and Archdeacon, two excellent vocalists, on the 18th ult., and by Mr. Weingartner, a prominent local professor, on the 27th, in the small Concert-room, St. George's Hall.

The second Schiever performance took place in the Concert-room of the College of Music, on the 20th ult., at their old quarters in Upper Parliament Street.

The students of the Arts Club Institution, to the number of about 150, gave, on the 25th ult., a capital Concert, in St. George's Hall, in aid of the Indian Famine Fund, the management being in the hands of the Kyrle Society.

A Wagner programme, consisting of the Overtures to "Rienzi," "The Flying Dutchman," and "Tannhäuser," the Prelude to "Lohengrin," and the "Entrance of the gods to Valhalla," from "Rheingold," was surely a sufficient bill of fare for the Sunday Concert of the 7th ult., the band, under Mr. Argent, being augmented to ninety players. Popular orchestral music followed on the next two days, Paderewski's "Minuet" (cleverly arranged by A. Morelli) standing as a set-off to Wagner's "Walkürenritt," Auber's "Fra Diavolo" Overture being made to compare with Berlioz's "Racoksky" March. The season ends on the 7th inst., on which date it is hoped that Dr. Peace will join the orchestra in one of Handel's Organ Concertos.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

We have been so delightfully regaled with chamber music during the last month that our gratitude to Mr. Brodsky and his colleagues—Messrs. Rawdon Briggs, S. Speelman, and Carl Fuchs—bubbles up and demands first expression. There have been so many unsuccessful attempts to establish such Recitals upon a firm footing—in days long past by Mr. Seymour, then by Sir Charles Hallé, and later still in connection with the Gentlemen's Concerts—that it is surprising, as well as most pleasing, to note how quickly the efforts of Mr. Brodsky's party have gained popular approval. At the fourth of the subscription series of this winter a large and enthusiastic audience assembled to listen to the perfect ensemble playing of the four gentlemen so happily associated in the Beethoven Quartet (No. 2 of Op. 18) and the Schubert Quartet in D minor. As usual, a Pianoforte Quintet formed the episode of the programme; and Mr. Max Mayer joined in an admirable reading of the Op. 34 in F minor of Brahms, the first movement of which excites hopes which are, perhaps, scarcely realised as the work progresses.

At the Schubert centenary at the Schiller Anstalt the D minor Quartet was repeated, to the delight of everybody; and, with the aid of Mr. H. Smith, the great string Quartet in C (Op. 163) was given. Mr. Fuchs gave an interesting violoncello solo, and Fräulein Petersen gave with dramatic force a selection of the Lieder of the champion song-writer, displaying a fine and almost too powerful voice. Naturally, from the Schiller Hall our thoughts travel across the street to that of the Royal College of Music, so ably presided over by Mr. Brodsky, to the students' open practice of January 27 and the orchestral Concert of a few evenings later. The performance of Brahms's first Symphony gave sufficient evidence of the thoroughness of the work done within the College; while the solo efforts of the vocal and instrumental pupils afforded sincere pleasure to the listeners, and must have gratified their teachers and all friends of the Institution.

At the Hallé Concert of January 28, Herr Willy Burmester played the Violin Concerto of Beethoven in a thoroughly satisfactory manner (except for the introduction of some cadenzas, which were a little out of keeping) and some Paganini trickeries for the astonishment of those who delight in such things. The orchestral novelty was MacCunn's Overture "Land of the mountain and the flood," and Mrs. Katharine Fisk was the vocalist. Two densely crowded nights followed, one devoted to "Elijah" and the other to the generally demanded repetition of Tschaïkowsky's "Pathetic" Symphony, the rendering of which, as well as of Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody, was as nearly perfect as we shall ever hear. On the 11th ult. Mr. Brodsky was uproariously applauded as solo violinist, and Miss Florence Oliver was the vocalist. That the prophesied decadence of the popularity of Mendelssohn's masterpiece has not yet commenced was evident; and the striking improvement which Mr. Wilson has effected in his choir will certainly not hurry the catastrophe. The enthusiasm which rewarded each of the two performances of Tschaïkowsky's great work which Mr. Cowen has given within one month testifies in the most conclusive manner to the hold which orchestral work has gained upon a Manchester audience, and our satisfaction with the splendid manner in which the band responds to the will of the conductor.

Unfortunately, the Saturday night Concerts are not becoming so popular as they should, and it is impossible to conceive what could worthily follow these should they be given up. Each evening there is a truly admirable band engaged in the rendering of works most judiciously selected, together with solo talent of an altogether higher class than in previous seasons was provided. On the 13th ult. the programme included three fine Overtures, two movements from a Symphony, and several lighter pieces; and, besides Madame Esty and the decided success of Mr. Herbert Grover, the violin playing of Miss Edith Robinson would have amply sufficed to diversify the selection.

The Harrison Concert, on the 17th, attracted, as usual; but although there was much talent engaged, the chief attraction to a musician was, unquestionably, the singing of Miss Ada Crossley who had, in the "Elijah," so well established her position here.

Thursday evening, the 18th ult., was rendered specially interesting by the introduction of the church cantata "The Transfiguration" of the conductor, the first choral work by Mr. Cowen which has been given at the Hallé Concerts. The performance—in which Madame Medora Henson, Miss Marian McKenzie, Mr. Edward Lloyd, and Mr. G. Holmes assisted—was good, with the exception of some little slips on the part of the contralto, and the unsteadiness of tone wherewith the bass declaimed the words of the Saviour, which seemed peculiarly ill-judged. At the organ Mr. Fogg rendered valuable assistance, and at the close of the cantata Mr. Cowen was warmly applauded. Among the more impressive parts of the work must be specified the opening chorus, "Thy painful steps," with its descriptive accompaniment; the tenor solo, "Who would not fear Thee?"; some portions of the picturesque "O elder brother," in which the voices are treated very sympathetically; and the concluding strains of the following movement, "Lord, speak," wherein the soloists and the choir unite with great effect.

MUSIC IN NORTHUMBERLAND AND DURHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

On January 28 the Newcastle Chamber Music Society gave an exceptionally interesting Concert in the Assembly Rooms, Newcastle-on-Tyne. The artists were Herr Willy Hess, Herr Seibert, Herr Schwartz, Herr Friedrich Grutzmacher, Mr. Plunket Greene, and Mr. J. M. Preston. The principal pieces of the programme were Schubert's posthumous Quartet in D minor for strings and Beethoven's Quartet in B flat (Op. 18, No. 6), both of which were exceedingly well played.

The same Society also gave a Concert on the 9th ult., which was no less successful than that above-mentioned. The artists on this occasion were Herr Willy Burmester, Mr. Ernest Hutcheson, and Miss Fillunger. The playing of Herr Burmester in Beethoven's Violin Sonata in F (Op. 24), and solos by Spohr, Wieniawski, and others, was very greatly admired; and the pianoforte performances of Mr. Hutcheson, who played solos by Brahms, Liszt, and other masters, were much enjoyed. Miss Fillünger was an equally acceptable vocalist.

The People's Concerts, promoted by the Corporation of Newcastle, have not been so numerous this winter as of old, but they have been, on the whole, more enjoyable. On the 6th and 13th ult. Ballad Concerts were given in the Town Hall. It is questionable, however, whether these Concerts attract the people for whom they were originally provided—the labouring classes.

The Sunderland Chamber Music Society gave a Concert in the Lecture Hall of the Subscription Library, Sunderland, on the 5th ult., when Kuhlau's Quintet in A for strings and flute was played by Messrs. John Parker, W. W. Lax, Hardy, Nicholson, and Simey. The programme also included a Sextet for pianoforte duet, two violins, viola, and violoncello, which was greatly appreciated.

On the 16th ult. Mr. Andrew Bevan gave a very successful Violin Recital in the Lecture Hall of the Subscription Library, Sunderland, in which he was very ably assisted by Miss Cecilia Armytage (vocalist) and Miss Moore (pianist).

The third Harrison Concert of the season took place in Olympia, Newcastle, on the 19th ult., the artists being Miss Ada Crossley, Mr. Charles Chilley, Mr. Watkin Mills, Mr. Jean Gerardy (violoncello), Miss Katie Goodson (pianoforte), Mr. William Henley (violin), and Mr. Joseph Speaight (accompanist). An additional attraction was provided in the Royal Welsh Ladies' Choir, conducted by Madame Clara Novello Davies.

MUSIC IN NOTTINGHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Sacred Harmonic Society's Concert, on January 28, included Haydn's "Creation" and a miscellaneous second part. With a fine orchestra and such an exceptional cast of principals as Madame Ella Russell, Mr. Edward Lloyd, and Mr. Andrew Black, not forgetting the chorus-singing of the Society, a really fine performance was ensured. Dr. William Lemare conducted, and must share the praise due to all concerned. The second part included Dr. Stanford's choral ballad "The Revenge."

The Mechanics' Institution Operatic Society gave a capital series of performances of "Madame Favart" in the first week in February. The soloists as well as the chorus were all members of the Society, and Mr. J. E. Pickerill, the talented conductor and stage manager, deserves a warm word of praise for the creditable result of his efforts.

On the 18th ult. Mr. John Cullen gave a Pianoforte Recital at the Albert Hall, assisted by Mr. Edwin Thorpe. The programme comprised Concertstück for violoncello and pianoforte (Klengel), Sonata Appassionata (Beethoven), Nocturne (Piatti), Ballade, Nocturne, and Scherzo (Chopin), and Sonata in D, Op. 18 (Rubinstein).

On the 13th ult. Mr. Alfred Hollins gave two Organ Recitals at the Mechanics' Institution which were highly appreciated.

MUSIC IN THE SOUTHERN COUNTIES.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Mr. Alfred Foley, conductor of the Salisbury Philharmonic Society, has already announced the Easter Concert. As usual, the programme will be of a miscellaneous order, and will include Dr. Villiers Stanford's choral ballad "Phaudrig Crohoore," written for last year's Norwich Festival.

The Hungerford Choral Society's performance of Haydn's "Creation," on the 8th ult., attracted a good audience in spite of unfavourable weather. Mr. T. Webbe conducted, and to his skill and attention must be attributed the success of the Concert. The singing of the chorus was admirable, and the orchestral accompaniments were given with due care and regard for subordination. The principals were Miss Saidee M. Kaiser, Mr. W. H. Penderell Price, and Mr. Gardner Leader, and Mr. J. S. Liddle led the band.

The inhabitants of Shawford, near Winchester, had a somewhat unusual treat provided for them on the 3rd ult. by Mr. E. H. Moberly, who brought a number of his orchestra to this little place for the purpose of a vocal and instrumental Concert. The orchestral selections were, of course, the chief features of the programme, and included Handel's Concerto Grosso (No. 7, in B flat), two movements of Emanuel Moor's Serenade (Op. 15), and Massenet's "Le dernier sommeil de la Vierge." Some excellent songs were sung by Miss Addinsell, Rev. J. P. May, and Mr. F. W. Smith.

Sir Arthur Sullivan's cantata "The Prodigal Son" was given in St. Lawrence Church, Southampton, on Sunday evening, the 7th ult., accompanied by a small orchestra and organ. Miss Rose Parmiter, Miss Daisy Turner, Mr. M. G. Conlan, and Mr. R. L. Richardson, who undertook the solos, contributed in no small degree to an impressive rendering of a beautiful work. Rev. S. W. Stevens was the conductor.

It is now announced that the whole of the choral music at the forthcoming third Musical Festival at Bournemouth will be conducted by Mr. August Manns, Mr. Godfrey taking charge of the orchestral numbers.

Madame Marie Mely (Countess Vanden-Heuvel) gave a Concert at St. John's Rooms, Winchester, on the evening of the 17th ult., when she was assisted by Mr. Sidney Brooks, Mr. Humphrey Searle, and a number of her pupils. The programme was admirably arranged and included several compositions by the Concert-giver.

MUSIC IN YORKSHIRE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

During the past month Leeds has had some half-dozen Concerts of at least moderate artistic importance; not a particularly large allowance for the fifth town (in point of size) in the kingdom, yet decidedly above the average. On January 27 one of the most important events of the season came off, Beethoven's Choral Symphony being performed at a Leeds Subscription Concert, under Mr. F. H. Cowen's direction. It speaks volumes for our haphazard way of doing things that one of the most exacting of works was given without a single full rehearsal; consequently one was driven to the usual expedient of dilating on the wonderful results English choruses and orchestras are able to achieve without adequate rehearsal. The result, if not inspiring, or conveying any distinct idea of the grandeur of the Symphony, was without any perceptible technical flaw and good in many points of detail, the Hallé band playing with much finish and the Philharmonic chorus singing with capital spirit. The solo quartet were Miss Fillünger, Mrs. Dews, Mr. Kearton, and Mr. Douglas Powell. An interesting feature was the thoroughly artistic playing, by Mr. C. Rawdon Briggs, of Spohr's Ninth Violin Concerto, and the highly-finished reading of the "Oberon" Overture and "Siegfried Idyll." On January 30 the Leeds Permanent Orchestra, which is still struggling for a precarious existence, gave a Concert, and did honour to Schubert by playing the "Fierrebras" and "Rosamunde" Overtures and some of the "Rosamunde" incidental music; while Miss Ada Beecroft, a soprano who deserves more than local fame, sang the "Ave Maria" very charmingly. Mr. John Walton, in Servais's showy "Military" Concerto for violoncello, displayed great command over the finger-board; and an agreeable ending was given to the Concert by a Waldteufel waltz. Mr. Buckley conducted in place of Mr. Benton, who was ill. On the 13th ult. the same Society gave its fourth Concert. Haydn's "Reine de France" Symphony was very brightly and carefully played, as were three well-known overtures and some trifling pieces, under the conductorship of Mr. Buckley, who still occupied Mr. Benton's place. Master Kirkby, a Leeds Parish Church choirboy, and Mr. John Berry were the vocalists. On the 1st ult. a most interesting Chamber Concert was given by Miss Eisele and Mr. Briggs. Mendelssohn's Quartet in D (Op. 44, No. 1) was admirably played by Messrs. Briggs, Bridge, Holme, and Hatton, whose ensemble reached a high degree of finish. In Beethoven's C minor Sonata for pianoforte and violin and Dvorák's Pianoforte Quartet in D Miss Eisele was the pianist. Two of the "Musical Evenings" managed by the Messrs. Haddock call for brief notice. On January 26 Lady Hallé's violin playing gave an unwonted distinction to the occasion, and on the 16th ult. there was the more usual miscellaneous type of programme, Miss Jeanne Greta's singing, the pianoforte solos of Miss Paola Teodoras, and Miss Gertrude Collins's violin playing being the chief things calling for notice. Mr. Christensen, at his Concert on the 5th ult., introduced an innocent and agreeable "Polacca" for flute and pianoforte of his own composition, the flute part being very ably played by Mr. Staniland Hall. Sonatas for pianoforte and violin by Hartmann and Dvorák were played by the Concert-giver and Mr. Gutfeld, and Miss Mary Poole sang simply and pleasantly.

At Bradford the Permanent Orchestra, on January 23, fulfilled its duty to Schubert's memory by giving the "Unfinished" Symphony, together with four pieces from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" music and a "Meistersinger" selection. Mr. Willy Hess, who is well known and esteemed in this part of the world, owing to his former connection with the Hallé band, played Spohr's Ninth Concerto in masterly style, and was admirably accompanied under Mr. Bartle's conductorship. Miss Florence Shee was the singer. On the 12th ult. a Bradford Subscription Concert of chamber music took place. Hummel's Septet and Spohr's Nonet are seldom performed, but their comparative novelty hardly made up for the absence of a work of first-rate importance. The solo playing of Messrs. Brodsky, Becker, and Mark Hambourg was of very exceptional excellence, and Miss Petersen deserves praise for her careful choice of songs.

At Huddersfield we have two more Subscription Concerts to chronicle, both of unexceptionable character. On January 26 Mr. and Mrs. Henschel gave one of their delightful vocal Recitals, Concerts that afford a comparative holiday to the most captious of critics. On the 9th ult. Lady Hallé and Mr. Leonard Borwick gave a Recital, at which the Adagio and Finale from Bruch's G minor Violin Concerto and the "Italian" Concerto of Bach were, perhaps, the most striking features. Madame Bertha Moore sang in her usual tasteful way some songs which, though pleasant enough, were hardly in keeping with the rest of the programme.

The Halifax Subscription Concerts given by Mr. Webster are always enjoyable in the highest sense. On the 3rd ult. we had the "Neue Liebeslieder" of Brahms, admirably sung by Miss Fillünger, Miss Marian McKenzie, and Messrs. Ben Davies and Douglas Powell, who also sang a fine series of Lieder by the best composers of the German school. The solo pianist was Mr. Heinrich, who introduced, among other things, a Toccata in A by Kalkbrenner, a much more interesting composition than one would expect from that composer. At the Wakefield Subscription Concert, on the 10th ult., Messrs. Plunket Greene and Leonard Borwick gave one of their Recitals of vocal and pianoforte music, happily too well known to need detailed comment.

The "orchestral movement" is spreading in the provinces. It has now reached Dewsbury, where an association calling itself "The Dewsbury Orchestral Band" has just been re-organised, and gave its first Concert, under its changed conditions, on the 2nd ult. Mr. G. H. Hirst, a capable and most energetic amateur, is the conductor, and his band of fifty, not a fourth part of whom are professionals, gave a most satisfactory account of a programme, including pieces by Stanford (the "Shamus O'Brien" Overture), Sullivan, German, and Gounod. Mr. Hirst played a couple of movements from Bennett's F minor Concerto, and Miss Sarah Berry sang in her usual artistic and sympathetic style.

At Harrogate there have been three Concerts given by local musicians that can be only barely recorded. On January 28 Messrs. Naylor and Gutfeld gave the first of their Chamber Concerts; a Pianoforte Trio by Arensky and the violoncello playing of Mr. Herbert Walenn calling for mention. On the 4th ult. the Messrs. Dittmar gave a similar Concert, including Mendelsson's D minor Trio in the programme; and, on the 11th ult., the Messrs. Haddock gave one of their popular "Musical Evenings."

MUSIC IN PARIS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The new lyric drama, "Messidor," libretto by M. Zola, and music by M. Alfred Bruneau, was produced at the Opéra, on the 19th ult., with every sign of success. The work is said to be startling in its originality.

"Kermaria," operatic idyll in a prologue and three episodes, was brought out at the Opéra Comique on the 8th ult. The music is by M. Camille Erlanger, and the poem by M. Ghensi, who appears to have purposely avoided all dramatic action. M. Erlanger's score is decidedly interesting, very modern, distinctly "advanced," containing portions of great charm as well as some very curious harmonic effects which attract the attention of musicians. But interest of this kind is really developed at the expense of the vitality of the work itself, which is thereby rendered more amusing to read in the study than to hear in performance. The latter was a good one, Mdlle. Guiraudon making an excellent début on the occasion, Mdlle. Wyns, MM. Bouvet, Jérome, and Mondand likewise throwing all their talent into the work.

Great success was achieved at the Lamoureux Concert of January 24 by the duet from Berlioz's "Béatrice et Bénédict," sung by Mesdames Blanc and Passama, M. Capet, the solo violinist of the orchestra, being likewise greatly applauded in his interpretation of Max Bruch's Concerto. The Concert of January 31 was dedicated in part to the memory of Chabrier, and included the first act of the unfinished opera "Briséis," the libretto from the joint-pens of Ephraïm Mickaël and Catulle Mendès. Containing, as this portion of the work does, some most beautiful numbers, one can but regret that the composer had not been vouchsafed the time to finish it. By no means easy to interpret, and requiring a considerable number of performers, M. Lamoureux had bestowed great pains upon a worthy rendering of "Briséis," which has since been produced on three successive Sundays, each time to crowded audiences. It was a most legitimate success for the worthy conductor. The principal soloists were Mesdames Chrétien-Vaguet and Blanc, MM. Engel, Ghasne, and Nicolaou.

At the Colonne Concert of January 24 Herr Felix Mottl was again the conductor, and both he and Madame Mottl were, if anything, received with still greater cordiality than on the preceding Sunday. The Concert of January 31 was devoted chiefly to "Manfred"—i.e., Schumann's music, with the customary portions of the drama recited by M. Mounet-Sully, of the Comédie Française. In the Concert of the 7th ult. there was a first hearing of an "Episode Oriental," by M. Coquard—a pleasing little vocal suite, in which a little more of Oriental flavouring would not have been amiss. An air of Asia Minor, introduced in it and sung by Madame Auguez-Montalert, was re-demanded.

Amongst the numerous institutions giving their Concerts just now may be instanced the Société des Petites Auditions, conducted by M. Herwegh, the Société d'Art, Société Nationale, and others. The Société de Musique d'Ensemble, under the direction of M. Réné Lenormand, in its Concert of January 30, included a number of English songs by Miss Maude White and Madame Liza Lehmann, charmingly sung by Miss Skipper. There can be no doubt that some of these songs, if translated into French, would soon initiate themselves into the favour of the Parisian public. In the same Concert the excellent pianist, M. Staub, scored a great success. The Belgian pianist, M. de Greef, in recent Recitals, and the English pianist, Mr. Harold Bauer, in his first Concert of the season, on January 26, were alike greatly appreciated, particularly the latter. Now we have a rapid succession, without interruption, of more or less distinguished pianoforte players. On January 28 M. Santiago Riera made his appearance; on the following day M. Mark Hambourg had his turn; on the 1st ult. M. Staub, one of the most brilliant pupils of M. Diémer, brought himself once more before the notice of the public, and there were also M. Lloria, M. Wurmser, not to mention others, claiming equal attention.

Among stringed instrument performers should be mentioned M. Lederer, a remarkable violinist, who gave a Recital recently; the excellent violinist, M. Weingartner, and the quartet parties of M. Géloso and M. Nadaud.

A highly successful performance of compositions by M. Réné Lenormand was given at the Théâtre d'Application on January 19, with the co-operation of Madame Collier, MM. Géloso, Falcke, Grimand, and Dressen. The programme included chamber compositions and a number of songs, and both the composer and his able interpreters were greatly applauded.

Miss Phemie Black, a former pupil of the Royal College of Music, gave a highly successful Concert at St. John's Hall, Forest Hill, on the 4th ult., at which she was heard and vigorously applauded in Felix Corbett's song "Butterflies" and the beautiful, though, alas! hackneyed "Ave Maria" of Gounod, founded on Bach's first Prelude. She was "assisted" by Madame Emily Himing, Miss Louie Bonham, Messrs. J. Kirkley Campbell and George Stubbs; and the Celia Vocal Union, consisting of Messrs. Arthur Weston, Wheeler, Scrivener, and Wright. The violin playing of Miss Isabella Donkersley roused the crowded audience to genuine enthusiasm. Her solos were Wieniawski's fine Légende; a remarkably tuneful and captivating "Berceuse Bohémienne," by J. Nesvera, a compatriot of A. Dvorák; Professor Stanford's capital "Irish Reel"; and, in response to an emphatically expressed desire for more, E. German's popular and ever fresh Shepherd's Dance from his "Henry VIII." music. Mr. Arnott, besides acting as accompanist throughout the evening—an arduous task ably executed—performed pianoforte solos by Grieg and Tschaïkowsky, his technique and expression proving fully equal to the demands made on them.

The remarkable musical talent of the "Grimson Family" was strikingly shown on the 3rd ult., when a Chamber Concert of a high standard of excellence was given at the Queen's Hall by these young executants. On this occasion the Misses Annie and Amy Grimson appeared as pianists; the Misses Jessie and Nellie Grimson, with Master Harold and Mr. Sam Grimson, as violinists; Miss Annie and Mr. S. Dean Grimson played violas; and Miss Amy and Master Robert Grimson were heard as violoncellists. From the above it will be seen that some of these young people played two instruments, a result which may be ascribed to the excellent system of training pursued at the Royal College of Music, where they have received instruction in their art. The programme comprised Dvorák's characteristic Quartet in A minor (Op. 81) and Gade's Octet for strings (Op. 17), and still more satisfactory than the technical excellence noticeable in the rendering of these works was the artistic perception shown in their performance and in the interpretation of several solos. Some songs were tastefully sung by Miss Florence Armriding.

In the deeds of mercy with which the celebration of the Queen's reign will be associated, musicians will not be unrepresented. A special general meeting of the members of the Incorporated Society of Musicians will be held early in the coming summer, to consider plans for the establishment of an Orphanage for the daughters of musicians left in impoverished circumstances, and needing education and training. The Duke of Saxe-Coburg, President of the Society, has stated that he will, if possible, preside over the meeting. The plan proposed is to take over the well-known Orphan School conducted so usefully and so well for many years by Miss Helen Kenway, to increase its usefulness as far as the resources at command of the Society will permit, and continue it as a branch of the Society's work. The good work, voluntarily undertaken by Miss Kenway, has been productive of so much benefit to so many needing help that we feel sure the course proposed by the Society will not only be approved, but warmly supported by many of those outside the membership of the Society itself.

An admirable series of masterpieces has been selected by M. Lamoureux for his Concerts at Queen's Hall during the week beginning on the 22nd inst. The programmes include Beethoven's Fifth and Eighth Symphonies, that by Brahms in D (No. 2), Mozart's "Jupiter," the D minor of Schumann, and the Symphony from Bach's "Christmas" Oratorio. The overtures comprise Mendelssohn's "Ruy Blas," Schumann's "Manfred" and "Hermann and Dorothea," Wagner's "Die Meistersinger" and "Flying Dutchman," Berlioz's "Benvenuto Cellini," and Weber's "Der Freischütz." Among the miscellaneous pieces Saint-Saëns's "Rouet d'Omphale," "Danse Macabre," and Prelude to "Le Déluge"; Liszt's "Mephisto" Valse, a Fantaisie for organ and orchestra by L. Boëllmann, Rhapsody "España" (Chabrier), "Wallenstein's Camp" (Vincent d'Indy), and many other tempting morsels go to make up this orchestral "feast of good things."

On Monday afternoon, January 25, the charming young Italian violinist, Teresina Tua, now the Comtesse de Franchi-Verni, gave a Recital at St. James's Hall, ample evidence being afforded during the performance that the young artist has much improved, not so much in technique as in breadth of style and intelligence, since she last appeared in London in 1889. She joined Miss Fanny Davies in an admirable performance of Brahms's comparatively light and genial Sonata for pianoforte and violin in A (Op. 100), and gave with excellent technique and expression the somewhat ineffective version of Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto with the pianoforte accompaniment arranged by the composer. Other pieces by Vieuxtemps and Sarasate gave ample evidence that in tone and style the player is entitled to rank very high among lady violinists. Miss Davies was quite successful in some minor pianoforte solos.

The London Sunday School Choir held its annual gathering at the Albert Hall, on the 20th ult., with the accustomed success. Commencing existence at a period when choral singing was not so popular as now, this association has done excellent service in extending the taste for anthems, part-songs, and oratorio excerpts. The selection was in character much the same as on preceding occasions. The choir, numbering about a thousand picked voices, sang with precision Barnby's anthem "Break forth into joy," the chorus "To Thee, great Lord" (from "Moses in Egypt"), Dr. Warwick Jordan's Festival Jubilate in C, and several other compositions of similarly high standard. Mr. William Whiteman conducted. The Sunday School Orchestra, under Mr. David M. Davis, performed some pieces creditably, and vocal solos were given by Madame Alice Gomez, Miss Clara Dowle, and Mr. Andrew Black.

A new series of ten high-class Orchestral Concerts is being arranged for next season at the Birmingham Town Hall, under the conductorship of Mr. G. Halford. Mr. Halford is well known locally as an able and spirited conductor. He has selected the best among the large number of resident instrumentalists, and these will be reinforced by London and Manchester players where required. The principal first violins will be Herr Schiever and Mr. F. Ward. The concerts will be of about an hour and a half's duration, and will comprise, besides the purely orchestral music, the performance of many of the leading vocal and instrumental artists of the day. It is important to add that a very complete system of rehearsals has been arranged, so that really finished performances may be anticipated.

Miss Gwynne Kimpton, one of the best violin students of the Guildhall School, an associate of the Royal College, and a licentiate of the Royal Academy, and Miss Marion Clapton, a silver medalist of Trinity College, combined to give an excellent Orchestral Concert, at the Constitutional Hall, Harlesden, on the 10th ult. A well trained orchestra, consisting of Miss Kimpton's pupils and some professional friends, performed various classic instrumental selections, and accompanied Miss Clapton in an able performance of Mendelssohn's G minor Concerto. Miss Kimpton conducted with great judgment, and also played the Ballade and Polonaise by Vieuxtemps and, with Miss Clapton, "Pensées Fugitives" (Heller-Ernst). Miss Helen Murby and Mr. Henry Glaysher sang.

Miss Edith Stow's Concert in the Queen's (Small) Hall, on the 4th ult., was remarkable for the assignment to a party of young ladies of Handel's air from "The Messiah," "Rejoice greatly," an experiment that, of course, was the reverse of satisfactory. Miss Stow manifested a bright voice in Bemberg's song "Nymphs et Sylvains"; Mr. Arthur Thompson was warmly complimented for his refined rendering of Raff's "Evening Song" and Lohr's "If my verses had wings," and Mr. Arthur Walenn was welcome in Schubert's "Wanderer." Miss Elsie Stow played some pianoforte pieces and Mr. Herbert Walenn (who appeared in lieu of Mr. Gerald Walenn) delighted the audience by his finished performance on the violoncello of a Cantabile by César Cui.

Miss E. A. Atkinson, a pianist who has acquired some reputation in the provinces, made a promising début in London, on the 16th ult., at the Steinway Hall. On this occasion she was most successful in small pieces, in which her executive facility was pleasantly displayed; but there was much that was praiseworthy in her interpretation of Beethoven's Sonata in A flat (Op. 26), and musical sensibility was shown in Chopin's Nocturne in D flat (Op. 27, No. 2). Miss Beatrice Frost sang Schubert's "Young Nun" with a perception of its dramatic character very promising in so young a vocalist, and later in the afternoon rendered Cowen's "Because" with a warmth of expression happily devoid of sentimentality.

The committee of the Bayreuth Festspiele have now definitely decided to repeat the performances of "Der Ring des Nibelungen" this year, in alternation with those of "Parsifal," the former to be given three times and the latter eight. The dates will be as follows: "Parsifal," July 19, 27, 28, and 30, August 8, 9, 11, and 19; "Nibelungen" Tetralogy, July 21 to 24, August 2 to 5 and 14 to 17. Visitors who may only wish to hear "Parsifal" will have but two opportunities of doing so—viz., on July 28 and August 9, the other occasions being reserved for those who subscribe for the "Ring." Each seat for the cycle of five performances will cost £5, and it is fully expected that the whole house will be ere long sold out.

Miss Eleanor King submitted a superior programme at her Concert at Steinway Hall on the 12th ult., the co-operation of Mdlle. Irma Sethe and of Mr. Adolf Schmid allowing of the introduction of two or three compositions, which under less advantageous circumstances could not have been performed. Raff's Trio in G (No. 2) showed Miss King to be a pianist possessing taste, judgment, and neatness of execution, and these recommendations were subsequently emphasized by her rendering of pieces by Schumann, Liszt, and Henselt. That clever violinist, Mdlle. Sethe, played Beethoven's Romance in F with considerable delicacy, and the solo contributions of Mr. Schmid were cordially approved.

A very pleasing Pianoforte and Vocal Recital was given by Miss Fanny Davies and Miss Louise Phillips, at St. James's Hall, on Friday afternoon, January 29. The instrumental numbers, which were beautifully played by Miss Davies, included Brahms's elaborate Variations on a theme by Handel (Op. 24) and pieces by Schubert, Mendelssohn, and Rubinstein. The principal work done by Miss Phillips, and very well done, was Schumann's exquisite song cycle "Frauenliebe und Leben" (Op. 42). This is a true outpouring of love and beauty. There were some more interesting pieces by Schubert, Brahms, Parry, Somervell, and "Old French." The Concert was very enjoyable.

The Dulwich Choral Society is not the least efficient of the numerous suburban associations formed of late years. A very creditable performance of the first part of Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" was given on January 28. The choruses were specially well rendered, there being no serious shortcomings either with respect to taste, precision, or volume of tone. The conductor, Mr. W. H. Thomson, may be congratulated on commanding a force of vocalists and instrumentalists so obedient to his wishes. The solo parts were sustained with much judgment by Madame Alice Lovenez, Miss Jessie King, Messrs. Albert Pearce, W. H. Skinner, and Robert Grice.

Miss Alice Borton came prominently forward as a pianist at her Concert in the Queen's (Small) Hall on the 2nd ult., with Schumann's Quartet in E flat, in which her associates were Messrs. Norman Bath, Addison, and W. C. Hann. In this she showed an intelligence that with further study should be productive of good results. Her solo essays included Liszt's transcription of "Auf Flugeln des Gesanges" and Rachmaninoff's Prelude in C sharp minor. For vocal pieces there were Madame Alice Gomez, Madame Osman, and Mr. Jack Robertson.

The annual Concert of the Sydenham and Forest Hill Musical Society was given at the Park Hall, Sydenham, on the 17th ult. The choir was heard in Macfarren's "May Day," Hamish MacCunn's "Lord Ullin's Daughter," and a selection of two-part songs. Miss Jessie Grimson contributed Wieniawski's "Légende," and several of the Brahms-Joachim Hungarian Dances. The vocalists were Miss Maggie Purvis and Mr. Ernest Charles. Miss Melhuish was the accompanist and Mr. Frederick G. Shinn the conductor.

Mr. Hilton Carter, the able and energetic secretary of the Guildhall School of Music, was presented on January 26 with an album containing an address and signed by all the teaching staff of the Institution. The presentation was made by the Principal, Mr. W. H. Cummings, in the practice-room. It need hardly be said that this recognition of the value of Mr. Carter's services generally, and of his specially valuable work during the interregnum between the death of the late principal and the appointment of Mr. Cummings, was fully deserved.

The Crystal Palace Saturday Concerts were resumed, on the 27th ult., with a programme devoted to Schubert, notice of which will appear in our next issue. Among the chief novelties announced for the second half of the series are Richard Strauss's "Thus spake Zarathustra," Elgar's "Scenes from the Saga of King Olaf," produced at the North Staffordshire Musical Festival last autumn, and Gounod's "Redemption." The season will, as usual, conclude with a benefit Concert to Mr. August Manns on April 24.

We are requested to state that the Bishop of Bangor has addressed the following letter to the Warden of the Guild of Church Musicians:—

"Palace, Bangor, N. Wales,
"February 16, 1897.

"Dear Sir,—I shall be much obliged if you will withdraw my name from all connection with the Guild of Church Musicians, London.—I am, yours very truly,

"D. L. Bangor."

The Bâton Club, New York, under the able directorship of William C. Carl, gave its first Concert of the fourth season on January 26. First performances in America were given on this occasion of Edward Elgar's cantata "The Black Knight" and the female chorus "Cœur d'Esclaves," from Charles Lefebvre's new opera "Djelma." Some part-songs and violoncello solos were also included in the programme.

Mr. Frank Oliver gave a pleasant miscellaneous Concert, on the 11th ult., at the Queen's (Small) Hall. The Concert-giver sang with refinement several songs by Handel, Caldara, and Salvator Rosa, and received assistance from Madame Alice Gomez, Miss Allen, and Mr. William Shakespeare. The excellent violin and pianoforte playing by Mr. Louis Pecskai and Miss Maud Rihll were fully appreciated.

Dr. Martin, the organist of St. Paul's Cathedral, has just completed a short thanksgiving Te Deum, together with an Antiphon (a prayer for Queen and Nation) for voices and orchestra; the accompaniments being also arranged for military band. The Te Deum can also be used with organ accompaniment only.

The prize of £20 offered by the Glasgow Society of Musicians for the best trio, quartet, or quintet for pianoforte and strings, or pianoforte and wind instruments, has been gained by Mr. David Stephen (Dundee) for his Quintet for pianoforte and wind instruments, sent in under motto "Spe et Labore." The judges were Sir Alexander C. Mackenzie, Professor Prout, and Mr. Frederick Corder.

Mr. J. Baptiste Calkin's pupils, past and present, at the Guildhall School of Music, have recently presented him with an elegant writing cabinet and an address engrossed on vellum.

Mr. Henry J. Wood has been appointed conductor at the Earl's Court Exhibition, and he will give a series of Concerts at Empress Hall.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Annaberg.—A new three-act comic opera, "Potemkin," by the Italo-German composer, Ugo Afferni, was brought out here on January 31 with immense success, and has been accepted for performance in several other German theatres.

Bayreuth.—Herr Anton von Rovy, a pupil of Julius Stockhausen, who has gained some reputation as a concert singer in Frankfort-on-Main, has been chosen by Frau Cosima Wagner for the parts of Wotan and Amfortas in this year's performances at the Festspiel-Haus. M. van Dyck is to appear once more in the part of Parsifal.

Bergamo.—In connection with the birth-centenary of Donizetti, to be celebrated in this his native town in September next, an exhibition relative to the composer and his works is being organised, to which many interesting contributions have been promised, notably from Vienna, so intimately associated with his career, and where a committee has been formed for the purpose, including Dr. Hanslick, Director Jahn, Dr. Glossy, and others. A monument to the composer will also be unveiled on the occasion, the work of the Neapolitan sculptor, Jerace.

Berlin.—A Beethoven Festival on a hitherto unapproached scale is to be held here next year. What is proposed is nothing less than the performance during the course of three weeks, at morning and evening concerts, of the whole of the master's compositions. The idea originated with Herr Hermann Wolff, the well-known concert director, and has been most readily taken up by the management of the Royal Opera, where "Fidelio," "Egmont," and "The Ruins of Athens" will be produced, as well as by all the prominent orchestral and choral institutions, including the Philharmonic orchestra and choir, and the Stern'sche Gesangverein.——Schubert centenary performances have been given by all the leading musical societies in the capital, one of the most noteworthy having been that of the Philharmonic choir, under the direction of Herr Siegfried Ochs, and with the co-operation of the eminent organist, Dr. Reimann, the programme including the "Tantum ergo" (discovered in 1890, in Vienna), "Miriam's Siegesgesang," "Gesang der Geister," and many other choral numbers.

Bremen.—An excellent and highly successful performance took place, on January 26, of Edgar Tinel's oratorio "Franciscus," by the newly formed Philharmonic Choir, under Capellmeister Schumann's direction. Madame Dierich, of Leipzig, sang the principal solo part with admirable effect.

Brussels.—Miss Brema has been immensely successful for some weeks past at the Théâtre de la Monnaie, where she has appeared as Ortrud in "Lohengrin," in association with Fräulein Kutscherra's charming impersonation of Elsa, as also in the titular part of Gluck's "Orphée" and that of Dalila in M. Saint-Saëns's opera. M. Vincent d'Indy's new opera, "Fervaal," having been latterly revised in some parts by the composer, is at length to be brought out on the 6th inst.——Herr Felix Mottl was announced to conduct at the Société des Concerts on the 21st ult., his wife likewise taking part on the occasion.—— In connection with the University Extension Scheme, set on foot here lately, M. Maurice Kufferath, the distinguished editor of Le Guide Musical, has just commenced a series of lectures at the Salle de l'Horloge on the great composers, the first having been devoted to Johann Sebastian Bach, with musical illustrations given by MM. Janssens, Wauquier, Mesdames Benoni and Kufferath, the latter an excellent violoncellist. The lectures are attracting considerable attention.——A curious, albeit most praiseworthy, new departure is being made by some of the Belgian daily papers (notably the freely circulating Petit Bleu), which are now publishing once a week a musical supplement, in very readable type, of compositions by native composers.

Bucharest.—Madame Ada Adiny, the French prima donna, has just given a series of most successful performances in opera here, in the presence of the King and Queen of Roumania, the National Theatre being crowded on each occasion.

Budapesth.—The first performance of Giordano's "André Chenier," at the National Opera, took place on January 31, under M. Erkel's direction. The work, which had been extremely well mounted, was favourably received, but without any display of special interest.——On the 15th ult. Schubert's great Mass in E flat major was performed for the first time by the Philharmonic Society and the members of the Verein der Musikfreunde, under the direction of Dr. Hans Richter.

Copenhagen.—Wagner's "Die Meistersinger" was produced, for the first time, at the Royal Opera, on January 27, under the direction of Johann Svendsen.

Although the prices of seats had been doubled on this occasion the house was completely filled and the audience was most enthusiastic. The interpretation, especially of the principal parts, was an indifferent one, with the exception of Herr Mantzin's Beckmesser, which was an excellent realisation of the part.

Dresden.—The valuable private musical library in the possession of King Albert of Saxony has now been incorporated with the Royal Public Library here, and has thus been rendered generally accessible to students.——A Concert was given here recently, under the auspices of the Conservatoire, for the special purpose of introducing the new intermediate string instruments, to which we referred some time since, called by the inventor, Dr. Stelzner, the violotta and cellone respectively. Displayed, as their qualities were, by Herren Rappoldi, Grützmacher, and other professors, they proved highly satisfactory, and were considered by those present a distinct acquisition to chamber music combinations.

Geneva.—M. Jacques Dalcroze, the well-known Genevese composer, at a Concert given last month at the Salle de la Réformation, introduced to his audience several new works, both vocal and instrumental, and also excerpts from his new opera "Sancho," which were greatly applauded. The latter is now being rehearsed at the Opera here.——Dr. Carl Reinecke, the veteran Leipzig composer, took part in one of the Subscription Concerts recently, both as composer and pianist, and has been enormously fêted, particularly in his capacity of a most highly finished Mozart interpreter.

Göttingen.—Frau Amalie Joachim gave a most successful Recital here on January 21, with a programme including a number of songs by Schubert, Schumann, Brahms, and others. Herr Sally Liebling, who was the accompanist, also played Grieg's Sonata in E minor and pieces by Liszt, Chopin, and Mendelssohn.

Hamburg.—Herr Gustav Mahler, the well-known composer and conductor at the Stadt-Theater, formerly of the Budapesth Opera, is about to resign his position here, and will take up his residence in Vienna. He will be succeeded by Court Capellmeister Gille, of Rostock, a conductor of considerable ability.——Herr Weingartner, of Berlin, has resigned the conductorship of the Philharmonic Concerts here, and his place will most likely be taken by Herr Nikisch, of Leipzig.——A very successful performance was given, on the 7th ult., by the Gesangverein, of Heinrich Hofmann's secular oratorio "Editha." The work was also produced last month at Oppeln and at Neisse.——Herr Weingartner's opera, "Genesius," somewhat cavalierly treated on its first production at Berlin, and very well received some months since at Mannheim, is in active preparation at the Stadt-Theatre.

Leipzig.—The fine new Concert Hall of the Kaufhaus, the building erected on the site of the historical old Gewandhaus, was opened, on the 2nd ult., by the King of Saxony in person. The proceedings included orchestral and solo performances by pupils of the Conservatoire, under the direction of Herr Hans Sitt. On the following day the first public Concert was given in the new hall, consisting of a "Beethoven Evening," an excellent series instituted this season by Professor Woldemar Meyer and Fräulein Remmert.——Theodor Gouvy's dramatic scenes, "Iphigénie en Tauride," for soli, chorus, and orchestra, were announced to be given here for the first time by the Singakademie, under Dr. Paul Klengel. The performance, on January 17, by the Riedelsche Gesangverein, of Handel's Oratorio "Hercules," in Dr. Chrysander's version, was a complete success, and is likely to prove the forerunner of a complete revival of both this work and its companion in the Chrysander edition, "Deborah," in Germany. The solo parts were in excellent hands, and Dr. Kretzschmar conducted with his accustomed ability a most conscientiously prepared performance.——M. Lamoureux, of Paris, was to be the conductor of the Philharmonic Concert on the 17th ult., at the Albert Hall.——Performances in honour of the Schubert centenary have been given here by the Liszt-Verein, at the new Gewandhaus, under Herr Nikisch's direction, by the Bohemian String Quartet, and at the Conservatoire. At the latter institution the Overture to "Alfonso und Estrella" and the B minor Symphony, amongst other works, were given by the pupils' orchestra, under the direction of Herr Sitt.

Madrid.—The Sociedad de Conciertos announces a series of interesting Concerts of modern compositions, to be conducted by well-known foreign musicians, including Dr. Muck, of Berlin, and Herr Steinbach, of Meiningen. M. Jean Gérardy and the pianist Malato are amongst the soloists.

Milan.—The sale, by public auction, was effected here recently of a historical instrument—viz., the clavecin formerly in the possession of Paesiello, the celebrated operatic composer. It realised the sum of 1,050 francs.

Monte Carlo.—A party of English ladies recently produced, at the Palais des Beaux Arts, a new dumb-show piece, entitled "The Artist's Dream." Miss Lowther was the author of the slight, though charmingly poetical, story, which was musically illustrated by Mrs. Lyndoch Moncrieff, well known, before her marriage, as the vocalist and song composer, Miss Nita Gaetano, a pupil of Gounod during his sojourn in London. Miss Felicia Malet, a talented musical amateur, acted the chief part in this fascinating little piece.

Moscow.—An interesting scheme is on foot to introduce to Continental audiences the lyrical stage works of César Cui, the Russian state councillor and distinguished composer. They are, in the first place, the operas "The Prisoner of the Caucasus," "Angelo," and "William Ratcliff," the librettos of which have been completely revised and adapted, and they are to be shortly produced in Austrian and German musical centres, under the management of the well-known impresario, Herr Ludwig Grünfeld.

Munich.—The first performance of the three-act "dramatised fairy-tale" "Die Königskinder," on January 23, at the Royal Theatre, was a conspicuous success. The music supplied by Herr Humperdinck to Ernst Rosmer's effective book is generally considered quite on a par with that of "Hansel und Gretel," containing a number of very charming themes, with their subsequent polyphonic treatment, together with two remarkably fine preludes to the second and third acts respectively.——The Schubert centenary was celebrated in a worthy manner, on January 31, at the Royal Theatre. There was a fine performance first of the master's "Unfinished" Symphony, under Herr Richard Strauss's direction, after which the Intendant-General, Herr Possart, recited a prologue written for the occasion by the veteran poet, Heyse. This was followed by a series of Schubert's songs, interpreted by members of the opera, including the "Allmacht" in Liszt's arrangement for soprano solo, chorus, and orchestra, the proceedings concluding with the performance of "Der häusliche Krieg." Numerous foreign visitors assisted at the highly successful celebration.

Rome.—An excellent first performance was given here, on January 30, of Bach's Mass in B minor, by the active Bach society, under the direction of Signor Alessandro Costa.——Signor Sgambati's remarkable Requiem, first performed last year on the anniversary of the death of King Victor Emmanuel, was again produced at the Pantheon on the recurrence of the anniversary, in January, and listened to with profound admiration. The work is, we believe, shortly to be published.——Both M. Paderewski and M. Eugène Ysaÿe have appeared with great success last month in the Concerts given by the Santa Cecilia Academy.

St. Petersburg.—Herr Nicodé, the Dresden Capellmeister, has been so successful both with his compositions and as conductor of one of the recent Philharmonic Concerts, that he has been engaged to conduct two more of the Society's Concerts during the season. Joseph Hofmann is creating immense enthusiasm just now in an extensive concert tour throughout Russia. The tenor, Van Dyck, has given a series of performances at the Imperial Opera, where he has been greatly admired, his Tannhäuser especially eliciting boundless enthusiasm.

Stuttgart.—The fifth Suabian Musical Festival is to be held here from May 15 to 17, the conductors being Dr. Hans Richter and Dr. Aloys Obrist, the excellent Stuttgart Capellmeister, who will conduct on the second day. Handel's "Messiah" will be amongst the principal works produced.

Vienna.—The four hundredth performance of Rossini's "Il Barbiere" was recorded at the Imperial Opera on January 20.——A new operetta by Johann Strauss, "The Goddess of Reason," the action of which is laid in Paris, in 1793, was to be brought out at the Theatre-an-der-Wien on the 17th ult.——Herr Bungert's remarkable music-drama "Odysseus Heimkehr" is in course of being mounted at the Imperial Opera.

Zurich.—The first performance, on the 4th ult., of "Götterdämmerung" in this town, so closely associated with Wagner's artistic activity during his years of exile, merits a record. The production of the work, under Herr Lothar Kempster's direction, was an excellent one, Fräulein Seiffert, as Brünnhilde, especially distinguishing herself. The remaining dramas of the tetralogy had already been produced here in previous years.

OBITUARY.

We record with regret the death, on January 24, of Madame Edith Wynne, the famous soprano. She was born at Holywell, on March 11, 1842, and at the age of twelve won a prize at an Eisteddfod. She afterwards studied under Pinsuti at the Royal Academy of Music, where she was a Westmoreland Scholar in 1863-4, and was subsequently taught by Romani and Vanuccini in Florence. Her London début was at Mr. John Thomas's Welsh Concert, at St. James's Hall, in 1862, and she later on appeared with much success in Henry Leslie's Concerts and at the Crystal Palace. Aided by the interest taken in the young singer by Chorley and Sir Sterndale Bennett, she soon became a distinct favourite at the Philharmonic, the Sacred Harmonic, the Popular, and other leading concerts in the metropolis, and she also took part in many of the provincial festivals, the Handel Festival, and the State Concerts. She was equally successful in the United States, where she went on tour in 1871-2 with Madame Patey, Mr. Cummings, and Mr. Santley, and also sang at the Boston Festival in 1874. Madame Wynne essayed her talent in English opera as far back as 1863 (when she was the heroine in Macfarren's "Jessy Lea," produced at the Gallery of Illustration) and again in 1869-70. She also appeared as Lady Mortimer in the great revival of "Henry the Fourth," at Drury Lane, about 1862, when she sang a song in Welsh. She excelled most in the interpretation of songs and ballads, in which her sympathetic voice and command of passionate, tender, and pathetic expression combined to produce an admirable artistic effect.

With Mr. Charles Harris, whose death, at the age of forty-three, occurred on the 3rd ult., another popular London stage manager has passed away. Like his elder brother, Augustus, he had inherited the peculiar qualifications of the impresario from his father, the senior Augustus Harris, who died in 1873. For upwards of twenty years Mr. Charles Harris had been engaged in stage management at various London theatres. He assisted in the original production of "H.M.S. Pinafore" at the Opera Comique, and was afterwards associated with his brother, Sir Augustus, in the production of Drury Lane melodramas and pantomimes. He subsequently became stage manager at the Lyric, superintended the production of various operas at the Savoy, and within a few days of his death was engaged on the rehearsals at that theatre of the new comic opera by Messrs. Burnand and Lehmann and Sir Alexander Mackenzie. Quite recently he had, it is stated, declined the offer of stage managership of the coming season of the Royal Opera at Covent Garden.

On the 10th ult., at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, M. Castelmary, the well-known operatic singer. Count Armand Decastan, to give his real name and title, he having been a member of the French nobility, has been a well-known figure in London operatic life for nearly a quarter of a century. He was brought out by Mr. Mapleson, at Drury Lane, in 1873, as Mephistopheles in "Faust," with Madame Christine Nilsson as Marguerite, soon after her return from the United States. He quickly developed into one of the most useful and reliable members of the company, both as an actor and singer of bass parts, while his repertory was enormous. Both under Signor Lago and the late Sir Augustus Harris he acted in the capacity of assistant stage manager. He was playing the part of Sir Tristan, in "Martha," at the Metropolitan Opera House, and at the end of the first act—the applause still ringing in his ears—he suddenly staggered towards the back of the stage and expired in the arms of M. Jean de Reszke. He was in his sixty-fourth year.

At the early age of twenty-eight there died, on the 3rd ult., at his residence in Eaton Crescent, Swansea, of chest disease, Mr. David Pughe-Evans, a musician and composer of much promise, highly esteemed in the locality and beyond it. He was born at Conwill, near Carmarthen, and when quite young took up his abode in Swansea, where, in the capacity of conductor of the Memorial Chapel Choir, his musical ability attracted much notice, which his subsequent activity as a composer, notably of the well-known setting of Cardinal Newman's hymn "Lead, kindly Light," abundantly justified. His death, following so soon upon that of the late Mr. W. Broad, has left a very serious void in the ranks of Swansea musical society.

News of another relatively premature death in the profession comes to us from Yorkshire, Mr. W. H. Garland, one of the most justly esteemed musicians of the district, having died at Halifax, on the 13th ult., in his forty-fifth year. For the last twelve years he was the organist of Halifax Parish Church. He was conductor of the Choral Society of that town as well as of the Bradford Festival Choir, a Fellow of the Royal College of Organists, and member of the Incorporated Society.

The death, on December 24, in London, of Mrs. Jewson, the widow of Mr. Frederick Bowen Jewson, whose demise we recorded some five years ago, has severed another connecting-link with the musical past of the metropolis. Mrs. Jewson was in her day a pianist of considerable distinction, and was held in affectionate regard by not a few of the younger generation of artists, to whom she had been a helpful friend and judicious adviser. She was the niece and adopted daughter of the late Mrs. Anderson, pianist to Her Majesty, Queen Victoria.

We regret to record the death, on January 31, at Albert Mansions, Battersea Park, of Madame Lehfeldt, widow of Dr. F. W. A. Lehfeldt, in her seventy-sixth year. Appointed on the teaching staff of the Guildhall School of Music from its foundation, the deceased lady had been devoted for more than sixty years to the exercise of her profession, being widely known and esteemed in suburban districts as a concert-giver and teacher, and continuing in active work until within almost a week of her death.

James Clinton, who has for years been known as our leading clarinet player, died on the 4th ult., in London, at the age of forty-four, a victim to consumption. He was the son of Mr. Arthur Clinton, who, though a septuagenarian, is still a clarinet player of repute; while his three surviving brothers, George, Charles, and Fred. Clinton, are likewise well-known instrumentalists.

Cavaliere Antonio Bazzini, the principal director of the Royal Conservatoire in Milan, and one of the most distinguished of contemporary Italian musicians, died in that town on the 12th ult., in his seventy-ninth year. He was a native of Brescia and began his career as an organist, but eventually developed into a violinist of the very first order, whose style was considerably influenced by that of Paganini, and in which capacity he rendered himself famous in concert tours throughout Europe. Returning to Brescia in 1864, he devoted himself for a time exclusively to composition, but some years later accepted a professorship at the Milan Conservatoire, and in 1881 succeeded to the directorship of that institution.

We much regret to learn of the death, on the 5th ult., of Mrs. Annie Betts, the amiable and gifted wife of Mr. Percy Betts, the well-known musical critic. She was the eldest of three sisters, the youngest of whom, Miss Ehrenberg, died only a few months ago, the surviving one being the well-known vocalist and teacher, Miss Giulia Warwick.

We learn with much regret of the decease, on January 24, of Mrs. George Tetley, wife of Mr. Tetley, so long favourably known in connection with the Leeds Musical Festival. Mrs. Tetley was a daughter of the late James Kendrick Pyne, formerly organist of Bath Abbey.

Mr. John Leader, who for many years was honorary secretary of Henry Leslie's Choir, in succession to Mr.

Stanley Lucas, and down to the dissolution of that famous organisation, died at his residence in Hampstead on the 13th ult.

We have also to record the following deaths :—

On January 11, at Savona, Napoleone Redaelli, orchestral conductor, composer of dance music, aged sixty-five.

On January 17, at Budapesth, Johann Vajda, the most popular of contemporary Hungarian lyrical poets, aged seventy.

On January 18, at Berlin, Fritz Spahr, violinist of some note, aged twenty-seven.

On January 20, at Graz, August Skerle, celebrated harpist, aged forty-seven.

On January 20, at Moscow, Carl Herdtmann, for fully sixty years organist of the Lutheran Church.

On January 21, at Oedenburg, Frau V. Bössi (as Olga Gross, a much esteemed concert-singer), aged thirty-seven.

On January 22, at St. Petersburg, M. Karyakin, baritone, of the Imperial Opera.

On January 26, at Düsseldorf, Robert Kratz, highly popular musical director, aged fifty-five.

On January 28, at Liège, Georges Riga, promising violoncellist, laureate of the Conservatoire, aged eighteen.

On January 31, at Baden (Switzerland), Theodor Rauber, musical director and teacher.

On the 1st ult., at Vienna, Frau Mottl, mother of the eminent Carlsruhe Capellmeister, suddenly, aged seventy-nine.

On the 2nd ult., at Berlin, Dr. Eduard Jacobson, author of numerous successful vaudevilles and librettos, aged sixty-three.

On the 2nd ult., at Berlin, Louis H. Meyer, director of the "Beethoven Conservatoire," aged fifty-five.

On the 4th ult., Felice Mancio, at one time a most popular concert singer, and for some years past a highly successful vocal teacher, at Vienna, aged fifty-seven.

On the 9th ult., at Paris, Edouard Pluque, for many years ballet-master at the Opera, aged sixty-five.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

 Notices of Concerts, of which programmes must invariably be sent, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted.

Our correspondents will oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music is always kept in stock, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

Auckland (New Zealand).—An effective performance of "The Second Advent," by Mr A. H. Prendergast, was given on December 2, at St. Mary's Pro-Cathedral. The solos were sung by Mesdames Revitt, Wright, and Babe, the Misses Philson and Corbett, and Messrs. Pollock and Upfill. Mr. Hunt conducted, and Mr. Leslie Hunt, the organist of the church, presided at the organ and played as a concluding voluntary Bach's Organ Fugue in B flat.

Bedford.—Mr. W. H. Brereton gave an attractive miscellaneous Concert, at the Town Hall, on the 3rd ult., when he was assisted by Madame Clara Samuell, Mrs. W. H. Brereton, and Miss Gertrude Collins, the last-named contributing several violin solos which were greatly appreciated.

Darlington.—The sixteenth annual Concert of the Orchestral Society took place on the 11th ult., at the Central Hall. Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony was rendered with marked expression and feeling, and a selection from "Lohengrin" and the Overture to "Der Freischütz" were also effectively played, under the conductorship of Mr. Frederick Tovey. The Royal Windsor Glee Singers sang several part-songs in a finished manner.

Fort William.—The Fort William Select Choir gave its first Concert for the season in the Public Hall on January 12. The programme consisted of a number of well-known glees and part-songs, and were, speaking generally, rendered in a praiseworthy manner, although such pieces as Barnby's "Sweet and low" and Bishop's "Sleep, gentle lady," hardly got the delicate treatment essential to make them effective. On the other hand, "Swiftly from the mountain's brow," "Hail, smiling morn," and the "Rhine-Raft Song" were remarkably well sung. Several songs and duets were also given by members of the choir, and Miss Norah Mackenzie played the accompaniments with notable taste. Much credit is due to Mr. A. Spalding for his efficient conducting and to the committee for their laudable efforts to establish a select choir in the town.

Harrogate.—Messrs. Naylor, Wood, and Whitehouse commenced, on the 6th ult., at the Spa, an excellent series of Chamber Concerts, the instrumentalists being Messrs. J. A. Whitehouse, T. E. Illingworth, A. H. Wood, and C. L. Naylor, with Miss Annie Jackson as vocalist. An attractive programme was rendered in a wholly acceptable manner, and it is to be hoped that this series will meet with the support it deserves.——Messrs. Dittmar gave their second Chamber Concert at the Queen's Hotel on the 4th ult. A good selection of instrumental music was presented and was pleasantly varied by the singing of Miss E. Thornton. Miss Harrold was the accompanist.

Ilkley.—An excellent series of Subscription Chamber Concerts has been given during the past month by Messrs. C. L. Naylor and A. J. Gutfeld, at Wells House. The programmes have been of a high-class character, and the performances have been worthy of the music.

Lewes.—Mr. Horace Jackson gave the concluding orchestral and vocal Concert, on January 27, at the Town Hall, An attractive selection of orchestral pieces, which included Edward German's three Dances from "Henry VIII.," was effectively rendered, and the vocalists were Miss A. Holman, Miss M. Foreshew, and Mr. T. Lynes. The orchestra consisted of twenty-five performers, and Mr. W. Cross was the principal violinist.

Malta.—The dedication of the English Church of St. Paul was commemorated on January 23 by the performance of a selection from the first part of Mendelssohn's oratorio "Saint Paul." The choruses were admirably rendered by the choir, who were much assisted in the accompaniments, which were played by the string band of the Royal Welsh Fusiliers. Miss Hall sang with genuine expression "But the Lord is mindful of His own," and Mr. Robinson, the organist, may be congratulated on the success of his able endeavours.

Pemberton (near Wigan).—The Pemberton and district Choral Society gave its first Concert this season on January 20. Handel's "Messiah" was performed in a most creditable manner by a band and chorus of 150 performers. The solos were well sung by Madame Lizzie Burgess, Miss Kate Macgregor, Mr. H. Berry, and Mr. C. A. Smith. Mr. J. H. Aldred conducted.

Reading.—The Orpheus Society gave its second Concert on January 27, at the Town Hall, under the direction of Dr. Read. The glees and part-songs comprised "When for the world's repose" (Prendergast), "Strike the lyre" (Cooke), "As the moments roll" (Webbe), "Stars of the summer night" (Cruickshank), "On the sea" (Abt), "If doughty deeds" (Cobb), "The lifeboat" (Hatton), "The wild rose and first love" (Debois), and "Holy night" (Beethoven). Several songs were sung by Mrs. Helen Trust, and violin pieces were contributed by Mr. Louis Pecskai.

Sydney (Australia).—The Liedertafel gave its nineteenth Concert on December 12, when the programme included Professor Villiers Stanford's choral ballad "The Revenge," which was admirably rendered. Mr. J. A. Delaney conducted. Mr. Laurence Phillip made a successful début in Grieg's Pianoforte Sonata (Op. 7) and Miss E. O. King's singing of "Qui la voce" was greatly appreciated.

Weymouth and Upwey.—An excellent Concert was given in Weymouth, on the 12th ult., by the Upwey Choral Society and the Weymouth Glee Club. Miss Emma Bullen conducted and Miss Ethel Beetlestone accompanied. Gaul's cantata "Ruth" was sung, the choruses of which were effectively rendered. Mrs. de Merie, Miss Russell, and the Rev. A. Sewell were the principal vocalists. Louis N. Baker's "Wreck of the Hesperus" was given by the Glee Club, and most warmly appreciated. The Concert was successfully repeated at Upwey.

Windermere.—An interesting and comprehensive Lecture, entitled "The Music of England," was delivered by Mr. F. Barton, on January 26, at the Bowness Institute. Madrigals and part-songs were sung by Mesdames E. Branthwaite and J. C. Harrison, Misses Atkinson, Somerville, S. Somerville, Bownass, Pritt, and Illingworth, and Messrs. H. Dawes, W. Longton, E. Atkinson, and the Rev. H. E. Stevens.

Organ Appointments.—Mr. G. C. Burry, Organist and Choirmaster to St. John the Divine, Balham.—Mr. H. Gibbons-Money, Organist and Choirmaster to Trinity College Church, Edinburgh.—Mr. R. J. Pitcher, Organist and Choirmaster to Holy Trinity Church, Scarborough.—Mr. T. W. Lardner, Organist to All Saints' and Holy Trinity Churches, Great Marlow, and Musicmaster at Sir William Borlase's School.—Mr. Henry W. Radford, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, Earlestown, Lancashire.—Mr. C. Williamson, Organist and Choirmaster to St. George's Church, Worcester.—Mr. Ernest Foster, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Michael and All Angels', Sydenham.

Choir Appointments.—Mr. Edgar Critchley, Alto Lay-Clerk to Curzon Chapel, Mayfair.—Mr. Graham Smart, Solo Bass to St. Saviour's Cathedral, Southwark.—Mr. Vernon Taylor, Choirmaster to St. Mark's, Dalston.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

Published on the 1st of every Month. Price 1½d. Annual Subscription, including Postage, 2s.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW for MARCH contains:—

General Notes.
Some Remarks on Flat Singing.
The Italian Ministry of Education and Music in English Schools.
Church of England Training College Students at St. Paul's, Ascension Day.
Answers to a Pupil Teacher Examination Paper.
The Staff Notation in Elementary Schools.
Correspondence.—Movable Doh in the United States.
New Books received.
Graduated Exercises for School Classes.—Both Notations.
Society of Arts.—Examinations in Musical Rudiments and Harmony.
Review.
Miscellaneous Items.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

For MARCH,

contains the following music in both notations:—

"Welcome, bright dawn." Two-part Song from the Cantata "The Hours." By J. L. Roeckel.
"Peal, Organs, forth your praise." Hymn for the Diamond Jubilee.
Easy Studies in Time and Tune.

Also, a Special Music Supplement, containing "Rose, softly blooming." Unison Song. By Spohr. (No. 170, Novello's School Songs, price 2d.).

The Music and Exercises can always be obtained separately. Price 1½d.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

MADAME NELLIE GOSNELL (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c., address, 37, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Square, N.W.

MISS EMMA HINES (Soprano)
MR. JOHN HINES (Tenor)
For Concerts, Banquets, At Homes, &c.
Address, 45, Pattison Road, Plumstead, S.E.

MISS LILIAN TURNBULL (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Banquets, &c.
Address, 10, Cecile Park, Crouch End, N.

MISS GERTRUDE WESLEY
(Contralto and Solo Harpist)
53, High Street, Doncaster.

CONTENTS.

	Page
Victorian Music.—III.	153
Hans von Bülow in his Writings	156
From my Study	158
Richard Wagner's Methods.—III.	160
Music in Animals	162
Occasional Notes	163
Facts, Rumours, and Remarks	165
Church and Organ News	166
The Royal Choral Society	168
Queen's Hall Choral Society	168
Queen's Hall Symphony Concerts	168
Queen's Hall Promenade Concerts	169
Henschel Concerts	169
Sir A. C. Mackenzie's Opera at the Savoy Theatre	170
The Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company	170
Paer's "Il Maëstro di Cappella"	170
Monday and Saturday Popular Concerts	170
Amateur Orchestral Societies	171
The Gompertz String Quartet	171
Walenn Chamber Concerts	172
Mr. Theodore Werner's Violin Recitals	172
Messrs. Plunket Greene and Leonard Borwick's Recitals	172
Mr. Frederick Lamond's Pianoforte Recitals	172
Handel's "Susanna" at the People's Palace	172
The Musical Guild	172
Royal College of Music	173
Royal Academy of Music	173
"Love's Magic," at Woolwich	174
Highbury Philharmonic Society	174
Finsbury Choral Association	174
St. Cuthbert's Choral Society	174
Royal Academy of Music Lectures	174
Gresham Lectures	175
Royal Institution	175
Society of Arts	176
Society for the Encouragement of Fine Arts	176
Musical Association	185
The Vienna Schubert Celebration	185
Reviews	186
Music in Birmingham	187
„ Bristol	188
„ Dublin	188
„ Dundee	188
„ East Anglia	188
„ Edinburgh	189
„ Glasgow	189
„ Liverpool	190
„ Manchester	190
„ Northumberland and Durham	191
„ Nottingham	191
„ Southern Counties	191
„ Yorkshire	192
„ Paris	192
Anthem for Easter—"The strife is o'er."—Bruce Steane	177
Part-Song—"The Queen's Song."—Eaton Faning (Extra Supplement).
General News (London)	193
Foreign Notes	195
Obituary	197
Brief Summary of Country News	198
List of Music published during the last Month	200

MISS WINIFRED PEAKE (Soprano)
Sainton-Dolby Scholar, Silver Medalist and Cert., R.A.M., accepts Engagements for Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c., in Town and Provinces. Strathearn, Broadhurst Gardens, West Hampstead, N.W.

MISS FANNIE SELLERS (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Recitals, &c., Crag Cottage, Knaresbro'.

MRS. HARPER-WOODHEAD (Contralto)
Oratorios, Cantatas, Concerts, &c.
For terms and vacant dates, address, Cowper Street, Leeds.

MR. J. G. BLANCHARD
(Principal Tenor, Italian Church, Hatton Garden)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., address, 41, Savernake Road, N.W.

MR. T. HENRY BREARLEY (Tenor)
Winner of Mrs. Sunderland Medal, „ „ Summerscales Medal.
For terms, address, Halifax.

MR. HARRY ROBERTS (Tenor)
"Crucifixion" for Lent.
43, Sterndale Road, West Kensington, W.

MR. THURGATE SIMPSON (Tenor)
For Oratorios, Operatic Recitals, Ballad Concerts
(Specially engaged for Oratorios).
For répertoire, Press opinions, terms, &c.
Address, Collyhurst, Manchester.

MR. CHARLES HILL (Baritone)
For Concerts, &c. 128, Clarendon Street, Westbourne Square, W.

MR. EDGAR LUNNON (Baritone)
(Of Crystal Palace Concerts, &c.)
Address, 7, Bowerdean Street, Wandsworth Bridge Road, S.W.

SOLO BOY WANTED, immediately, Pro-Cathedral, Kensington. Sunday mornings only. Liberal remuneration. Apply to Choirmaster any Sunday morning.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

ADAMS, THOMAS—"The Cross of Christ." Cantata. For Lent or Passion-tide. The words selected from the Holy Scriptures, interspersed with appropriate Hymns by W. Maurice Adams. 1s. Tonic Sol-fa, 6d. Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

BARNBY, JOSEPH—"Victoria—Our Queen!" Patriotic Chorus. First Violin, 3d.; Second Violin, 3d.; Viola, 3d.; Violoncello and Bass, 3d. Wind Parts, 2s. 3d.

ELGAR, E.—"Imperial March." For Full Orchestra. Arranged for Pianoforte Solo by the Composer. 2s.

WEST, JOHN E.—"Victoria—Our Queen!" March. For Full Orchestra. Founded on Themes from Barnby's Patriotic Chorus, and arranged for Pianoforte Solo. 2s.

PITT, PERCY—"Coronation March." For Full Orchestra. Arranged for Pianoforte Solo by the Composer. 2s. String Parts, 2s. 6d. Wind Parts and Full Score, MS.

HUNTLEY, G. F.—"Victoria; or, The Bard's Prophecy." A Dramatic Cantata. For Soli and Chorus, with Orchestral Accompaniment. The words written by Rev. Charles Kent, M.A. 2s. Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words only, 15s. per 100.

GERMAN, EDWARD—Masque from the music to "As you like it." Arranged for the Pianoforte by the Composer. No. 1. Woodland Dance; No. 2. Children's Dance; No. 3. Rustic Dance. 2s. 6d.

—— "It was a lover and his lass." Duet. For Soprano and Contralto. From the music to "As you like it." 2s.

FLOWER, ELIZA—Musical Illustrations of "The Waverley Novels." Dedicated to Sir Walter Scott, Bart. (Newly engraved edition.) Paper boards, 5s.

RICHARDS, ARTHUR—"Punch and Judy." A Comic Operetta. For Children. The words written by Bernard Page. 1s. 6d. Tonic Sol-fa, 6d. Words only, 12s. 6d. per 100.

VINGOE, A. L.—"The Magician." An Original Humorous Children's Operetta. The libretto written by Louis B. Tisdale. 2s. Tonic Sol-fa, 9d.

TWELVE HYMNS with TUNES, suitable for use at Services held in commemoration of the Queen's long reign (1897). Written by The Rev. S. Baring-Gould, The Rev. W. St. Hill Bourne, The Rev. S. Childs Clarke, The Rev. W. J. Ferrar, Francis T. Palgrave, The Rev. H. D. Rawnsley, The Rev. Bernard Reynolds, and The Very Rev. The Dean of Rochester. Set to Tunes by Sir Joseph Barnby, Sir Alexander C. Mackenzie, Sir Walter Parratt, Sir Arthur Sullivan, Dr. J. Frederick Bridge, Battison Haynes, Dr. Haydn Keeton, Dr. C. H. Lloyd, Dr. G. C. Martin, J. H. Maunder, and John E. West. 2d. Tonic Sol-fa, 2d. Words only, 1d.; or, 5s. per 100.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW. No. 57. Contains the following Music in both Notations:—"How merrily we live." Glee. Composed by Michael Este. Arranged for Three Voices (S.S.A.). "The Arethusa." Unison Song. By Shield. Easy Studies in Time and Tune. 1½d.

NOVELLO'S SCHOOL SONGS.—Edited by W. G. McNaught. Published in two forms. A. Voice Parts, in Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. 8vo size; B. Voice Parts only in Tonic Sol-fa Notation.

		A.	B.
No. 74.	O children, live in Jesus Christ. Easter Song .. .. .. Alfred Moffat	1d.	—
„ 287.	Now pray we for our country. Arranged for S.S.A. .. .. .. Eliza Flower	1d.	—
„ 398.	North-West Passage. Unison Song R. H. Macdonald	2d.	—
„ 400.	Young night thought. Unison Song R. H. Macdonald	1d.	—
„ 407.	The Cuckoo. Two-part Song. Welsh and English words.. .. J. H. Roberts	1d.	—
„ 407.	The Cuckoo } Welsh and English
„ 408.	My own little Pony } words J. H. Roberts	—	1d.
„ 409.	The Blackbird } Welsh and English
„ 410.	The old Kitchen Clock } words J. H. Roberts	—	1d.
„ 411.	The True Patriot } Welsh and English
„ 412.	To the woods away } words J. H. Roberts	—	1d.
„ 413.	The Bard of Glanconwy. Two-part Song. Welsh and English words J. H. Roberts	1d.	—
„ 417.	The Fox and the Grapes. Two-part Song. Welsh and English words J. H. Roberts	1d.	—
„ 418.	My Land. Two-part Song. Welsh and English words.. .. J. H. Roberts	1d.	—

ADAMS, JOSEPH H.—"A Day in Summer." A Juvenile Cantata. Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

GAUL, A. R.—"Toilers of the deep." Words only, 5s. per 100.

FOSTER, MYLES B.—"The Queen—God bless her!" A Patriotic Part-Song. Words only, 3s. per 100.

SANDERSON, T.—Hymn for Good Friday. The words written by Charles F. Grindrod. 3d.

ALCOCK, GILBERT A.—(in D). Kyrie. On Card. 2d.

DING, JOHN—(in G). Office for the Holy Communion, including Benedictus, Agnus Dei, &c. 4d.

FLORIO, CARYL—(in B flat). Benedicite, omnia Opera, Domini. 2d.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

FIELD, J. T.—Offertory Sentences. (No. 333. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 3d.

—— The Offertory Sentences. (No. 334. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 3d.

—— The Offertory Sentences. (No. 335. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 3d.

—— The Offertory Sentences. (No. 336. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 3d.

FOSTER, MYLES B.—(in F). Benedicite, omnia Opera (Chant Form). (No. 328. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 4d.

MORLEY, FELIX W.—(in E flat). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 6d.

PALMER, JOHN—(in G). Chant Settings to the Morning and Evening Canticles. 2d.

PULLAN, CHARLES H.—(in F). Te Deum laudamus. 3d.

SCHILLING, W. H.—(in F). The Office for the Holy Communion. Comprising Kyrie, Before and After Gospel, Credo, Sursum Corda, Sanctus, Benedictus, Agnus Dei, and Gloria in Excelsis. 6d.

SHEPARD, THOMAS G.—(in E flat). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. 3d.

STAINER, J.—(in D). Benedictus. 4th Series (Gregorian Tones). (No. 337. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 2d.

TROMAN, THOMAS—(in E flat). Te Deum laudamus. 3d.

WELCH, H. T.—The Preces and Responses for Morning and Evening Prayer. Also The Litany, with Organ Accompaniment for the Priest's Part. 4d. 2s. 6d. per dozen.

DENNIS, HENRY—"The Better Land." (No. 50. School Anniversary Music.) 2d.

FOSTER, MYLES B.—"O come let us sing." Easy Easter Anthem. For Bass Solo and Chorus. (No. 569. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

LLOYD, R. F.—"Let the righteous be glad." Full Anthem. For S.A.T.B. (No. 565. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

MORRIS, HERBERT C.—"Lord of all power and might." Anthem. For Four Voices. 2d.

REID, FRANK—"Art thou weary." Hymn. The words translated by Rev. J. M. Neale (from the Greek), and set to music for Tenor (or Soprano) Solo and Chorus, with Accompaniment for the Organ. 3d.

COWEN, F. H.—"All hail the glorious reign." A Commemoration Ode. For Chorus and Orchestra. The words by Clifton Bingham. (No. 775. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 4d. Tonic Sol-fa, 2d. Words only, 3s. per 100.

FANING, EATON—"The Queen's Song. A.D. 1897." The words written by Sir Edwin Arnold, K.C.I.E., C.S.I. (No. 764. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 4d. Words only, 3s. per 100.

MOTT, GEORGE E.—"Soft evening shadows cross the sky." Part-Song. For S.A.T.B. The words written by H. B. Clark. 3d.

WHISHAW, BERNHARD.—"A wet sheet and a flowing sea." Part-Song. For A.T.T.B. The words written by Allan Cunningham. 4d.

SALAMAN, CHARLES—"The Butterfly Song." From François Coppée's "Pour la Couronne." Translated by John Davidson. 2s.

ORGAN WORKS of JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH. Edited by J. F. Bridge and James Higgs. In separate numbers. No. 13. Grand Choral Prelude, "Christ unser Herr zum Jordan kam." 1s.

NOVELLO'S PUBLICATIONS in the TONIC SOL-FA NOTATION. Edited by W. G. McNaught.

No. 962. The Lord great wonders for us hath wrought F. Hiller 1½d.

„ 963. The Queen's Song .. .. Eaton Faning 2d.

MAUNDER, J. H.—"We declare unto you." 2d.

REDUCED PRICE.

LLOYD, C. H.—"Alcestis." 1s. 6d.

MACKENZIE, A. C.—"A Jubilee Ode." 1s. 6d.

MR.
A. MONTAGUE BORWELL
L.R.A.M., A.G.S.M. (BARITONE).
Prize-winner, Solo Singing and Sight Reading, Stratford Musical Festival. Medalist, Soc. Arts.
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. 16, Springfield, Upper Clapton, N.E.

MR. FREDERIC HOSKING
(BARITONE)
For Oratorio and other Engagements.
Address, 37, Lawford Road, Camden Road, N.W.

MR.
BLAXLAND'S SOLO BOYS
FOR CHURCH FESTIVALS, CONCERTS, BANQUETS, &c.
(Usual Advertisement too late for insertion).
Apply, Mr. Blaxland, 15, Tavistock Crescent, Westbourne Park, W.

SOPRANO, with thoroughly-trained voice, will give SERVICES at Oratorio, Operatic, and Ballad Concerts for expenses. Large répertoire. Artist, Novello & Co., 1, Berners St., W.

THE CRICHTON PART-SINGERS

HAYDN GROVER (Alto) | HERBERT DYER (Tenor)
HUGH COCHRANE (Baritone) | FREDERICK KING (Bass)

"For well-balanced harmony, delicate phrasing, and sweetness of voice it would be hard to find their peers."—Morning Leader, December 7, 1896.

"The evening was notable for the admirable singing of a male-voice quartet, known as the 'Crichton Part-Singers,' and they were heard in Hatton's exquisite glee 'When evening's twilight,' and two compositions by Haydn Grover. They are evidently a highly disciplined body of vocalists, and our impressions are very favourable."—Bayswater Chronicle, February 13, 1897.

"The other vocalists were the 'Crichton Part-Singers,' an admirable quartet whose voices beautifully blended, and in addition to a couple of quartets and part-songs, admirably rendered, each sang at least one solo in faultless style."—Southampton Echo, January 21, 1897.

For Press critiques, vacant dates, and terms, apply, 40, Warbeck Road, Uxbridge Road, W.

ALTO WANTED, immediately, for St. Mary Magdalene's, Paddington. Communicant. Strong voice and good reader essential. Salary, £10. Apply, by letter only, Choirmaster, 64, Westbourne Park Villas, W.

TENOR WANTED, for St. Paul's, Camden Square. Good reader. Soloist. Communicant. Stipend, £20. Address, Vicar, 37, Camden Square, N.W.

BASS WANTED, at St. Luke's, Sydney Street, Chelsea. Stipend, £16 per annum. Good reader indispensable. Apply, after Sunday Evening Services, or on Friday evenings, at 9 o'clock.

CONCERT ORGANISERS, CONDUCTORS of CHORAL SOCIETIES, &c., in the Provinces, should apply to the Albion Concert Bureau, 298, Regent Street, London, for particulars of Artists who may be booked for neighbourhood or en route about the time of their fixture. Special terms for Quartet in North of England and Scotland during March and April. Telegrams—"Intonate, London."

IMPORTANT to VOCALISTS, &c.—The ALBION CONCERT BUREAU, 298, Regent Street, London, W., will, if advised of all Provincial Engagements secured, do their best to fit in consecutive dates. Full particulars on application.

THE TRAINING OF TENORS. DAVIDSON PALMER'S METHOD. For some account of this method of training Tenors, see the article on the True Nature of Falsetto in the February number of The Nineteenth Century.

MR. DAVIDSON PALMER, Mus. Bac., Oxon., gives Lessons at his residence, and at the West-End. For terms, &c., address, 2, Highwood Road, Upper Holloway, N.

DR. W. BENTHAM, F.R.C.O., Organist of St. James's Church, Bolton, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL. Exceptional advantages. Very moderate terms. 18, Russell Street, Bolton.

PUPIL-ASSISTANT.—Mr. F. W. WHITEHEAD, A.R.C.O., Organist and Choirmaster (High Church, and Principal Inverness School of Music), requires a PUPIL-ASSISTANT, who could give instruction in Violin playing. Exceptional advantages. Address, 6, Ness Bank, Inverness.

ORGANIST WANTED, for Warwick Road Congregational Church, Coventry. Salary, £50. Applications, endorsed "Organist," to be sent to Mr. T. H. Adams, 12, King Street, Coventry, on or before March 6.

EXPERIENCED ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER desires APPOINTMENT. Excellent testimonials and references. Recitalist. Good organ. Address, F. W. L., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST and ACCOMPANIST (lady cert.) desires ENGAGEMENT. Experienced. Good reader. Private practice, &c. Address, E., 4, Park Lodge Villas, East Finchley.

ORGANISTS and others requiring only a limited number of their Compositions should send for DINHAM, BLYTH and CO.'S SPECIMENS (free) of their auto-litho printing. Anthems, Kyries, Songs, &c., from 24 copies and upwards. 28, Fenchurch Street, London. Established 1872.

TO ORGANISTS.—Convenient detached HOUSE to LET, in St. John's Wood. Two sitting, four bedrooms. Garden, front and rear. Rent, £55. Excellent two-manual and pedal organ, ten speaking stops (blown by hand or water), now in drawing-room. May be purchased, a bargain. Address, House, care of Gee and Co., Advertising Agents, 34, Moorgate Street, E.C.

WANTED, first-class Country TUNER for East of England district. Must be energetic, pushing, and steady. Married man preferred. State full particulars, experience, age, and salary. S. B., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

SITUATION WANTED, by experienced TUNER, in London or suburbs. Good salesman and canvasser. Highest references. K. B., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

SALESMAN or TUNER. — SITUATION REQUIRED as above. Seven years' experience. First-class Tuner and Repairer. Splendid Pianist. Excellent references. London or suburbs. K. L., 37, Warbeck Road, Shepherd's Bush, W.

PIANOFORTE TUNER, &c., WANTED. State terms. Sparks and Son, Littlehampton.

AN experienced TUNER requires a permanent RE-ENGAGEMENT. Has a good practical knowledge of Organs and Harmoniums, &c. Apply, J. M., Novello, Ewer and Co.

ADVERTISER, of considerable experience in the Music Trade and first-class Tuner, Regulator, &c., of Pianos, American Organs, &c., seeks POSITION as MANAGER, Out-door Tuner, or Working Partner, or would be pleased to meet a publisher where editing, authorship, partial travelling, and indoor work would be beneficial. Address, Experto, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

MUSIC SALESMAN, exceptionally qualified, wishes SITUATION in South of England or Ireland. Advertiser seeks change from Northern climate. Excellent references from present and former employers. For full particulars, address, Salesman, Box 17,297, C. A. G. Browne, 145, Fleet Street, E.C.

GOOD ASSISTANT for Piano, Violin, and Music Trade WANTED, for Town in Midlands. Send photo. State age, references, previous experience, and salary required. C. W., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGAN for SALE (Bargain).—Powerful, rich-toned ONE-MANUAL. C.O. pedals. Independent pedal organ. Handsome Gothic case. Decorated front pipes. 6 stops. High-class construction and guaranteed. Price £55. Hewitt, Organ Builder, St. Luke's Yard, Bravington Road, Paddington, W.

ORGAN.—An excellent Two-manual ORGAN, containing 13 stops and all the latest improvements. Price only £150. Must be sold to make room for larger instrument. Fincham's Organ Factory, 150, Euston Road, London.

THREE-MANUAL American ORGAN (Mason & Hamlin). Nearly new. Full compass pedals; 32 stops; 6 composition pedals; including Blennerhasset's patent hydraulic engine for blowing same. Great bargain; must be sold at once. Apply, W. Westfield, Wellingborough.

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

Examinations for Degrees in Music are held in March and September. Full particulars, with copies of former papers, of Dr. Armes, The Bailey, Durham.

EASY SETTING OF THE

BENEDICITE

By Dr. S. S. WESLEY.

Price Twopence.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just Published.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat, for Full Orchestra and Organ. By Felix W. Morley, M.A., Mus.B., Cantab. Octavo score, with Organ Accompaniment, price 6d. The Orchestral Parts may shortly be had on hire from the Composer.
London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Revised Edition. Price 6s.

PARR'S PSALMODY: 402 Tunes, 345 Chants, and various Responses, with Memoirs of the Composers and Histories of the Pieces. Authentic information, nowhere else to be found. London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Ready, March.

O NOBLE QUEEN OF ENGLAND. Joyous Part-Song (S.A.T.B.) for Her Majesty's Diamond Jubilee. Written by W. Parker Robinson. Composed by T. Simpson (Editor, &c., of the Burnley Tune Book).

"O noble Queen of England,
Thou Empress of the Free:
We hail with exultation
Thy Diamond Jubilee."

All Glee Parties, Choral Societies, and School Festival Committees should see this Part-Song, which is bright, joyous, and tuneful, and very suitable for marching, &c. Price 4d.
London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.
Burnley: T. Simpson.

SONGS by T. E. SPINNEY

THE SEA HATH ITS PEARLS
THE SINGER NOT THE SONG

Two Shillings each net.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Now Ready.

CAPRICE, by Kate Willis, for Violin or Flute, with Pianoforte.

Price Four Shillings.
C. Woolhouse, 174, Wardour Street, W.

HUMOROUS PART-SONG FOR S.A.T.B.

TOM, THE PIPER'S SON. By A. Ben Allen, Composer of "Dickory, dickory, dock." Price 3d.
London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

VIOLINS AND CELLOS.

COLLIN-MÉZIN (of Paris),
VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, AND BOW MAKER.

Gold and Silver Medals at the Exhibitions of Paris, 1878; Paris, 1897; Paris, 1889—Academical Palms (Fine Arts).

THE MOST PERFECT IN THE WORLD.
USED BY THE GREATEST ARTISTS,
AND CONSIDERED BY MASTERS
THE MODERN STRADIVARIUS.

"No comparison can be made, the Instruments of Collin-Mézin being the Instruments for Soloists."—Camillo Sivori.

METZLER AND CO., 42, Marlborough Street, London, W.,
Sole Wholesale and Retail Agents.

Awarded Medal of Honour at the International Inventions Exhibition, London, 1885.

THE ONLY AWARD.

RUMMENS'
Organ Pedal Attachment
FOR PIANOFORTES.

DETACHABLE PEDAL BOARD.
EQUAL TO ORGAN PRACTICE.

Testimonials from all the Chief Organists of the day.
Write for particulars to
H. J. RUMMENS,
47, CHURCH ROAD, BRIXTON, S.W.

THE OLD FIRM.

P. CONACHER & CO.,
Organ Builders,
SPRINGWOOD WORKS,
HUDDERSFIELD.
TWO GOLD MEDALS.

NICHOLSON AND CO.,
ORGAN BUILDERS,
PALACE YARD, WORCESTER.
(ESTABLISHED 1841.)
Specifications and Estimates sent free.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.
MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 7, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights, Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

FOURTEENTH MUSICAL PRIZE COMPETITION.—FOUR PRIZES of THREE GUINEAS each for Tunes suitable to be sung by Children at Sacred Festivals. Send stamps for conditions and words of Hymns.
JAMES BROADBENT, 13, Brunswick Place, Leeds.

STRING QUARTETS, &c., for SALE. Bound in cloth. List on application to F., Addiscombe Lodge, Croydon.

WEEKLY ORCHESTRAL PRACTICE, near Holborn Town Hall, on a plan which ensures orchestral effect in spite of vacancies. Apply to Philomel, 54, Thornfield Road, Shepherd's Bush.

COMPLETE AND REVISED EDITION.

THE BRISTOL TUNE BOOK
CONTAINING
905 TUNES AND CHANTS.

A COMPANION TO ALL HYMN BOOKS.

Although nearly every denomination has its own Tune Book, the wealth of special tunes and metres contained in the Bristol Tune Book renders it indispensable to every well-equipped Choir.

		s.	d.
No. 17.	Limp Cloth	5	0
,, 18.	Cloth Boards, red edges	6	0
,, 19.	Small Edition	3	6
,, 20.	Tonic Sol-fa	3	6

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.
Bristol: W. Crofton Hemmons, Stephen Street.
And all Booksellers and Musicsellers.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.
THE TUNE BOOK, with the additional Tunes as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN, containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

FOR 1897 FESTIVALS.

Every Choirmaster should see a copy of the following
POPULAR, EASY, & ATTRACTIVE CHURCH COMPOSITIONS
BY
F. R. GREENISH, Mus. Doc., Oxon.

ANTHEMS.
AWAKE, PUT ON THY STRENGTH. 4th 1,000. Price 4d. Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.
Has won golden opinions everywhere. Free from difficulties yet full of variety. Sung at Haverfordwest (500 voices), Wellingboro' (750 voices), Longwood Church, Huddersfield, and Centenary Hall, Sydney, Australia (both with Orchestra).
Very highly spoken of by the musical press.
O GOD, MY SOUL THIRSTETH. 9th 1,000. Price 3d.
Immensely popular wherever heard. Very easy, with expressive Solo for Soprano or Tenor.
Quartet—AND GOD SHALL WIPE AWAY ALL TEARS. Price 3d.
From the Cantata "The Church Triumphant."
MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS in D. Price 3d.
SIX KYRIES. Price 2d.
Specimen copy of any of the above sent Post-free, on application to Dr. F. R. Greenish, Haverfordwest, from whom may also be had Orchestral Parts of "Awake, put on thy strength."
London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Third Thousand.
TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in G. By Alfred J. Dye. Price 4d.
London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Fourth Thousand.
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat. By William S. Vinning, Mus. Bac., Cantab. Price 3d.
London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

New and Enlarged Edition, 1897.
PRACTICAL HINTS ON THE TRAINING OF CHOIRBOYS. By G. Edward Stubbs, M.A., Organist and Choirmaster of St. Agnes Chapel, Trinity Parish, New York. Clergymen, Choirmasters, School Teachers, and others interested in the culture of Boys' voices, will find this work specially adapted to their wants. The vocal theories advanced are clear, concise, and based strictly upon the teaching of the most eminent vocal authorities. On the subject of Choir Management the book covers a wide field of information. Both from a scientific and from a general standpoint it is what its name implies, a practical manual, and it is recommended to all who are responsible for the training of boys' voices.
Price Three Shillings and Sixpence.
London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE PRECES and RESPONSES for MORNING and EVENING PRAYER; also the Litany, with Organ Accompaniment, for Priests' Part. Set to music by H. T. Welch. Price 4d.; 2s. 6d. per dozen.
London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

"An attractive and effective composition."—Musical Times.
"An easily learnt Anthem."—Sheffield Daily Post.
"A most devotional composition."—Newcastle Chronicle.
"This Anthem will be much appreciated by all who wish something fresh and not too difficult."—Aberdeen Journal.
"Smoothly and pleasantly written."—Western Times (Exeter).
"Tuneful, and easy to sing."—Leeds Mercury.

CHRIST IS RISEN

ANTHEM FOR EASTER

BY

E. A. SYDENHAM.

Price Threepence. Tonic Sol-fa, price Three-Halfpence.
London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

EASTER ANTHEMS

BY

J. H. MAUNDER.

	Staff.	Tonic.
Christ is risen (Easy)	3d.	2d.
We declare unto you (Just Published. Medium)	3d.	2d.
Sing unto the Lord (Difficult)	3d.	—
Also,
Three Popular Settings of the Benedicite:— No. 1, in A, 1½d.; No. 2, in G, 2d.; No. 3, in F, 1½d.
and
Three Popular Evening Services:—
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in C	3d.	2d.
" " in D	3d.	—
" " in G (New)	3d.	—

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

CHURCH MUSIC

BY

EDWARD BUNNETT, Mus.D., Cantab.

SERVICES.

Two Settings of the Venite (in Chant Form). No. 1 (in G), No. 2 (in A)	2d.
Te Deum in E	3d.
Benedictus and Jubilate in E	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in E	3d.
Cantate and Deus in E	3d.
Communion Service	9d.
Preces and Responses	4d.
Tonic Sol-fa.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F	1½d.
" " " A	1½d.
" " " E	1½d.

ANTHEMS.

Easter Anthem—"If we believe"	4d.
" " " Tonic Sol-fa	1½d.
" "I will magnify Thee"	3d.
" " " Tonic Sol-fa	1½d.
Festival—"O clap your hands"	4d.
" " Tonic Sol-fa	2d.
" "I was glad"	3d.
" " " Tonic Sol-fa	2d.

Song—"By the Wayside" (Soprano), with Violin Obbligato and Organ or Harmonium net	2s.
"The Last Prayer" (Contralto) "	2s.

ORGAN.

Twelve Short Easy Pieces net	2s. 0d.
Three Short Andantes "	2s. 0d.
Minuetto "	1s. 6d.
Ave Maria "	1s. 6d.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

I KNOW THAT MY REDEEMER LIVETH.

Easter Anthem. By T. Mee Pattison. Two Choruses and Bass Solo. Price Threepence.
London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ORGANISTS requiring an easy and really effective and attractive Easter Anthem should get Frank Adlam's I WILL RANSOM THEM. Price Threepence.
London: Hart and Co., 22, Paternoster Row, E.C.

HANDEL FESTIVAL.

WANTED, a COPY of the BOOK OF WORDS and LIST OF PERFORMERS of each of the HANDEL FESTIVALS, 1859, 1862, 1865, and 1868. 2s. 6d. each will be given for the four copies. Apply, A. H. C., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

NEW EASTER MUSIC, &c.,

By CALEB SIMPER.

IF YE THEN BE RISEN WITH CHRIST.

Price 4d. Tonic Sol-fa, 2d. A powerful and inspiring Anthem, containing a grand and impressive Bass Solo. 4th 1,000.

ANNIVERSARY SELECTION, No. 4. Price 2d. Tonic Sol-fa, 2d. Interesting, stirring, catchy, and effective. Contains Six Pieces and an Anthem.

Also the following universal favourites:—

*O let your songs be of Him. 7th 1,000	3d.
*And behold I am alive. 9th 1,000	4d.
*To Him be Glory. 7th 1,000	3d.
*King of Kings. New and very popular Easter Anthem. Twenty-second Thousand. Now ready.	4d.
*Christ our Passover. New Easter Anthem. 9th 1,000	4d.
*I am He that Liveth. 15th 1,000	4d.
Sung at several Choral Festivals.
He is risen (79th ed.). O sing to the Lord (6th 1,000) each	3d.
Why seek ye (23rd ed.). If we believe (15th 1,000) each	3d.
And behold there was a great earthquake. 14th 1,000	3d.
The Lord is my strength 12th 1,000	3d.
Hallelujah! now is Christ risen. 16th 1,000. An easy arrangement of a portion of Handel's "Hallelujah" Chorus.	3d.
*This is the Lord's doing. 5th 1,000	3d.
*Awake, thou that sleepest. 15th 1,000	3d.
Christ is risen. 13th edition	4d.
Easy Holy Communion Service in E flat. 14th 1,000	4d.
*Easy Holy Communion Service in G. 5th 1,000	4d.
Holy Communion Service, in F. 10th edition	6d.
Popular Festal Chant Te Deum in A flat. 8th 1,000	2d.
Te Deum in G. 13th edition. 4d. Te Deum in F. 32nd edition	3d.
Celebrated Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F. 73rd edit. Sung at Fifteen Choral Festivals.	4d.
Favourite Magnificat and Nunc dim. in E flat. 27th edition Sung at Three Choral Festivals.	4d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in G. 10th edition	4d.
New Festal Magnificat and Nunc dim. in B flat. 2nd 1,000	4d.
*New Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in D. 10th edition Partly in unison. Already a great favourite.	4d.
Popular Benedicites in A, B flat, F, and E flat each	2d.

Those marked (*) are also published in Tonic Sol-fa.

THE ROLLING SEASONS

A New Sacred Cantata. By Caleb Simper.

Price 1s. 6d. net. Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. net.

Band Parts are also printed for Strings, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon, 2 Horns, 2 Cornets, 2 Trombones, Timpani, and Organ.

With the exception of Two Hymns and a Carol, the words are selected from the Holy Scriptures. The music, both Vocal and Instrumental, is attractive, interesting, and not difficult. It requires Four Soloists and Full Chorus, and occupies 35 minutes in performance. This Cantata may be rendered with Organ Accompaniment only, but the Orchestral Parts add greatly to the effect. It is especially suitable for Church use at Whitsuntide and Harvest-tide.

Opinions:—"We are all charmed with Cantata. My choir like it so much."—"The 'Rolling Seasons' is splendid."—"Cantata is delightful. I am sure it will have a large sale."—"We have Cantata in rehearsal, and like it very much."—"Cantata is bold, effective, and unique; we are much pleased with it."—"'Rolling Seasons' is exceedingly pretty."—"I like Cantata much, and shall prepare it for Whitsuntide."—"I am simply charmed with the Cantata; you have certainly achieved a great success," &c.

New Song, GOD BLESS OUR QUEEN. Net 1s. 6d.
Also a small octavo edition, harmonised for Choirs and Schools, &c. Price 2d. (Compass, C to E.)
London: Weekes and Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W. Chicago, U.S.A.: Clayton F. Summy Co., 220, Wabash Avenue.

Very effective, and not difficult.

EDWYN A. CLARE'S

NEW AND ATTRACTIVE

EASTER ANTHEMS.

CHRIST SHALL GIVE THEE LIGHT

7th 1,000. Price 3d. Very pleasing, easy, and melodious.

THANKS BE TO GOD

7th 1,000. Price 4d.

Contains melodious and expressive Solos for Bass and Soprano (or Tenor), with Two animated, imitative, and telling Choruses. Also,

He is risen (13th 1,000). Why seek ye (10th 1,000) each	3d.
Hallelujah! now is Christ risen. 8th 1,000	3d.
Now is Christ risen. 7th 1,000	3d.
The Lord reigneth. 5th 1,000 (Sol-fa, 2d.)	3d.
Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem. 17th 1,000 A popular and easy Anthem, suitable for any season.	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, in D. 9th 1,000 Sung at a Choir Festival at Petersham, New South Wales.	4d.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co

MUSIC FOR LENT.

ANTHEMS.

*All ye who weep	Ch. Gounod	3d.
Art thou weary	C. H. Lloyd	6d.
*As pants the hart	Spohr	1½d.
Be merciful unto me	H. Purcell	6d.
Be merciful unto me	E. A. Sydenham	3d.
Be not Thou far from me, O God	F. W. Hird	1½d.
Blessed are they that mourn	A. W. Batson	3d.
Blessed Jesu, Fount of Mercy	Anton Dvorák	6d.
Bow down Thine ear, O Lord	W. Beale	1½d.
Bow Thine ear, O Lord	W. Byrd	3d.
*By Babylon's wave	Ch. Gounod	6d.
By the waters of Babylon	W. Boyce	4d.
By the waters of Babylon	H. Clarke	4d.
Call to remembrance	J. Battishill	6d.
Call to remembrance	R. Farrant	1½d.
*Cast thy burden upon the Lord	Mendelssohn	1½d.
*Come, and let us return	J. Goss	3d.
*Come, and let us return	W. Jackson	3d.
Come, let us worship	Palestrina	1½d.
*Come now, and let us reason together	R. Briant	1½d.
*Come unto Him	Ch. Gounod	2d.
Come unto Me	J. S. Bach	3d.
Come unto Me	H. R. Couldrey	3d.
Come unto Me	M. Kingston	1½d.
Come unto Me	J. S. Smith	1½d.
*Comfort, O Lord	W. Crotch	1½d.
Daughters of Jerusalem	G. J. Elvey	1½d.
Daughters of Jerusalem	H. J. King	3d.
Distracted with care	J. Haydn	4d.
*Enter not into judgment	T. Attwood	1½d.
Flee from evil	W. J. Clarke	3d.
For our offences	Mendelssohn	1½d.
From the deep	Spohr	6d.
Give ear, O Lord	C. Oberthür	1½d.
*Give ear, O Lord	T. M. Pattison	2d.
Give ear, O Shepherd of Israel	A. Whiting	3d.
Give ear unto my prayer	J. Arcadelt	1½d.
*God so loved the world	J. Goss	1½d.
*God so loved the world	M. Kingston	1½d.
*God so loved the world	J. V. Roberts	3d.
*God so loved the world	J. Stainer	1½d.
Grant, we beseech Thee	J. Booth	1½d.
Grant, we beseech Thee	J. V. Roberts	3d.
Have mercy upon me, O God	J. Goss	4d.
Have mercy upon me	K. J. Pye	3d.
Have mercy upon me	J. Shaw	3d.
Have mercy upon me	J. White	1½d.
*Hear me when I call	King Hall	1½d.
*Hear my prayer	J. Kent	3d.
*Hear my prayer	Mendelssohn	4d.
Hear my prayer	C. Stroud	4d.
Hear my prayer	Winter	1½d.
Hear, O Lord	J. Goss	2d.
Hear, O Thou Shepherd	J. Clarke-Whitfeld	4d.
Hear, O Thou Shepherd	T. A. Walmisley	4d.
*Hear the voice and prayer	J. L. Hopkins	1½d.
Hear us, O Saviour	M. Hauptmann	1½d.
He in tears that soweth	F. Hiller	1½d.
Hide not Thy Face	K. J. Pye	2d.
*Hymn of Peace	W. H. Callcott	1½d.
*Incline Thine ear	Himmel	1½d.
In Thee, O Lord	S. Coleridge-Taylor	3d.
*In Thee, O Lord	B. Tours	3d.
In Thee, O Lord	J. Weldon	3d.
Is it nothing to you? (Two-part, S.A.)	M. B. Foster	3d.
*Is it nothing to you? (S.A.T.B.)	M. B. Foster	3d.
I will arise	C. Wood	1½d.
I will cry unto God	C. Steggall	3d.
*I wrestle and pray	J. C. Bach	4d.
*Jesu, Blessed Word of God	Ch. Gounod	1½d.
Jesu, Lord of life and glory	G. A. Naumann	1½d.
Jesu, Saviour, I am Thine	B. Steane	1½d
*Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	Ch. Gounod	1½d.
*Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	W. S. Hoyte	1½d.
*Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	Mozart	1½d.
Jesu, Word of God Incarnate	J. White	1½d.
Judge me, O God	F. A. G. Ouseley	1½d.
Lead, kindly Light	R. Dunstan	3d.
Lead, kindly Light	C. L. Naylor	4d.
*Lead, kindly Light	J. Stainer	4d.
Lead me, Lord	S. S. Wesley	1½d.
Let the words of my mouth	J. Barnby	1½d.
Let the words of my mouth	H. Blair	1½d.
Let the words of my mouth	A. D. Culley	3d.
Let us come boldly	C. H. Lloyd	1½d.
Like as the hart	T. Adams	3d.
*Like as the hart	V. Novello	1½d.
*Lord, for Thy tender mercies' sake	R. Farrant	1½d.
Lord, for Thy tender mercies' sake	G. R. Vicars	1½d.
Lord, I call upon Thee	A. D. Culley	1½d.
Lord, I call upon Thee	F. A. G. Ouseley	1½d.
Lord, I call upon Thee	J. E. West	1½d.
Lord, on our offences	Mendelssohn	1½d.
Make me a clean heart	J. Barnby	3d.
Make me a clean heart	A. W. Batson	3d.
My God, I love Thee	G. J. Bennett	3d.
My God, look upon me	J. L. Hopkins	3d.
*My God, look upon me	J. Reynolds	1½d.
O come near to the Cross	Ch. Gounod	8d.
O day of penitence	Ch. Gounod	6d.
O God, Thou hast cast us out	H. Purcell	4d.
O have mercy	H. Leslie	1½d.
O Jesu! Victim blest	J. B. Powell	3d.
*O Lamb of God	J. Barnby	3d.
O Lamb of God	G. E. Lake	1½d.
O Lord, correct me	J. Coward	1½d.
O Lord, give ear	W. H. Cummings	2d.
O Lord God of my salvation (Male voices)	E. Ford	4d.
O Lord God, Thou strength	J. Goss	1½d.
O Lord, look down	J. Battishill	3d.
*O Lord, my God	C. Malan	1½d.
*O Lord, my God	S. S. Wesley	1½d.
O Lord, rebuke me not	H. Lahee	1½d.
O most merciful	J. W. Elliott	1½d.
O saving Victim	W. A. C. Cruickshank	3d.
O saving Victim	Ch. Gounod	4d.
*O saving Victim	F. Kœnig	1½d.
O saving Victim	Rossini	3d.
O saving Victim	B. Tours	1½d.
*O Saviour of the world	J. Goss	1½d.
O Saviour of the world (A.T.T.B.)	J. V. Roberts	2d.
Out of the deep	F. E. Gladstone	3d.
Out of the deep	Mozart	1½d.
Out of the deep	J. Naylor	4d.
Ponder my words, O Lord	A. D. Culley	1½d.
*Remember not, Lord	H. Purcell	1½d.
*Remember now thy Creator	C. Steggall	4d.
Remember, O Lord	T. A. Walmisley	4d.
*Rend your heart	J. B. Calkin	1½d.
Rend your heart	J. Clippingdale	3d.
Save me, O God	C. S. Jekyll	1½d.
*Seek ye the Lord	C. Bradley	1½d.
*Seek ye the Lord	J. V. Roberts	3d.
Show me Thy ways	J. V. Roberts	3d.
Spare us, Lord, most holy	E. A. Sydenham	1½d.
*Teach me, O Lord	T. Attwood	1½d.
*Teach me, O Lord	B. Rogers	1½d.
Teach me Thy way	W. H. Gladstone	1½d.
*The path of the just	J. V. Roberts	1½d.
The sacrifices of God	H. Blair	1½d.
*The Story of the Cross	M. B. Foster	3d.
*The Story of the Cross	A. Somervell	3d.
*The Story of the Cross	J. Stainer	3d.
*The Story of the Cross	J. V. Roberts	3d.
Think, good Jesu	Mozart	6d.
*Through peace to light	J. H. Roberts	3d.
Thus saith the Lord	G. M. Garrett	6d.
Try me, O God (A.T.T.B.)	A. D. Culley	2d.
Try me, O God	C. Wood	1½d.
Turn Thee again, O Lord	T. Attwood	1½d.
*Turn Thy face from my sins	T. Attwood	1½d.
Turn Thy face from my sins	C. Steggall	4d.
*Turn Thy face from my sins	A. Sullivan	1½d
Unto Thee have I cried	G. J. Elvey	3d.
Wash me throughly	S. S. Wesley	3d.
Watch ye and pray	G. R. Vicars	2d.
Word of God Incarnate	Ch. Gounod	3d.
Ye who from His ways have turned	Mendelssohn	3d.

Anthems marked thus * to be had in Tonic Sol-fa, 1d., 1½d., and 2d. each.

THE PASSION OF CHRIST. G. F. HANDEL. Octavo, 3s.; paper boards, 3s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 5s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (The Seven Words of our Saviour on the Cross.) J. HAYDN. Octavo, 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. (The Seven Words of our Saviour on the Cross.) CH. GOUNOD. Octavo, 1s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. ("Der Tod Jesu.") C. H. GRAUN. Octavo, 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s.

THE PASSION OF OUR LORD. HEINRICH SCHÜTZ. Octavo, 1s.

THE MISERERE, &c., as used in St. Paul's Cathedral Lenten Services. Arranged by J. STAINER. Octavo, 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. The Music composed by J. BARNBY. Octavo, 3d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. Set to the well-known Ancient Chant, as arranged and harmonised by VINCENT NOVELLO; from the Appendix to the Accompanying Harmonies to the Brief Directory of Plain-song, by the Rev. THOMAS HELMORE, M.A. Price 2d.

MISERERE MEI, DEUS. The Music composed by EDGAR PETTMAN. Price 1½d.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

ANTHEMS FOR EASTER.

Above all praise and all majesty	Mendelssohn	1½d.
*All men, all things	Mendelssohn	4d.
As Christ was raised	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
*As it began to dawn	M. B. Foster	1½d.
As it began to dawn	C. Vincent	3d.
*As Moses lifted up the serpent	F. Gostelow	3d.
As we have borne	J. Barnby	1½d.
At the Lamb's high feast	E. V. Hall	3d.
At the Sepulchre	H. W. Wareing	4d.
*Awake, thou that sleepest	J. Stainer	6d.
*Awake up, my glory	J. Barnby	1½d.
Awake up, my glory	B. Haynes	1½d.
Awake up, my glory	M. Wise	3d.
Be glad, O ye righteous	H. Smart	4d.
*Behold, the Angel of the Lord	B. Tours	1½d.
*Behold the Lamb—All glory to the Lamb	Spohr	1½d.
*Blessed be the God and Father	S. S. Wesley	4d.
Blessed be Thou	Kent	4d.
Blessing and glory	Boyce	1½d.
*Blessing, glory	B. Tours	4d.
Break forth into joy	J. Barnby	1½d.
*Break forth into joy	S. Coleridge-Taylor	3d.
*Break forth into joy	T. R. Prentice	6d.
*Break forth into joy	B. Steane	3d.
*Christ being raised from the dead	G. J. Elvey	1½d.
Christ being raised from the dead	S. Webbe	1½d.
Christ both died and rose	E. W. Naylor	3d.
Christ is risen	G. B. J. Aitken	3d.
Christ is risen	J. M. Crament	3d.
Christ is risen	G. J. Elvey	1½d.
*Christ is risen	E. H. Thorne	1½d.
*Christ is risen	J. V. Roberts	3d.
*Christ our Passover	J. Goss	1½d.
Christ our Passover	E. V. Hall	3d.
Christ our Passover	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
*Christ our Passover	B. Tours	1½d.
*Christ the Lord is risen to-day	E. V. Hall	3d.
Come, ye faithful	E. V. Hall	3d.
For it became Him	O. King	1½d.
For us the Christ	Ch. Gounod	3d.
*From Thy love as a Father	Ch. Gounod	1½d.
Give thanks unto God	Spohr	4d.
God hath appointed a day	B. Tours	1½d.
God, Who is rich in mercy	G. M. Garrett	1½d.
*Hallelujah!	Handel	2d.
Hallelujah! Christ is risen	B. Steane	3d.
*Hearken unto Me	M. B. Foster	1½d.
*He is risen	H. Gadsby	1½d.
*If we believe that Jesus died	J. Goss	1½d.
If we believe that Jesus died	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
If ye then be risen	J. Naylor	3d.
I declare to you the Gospel	W. A. C. Cruickshank	4d.
I will alway give thanks	J. B. Calkin	1½d.
*I will alway give thanks	J. Clarke-Whitfeld	3d.
I will greatly rejoice	W. A. C. Cruickshank	4d.
*I will magnify Thee	J. B. Calkin	4d.
I will magnify Thee	B. L. Selby	1½d.
*I will mention	A. Sullivan	6d.
I will sing of Thy power	M. Greene	4d.
*I will sing of Thy power	A. Sullivan	1½d.
Jesus Christ is risen to-day	O. King	4d.
Let God arise	M. Greene	6d.
Lord, before Thy footstool bending	Spohr	3d.
Lord Christ! when Thou hadst overcome	Haydn	1½d.
*Lord, Thy arm hath been uplifted	Spohr	2d.
*Lo, the winter is past	B. Farebrother	3d.
Lo, the winter is past	H. Gadsby	3d.
Magnify His Name	G. C. Martin	4d.
My beloved spake	H. Purcell	6d.
My heart was glad	A. Carnall	4d.
Not unto us, O Lord	H. Gadsby	6d.
*Not unto us, O Lord	T. A. Walmisley	1½d.
*Now is Christ risen	G. B. Allen	1½d.
*Now is Christ risen	J. E. West	1½d.
*Now on the first day of the week	H. Lahee	1½d.
O clap your hands	M. Greene	4d.
*O clap your hands	J. Stainer	6d.
O clap your hands	E. H. Thorne	6d.
O clap your hands	T. T. Trimnell	3d.
*O come, let us sing	M. B. Foster	3d.
*O give thanks	J. Goss	3d.
O give thanks	S. S. Wesley	4d.
*On the first day of the week	E. M. Lott	1½d.
Open to me the gates	F. Adlam	4d.
*Praise His awful Name	Spohr	2d.
Praise Jehovah	Mendelssohn	4d.
*Rejoice in the Lord	J. B. Calkin	3d.
*Rejoice in the Lord	G. J. Elvey	1½d.
Rejoice in the Lord	G. C. Martin	6d.
Rejoice, O ye people	Mendelssohn	1½d.
*Sing praises unto the Lord	W. A. C. Cruickshank	1½d.
*Sing praises unto the Lord	Ch. Gounod	6d.
Sing to the Lord	Mendelssohn	8d.
Thanks be to God	J. W. Gritton	3d.
The Day of Resurrection	E. V. Hall	3d.
*The end of the Sabbath	A. Carnall	1½d.
*The first day of the week	B. Steane	3d.
The Lord hath brought us	E. H. Thorne	3d.
*The Lord hath done great things	H. Smart	4d.
*The Lord is King	J. Pittman	1½d.
*The Lord is King	T. T. Trimnell	4d.
The Lord is my strength	S. Coleridge-Taylor	3d.
*The Lord is my strength	W. H. Monk	1½d.
*The Lord is my strength	V. Novello	1½d.
*The Lord is my strength	H. Smart	1½d.
*The Lord is risen	G. M. Garrett	4d.
*The strain upraise	A. Sullivan	1½d.
*The strife is o'er	B. Steane	1½d.
*They have taken away my Lord	J. Stainer	1½d.
This is the day	S. C. Cooke	3d.
This is the day	E. V. Hall	4d.
This is the day	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
This is the day	A. W. Marchant	3d.
*This is the day	J. Sewell	2d.
This is the day	J. Turle	3d.
When Christ, Who is our life, shall appear	J. V. Roberts	2d.
When my soul fainted within me	J. F. Bridge	1½d.
*Who is like unto Thee?	A. Sullivan	6d.
*Why rage fiercely the heathen?	Mendelssohn	6d.
Why seek ye the living?	A. Alexander	3d.
Why seek ye the living? (Two-part)	M. B. Foster	3d.
Why seek ye the living?	E. J. Hopkins	1½d.
Why seek ye the living?	F. Peel	4d.
Worthy the Lamb—Hallelujah!	Crotch	3d.
*Worthy is the Lamb	J. F. Barnett	1½d.
*Worthy is the Lamb	Handel	2d.

*Anthems marked thus * to be had in Tonic Sol-fa, 1d., 1½d., and 2d. each.*

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

CAROLS FOR EASTER.

Rev. T. HELMORE. Carols for Easter-tide. Words, 1½d.; Melody, 6d. .. .. Vocal score 1s.

J. T. FIELD. Four Easter Carols .. .. 2d.

The Crown is on the Victor's brow.
Christ is risen!
Welcome, happy morning.
Easter flowers are blooming bright.

E. G. MONK. Sing the battle sharp and glorious. Carol 1½d.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just Published.

IS IT NOTHING TO YOU?

ANTHEM FOR HOLY WEEK

FOUR-PART ARRANGEMENT FOR S.A.T.B.

COMPOSED BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Price Threepence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

EASTER HYMN

(MANE PRIMA SABBATI)

SET TO MUSIC FOR

SOPRANO AND TENOR SOLI, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA (OR ORGAN)

BY

GEORGE J. BENNETT.

Composed for the Festival of the Sons of the Clergy, St. Paul's Cathedral, 1895.

Price One Shilling.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

RIDE ON! RIDE ON IN MAJESTY

HYMN FOR PASSION SUNDAY

Words by the Very Rev. Dean Milman

SET TO MUSIC BY

ARTHUR HENRY BROWN.

Price Three-Halfpence.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

CAREFULLY REVISED & ENTIRELY NEW ENGLISH VERSION.

THE
PASSION OF OUR LORD
(ACCORDING TO ST. MATTHEW)
SET TO MUSIC BY
JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH.

THE ENGLISH TRANSLATION AND ADAPTATION BY THE
REV. DR. TROUTBECK, D.D.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE ABRIDGED VERSION
AS USED IN
ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL
OF THE
PASSION OF OUR LORD
(ACCORDING TO ST. MATTHEW)
SET TO MUSIC BY
JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH.

Price One Shilling and Sixpence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE
PASSION OF OUR LORD
(ACCORDING TO ST. JOHN)
SET TO MUSIC BY
JOHN SEBASTIAN BACH.

THE ENGLISH TRANSLATION AND ADAPTATION BY THE
REV. DR. TROUTBECK, D.D.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS.
Paper boards, 2s. 6d.; cloth, gilt, 4s.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE LAST NIGHT AT BETHANY
A SHORT CHURCH CANTATA
THE WORDS WRITTEN AND COMPILED BY
JOSEPH BENNETT
THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY
C. LEE WILLIAMS.

Price 2s.; paper boards, 2s. 6d.
Tonic Sol-fa, One Shilling.
String Parts, 8s. 6d.; Wind Parts, 15s. 6d.; Full Score, MS.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE
STORY OF THE CROSS
FOR VOICES AND ORGAN
WITH SHORT INTERLUDES, GIVING OPPORTUNITY FOR MEDITATION
THE WORDS BY THE
REV. E. MONRO
SET TO MUSIC BY
J. STAINER
MYLES B. FOSTER
ARTHUR SOMERVELL
AND
J. VARLEY ROBERTS.

PRICE THREEPENCE EACH SETTING.
Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

THE
STORY OF THE CROSS
WRITTEN BY THE
REV. E. MONRO.

WORDS ONLY. Price 1s. 6d. per 100.
Large Type Edition, 2s. 6d. per 100.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PASSION MUSIC
FROM THE ORATORIO "ST. PETER"
BY
SIR JULIUS BENEDICT.

Vocal Score, One Shilling and Sixpence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE CRUCIFIXION
A MEDITATION
ON THE
Sacred Passion of the Holy Redeemer
THE WORDS SELECTED AND WRITTEN BY THE
REV. W. J. SPARROW-SIMPSON, M.A.
SET TO MUSIC BY
J. STAINER.

VOCAL SCORE, PAPER COVER, ONE SHILLING AND SIXPENCE.
PAPER BOARDS, TWO SHILLINGS. TONIC SOL-FA, NINEPENCE.
WORDS ONLY, WITH HYMN TUNES, TWOPENCE.
WORDS, COMPLETE, TEN SHILLINGS PER HUNDRED.
WORDS OF HYMNS, FIVE SHILLINGS PER HUNDRED.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE REQUIEM
FROM
"MORS ET VITA"
BY
CH. GOUNOD.

8VO, PAPER COVER	2s. 6d.
PAPER BOARDS	3s. 0d.
FULL SCORE	£2 2s. 0d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

GETHSEMANE

A CHURCH CANTATA

THE WORDS WRITTEN AND COMPILED BY

JOSEPH BENNETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

C. LEE WILLIAMS.

Price Two Shillings.
Paper boards, Two Shillings and Sixpence.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.
String Parts, 10s. 6d. Wind Parts and Full Score, MS.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

VEXILLA REGIS

(THE ROYAL BANNERS FORWARD GO)

The Latin Words from "The Seven Great Hymns."
Translated by the Rev. J. M. NEALE, D.D.

SET TO MUSIC BY

H. R. SHELLEY.

Vocal Score, paper cover, Two Shillings and Sixpence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

BENEDICITE, OMNIA OPERA

(IN CHANT FORM)

SET TO MUSIC IN THE KEY OF F

BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

(No. 328. Novello's Parish Choir Book.)

Price Fourpence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

THE BENEDICITE

SET TO MUSIC BY THE FOLLOWING

MODERN COMPOSERS.

GEORGE J. BENNETT (in E flat) .. .. 1½d.
GEORGE J. BENNETT (in G) .. .. 1½d.
GEORGE J. BENNETT (in D) .. .. 3d.
W. T. BEST .. .. 3d.
HUGH BLAIR .. .. 1½d.
J. F. BRIDGE, JAMES TURLE, and Dr. HAYES .. .. .. 1½d.
H. B. C. .. .. 1½d.
J. W. ELLIOTT .. .. 2d.
ALFRED J. EYRE (with a Quadruple Chant for the Te Deum) 2d.
ALFRED J. EYRE (No. 2, in F) .. .. 1½d.
MYLES B. FOSTER (in F, Chant Form) .. .. 4d.
PERCY H. FROST .. .. 2d.
HENRY GADSBY (in G, Chant Form) .. .. 1½d.
F. E. GLADSTONE (Chant Form) .. .. 3d.
F. E. GLADSTONE (Unison) .. .. 1½d.
F. A. J. HERVEY (in A flat). From the Canticles (second set) 2d.
W. HUGHES .. .. 1½d.
FREDERICK ILIFFE (No. 1) .. .. 1½d.
C. HARFORD LLOYD .. .. 2d.
GEORGE C. MARTIN (No. 1, in F; No. 2, in E flat; No. 3, in G) each 4d.
T. R. MATTHEWS .. .. 1½d.
C. E. MILLER (second setting) .. .. 2d.
EDGAR PETTMAN (No. 1, in C; No. 2, set to Double Chants). Cathedral Psalter pointing .. .. 2d.
EDGAR PETTMAN (in E flat) .. .. 1½d.
J. VARLEY ROBERTS (in B flat) .. .. 4d.
BOYTON SMITH (in A flat) .. .. 1½d.
CHAS. W. SMITH (in C). For S.A.T.T.B., also simplified form for S.A.T.B. .. .. 6d.
J. STAINER and B. BLAXLAND .. .. 1½d.
J. STAINER, R. DE LACY, A. GIBBS, and F. CHAMPNEYS .. 1½d.
J. STAINER, W. WINN, and F. WALKER .. .. 1½d.
J. STAINER (in D). From the Canticles (second set) .. .. 2d.
J. BARNBY .. ..
JOHN FOSTER .. ..
MONTEM SMITH (two settings) .. .. 1½d.
J. TURLE (two settings) .. ..
C. A. WICKES (two settings) .. ..
JOHN E. WEST (in C) .. .. 1½d.
W. G. WOOD (in D) .. .. 1½d.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

SAVIOUR OF THE WORLD

(SALVATOR MUNDI)

A SACRED CANTATA

THE WORDS WRITTEN AND ARRANGED FROM HOLY SCRIPTURE BY

FREDERICK E. WEATHERLY, M.A.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

ARTHUR E. DYER,

Mus. Doc., Oxon.

PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIXPENCE.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

IS IT NOTHING TO YOU

AN EASY CANTATA

For use during the Season of Lent, and on Good Friday, specially adapted for Country Choirs

BY THE

REV. E. V. HALL, M.A.

Late Precentor of Worcester Cathedral.

Price Eightpence. Tonic Sol-fa, Threepence.
Words, with Music to the Hymns, price Twopence.

This is an attempt to provide music for Lent and for Good Friday of the simplest kind, for use in country churches. The music is interspersed with well-known hymns, in which the congregation may be invited to join. The Cantata may be used at a special service on Good Friday afternoon or evening, or on any day in Lent, and requires only a solo voice and a small choir.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

HYMNS FOR EASTER.

J. BARNBY. CHRIST THE LORD IS RISEN TO-DAY .. .. 1½d.
W. T. BEST. JESUS CHRIST IS RISEN .. .. 3d.
DR. IONS. JESUS CHRIST IS RISEN TO-DAY .. .. .. 1½d.
J. B. CALKIN. LIGHT'S GLITT'RING MORN BEDECKS .. .. 1½d.
V. NOVELLO. JESUS CHRIST IS RISEN TO-DAY .. .. .. 1½d.

NINE HYMNS WITH TUNES FROM "THE HYMNARY" .. 1d.

Christ the Lord is risen to-day .. .. .. G. J. Elvey.
Far be sorrow, tears, and sighing .. .. C. Steggall.
Welcome, happy morning! age to age shall say A. Sullivan.
Come, ye faithful, raise the strain .. .. A. Sullivan.
At the Lamb's high feast we sing .. .. German.
The day of Resurrection .. .. H. Smart.
Jesus Christ is risen to-day .. .. Ch. Gounod.
O Blessed Trinity .. .. Old Melody.
Soon the fiery sun ascending .. .. .. German.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR LENT.

OUT OF DARKNESS (Psalm cxxx.). For Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra. GEORG HENSCHEL (Op. 30). 2s. 6d.

OUT OF DARKNESS (De Profundis) (Psalm cxxx.). For Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra. Composed by Ch. GOUNOD. English or Latin words. Octavo, 1s.; paper boards, 1s. 6d.; Full Score, 15s.; String Parts, 4s. 6d.; Wind Parts, 7s.; Vocal Parts, 3s.

ZION'S WAYS DO LANGUISH. Soprano Solo and Chorus, from "Gallia" (Motet). CH. GOUNOD. Octavo, 1s.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

IMPORTANT TO PIANO TEACHERS AND STUDENTS.

INDEX-PAGE to CZERNY'S 101 EXERCISES, with PREFACE by A. DIELMANN, Professor of Music (Leips. Cons.), giving the numbers in their progressive order of difficulty.

This sheet may easily be attached to any copy of Czerny's 101 Exercises.

Price 2d., from all Musicsellers.
Wholesale from A. DIELMANN, 277, Oxford Road, Manchester.
Sent Post-free for 2½d. in stamps.

NEW EASTER ANTHEMS.

Just Published.

O COME, LET US SING

BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Price Threepence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

Just Published.

THE STRIFE IS O'ER.

COMPOSED BY

BRUCE STEANE.

Price Three-Halfpence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

WHEN CHRIST, WHO IS OUR LIFE, SHALL APPEAR

BY

J. VARLEY ROBERTS.

Price Twopence.

OPEN TO ME THE GATES

BY

FRANK ADLAM.

Price Fourpence.

I DECLARE TO YOU THE GOSPEL

BY

W. A. C. CRUICKSHANK.

Price Fourpence.

LO! THE WINTER IS PAST

BY

BERNARD FAREBROTHER.

Price Threepence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

WORTHY IS THE LAMB

COMPOSED BY

J. F. BARNETT.

Price Three-Halfpence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

THE FIRST DAY OF THE WEEK

COMPOSED BY

BRUCE STEANE.

Price Threepence; Tonic Sol-fa, Twopence.

THE DAY OF RESURRECTION

COMPOSED BY

E. V. HALL.

Price Threepence.

HEARKEN UNTO ME

COMPOSED BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Price Three-Halfpence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

FOR LENT.

THE

STORY OF THE CROSS

FOR VOICES AND ORGAN

BY

EDWARD BUNNETT, Mus.D., Cantab.

Price Twopence.

By same Composer:

TWO SETTINGS OF THE

BENEDICITE

One in E major and one in F major.

Price Twopence each.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

EASTER EVE

NEW SACRED SONG

By CHARLES GOUNOD

WITH VIOLIN AND ORGAN OBBLIGATO.

Keys, G, A (compass C to E), B flat, and C. 2s. net.

London: Paterson and Sons, 26, Castle Street, Berners Street, W.

HYMN TO THE CREATOR

(The Song of St. Francis of Assisi)

MOTET

FOR SOPRANO SOLO, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA

The Words translated by Mrs. Oliphant

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

J. FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus. Doc.

(Organist of Westminster Abbey).

Price One Shilling net.
Orchestral Parts may be had.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just Published.

THE CHILDREN'S SUPPLEMENT

BEING A COLLECTION OF

HYMNS FOR CHILDREN'S SERVICES WITH MUSIC

EDITED BY

THE REV. EDWARD HANDLEY, M.A.,

Magdalen Coll., Oxford.

New Tunes have been specially written for this book by Sir JOHN STAINER, Dr. CHARLES W. PEARCE, Dr. CHARLES VINCENT, Dr. STEGGALL, Mr. MYLES BIRKET FOSTER, Dr. J. VARLEY ROBERTS, and many other eminent Musicians.

Price Three Shillings and Sixpence.
Words only, cloth, Fourpence; paper covers, Threepence.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just Published.

AN EASY

CHORAL COMMUNION SERVICE

In the Key of G

COMPOSED BY

WALTER J. CLEMSON, M.A.

Price 2d. (8 cents).

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Ninth and Tenth Thousand.

ALFRED R. GAUL'S
PASSION SERVICE

NEW SACRED WORK

FOR THE SEASON OF

LENT AND GOOD FRIDAY.

"Scholarly writing, combined with unmistakable talent, and eminently adapted to the purpose for which it was written and composed. The work will probably be largely used, and Mr. Gaul have to be congratulated upon another success."—Sheffield Independent.

"The course of sacred events connected with the Passion is laid out by the writer so as to form a series of six distinct 'scenes.' The subjects of these divisions, each occupied with a particular stage of the Mystery, are respectively—'The Traitor at the Table,' 'The Denial,' 'The Condemnation before Pilate,' 'The Mockery on Calvary,' 'The Shadow of Death,' and 'The Holy Sepulchre.' The style of the composition resembles generally that of Mr. Gaul's previous writings—the same effective, grateful part-writing, and the same expressive and melodious treatment of the solo voice. In those sections, notably that of the Unjust Condemnation, where the realistic element is predominant, the composer has manifested his ability to write with dramatic force and intensity as well as with lyric charm. In this respect the choral writing distinguished itself in comparison with that in the 'Holy City,' and other of the composer's works. Mr. Gaul has not written new hymn tunes for the author's lyrics; the tunes selected are from among those in ordinary congregational use. Altogether considered, Mr. Gaul's new work will, undoubtedly, greatly enhance his already high reputation in the line of sacred composition."—Musical Standard.

Price, paper cover, 2s. 6d.; paper boards, 3s.; scarlet cloth, 4s.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.
The loan of Orchestral Parts on application to the COMPOSER.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

TOILERS OF THE DEEP
CANTATA
FOR FEMALE VOICES

VERSE BY JAMES STRANG

MUSIC BY

ALFRED R. GAUL.

CONTENTS.

INTRODUCTION AND CHORUS—"Toiling and toss'd on the restless sea."
CRADLE SONG—"Come, my baby, come away."
CHORUS—"Oh, ho! for the winds that blow."
BALLAD—"A mermaid dwelt in days of old."
TRIO—"The twilight grey is falling."
SONG—"O manly hearts that brave the sea."
CHORUS—"Dark and darker grows the night."
CHORUS—"A prayer for those at sea."
INTERMEZZO—"Break of day."
DUET—Through golden mists of morn."
CRADLE SONG—No. 2.
CHORUS—"Now let songs of gladness rise."

Price Two Shillings.
Words, Five Shillings per hundred.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Seventh Edition.

The river floweth strong, my love

PART-SONG FOR S.A.T.B.

Words by E. RIDGWAY.

MUSIC COMPOSED BY ROLAND ROGERS.

Price Fourpence; Sol-fa, Twopence.

Sung with immense success by Eaton Faning's Select Choir at the Ballad Concerts, St. James's Hall; Wolverhampton Festival Choral Society, the Chester Festival Choral Society, the Cambrian Choral Society (Birkenhead), Huddersfield Glee and Madrigal Society, &c.

Also, NEW PART-SONG, by same COMPOSER.

THREE FISHERS WENT SAILING

Words by KINGSLEY.

Old Notation, Fourpence; Sol-fa, Twopence.
"An immense success."
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Just Published.

DEDICATED TO SIR WALTER PARRATT.

This was the sight-reading test piece chosen by the Adjudicators, Prof. J. F. BRIDGE, Dr. E. H. HOPKINS, and Prof. C. VILLIERS STANFORD, for the competition for the Liverpool St. George's Hall Organistship.

FANTASIA
IN C SHARP MINOR FOR THE ORGAN

COMPOSED BY

A. M. GOODHART.

(No. 253. Novello's Original Compositions for the Organ.)
Price Two Shillings and Sixpence net.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

PERFORMED AT HANLEY, ON JANUARY 7, 1897,
IN THE PRESENCE OF
THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

CANTATA
THE MAID OF ASTOLAT
BY
C. SWINNERTON HEAP.

THIRD EDITION now Ready. Price 3s. 6d., in paper.

Extract from Birmingham Daily Post, November 20, 1896.

"Dr. Heap revels in his choral writing, and reaches the highest elevation in the chorus descriptive of the approach of the dead Elaine lying in the sombre barge. . . . The performance made a profound impression on the audience. . . . The demonstration at the close showed that there had been no error of judgment in reviving this cantata. We have no time for critical comment at this moment; but, having heard the composition four times, we do not hesitate to class it among works accepted as masterly."

Chorus Parts, and a number of Lithographed Copies, Tonic Sol-fa Edition, may be obtained on hire.
Application to be made to the Publishers: H. TAYLOR and SON, Bridge Street, Walsall.

HINTS ON CHOIR TRAINING
BY
W. G. McNAUGHT.

REPRINTED, WITH ADDITIONS, FROM
"THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW."

This Pamphlet is intended for Choralists as well as for Choral Society Conductors. All the points that contribute to make a fine choral performance are succinctly treated. For Choirs preparing to enter choral competitions these hints will be found especially useful. The heads under which adjudicators take notes are described and discussed, and a list of suitable test pieces for competitions is given.

Price Twopence.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WORKS
FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES AND CHOIRS.

	s.	d.
THE SILVER STAR. Cantata. Ladies' voices	1	6
THE LORD IS MY SHEPHERD. 8vo	0	8
BY THE WATERS OF BABYLON. 8vo	1	0
Both for Chorus, without Soloists.
EVENTIDE. Part-Song. 8vo..	0	2

By N. KILBURN, Mus.B., Cantab.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NURSERY RHYMES and RIGMAROLIA, with 164 Tunes. Old Nursery Rhymes and Songs, with 194 Tunes. By W. H. HAMMOND JONES. 2s. 6d. each.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

FOR COMMEMORATIONS OF THE QUEEN'S REIGN

ANTHEMS.

	s.	d.
MY HEART IS INDITING Myles B. Foster Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.	0	4
LET EVERY SOUL BE SUBJECT. For Soprano and Tenor Soli and Chorus J. Stainer Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.	0	1½
LORD, THOU ART GOD. For Tenor Solo and Chorus .. .. J. Stainer	0	8
THE KING SHALL REJOICE .. R. Stewart	0	6
BEHOLD, O GOD, OUR DEFENDER. F. W. Hird	0	4
LORD OF LIFE. Prayer from "A Jubilee Ode." (S.A.T.B.) .. .. .. A. C. Mackenzie Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.	0	3
BLESSED BE THE LORD THY GOD. J. F. Bridge Tonic Sol-fa, 2d. Performed at the Royal Jubilee Service in Westminster Abbey, June 21, 1887.	0	6
†I WAS GLAD .. .. .. T. Attwood	0	4
†HALLELUJAH CHORUS ("Messiah") Handel Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.	0	2
HEAR, O GOD, HEAR MY CRY (Psalm lxi.). Hebrew and English Bible (Revised) Version A. M. Friedlander	0	6
†CORONATION ANTHEM, "The King shall rejoice" .. .. Handel	0	8
†CORONATION ANTHEM, "Zadok the Priest" Handel	0	3
CORONATION ANTHEM, "Let Thy hand be strengthened" .. .. .. Handel	0	6
CORONATION ANTHEM, "My heart is inditing" .. .. Handel	0	8

RESPONSES AND CANTICLES.

FESTIVAL TE DEUM .. Arthur Sullivan	1	0
†TE DEUM in A .. .. Boyce	0	3
THANKSGIVING TE DEUM in D John Goss Folio, 2s.; Vocal Parts (folio), 2s.	0	6
THE RESPONSES and PROPER PSALMS, with Chants for the Accession Service ..	0	1½
*MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in C H. Gadsby	0	6
*MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in B flat (No. 3) .. .. J. Stainer	0	6
*MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in A (No. 2) .. .. J. Stainer	0	6
*MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in B flat H. Smart	0	6
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in B flat (Scored for Military Band) .. G. C. Martin	0	6

MUSIC FOR THE ORGAN.

VICTORIA—OUR QUEEN! March. Founded on themes from Barnby's popular National Song .. .. .. John E. West Orchestral Parts and Military Band Arrangement (in the Press).	2	0
IMPERIAL MARCH .. .. E. Elgar Orchestral Parts and Military Band Arrangement (in the Press).	2	0
†OVERTURE. Occasional Oratorio (Handel). Arranged by W. T. Best	2	0

* Orchestral Parts, MS., can be hired.
† Performed at the Queen's Coronation, 1838.

PART-SONGS.

	s.	d.
GOD SAVE THE QUEEN. Arranged by Sir Michael Costa Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.	0	3
Ditto, ditto. Arranged by Vincent Novello Vocal parts, 6d.; Orchestral parts, 3s.	0	3
Ditto, ditto. Harmonised by Vincent Novello Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.	0	1½
Ditto, ditto. Arranged for Male Voices by (Sol-fa, 1d.) J. Barnby	0	2
*Ditto. Arranged for Three Parts (S.S.A.) ..	0	1½
Ditto. Gaelic words ("Dhia, Gleidh an crun"). Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.
RULE, BRITANNIA. Harmonised by (Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.) Vincent Novello	0	1½
THE TRIUMPH OF VICTORIA. Madrigal. For Five Voices (S.S.A.T.B.) .. J. Stainer Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.	0	6
ALL HAIL, BRITANNIA. Madrigal, by A Lotti	0	3
QUEEN OF OUR ISLE. Chorus (S.S.T.T.B.) (Sol-fa, 1½d.) Sir Henry R. Bishop	0	1½
THE EMPIRE FLAG. A Patriotic Song. For Solo and Chorus .. .. A. C. Mackenzie	2	0
Ditto. Arranged for S.A.T.B. .. .. .. Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.	0	1½
ENGLAND. (S.A.T.B.) .. .. J. L. Hatton Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.	0	3
Ditto. Arranged for S.S.A. (Sol-fa, 1d.) ..	0	2
YE GALLANT MEN OF ENGLAND. (S.A.T.B.) E. Hecht	0	3
YE MARINERS OF ENGLAND. (S.A.T.B.) H. Hugh Pierson Chorus parts, 6d.; Orchestral parts, 5s. 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.	0	6
HURRAH FOR MERRY ENGLAND. Solo, with Chorus. (S.A.T.B.).. H. Hugh Pierson Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.	0	1½
Ditto. Arranged for S.S.A. (Sol-fa, 1d.) ..	0	2
HURRAH FOR MERRY ENGLAND. (S.A.T.B.) (Sol-fa, 1½d.) Francesco Berger	0	1½
HURRAH! HURRAH! FOR ENGLAND J. F. Bridge	0	2
NOW PRAY WE FOR OUR COUNTRY (with new second verse by G. E. Troutbeck) (S.A.T.B.) .. .. Eliza Flower Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.	0	1½
*Ditto. Arranged for Three Parts (S.S.A.) ..	0	1
PATRIOTIC PART-SONGS for the use of the Army, Navy, and Volunteers. Arranged and adapted by James Tilleard .. complete Or, in 19 Nos., 1d. each.	0	6
SOLDIERS BRAVE AND GALLANT BE (S.A.T.B.) .. .. Gastoldi	0	1½
Ditto. Arranged for S.S.A.	0	1½

SCHOOL SONGS.

(See also above for S.A. and S.S.A. arrangements of various Four-part Songs.)

TRIOS.

ALBION .. .. Marie Wurm	0	2
*ST. GEORGE FOR ENGLAND G. A. Macfarren	0	1½

TWO-PART SONGS.

*YE MARINERS OF ENGLAND H. H. Pierson	0	1½
*SONS OF BRITAIN (S.A.) .. Thos. Facer	0	1½

UNISON SONGS.

*HURRAH FOR ENGLAND W. W. Pearson	0	1
*OLD ENGLAND'S HEROES Rev. W. J. Foxell	0	1½
*NEPTUNE AND BRITANNIA Rev. W. J. Foxell	0	1½

For other Patriotic School Songs, see Novello's Catalogue and Lists.

 *The pieces marked * are issued in Staff Notation and Tonic Sol-fa combined.*

FOR COMMEMORATIONS OF THE QUEEN'S REIGN

CANTATAS.

Choral Ballad.

THE BANNER OF ST. GEORGE

For Chorus and Orchestra

The Words by Shapcott Wensley

The Music by

EDWARD ELGAR.

Price 1s. 6d.
Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words only, 12s. 6d. per 100.
Orchestral Parts (in the Press).

Dedicated, by gracious permission, to Her Majesty the Queen.

THE FLAG OF ENGLAND

BALLAD

For Soprano Solo, Chorus, and Orchestra

The Words by Rudyard Kipling

The Music by

J. FREDERICK BRIDGE.

Price 1s. 6d.
Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words only, 12s. 6d. per 100.
Orchestral Parts (in the Press).

Dedicated, by gracious permission, to HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

VICTORIA; or, THE BARD'S PROPHECY

A CANTATA

For Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra

The Words by Rev. Charles Kent

The Music by G. F. HUNTLEY, Mus. Doc.

Price 2s.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words only, 15s. per 100.

A JUBILEE ODE

CANTATA

For Soprano and Tenor Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra

The Words by Joseph Bennett

The Music by

A. C. MACKENZIE.

Price 1s. 6d. Words only, 15s. per 100.
String Parts, 10s. 6d. Wind Parts and Full Score, MS.

Dedicated, by gracious permission, to Her Majesty the Queen.

CARMEN SÆCULARE

ODE

For Soprano Solo, Chorus, and Orchestra

The Words by Tennyson

The Music by

C. V. STANFORD.

Price 1s. 6d. Orchestral Parts and Full Score, MS.

PART-SONGS AND CHORUSES.

Dedicated, by gracious permission, to Her Majesty the Queen.

THE QUEEN'S SONG

For Soprano, Alto, Tenor, and Bass

The Words by Sir EDWIN ARNOLD, K.C.I.E., K.S.I.

The Music by

EATON FANING.

Price 4d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 2d. Words only, 3s. per 100.
Orchestral Parts (in the Press).
Military Band Arrangement, by Dan Godfrey, Jun. (in the Press).
Arranged also for Female Voices, price 3d.

VICTORIA—OUR QUEEN

A PATRIOTIC CHORUS

For S.A.T.B. or Unison

The Words by A. C. AINGER

The Music by

JOSEPH BARNBY.

Price 3d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d. Words only, 3s. per 100.
String Parts, 1s. Wind Parts, 2s. 3d.
Arranged also for Female Voices (S.A.), 1d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.

Dedicated, by gracious permission, to Her Majesty the Queen.

ALL HAIL THE GLORIOUS REIGN

A Commemoration Ode

For Chorus and Orchestra (can be sung also unaccompanied)

The Words by CLIFTON BINGHAM

The Music by

F. H. COWEN.

Price 4d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 2d. Words only, 3s. per 100.
Orchestral Parts (in the Press).
Arranged also for Female Voices, price 3d.

THE QUEEN! GOD BLESS HER

A PATRIOTIC PART-SONG

For Soprano, Alto, Tenor, and Bass

The Words by MAY BYRON

The Music by

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Price 1½d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1d. Words only, 3s. per 100.
Arranged for Solo and Three-part Chorus (S.S.A.), 1½d.
Male Voice Arrangement (A.T.B.B.), 3d.

MARCHES.

FOR PIANOFORTE.

IMPERIAL MARCH

BY

EDWARD ELGAR.

Price Two Shillings. Organ Arrangement, Two Shillings.

VICTORIA—OUR QUEEN

Founded on themes from Barnby's popular National Song

BY

J. E. WEST.

Price Two Shillings. Organ Arrangement, Two Shillings.

ORCHESTRAL MUSIC.

VICTORIA—OUR QUEEN

MARCH

Founded on themes from Barnby's popular National Song

By J. E. WEST.

Orchestral Parts and Military Band Arrangement (in the Press).

IMPERIAL MARCH

By EDWARD ELGAR.

Orchestral Parts and Military Band Arrangement (in the Press).

SIX HYMN TUNES

Arranged for Military Band, by Dan Godfrey, Jun. (in the Press).

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

FOR COMMEMORATIONS OF THE QUEEN'S REIGN

TWELVE
HYMNS WITH TUNES

FOR USE AT SERVICES IN

Commemoration of the Queen's long Reign

FIRST LINE.	AUTHOR.	COMPOSER.
Ah, sweet the sunset glow	Rev. W. J. Ferrar	*J. E. West.
Children, send a song of praise‡	Rev. W. J. Ferrar	*Dr. C. H. Lloyd.
English hearts and English voices	Rev. W. J. Ferrar	*Sir W. Parratt.
From every clime, from every shore	Rev. B. Reynolds	*Dr. G. C. Martin.
From the deep heart of our people	Rev. W. St. Hill Bourne	†Sir A. C. Mackenzie.
God of Nations, Lord Almighty	Rev. S. Childs Clarke	†Sir J. Barnby.
God, the Source of all Creation	Rev. S. Baring-Gould	†Sir J. Barnby.
Great King of kings, to Thee we pray	Rev. H. D. Rawnsley	†J. H. Maunder.
Happy children we have been‡	Rev. S Baring-Gould	Sir Arthur Sullivan.
Let all the land with one accord	Rev. S. Childs Clarke	*Dr. H. Keeton.
Long loved, long honour'd Queen	Francis T. Palgrave	*B. Haynes.
O King of kings, Who gives the power to all	Dean of Rochester (S. Reynolds Hole)	*Dr. J. F. Bridge.

* Written expressly for this Hymn. † Now published for the first time. ‡ Specially written for Children.

Complete, with Music, price 2d. Tonic Sol-fa Edition, price 2d. Words only, price 1d., or 5s. per 100.

MILITARY BAND SELECTION (in the Press).

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just Published.

FRANCESCO BERGER'S ALBUM
OF
FIVE PIANOFORTE PIECES.

CONTENTS.

No 1. Moto contrario (Étude).
„ 2. Barcarolle.
No. 3. The voice of the rivulet.
„ 4. Polka.
No. 5. Marcia.

Price Three Shillings and Sixpence.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just Published.

Berceuse Bohémienne

POUR

VIOLON ET PIANO

PAR

JOSEPH NEŠVERA.

Price One Shilling.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just Published.

THREE PIECES
FOR
VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE

1. Minuet. 2. Adagio. 3. Lullaby.

COMPOSED BY

WILLIAM S. HANNAM.

Price Three Shillings net.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Second Edition.

NARCISSUS AND ECHO

CANTATA FOR CHORUS, SOLI, AND ORCHESTRA

Price 3s.; Choral Parts, 1s. each. Also,

"GOD IS OUR REFUGE" (Ps. 46)

For Chorus, Soli, and Orchestra. Price 1s.

COMPOSED BY

EDWIN C. SUCH,

Mus. Bac., Cantab.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

8vo, 4d.

THE CYCLISTS

PART-SONG FOR S.A.T.B.

Words by Edward Oxenford

MUSIC BY

W. W. PEARSON.

Orchestral Parts lent gratis for performance.

Apply to the Composer, Elmham, Dereham.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Now Ready. On the 1st of each Month, 228 Cols. 2d.; Post-free, 3½d.

MUSICAL OPINION and MUSIC TRADE REVIEW. 150, Holborn Bars, E.C.

For the National Commemoration, 1897.

CANTATA

SONG OF JUBILEE

FOR SOLO VOICES, CHORUS, ORCHESTRA, AND ORGAN

Special Edition, One Shilling and Sixpence.

BY

DR. JACOB BRADFORD.

"This cantata will be found a very useful and important addition to the programme of musical societies during the Diamond commemoration. The solo work is but slight, requiring only soprano and tenor voices, and the choruses are within the compass of any ordinary choral society. Orchestral parts can be had, but the work could be performed with organ accompaniment."—Norfolk Chronicle.

NATIONAL ANTHEM.

GOD SAVE OUR GRACIOUS QUEEN

From "Song of Jubilee."

Price Sixpence.

Shortly Ready. Price Threepence.

NATIONAL HYMN

FOR THE QUEEN'S LONG REIGN.

SOVEREIGN OF ALL! WHOSE WILL ORDAINS

MUSIC BY

DR. JACOB BRADFORD.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Dedicated, by permission, to their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales.

ROYALTY

A HYMN

FOR THE 60TH YEAR OF HER MAJESTY'S REIGN.

WORDS BY

REV. HON. CANON NEVILLE, M.A.

MUSIC BY THE LATE

REV. SIR F. G. OUSELEY, Bt., Mus.D.

Price, Music and Words, 2d.; Words only, 1s. per 100.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Received and Acknowledged by Her Majesty the Queen.

THE ROYAL CHORAL MARCH—"GOD'S BLESSING ON OUR SOVEREIGN REST." Arranged for Soprano or Tenor Solo and Chorus, by William J. Young, Composer of Popular Four-part Songs. Price 4d.

God's blessing on our Sovereign rest,
And on her subjects free;
May Queen and country both be blest
This year of Jubilee!
On history's page no fairer name,
No purer life appears;
What age can match, in deeds or fame,
Victoria's sixty years?

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.; or, Composer, 51, Barton Arcade, Manchester.

Just Published.

ONE QUEEN, ONE FLEET, ONE FLAG

A FEDERAL GREETING

Four-part Song for S.A.T.B., or Solo and Chorus, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. The Words written by S. L. E.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Price Three-Halfpence. Orchestral Score and Parts may be hired.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

SUITABLE FOR CHOIR FESTIVALS.

PRAISE THE LORD

ANTHEM

By W. A. C. CRUICKSHANK, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

Price Fourpence.

Full Score and Band Parts may be hired.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just Published.

YOUR FATHER'S BOREEN*

HUMOROUS IRISH SONG

THE MUSIC BY

ALICIA ADÉLAÏDE NEEDHAM,

Composer of "An Irish Lullaby," "Maureen," "The Exile's Return," &c., &c.

Oh! don't be beguilin' my heart with your wilin',
You've tried that same thrick far too often before,
And, by this blest minnit an' day that is in it,
I'll take right good care that you'll try it no more!
You thought that so slily you walked with O'Reilly,
By man and by mortal unheard and unseen,
While your hand he kept squeezin', and you looked so pleasin',
Last Saturday night in your father's boreen.

His thricks and his schamin' has set you a-dhramin',
That anyone blessed with their eyesight may see,
For you're not the same creature you once wor by nature,
And they that are thraitors won't do, faith, for me!
Tho' it is most disthressin' to think that a blessin'
Was just about fallin' down plump on the scene,
When a cunnin' culloger, as black as an ogre,
Upset all your hopes in a dirty boreen.

Och! it is most ungrateful, unkind, and unfaithful,
When you very well know that I gave the go-by Both to pride and to pleasure, temptation and treasure,
To dress all my looks by the light of your eye.
Oh! 'tis Mary Mullally, that lives in the valley,—
'Tis she that would say how ill-used I have been,
And she's not the deludher to smile and to soother
And then walk away to her father's boreen.

I send you your garter, for now I'm a martyr,
And keepsakes and jims are the least of my care,
So, when things are exchangin', since you took to rangin',
I'll throuble you, too, for that lock of my hair.
Sure I know by its shakin', my heart is a-breakin',
You'll make me a corpse, when I'd make you a queen,
But as sure as I'm livin', it's you I'll be givin'
A terrible fright, when I haunt the boreen.

* A little road (pronounced bor-yeen).

In C, D, and E flat.

Price Two Shillings net.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

WHAT IS THE ROOT?

THE STUDENT'S GREAT DIFFICULTY REMOVED.

Root of any Chord discovered with ease and certainty.

The Scales, or Keys, determined at once, to which any interval, triad, or short musical phrase belongs.

TONALITY AND ROOTS

NEW TREATISE BY

ARTHUR J. GREENISH, Mus. Doc., Cantab., F.R.C.O., F.R.A.M.

Highly approved by Professor Prout, B.A., of Dublin, to whom it is, by permission, inscribed.

Of great use to Professors and Students and invaluable to all Candidates for Examinations.

Price 1s. 6d.; Post-free, 1s. 7d.

London Office of The Organist and Choirmaster, 139, Oxford St., W.

GILL'S EASY VOLUNTARIES.—"Messiah," "Judas," "Elijah," "St. Paul," "Creation." 1s. each book.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

MUSIC SUITABLE FOR SERVICES

IN CONNECTION WITH

H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES'S HOSPITAL FUND.

"Let not Thine Hand be stretched out to Receive, and Shut when Thou should'st Repay."

THE WORDS SELECTED AND THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

JOHN STAINER.

CHORAL RECIT. (S.A.T.B.)—"Let not thine hand be stretched out to receive, and shut when thou should'st repay."
"Give unto the Most High according as He hath enriched thee."
"Reject not the supplication of the afflicted, neither turn thy face from a poor man."
"Be not slow to visit the sick, for that shall make thee to be beloved."

SOLO (Soprano or Tenor) AND CHORUS.
"Lord, shower upon us from above
The sacred gifts of mutual love;
Each other's wants may we supply,
And reign together in the sky."

SOLO (Bass).—"When thou hast enough, remember the time of hunger; and when thou art rich, think upon poverty and need."

Price 3d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.; Words only, 3s. per 100.

Just Published.

HOW SHALL WE TEACH OUR CHILDREN

"THE QUEEN'S NURSES'" HYMN

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY

THE DEAN OF ROCHESTER
(S. REYNOLDS HOLE)

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

GEORGE C. MARTIN,
MUS. DOC.

Price Three-Halfpence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Popular Part-Songs for S.A.T.B.

BY W. W. PEARSON.

The Skaters	3d.	The Oyster Dredgers	2d.
The Lake	3d.	Evening	2d.
*'Tis Morn	3d.	*Sweet to live (38th thou.)	2d.
Sweet Spring (Madrigal)	3d.	*Welcome, young Spring!	2d.
The River	3d.	*The Anglers (14th thou.)	2d.
Over the mountain side	3d.	The Dream of Home	2d.
Soul of living music	3d.	Summer and Winter	2d.
The Stormy Petrel	3d.	*Departed Joys	2d.
The Coral Grove	3d.	There's beauty in the deep	1½d.
Pibroch of Donuil Dhu	3d.	Soldier, rest!	1d.
Blow, Western Wind!	3d.	Woods in Winter	1d.
Stars of the Night	3d.	Autumn	1d.

HUMOROUS PART-SONGS.

*Three Doughtie Men. (60th thousand)	3d.
Three Children Sliding. (10th thousand)	3d.
A Ryghte Merrie Geste	4d.
The Snow-white Doe	4d.
*Ben Bowlegs (EDWARD OXENFORD)	3d.
The Carrion Crow	3d.
Call John!	3d.

DESCRIPTIVE CHORUSES.

With Pianoforte or Orchestral Accompaniments.

The Iron Horse	4d.	The Ocean	3d.
Off to Sea	4d.	*The Ironfounders (36th thou.)	3d.
Jäger Chorus	3d.	The Cyclists	4d.
The Lifeboat	4d.

Orchestral Parts on application to the COMPOSER, Elmham, Dereham.
Tonic Sol-fa Editions at half the above prices of those marked *.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.'S

ALBUMS FOR PIANOFORTE AND STRINGED INSTRUMENTS

(Two Violins, Viola, and Violoncello).

The Pieces in these Albums are so arranged that if any Part, or Combination of Parts, in addition to the First Violin and Pianoforte, are used they will sound complete.

No. 1.

SUITE OF FOUR PIECES

BY ARNOLD DOLMETSCH.

Price 2s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 2.

SUITE OF FIVE PIECES

BY HENRY PURCELL.

The Pianoforte Accompaniment, Marks of Expression, Bowing, and Fingering by ARNOLD DOLMETSCH.

Price 2s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 3.

THREE DANCES

From the Music to "Henry VIII."

BY EDWARD GERMAN.

Price 5s. Separate String Parts, 1s. each.

No. 4.

GAVOTTE IN D

BY RAMEAU.

Arranged by BERTHOLD TOURS.

Price 2s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 5.

SIX PIECES FROM THE WATER MUSIC

BY G. F. HANDEL.

Arranged by BERTHOLD TOURS.

1. Bourrée in F.	3. Minuet in F.	5. Aria in G.
2. Air in F.	4. Hornpipe in F.	6. Allegro in D.

Price 3s. 6d. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 6.

TWO BOURRÉES

BY G. F. HANDEL.

Arranged by BERTHOLD TOURS.

Price 2s. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 7.

BENEDICTUS

From Six Pieces for the Violin.

BY A. C. MACKENZIE.

Price 3s. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 8.

JUDEX FROM "MORS ET VITA"

BY CHARLES GOUNOD.

Arranged by BERTHOLD TOURS.

Price 3s.; Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

No. 9 (in the Press).

FOUR MARCHES

Wedding March. Cornelius March. War March ("Athalie"). Funeral March.

BY MENDELSSOHN.

No. 10 (in the Press).

GAVOTTE

À LA MODE ANCIENNE

BY GEORGE ELVEY.

To be continued.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NEW ORCHESTRAL MUSIC.

AN EVENING RAMBLE

(Promenade au Soir)

ORCHESTRAL SUITE

BY

ALBERT E. MATT.

No. 1. MARCH—THE DEPARTURE.
„ 2. NOCTURNE—CASTLE RUINS BY MOONLIGHT.
„ 3. CAPRICE—WOODLAND FROLICS.

Orchestra, 6s.; Extra Parts, each 8d.; Violin and Piano, 2s. 6d.

This Suite for Orchestra is just out, and bids fair to outrival all the other popular works by Mr. Matt.

COMPOSITIONS BY THE SAME COMPOSER:

RURAL SCENES

No. 1. PASTORALE—IN THE MEADOWS.
„ 2. ROMANCE—LOVE SCENES.
„ 3. SCHERZO—VILLAGE REVELS.

Orchestra, 6s.; Extra Parts, each 8d.; Piano Solo, 2s. 6d.
(Score on hire.)

DEVOTION RUSTIQUE

ANGELUS

A DISTANT VIEW OF A VILLAGE CHURCH, PEACEFUL AND SECLUDED.

Orchestra, 2s.; Octuor, 1s. 4d. Extra Parts, each 3d. Piano Solo, 2s.

SUNSET RÊVERIE

A TONE-PICTURE

THE SUN, RECEDING, SLOWLY FADES AWAY.

Orchestra, 2s.; Octuor, 1s. 4d. Extra Parts, each 3d. Piano Solo, 2s.

DAWN

AN IDYLL

A very pretty melody, of which the instrumental colouring, as well as the gradual development of the theme, is very effective.

Orchestra, 2s.; Octuor, 1s. 4d. Extra Parts, 3d. each. Piano Solo, 2s.

LATEST NOVELTIES.

		Orchestra.		Octuor.		Extra Parts, each.	Piano Solo.
		s.	d.	s.	d.	d.	s.	d.
Thomé, F.	SIMPLE AVEU. Romance sans Paroles. Cello Solo	2	8	—		4	2	0
Jones, Edward	ON THE BANKS OF ALLAN WATER. Paraphrase for Orchestra (Piano part included in Orchestra.)	2	0	—		4	—
Williams, W.	CONVIVIALIA. Grand Selection on popular Melodies	3	4	2	8	4	2	0
Sousa, J. P.	LOYAL LEGION. March	1	4	1	0	2	2	0
Alley, W.	LA PERLE D'ORIENT. Mazurka	1	6	1	0	2	2	0
Sousa, J. P.	THE HIGH SCHOOL CADETS. March	1	4	1	0	2	2	0
Komzak, K.	LOVE AND LIFE IN VIENNA. Valse	2	0	1	4	3	2	0
Fabiani, G.	LE LION DE ST. MARC. Italian March	2	0	1	4	3	2	0
Camilla, L	UNE FOLIE DE PESTH. Valse	2	0	1	4	3	2	0
Vollstedt, R.	OLD LOVE IS NEVER FORGOTTEN. Intermezzo	2	0	1	4	3	2	0
Rosas, J.	SOBRE LAS OLAS. Valse	2	0	1	4	3	2	0
Bucalossi, E.	QUEEN OF THE NORTH. Valse	2	0	1	4	3	2	0

New Orchestral Catalogue, gratis on application.

Note New Address:—

HAWKES AND SON,
DENMAN STREET, PICCADILLY CIRCUS, W., LONDON.

NEW FOREIGN PUBLICATIONS.

	s.	d.
BOELLMANN, L.—Rondo française. For Pianoforte Solo	6	0
BOSSI, M. E.—Royal Wedding March. For Organ	4	0
—— The same. For Pianoforte Duet	4	0
—— The same. For Pianoforte Solo	3	0
BRUCH, M.—Aria. For Violoncello and Pianoforte. Op. 70, No. 1	4	0
—— The same. For Violin and Pianoforte	4	0
—— The same. For Clarinet and Pianoforte	4	0
—— Finnlandish Melody. For Violoncello and Pianoforte. Op. 70, No. 2	4	0
—— Swedish Dance. For Violoncello and Pianoforte. Op. 70, No. 3	4	0
—— Scotch Melody. For Violoncello and Pianoforte. Op. 70, No. 4	4	0
COSTA, M.—"Histoire d'un Pierrot" (Pantomime). Cantilène. For Strings and Pianoforte	7	0
—— Entr'acte Sérénade. From the same. For Mandolines and Pianoforte	6	0
GIGOUT, E.—Two Pieces. For Harmonium (Andantino and Cantabile) net	2	6
—— Prelude and Fugue in E. For Organ „	2	0
—— Rhapsodie sur des airs Catalans. For Organ „	3	0
GOUNOD, CH.—Larghetto (Œuvre Posthume):—
No. 1. For Violin, Viola, Violoncello, Pedal Pianoforte, or Organ net	4	0
„ 2. For Violin, Viola, Violoncello, and Pianoforte (Double-Bass ad lib.) net	3	0
„ 3. For Violin, Viola, Violoncello, and Harmonium (Double-Bass ad lib.) net	3	0
„ 4. For Violin and Pianoforte „	2	6
„ 5. For Violin and Harmonium „	2	6
GRÄDENER, H.—Five Impromptus. For Pianoforte, Violin, and Violoncello. Op. 11 net	9	0
HALVORSEN, J.—Suite. For Violin and Pianoforte (Introduction, Melodie, Scherzo, Finale) net	3	6
HASSELMANS, A.—Study. For Harp. Op. 37	5	0
—— "Orientale." For Harp Solo. Op. 38	6	0
HUMPERDINCK, E.—"Albumleaf." For Violin and Pianoforte	3	0
—— The same. For Violoncello and Pianoforte	3	0
—— The same. For Flute and Pianoforte	3	0
—— The same. For Oboe and Pianoforte	3	0
—— The same. For Clarinet and Pianoforte	3	0
—— "Die Königskinder." Prelude to Act II.:—
Full Score net	10	6
Orchestral Parts „	12	0
—— The same. For Pianoforte Solo „	2	0
—— Prelude to Act III.:—
Full Score „	8	0
Orchestral Parts „	12	0
—— The same. For Pianoforte Solo „	2	0
KAHN, R.—Three Pieces. For Violoncello and Pianoforte. Op. 25:—
No. 1. Romanza	4	0
„ 2. Serenata	4	0
„ 3. Capriccio	3	0
KISTLER, C.—Prayer. For Viola and Pianoforte	3	0
—— The same. For Viola and Harmonium	3	0
—— Prelude to "Kunihild." For Viola and Pianoforte	3	0
LAUTERBACH, J.—Allegro Scherzoso. For Violin and Pianoforte. Op. 13	6	0
MELAN—GUÉRAULT.—Two Pieces. For Two Pianofortes (Duet). No. 1. Andantino; No. 2. Pantomime net	3	0
—— "Tourbillon." For Two Pianofortes (Duet) „	3	0
NOVACEK, O.—Quartet (E minor). For Strings. (Two Violins, Viola, and Violoncello):—
Score net	7	6
Parts „	7	6
PABST, P. A.—"A la memoire d'Antoine Rubinstein." Trio (A major). For Pianoforte, Violin, and Violoncello net	10	0
RACHMANINOFF, S.—Trio élégiaque. For Pianoforte, Violin, and Violoncello. (Second Movement, with Harmonium ad lib.) Op. 9 net	16	0
REZNICEK, E. N.—Quartet (C minor). For Strings. (Two Violins, Viola, and Violoncello):—
Score net	3	0
Parts „	5	0
RAMEAU, J. PH.—Œuvres complètes. Vol. II. Containing: Four Concertos for Clavecin (Pianoforte), Violin (or Flute), Viola (or 2nd Violin); Six Concertos for Strings (Sextet). Complete, Score and Parts net	24	0
SAINT-SAËNS, C.—Javotte (Ballet). Pianoforte Score „	10	0
—— Fifth Concerto (in F). For Pianoforte and Orchestra. Op. 103:—
Full Score net	15	0
Orchestral Parts „	25	0
Pianoforte Solo „	8	0
Two Pianofortes (Duet) „	16	0
—— Three Preludes and Fugues for Organ. Arranged for Two Pianofortes (Duet) net	6	0
SALOMÉ, TH.—Fifteen Organ Pieces (Vol. V.) „	7	0
STRAUSS, R.—"Also sprach Zarathustra." For Pianoforte Duet. Op. 30	16	0
TSCHAÏKOWSKY, P.—Symphonie pathétique. Op. 74. Arranged for Pianoforte Solo net	8	0
—— Casse-noisette. Suite. For Full Orchestra. Arranged for Pianoforte Duet net	10	0
WOUTERS, A.—Adagio et Scherzando. For Four Flutes „	5	0

Sold at half-price, if not marked net.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

JUST PUBLISHED.

THE VILLAGE ORGANIST

A New Series of Pieces for Church and General Use

EDITED BY

J. STAINER

AND

F. CUNNINGHAM WOODS.

Price One Shilling each Book.

PREFACE.

There exists already an abundant supply of original compositions and arrangements suitable for performance on large and comprehensive organs, but the many organists who have only a small instrument at their disposal in country churches often have some difficulty in finding short and easy Voluntaries suitable for their own use and the instruction of their pupils. It is hoped that "The Village Organist" (which will be issued in shilling numbers) may supply this want, so much felt by that valuable and zealous class of church-workers to whom the work is inscribed. The Editors have endeavoured to bring together a collection of pieces which they trust will prove to be at once simple, without being uninteresting, and effective where the instrumental resources are limited.

BOOK 1.

1. The Good Shepherd .. .. .. Myles B. Foster
2. Andante .. .. W. Warder Harvey
3. Andante con moto .. .. .. A. R. Gaul
4. Christmas Bells .. .. .. G. J. Elvey
5. Minuet .. .. Philip Hayes
6. Judex, from "Mors et Vita" .. .. Gounod
7. Soft Voluntary .. .. .. H. A. Harding
8. Slow March .. .. .. F. Cunningham Woods
9. A Song of Praise .. .. J. Stainer
10. Andante in G minor .. .. .. E. H. Fellowes

BOOK 2.

1. Allegretto .. .. .. F. Cunningham Woods
2. Larghetto .. .. J. Barnby
3. Adagio .. .. W. Warder Harvey
4. Concluding Voluntary .. .. .. A. R. Gaul
5. Introductory Voluntary .. .. Ed. F. Rimbault
6. Tempo di Minuetto .. .. .. Myles B. Foster
7. Andante con moto, from Quartet in D minor .. .. Schubert
8. Adagio .. .. .. William Sterndale Bennett
9. Introductory Voluntary .. .. Daniel McIntyre

BOOK 3.

1. Andante Tranquillo .. .. .. C. H. Lloyd
2. The Village March .. .. .. Ferris Tozer
3. Romance, from Serenade for Strings .. .. Mozart
4. Gavotte, from "Semele" .. .. Handel
5. An Evening Prayer .. .. Alfred W. Tomlyn
6. Heaven and the earth display, from "Athalie" .. .. Mendelssohn

BOOK 4.

1. Meditation .. .. Battison Haynes
2. Allegro moderato .. .. W. John Reynolds
3. Funeral March, from Pianoforte Quintet (Op. 44) .. .. .. Schumann
4. Concluding Voluntary .. .. .. Cuthbert Harris
5. Introductory Voluntary .. .. E. H. Turpin
6. Solemn March .. .. C. H. Lloyd

BOOK 5.

1. Agnus Dei .. .. .. F. Cunningham Woods
2. Minuet, from 9th Pianoforte Sonata .. Mozart
3. Jerusalem Cœlestis, from "Mors et Vita" .. .. Gounod
4. Andante Grazioso .. .. .. Kate Boundy
5. Allegro con brio .. .. Frederick A. Keene
6. Communion .. .. .. W. Wolstenholme
7. Allegro, from Finale to the 9th Pianoforte Trio .. .. Haydn
8. Concluding Voluntary .. .. .. Cuthbert Harris

BOOK 6.

1. O Salutaris Hostia .. .. .. Myles B. Foster
2. Slow March, from the 4th Sonata .. Boyce
3. O great is the depth, from "St. Paul" .. .. Mendelssohn
4. Processional March .. .. .. J. Warriner
5. Largo, from "Xerxes" .. .. Handel
6. Forsake me not, Duet from "The Last Judgment" .. .. .. Spohr
7. Allegro moderato .. .. W. Warder Harvey
8. Minuet .. .. Samuel Ould

Each Book consists of Twenty Pages of Music. To be continued.

THE ORIGINAL EDITION of THE VILLAGE ORGANIST, price 5s., cloth, will be retained in print.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Printed by Novello, Ewer and Co., at 69 & 70, Dean Street (W.), and published at 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 and 81, Queen Street (E.C.) Sold also by Kent and Co., Paternoster Row (E.C.)—Monday, March 1, 1897.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 650.—Vol. 38. APRIL 1, 1897. Price 4d.; Postage, 1½d.
Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Post-free, 5s.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY,
ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Patron: HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF SAXE-COBURG AND GOTHA, DUKE OF EDINBURGH, K.G.

Conductor: Professor BRIDGE, Mus.D.

GOOD FRIDAY, APRIL 16, AT 7.

HANDEL'S "MESSIAH"

Artists:
Miss ESTHER PALLISER.
Madame BELLE COLE.
Mr. LLOYD CHANDOS.
Mr. SANTLEY.

Prices: Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Arena, 6s.; Balcony (Reserved), 5s.; Unreserved, 4s.; Gallery (Promenade), 1s.
The performance will commence at 7, and finish by 9.45.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,
TENTERDEN STREET, W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.

Patrons: HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND THE ROYAL FAMILY.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF SAXE-COBURG AND GOTHA.
Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus. Doc.

Midsummer Term begins Monday, May 3. Entrance Examination therefor, Thursday, April 29, at 2.
Sainton Scholarship for Violinists. Last day for entry, April 14.
Liszt Scholarship for Pianists and Composers. Last day for entry, April 14.
Prospectus, Entry Forms, and all information may be obtained from the Secretary. F. W. RENAUT, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,
Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.

PRINCE CONSORT ROAD, SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.
President: H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.
Director: C. HUBERT H. PARRY, Esq., D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.
Hon. Sec.: CHARLES MORLEY, Esq., M.P.

The MIDSUMMER TERM will commence on Monday, May 3.
Entrance Examination, Friday, April 30, at 11.
Syllabus and Entry Forms may be obtained of
FRANK POWNALL, Registrar.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.—
Established by the Corporation of London, 1880.
Principal: WILLIAM H. CUMMINGS, Esq.
Students' Orchestra meets Mondays, 6.30 p.m. Classes for study of Rudiments of Music, also Sight Singing, held daily. Full particulars of Secretary. By order of the Committee,
Victoria Embankment, Blackfriars. E.C. HILTON CARTER, Sec.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The solo playing tests for the Fellowship Examination in July will be:—Choral Vorspiel, "Christ unser Herr, zum Jordan kam," Bach (Peters, Novello and Co.); Fugue on the name of Bach, No. 4, Schumann (No. 248. Original Compositions for the Organ. Novello and Co.); and "Variations on a Theme by Beethoven," Op. 45, Merkel (Forberg, Leipzig; Novello and Co.).
The concluding Lecture, on the "Principles and Practice of Counterpoint," will be delivered by J. Higgs, Mus. Bac., on Wednesday, April 7, at 5 p.m.
The College Library will be open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; also on Tuesdays and Thursdays, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.
Members desiring practice on the College Organ may obtain particulars on application.
The large Hall, and sundry smaller rooms, may be hired for concerts, meetings, &c. E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.
Hart Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

MUSICAL INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE,
LIMITED.
Founded 1878. Incorporated 1893.
Central Office: 113, Great Portland Street, W.
Next Local Theoretical Examination, May 25, 1897.
Practical Examinations throughout the kingdom.
W. A. PHILPOTT, Mus. Doc., Secretary.

QUEEN'S HALL,
LANGHAM PLACE, W.

LIST OF CONCERTS, SEASON 1896-97.
UNDER THE DIRECTION OF
MR. ROBERT NEWMAN.

QUEEN'S HALL SYMPHONY CONCERTS.

Conductor: Mr. HENRY J. WOOD.
April 3, TSCHAÏKOWSKY'S SYMPHONIE PATHÉTIQUE.
7s. 6d., 5s., 2s. 6d., 1s., at Robert Newman's Box Office.

THE QUEEN'S HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

CONDUCTOR—MR. RANDEGGER.
FIXTURES, 1897.

April 16, at 3	"Redemption"	Gounod.
May 13, at 8	"St. Paul"	Mendelssohn.
May 27, at 3	"Elijah"	Mendelssohn.

Artists:
Madame DUMA and Miss CLARA SAMUELL.
Miss THUDICHUM.
Miss HILDA WILSON and Miss ADA CROSSLEY.
Madame BELLE COLE.
Mr. EDWARD LLOYD.
Mr. LLOYD CHANDOS and Mr. IVER McKAY.
Mr. SANTLEY.
Mr. ANDREW BLACK and Mr. LEMPRIERE PRINGLE.

Single Tickets—7s. 6d. and 5s.; 2s. 6d. and 1s.
At usual Agents, and Robert Newman's Box Office, Queen's Hall.

QUEEN'S HALL.

SATURDAY PROMENADE CONCERTS
Last Two Nights, April 3 and 10, from 8 till 11 o'clock.
Smoking allowed.
GRAND ORCHESTRA OF ONE HUNDRED AND THREE.

Solo Cornet	Mr. HOWARD REYNOLDS.
Principal Violin	Mr. ARTHUR W. PAYNE.
Accompanist	Mr. PERCY PITT.

Conductor: Mr. HENRY J. WOOD.
1s., 2s., 3s., 5s., at Robert Newman's Box Office.

QUEEN'S HALL.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON ORCHESTRAL CONCERTS
Every Sunday Afternoon during the Winter, from 3.30 till 5.
FULL ORCHESTRA OF SEVENTY.

Principal Violin	Mr. ARTHUR W. PAYNE.
Organ and Pianoforte	Mr. PERCY PITT.

Conductor: Mr. RANDEGGER.
Tickets: 2s., 1s. 6d., 1s., 6d., at Robert Newman's Box Office.

QUEEN'S HALL.

SUNDAY EVENING CHAMBER CONCERTS
THE QUEEN'S HALL STRING QUARTET.
Señor ARBOS.
Mr. FERDINAND WEIST-HILL. Mr. ALFRED HOBDAY.
Mr. W. H. SQUIRE.
Last Two Sunday Evenings, April 4 and 11, at 7.30.

Tickets for all Concerts and Theatres may be obtained at ROBERT NEWMAN'S Box Office, Queen's Hall, Langham Place, W.
Telegrams—"Chord, London." Telephone—35216.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS FLORENCE ARMRIDING (Soprano)
(Pupil of Mr. Shakespeare and Medalist, R.A.M.).
Oratorios, Concerts, Lessons, &c., at 20, Conduit Street. Address, Leicester Villa, Ealing, W.

MISS LIZZIE AUSTIN (Soprano)
(Silver Medalist, R.A.M.).
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c. 8, Claremont Square, N.

MISS ETHEL BARNARD (Soprano)
(Bronze and Silver Medals, Cert. of Merit, and Rutson Memorial Prizeholder, R.A.M.)
German Songs a specialty. 25, Upper Richmond Road, Putney, S.W.

MISS AMY BURVILLE (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
15, Belsize Road, South Hampstead.

MISS ELLA CHALLIS (Soprano)
Oratorio, Opera, Concerts, At Homes.
Reference kindly permitted to Mr. Isidore de Solla.
3, Holmdale Road, Stamford Hill, N.

MISS CHARLOTTE DICKENS (Soprano)
(Medalist, R.A.M.).
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, Press Notices, and Lessons, North End House, Stanhope Street, Mornington Crescent, N.W.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 237, Katherine Street, Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS FUSSELLE (Soprano)
Licentiate (Artist), R.A.M.
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. 37, Harrington Square, N.W.

MADAME GOODALL (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Address, Leeds.

MADAME NELLIE GOSNELL (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c., address, 37, St. Augustine's Road, Camden Square, N.W.

MISS ADA LEE (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c. Address, 164, Strand, W.C.

MADAME MARIE MALLIA (Soprano)
Oratorios and Concerts. Claremont, Hermon Hill, Snaresbrook, N.E.

MISS WINIFRED PEAKE (Soprano)
Sainton-Dolby Scholar, Silver Medalist and Cert., R.A.M.
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.,
In Town and Provinces.
Strathearn, Broadhurst Gardens, West Hampstead, N.W.

MISS MARGARET PEARSON (Soprano)
Concerts, Oratorios, &c.
Special: "Creation," "Elijah," and "Stabat Mater" (Rossini).
For terms, &c., 50, Bloom Street, Stockport.

MISS FANNIE SELLERS (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Recitals, &c., Crag Cottage, Knaresbro'.

MISS C. THEODORIC (Soprano and Accompanist)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 37, Binfield Road, Clapham.

MISS LILIAN TURNBULL (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Banquets, &c.
Address, 10, Cecile Park, Crouch End, N.

MISS FLORENCE VEREY (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Apply, care of N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork Street, W.

MISS HELEN DE WOLVELEY (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, &c.
Address, 744, High Road, Tottenham, N.
"Miss de Wolveley's beautiful voice and cultured style were much admired in the solos allotted to her."—Musical Standard, Feb., 1897.

MISS NELLIE DRESSER (Mezzo-Soprano)
(Pupil of Mr. Fred. Walker).
For Concerts, At Homes, Lessons, &c., 5, Marius Road, Balham.

MISS MARY KNIGHT (Mezzo-Soprano)
MR. FRED. KNIGHT (Baritone)
For Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes, &c.,
6, Oxford Road, Kilburn, N.W.

MISS MARY WILLIS (Mezzo-Soprano)
For Oratorios, Operas, Concerts, or Private Lessons, address, 9, Rochester Terrace, Camden Road, N.W.

MISS FLORENCE CROFT (Contralto)
MR. D'ARCY CLAYTON (Tenor)
75, Brecknock Road, N.W.

MADAME CLARA DORAN (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes.
39, Malvern Road, Kilburn, N.W.

MISS LUCIE JOHNSTONE (Contralto)
13, Cromwell Grove, West Kensington Park, W.
"St. Paul."—Royal Choral Society, December 10, 1896.—"The surprise of the evening lay in the admirable contralto singing of Miss Lucie Johnstone. Restrained, yet full of power and beauty, it well deserved the very cordial appreciation that was shown on every side. Her rendering of the touching melody 'But the Lord is mindful of His own' was wonderfully tender and withal musicianly. We have been, as it seems, so poor of late in really good contralto voices, that singing so genuinely fine came with a double delight."—Pall Mall Gazette.

MISS RINA ROBINSON (Contralto)
For Oratorio and Ballad Concerts. 80, Tufnell Park Road, N.
References kindly permitted to Dr. A. H. Mann, Dr. E. H. Turpin, and Mr. F. A. W. Docker.

MR. WRIGHT BEAUMONT (Tenor)
(Bronze and Silver Medalist and Certificate, R.A.M.).
Address, 20, Lavender Gardens, Clapham Junction, S.W.

MR. HARRY BERREY (Tenor)
Opera or Oratorio.
St. Helen's, near Liverpool.

MR. TOM CHILD (The Yorkshire Tenor)
(Principal Tenor, Parish Church, Leeds)
Winner of the 100 Guineas Prize, Music Trades Exhibition, 1896.
For terms and vacant dates, address, Hollingside, Horsforth.

MR. WALTER CLINCH (Tenor)
(Late of St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle).
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c., address, Athole House, Alfred Road, Acton, W.

MR. OTTO DENE (Tenor)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, Masonic Work, &c.
Address, 132, Norwood Road, S.E.;
or, to W. B. Healey & Son, 17, Great Marlborough Street, W.

MR. GWILYM RICHARDS (Tenor)
Winner of Joseph Maas Memorial Prize,
" " Goldberg Prize,
" " Evill Prize,
At the Royal Academy of Music.
Of the Crystal Palace and St. James's Hall Concerts.
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts. 30, Redburn Street, Chelsea, S.W.

MR. J. W. STOKER (Solo Tenor)
(Llandaff Cathedral).
For Concerts, &c., address, The Cathedral.

MR. HENRY TURNPENNY (Tenor)
(Robinson Prize-winner, G.S.M.)
(Pupil of Wallace Wells, Esq.)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., Southgate Road, Wood Green, N.

MR. HERBERT ALDRIDGE (Baritone)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Address, Saxonbury Villa, Buxton Road, Stratford, E.

MR. GORDON HELLER (Baritone)
Oratorios, &c., 1, Craven Mansion, Craven Terrace, W.

MR. EDGAR LUNNON (Baritone)
(Of Crystal Palace Concerts, &c.)
Address, 7, Bowerdean Street, Wandsworth Bridge Road, S.W.

MR. WILLIAM PRICE (Baritone)
(St. James's Hall and Imperial Institute Concerts).
For terms, apply to 1, Redesdale Street, Chelsea.

MR. CHARLES SMITH (Baritone)
Concerts, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Fairmead, Woodriff Road, Leytonstone.

MR. TOM WATERHOUSE
(The Popular Baritone).
For Oratorios, Operas, Orchestral Concerts, Recitals, &c.
"Sang 'Why do the nations' with great dash and power, giving a fine interpretation of this spirited solo."—Vide Press.
For terms, &c., address, 21, Compton St., Stalybridge, nr. Manchester.

MR. JOHN BROWNING
(Principal Bass, Leeds Parish Church).
Cumberland Festival, January 1, 2, and 3, 1897 (Tenor and Bass Soloists, Mr. Ben Davies and Mr. John Browning).—"Judas."—"Mr. John Browning is now well known in West Cumberland, and he had a hearty reception. 'The Lord worketh' and 'Arm, arm,' were his strong numbers, and with these he fairly 'brought down the house.'"—Workington News, January 9, 1897.
Barnard Castle Choral Society.—"Samson."—"Mr. John Browning . . . with a finely cultured voice, always under admirable control, was certainly the favourite of the principals . . . nothing could have been finer than his wonderful interpretation of the air, 'Thy glorious deeds.' With equal ease and confidence he attacked the difficult solo "Honour and arms," which abounds in long and arduous runs, and he was more than equal to the task."
"Mr. John Browning (of Leeds), who made his début in this neighbourhood, speedily made a name for himself, and was encored for his fine rendering of 'Honour and arms.' He possesses a rich, yet powerful voice, and whilst giving full effect, never offers the slightest trouble to the instrumentalists. He will again be heard at Barnard Castle."—Teesdale Mercury, February 17, 1897.

MR. PERCY H. FELL (Accompanist)
Concerts, Dinners, At Homes, Private Practice, &c.
Address, Billiter House, Billiter Street, E.C.

MISS GRACE M. SMITH, L.R.A.M.
(Solo Pianist and Accompanist),
"Killiney," Hatherley Road, Sidcup.

MR. AUGUSTUS TOOP
Accompanist, Teacher of Organ, Piano, and Singing.
60, Berners Street, W.

MISS ALICE SIMONS (late Parepa-Rosa Scholar and Medalist, R.A.M.) will take principal Soprano Solos, &c.: April 1, Morley Hall; 3, New Cross, "Creation"; 6, Brockley, Spohr's "Last Judgment" and "Rossini's "Stabat Mater"; 7, City; 13, Highbury, "Creation"; 16 (Good Friday), Hackney, "Messiah"; 22, Southampton, "Martyr of Antioch"; 27, Tonbridge, "Creation"; May 1, Rochester, "Creation"; 5, Dover, "Sleeping Beauty." For vacant dates, apply, 19, Stamford Hill, N.

MR. SINCLAIR DUNN (Tenor) requests that all communications respecting Concerts, Oratorios, Operas, Lessons, &c., be addressed to him at 67, Berners Street, W.

MR. EGBERT ROBERTS (Bass, Conductor, Italian Church, Hatton Garden) requests that all communications respecting Oratorios, Opera, or Concerts be addressed 45, Pentonville Road, N.

HAND-BELLS —Mr. ARTHUR J. MANGER. Concerts, Dinners, At Homes, &c. 100, Manor Road, Brockley, S.E.

MISS
FANNY DE BOUFFLERS
(SOPRANO)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Recitals, address, Carlton House, Liverpool.
Agent: N. Vert.

MADAME ADA LOARING
(SOPRANO)
Merrion, Wellington Road, Peckham, S.E.

MISS MARIE ROBERTS
(SOPRANO)
For Oratorio and Miscellaneous Concerts.
Address, Fitzjohn's Mansions, Netherhall Gardens, N.W.

MADAME LAURA SMART
(SOPRANO)
Oratorios, Operatic Recitals, Ballad Concerts.
Address, 106, Bolingbroke Grove, Wandsworth Common, S.W.; or, 50, Church Street, Liverpool.

MADAME MARIE HOOTON
AND
MR.
EDWARD BRANSCOMBE
Beg to announce their return from Australia.
Address, 47, Ridgmount Gardens, W.C.

MR. CHARLES CHILLEY
Begs to announce that he has REMOVED to 38, Carson Road, West Dulwich, S.E.

MR.
HAMLYN CRIMP
(TENOR)
For terms and vacant dates, please apply, The Woodlands, Heathfield Road, Birmingham.
Concert Parties arranged.

MR. JAMES GAWTHROP'S
(TENOR)
Present engagements include the following works: "Elijah," Hastings; "Messiah," Kensington; "Maid of Lorne," Manchester; "Judas Maccabæus," S. London Institute of Music; "Redemption," Staffords; "Elijah" and "Creation," Yorks; "Samson" and "Messiah," Lancs.; "Eli," Northampton; Bach's "Passion," Kensington.
For Engagements and Lessons, address, 5, Hazelmere Road, Brondesbury Road, N.W.

MR. JOS. REED
Principal Tenor, Trinity College, & Soloist, Cumberland Festival, 1897.
Terms, Garden Walk, Cambridge.

MR. WILLIAM WILD
(TENOR)
Of the Sir Charles and Lady Hallé South African Concert Tour, 1895.
(Pupil of Andrew Black, Esq.)
Specially recommended by the late Sir Charles Hallé. For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. Grosvenor Square, Stalybridge.

MR.
KEVERN BATTEN
(L.R.A.M., BARITONE)
For Concerts, &c., address, 9, Adelaide Road, N.W.
For Summer Months, Telegrams, &c., Derwent Villa, Ilfracombe.

MR.
A. MONTAGUE BORWELL
L.R.A.M., A.G.S.M. (BARITONE).
Prize-winner, Solo Singing and Sight Reading, Stratford Musical Festival. Medalist, Soc. Arts.
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. 16, Springfield, Upper Clapton, N.E.

MR. ROBERT GRICE
(BARITONE VOCALIST)
Of the Royal Choral Society, Crystal Palace, St. James's Hall, Queen's Hall, Hereford, Chester, Cheltenham and Wolverhampton Triennial Festivals, Glasgow Choral Union, Edinburgh Choral Union, Birmingham and Bradford Festival Choral Societies' Concerts, &c., accepts Engagements for Oratorio, Ballad and Miscellaneous Concerts, "At Homes," Masonic and other Banquets. Also at liberty to join Touring Company.
Feb. 3, 1897.—"Golden Legend," Dublin Musical Society.—"Of Mr. Grice it seems almost unnecessary to say a word. His name has come to signify good taste, artistic singing and phrasing—in brief, vocal excellence. Mr. Grice has seldom sung with finer effect than in the music of Lucifer last night. It is difficult where all was sung so tastefully to point to any number in which Mr. Grice excelled. But perhaps his power was best shown in the fine number sung in the procession, 'Here am I, too, in the pious band.'"
For terms, vacant dates, &c., please address, 38, Tytherton Road, Tufnell Park, N.; or, usual Agents.

MR. EDWARD ILES
(BARITONE).
"A line to say how very much I enjoyed your singing on Saturday. I thought it so artistic, free and powerful."—William Shakespeare.
"The possessor of a highly cultivated and mellow baritone. His voice is full of music, and he thoroughly understands how to use it."—Morning Leader.
"His voice is very musical, and he sings with charming naturalness of expression."—Musical Courier.
Address, N. Vert, 6, Cork Street, Burlington Gardens, W.

MR. H. C. PORTWAY
(BARITONE)
For Oratorio, Concerts, &c., address, 76, Redesdale St., Chelsea, S.W.
"Bride of Dunkerron" (Smart).—"Mr. Portway, who has a most excellent baritone voice, gave a remarkably fine rendering of the part of the Sea King, his great solo, 'The sea rules all,' evoking a grand burst of enthusiasm."—The Times.

MR. DANIEL PRICE
(BARITONE)
Westminster Abbey. Address, 18, Clarendon Road, W.

MR. EDGAR ARCHER
(Principal Bass, City Temple).
Pupil of Mr. Fred. Walker.
Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Apply, 153, Adelaide Road, N.W.

MR. ARTHUR BARLOW
(BASS)
For Oratorios, Operas, Concerts, &c.
Address, 19, Oval Road, Regent's Park, N.W.; or, N. Vert, 6, Cork Street, W.

MR. FREDERICK BEVAN
(Bass, H.M. Chapels Royal)
Composer of "The flight of ages," "The admiral's broom," &c.
For Oratorios or Ballad Concerts.
For terms, &c., apply, 21, Bonham Road, Brixton Rise, S.W.

MR. BRENDON CRICHTON
(BASSO CANTANTE),
For Concerts, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Address, 75, Overstrand Mansions, Battersea Park, S.W.

MR. HERBERT HILTON
(BASS)
For Concerts, &c., please address, 58, Lordship Lane, Wood Green, N.

MISS ALICE MARY SMITH
(Mrs. Alfred Dymes)
Associate of the Royal College of Music
HARPIST
16, Lancaster Road, W.

"VOICE PRODUCTION, STYLE, AND ARTISTIC SINGING."
MR. F. ST. JOHN LACY,
A.R.A.M., &c.
Receives Pupils at his residence, Albany Chambers, York Street, Queen Anne's Gate (St. James's Park Station); or, at New Bond St.

THE GRIMSON FAMILY.

This remarkable family of Instrumentalists can be engaged either together or separately. Programmes suitable for an entire Concert or for small Choral Societies or Literary and Musical Societies. They play almost any combination of Chamber Music, from the Mendelssohn Octet downwards.

Solo Pianists.
Miss ANNIE GRIMSON, A.R.C.M., and Hopkinson Gold Medalist, Covent Garden Promenade Concerts, Imperial Institute, &c.
Miss AMY GRIMSON, A.R.C.M., and Hopkinson Gold Medalist.
Solo Violin.
Miss JESSIE GRIMSON, Crystal Palace Saturday Concerts.
Solo Cello.
Miss AMY GRIMSON.
For terms, Press notices, &c., S. Dean Grimson, Cremona, Ealing, W.

ROYAL WINDSOR GLEE SINGERS

(Of St. George's Chapel Royal and Eton College Chapel).

Mr. WALTER CLAY — Mr. ABEL STARKEY
Mr. DAVID HUMPHREYS — Mr. WALTER DODDS.

For Concerts, At Homes, Banquets, &c., address, D. Humphreys, 19, The Cloisters, Windsor Castle; or, N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork St., W.

THE COWARD-KEMPTON QUARTET.

Alto: Mr. PERCY COWARD; Tenor: Mr. ARTHUR COWARD; Baritone: Mr. RANDULPH COWARD; Bass: Mr. BELL KEMPTON.
For Concerts, &c. Terms on application to Arthur Coward (care of Metzler and Co., Ltd.), Great Marlborough Street, W.

THE CRICHTON PART-SINGERS

HAYDN GROVER (Alto) | HERBERT DYER (Tenor)
HUGH COCHRANE (Baritone) | FREDERICK KING (Bass)

"For well-balanced harmony, delicate phrasing, and sweetness of voice it would be hard to find their peers."—Morning Leader, December 7, 1896.

"The evening was notable for the admirable singing of a male-voice quartet, known as the 'Crichton Part-Singers,' and they were heard in Hatton's exquisite glee 'When evening's twilight,' and two compositions by Haydn Grover. They are evidently a highly disciplined body of vocalists, and our impressions are very favourable."—Bayswater Chronicle, February 13, 1897.

"The other vocalists were the 'Crichton Part-Singers,' an admirable quartet whose voices beautifully blended, and in addition to a couple of quartets and part-songs, admirably rendered, each sang at least one solo in faultless style."—Southampton Echo, January 21, 1897.

For Press critiques, vacant dates, and terms, apply, 40, Warbeck Road, Uxbridge Road, W.

THE CONCERT TRIO PARTY.

Violin .. .. .. Mr. ERNEST NEWLAND SMITH.
Cello .. .. .. Mr. A. H. EARNSHAW.
Piano .. .. .. Mr. FRANK MUMMERY.

The above Trio Party is booking Engagements for the season. Performs Solos and Trios. For terms and vacant dates, address, Secretary, 35, Oseney Crescent, N.W.

THE ANGELUS GLEE SINGERS.

Messrs. R. ALEXANDER, ALBON NASH, HENRY YATES, and ARTHUR WITHERS.
For particulars apply, Secretary, 1, Trossachs Road, Dulwich.

THE AMPHION GLEE-MEN.

CHARLES RAY
(Principal Alto, Holy Trinity, Sloane Street, S.W.)
SIDNEY MARION
R. E. STRICKLAND
(Corporation, Mitchell and Webster Exhibitioner, G.S.M., 1885-6)
FREDERIC HABBIJAM
(St. Margaret's, Westminster, S.W.)
May be engaged for Concerts, At Homes, Masonic Banquets, &c. Terms, vacant dates, apply to Sidney Marion, 42, Norcott Road, Stoke Newington, N.

MR. JOSEF CANTOR'S

"GEMS OF THE OPERAS"

CONCERT COMPANY.

All communications, Church Street, Liverpool.

Telegrams—"Cantor, Liverpool."

THE MISSES TULLOCH'S

Vocal, Instrumental, and Dramatic

RECITALS.

OPERATIC SCENAS AND ARIAS. BALLADS.
MANDOLINE AND GUITAR SOLOS AND DUETS.
ITALIAN, FRENCH, AND GERMAN SONGS.
SPANISH SONGS TO GUITAR ACCOMPANIMENTS.
RECITATIONS (POETIC AND HUMOROUS).

For Press notices and Programmes, address, Miss D. Tulloch, 16, Linden Gardens, London, W.; or, usual Concert Agents.

SOLO BOYS.

LONDON TRAINING SCHOOL FOR CHORISTERS.

Principal, MR. JAMES BATES.

Solo Boys supplied for Oratorios, Festival Services, Organ Recitals, Concerts, &c.

The following Boys can be strongly recommended as excellent Soloists:—

MASTER STANLEY MARCHANT,
Solo Boy, Christ Church, Lancaster Gate, W.
MASTER PERCY HALE,
Solo Boy, Holy Trinity, Sloane Square, S.W.
MASTER WILLIE GAMMAGE,
Solo Boy, Royal Military Chapel, S.W.
MASTER WILLIAM McLEAN,
Solo Boy, St. Peter's, Cranley Gardens, S.W.
MASTER EDWARD BOWLEY,
Solo Boy, Hon. Society of Gray's Inn, W.C.
MASTER GEORGE EDWARDS,
Solo Boy, St. Saviour's Cathedral, Southwark.
MASTER JAMES McBEAN,
Solo Boy, Holy Trinity, Wandsworth, S.W.
MASTER WILLIAM McBEAN,
Solo Boy, Hampstead Parish Church, N.W.
MASTER ARTHUR WIDLAKE,
Solo Boy, St. Peter's, Hammersmith, W.
MASTER ARTHUR SIGGERS,
Solo Boy, St. Paul's, Paddington, W.
MASTER ERNEST GLENN,
Solo Boy, St. Thomas's, Kensington, W.
MASTER FREDERICK WESTON,
Solo Boy, St. Jude's, Chelsea, W.

Masters Albert Russell, Stanley Smith, Herbert Harden, Alfred Bartington, and George Glasspoole, thoroughly competent Solo Boys, are free to accept permanent engagements (Anglican Services).

Extracts from recent testimonials:—

Alberto Randegger, Esq., Conductor, Queen's Hall Choral Society, &c.
"Too much praise cannot be given for your boys' excellent singing."—May 11, 1896.
Professor Bridge, Mus. Doc., Conductor, Royal Choral Society, &c.
"Your boys are excellent."—June 30, 1896.
John Spencer Curwen, Esq., President, Tonic Sol-fa College.
"I have often been charmed with the sensibility, the phrasing, and the emotional power of your solo boys' renderings."—Sept. 11, 1896.

Recent Newspaper cuttings:—

"The delightful singing of 'Killarney' and 'Birds in the night,' by Master Stanley Marchant, afforded a very enjoyable addition to the Meister Glee Singers' programme."—Bayswater Chronicle, Jan. 8, 1897.
"Master Marchant gave a very beautiful rendering of the soprano solos (Spohr's 'Last Judgment'); indeed, we think his singing better than any other boy we have ever heard in the Cathedral on similar occasions."—Hereford Times, Dec. 20, 1896.
"Master Percy Hale sang exquisitely 'With verdure clad' and 'On mighty pens.'"—Musical News, Oct. 17, 1896.
"'With verdure clad' was exquisitely sung by Master Herbert Harden."—Putney and Borough News, Oct. 16, 1896.
"The audience were delighted with his (Master W. McLean's) sweet and dulcet tones (Brahms's 'Lullaby' and Mendelssohn's 'Hear my Prayer')."—Yeovil Weekly News, Feb. 16, 1897.

Over 100 chorus boys available on week-days. These boys can be engaged for Musical Festivals, &c. Sixty boys have had a unique experience, as they take part in all the Queen's Hall Choral Society's Concerts. "Creation," "Elijah," "Samson and Dalila," "Messiah," "Golden Legend," "Stabat Mater" (Rossini), "Faust" (Berlioz), "Hymn of Praise," "Redemption," "St. Paul."

London critiques on the Boys' singing at the Queen's Hall Choral Society's Concerts:—

The Times, Jan. 4, 1897.—The choir, materially assisted by a contingent of boys from the London Training School for Choristers, were more than admirable in every way, their quality of tone, power of expression, and precision of attack being as remarkable as they are uncommon."

Daily Telegraph, Jan. 24, 1896.—"The choruses gained in effect through the strengthening of the choir by a contingent of boys from the 'London Training School for Choristers,' whose bright young voices were heard to much advantage."

Morning Post, April 4, 1896.—"In speaking of the choir mention should be made of the excellent singing of the contingent of boys from the London Training School for Choristers.

Standard, Feb. 24, 1896.—"The sopranos and contraltos were reinforced by a large contingent of boys from the London Training School for Choristers. The bright, fresh voices of the juvenile singers blended excellently with those of the female executants."

For terms, photos of Solo Boys, and full particulars, address, Mr. G. E. Jeffries, Secretary, Church House, Porchester Terrace, Hyde Park, W.

MR.
BLAXLAND'S SOLO BOYS
FOR ORATORIOS,
CHURCH FESTIVALS, CONCERTS, BANQUETS, &c.

Testimonials from Sir JOHN STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon.; C. H. H. PARRY, M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon. et Cantab.; JOSEPH BRIDGE, M.A., Mus. Doc., &c., and many other leading musicians.

MR. BLAXLAND'S SOLO BOYS have successfully fulfilled SOLO engagements in all parts of London and the Provinces (see list in Musical Times for February, 1897), including Chester Festival, Sheffield Festival, Leeds Philharmonic, &c., and are fulfilling many important Lenten engagements, including (Selections) Bach's "Passion" Music at St. Anne's, Soho, and St. Alban's, Teddington; Gaul's "Holy City," Richmond, &c.

Master
STERNDALE BENNETT
(Contralto Soloist, St. Alban's, Teddington).
A rich and beautiful contralto.

Master
WILLIE CHILDS
(Soprano Soloist, St. Mary's, Stoke Newington)
(Pupil of Mr. H. W. Lovell and Mr. Blaxland).
A clever and artistic singer, and thoroughly reliable.

Master
EDGAR FAVELL
(Soprano Soloist, St. Alban's, Teddington)
(Pupil for Singing of Mr. Blaxland; formerly pupil of Mr. R. Lochner).
An experienced Soloist, with a powerful and flexible voice of great compass.

Master
EDMUND LA TOUCHE
(Pupil of Mr. Blaxland).
Solo Boy (Collegiate Choir), St. Saviour's, Southwark. A full round Soprano voice of good compass, and best Cathedral style.

And the following Solo Boys:—Masters BANNISTER, BEAMENT, HUXLEY, EVANS, GRAY, PARRY, ROGERS, and others.

MR. BLAXLAND'S BOYS assisted at the grand Opening Service (Afternoon) at St. Saviour's, Southwark.

Selected from recent unsolicited testimonials and from press notices:—

St. Anne's, Soho.—Bach's "Passion" Music.—"The air, 'I follow Thee also' (Master La Touche) was exquisitely sung."—The Times, March 8, 1897.

St. Anne's, Soho.—"The deeply expressive number, 'I follow Thee also,' was beautifully sung by Master La Touche."—Morning Post, March 6, 1897.

March 11, 1897.—"Master Edgar Favell's voice does you immense credit, because he sings—unlike most other boys I have heard—with such expression and taste. It is quite a pleasure to think that boys can be taught to sing in a perfectly musicianly way, and in a cultivated and refined manner. He charmed the audience, and was twice encored. His voice is very rich and powerful."—(Signed) Rev. W. H. Weekes, Conductor, Devizes Orchestral Society.

Alton, March 7, 1897.—"Favell sang with great taste, and gave much satisfaction."—(Signed) J. Everitt, Organist and Choirmaster.

February 25, 1897.—"Favell has a very beautiful voice, carefully trained. He sings with expression and feeling and a finish not often found in a boy's voice."—(Signed) Rev. E. T. Harris, Rector of Rowell, Wilts.

January 20, 1897.—"I am delighted with the voice and method of Master Edgar Favell, and believe he will take a position as a famous chorister."—(Signed) J. Munro Coward.

Glasgow, January 16 and 17, 1897.—"Master Edgar Favell, the boy soprano, was accorded a splendid reception, his phrasing and intonation being exceptionally fine."—The Daily Record, January 18, 1897.

"Master Edgar Favell, a boy soprano, sang with wonderful taste and expression."—Evening Citizen, January 18, 1897.

"Master Edgar Favell sings with good taste, good expression, and his voice is bright and telling."—January 17, 1897.—(Signed) Signor G. Martinengo.

Birmingham, December 7, 1896.—"Last Judgment."—"Favell did his work splendidly, and gave us all every satisfaction, singing in a most tasteful and artistic manner."—(Signed) W. T. Jenkins, Organist and Choirmaster.

Hornsey, December 9, 1896.—"Last Judgment."—"Everyone was very pleased with Favell's singing. I am sure no one could wish for anything more beautiful."—(Signed) Henry J. Baker, Organist and Choirmaster.

MR. BLAXLAND'S "BOYS' TRIO"

Liverpool, Birkenhead, and Blundellsands, January 3, 4, 5, and 6.—"The Boys quite realized the expectations formed on what I had previously heard concerning them; they sang beautifully, and were much appreciated. Their singing was artistic, and most pleasing, and gave general satisfaction to our subscribers. They have evidently been most carefully trained, and their fresh young voices made a welcome addition to the young musicians' night."—(Signed) G. B. Rodway, Secretary. February 10, 1897.

Mr. Blaxland strongly recommends this "Boys' Trio" as a novelty for Concerts, &c. Répertoire—Trios, Duets, and Solos—on application.

For terms, and all particulars, address—
Mr. BLAXLAND, 15, Tavistock Crescent, Westbourne Park, W.

MR. DUTTON'S SOLO BOYS.
FOR LENTEN ORATORIOS.

MR. DUTTON (St. Paul's Cathedral) supplies Solo Boys for Church Festivals, Organ Recitals, Concerts, &c.

MR. DUTTON'S Boys are trained entirely by himself, and he guarantees their efficiency.

They are engaged for the following works during Lent: Haydn's "Passion" (5 times), Rossini's "Stabat Mater" (4 times), Gaul's "Passion" (twice), "Ten Virgins," "Crucifixion" (3 times), "Messiah," "Redemption," "Lauda Zion," "Bethany," "Eli" (Samuel), Maunder's "Martyrs," &c.

George C. Martin, Esq., Mus. Doc., Organist of St. Paul's Cathedral, writes: "I have almost exclusively employed Mr. Dutton's Solo Boys at Services at St. Paul's Cathedral and elsewhere when our own choristers were not available, and they have given me on all occasions the greatest possible satisfaction. I feel that Mr. Dutton has special and very great abilities in the art of training choristers; his boys sing with much expression and refinement."—December 20, 1896.

For vacant dates, terms, and further particulars, address, Mr. Henry J. Dutton, 19, Alpha Road, New Cross, S.E.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. New House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. AND MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, and Durham (1896) Universities, Diplomas of L.R.A.M. (1897, &c.), A.Mus. L.C.M., L.Mus. L.C.M., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O.; Appointments at College and School of Music, and as Chapel Royal, Cathedral, and Parish Church Organists; Gold Medals, Prizes, "Honours" and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of 500. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS.
Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D. 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

MR. J. PERCY BAKER, A.R.A.M., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by post. Personal Lessons in Pianoforte or Theory at own or pupil's residence; or at 84, New Bond Street, W. Schools attended. Address, Willersley House, Old Charlton.

DR. W. BENTHAM (Mus.D., T.C.T., L.Mus. L.C.M., F.R.C.O., Hallé Gold Medalist) teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, INSTRUMENTATION, ACOUSTICS, &c., either personally or by Post. Over 250 Degrees, Diplomas, and Certificates have been gained by Dr. Bentham's pupils, including Durham 1st and Final Mus.B.; (5) London Intermediate and Final Mus.B., F.R.C.O., (6) A.R.C.O., (11) L.R.A.M., (4) L.C.M., T.C.L., R.A.M. and R.C.M. higher and locals, &c. Terms very moderate. MSS. corrected and revised. Address, 11, Part Street, Southport.

ARTHUR T. FROGGATT, Mus.D., T.C.D., gives LESSONS in COMPOSITION by Correspondence. Recent successes. Grosvenor House, Dudley.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.Mus.T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares CANDIDATES for ARTS and MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Latest successes, Mus. Bac: Oxford and Durham, L.R.A.M. A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., &c. Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

DR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab.; Mus. Doc., Trinity College, Toronto; L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS Personally or by post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, ORCHESTRATION, ACOUSTICS, &c., and prepares for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: MUS. BAC., DURHAM, 1896, also 1895 and all previous years; and FIRST, 1896, also 1895 and all previous years; A.R.C.M., 1896; CAMBRIDGE, FIRST MUS. BAC., 1896; OXFORD, MUS. BAC., 1896, and FIRST, 1896; F.R.C.O., 1897, A.R.C.O., 1896; CAMBRIDGE MUS. BAC.; LONDON, MUS. BAC.; DUBLIN, MUS. BAC.; L.R.A.M. (Composition and Pianoforte), 1896 and 1897; Mus. Bac. and Mus. Doc., Toronto, Gold Medalists, 1890, 1892, and 1893; L.Mus., L.C.M.; L.T.C.L., and A.T.C.L., 1896 and 1897; Senior Local R.A.M. and R.C.M. Special and individual attention given to Correspondents. Upwards of 350 Diplomas and Degrees and several Gold and Silver Medals gained by pupils. MSS. corrected and revised for publication. Terms moderate. Address, 70, Park Road, Haverstock Hill, London N.W.

DR. F. R. GREENISH, Mus. Doc., Oxon., L.Mus. T.C.L., has a few VACANCIES for Private Correspondence PUPILS. Special Subjects: HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FORM, COMPOSITION, and ORCHESTRATION. Preparation, by correspondence, for all Theoretical Examinations. Every possible assistance given and no effort spared to ensure success. Terms moderate. Address, Dr. F. R. Greenish, Haverfordwest.

MR. GEORGE THORP'S SCHOOL for the HIGHER DEVELOPMENT of the VOICE.—Special Course of Lessons on Voice Production for Teachers during Easter Vacation, from April 19 to May 1, 1897. The whole or part of the Course may be taken. Holmes Kingston, Sec., 10, Princes St., Hanover Sq., W.

MR. S. S. MARTYN, Mus. Bac., Oxon., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., personally or by post. 24, Killieser Avenue, Streatham Hill, S.W.

DR. FRANK MERRICK, Mus. D. (Dublin), L.T.C.L., L.R.A.M., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence, and prepares Candidates for the University and Metropolitan Examinations. 7, Hughenden Road, Clifton.

MR. W. E. PITMAN, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., teaches HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT, personally or by correspondence, and coaches for the Universities, Royal College of Organists, and other Musical Exams. Thorough grounding in the various subjects. For terms, address, W. E. Pitman, Sundridge, Sevenoaks.

DR. W. JOHN REYNOLDS, Mus. Doc., Lond., L.Mus., T.C.L. (Organist, St. Michael's, Cornhill), prepares CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS, personally or by post. Many successes. Particulars on application. 66, Highbury Grove, London, N.; or, at the Church.

MR. HAMILTON ROBINSON, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, F.R.C.O., Lecturer on Harmony in King's College, Lond., Organist and Choirmaster, St. Stephen's, South Kensington. PIANOFORTE and ORGAN LESSONS. HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, &c., personally or by correspondence. Preparation for University, R.C.O., and other Examinations. Classes. 54, Baron's Court Road, West Kensington, W.

MR. R. STOKOE, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.C.O., gives ORGAN LESSONS at Christ Church, Down Street, Piccadilly. Harmony, Counterpoint, &c., taught personally or by post. 86, Rossiter Road, Balham, S.W.

DR. TAYLOR, Mus.D., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.T.C.L. (Author of "Vocal Score Reading Exercises" and "Figured Bass and Melody Exercises," for R.C.O. Students), prepares CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Address, Wolverhampton Road, Stafford.

MR. A. W. TOMLYN, Mus.B., Dunelm, L.T.C.L., Berwick-on-Tweed, COACHES CANDIDATES for University and all other Exams. by post. Every possible attention and assistance guaranteed. Many past successes.

MR. W. H. TUTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., L.R.A.M., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, ACOUSTICS, &c., by Correspondence. Ashburn, Derbyshire.

VENICE, Italy.—LESSONS in VOICE PRODUCTION and ITALIAN and FRENCH SINGING given by Signor FÉLICE COEN (Pupil of Delle Sedie and Professor of Singing at the Liceo Benedetto Marcello in Venice, formerly at Paris, at Tours, and recently at the Liceo Rossini of Pesaro). Special terms for those studying for the Profession. Address, Professore Félice Coen, Venice.

VOICES TRAINED (Altos included), and SIGHT-SINGING and the PIANOFORTE TAUGHT by Mr. W. A. FROST (Vicar-Choral of St. Paul's Cathedral), at 16, Amwell Street, E.C. Many of Mr. Frost's pupils have obtained Cathedral and other Choir appointments. Latest successes at St. Saviour's, Southwark; St. James's, Garlickhythe; and St. Martin's, Ludgate.

THE TRAINING of ALTOS.—LESSONS in VOICE PRODUCTION and SINGING given by MUNRO DAVISON, L.R.A.M. (Singing), F.R.C.O., Professor of Alto Singing, Guildhall School of Music; Solo Alto, Temple Church, &c.; Professor of Singing, Organ, Pianoforte, and Harmony, 142, Stroud Green Rd., N.

THE TRAINING OF TENORS. DAVIDSON PALMER'S METHOD. For some account of this method of training Tenors, see the article on the True Nature of Falsetto in the February number of The Nineteenth Century.

MR. DAVIDSON PALMER, Mus. Bac., Oxon., gives Lessons at his residence, and at the West-End. For terms, &c., address, 2, Highwood Road, Upper Holloway, N.

RESIDENT PUPIL.—YOUTH REQUIRED, to train for Profession. Exceptional advantages. Univ. degree. Dr. Thomas, Carlyle, Boscombe, Bournemouth.

MR. R. J. PITCHER, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, F.R.C.O., Organist of Holy Trinity Church, Scarborough, Conductor, Scarborough Choral Society, &c., has a VACANCY for a RESIDENT ARTICLED PUPIL. Every home comfort; very healthy situation. Three-manual electric organ. Highest references given and required. 20, Grosvenor Crescent, South Cliff, Scarborough.

ST. SAVIOUR'S COLLEGIATE CHURCH.—Dr. A. MADELEY RICHARDSON can receive a talented Youth as ARTICLED PUPIL. Exceptional opportunities for qualifying as Choirmaster. Apply, Dr. Richardson, St. Saviour's, Southwark.

A.R.C.M. wishes for RE-ENGAGEMENT as MUSIC MISTRESS in a Public School. Was for more than three years Student at the Royal College of Music; for three years Music Mistress at the Jersey Ladies' College. Prepares successfully for the Associated Board. Great experience. Highest testimonials. Apply, Miss Smith, 2, Belvedere Road, Upper Norwood.

MACDONALD SMITH'S SYSTEM.

("From Brain to Keyboard.")

THE NEED FOR IT

(SHOWN IN LETTERS FROM PROFESSIONALS).

"There is, to my mind, no harder fate than that which forbids a musical man the power to execute and interpret works which his intellect and perceptions appreciate and revel in."—E. H. D., Adelaide, S. Australia.

"After practising faithfully scales, &c., for more than twenty years have at last given up the hopeless attempt to please myself with my own performances."—T. S. H., Birkenhead.

THE RESULTS FROM IT

(SHOWN IN PUPILS' ORDINARY REPORTS).

S. B. says: "I cannot put into words the wonderful improvement I feel in pianoforte playing, but more still in violin playing, especially in legato passages, and in the right-hand wrist movement, which is always the violinist's trouble."

"I am finding it most useful in teaching, especially with examination pupils."—A. M. C., Edinburgh.

A Mus. Bac. says: "My touch is infinitely better, in fact I am almost inclined to think it is nearly perfect. My hands are so much stronger, rarely ever getting tired with playing."

A F.R.C.O. says: "It would be impossible for me to fully express to you the wonderful change your exercises have made in me."

COMPLETE COURSE OF SIX LESSONS, BY CORRESPONDENCE, THREE GUINEAS.

Terms and conditions for Personal Lessons (concert players only) on application.

NEW PROSPECTUS POST-FREE.

MACDONALD SMITH,
STEINWAY HALL, LOWER SEYMOUR STREET, LONDON, W.

GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS,

LONDON.

President: The Very Rev. FRANCIS PIGOU, D.D., Dean of Bristol.

A.G.C.M. and F.G.C.M. Diploma Examinations in July.

Free register for Organists requiring appointments.

For further particulars, apply to Dr. Lewis, Silvermead, Twickenham, S.W.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

Instituted by the Victoria College Corporation, Ltd. Incorporated, 1891.

Patrons:
The Rt. Hon. THE MARQUIS OF LORNE, K.T.
The Rt. Hon. THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

Director:
J. H. LEWIS, Mus. Doc., D.C.L.

Registrar:
GEORGE PRIOR, Mus. Doc., Oxon.

Bursar:
W. F. W. JACKSON, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

Local and Higher (Practical) Examinations are now being held at the various Centres.

Next LOCAL THEORETICAL EXAMINATION, July 7, 1897.

METROPOLITAN EXAMINATIONS, in all Subjects, and for all Grades, including the Diplomas of Associate (A.V.C.M.), Associate in Music (A.Mus.V.C.M.), Licentiate (L.V.C.M.), and Licentiate in Music (L.Mus.V.C.M.) will be held July 7, 1897.

The Educational Department is under the direction of Dr. Prior.

Local Secretaries required for towns not already represented.

Full particulars on application.

GEO. A. STANTON, F.G.C.M., Secretary.

Central Office: 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.

SOCIETY of ARTS PRACTICAL EXAMINATION in VOCAL and INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC.—Examiner, John Farmer, Balliol College, Oxford, and Director of the Harrow Music School; Assistant Examiners: Ernest Walker, M.A., Mus. Bac., Oxon., and Burnham W. Horner. These Examinations are only conducted in London. The next will be held at the House of the Society of Arts, 18, John Street, Adelphi, W.C., and will commence on Monday, June 28, 1897. The latest date for receiving entries is May 8. Full particulars can be had on application to the Secretary.

By order,
HENRY TRUEMAN WOOD, Secretary.

LONDON COLLEGE OF MUSIC

Incorporated 1892.] Founded 1887. [Limited.

GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W.

FOR

MUSICAL EDUCATION AND FOR EXAMINATIONS IN PRACTICAL AND THEORETICAL MUSIC.

PATRON.
HIS GRACE THE DUKE OF LEEDS.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.
HORTON ALLISON, Esq., Mus. Doc., T.C.D., Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.A.M.
W. H. LONGHURST, Esq., Mus. Doc., Cantuar.
WALTER H. SANGSTER, Esq., Mus. Doc., Oxon.

A. J. CALDICOTT, Esq., Mus. Bac., Cantab. (Principal). Dr. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (Vice-Principal).
G. AUGUSTUS HOLMES, Esq., Director of Examinations.

EXAMINATION DEPARTMENT.—June and July Examinations, 1897.

EXAMINATIONS IN PIANOFORTE PLAYING, SINGING, VIOLIN, THEORY, and all branches of Music will be held in London and at upwards of 360 Local Centres, when Certificates will be granted to all successful Candidates. In Ireland and Scotland the Examinations will take place in June, the last day of entry being May 15. In England and Wales the Examinations take place in July, entries for which must be made by June 15.

The various grades in Practical Music are Elementary, Intermediate, Senior, and advanced Senior, pass or honours being gained according to the number of marks awarded. The grades in Theoretical Music are Elementary Pass, Junior Pass, Junior Honours, Intermediate, Senior Pass, and Senior Honours.

The Pass Sections in both Practical and Theoretical Music are divided into first and second class.

The Council particularly wish to direct attention to the fact that they were the first to introduce the Elementary Grade in Musical Examinations some ten years since.

SILVER and BRONZE MEDALS and BOOK PRIZES will, as usual, be awarded to those Centres complying with the regulations, in addition to which competitions will take place for the annual award in "UNITED KINGDOM" MEDALS and PRIZES, and for the special award of DIAMOND JUBILEE MEDALS mentioned below.

THE HIGHER EXAMINATIONS for DIPLOMAS of Associate (A.L.C.M.), Associate in Music (A.Mus.L.C.M.), Licentiate (L.L.C.M.), Licentiate in Music (L.Mus.L.C.M.), and Fellowship (F.L.C.M.), will be held in London and at duly appointed Provincial Centres in June and July.

For the formation of NEW CENTRES application should be made to the Secretary, who will supply all particulars.

In Commemoration of the DIAMOND JUBILEE of

HER MOST GRACIOUS MAJESTY THE QUEEN

The following Awards are offered for competition at the forthcoming Examinations:—

1. THE QUEEN'S DIAMOND JUBILEE GOLD MEDAL (Value £12)
To the Candidate showing the greatest proficiency in the Examination for the Diploma of Licentiate or Licentiate in Music.

2. THE QUEEN'S DIAMOND JUBILEE GOLD MEDAL (Value £10)
To the Candidate showing the greatest proficiency in the Examination for the Diploma of Associate or Associate in Music.

3. THE QUEEN'S DIAMOND JUBILEE SILVER MEDALS (Five)
To the Candidates showing the greatest proficiency in the Examinations for the Senior or Advanced Senior Certificate in the Practical Sections. Two medals to be awarded in England, and one each in Ireland, Scotland, and Wales.

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

In this Department Students are received and thoroughly trained in Pianoforte, Violin, Singing, Voice Production and Breathing, Mandoline, Harmony, and all musical subjects, under the best Professors, at moderate fees. Day and Evening Classes are held in all branches.

Rehearsals of the Operatic Class, Orchestra, Ladies' Choir, and Mandoline Band are held each week.

The Council beg to announce the following SCHOLARSHIP EXHIBITIONS and PRIZES in celebration of HER MAJESTY'S DIAMOND JUBILEE:—

1. THE QUEEN'S DIAMOND JUBILEE SCHOLARSHIP FOR PIANOFORTE (Value £20
2. THE QUEEN'S DIAMOND JUBILEE SCHOLARSHIP FOR SINGING (Value £20)
1. THE QUEEN'S DIAMOND JUBILEE EXHIBITION FOR ELOCUTION (Value £10)
2. THE QUEEN'S DIAMOND JUBILEE EXHIBITION FOR SINGING (Value £10)

THE "ASHDOWN PRIZE" (Value £5 5s.), for Pianoforte Playing; and two other Prizes value £2 2s. each.

Regulations, Forms of Entry, and all Particulars in either of the above Departments, together with a list of Professors and Examiners, on application to

T. WEEKES HOLMES, Secretary.

TRINITY COLLEGE LONDON.

For Musical Education and Examination.—Inst. 1872.

President:
Sir RICHARD E. WEBSTER, G.C.M.G., Q.C., M.P.
Warden:
Professor E. H. TURPIN, Mus.D.
Director of Studies:
Professor BRADBURY TURNER, Mus.B.
Director of Examinations:
Professor JAMES HIGGS, Mus.B.

April 26.—Trinity Term commences. Both Day and Evening Classes are held.

May 19.—Last day of entry for the next Half-yearly Local Examination in Musical Knowledge (Theory), which takes place on June 19.

May 27.—Students' Orchestral Concert, at Queen's Hall (Conductor, Mr. F. Corder), at eight o'clock. Tickets, 5s. and 2s. 6d.

June 19.—Last day of entry for the Forty-eighth Half-yearly Higher Examinations, taking place at the College, July 19 and 27.

April, May, June, and July.—The Local Examinations in Instrumental and Vocal Music will be held, and a complete list of all Centres, with their respective dates, may be had on application.

Any or all of the following printed papers may be had on application to the undersigned:—(a) Regulations and list of music to be performed for the Local Examinations in Instrumental and Vocal Music, and regulations for the (Theoretical) Local Examinations in Musical Knowledge; (b) List of Local Centres; (c) Regulations for the Higher Examinations for Diplomas and Certificates, and list of music to be performed for the Higher Certificates in Vocal and Instrumental Subjects; (d) Prospectus of the Classes and Lectures Department; (e) General Prospectus, containing List of Honorary Officers; (f) Regulations for the Enrolment of Institutions in Union.

By order,
SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.

Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, W.

TESTIMONIAL
TO DR. G. M. GARRETT.

A COMMITTEE has been formed in aid of a fund whereby a Testimonial may be presented to Dr. G. M. Garrett, M.A.

That gentleman has been suffering from a long and painful illness, involving a prolonged absence from important engagements. He is now happily recovering, and it is hoped will soon be able to resume his professional duties.

As the Testimonial may be regarded as a mark of respect to Dr. Garrett, from his colleagues and from the admirers of his Church music, it is felt that members of choirs and other friends willing to give small sums in aid of the fund may be encouraged to do so.

The following gentlemen have already joined the Committee:—Parratt, Sir W., Mus.D.; Stainer, Prof. Sir J., M.A., Mus.D.; Agutter, B., Mus.D.; Arnold, G. B., Mus.D.; Armes, P., Mus.D.; Belcher, W. E., M.A.; Belsham, O. D.; Bennett, The Rev. J. L., M.A.; Bird, H. R.; Bridge, J. C., M.A., Mus.D.; *Bridge, Prof. J. F., Mus.D.; Buck, P. C., B.A., Mus.B.; Bunnett, E., Mus.D.; Burstall, F. H.; Cobb, G. F., M.A.; *Cummings, W. H., F.S.A.; Dewberry, F., Mus.B.; Docker, F. A. W.; *Fisher, Shelley; Ford, H. E., Mus. Doc.; *Frost, C. J., Mus.D.; Frye, F. R., Mus.B.; Gaffe, G.; Gell, The Rev. A. W. Hamilton, M.A., Mus.B.; Gladstone, F. E., Mus.D.; Gray, A., Mus.D.; *Greenish, A. J., Mus.D.; Harding, H. A., Mus.D.; Hardwick, J. M., B.A.; *Higgs, J., Mus.B.; *Hopkins, E. J., Mus.D.; Horner, Burnham; Jeffries, J. E.; Little, H. W., Mus.D.; *Littleton, A. H. (Chairman of Committee); Lloyd, C. H., M.A., Mus.D.; Loth, J. B., Mus.B.; Manns, A. H., Mus.D.; Martin, G. C., Mus.D.; Monk, M. J., Mus.D.; Morgan, T. Westlake; Morris, H. C.; *Norbury, J. (Treasurer); Parry, C. Hubert H., M.A., Mus.D.; Peace, A. L., Mus.D.; *Pearce, C. W., Mus.D.; *Prout, Prof. E., B.A., Mus.D.; Riseley, G.; *Robinson, Hamilton, Mus.B.; Saunders, J. Gordon, Mus.D.; Sawyer, F. J., Mus.D.; *Shindler, T., M.A. (Secretary); Southgate, T. L.; Stanford, Prof. C. Villiers, M.A., Mus.D.; Thorne, E. H.; *Turpin, E. H., Mus.D. (Secretary); *Vincent, C., Mus.D.; *Woods, F. Cunningham, M.A.

N.B.—The gentlemen to whose names asterisks are prefixed form the Acting Committee.

Subscriptions may be forwarded to the Hon. Treasurer or Secretaries.

E. H. TURPIN, T. SHINDLER, } Hon. Secretaries.

The Royal College of Organists,
Hart Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

John Broadwood & Sons

PIANOFORTE MAKERS

BY SPECIAL APPOINTMENT TO

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES
HER ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCESS OF WALES
HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH
(DUKE OF SAXE-COBURG AND GOTHA)

AND THE

REST OF THE ROYAL FAMILY.

John Broadwood & Sons

respectfully draw attention to, and invite inspection of, their newly introduced and improved straight and cross strung

HORIZONTAL

AND

UPRIGHT PIANOFORTES.

33, GREAT PULTENEY STREET (near Regent Street),
LONDON, W.

ESTABLISHED 1780.

ERARD ROYAL PIANOS

THE FINEST AND MOST DURABLE INSTRUMENTS.

THE ERARD TONE
THE ERARD ACTION
THE ERARD SCALES
THE ERARD CASES

REPRESENT THE

HIGHEST STANDARD

OF THE

PIANO MAKERS' ART.

Unequalled in their Singing Quality of Tone.
Artists and Amateurs Admit their Superiority.

MOST LIBERAL DISCOUNT FOR CASH.
Any Instrument may be bought on the Deferred Payment System.

S. & P. ERARD,
18, GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

Grand Commemoration of the Diamond Jubilee of Her Most Gracious Majesty Victoria, Queen and Empress.

IMPERIAL VICTORIAN EXHIBITION,

May till September, 1897.

GREAT TRIENNIAL HANDEL FESTIVAL

THE GREAT REHEARSAL .. .. Friday, June 11.
MESSIAH .. .. Monday, June 14.
SELECTION FROM SACRED AND SECULAR WORKS .. .. .. Wednesday, June 16.
ISRAEL IN EGYPT .. .. Friday, June 18.

Solo Vocalists:
Madame ALBANI,
Miss ELLA RUSSELL,
Madame CLARA SAMUELL,
AND
Madame NORDICA.
Miss MARIAN McKENZIE and Miss CLARA BUTT.
Mr. EDWARD LLOYD and Mr. BARTON McGUCKIN.
Mr. SANTLEY and Mr. ANDREW BLACK.

CHORUS and ORCHESTRA, 3,500 PERFORMERS.

Organist .. .. .. Mr. WALTER W. HEDGCOCK.
Conductor .. .. .. Mr. AUGUST MANNS.

NUMBERED SEATS.

For Rehearsal.—June 11: 7s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.

For Festival.—June 14, 16, and 18: Single Stall, for the Three Days, £2 2s., £2 12s. 6d., and £3 3s.; Single Stall, for One Day, 15s., £1 1s., and £1 5s.

Tickets in Sets—i.e., for the same Seat for the Three Days of the Festival, and for Rehearsal if desired—will be issued on and after Monday, April 5. Tickets other than in Sets will not be issued until Monday, April 26.

All Tickets include Admission to the Palace, provided they are presented entire at the Entrance.

Tickets for Seats South of the Centre Transept will be issued at the Crystal Palace.

Tickets for Seats North of the Centre Transept will be issued by Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen Street, Cheapside.

With this Number are presented gratis Extra Supplements, consisting of a Patriotic Part-Song by F. H. Cowen, entitled "All hail the glorious reign," and a Portrait of the late Berthold Tours.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

APRIL 1, 1897.

VICTORIAN MUSIC.

IV.—Church Music.

Last month this survey, necessarily slight and wanting in detail, was brought down to the time of S. S. Wesley and John Goss, and to the determination of English Church music as a form of art blending the austere dignity and scholasticism of an earlier period with the suavity, grace, and sentiment characteristic of the later classical masters. Passing on, I now propose to glance at the works of a few Church composers who were contemporary with those just named, and some of whom carried on the good work, exercising more or less influence upon its course. Let me premise that the reader will be asked to observe further movement in the direction of what, on the score of grace and sentiment, may be called femininity and, necessarily, an equal removal from masculinity as represented by qualities of intellect, science, and strength. This is the tendency of the age in all art, and Church music cannot hope to escape, notwithstanding its strong traditions, and the influence of a powerful party which would take us back to the days of St. Gregory, with modern harmony as baggage.

Among composers of the class referred to above, the late Sir George Elvey held a place which entitles him to notice, and, for that purpose, I have before me a few works chosen as fairly representative of his qualities and tendencies. Sir George must be reckoned with on the side of the older masters. It is obvious that he drank deep at the well-spring of Handel. Take, for example, his anthem "In that day"—a largely developed and important work quite characteristic of its author. It opens with a Handelian recitative, and is largely made up of contrapuntal passages, in all of which we see truly Handelian management of masses of tone and not less suggestive reliance upon diatonic themes and treatment, coupled with resolute adherence to the tonic and closely related keys. Such modifications as present themselves show the influence of Mendelssohn, but these do not go far. In the well-known Christmas anthem, "Arise, shine," essentially a homophonic work, much the same qualities present themselves, though now the composer trusts more largely to the effect of continued diatonic harmony, flowing smoothly and easily, broken only here and there into separate masses, as on the words "But the Lord shall arise." The unison, "For behold, darkness shall cover the earth," with its moving pedal bass, is a feature standing by itself and strictly speaking belongs to declamatory music. Turning to the harvest anthem, "The eyes of all wait upon Thee," we find the composer scarcely less diatonic than in the examples already indicated. But while adhering to his general style, Elvey here makes a distinct approach towards the gracious in expression, and, for him, many of the passages are unusually "pretty"—notably the Andante "He maketh peace in thy borders." In "O give thanks unto the Lord" the composer appears much as we see him in "In that day." Contrapuntal passages are few and brief, it is true, but there is the same close observance of the diatonic in theme and harmony, and the same broad, imposing march of choral masses. Generally speaking, therefore, Elvey's Church music is an influence on the side of conservatism, but the conservatism is of a mild type and favours that in the past of art which is least likely to weary modern ears. Elvey is never crabbed and artificial. His music flows with the naturalness of a stream, and in all things he appears to have taken hints from the great master with whom I have made bold to connect him.

The late Sir F. A. Gore Ouseley was very distinctly a conservative in Church music, impelled thereto not only by his personal taste, but also by the instinct of his order. "It has been urged," writes his clerical biographer, Mr. Joyce, "that Ouseley erred in looking too constantly to the past for his models in composition, and, while one may admit the truth of this statement so far as his instrumental works are concerned, it is certainly doubtful whether he was not right in basing his style in Church music upon the splendid models of the earlier writers. No man had a higher ideal in music for the Church than he had, and where it is so obviously a question of the particular standpoint that is taken, it must ever be impossible to say a decisive word. He was always a hater of sentimentalism in music, and sought for a style which should be at once lofty, devotional, passionless, and ethereal. In his view, music, when designed for the Church, was to some extent fettered. In the Church, music was but the handmaid of religion and no longer an art which soared free, breathing alike the joys and sorrows of men, but an art which sought to shadow forth that heavenly calm which exists beyond the fever and fret of human life." It is not here a question whether Ouseley's judgment in this matter was right or wrong—whether or not he erred in seeking to anticipate the serene joys of the Church triumphant in the midst of the Church militant. Enough that the belief with which his biographer credits him explains the character of his compositions, which character, no doubt, was made more earnest and decided by the sentimentalism that threatened to emasculate the music of the Church. Ouseley's art is, perhaps, best represented by his anthems "Great is the Lord" and "It came even to pass"—works noble and dignified in character, elevated in expression, and impressive in effect. Both are scholastic in the sense that they bear evidence of learning and studied device, carried out, here and there, almost beyond the limit of expediency; but in both cases we are generally sensible of scholasticism controlled by religious fervour. "Great is the Lord" contains a fugal episode, "In the City of our God," &c., where a flowing second subject attends the principal theme. The effect of this would be decidedly "dry" but for the fact that Ouseley, with a fine instinct, set to it the single word "Amen," and so transformed it into an expression of universal assent to the main statement of the text. The scholastic device thus becomes instinct with the life of a great idea, and is lifted to a higher plane. In "It came even to pass" the composer is yet more impressively revealed. The opening chorus, with its abundant vocal unison relieved by short contrapuntal passages for soli, well exemplifies the kind and degree of austerity through which Ouseley sought an effect of elevation and far-removedness. It is noteworthy, moreover, that even in the quartet, "For He is good," the composer, while more homophonic and more smooth and equable, preserves a grave dignity and avoids mere "prettiness," whereas not a few Church musicians would have abandoned the one and rushed to the other. "When one compares such music with much of the flimsy Church writing of to-day," says the biographer already quoted, "one cannot help thinking of a similar comparison which might be drawn between the dignity and nobility of the older Hymns (of which 'O God, our help in ages past,' is a striking example) and the feebleness and mawkishness which characterise many of our modern Hymns." It is, however, unnecessary to praise Ouseley by contrasting his works with the most debased of another kind. This composer speaks for himself, and if we feel him to be at all deficient in the expressiveness which addresses itself to human sympathies, there is no doubt that the music he designs as a "sacrifice of praise" proves not unfit for its exalted destiny.

Less antique in point of taste than Elvey, and much less than Ouseley, the late Henry Smart brought into our Church music an influence clearly derived from Mendelssohn, though not unaffected by the medium through which it passed. Smart was undoubtedly a sentimental composer, and the great popularity of Mendelssohn in England may be assumed to have aided the natural affinity which, so to speak, sent him into the arms of that master. But he knew where to stop, and most cordially hated whatever was namby-pamby and merely pretty. "He disliked weakness and effeminacy," says his biographer, Dr. Spark. "He would build up the superstructure on the grand pillars of a solid foundation. Nothing puerile ever met with his approval. 'The tunes,' he used to say, 'which find the most favour now-a-days are those which best please the ladies, and the ladies, I hold, are not the best judges of what is sound and good in psalmody." Writing to a person who had submitted to him the MS. of an anthem, Smart said: "The whole manner of the anthem is not, to my thinking, sufficiently elevated, and, as an instance, there is a passage on page 2 which I have marked in pencil, which has a modern littleness about it that annoys me." On the other hand, Smart was sternly opposed to those who would go back to Gregorianism, and once blazed up fiercely as a young cleric loudly declared, "I am strongly of opinion, Mr. Smart, that there is a fine ecclesiastical, devotional character with Gregorian tones which no other music possesses, and therefore I go in warmly for that sort of thing." Smart, in that rasping voice of his, promptly retorted: "Now look here! this won't do! Who asked your opinion, Sir, upon a musical question of which you evidently know absolutely nothing? You may rely on it, that some day when you and your friends are shouting those ugly Gregorian chants, Heaven will punish you, and rain down bags of crotchets upon your heads, and prevent you from ever singing them again." Smart thus appears to us as occupying a position between "high and dry" and "sweet and low," scouting both with equal vigour. His choice of that position was perfectly free. No force of early training put constraint upon him, and the style that he adopted for his Church compositions may be regarded as no less spontaneous than his becoming a Church musician at all. This master is well represented in three works now before me—the Service in F, dedicated to Sir John Goss; the Christmas anthem, "The Angel Gabriel was sent from God"; and the largely developed anthem, "Sing to the Lord." The Te Deum in the Service, the fugue "Let them give glory" in "Sing to the Lord," and the whole of the Christmas anthem adequately embody the more salient features which it is needful here to consider. In the Te Deum, the fine unison for voices, beginning at "When Thou tookest upon Thee," exemplifies the harmonic freedom in which Smart—thanks, perhaps, to his training as a musician outside the Church—was not loth to indulge. In this he is a strong contrast to Elvey and also, though in a less marked degree, to Ouseley. Another vocal unison, "And was crucified," in the setting of the Nicene Creed, can hardly be separated from that in the Te Deum. On the other hand, the fugue above-named is largely diatonic, while animated in the flow of its parts. So far Mendelssohn is suggested, but in the chorus, "All creatures serve Thee," that composer is embodied. His spirit and manner govern the movement. Mendelssohnian, too, is the opening of the chorus "He shall be great" in the Christmas anthem. An examination of other works would lead to the same conclusion, and establish the fact that Smart's influence upon Church music comes, apart from his own individuality, directly from the composer of "St. Paul," who himself was a medium through which a modification of Bach became an integral part of nineteenth century music.

Sir G. A. Macfarren lives in many memories as a somewhat rugged figure—as a man less graciously rounded than angular and hard; but, as a matter of fact, his nature was sentimental, and susceptible beyond most to the influence of emotion. As a young man, he belonged heart and soul to the cult of Shelley, whose teaching he accepted, even, for a time, to the rejection of animal food. I have heard one of his old cronies and fellow disciples (who also swore off flesh) tell of his embarrassment after being presented with a fine salmon. Touch it himself Macfarren would not, and his principles scarcely permitted him to allow of the fish being eaten by others. Eventually the salmon was not wasted, but the memory of it, as a possession troublesome to a good Shelleyite, long survived among Macfarren's intimates. Like Smart, this composer was not trained as a Church musician, but casually entered the department from time to time, as he did that of opera, oratorio, and symphony. We may assume, therefore, that equally with his contemporary and friend, his style in Church music represents purely his own feelings, and owes nothing to tradition or early impressions. Macfarren's works for the Church are represented before me by two anthems—"God said, Behold, I have given you every herb" (an excellent title for a vegetarian) and "O Holy Ghost, into our minds." It may at once be stated that neither in these works nor in other compositions of the same class do we find Macfarren in full strength. He has done many relatively better things in other departments, but it need hardly be said that so accomplished a musician, in whom was considerable individuality, gave nothing to the world which the world could afford to ignore. It seems pretty clear to the student of his works that he was very susceptible to the emotional and tender in religion. This appears sometimes when the occasion offers little temptation. In the first of the two anthems above-named the opening words are little more than a bald statement of Providential care for man's physical needs; but Macfarren's themes are absolutely sentimental in expression and almost luscious to the taste. This is still more the case in the Allegretto, "He hath made His wonderful works," which somehow calls to mind the grace and easy charm of Mendelssohn's "How lovely are the messengers," though points of absolute resemblance are few. A stronger note is sounded in the Finale, "Praise ye the Lord," but the spirit and manner suggest Mendelssohn rather than the real Macfarren. The second and less pretentious anthem is hymn-like, the words, both in subject and structure, inviting gently expressive lyrical treatment. Macfarren responds feelingly, and the result, while musically simple, is genuinely beautiful.

In the foregoing remarks I have not touched living composers, reserving that delicate task for another opportunity. Looking back upon the immediately past generation of Church composers, it is impossible not to be, on the whole, content. Especially must the fine common-sense, manly respect for tradition, and absence of sensationalism be commended. These qualities represent very considerable firmness in resisting temptation, there being, no doubt, much attraction in the sensuous or ornate compositions provided by foreign art for the use of another branch of the Church. Scarcely did the English composers of the past generation yield to them in any appreciable degree. They were, it is true, moved by influences from without, as well as by those of their predecessors within; but it was the authority of great classics which their judgment approved and their taste accepted. Leaven from such sources could work only for good, and looking back from the point now reached, we see that English Church music has preserved, of its inheritance from the past, all that was essential to its continuity, and has drawn from outside all that could best contribute to its natural and orderly development. In all this we recognise an illustration of our national character, which moves slowly, yet does move, which holds firmly to the accomplished while continuing to work, and so broadens down from precedent to precedent.

Joseph Bennett.

FROM MY STUDY.

The writer of "Notes on Art and Literature" in the Dundee Advertiser of the 1st ult., after quoting Chatterton's verses on Broderip (see "From my Study" in The Musical Times of last month), adds: "It would be interesting to know where the writer in The Musical Times obtained his copy of these trenchant verses. They are not in the fragments of the MSS. of Chatterton preserved in the British Museum; though in some of the early drafts of 'Kew Gardens' there are equally scathing remarks upon Broderip and his organ-playing." I have pleasure in satisfying the very proper curiosity of my Dundee confrère. The lines may be found on page 356, Vol. II., of "The Poetical Works of Thomas Chatterton, with Notices of his Life, History of the Rowley Controversy, a Selection of his Letters, and Notes Critical and Explanatory. 2 Vols. Cambridge. Printed for W. P. Grant. 1842." The piece was originally printed, says a contemporary Bristol paper, "from the MS. of Mr. Isaac Reed, being contained in the late Mr. Haslewood's collection, now in the possession of Mr. Gutch. With the exception of some fragments, it was supposed to have been entirely lost. It consists of about 1,200 lines, and is a great curiosity." The supposed full text referred to first appeared in Dix's "Life of Chatterton," 1837. Only a few of the concluding lines are found in Southey and Cottle's edition of Chatterton's works, the editors adding to them a note, as follows: "Every effort has been made to obtain the remainder of this poem, but without success. The last possessor who can be traced was the late Dr. Lort. His executor, Dr. Halifax, has obligingly communicated the preceding fragment, but the remainder of the poem never came into his possession." Fortunately Mr. Isaac Reed had made a copy, but the original MS. transcribed by him is said not to have been complete. On this part of the case, a note by the editor of the Cambridge edition, published five years later than that of Dix, is interesting:

"Dix published the 'Kew Gardens' in his 'Life of Chatterton' in 1837. He says, 'I have been fortunate enough to procure a copy of the whole poem, and it is here for the first time printed entire.' He did not, however, procure the whole poem; for the hiatus of 200 lines above referred to ('it consisted originally of 1,300 lines, of which 200 are unfortunately lost,' ante) occurs in his publication. The real state of the case is that, out of the 1,094 lines of 'Kew Gardens' printed by Dix, only 120 appeared for the first time. From line 496 to the end, it is little more than a transcript of 'The Whore of Babylon'; indeed, 550 lines are literally the same; add to these the 376 lines published many years before, with the fragment in Southey's edition, and we find that 974 lines of the poem had been before the public for upwards of thirty years."

On the whole, a pretty muddle, which might supply material for a chapter on "The Troubles of Literary Editors." Let me guard against one very possible misconception. From the remarks of the Cambridge editor it is easy to suppose that Chatterton eked out "Kew Gardens" with extracts from the other work. He did precisely the reverse. Three hundred couplets from the first poem were conveyed into the second. Chatterton was given to this sort of thing. For example, his poem "The Exhibition" contains fifty consecutive lines also "lifted" from "Kew Gardens."

Reading the order of the procession at the magnificent funeral of the Lord Protector, Oliver Cromwell, a curious item arrested my attention. After the Poor Knights of Windsor, and before a detachment of his late Highness' Household, marched—a choir! And such a strange choir! First came, "two lads brought up to music," followed by eight singing men—viz., Messrs. John Rogers, Thomas Mallard, William Howe, David Mell, Thomas Blagrave, William Gregory, Richard Hudson, and Hinckston, "Master of the Music." But for the well-known fact that Cromwell was a lover of music, some surprise might be felt at the existence of a choir at Whitehall under Puritan rule, but it is with the "two lads brought up to music" that I now have to do. The late Sir George Macfarren used sturdily to contend that the art did not suffer from triumphant Puritanism; but if it did not, how is the fact to be explained that, at the Restoration, boys could not be found to take part in the renewed Cathedral services, which were, therefore, for some time carried on by men only? We now see that, even on the great and solemn occasion of the Protector's obsequies, only two lads who could sing were available.

It was well understood during the Protector's reign that music was acceptable to him on festive occasions. A record of a banquet given to his Highness by the City of London after his inauguration as Lord Protector, contains the following passage: "His Highness. . . came down to dine in the great hall (Guildhall), where he sate in the middle of a long table; his son, the Lord Henry, on the left hand, and the Lord Mayor on the right, and on each side of them the Council, with General Monk, Commissary-General Whalley and Mr. Claypole, Master of the Horse to his Highness; being entertained, besides cheer, with music, voices, drums and trumpets." When his Highness departed, adds the report, he was "played out by hautboys and other loud music," including, no doubt, Coleridge's "loud bassoon."

The John Rogers whose name heads the list of singing men at the Protector's funeral was probably the same who acquired repute as a lutenist and figured in the service of Charles II. David Mell I take to be Davie or Davis Mell, the violinist and clockmaker—a famous person in his day. The company who dined him at Oxford in 1657 "did look upon Mr. Mell to have a prodigious Hand on the Violin, and they thought that no person, as all in London did, could go beyond him." There is a portrait of a Thomas Blagrave in the Music School, Oxford. Hinckston (Hingston, John), the choirmaster at the funeral, was at one time in the service of Charles I., and subsequently entered that of Cromwell, to whose daughters he taught music. Writing in Grove's Dictionary, the late Mr. Husk said: "When the organ of Magdalen College was removed from Oxford to Hampton Court (it is now in Tewkesbury Abbey Church), about 1654, Hingston was appointed organist to the Protector at a salary of £100 per annum, and with two boys, his pupils (were these the "two lads brought up to music"?), was accustomed to sing Dering's Latin Motets to Cromwell, who greatly delighted in them. He had concerts at his house, at which Cromwell was often present." Concerning the remaining members of the funeral choir I can find nothing, but it was certainly a notable body of artists for those times.

Mr. John S. Bumpus writes as below on the question whether Clarke-Whitfeld was ever organist of St. John's College, Cambridge; and William Beale, of Trinity College:

"In an interesting communication made to your last issue, Mr. D. W. Rootham seems to doubt the appointment of Dr. John Clarke, afterwards (1814) Clarke-Whitfeld, to the organistship of St. John's College, Cambridge.

"On turning to an authentic list of the organists of St. John's, furnished by Dr. Garrett in his account of the chapel services, and contributed to the Eagle for June, 1890, I find Clarke's appointment dated 1798, his predecessor being Jonathan Sharp. In the following year Clarke succeeded Dr. John Randall as organist of Trinity, and until the death of Professor Walmisley, in January, 1856, the organistships of these two colleges were held conjointly. The same choir also did duty at each. Moreover, on the title-pages of his three volumes of Cathedral music, published in 1800 and subsequently, Clarke describes himself as organist of both colleges.

"Again, Mr. Rootham states that William Beale was never organist of Trinity College. On referring to Mr. Gerard Cobb's interesting and exhaustive account of the Trinity organ, published in 1891, I find a 'List of past Organists of the College from the Restoration,' wherein the date of Beale's appointment is given as November 1, 1820, and that of his successor, Samuel Matthews, Mus.B., as December 29, 1821."

A correspondent asks whether the "weird and daring conception" of Judas Iscariot cooling himself on an iceberg in the Polar Sea, as set forth in Mr. Kipling's "Last Chantey," should be attributed to that writer as original. Certainly not. The legend, which may have been traditional hundreds of years earlier, appeared in the latter part of the eleventh century, as a prose narrative in Latin, which the curious may find, edited by M. Achilles Jubinal, in his "La Legende Latine de S. Brandaines, avec une traduction inedite en prose et en poesie Romanes." Paris, 1836. Metrical versions of the story are known to have existed in England temp. Henry I., both in Latin and in Anglo-Norman. Examples of these MSS. are to be found in the British Museum. An English metrical version, extracted from a metrical series of Saints' Lives, and assumed to have been written towards the end of the thirteenth century, was edited by Mr. Thomas Wright, F.S.A., and printed by the Percy Society in 1844. It differs from the Latin text so materially that Mr. Wright believed it to have been obtained from other sources. There is an English prose version in Caxton's "Golden Legend" (Kelmscott Press edition, pp. 1,136-7), under the head "Of the Lyfe of Saynt Brandon." Brandon was much given to sailing the seas on holy enterprise intent, and, on one occasion, being driven southward many a day, he at last espied a great rock whereon sat "a naked man in ful grete myserye and pain." Saint Brandon demanded who he was, and the man replied: "My name is Judas that solde our lord Jhesu cryst for . . . pens, which sytteth here thus wretchedlye, how be it I am worthy to be in the grettest payne that is, but our lorde is so mercyful that he hath rewarded me better thenne I have deserved, for of ryght my place is in the brennyng hell, but I am here but certeyn tymes of the yere, that is, fro crystemass to twelfth day, and fro ester tyl whytsontyde be paste, and every festevul day of our lady, and every satyrday none tyl sonday that evensonge be doon, but all other tymes I lye stylle in helle in full brennyng fyre, with pylate, herode, and cayphas, therfore acursed be the tyme that ever I knewe hum." Further discourse took place, and the Saint, at the request of Judas, lay by the rock till next day. In the evening a multitude of fiends came to fetch their victim, but Saint Brandon begged an extra day for him. On the morrow the fiends returned and took the betrayer back to his own place.

Another version represents Judas as sitting on an iceberg, and as permitted that indulgence only on Christmas night. This is adopted by Matthew Arnold in his "Saint Brandan" (New Poems, 1867, pp. 86—90).

At last—(it was the Christmas night,
Stars shone after a day of storm),
He sees float past an iceberg white,
And on it—Christ!—a living form!

That furtive mien, that scowling eye,
Of hair that red and tufted fell—
It is—Oh, where shall Brandan fly?
The traitor Judas out of hell!

Palsied with terror, Brandan sate;
The moon was bright, the iceberg near.
He hears a voice sigh humbly: "Wait!
By high permission I am here.

"One moment wait, thou holy man!
On earth my crime, my death, they knew;
My name is under all men's ban;
Ah! tell them of my respite too!

"Tell them, one blessed Christmas night—
(It was the first after I came,
Breathing self-murder, frenzy, spite,
To rue my guilt in endless flame)—

"I felt, as I in torment lay
'Mid the souls plagued by heavenly power,
An angel touch my arm and say:
"Go hence and cool thyself an hour!"

"Ah! whence this mercy, Lord?" I said.
"The Leper recollect," said he,
"Who ask'd the passers-by for aid,
In Joppa, and thy charity."

* * * * * *

"That germ of kindness, in the womb
Of mercy caught, did not expire;
Outlives my guilt, outlives my doom,
And friends me in the pit of fire.

"Once every year, when carols wake,
On earth, the Christmas night's repose,
Arising from the sinners' lake,
I journey to these healing snows.

"I staunch with ice my burning breast,
With silence balm my whirling brain.
O Brandan, to this hour of rest,
That Joppan leper's ease was pain."

This is the version Mr. Kipling had in mind when writing his singularly powerful "Last Chantey."

Before Mr. Arthur Cyril Gordon Weld, of the United States, lays down the law about Handel and "The Messiah" he should be sure of his facts. I have just read in the Chicago monthly, Music, a paper originally contributed by Mr. Weld to the Milwaukee Journal, and cannot now resist the temptation to lay some of its statements under the eyes of English amateurs.

"George Frederic Haendel—not Handel—was a German who was originally attached to the court of the King of Hanover, and he was by profession court musical director and a composer of operas."

"George Frederic Haendel" is neither one thing nor another in nomenclature. The master's German name was Georg Friedrich Haendel, but, says Schoelcher, "In Italy he constantly signed his name Hendel, and from the commencement of his residence in England down to the day of his death he invariably signed 'George Frideric Handel,' and that, therefore, appears to be the orthography which has the best right to be preserved." "Originally attached to the court of the King of Hanover," says Mr. Weld! Here are two inaccuracies. In the first place, there was no King of Hanover. The principality of Hanover, governed by an Elector of the German empire, was not raised to the rank of Kingdom till October, 1814. In the next place, Handel was "originally attached," not to the court of a non-existing king, but to the Hamburg Theatre. He produced four operas there, and afterwards travelled in Italy, before accepting a post under the Elector George.

Mr. Weld goes on—

"Through the affiliations of the Hanoverian and English courts he eventually came to London, where, with a keen business sense, he perceived that there was much more money to be made in writing oratorios and other religious compositions than in writing operas for the Hanover Court Theatre—consequently, he settled in London."

Here are more inaccuracies. There was no "affiliation" and little consanguinity between the courts of England and Hanover. The reigning sovereign of the one was Queen Anne, a great grand-daughter of James I. The ruler of the other, Elector George, was a great-grandson of the same monarch in the female line. It certainly was not on account of this much diluted relationship that Handel first came to England. As for the statement that Handel saw he could make more money by writing oratorios than by composing operas for the Hanover Court Theatre, I must point out that the master wrote no opera whatever in Hanover, and that it was not till 1733 that he began composing oratorios. The much earlier work of that class, "Esther," was, as perhaps Mr. Weld knows, written for the Duke of Chandos. Oratorio certainly had nothing to do with Handel's settlement in London, nor did the master immediately settle here at all. He returned to Hanover and resumed his duties at the Electoral Court.

Again Mr. Weld: "He (Handel) was not a man of notable religious feeling or manner of living, being openly given to the various pleasures of the world, the flesh, and the devil."

We may smile at such misstatements as those pointed out above, but here we must be serious. What authority has Mr. Weld for saying that Handel's life was openly given to the world, the flesh, and the devil? Until I know of such authority and find it to be indisputable I shall continue to believe the testimony of the master's friend and helper, Smith, who is responsible for the following (see Anecdotes of Handel, pp. 27-8). "He frequently declared in conversation the high gratification he enjoyed in setting the Scriptures to music, and how greatly he was edified by contemplating the sublime passages abounding in the sacred writings. For the same motive he was regular in his attendance on divine service at his parish church near Hanover Square, where his devout posture of humility, and earnestness of voice and gesture, avowing his faith, acknowledging his errors, and appealing to his Maker for mercy, were strongly impressive." His purity as regards women is well known, and as for his love of eating, surely a man may possess a big appetite and be nevertheless a good Christian.

Mr. Weld makes other extraordinary statements, but I will mention only one more. He says: "There are very few numbers in 'The Messiah' which show any trace of religious feeling." I leave this without comment, which is entirely needless. X.

MUSICIANS' QUARRELS.

It is a sad but incontestable fact that music, while in the main—according to the testimony of the poets of all ages—exerting a tranquillizing and soothing effect on those who are subject to its ministrations, does not always conduce to the maintenance of entirely pacific mutual relations between its exponents. This lamentable and paradoxical state of affairs can be traced back to the remotest antiquity. Indeed, it may be said to owe its origin to the regrettable jealousy displayed on one memorable occasion by no less important a personage than Apollo himself. Need we say that we allude to the premature and tragic termination of the brilliant career of the famous Phrygian virtuoso Marsyas? Marsyas, who is currently believed to have invented the flute, attained such proficiency on that instrument that in a rash moment he challenged Apollo to a trial of skill. This historic musical prize fight was held at Nysa, and, according to the account of Diodorus, the Muses acted as adjudicators, the terms of the competition being that the loser should be flayed alive by the conqueror. "Each exerted his utmost skill"—we quote from the classic pages of Lemprière—"and the victory, with much difficulty, was adjudged to Apollo," who promptly tied his antagonist to a tree and carried out the ferocious terms of the contest. It is further stated that the skin of Marsyas was subsequently exhibited in the public place at his native town of Celaenae, where it was suspended in the form of a football—whether of the Rugby or Association pattern history fails to state. His death, we read, was universally lamented, the prejudice against the flute, to which Rossini gave expression in a memorable bon mot, being then unknown, but the mischief was done, and it is impossible to acquit the Muses of complicity in a tragedy calculated to impart an acrimonious tone, throughout all the coming ages, to the personal relations of rival virtuosi. Of course this may be explained on the broader principle that two of a trade never agree, but one would fain have found an exception to the rule in the votaries of the musical calling. No doubt many instances can be given of great artists, contemporaries and competitors for the favour of the same public, who have been linked by the bonds of mutual esteem and even admiration. The cases of Handel and Scarlatti, Liszt and Rubinstein, Mendelssohn and Schumann, will readily occur to the minds of our readers. We fear, however, that such happy examples must be out-weighed by the more numerous and notorious instances of mutual antagonism. We have, of course, advanced since the days of Apollo and Marsyas, and rival virtuosi abstain from resorting to such extreme and primitive methods as that of contending for each other's skins. But though modified by many centuries of civilisation, something of the old spirit still survives. In the last century there were the historic feuds of Gluck and Piccini, of Handel and Buononcini, while in the last fifty years the annals of the art are not unprovided with illuminative instances of musical animosity in high places.

The race of bards was designated by a classic satirist as the genus irritabile vatum, and not a few of the great composers of the century belonged to this category. Perhaps the most notable instance was Berlioz, who in his "Memoirs" mentions, rather complacently than otherwise, that he had been accused of writing with a dagger rather than with a pen. Berlioz's polemics began early. He exasperated Cherubini to such an extent when he was studying at the Conservatoire that the old man once chased him round and round the table in the library of that institution. Throughout his career he rarely missed the chance of getting his knife into those whom he considered to be false or unprofitable votaries of the divine Art. His method was always pugnacious rather than persuasive. And the same may be said of his great contemporary, Wagner, who in his frequent controversies never evinced a disposition to spare the feelings of his adversaries, but gave as good as, or better than he took. Even where no direct provocation had been given, he seldom abstained from proclaiming his poor opinion for those from whom he differed. On the irritability of von Bülow it is perhaps hardly fair to lay too much stress. In his case it was constitutional, and against his numerous ebullitions of temper—sometimes grotesque and humorous, sometimes painful—must be set the splendid record of services rendered to the best interests of the art. It may be argued, again, on behalf of the three eminent men to whom we have just alluded that they were all leaders of the forward movement in modern music, that they broke loose from the network of traditions and conventions by which the pursuit of music was ordinarily enclosed and hampered, and that such labours of emancipation—whether in literature, or art, or religion—can never be embarked upon without bringing the pioneers of reform into abrupt conflict with the representatives and upholders of the status quo. Such arguments, however, will not cover all cases. They will not, for example, extenuate the lamentable dissensions which have sprung up recently in Egerton Gardens. For an aristocratic resident in that peaceful and cultured resort recently deposed in the police court that he was the happy father of a family of young children, all fond of music (we quote from the daily paper of the 20th ult.), and, like himself, pleased to hear an organ in the street. Unfortunately these views were not shared by his neighbours, one of whom, whose children are also musical—one of them is a student at the Royal College—declared that it was often impossible to practise or play owing to the organ men encouraged in the neighbourhood. In the issue the peccant organist was fined, his champion—the gentleman with the family of young children—charging one of the witnesses with perjury!

The Egerton Gardens episode is painful enough, but what can one expect when such a bad example is set in high places? Look, for example, at the concert of Europe, whose notion of harmony is so rudimentary that it can never get beyond the emission of Identical Notes! And look, again, at the painful feud which has broken out in America between the most illustrious of tenors and one of the most eminent of prime donne! The latest advices seem to indicate some slight hope of a reconciliation, in spite of the tenor's terrible threat that, in default of a public apology from the lady, he will at once take the cure at Carlsbad, on his return from America, which is tantamount to saying that Covent Garden will not see him this season. Opera nowadays is eminently an international institution, and this fact emboldens us to put forward the suggestion that an International Arbitration Board should be formed for the special purpose of adjudicating between operatic artists; or, failing a board, an umpire might be appointed, with full powers to settle such disputes. King Oscar of Sweden has already been mentioned as a suitable person to fill this arduous post where diplomatic difficulties are concerned. He is at least equally well qualified to act as a musical umpire, inasmuch as one of his sons married a professional singer.

Notwithstanding the telegraph and the telephone, news seems to travel slowly in some directions. A reviewer on the staff of the Manchester Guardian repeatedly refers to Sir John Stainer as "Mr." Stainer, although the Oxford Professor was knighted nearly nine years ago. But this gentleman's ignorance of Sir John's title does not entitle him to accuse the worthy knight of harmonic delinquencies. In a notice of "Six Italian Songs," edited by Sir John Stainer, and recently published by Messrs. Novello and Co., the critic says: "On page 8, first line, second bar, the uppermost voice of the accompaniment moves from F sharp to E, thus causing the chord of D to resolve into the chord of the sixth on G, with E as the top note. The effect is unnecessarily harsh and disturbing. The F sharp in question should move to G." Should it? The fall of the F sharp to E is not only peculiarly pleasing and satisfactory, but perfectly natural and theoretically correct. Without being "unnecessarily harsh" upon the reviewer, whose knowledge of harmony seems to be somewhat at "sixes and sevens," we beg to inform him that in thus attempting to "improve" a strictly accurate progression, he assumes a false position, from which, like the F sharp, he should descend.

Choral societies and concert-givers in town and country are now beginning to arrange for patriotic concerts in celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of the Queen's most wonderful reign. In London, the Royal Choral Society, at its Concert on May 6, will perform Mr. Rudyard Kipling's ballad, "The Flag of England," set to music for soprano solo, chorus, and orchestra by Professor Bridge; also "The Queen's Song," the words by Sir Edwin Arnold, the music composed by Mr. Eaton Faning. In addition to these interesting novelties, the programme will, with much appropriateness, contain two of Handel's majestic Coronation Anthems, which will be followed by that ever-popular festival work, Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise." The Queen's Hall Choral Society will celebrate the great event by presenting Mr. F. H. Cowen's Ode "All hail the glorious reign," as well as "The Banner of St. George," by Mr. Edward Elgar; these two new works will be in the excellent company of Sir Arthur Sullivan's "Golden Legend," which is to be given on the same occasion. Many similar performances will take place in the Provinces, and a considerable number are already arranged for in the Colonies. The Crystal Palace, where music has been such a delightful feature during so many years of the Queen's unique reign, will contribute largely to the strains of jubilation which will sound and resound throughout the length and breadth of our beloved land. A true note of patriotic expression will be sounded on the Handel orchestra at Sydenham on Easter Monday, by a grand performance of Mr. Edward Elgar's "Imperial March" for full orchestra and massed military bands, the effect of which is sure to be very thrilling and inspiring.

The question of the accompaniment of plainsong is indeed a vexed one. In the recently published "The Elements of Plainsong," edited by Mr. H. B. Briggs, we are reminded that the "extreme purist" rejects accompaniment altogether, while the "extreme vandal" delights in using harmonies of the most modern date. In this book we are told that probably the true solution of the question lies between these "opposite poles of opinion." Whether it be a "true" solution seems open to question; anyhow, it is based on the old Latin maxim—In medio tutissimus ibis. M. Adolphe Samuel, director of the Royal Conservatoire, Ghent, and composer of a "Christus" Symphony, has recently published a short pamphlet entitled "Sur la Musique dans les Eglises," in which he proposes to "translate into modern musical language the impressions awakened by plainsong." He would not stick closely to the letter, but try and preserve the spirit of the old texts. M. Samuel not only preaches, but practises. He has written a "Messe en Ré mineur" on these lines, and as the latest attempt to pour new wine into old bottles, his experiment is interesting, even though it may not commend itself to either extreme. It is only fair to M. Samuel to say that he considers he has made "large concession to the million who have no feeling for art."

Two important organ appointments in New York will soon be vacant by the retirement of two distinguished organists—Dr. W. B. Gilbert and Dr. Messiter. The former has been "chief musician" of Trinity Chapel, the St. Paul's Cathedral of New York, for twenty-seven years, while Dr. Messiter (of whom we hope to give some biographical particulars later on) has for thirty-one years held a similar office at the Parish Church. Dr. Walter Bond Gilbert, who was born at Exeter, April 21, 1829, became an articled pupil of Alfred Angel, organist of the Cathedral; but he subsequently studied under Dr. S. S. Wesley (at Winchester) and Sir H. R. Bishop. He held successive organ appointments at Topsham (Devonshire), Bideford, Tunbridge, Maidstone, Lee (Kent), and Boston (Lincolnshire). In December, 1869, Dr. Gilbert was appointed organist and choirmaster of Trinity Chapel (Episcopal), New York, for the services of which he has written about sixty anthems and also much other Church and instrumental music. He was the first organist in New York to introduce the works of the best English Church composers, and his name, especially as editor of the "Episcopal Hymnal" of America, as well as his compositions, are widely known throughout the States. We are informed that Dr. Gilbert, who retires on half-pay (equal to £300 per annum!) given by the Corporation, thinks of coming to reside amongst his old associates in London. He was one of the first Council of the Royal College of Organists, founded in 1864; but he is best known in his native country by his melodious and popular tune "Maidstone," associated with Lyte's hymn "Pleasant are Thy courts above," and which first appeared in the "Parish Tune Book," compiled by Mr. G. F. Chambers in 1862.

For "previousness" there is no country like America. An anonymous correspondent in the States has sent us copies of the libretto of an original comic opera issued in 1892, the title of which is none other than "His Majesty." So far as the title is concerned, Messrs. Burnand and Lehmann may echo the classical exclamation: "Pereant qui nostra dixerunt ante nos!" The contents of the "book of the words," however, entirely vindicate them from the charge of plagiarism. The literary quality of Mr. Peter Robertson's libretto is not exactly exhilarating, though the sole aim and object of the opera, to judge from the "get up" of the book, is to boom and glorify the Geyser Table Water of California. Indeed, the best of all the "lyrics" is the eulogy which fronts the list of dramatis personæ, from which we may extract the following beautiful stanza:—

> For father, mother,
> Son, or daughter,
> There's no such drink
> As Geyser Water.
> There's health and happiness
> In the glass—
> Drink hearty, lad,
> Drink deep, my lass.

We are informed that "His Majesty" (of the American dynasty) drinks nothing but the beverage in question. No doubt, in American comic opera circles, the new incarnation of "His Majesty" will be regarded as an attempt to celebrate the recent coalition of the dynasties of Apollinaris and Johannis.

The recent performance of Mendelssohn's music to "Athalie," by the Highbury Philharmonic Society (noticed in another column), recalls the fact that the work was first heard in England just fifty years ago. In the early part of 1846 the Queen, who was very fond of Mendelssohn and his music, asked, through the British Ambassador to the Court of Prussia, that a copy of "Athalie" should be sent to her. This "command" was naturally complied with by the composer. The manuscript score, in a copyist's hand, is now preserved in the Royal Music Library at Buckingham Palace. It contains the following inscription in Mendelssohn's autograph: "Cette Copie du Manuscrit de la Partition est la propriété de Sa Majesté la Reine Victoire.—Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy." The work was first performed in England, but in the French language, and at the instigation of the Prince Consort, at Windsor Castle, on the evening of New Year's Day, 1847. The late Mr. William Bartholomew, who was present, wrote a very long letter to Mendelssohn, fully describing the brilliant event. We learn from this letter (for a copy of which we are indebted to Mendelssohn's younger daughter) that Mr. Anderson, then Master of the Musick to the Queen, applied to Mr. Mitchell, the librarian, to recommend a reader, "who," Bartholomew says, "suggested M. Perlet, the comedian—the farceur!"

Ultimately, M. Brasseur, Professor of French at King's College, undertook the task. The version used on that occasion was published, with the title: "Athalie, Abrégée Spécialement pour la Lecture de cette Pièce, faite devant Sa Majesté la Reine Victoria et Son Altesse Royale le Prince Albert, au Château de Windsor, le 1er Janvier, 1847. Chant des Chœurs, sur la Musique du Dr. Félix Mendelssohn Bartholdy. Londres . . . 1847." A copy of this interesting pamphlet, with some characteristic annotations in Bartholomew's hand, now lies before us. Bartholomew, in describing to Mendelssohn the Windsor performance, said: "Nothing was wanting, save your presence to enjoy your triumph. It went capitally. The Queen and the Prince Albert, and about seventy or eighty splendid guests, were so attentive throughout that you might have heard a pin drop." The Court record of the event refers to the "very beautiful music, which Dr. Mendelssohn Bartholdy has rendered in a style that enhances his reputation as the greatest of living classical composers." The first public performance in England of "Athalie," with Bartholomew's familiar adaptation of Racine's tragedy, was at the Philharmonic Concert of March 12, 1849, under Costa.

Vol. XLIX. of the "Dictionary of National Biography," which made its punctual appearance in December, contains the large family of distinguished Robinsons, of whom John, a Westminster Abbey organist of that ilk, is perhaps the best known, musically, as the composer of a certain double chant in E flat. There is no mention of the gifted lady musician, Mrs. Joseph Robinson (née Fanny Arthur), of Dublin. One of the most interesting biographies, by reason of its fresh facts, is that of William Smith Rockstro, whose real patronymic was Rackstraw, born January 5, 1823. As a composer his name (Rackstraw) appeared in the programme of F. Cramer's farewell concert, June 27, 1844, when his MS. song, "Soon shall chilling fear assail thee," was sung by Staudigl. Two instances of Rockstro's insight into the style and methods of the Italian contrapuntists, especially Palestrina, are recorded by his biographer, Mr. Fuller Maitland. In 1881 Rockstro sent in anonymously his beautiful madrigal "O too cruel fair" (published by Novello & Co.) for a competition held by the Madrigal Society. It was "so closely modelled upon Palestrina's work that the presiding judge rejected it on the ground that it must have been literally copied"! We are further told that "on another occasion, in scoring a sacred work by Palestrina, an hiatus of considerable length was discovered in one of the only set of parts then known to exist in England. The missing portion was conjecturally restored by Rockstro, and on the discovery of a complete copy the restoration was found to represent the original exactly." One of the later names in the volume under notice is that of William Russell (1777-1813), the composer of an oratorio, "Job," and of many interesting organ voluntaries, now almost forgotten, but which Sir Walter Parratt says ought not to die. Was not Russell the first English organ composer to use three staves?

The music of Gounod's "Faust" obtained its first hearing in England at a London Music Hall! Such is the information given by Miss Emily Soldene in her sparkling "My Theatrical and Musical Recollections," a statement which we are able to confirm with some detailed particulars. The following advertisement appeared in the Daily Telegraph of April 24, 1860: "Canterbury Hall Concerts—The Royal Academy over the water—This evening will be performed (first time in this country) C. P. (sic) Gounod's opera 'Faust.' Faust, Mr. H. Herbert; Mephistopheles, Mr. C. Bernard; Marguerite, Miss Russell; Siebel, Mrs. Anderson; and an efficient chorus."

It is almost surprising to find that one, at least, of the leading musical critics of the day was not antagonistic to the music of the new opera because it was new. Gounod had a good friend in the late H. F. Chorley, who wrote in the Athenæum of May 19, 1860: "We must return to offer a word or two on the selection from M. Gounod's 'Faust,' given at Canterbury Hall, since Mr. Morton's enterprise merits every possible credit; and its success (in this case) is . . . more than commonly grateful to those whose belief in a new and real artist has never wavered, countless though the assaults and sarcasms on the subject have been." After stating that the Soldiers' chorus was "an inspiration, if there ever was such a thing," Chorley goes on to say: "The music is found to be bright, buoyant, and real . . . and the effect produced must surprise even those who are as thoroughly satisfied of its intrinsic excellences as ourselves." It should be added that "Faust" was not performed as an opera in London till June 11, 1863, four years after its production at the Théâtre Lyrique, Paris, March 19, 1859.

The provincial reporter who occasionally turns his attention from cattle shows to Concerts, is commonly regarded as an individual lacking imagination. How untrue this is may be illustrated by the report of a recent Halifax concert in the Halifax Courier. Schumann's "Märchenbilder" were in the programme, and the journalist present to "do" the Concert, rashly concluding that "Märchen" was the German equivalent for "Marches," allowed his imagination to run riot after the following fashion: "Mr. Gibson gave, with Miss Davies, four Marches for viola and piano by Schumann. Solos for this instrument (sic) are not common, and their introduction at this concert was a welcome novelty. One of the numbers was a realistic military march, with the drum tattoos given on the viola, while the last march was plaintively expressive, in which (sic) Mr. Gibson's strings had quite the tone of a wood-wind instrument." After this, one is inclined to suggest "Mare's Nest" as a more fitting translation of "Märchen." At any rate, the criticism is a "March Hare" which we welcome in our journalistic menagerie.

RUSSIAN RIVALRY.

Though critics say what I compose
Is generally good,
My name is one that no one knows,
Although you'd think they would.

Not one that ends in "reff" or "koff"
The present writer owns;
I wish my name was Goodenoff,
Unhappily it's Jones.

Glazounoff, Balakireff, some Think very gifted men;
Liadoff, Rachmaninoff, come
Among the upper ten;

But at my name folks simply scoff,
It lacks Slavonic tones;
If only it were Goodenoff,
Unhappily it's Jones!

Tschaïkowsky, now, they well may praise,
I could not rival him,
His music is no passing craze,
No fashionable whim.

But I might almost be a toff
In such exalted zones,
If only I were Goodenoff
Instead of simply Jones.

Borodine and Korsakoff make,
In ev'ry sense, a noise
In England now; I can't mistake
What all the world enjoys.

Great bangs, like cannon going off,
And melancholy moans,
That I should do as Goodenoff,
But cannot do as Jones.

So for the future I'll be dumb,
Composing nothing more,
Because, you see, I do not come
From any foreign shore.

Nor will I play, unless at "golf,"
Or on the nigger's bones;
My name is never Goodenoff,
I can't succeed as Jones.

FACTS, RUMOURS, AND REMARKS.

A certain firm enquires per advertisement: "Who would be without a piano or organ? Iron framed pianos from 10s. 6d. monthly, 2s. 5d. weekly, 4d. daily. American organs from 4s. 6d. monthly, 1s. weekly, 1¾d. daily." The daily payment is, I should say, a new feature, but for whom can it be intended? No doubt the seven farthings a day might tempt a crossing-sweeper, and in that manner endow the humblest with the means of music.

Mr. Henry Knight informs me that he has in his possession the second volume of "Sacred Melodies, Chiefly Selected from Eminent Composers, and Arranged for One or Two Voices, with an Accompaniment for the Organ or Pianoforte, and Adapted to Appropriate Poetry, by John Goss, Organist of St. Luke's, Chelsea." "To Mrs. Colonel Fagan, the following Selection of Melodies is respectfully inscribed by John Goss, 3, Cheyne Walk, Chelsea, March, 1832." My correspondent writes: "This is probably the collection of Psalm and Hymn Tunes used at St. Luke's, Chelsea, which Dr. Barrett, in his 'English Church Composers,' says Goss printed at his own risk in 1830."

"The musical taste of the pre-Victorian age," continues Mr. Knight, "may be gauged on examination of this volume, which contains adaptations of the Larghetto from Beethoven's Second Symphony, the 'Last Judgment,' the 'Creation,' 'Harmonious Blacksmith,' and, most incredible of all, the Dead March in 'Saul'—the majority of them set to most incongruous words. Fancy a genius like Goss employed on such degrading and—it must have been—such distasteful work!" Truly it does seem strange, but men are always, to some extent or other, the creatures of their environment. Adaptations like those referred to were much in favour at the time, and the presentation of such music in any form was deemed an assistance to the progress of art. Goss simply drifted with the stream. So do we all, more or less.

I have just read an article on "Music and Evolution," in The Review of the River Plate—a most unlikely journal, some may think. The writer sums up this discussion by stating that "music, and the appreciation of it, partake of the nature of those things about which no fixed rule can be made. It is all a matter of taste, and the admirer of an operatic cavatina, sung by a famous prima donna, has not any right to question the preference given by a party of students to a rollicking drinking-song with a chorus, or the crooning melody droned out by some tired, belated mother as she hushes her infant to sleep. Dr. Johnson was right: to each and all music is, for the nonce, a not disagreeable form of noise." Apparently they like comfortable doctrines on the banks of the River Plate—doctrines for a swung hammock under the trees, with a "cooler" handy. A hammock philosopher was he who said (if I quote him correctly): "There's nothing new, and there's nothing true, and it doesn't matter."

The American Art Journal, referring to Mrs. Max Heinrich's singing of certain songs, declares "Her direct, womanly vocalion is ever a delight." I welcome any addition to the limited terminology of musical literature.

President McKinley has a niece who sings in public, and the journal above-quoted hopes it will not be misunderstood when expressing a belief that her voice is of excellent quality. "We don't want an office," says the editor.

With reference to Chatterton and Broderip, the following letter appeared in the Dundee Advertiser of the 5th ult.:—

Sir,—Chatterton's lines on Broderip quoted in the "Notes on Art and Literature," in your Monday's issue, are to be found on pages 141-2, Vol. I., of the Aldine edition of Chatterton's poetical works, edited by Professor W. W. Skeat. They occur in the poem "Kew Gardens," and are precisely the same as those given by you from The Musical Times with two unimportant verbal variations. Your readers will find in Skeat's notes some information about "Kew Gardens." With reference to your inquiry as to the source from which the writer in The Musical Times obtained the lines in question, it is obvious that he did not need to go farther afield than to the pages of this easily accessible edition.—I am, &c., M.

It has recently been stated that the active members of a certain Choral Society "were heard to great advantage in Sullivan's 'Prodigal Son,' the rendering being regarded by them as a lapse into less arduous seas from the severely classical pieces with which of late they have from time to time renewed the laurels of their vocalistic and choral fame." I read also: "Where laudation, and that of the sincerest, seems due universally, we shall not here diminish the abundant measure of public appreciation by particular or individual criticism." These extracts pale their ineffectual fires before the one subjoined: "Most comic songs are atrocious, and the men who sing them ought to be decapitated for their first offence, and treated with still greater severity if they should ever sin again in the same hideous direction." According to a monkish legend, St. Denis walked about, after decapitation, with his head under his arm, but that feat is nothing compared to the singing of a comic song by a truncated vocalist.

I see the following in an American journal: "The essence of romanticism is that, instead of moulding music, like gingerbread, into set geometrical forms, it allows the pieces to crystallise into forms of their own, thus insuring endless variety and the absence of formalism and padding for the sake of filling up a mould." This reduces the creative musician to the level of one who drops melted lead into water, or of another who pares an apple. There is "endless variety" with "absence of formalism" in the lead splashes, and, possibly, a deep secret of fate in the curl of the rind.

Mr. Councillor Beale, Chairman of the Orchestral Committee, Birmingham Festival, made a speech at the recent meeting of the General Committee, some passages in which deserve general attention. The pith of his statement with regard to novelties lies here: "We could get new pieces if we paid the fees, but we cannot now expect important novelties for nothing." The objectors to providing novelties for nothing belong to two classes—composers and publishers. According to Mr. Beale, composers are so busy with educational matters that they have very little time to devote to composition. As regards some of them, that is no doubt true, but the gist of the matter is not touched by the fact. Time would be found for composition if our creative musicians were assured of proper remuneration, and I, for one, cannot see why they should work for nothing, or at best for results which are not assured. I am glad to find Mr. Beale recognising this, and saying: "It is reasonable that they should look for a moderate fee if they were expected to give up their time to composing for provincial festivals." Of course a certain number, young men mostly, are, and always will be, prepared to take their chance, looking upon the distinction as a possible source of future profit, and regarding their labour as an investment. That is their business, but the old hands are in very different case.

On their part, the publishers "have got tired of publishing new compositions as a speculation." "Some of the compositions," remarked Mr. Beale, "paid, and some did not, and the house of Novello and Co. had stated that they must be compensated for the trouble of publishing a work of which they could not take the whole responsibility." This again is reasonable. Publishers are quite willing to speculate, and incur risks, in the case of compositions approved by the judgment of their advisers, but for a long time past they have been expected to invest their capital in works chosen not by themselves, but by festival committees. Really, that is not "business," and it is only fair that, in all such cases, they should be given a guarantee against loss. The managers of festivals should buy new works outright and have them printed for the purpose of production. If they fail, the loss falls where it should fall; if success result, publishers will be glad enough to take the good thing off their hands. The successes, unhappily, are not numerous, and the course here suggested would enforce great circumspection upon committees, and restrict the output of compositions which have little distinction and practically no raison d'être.

Since the above was written I have been told, on the best possible authority, that Messrs. Novello and Co. never made the statement attributed to them above, nor any similar statement. This does not, however, affect my point.

The Birmingham General Committee have approved a proposal to present their late chorus-master, Mr. Stockley, with a testimonial on the occasion of his retirement after forty years' service. As is the duration of faithful labour, so should be the value of its reward. Birmingham, where men devise liberal things, will doubtless see that Mr. Stockley has a "bumper."

Hastings and St. Leonards boast a new Vocal Society, of which Dr. Abram is honorary conductor. The first Concert, in which the Choral Union and the Orchestral Society fraternally participated, is spoken of as a gratifying success.

Obstacle after obstacle has arisen in the path of the proposed English Concerts in Rome, and there is now some reason to doubt whether the performances will take place—at any rate, at the date fixed. The scheme is Mr. Visetti's, who has already spent upon it much money and valuable time. He is not a man easily to be beaten, and success will come, though it may be delayed.

There is proverbially no disputing questions of taste with any hope of profitable results, or I should be tempted to take sides against the Hon. F. R. Stewart, whose taste is very peculiar indeed. Such as it is, however, he is entitled to its enjoyment, and, as he loves the music of barrel-organs, there is no reason in the world why he should not feast upon it morning, noon, and night. But as to the mode of doing this, the law has something to say. The law of Venice declared, in the matter of Shylock's bond, "You may take the pound of flesh, but not a drop of blood." The law of England, in the matter of organ-grinding, lays it down that you may have your fill of the noises it produces, but may not annoy your neighbours. In a police case tried at Westminster, the other day, it appeared that Mr. Stewart's family musician, an Italian named Michael Angelo Dameto, had been in the habit of grinding outside Mr. Stewart's house, to his great comfort and joy—feelings not shared by Mrs. Henry Dickens and Mr. John Smith, his neighbours. "Go away," said the neighbours to the organ man. "Stay where you are," counselled Mr. Stewart, and the result was the appearance of all parties before Mr. Shiel, whose common-sense soon found expression. Addressing Mr. Stewart, the magistrate said: "You should have the organ men inside your house if you are so fond of them." It is wonderful that this course did not suggest itself to Mr. Stewart. Perhaps "distance lends enchantment," but lovers of music by handle must not expect to be enchanted at the cost of others.

Ink and paper have been largely used in conveying to the public what is probable or possible, or imaginary and misleading, anent the next opera season. It may be that those who expect the least will be least disappointed, but, at any rate, the matter will keep for another month, by which time the outlook may have become less nebulous. Opera is a shifting business, and one never knows what a day may bring forth. It appears, however, that Mr. Grau and his company were recently stranded at Chicago, owing to poor patronage, and a whip up for money wherewith to carry out the tour was resorted to. That circumstance is definite enough.

Berlioz's "Trojans at Carthage" was performed by the Liverpool Philharmonic Society, under Mr. Cowen's direction, on the 30th ult. This interesting revival will be noticed in the next issue of The Musical Times.

Mr. Cowen's new vocal scena, "The Dream of Endymion," will be produced towards the end of the Philharmonic season, but his "Idyllic" Symphony is announced for performance at a Richter Concert on May 31. Mr. Cowen will provide a new choral work for the next Cardiff Festival, of which he was appointed conductor some time ago.

Joseph Bennett.

CHURCH NEWS.

It was fitting that at the impressive Funeral Service in the noble Cathedral at Lincoln, on the 8th ult., the church authorities and citizens should assemble to do the last honours to a former Cathedral organist, John Matthew Wilson Young, who, entering upon his duties in 1850 and retiring late in the year 1895, served as a worker to be remembered and as "a maker of tunes" for some forty-five years. Mr. Young was a painstaking organist, specially happy in accompaniment playing, though as a soloist not a performer of the type of to-day. As a choir-trainer he did good work, and in this connection the remarkably careful and expressive Psalm chanting at Lincoln—if, according to modern ideas, a trifle slow—has long been a feature of interest in the Cathedral services. Mr. Young was, as is so natural in the case of a Cathedral organist, a composer of church music, some of which displays high musicianship and all of it shows great earnestness of purpose. One work—a sacred cantata, dealing with an epoch of Jewish history—was performed at a Cathedral Festival.

The annual Welsh Festival, held in St. Paul's Cathedral this year on February 27, has become an imposing and impressive manifestation of national religious feeling; a type of manifestation perhaps too little noted in the annals of our national life, albeit we may claim to be a nation both religious and musical. Possibly our neglect arises from want of unity; but no such charge can be laid against the warm-hearted sons and daughters of Cambria. If the Welsh Festival in our Metropolitan Cathedral has so far produced no very great specimens of sacred music, or very artistic renderings on a scale of exceptional completeness, it is an institution of marked religious earnestness, and its music is always fraught with heartfelt worship and sympathetic emotion. At York Minster, again, Welsh church music sung to English words was recently heard. This included an anthem, "I was glad," by Mr. T. Edwards, of Chester. At Manchester Cathedral St. David's Day was similarly honoured. Mr. J. W. Walters was the leader of the choir and Mr. T. Edwards the organist, the city police band also assisting. The organist named in connection with this Festival is engaged in editing a work likely to give a great impetus to the advancement of Welsh choral services—a Welsh Psalter. Such a publication will not only be of great value, but must be accepted as a sign of a national awakening to a fuller appreciation of the strong eloquence of choral services.

One of the noticeable features of the Lenten music of the year is an apparently deeper appreciation, in more numerous renderings, of Bach's wonderfully impressive setting of the "Passion" according to St. John. At St. Anne's, Soho, for many years famous for its complete and carefully rendered Bach musical services, this work is being given weekly, on Fridays, under the loving direction of Mr. E. H. Thorne, one of our most earnest and artistic exponents of the music of the great Leipzig cantor. The same work has been also ably given at Marylebone Parish Church, another famous home of the highest types of church music. The useful and excellent Kyrle Society, ably directed by Mr. F. A. W. Docker, gives two church performances of the same work during Lent. It need not be added the Lenten Oratorio Services are too numerous to be even named, save in a few instances. Of the events of this kind the great rendering of the St. Matthew "Passion" in St. Paul's Cathedral, under the artistic guidance of Dr. Martin, taking place towards the close of the solemn season, will be an important feature of its observance. In connection with the dedication of the chancel and side chapel of St. Mark's, New Swindon, on the 1st ult., Mr. A. R. Gaul's graceful and effective cantata "The Ten Virgins" was sung with orchestral accompaniments, conducted by Mr. G. H. Burrows. An interesting employment of church Service music, specially interesting to those who take a delight in the deeply devotional sentences of Palestrina's music, was a fine rendering, of course unaccompanied, of that great writer's "St. John" Mass on a recent Sunday by the choir of the Oratory, Brompton, under the earnest guidance of Mr. A. Barclay Jones. One is glad to note that attempts are being made to revive the use of such noble church music. Still, it must be allowed the traditions of its performance are not very present with us now, to judge from the stories of its marvellous effects generations ago. Our modern choirs sing, so to speak, too instrumentally for such art; partly from singing too little without accompaniment, partly from the habit of clinging to, and too fully asserting, accented notes, and still more probably from want of a special system of training no longer in vogue. Surely it would be a task worthy of our greatest choirmasters to devote themselves to the resuscitation of the ancient manner, according to reliable historical evidence, of producing long sustained streams of soft devotional harmony, "deeply breathing" the never ending lines of counterpoint, "a fit emblem to the musician"—as Henry Chorley once wrote—"of eternal harmony." Palestrina's music, much of which was written without bar divisions, should be sung indeed with carefully subordinated accents, and with a fine sense of devotional self-absorption, by which "all shall be realised and nothing asserted." Such art, expressed by fine voices, produced without apparent effort, would reveal to us once again the ancient glories of the most worshipful church music the world has so far known.

One of the many renderings of Stainer's "Crucifixion," so effective and useful, as well as so unexacting a work in performance, was given at St. Alphege, Southwark, on the 15th ult.; and Gounod's "Redemption" was sung with an augmented choir at St. Peter's, Eaton Square, on the 19th ult.

During the consideration of church music, thoughts of its composers cannot be far away. A strong committee has been formed with the object of presenting to Dr. G. M. Garrett a testimonial as an expression of sympathy on account of his long and painful illness, and as a mark of appreciation of the great services he has rendered to all concerned by his many admirable compositions for the Church. We regret to say, from the latest report, that Dr. Garrett is unfortunately not making the rapid recovery that had been hoped for. It is much to be desired that subscriptions to the testimonial will be speedily forthcoming, and that Dr. Garrett will have the practical sympathy of his numerous friends and admirers.

The coming performances of Bach's "St. Matthew" Passion Music includes one at St. James's, Paddington, on the 9th inst., under the direction of the able and diligent organist, Mr. H. J. B. Dart. A rendering of Haydn's "Creation," under the direction of Mr. Arthur George, with Mr. Duncan Hume at the organ, took place at St. John's, Boscombe, on February 25. At the same Church, Handel's "Coronation" Anthem and Gounod's Te Deum will be given, with complete orchestra, in May.

The departure of the highly gifted and estimable Berthold Tours, in the prime of a useful artistic life, will be widely mourned. His fine and characteristic church music will for generations bear witness to his good work, and keep his memory green in the hearts of many loving admirers.

The Music Competitions held in Douglas, Isle of Man, towards the close of last month, with Dr. Coward, of Sheffield, as adjudicator, included competitions for church, chapel, and village choirs. These will do good locally, by inciting such bodies to the attainment of greater skill and unity of action in the performance of their graver and important duties in connection with the rendering of worship music.

From Calcutta comes tidings of the performance, in the Cathedral, of Mendelssohn's "St. Paul"; and from Georgetown, Demerara, news to hand tells of an interesting rendering of the same composer's "Elijah," in St. Philip's Church. Such efforts to advance the church oratorio as an institution are happily being made throughout the English-speaking world.

ORGAN NEWS.

It is never too late to record good work of lasting influence. Mr. E. H. Thorne, the esteemed organist of St. Anne's, Soho, gave, during February, a series of Bach Recitals. The interesting programmes included not only some of the more popular Preludes and Fugues, &c., but several of the Choral Preludes and the Sonata in G major. Mr. Thorne, one of the most faithful lovers of Bach's organ music, has the credit of doing much in the way of making some of this music, and especially the Sonatas, better known than they formerly were. The question of registering for these pieces written for two manuals is an interesting one to all organ-players. If the natural plan of selecting nicely-balanced eight-feet stops of distinct tone properties be the one most favoured by many, it is by no means the only effective method. One plan, by which the thin though strong contrapuntal lines produced by three parts only may be made to develop into fuller harmony, something in the way Mozart doubles his unisons, thirds, and sixths by the wood-wind instruments, is the employment on both of the two manuals of soft eight, sixteen, and four-feet stops of different tone calibre. This method, practised by some players both here and on the Continent, has its basis in the German method of using such registers in contrapuntal music in few parts. It is a plan specially effective in sundry Allegro movements of Bach's Sonatas, and it may be a method of quite an old date, to judge from the provision of tone effects furnished by the schemes of many old German organs.

The Recital programme of Mr. F. Pullein, recently played at Wrexham, included a "Sonata da Camera" by Dr. Peace, a well written and highly effective work in three movements. The appearance of Dudley Buck's "At Evening" in the scheme was another sign of the increasing popularity of that writer's organ music. A word or two may be said of the pieces played on violin and organ upon the same occasion. The Aria from Bach's Suite in D was given according to the fourth string version; it is effective with organ accompaniment according to both versions. Beethoven's Romance in F is an excellent selection for the two instruments, as would be the Romance in G and the Larghetto from the same composer's Concerto for violin; and the slow movement from Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto is, it may be noted, frequently used in this way. Merkel's Adagio for violin and organ claims more attention than it appears to receive. Mr. C. J. Lacock gave an effective selection of chiefly modern music at his second Organ Recital at the Italian Church, on the 8th ult. The scheme of Dr. Bunnett's Recital, at St. Andrew's Hall, Norwich, on the 13th ult., included a rather novel work of special interest in Mr. John E. West's excellent music set to illustrate Longfellow's "King Robert of Sicily," the poem being eloquently recited by Mr. Charles Fry. Such settings for orchestra are not unknown. The employment of the organ with the spoken voice opens up, however, a new field for composers and possibilities which will not be overlooked. Dr. Bunnett's well executed programme included a Capriccio by Capocci and an Allegretto in B flat minor by Callaerts, pieces with an air of novelty about them. Recent Recitals by Mr. A. H. Allen, given at St. David's, Denbigh, included S. S. Wesley's Andante Cantabile in G major, a charming bit of English organ music, an Intermezzo from the pen of the organist, and an Elegie in G minor, by Bazzini, a writer who seems to be gaining favour with organ players.

Amongst the many announcements of coming Organ Recitals must be mentioned a series including several by well known players, to be given at the historic church of St. Michael's, Cornhill, on the Thursdays from April 22 to July 1. The able organist of the church, Dr. W. J. Reynolds, plays the first and last of these performances. The mid-day Organ Recitals in the city churches have become a very general and acceptable institution.

The appearance of a collection of pieces, under the editorship of Sir John Stainer and Mr. F. Cunningham Woods, under the title of "The Village Organist," is in part a revival of a work issued years ago, but very greatly enhanced in value by many valuable contributions from well known hands. This work will be a gain to all church organists to whom pieces of a comparatively unpretentious type, as regards their claims upon executive skill, are always welcome; for when the head is less occupied the heart sometimes feels more at liberty, and more able to fully express devotional earnestness.

Good news comes from Leeds in the tidings that the Corporation of that city is seriously considering the question of tuning the Town Hall organ to the "normal diapason." It is to be hoped that this important proposal will indeed be carried out ere long, not only at Leeds, but elsewhere.

Colonial news includes tidings of an Organ Recital at Christchurch, New Zealand, given by Mr. Jesse Timson, with a good and quite up to date programme. Other news from far distant places goes to show how universally the Organ Recital is accepted as an institution of artistic value.

Very satisfactory and gratifying is it to note the appreciative enthusiasm with which Dr. A. L. Peace has been received already, in the discharge of his duties as holder of the important office of organist at St. George's Hall, Liverpool. The organ there is now to be thoroughly renovated by Mr. H. Willis, the builder, who in this matter will have the companionable advice of Drs. Hopkins and Peace. The statement is made that some three thousand pounds will be spent in connection with these improvements.

The organ at the Memorial Church, Berlin, practically completed two years ago, has been somewhat enlarged by a new echo organ of ten registers, the stops now numbering ninety. The instrument was to be used in connection with the Emperor's (Wilhelm I.) Centenary Festival.

BERTHOLD TOURS.

Music in England is the poorer by the death, on the 11th ult., of one who came from Holland to help it, and threw into his work a measure of ability, conscientiousness, and devotion that together made him an example to his adopted countrymen. Berthold Tours migrated from the Continent to our island as far back as 1861. Between then and now stretches a space of thirty-six years—time enough for a man's character to become known, and for his ability to assert whatever strength may be in it. This is true in the case of the musician we have just lost, albeit he was no self-advertiser, and rather shrank from than sought opportunities of figuring in the public eye which were not necessary or unavoidable. In short, Berthold Tours had the virtue, somewhat rare in these days, of invincible modesty. "A simple and modest man," once said Dean Stanley, "lives unknown, until a moment, which he could not have foreseen, reveals his estimable qualities and his generous actions. I compare him to the concealed flower, springing from a humble stem, which escapes the view, and is discovered only by its perfume." These sentences might fitly enter into an elegiac notice of Berthold Tours. He was one of the men who are content to labour and to wait—whose true happiness lies in doing with all their might whatever their hands find to do, leaving the result to Eternal Justice. It is the force of such men—silent in its working, unobserved save by those who seek it—which moves the world far more than do others who pose on platforms and are voluble of speech. Let us be thankful for them, and sorry (for ourselves) when they go from us to their reward.

Berthold Tours belonged to a race long ago illustrious in the annals of music and now showing ample signs of renewed life. He was born at Rotterdam on December 17, 1838, the son of an organist, who held a post at the Church of St. Lawrence. His father grounded him in music, and Verhulst assisted; his training being subsequently carried on at the Conservatoires of Brussels and Leipzig. We are not told that his early years were marked by indications of brilliant gifts. They, however, must have been spent in steady plodding—in careful, constant discharge of the duty of self-development, which the brilliant often neglect. Tours was in Russia two years, in the service of the music-loving Prince Galitzin; but his real working life began after his migration to London, in 1861. He came to us humbly, ready to play in our orchestras, to teach his art and to compose as opportunity served. After doing duty at the Adelphi Theatre and in Mellon's band, the young Dutchman, through the influence of Prosper Sainton, who had himself known what it was to need a friend in a strange country, was lucky enough to obtain a place as violinist in the orchestra of the Royal Italian Opera, and from this coign of 'vantage he reached other things; but it was not till 1872 that a chance came for the exercise of perhaps his most valuable talent. Tours was a born editor of music; learned, laborious, and accurate in a remarkable degree. These qualities must have become known when, at the date just given, he was chosen to assist Joseph Barnby in his duties as adviser upon, and editor of Novello and Co.'s publications. In this post, and at this most important if not very conspicuous work, Tours remained till Barnby removed to Eton, in 1875, and was succeeded in Berners Street by Sir John Stainer. It can of course be understood that the firm desired to replace one distinguished and well-known man by another. Tours, however, was destined not long to remain a mere assistant. Stainer resigned his appointment after a few months, and, in 1877, the modest, hard-working subordinate stepped into a position for which he had certainly qualified. Hard work awaited him, since the firm then, and in succeeding years developed an immense activity. Compositions of all kinds poured from its presses, and had to pass under the searching eye of the corrector. How well they fared is less known to the public than to authors and conductors, some of whom, gratefully and openly, made acknowledgment of the admirable way in which the parts were prepared for performance. It may be difficult to replace Tours in a branch of work demanding uncommon patience, no ordinary sense of duty, and a rare faculty for plodding in silence and out of sight.

Tours was not less successful in a department which involved greater musical skill. As an arranger of pianoforte accompaniments from orchestral scores, he showed excellent judgment and taste, usually finding the happy medium between too great elaboration of detail and the bareness which lacks due effect. Beethoven's Mass in C, Schubert's Masses, "Elijah," "Redemption," and many another important masterpiece, including several of Sullivan's comic operas, passed through his hands in this way. It is not surprising that from such weary, anxious, and not immediately cheering work, Berthold Tours often turned for relief to the joy of musical creation, to the indulgence of his own thoughts after dealing with the thoughts of others. His success as a composer needs no special assertion here. It is present to the minds of all who know his songs, and especially to those who are familiar with his music for the Church. The Dutch musician stands almost alone as a foreigner who succeeded in writing acceptably in a department which demands special training and large acquaintance with tradition and usage. Mendelssohn himself once essayed his skill in the same line, with no very brilliant results. But we must remember that Tours lived long in England, while his duties made him intimately acquainted with the writings of composers to the manner born, and that for some years he was a church organist. Without great natural aptitude, however, even these advantages do not suffice for catching so perfectly as did Tours a strange accent and a special style. His hymn-tunes, anthems, and services are now heard everywhere, being, perhaps, even more popular in America than in the country of their origin. The Service in F may even be said to have found a place among Church classics, and, therefore, will be handed down from generation to generation. It is sad to lose so useful a worker, but consoling to know that Berthold Tours did not pass from us without assurance of reward for all his patient labour and conscientious service.

THE ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

The usual performance of Gounod's sacred trilogy "The Redemption" was given by the Royal Choral Society, on Ash Wednesday, the 3rd ult., at the Royal Albert Hall. The interpretation was one of great impressiveness, and partook in no small measure of the nature of a religious function. Much of this effect was owing to the notable dignity with which Mr. Andrew Black delivered the words of the Saviour. Miss Esther Palliser also sang with intense fervour of expression, and interpreted the beautiful air "From Thy love as a Father" with the utmost sympathy with the words and music. Miss Maggie Purvis and Mrs. Katharine Fisk also sang with distinction, and the parts of the Narrators were ably sustained by Mr. Lloyd Chandos and Mr. Norman Salmond. The choristers entered with their usual spirit and intelligence into their task, and gave the fullest effect to the massive chorus "Forth the royal banners go" and the dramatic passages which relate the scoffing remarks of the Priests. The meditative choral numbers, such as "The earth is My possession" and "O, My vineyard," were also sung with the utmost delicacy and precision. The instrumental portion was most effectively rendered by the orchestra, with the valuable assistance of Mr. H. L. Balfour at the organ, and the performance in its entirety may be said to have been one of the best that has been given at Kensington Gore. Professor Bridge conducted.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

No more brilliant opening could have been desired for the eighty-fifth season of our oldest and foremost Musical Society than the first Concert, given on the 24th ult., when that prince of pianists, M. Paderewski, created uncontrollable enthusiasm by his superb playing of the first in the Society's goodly list of novelties by British composers—viz., the long-expected Scotch Concerto, by the esteemed conductor, Sir Alexander C. Mackenzie. Let us hasten to add that hope and expectation have in this case been well rewarded, for we are of opinion that Sir Alexander's new work is not only far and away the best he has given us for a number of years, but that it would not be easy to point to a pianoforte concerto of recent date in which the qualities that go towards making a successful work of this kind are so happily blended. Noteworthy features are the superior quality of the subject matter, the poetic sentiment, and pure style of the music generally, and the brilliancy of the solo part, especially of the Finale, which was repeated in response to the tumultuous applause. We do not know how far Sir Alexander is indebted to Folk-tunes for his thematic material, but suspect that some of the finest subjects are his own, and that those which he borrowed from the rich store of his country's songs have been subjected to a refining process till he may claim them also as his. The inestimable qualities of beauty and charm are rarely absent; melody, harmony, rhythm, and orchestration alike offering points of great interest, while the variety, sonority, and general effectiveness of the accompaniments cause us to regret once more that Sir Alexander has devoted himself so little to the composition of purely orchestral works, for which he is so eminently fitted. We feel convinced that this Scotch Concerto is an acquisition and will reveal new beauties at each fresh hearing. The Concert opened with a spirited performance of Dvorák's Scherzo Capriccioso and Beethoven's Fourth Symphony, Wagner's Kaisermarsch and airs for Madame Blanche Marchesi completing an excellent programme.

QUEEN'S HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

Rossini's "Stabat Mater" and Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," so often associated during the past half-century, were again found together at Queen's Hall, on the 3rd ult., when Mr. Randegger presided over an excellent performance of each. On this occasion the work for the Roman Church took precedence, with Miss Thudichum, Madame Belle Cole, Mr. Ben Davies, and Signor Foli as soloists, concerning whose competency no doubt could exist. The richly coloured choruses—so characteristic of the school to which the composition belongs—were sung with precision together with close regard for light and shade, and the reception of the work demonstrated that this setting of the ancient Latin hymn is as popular as ever. The choral singing was, if possible, even better in Mendelssohn's always welcome "Hymn," every page—nay, every phrase—of which is instinct with nobility and the purest devotional spirit. Firmness was combined with fervour, and to these qualities was added the artistic effect produced by even balance of the respective parts. Miss Thudichum and Mr. Ben Davies sang the solos with their customary ability, and Miss Margaret Hoare took part in the duet "I waited for the Lord." The beautiful symphony opening the "Hymn of Praise" and the orchestral accompaniments of the two works were admirably played.

So much interest was manifested in Saint-Saëns's opera "Samson and Delilah" that Mr. Newman was induced, on the 5th ult., to give a third performance this season. This musicianly and frequently imposing composition has gained fresh friends each time it has been heard here. With Mr. Edward Lloyd and Miss Marie Brema as the hero and heroine it has, of course, had the best of chances, and both artists once more perfectly rendered music excellently suited to them. Mr. Andrew Black was eminently satisfactory as principal bass, and in the subordinate parts Messrs. Reginald Brophy, Thomas Meux, E. Branscombe, and W. H. Brereton evinced unfailing zeal and intelligence. The execution of the choral and orchestral sections could not, as a whole, have been improved upon.

Berlioz's "Faust" was selected for the 18th ult., but as regards attendance was not so attractive as usual. To amateurs who stayed away the loss was great, as the performance was in most respects exceedingly good. Considering the heavy task, first honours were won by the chorus. There was nothing uncertain in the delivery of the Easter Hymn, of Faust's dream, of the bold chorus of soldiers and students closing the second part, or even of the "Amen" Fugue serving as a burlesque pendant to Brander's song. More steadiness, earnestness, or assurance could not have been desired. The bright voices of the boys of the London Training School for Choristers, headed by Master Stanley Marchant, once more augmented the effect. The music of Mephistopheles was sung with much spirit by Mr. Watkin Mills, who had to repeat the Serenade; Madame Marie Duma was successful as Margaret, Mr. Edward Branscombe (taking the place of the indisposed Mr. Lloyd Chandos) sang tastefully as Faust, and Mr. F. B. Ranalow was quite equal to the "Rat" ditty. The "Hungarian" March was played with such impulse that an encore was demanded, and no fault could be found with the rendering of the "Ballet of Sylphs," of the "Dance of Will o' the Wisps," or of the elaborate instrumental accompaniment. It only remains to add that Mr. Randegger conducted the three Concerts with customary skill and discretion.

LAMOUREUX CONCERTS.

M. Lamoureux and his famous Parisian orchestra began their series of Concerts at the Queen's Hall, on the 22nd ult. The principal work of the first programme was Mozart's last Symphony in C, commonly known as the "Jupiter." The somewhat thin tone of M. Lamoureux's "strings," and the remarkable exactitude with which the orchestra play together, caused a sense of lack of breadth in the phrasing, and at times a certain absence of dignity; but with this exception a very fine rendering was given of the beautiful music. No fault could be found with the performance of M. Saint-Saëns's fascinating symphonic poem "Le Roûet d'Omphale," which can fairly be described as ideal. Its repetition, in response to the enthusiastic applause, was, however, a mistake, and the music was not quite so well played the second time. A novelty was a "Fantaisie Dialoguée" for organ and orchestra, by M. L. Boëllmann, the grand organist at the Church of St. Vincent de Paul, Paris. The work consists of four sections, which are chiefly remarkable for the admirable manner in which the organ part is written, and for the skill with which its tones are made to intermingle with those of the orchestra. The work, in short, is a very effective composition, and proclaims M. Boëllmann, who played the organ part, to be an accomplished musician. The remainder of the programme comprised Mendelssohn's "Ruy Blas" Overture, the "Good Friday" music from Wagner's "Parsifal," and the "Die Meistersinger" Overture.

On the following evening a highly finished interpretation was given of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony. The reading of the first movement was deficient in emotional depth and elasticity, but the other numbers were finely played, and the wonderful connective passage between the Scherzo and Finale was rendered with remarkable impressiveness. The Prelude to M. Saint-Saëns's oratorio "Le Déluge" afforded an opportunity to M. Lucien Capet, the principal violin of the orchestra, to show what an admirable executant he is, the solo part in this movement being played with exquisite feeling and refinement. An excerpt from Gluck's "Orphée" also served to show M. Bertram's great skill as a flautist. Dramatic interpretations were given of the Overtures to Schumann's incidental music to Byron's "Manfred" and Wagner's "Flying Dutchman," and the Concert was concluded with Chabrier's Rhapsody for orchestra, entitled "España," a clever but somewhat vulgar composition.

No better choice could have been made to advantageously display the refinement of the wood-wind of M. Lamoureux's orchestra than Brahms's second genial Symphony in D, which was the principal feature of the third Concert, on the afternoon of the 24th ult. The wind passages in the Adagio and in the Scherzo were rendered with fascinating precision and delicacy, and in other respects the interpretation was one of great excellence. Most effective renderings were given of Liszt's suggestive "Mephisto" Waltz, and of the first movement of Lalo's Rhapsodie Norvégienne, originally written for violin and orchestra. Memorable features of the afternoon were an exquisitely refined reading of Wagner's "Siegfried Idyll" and the "Air de Pan" from Bach's "Drama per Musica," entitled "Der Streit zwischen Phöbus und Pan" ("The contest of Phœbus and Pan"). The "Air," which was sung with appropriate spirit by M. Bailly, is a merry and expressive ditty, and well worthy of the Leipzig master. The programme was concluded with the "Ride of the Valkyries."

HENSCHEL CONCERTS.

The chief feature of the sixth Henschel Concert, which took place on February 25, at St. James's Hall, was a repetition performance, "by desire," of Tschaïkowsky's "Pathetic" Symphony in B minor. The reading was much the same as that given at the third Concert, and indicated Mr. Henschel's careful study of the score. The evening was opened by an effective performance of Dr. Hubert H. Parry's Overture "To an unwritten Tragedy," written for and produced at the Worcester Festival of 1893. Messrs. Joseph and Paul Ludwig gave a conscientious and finished rendering of the violin and violoncello of Brahms's rarely heard Concerto in A minor (Op. 102), and Mrs. Henschel sang with her usual charm of expression Liszt's beautiful setting of "Kennst du das Land."

The Symphony chosen for the following Concert, which was held on the 11th ult., was Beethoven s fifth in C minor (Op. 67). Save for an occasional want of finish in the rendering of the wind parts, an impressive interpretation was given of the music, which Berlioz said "seems to emanate directly and solely from the genius of Beethoven." Much interest was attached to the first performance of a new "Idyle" for orchestra, by B. Luard Selby, an accomplished musician, who has written some admirable chamber music and considerably increased the repertory of organists. The "Idyle" is a poetically conceived movement of meditative character. It possesses little distinctiveness, but it is music which appeals to the cultured listener and leaves a pleasant impression. An admirable performance was given of Weber's Overture to "Euryanthe," and a memorable incident of the evening was the dramatic declamation by Mr. Henschel of Saul's dream from the oratorio "King Saul," by Dr. Hubert Parry, who conducted the excerpt, which may be said to be the finest portion of this remarkable work.

The last performance but one of the present series took place on the 8th ult., and was opened by an excellent rendering of Mozart's Overture to "The Magic Flute." This was followed by Beethoven's Violin Concerto in D (Op. 61), the solo part of which was played by Mr. Maurice Sons, who has great technical ability and phrases with artistic intelligence; the tone he produces from his instrument is, however, somewhat thin. Haydn's bright and inspiriting Symphony in G (No. 13 of Breitkopf and Härtel's edition) was admirably played, and formed a striking contrast to the last work on the programme. This was Liszt's "Tasso — Lamento e Trionfo," the second of the twelve symphonic poems written by this composer, and in the opinion of many one of the finest. It is certainly highly characteristic of Liszt's method and style, and its brilliant and picturesque orchestration was most effectively set forth on this occasion.

QUEEN'S HALL SYMPHONY CONCERTS.

The fourth performance of this excellent series of Concerts took place on February 27, when were played, for the first time in England, a "Tragic Symphony" (Op. 40) by Felix Draeseke and the Introduction to Act 2 from Humperdinck's opera "Die Königskinder." The composer of the first-named work was born at Coburg in 1835, and has written three symphonies, two operas, a requiem, a cantata, a violin concerto, two string quartets, and a couple of overtures. He must therefore be accepted as a writer of considerable experience, which indeed his work, with regard to employment of the various resources of his art, proves him to be. Unfortunately, however, the thematic material is not sufficiently distinctive or significant for the elaborate treatment it receives, and as a consequence the worst of all musical tragedies results—wearisomeness to the listener. In decided and very welcome contrast was Humperdinck's "Introduction," which, in spite of the tragic story with which it is connected, is of the gayest and liveliest description, and possesses much of the naïve charm which is such a distinguishing feature of the composer's opera "Hänsel and Gretel." The other orchestral works were by Wagner, and comprised the Overture to "The Flying Dutchman," a selection from "Die Meistersinger," the Prelude to "Parsifal," and the Overture to "Tännhauser," all of which were interpreted in a manner that fully maintained the reputation which Mr. Wood's fine orchestra had previously acquired.

The Concert on the 20th ult. included the first performance in England of César Franck's symphonic poem "Le Chasseur Maudit." This work was originally produced at a Pasdeloup Concert in 1884, and is founded on Bürger's ballad "Der Wilde Jaeger." The score is prefaced by a brief summary of the gruesome story, and each of the five paragraphs is musically illustrated in as many sections of the work. It is programme music of the most direct and clearest kind, and leaves no doubt as to its meaning and connection with the text it illustrates. In common with the other works by this composer, the conception is lofty, the expression earnest, and the workmanship masterly. To not a few in the audience, however, the chief interest of the afternoon was centred in Tschaïkowsky's Fifth Symphony in E minor, which was played at one of the "Nikisch" Concerts on June 29, 1895. The work grows more fascinating on further acquaintance, and particularly by the discovery of Mr. E. F. Jacques, the writer of the historical and analytical programme, that the most important theme of the work, which is heard in each movement and is especially prominent in the Finale, bears a "striking resemblance to the opening phrase of the Trio of Chopin's Polonaise in E flat minor (Op. 26, No. 2)—itself said to be founded on a Polish Death Song." Mr. Jacques has also noted that "the first two bars of the chief subject of the Allegro are found in a Polish folk-song, 'Mialem ja kochanke jux nie mam nic,' classed under the head of 'Love songs of serious character.'" These facts, combined with the tragic nature of the music, seem to indicate that the symphony has a poetic basis connected in some way with Poland. The work should be heard again, and many times, for it is a worthy companion of the magnificent "Pathetic" Symphony. The modern Russian school was also represented by Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Capriccio Espagnol" (Op. 34), a thoroughly characteristic suite in five movements. The other orchestral works were Berlioz's "Marche Hongroise," Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyries"—who might be left in peace for a little while with advantage to their reputation—and an orchestral arrangement, by H. Esser, of Bach's fine Organ Toccata in F, to which procedure exception must be taken as perfectly unnecessary and absolutely unwarrantable.

QUEEN'S HALL PROMENADE CONCERTS.

Mr. Newman's Saturday evening Promenade Concerts, at the Queen's Hall, have been continued with undiminished artistic success and acceptance to large audiences. An excellent interpretation of a Wagner programme was given on February 27, much interest being attached to the performance of an orchestral arrangement by Müller Berghaus of the Pianoforte Album Sonata composed in 1853, and Isabella's song "Kennst du das Leid," from the opera "Das Liebesverbot," performed once at Magdeburg in 1836. The air, which was effectively sung by Miss Lucile Hill, contains several indications of Wagner's dawning genius, and in one of the phrases the well-known Wagnerian "turn" is heard as an integral portion of the music.

The Concert on the 6th ult. was notable for a remarkably impressive rendering of Tschaïkowsky's Sixth Symphony in B minor, commonly known as the "Pathetic." A very pleasing novelty was a "Liebeslied" for orchestra by Miss Dora Bright, a graceful and melodious piece scored in a picturesque and refined manner.

On the 13th ult. a very fine performance was given of Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, and a new Ballade for violin and orchestra, by Miss Maud Matras, was produced. This lady was born in 1876, and her compositions include a "Rêverie Sympathétique" for violin, two "Pastorals" and a Minuet for pianoforte, and several vocal pieces. The Ballade is in two movements, an Andante in B flat and an Allegro vivace appassionata in D minor, both of which are based upon subjects possessing much charm and individuality. Their development is terse and well knit, and the scoring shows an admirable sense of balance of tone and picturesque effect. The solo part is well laid out for the violin, and the work as a whole possesses character and distinctiveness which justifies pleasant anticipations of Miss Matras's future compositions. Mr. Arthur W. Payne, the principal violinist of the orchestra, played the solo portion with expression and brilliancy, his great skill as an executant being also advantageously displayed in Ferdinand David's Fifth Concerto for violin and orchestra in D minor (Op. 35), a work of great merit. Another novelty at this Concert was the first performance in England of a "Fantasia Hongroise" by an Italian music publisher, who writes under the nom de plume of "J. Burgmein." This work possesses little originality, being chiefly composed of the idiomatic musical forms of expression common to the Hungarian school; it is, however, scored with some skill, and is brilliant and effective.

No actual novelty was produced on the 20th ult., but Humperdinck's Introduction to Act 2 of "Die Königskinder," the latest opera by this composer, was played for the second time under Mr. Wood's direction, and improved on further acquaintance. Another interesting piece was Mr. F. Cowen's clever and graceful Suite "In Fairyland," which has not been heard in London since its production at a Philharmonic Concert in May last. Both these works and several others, including Beethoven's Overture to Goethe's drama "Egmont," were interpreted with the verve and precision which is now expected from Mr. Wood's fine body of instrumentalists. The solo vocalists have included Miss Lucile Hall, Miss Helen Jaxon, a very promising young soprano; Miss Maggie Davies, Mdlle. Amelia Sinico, Mr. Philip Brozel, and Mr. Herbert Grover. Mr. Frostick and another young violinist of great promise, Mr. Philip M. Cathie, have also played with a notable success that indicates how valuable these Concerts are likely to prove in the encouragement of young English talent.

WAGNER CONCERT.

The first of the present series of Wagner Concerts took place on the 16th ult., at the Queen's Hall. Although these performances are still called after the name of the Bayreuth master, the programmes are rapidly becoming of a miscellaneous character. On the 16th ult. the scheme was headed with Mozart's Symphony in G minor, the second of the three written between June 26 and August 10, in 1788. Herr Mottl's reading of this beautiful work was thoroughly in accord with the spirit of the music. The greatest attention was paid to detail, and the wind parts, particularly in the first three movements, were rendered with the utmost finish and delicacy. The last number was played with due dramatic emphasis, and the interpretation in its entirety was one of memorable excellence. Very different in style was the performance of Liszt's "Hungarian" Rhapsody in F minor. This was played with a command of rubato and a dashing brilliancy which can only be compared to the virtuoso effects sometimes indulged in by great solo executants. Between these works was placed the charming duet "You are sighing, Madame?" from Berlioz's opera "Beatrice and Benedict." The number was expressively sung by Frau Mottl and Fräulein Tomschik, but some of the charm of the music was lost by a German instead of the original French text being used. Wagner was introduced in the second part of the programme, which consisted of excerpts from "Die Götterdämmerung," comprising the "Rhine Journey," "Hagen's Watch," the scene between Brünnhilde and Waltraute, and the wondrously impressive music which follows the murder of Siegfried. The vocal parts in this selection were intelligently sustained by Frau Mottl, Fräulein Tomschik, and Mr. Lempriere Pringle, but all the skill of these artists could not prevent much of the music being ineffective in the concert-room. The orchestral portion was finely played, some of the effects produced in certain passages of Siegfried's death music being magnificent.

CRYSTAL PALACE CONCERTS.

The commemorative Concert of the 100th anniversary of the birthday of Franz Schubert was held on February 27, and the selection and its interpretation were fully worthy of the occasion. The performance possessed peculiar significance, for it was in the Sydenham Concert-room that English music-lovers first learnt to know Schubert's orchestral works, and that the first performances were given in this country of the great Symphony in C, the "Unfinished" Symphony in B minor, the "Rosamunde" music, the "Alfonso and Estrella" and "Fierrabras" overtures, and other masterpieces now familiar to concert-goers. It is well to call to mind these facts, for the debt of gratitude due to Sir George Grove and Mr. Manns for the accomplishment of these good deeds in the cause of art should not be forgotten. The programme consisted of a selection from the music to "Rosamunde," which included the Romance "Der Vollmond strahlt" and the Shepherds' Chorus; the Scena for baritone and orchestra, from the Easter cantata "Lazarus"; an arrangement for tenor, chorus, and orchestra by Liszt of "Jehovah," originally composed for tenor solo, with pianoforte accompaniment; a representative selection of songs, and the great Symphony in C. The soloists were Miss Margarethe Petersen, Mr. Edward Lloyd, and Mr. Arthur Ferguson. The orchestra seemed to realise the significance of the occasion, and may be said never to have played better, the interpretation of the Symphony being simply magnificent.

Much interest was also attached to the Concert on the following week, when the first performance was given in England of Robert Strauss's tone poem, "Thus spake Zarathustra." This is the latest utterance of importance by this composer, the score having been finished August 24, 1896. It is laid out for an orchestra of Wagnerian proportions and the writing is of the most elaborate and complex nature. The work may be briefly described as a musical commentary on a philosophical work by Friedrich Nietzsche, the title of the book being adopted for the tone poem. The result of such a basis for musical inspiration is, as might be expected, not satisfactory, and although the score contains some fine passages, the impression left on the hearer is regret that so much labour and talent should have been lavished on such an uncongenial subject. Acknowledgment is due, however, to Mr. Manns for the labour the production of the work must have entailed. Miss Ilona Eibenschütz gave a neat rendering of the solo part of Schumann's Pianoforte Concerto in A minor (Op. 54), and the vocalist was Mr. Plunket Greene.

The Concert on the 13th ult. was distinguished by the appearance of Dr. Joachim—who played magnificently in Beethoven's Violin Concerto, and subsequently gave a masterly interpretation of Bach's Chaconne in D minor—and by the production of a new orchestral suite, entitled "Highland Memories" (Op. 30), by Mr. Hamish MacCunn. This consists of three numbers, which are severally entitled "By the Burnside," "On the Loch," and "A Harvest Dance," titles which are fairly descriptive of the character of the respective movements. The music is unpretentious, but tastefully written, and it possesses a charm and grace that should cause the Suite to be heard often in our concert-rooms. Mrs. Hutchinson sang some songs, and a fine interpretation of Beethoven's Seventh Symphony in A concluded the afternoon.

On the 20th ult. M. Paderewski was the soloist in Chopin's Concerto in F minor and in Liszt's Concerto in E flat. The first was played from a new version by Herr Burmeister, who has enriched the orchestral part in a judicious manner, and with more satisfactory results than accrue from Klindworth's similar interference with the composer's original work. M. Paderewski played with great artistic taste and the utmost brilliancy in both works, and Liszt's inspiriting music has seldom been more effectively interpreted. The vocalist was Mdlle. Martha Möller, and the programme was completed by Beethoven's "Pastoral" Symphony and Dvorák's concert-overture "Carneval," the second of the three overtures published together in 1893.

MONDAY AND SATURDAY POPULAR CONCERTS.

The record of these performances must commence with the Concert of February 22, at which Sgambati's String Quartet in C sharp minor (Op. 17) was introduced for the first time. The programme annotator rightly says that the composer "appears to aim less at absolute beauty than at diversity of structure and character. It abounds in varied tempi, rhythms, figuration, and expression." These words are true, and we cannot but think that the Italian musician would have done better not to have sought so freely to adopt the methods of the modern and advanced school of Germany, but to have kept himself to the more graceful Italian style.

Mr. Joachim made his first appearance this season at the Monday Concert of the 1st ult., and quickly proved by his share in the performance of Beethoven's "Rasoumowski" Quartet in C (Op. 59, No. 3) that the playing of the great Hungarian artist has not in the least deteriorated, as it was, if possible, more majestic than ever. In Brahms's Duet Sonata in G for pianoforte and violin (Op. 78), Mr. Joachim had a worthy coadjutor in Miss Fanny Davies.

A familiar programme, about which nothing need be said, except to note the regrettable absence of Signor Piatti, owing to illness, was presented on the following Saturday. However, Mr. Paul Ludwig showed himself a most efficient substitute as the violoncellist at this and following Concerts. Nor is there anything special to record concerning the Concert of Monday, the 8th ult.

On Saturday afternoon, the 13th ult., Lady Hallé, who was once more the leading violinist, owing to Mr. Joachim's engagement at the Crystal Palace, introduced a Sérénade Mélancolique by Tschaïkowsky, originally written for violin and orchestra. But, of course, the accompaniments of this characteristic piece by the deceased Russian composer were on this occasion played on the pianoforte by Mr. Henry Bird, who proved himself, as he always does, a faultless accompanist.

That most promising young pianist, Miss Katie Goodson, gave an admirable performance of Mendelssohn's Variations Sérieuses on Monday, the 15th ult. Mrs. Helen Trust contributed two charming ditties by Max Stange and an old French song, "Plainte de la Bergère."

There is little to be said concerning the last two Concerts we can note this month. That of Saturday, the 20th ult., included familiar works by Beethoven, Schumann, and Brahms, with Lady Hallé as leader and Miss Eibenschütz as the pianist. A selection of five of Robert Franz's beautiful songs were tastefully rendered by Miss Agnes Witting. On the following Monday Lady Hallé repeated Tschaïkowsky's impressive Sérénade Mélancolique, and Slavonic music, on which there seems to be a run just at present, was further represented by songs composed by Tschaïkowsky, Varlamoff, and Dvorák, which were acceptably rendered by Miss Sarah Berry.

SUNDAY CONCERTS.

The Sunday afternoon Orchestral Concerts, conducted by Mr. Randegger, at the Queen's Hall, have maintained their executive excellence and popularity. Beethoven's First Symphony, Mendelssohn's "Scotch" Symphony, and the attractive fourth work in this form by Dvorák have been played, with many other orchestral compositions of equal artistic importance. On the 21st ult. a brilliant and expressive Violin Concerto in D minor (Op. 26), by M. Emil Sauret, was heard, probably for the first time in London, the solo part being rendered with the utmost effect by the composer. The vocalists have been Miss Marie Elba, Madame Marie Duma, Madame Belle Cole, and Mr. William Ludwig; and the solo instrumentalists, Miss Toni Tholfus, Miss Adela Verne, M. Emil Sauret, and Mr. Ferdinand Weist-Hill.

Much musical interest has been attached to the programmes of the Chamber Concerts held in the evening, in the Queen's (Small) Hall. Señor Arbos and Messrs. Ferdinand Weist-Hill, Alfred Hobday, and W. H. Squire have given excellent interpretations of a commendable selection of Quartets by the great masters, and instrumental assistance has been given by Madame Amina Goodwin, Madame Ethel Sharpe, and Mrs. Norman Salmond. Vocal music has been interpreted by Miss Hulda Simons, Miss Kate Cove, Miss Maggie Davies, Mr. Reginald Brophy, and Mr. W. A. Peterkin.

The most remarkable performances, under the direction of Mr. Churchill Sibley, of the Sunday League, at the Queen's Hall, on Sunday evenings, have been those of Verdi's "Requiem," on the 7th ult., and Mendelssohn's "Elijah," on the following Sunday. The principal soloists in the former work were Madame Duma, Madame Belle Cole, Mr. Iver McKay, and Mr. Bantock Pierpoint; and in the oratorio, Madame Medora Henson, Madame Marian McKenzie, Mr. E. Branscombe, and Mr. Watkin Mills, able assistance being also given by Miss Gwen Cosslett, Miss Maud Robertson, Mr. T. Wills Page, and Mr. W. L. Cockburn.

The Sunday Concerts at the Royal Albert Hall have been distinguished by the admirable orchestral playing of the Royal Artillery Band, conducted by Cavaliere L. Zavertal. The programmes have also been of an attractive character, and have included some excellent singing by well-known artists and performances on the great organ.

THURSDAY SUBSCRIPTION CONCERTS.

In commencing another series of these Concerts of chamber music, Mr. Hans Brousil, the violoncellist, has adhered to the principle of devoting the first part of each programme to one master, whilst drawing from various composers for the remaining section. For the inaugural selection, on the 4th ult., at Queen's (Small) Hall, Mr. Brousil relied upon Beethoven, and with Messrs. Emile Sauret, Wallace Sutcliff, J. H. Waud, G. A. Clinton, E. F. James, and A. Borsdorf as companions, gave a satisfactory performance of the always acceptable Septet. The vocalist was Madame Bertha Moore, who did justice to "Ich liebe dich." In the second part both Messrs. Sauret and Brousil played solo pieces.

Homage was paid to Brahms on the 18th ult. The Trio in C minor (Op. 101) obtained worthy interpretation from Miss Muriel Elliott, Messrs. Richard Gompertz and Hans Brousil. Between this and the other instrumental piece representative of the German master's genius, the Second Rhapsody for pianoforte (entrusted to Miss Elliott), came the songs "Feldeinsamkeit" (No. 2, Op. 86) and "Es schäuen die Blumen" (No. 3, Op. 96), rendered with considerable taste by Miss Fillünger. Subsequently this expressive vocalist gave, in her best manner, Schubert's setting of "Who is Sylvia?" and Schumann's "Widmung." With a degree of finish that would have delighted the composer, Mr. Gompertz played the Romance from Joachim's "Hungarian" Concerto, and Miss Elliott played for pianoforte solo Chopin's Ballade in A flat. A bright performance by Mr. Brousil of Piatti's "Bergamasca" (Op. 14) ended the agreeable programme.

THE BOHEMIAN QUARTET.

A memorable feature of the present season to lovers of chamber music will be the recent performances of "The Bohemian String Quartet." This party, which had previously acquired considerable Continental reputation, was founded by Herr Hanus Wihan, the violoncellist of the company, of which the other members are Karel Hoffmann (first violin), Josef Suk (second violin), and Oskar Nedbal (viola). They gave their first Concert in London on February 19, at the Queen's (Small) Hall, when the programme consisted of Schubert's Posthumous Quartet in D minor, Dvorák's Quartet in G (Op. 78), and Beethoven's Quartet in F (Op. 18); the interpretations of which, particularly of Dvorák's Quartet, showed them to be exceptionally finished ensemble players. A second Concert was given on the following Tuesday afternoon, when Quartets in A minor, E minor, and F (Op. 59, No. 1), respectively by Schubert, Smetana, and Beethoven, were rendered with a unanimity of attack and expression that confirmed the favourable opinions formed at the previous performance. The accommodation of the Queen's (Small) Hall proving too limited for the large attendance, a third Concert was given, on the 8th ult., at St. James's Hall, the programme on this occasion consisting of Haydn's Quartet in D minor, Dvorák's Quartet in A flat (Op. 15), and Brahms's Quintet in F minor (Op. 34), the pianoforte part in the last-named work being admirably rendered by Miss Fanny Davies. As at the previous performances, the party was most successful in its interpretation of Slavonic music, the fervour and rapid changes of sentiment and tempo of which were expressed with unsurpassable fidelity and perfection of detail. A fourth Concert was given at the same Hall, on the 15th ult. At this were played Brahms's Quartet in A minor (Op. 51, No. 2), Beethoven's Quartet in F minor (Op. 95), and a new Quartet in B flat (Op. 11), by Josef Suk, the last-named work being performed on this occasion for the first time in England. This proved to be a very attractive feature. The first movement is the best, both with regard to the thematic material and its development, which show the ability to invent expressive melody and considerable command of contrapuntal resource. The music, moreover, is instinct with an exuberance and fervour which makes it fascinating to the listener. The Intermezzo, which follows, is based upon an ear-catching melody of folk-song character, and it so pleased the audience that an endeavour was made to have the movement repeated. The Adagio is less satisfactory. It is rhapsodical in form, and gives the impression that the composer has not quite succeeded in expressing that which he desired. The Finale is an Allegro giocoso of the liveliest description, and concludes the work in a most vivacious and effective manner. The music was played to perfection by the composer and his accomplished associates, its Slavonic spirit being expressed with the utmost sympathy. A very fine performance was also given of Brahms's Quartet in A minor (Op. 51, No. 2), the many beauties of which were set forth with unsurpassable fidelity and comprehension of their character. The afternoon was concluded with a masterly interpretation of Beethoven's magnificent Quartet in F minor (Op. 95). The last Concert of the series took place on the 23rd ult., when the selection consisted of Mozart's Quartet in D, No. 20 of Breitkopf and Härtel's edition; Schumann's Quartet in F (Op. 41, No. 2), and Dvorák's Quintet in A Op. 81). The romanticism of Schumann's work was very effectively expressed and the ensemble playing very fine, but, as on previous occasions, the greatest success was achieved in the music of Slavonic character, and Dvorák's emotional and inspiriting Quintet has probably never had a finer interpretation, no little of the merit of which must in fairness be ascribed to the brilliant manner in which the pianoforte part was rendered by Miss Fanny Davies.

THE WALENN QUARTET.

Much interest was attached to the fifth of Messrs. Walenn's Chamber Concerts, which took place on the 23rd ult., at the Queen's (Small) Hall, by the performance on this occasion, for the first time in London, of a Trio in D minor for pianoforte, violin, and violoncello (Op. 107), by M. E. Bossi, a professor of composition at the Bologna Conservatoire. The work shows unmistakably that its composer is an accomplished and talented musician. The opening and closing movements are based upon excellent thematic material, which is developed in a vigorous and very effective manner. The slow movement is entitled "Dialogo," which fairly indicates its character. It is very melodious and expressive, and contains an impassioned climax. The Scherzo is short and humorous, and leads without break into the Finale. The work was effectively rendered by Miss Dora Bright, Mr. Gerald and Mr. Herbert Walenn, these artists subsequently playing an excellent selection of music by Marcello-Piatti, Chopin, and Brahms-Joachim. The vocalists were Miss Thelma Knutsson and Mr. Arthur Walenn.

VARIOUS RECITALS.

Mr. Mark Hambourg, who came to London a few years ago as a juvenile prodigy, is now developing into an accomplished artist. This was clearly evinced by his Pianoforte Recital at the Queen's Hall, on the 2nd ult. Feeling and expression will come to him in due course, but already Mr. Hambourg is a master of the keyboard. This was clearly demonstrated by his rendering of Schumann's by no means easy "Faschingsschwank aus Wien," Beethoven's Sonata in E flat (Op. 31, No. 3), Brahms's Variations on a Theme by Paganini, and Chopin's Sonata in B flat minor (Op. 35).

The fourth Violin Recital of Mr. Theodore Werner, on the 4th ult., was noteworthy for the revival of a very pleasant example of the old violin school—namely, a Sonata in D, by Nardini, a clever pupil of the celebrated Tartini. A good performance was given, by excellent artists, of Beethoven's Septet. A further series of these agreeable Recitals should be given by Mr. Werner next winter.

Miss Amy Hare, who gave a well attended Pianoforte Recital, on the 9th ult., at St. James's Hall, is an executant of no mean capacity. Though her style is somewhat cold, her technique is sound, as was proved by her rendering of Haydn's Variations in F minor, Liszt's rarely played "Ricordanza," and Schubert's terribly difficult "Wanderer" Fantasia (Op. 15). Miss Amy Hare was joined by M. Johannes Wolff in Grieg's Sonata for pianoforte and violin in C minor (Op. 45).

Messrs. Plunket Greene and Leonard Borwick gave their last Song and Pianoforte Recital for the present season on Friday afternoon, the 5th ult. They offered as usual a most interesting programme, and it was pleasant to note that musical amateurs can be drawn in large numbers to entertainments very superior to ordinary ballad concerts. The two artists we have named avoid stereotyped compositions, and present the public with songs and pieces for the most part unfamiliar, but not on that account unworthy of performance. It may be hoped that Messrs. Greene and Borwick will see their way to give a further series of Recitals in the ensuing autumn.

A Pianoforte Recital, consisting wholly of compositions by Brahms, was given by Miss Flora Eibenschütz, at St. James's Hall, on Friday afternoon, February 26. It was a somewhat arduous undertaking, but it was for the most part carried through in a very praiseworthy manner. We cannot altogether approve of the rendering by Miss Eibenschütz of the Rhapsodie in G minor (Op. 79), as it was taken at too quick a pace; but the early Sonata in F minor (Op. 5), the Ballade in B major (Op. 10), the Variations and Fugue on a theme by Handel (Op. 24), and various minor pieces were interpreted in a manner almost faultless.

Mr. Henri Kowalski, who is no stranger to London, took part with Miss Rosa Bird, who styles herself a "soprano sfogato," in a Pianoforte and Song Recital at St. James's Hall, on Tuesday afternoon, the 16th ult. Mr. Kowalski is not only a talented pianist, but a meritorious composer of light pianoforte pieces, and, on this occasion, he, perhaps wisely, did not include any works of length in his programme. Miss Rosa Bird was commendable in songs by Sullivan, Bishop, Schubert, and Meyerbeer.

Miss Margaret Wild and Mr. Robert Hausmann, assisted by Mrs. Speyer-Kufferath, an agreeable vocalist, gave a Concert of small proportions, at St. James's Hall, on Thursday afternoon, the 11th ult. The concert-givers rendered effectively familiar Sonatas by Beethoven and Brahms, as well as "Stücke im Volkston," Nos. 1, 2, and 4, by Schumann; and Mrs. Speyer-Kufferath's vocal contributions were three songs by Brahms and three by Schumann.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

A meritorious Chamber Concert was given on the 1st ult., by the students of the Royal Academy of Music, at St. James's Hall. The most important works on the programme were Mendelssohn's Sonata in D for pianoforte and violoncello, the Scherzo and Allegretto from Schubert's String Quintet in C (Op. 163), and Svendsen's Octet in A minor, the last-named being played with admirable precision by the string ensemble class, under the conductorship of Mr. Sauret. Miss Ella Bull and Miss Florence Dawes played pianoforte pieces in a promising manner, and Messrs. Miles, Hurman, Addison, and Withers were the executants of the first movement of a Quartet in A by Mr. Percy H. Miles. The most successful of the vocalists was Mr. Haigh Jackson, who sang Goring Thomas's "Memories" with great taste. Miss Clara Williams and Mrs. Franks rendered Goetz's duet, "Still wie die Nacht," with much charm of expression, and other singers were Miss Ada Kempton and Mr. R. Witworth Mitton. A setting of three Cavalier songs, by Mr. Herbert W. Ivey, for tenor and baritone solo and male chorus, proved to be neatly written, but scarcely reflective of the spirit of the text. The solo parts were sung by Mr. Albert Bartleet and Mr. F. Baring Ranalow. The male choir were also heard in Grieg's "Land Ho!" the solo of which was sung by Mr. J. T. Watkins, and to the female choir was assigned Tschaïkowsky's choral setting of "Nature and Love," the soloists in which were the Misses Drinkwater, Hensler, and Handcock. The last-named work has been unjustly neglected, and it is to be hoped that its performance on this occasion will induce conductors of choral societies to cause it to be more frequently heard.

The students of the Royal Academy gave an admirable Concert on the 24th ult., at the Imperial Institute, attractive pieces on the programme being the beautiful vocal quartet, "Who goes home," and the chorus, "The Mistress we adore," from Sir A. C. Mackenzie's comic opera "His Majesty." The quartet was effectively sung by Miss Clara Williams, Mrs. Julia Franks, Mr. Haigh Jackson, and Mr. Frederick Ranalow, and the chorus was brightly rendered. The male choir gave a spirited version of Mendelssohn's "Vintage Song" and Jensen's "The Feast of Adonis," and two part-songs were excellently sung by the choir. Some tasteful pianoforte playing was contributed by Miss Marguerite Elzy, and violin and violoncello pieces were rendered by Miss M. Hayward and Miss M. Mukle respectively in a promising manner. Some songs were also sung by Miss Jane Spicer and Mr. Robert Radford. Mr. H. R. Eyers conducted.

The following competitions have been held during March:—On the 8th ult., the Goldberg Prize was awarded to Jane Spicer (of London), the examiners highly commending Lizzie Davies; on the 15th ult., the Llewelyn Thomas Prize was awarded to Frances McCulloch (of Liverpool) and the Evill Prize to David Baxter (of Dundee); on the 22nd ult., the Robert Cocks and Co. Prize was awarded to George D. Cunningham (of London), the examiner highly commending Quintus S. H. James.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

Some excellent work was done at the pupils' concerts given during the last few weeks. At the Chamber Concert of February 25, Beethoven's E flat Trio was played with considerable refinement by Marjorie Richardson, Samuel Grimson, and Ethel Uhlhorn Zillhardt; and Mendelssohn's String Quartet in E minor with exceptional vigour and "go" by William Read, C. Barré Squire, Edward Behr, and R. Purcell Jones. In fact, this was the best piece of ensemble playing we have heard at the College for some time, the young leader especially distinguishing himself by his fearless attack, perfect intonation, and dashing execution. Rosina Cerasoli gave a singularly able performance of Schumann's Allegro in B minor for pianoforte (Op. 8), while Robert Grimson and Edward Mason shared the honour of introducing a Suite for two violoncellos by Popper. They played well enough, but are there no other composers for the violoncello than the irrepressible, irritating Popper? Alice M. Hayden sang Bizet's "L'Hôtesse Arabe" with good intonation but throaty production. On the other hand, Hilda Foster's refined singing of Schumann's "Du bist wie eine Blume" and Schubert's "Who is Sylvia?" revealed natural gifts of a high order, her pure sympathetic voice and effortless production partaking of the "unpremeditated art" of a born singer.

At the following Concert, on the 10th ult., the ensemble pieces were Schubert's B flat Pianoforte Trio, charmingly played by Maud Gay, Mary Noverre, and Robert Grimson, and Brahms's Sextet in the same key. The interpreters of the latter work were Otie Chew, Samuel Grimson, Edward Behr, Maud Branwell, R. Purcell Jones, and Robert Grimson. Apart from a too hurried performance, the players deserve commendation for showing earnestness and a youthful enthusiasm delightful to behold. Ernest Swan, in two of Mendelssohn's Characteristic Pieces for the pianoforte (Op. 7), and C. Barré Squire, in Bruch's Violin Romance in A minor, displayed talent, but nervousness evidently caused the young violinist to adopt a too quick tempo. The singers were Athanasius Treweek, a genuine basso profundo, Esther Turner, and Rosina Beynon; but their training seemed not yet sufficiently advanced to enable them to do justice to their several tasks. The last Concert of the term was, as usual, orchestral. It took place in St. James's Hall, on the 19th ult.; there was good reason for the enthusiasm displayed by the audience, for the orchestra has never played better—in fact, the performance of Tschaïkowsky's very difficult Fantasia, "Francesca da Rimini," was extremely fine, even if judged by the highest standard. This work was new to London, and, to judge from its reception, it scored a great success. There is no denying the graphic power of the music, which attempts the impossible task of suggesting the awful scenes described in Dante's "Inferno" (Canto 5). The shrieking, wailing, and moaning of the damned, the howling of the "viewless winds," &c., are all reproduced with complete disregard of the long-suffering listener's tympanum and nerves. True, the middle portion, describing the passage beginning with the famous "Nessun maggior dolore" and dealing with the unfortunate lovers Beatrice and Paolo, is not devoid of some beauty. It is certainly very impassioned. But we confess that the work, which began by exciting us, bored us more and more as it proceeded. The orchestra also played, "for the first time in London," an Overture (in E minor, No. 7) by Schubert, a weak work, which lacks even the Schubertian quality of charm; and Smetana's merry "Lustspiel" Overture. That remarkable young fiddler, Samuel Grimson, played the exceedingly difficult and abnormally long Hungarian Concerto by Joachim with wonderfully finished technique, and, in the Romance, with good expression. Emlyn Davies, Helen Jaxon, and Muriel Foster sang, the first-named a dull air from Spohr's forgotten opera "Faust"; the ladies, Handel's "Let the bright Seraphim" and Goring Thomas's "My heart is weary" ("Nadeshda") respectively. Professor Stanford conducted, as usual.

TRINITY COLLEGE CONCERTS.

The Institution in Mandeville Place has exhibited notable activity during the month. In the concert-room, on the 9th ult., an interesting Bach Recital was given by Messrs. G. and H. Saint-George, whose talents were displayed to special advantage in the Concerto in D minor for two violins and in the Sonata in C major. Miss Lilly von Kornatzki assisted at the pianoforte. Tschaïkowsky's serenade "In the balmy light" and Chaminade's air "The Silver Ring" were tastefully sung by Miss H. Vivienne Ambrose.

Avowedly with the view of demonstrating the beauty and resources of the viola d'amore and the viola da gamba, Messrs. G. and H. Saint-George organised two Concerts, the first of which was held on the 17th ult. The opening piece was a Sonata in seven movements for two viole da gamba, by Aug. Kühnel, a seventeenth century composer. This work, which kindled much interest, was played with spirit by Messrs. H. Saint-George and E. van der Straeten, the accompaniment, constructed on the original bass, being by the latter. Correspondingly attractive to the majority of the listeners was a Sonata for viola d'amore, by F. W. Rust, daintily rendered by Mr. G. Saint-George, who was responsible for the accompaniment. As solos the Messrs. Saint-George contributed some telling pieces from their own pens. Miss Lilly von Kornatzki ably acquitted herself in pianoforte compositions, and Mdlle. Marie de Rohan's vocal efficiency pleasantly relieved the proceedings.

The students and choir of the College gave an interesting Concert at St. Martin's Town Hall on the 23rd ult., under the conductorship of Dr. Henry J. Pringuer, who has lately re-organised the choral body. The success of his exertions was manifested in Schubert's "The Song of Miriam" (with the original accompaniment for pianoforte), Gaul's "The Silent Land," Pearsall's "When Allan-a-Dale," Eaton Faning's "Daybreak" and "Song of the Vikings," Byrd's "While the bright sun," and Weelkes's "In pride of May," each of which was rendered steadily and with genuine taste. Mr. A. W. Kettelby's Quintet for oboe, clarinet, bassoon, horn, and pianoforte, which recently won the Costa Prize, was performed for the first time, and secured the approval due to a spirited and effective composition. The executants were Messrs. F. T. Lowden, E. H. Scott, W. Riches, W. C. Hayter, and the composer, the latter at the pianoforte. Misses Bessie Pridham, Suzanne Stokvis, H. Vivienne Ambrose, and Mr. Richard F. Tate were the solo vocalists, and Miss Lilly Evans neatly played Vieuxtemps's Ballade and Polonaise for violin.

HIGHBURY PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

The able body of vocalists and instrumentalists conducted by Mr. G. H. Betjemann gave an exceedingly interesting performance of "Athalie," at the Highbury Athenæum, on the 9th ult. Since Mendelssohn's incidental music to Racine's tragedy was introduced to London by the Philharmonic Society in 1849—two years after it had been performed before the Queen at Windsor Castle—it has been the custom in England to offer little more of the text than is absolutely necessary to usher in the choruses, the "War March of the Priests," and other musical numbers that on this side of the Channel have sustained interest in the French classic. But the Highbury Philharmonic Society determined to test the effect of giving more of the original play—of presenting such a version as Mendelssohn had in his mind when penning the noble choruses "Heaven and the earth display," "O Sinai, thou theme of never-ending story," "What star in its glory upriseth?" and "Where are the shafts Thou employest?" The result was success far exceeding the most sanguine expectations. These numbers, for which the restored dramatic passages afforded adequate preparation, proved much more telling than before, inasmuch as their appropriateness was apparent to the whole of the audience instead of being restricted to the few who were acquainted with Racine's tragedy. The course adopted by Mr. Betjemann to enable Mendelssohn's inspiring and devotional music to be heard to the greatest advantage should henceforward be generally followed. The stirring speeches of Joad, the High Priest, were admirably declaimed by Mr. Charles Fry, who thus made his hundredth appearance as reciter in this work, and gave valuable assistance to Mr. Betjemann in the preparations for the performance under such unusual conditions. Madame Rose Dafforne (Mrs. Betjemann) delivered with convincing force the lines of Athalie, and the part of Abner obtained from Mr. Arthur Fayne the fullest significance. The secondary characters had satisfactory exponents in Misses Annie M. Child, May Cull, and Kate Reid Neill (who spoke the lines of the child-king Joash with charming simplicity), and Messrs. Adrian Harley and Percy Varley. Without exception the choruses were steadily sung, the band was on a corresponding level of excellence, and justice was done to the soli portions of the music by Miss Beatrice Stanley Lucas, Miss Gertrude Bevan, and Madame Dews. The performance was eminently honourable to all concerned.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.

The production, on February 24, at the above theatre, of an English version, by Mr. Arthur Sturgess, of MM. Ordonneau and Edmond Audran's comic opera "La Poupée" promises to be one of the chief successes of the present season. The libretto is frankly declared to be based upon "an impossible story," but it rationally accounts for so many diverting situations and humorous incidents, and lends itself so well to musical illustration, that one is almost persuaded that the "impossible" element is possible. The music, while unpretentious, possesses a melodic interest and graceful vivacity admirably in keeping with the spirit of the work. The most memorable numbers are Alesia's doll song in the second act, several lyrics sung by Lancelot and Father Maxime, and the monks' choruses in the first act, which were excellently rendered. The part of Alesia was cleverly impersonated by Mdlle. Alice Favier, whose gestures as the doll were very amusing, and who, moreover, sang with much taste. Mr. Courtice Pounds as Lancelot has seldom appeared to greater advantage, and Mr. Norman Salmond interpreted the music of Father Maxime with the utmost effect. Mr. Willie Edouin personated Hilarius with striking life-like individuality, and the other parts were capably sustained. An efficient orchestra was provided, under the conductorship of Mr. George Byng, and the dresses and scenery, particularly in the second act, were most effective.

THE MUSICAL ARTISTS' SOCIETY.

We regret that we are again unable to speak favourably of the performances by this Society. At the Concert given at St. Martin's Hall, on the 15th ult., we do not hesitate to say that anything so ineffective as the performance of Mr. Gerard F. Cobb's new Quartet we have rarely heard. The composer played the pianoforte part and he would have done well to entrust it to some professional pianist with a brilliant technique and a broad, effective style. As for the strings, they were in the hands of two ladies and a gentleman who shall be nameless. No doubt, like the American "Wild West" pianist, they "did their level best," but they should have left the work severely alone. The Quartet is formed on themes of considerable strength and beauty, but the working-out portions of the various movements appeared weak and dull. However, we prefer not to judge Mr. Cobb's latest effort until we have heard it adequately performed. The Concert opened with Mozart's Sonata in D for two pianofortes, effectively played by Misses Llewela Davies and Maude Wilson. "Herr" Karl Henkel essayed Sir A. C. Mackenzie's "Benedictus." He produced an unlovely, rasping tone on his G string, and, through accidentally omitting some bars, so completely bewildered his accompanist that for quite a considerable time he had to proceed minus accompaniment. Mr. Albert and Mr. Algernon Ashton played four pieces for violoncello and pianoforte by the last-named gentleman—viz., two Phantasiestücke (Op. 12) and a Gigue and Scherzo (Op. 84). The former were of but little interest, but the two movements from the latter Opus bore that stamp of perfect musicianship to be found in all Mr. Ashton's riper works. They were, moreover, highly effective and inspiriting. Mrs. Charlton T. Speer sang a tuneful, piquant setting, by Mr. Stewart Macpherson, of "What does little birdie say?" and a weak ballad by Mr. Courtney Gale, that gentleman joining the lady in a duet, "Life of my heart," by Mr. Charlton Speer, "effectively" written in the most approved pseudo-French ad captandum style. The programme was completed by Gade's "Novelletten" (Op. 29).

THE MUSICAL GUILD.

To those who, like ourselves, have regularly attended the Concerts of the above Society for a number of years, the announcement of their discontinuance after the present Easter season will have come with painful surprise mingled with genuine regret. We connect these excellent entertainments with many hours of the purest enjoyment of our art in its most intellectual, refining, and elevating form. If the performances given by the enthusiastic young English artists were rarely exciting or sensational, they were never unworthy of the many noble masterpieces presented to an indifferent public, while the majority rose to a very high level of excellence. But on this score we have nothing to add to what we said in our last issue. The reasons given for the present lamentable step are "the failure to obtain genuinely wide and substantial support" and "the ever-increasing difficulty of obtaining sufficient rehearsals, owing to the fact that the members have constantly to relinquish good paying engagements to attend rehearsals." In connection with the latter statement it must be borne in mind that for years the members not only received no fees for playing, but contributed towards defraying the expenses. Now the end has come it remains but for us to thank the members of the Guild for the enjoyment they have given us, and to wish them God-speed. We shall hold them in grateful remembrance. We can only quite briefly refer to the last three Concerts. On February 23 Dr. C. H. H. Parry's fine Partita in D minor for violin and pianoforte was beautifully played by Miss Isabella Donkersley and Miss Annie Fry; Mr. Julian Pascal gave a not altogether successful performance of Chopin's B flat minor Pianoforte Sonata, and songs by Mrs. Hutchinson and Brahms's Sextet in B flat completed the programme. On the 9th ult. a new String Quartet in D minor (Op. 64), by Professor C. V. Stanford, a masterly and effective work, was introduced by Messrs. Arthur Bent, Wallace Sutcliffe, Alfred Hobday, and Paul Ludwig, who gave a most excellent account of it. Schumann's "Märchenerzählungen" for clarinet and pianoforte, finely played by Messrs. C. Draper and Herbert F. Sharpe, and a Beethoven Trio were the other concerted pieces, while Mr. Walter Ford sang six songs with great refinement. The farewell Concert took place before a wretchedly small audience. Beethoven's String Quintet in C (Op. 29) and Schumann's Pianoforte Quintet were excellently played, the latter, especially, going with rare spirit and brilliancy. The performers were, in Beethoven's work, Miss Isabella Donkersley, Messrs. Wallace Sutcliffe, Percy Kearne (the able and enthusiastic Hon. Sec.), Ernest Tomlinson, and Arthur Williams; while that accomplished pianist, Miss Ethel Sharpe, did the fullest justice to the pianoforte part in Schumann's masterpiece; Miss Donkersley, Messrs. Sutcliffe, Tomlinson, and Williams being associated with her in what was one of the finest performances ever heard at these Concerts. Mr. Arthur Bent, who has shared with Miss Donkersley the arduous post of leader during many seasons of the Guild's Concerts, was heard at his very best in a Violin Sonata by Tartini, and Miss Lucia Fydell, a new singer with a fine, well-trained alto voice, gave great pleasure in a number of songs.

MUSICAL ASSOCIATION.

The fifth meeting of the present season of the Musical Association was held at the Royal College of Organists on the 9th ult., when Mr. George Langley read a paper entitled "The Triune Element in Beethoven, as specially exemplified by his Pianoforte Sonatas." The lecturer divided the various forms in which the triune element appeared into three classes, severally consisting of the repetition of a complete idea, repetition of a smaller section, and complex or modified repetition. An example of the first class was seen in the last eight bars of the exposition of the first sonata. Many other examples were given of this kind from other sonatas. In the second class the latter part of the repeated phrase was sometimes heard twice, and in the third division the repetition was still more modified by change of harmony and other devices. The method, however, although constantly employed up to and including the "Appassionata" Sonata in F minor (Op. 57), was not used in the subsequent works in this form. The lecturer had calculated that in the first twenty-three sonatas the device was apparent no less than 252 times. An interesting comparison was made with the sonatas of Clementi, Dussek, Haydn, Schubert, Mozart, and Hummel, from which it was shown that the nearest approach to Beethoven in this matter was Clementi, who, in his fifty-eight sonatas, introduced the triune element 110 times, the next in order being Schubert, whose eleven works in sonata form contained twenty-eight instances of triple repetition. The lecturer thought that the superiority of Beethoven's sonatas was in great measure due to this triune principle, which, however, was not so observable in his orchestral and chamber music. In the discussion which followed Mr. Southgate, who occupied the chair, Mr. J. S. Shedlock, Dr. Warriner, and Mr. Gilbert Webb expressed their doubts concerning Beethoven's employment of this device more than that of other idiomatic forms of musical expression. The meeting concluded with the exhibition and explanation by Mr. John C. Ward of his "Tonal Modulator," designed to facilitate reading at sight from the Staff Notation.

SOCIETY OF ARTS.

Mr. J. Spencer Curwen read an interesting paper, entitled "Music in London at the Queen's Accession," on the 17th ult., at the Society of Arts, Sir William C. F. Robinson occupying the chair. The lecturer said it was pleasant to recall the musical observances which welcomed the young Queen of 1837 to the throne. They were interesting not only as a proof of the loyalty of our fathers, but as shedding light upon the musical ideals and tastes of the period. The Queen was born at seven o'clock in the morning, and at ten minutes before that hour upon the day of her legal majority, May 24, 1837—William IV. still reigning—a party of thirty-seven gentlemen entered the enclosed area round Kensington Palace to serenade the Princess Victoria, heir-presumptive to the throne. Mr. Weippert was in command, and the party consisted of the band of the Italian Opera and four vocalists. The band probably played by themselves; the vocalists, true to old English habit, were glee singers, and they sang three glees, "Wake, royal maiden," "The fairest flower of May," and "Victoria's natal day," all composed by George Herbert Rodwell, a prominent musician of the time, the performance concluding with "God save the King." In social life music was not much cultivated. Nevertheless, it was highly esteemed by a few, and some high-class concerts were given in London to small and select audiences. In the first rank were the "Antient Concerts," the "Philharmonic," the "Società Armonica," an orchestral body, and some vocal concerts. Next to these came a group of societies, the greatest of them being the Sacred Harmonic Society, founded in 1834. Of the clubs that combined dining with music, there was the Madrigal Society, which was then the oldest musical organisation in Europe, having nearly reached its centenary. The dark period for English music, which began with the death of Purcell, was coming to an end. Two overtures by the young English school were played for the first time in 1837—Sterndale Bennett's "Naiades" and Macfarren's "Chevy Chase." Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" was performed at the Birmingham Festival, the English version of which, pianoforte score, was published by Alfred Novello at thirty-two shillings and the vocal parts at five shillings each! The most notable death of the year 1837 was that of Samuel Wesley, the significance of whose personality had not been lessened by time. In pianoforte music it was the period of the Fantasia and the variations of Thalberg, Herz, and Burgmüller. There was much talk of the low condition of the music in St. Paul's Cathedral. In parish churches the majority of the services were read, even the Canticles being spoken. In towns the usual accompaniment was an organ fitted with a barrel which the sexton turned to produce the tunes. In the absence of such an instrument, the accompaniment was supplied by some stringed instruments, wood-wind, and brass, played by amateurs—most of them working men. Hymn tunes were of a florid nature, and grace notes were unblushingly inserted, the general rule appearing to be to add passing notes and scale passages wherever they could be got in. Ladies played the pianoforte, harp, and guitar, but not the violin; on the other hand, the pianoforte was considered unmanly. The accordion and concertina were invented, and afterwards developed into the harmonium and American organ. The Morning Chronicle, of December 11, 1837, announced, as a great novelty, "The American Minstrels, self-taught men of colour from Philadelphia, in a series of morning concerts of national music." The street ballad flourished greatly at this time; within a few hours of any event of public interest, a song, written to fit an old tune, was ready for distribution. The democratisation of music was just beginning. Two years previously Lord Brougham, in giving evidence before the House of Lords on education, had urged that the rudiments of singing should be taught in the national schools, a proposal which was supported by the musical magazines, which prophesied a new order of feeling and sentiment when the love of music should take possession of the hearts of the young.

M. VINCENT D'INDY'S "FERVAAL" AT BRUSSELS.

(From our special Correspondent.)

A journey from London to Brussels and back during the wet, windy weather of last month, in order to hear a new opera, did not seem a very pleasant prospect. "Fervaal," however, as I shall endeavour to show, deserves mention. Further, the comfortable steamship Colchester, plying between Harwich and Antwerp, commanded by an affable captain and manned with an obliging crew, reduced to a minimum whatever discomfort is caused by travelling.

The Théâtre de la Monnaie has had the honour of producing more than one French opera for the first time. M. Vincent d'Indy, whose drame lyrique, entitled "Fervaal," was performed at Brussels on the 12th ult., is one of the foremost composers of what is known as La jeune école française. In 1884 his dramatic legend "Le Chant de la Cloche" won a prize offered by the city of Paris, while his "Wallenstein" trilogy has won for him a good name in France and Germany. The composer wrote a small work in one act in 1882, but "Fervaal" may be considered his first serious attempt for the stage. M. d'Indy, following the example of Wagner, has written both libretto and music.

The subject of this music-drama is legendary. Fervaal is the last descendant of a race of chiefs of divine origin, and in him are centred the hopes of his native country, Cravann, which is occupied by the Saracens. One day he is attacked by a troop of these barbarous enemies and wounded. Guilhen, the daughter of the Emir who has conquered the country, happens to see him, takes compassion on him, and desires to remove him to her father's palace, in order that he may be properly tended. Arfagard, a venerable Druid priest, who is watching over Fervaal, vehemently rejects the proposal, and the youth himself, by injunction of the priest, utters curses on woman and love. The kind intentions and lovely face of the damsel, however, win the day, and Fervaal is carried off on a litter. This incident forms the subject-matter of the prologue. The music is dramatic, and two of the principal themes of the drama—for it is worked out on strict Wagnerian lines—are heard: the one is typical of Fervaal, the other of Guilhen.

The first act opens with soft, sensuous music from the orchestra. Fervaal is reposing in the garden of the castle, whither he was borne by the enchantress. A new passionate theme, that of love, is now heard; and this, together with a "curse" motive, and the two already mentioned, form the material whence is evolved the music which accompanies the conversation between the youth and Arfagard. The latter comes to persuade Fervaal, now that he is convalescent, to exchange the sweets of repose for the hardships of war, and to fulfil the high hopes excited by his high birth and pious training. Arfagard departs and Fervaal commences to don his armour. But Guilhen enters, and with sighs and caresses tries to persuade the warrior to remain with her. There follows a long love duet, which seems to have sprung from head rather than heart. Neither of the interpreters, however, was quite satisfactory. Madame Raunay and M. Imbart sang well, but the former was cold in her acting and the latter lacked dignity of gesture. Probably a more fervid, noble rendering of the duet would reveal beauties in it at first latent. Fervaal has the courage to leave her, and then, on the entry of a troop of Saracens, Guilhen bids them go and devastate the country in which Fervaal lives.

In the second act the chiefs of Cravann are assembled for the purpose of choosing a "brenn de guerre." Fervaal is unanimously elected, but, during the religious ceremonies, the oracle, through the mouth of Kaito, the Celtic Erda, prophesies an end to the cycle of Esus if an oath has been violated. This act is striking if only for its weird stage effects before the apparition of Kaito. The music seems unequal; some of the choruses of priests and priestesses are, however, interesting.

In the third and last act Fervaal, whose army has been defeated, seeks death at the hand of Arfagard. He wishes to be the sacrifice to appease the angry gods. Yet, though man proposes, woman disposes. Fervaal hears the voice of Guilhen, rushes to meet her, and slays Arfagard who tries to prevent him. Guilhen, however, sad at heart and benumbed with the cold mountain air, dies. Mysterious voices announce a change in the order of things, while Fervaal, bearing in his arms the lifeless body of the maiden, ascends the mountain steep. The sun shines forth, nature thus joining in Fervaal's prophecy of a new and brighter era. This act, the finest section of the work, is masterly and impressive.

The score of M. d'Indy is remarkable for its workmanship, which is of a high order. He works on Wagnerian lines—that is to say, he has a number of representative themes which are metamorphosed, developed, and combined after the manner of Wagner. But the French composer indulges in harmonies which often appear strange, and sometimes forced. Of course, one must remember the old cry against Wagner's discordant, harsh harmonies, and, having to deal with a composer of acknowledged merit, it is necessary to be cautious. I feel inclined to think that horror of the commonplace has tempted M. d'Indy to err in the opposite direction; at the same time, until the ear has become accustomed to his peculiar progressions, sudden modulations, also to the dissonant effects produced by passing notes and long appoggiaturas, it is impossible to decide whether composer or listener is at fault. Schumann in one of his articles wisely advises musicians when reading a new work to try and grasp its general work without dwelling on details. Now in M. d'Indy's music the details are so novel that the ear of an attentive listener is at once attracted by them and his attention thus turned away from the general character and meaning of the music.

The performance, under the able direction of M. Flon, was praiseworthy. The chief rôles were taken by Madame Raunay and MM. Imbart, de la Tour, and M. Seguin. At the close the composer was called and vociferously applauded.

We understand that the Nonconformist Choir Union are expecting a great concourse of singers at their annual Festival, to be held at the Crystal Palace in June. No less than 7,000 copies of the festival book have been printed, and these have all been practically applied for.

REVIEWS.

Annals of the Norfolk and Norwich Triennial Musical Festivals. MDCCCXXIV: MDCCCXCIII. By Robin H. Legge and W. E. Hansell. With portraits and facsimiles. 1896. [London and Norwich: Jarrold and Sons.]

The authors of this attractive volume have produced a valuable contribution to English musical literature. The story of the Norwich Musical Festival is here told with an agreeable lightness of style that greatly enhances the pleasure of the reader. In an interesting preface to the work, Mr. Fuller Maitland (whose name does not appear on the title-page) says: "The compilation of histories of the various festivals is a work of no slight value, provided only that it be undertaken in a really historical spirit and not with the desire of pandering to the vulgar taste of personalities concerning public performers. In the case of the Norwich Festival, this work has been undertaken none too soon; for a number of the minute-books, which are of course of the first importance as records, have disappeared, together with many of the autograph letters from musical celebrities of all kinds. The members of the older committees seem to have had no qualms of conscience when they appropriated such documents as the letter of Mendelssohn, reproduced on page 112. Unfortunately, one of the lost minute-books is that for the year 1852, which would have thrown much light on the circumstances attending the production of Pierson's 'Jerusalem,' an episode of special interest in the history of the Norwich Festivals." While fully endorsing these remarks, we are very glad that Mr. Fuller Maitland has sounded a note of warning on the subject of old minute-books generally. We have a strong suspicion that some of the earlier Birmingham records are "missing"; and it would be reassuring to know that all the Philharmonic minute-books are safe in the Society's archives.

But to return to Norwich. The earliest Festival, as at present constituted, was held in 1824. Norwich is, therefore, the third in point of age of the existing provincial music meetings—that of the Three Choirs (Gloucester, Worcester, and Hereford) and Birmingham being its seniors. It appears, however, that in 1788 and onwards there were Musical Festivals—of a kind—at Norwich; but these were simply "private money-making institutions got up by London concert-agents, as they would now be called, for their own profit." The names of two men stand out pre-eminently in connection with the initiation of the Festival proper—Richard M. Bacon and Edward Taylor. Bacon, to whom musical writers owe a debt of gratitude for his Quarterly Musical Magazine and Review (1818-28), was editor of the Norwich Mercury, in which capacity he became assiduous in arousing his fellow-citizens from their lethargy in musical matters, and in urging them to establish the Musical Festival which now holds such an honoured position. He was ably seconded in his efforts by Edward Taylor, who, from beginning life in his native city of Norwich as an ironmonger, became Gresham Professor of Music, and who was also for many years musical critic of the Spectator. Taylor was a master in the art of "tinkering." Re-writing the trumpet parts of "Israel in Egypt" is mild in comparison with his "arrangement" (*de*rangement) of Mozart's "Requiem," which he called "Redemption," but in which there were no redeeming features. He added, or interpolated, the Andante from the Overture to "Don Giovanni" as an "Introduction," an air from Mozart's "Tito," a recitative from "Idomeneo," another from Spohr's "Faust," and a chorale from a "Passion" by Bach! Even in those unregenerate days, it is no wonder that such "gallimaufry gave rise to much cavil and objection." We may be thankful that in the present state of musical opinion such an outrageous atrocity would be impossible. With one exception (1852 for 1851, the Great Exhibition year), the Norwich Festivals have been held triennially since 1824. The conductors have been Sir George Smart (1824-36), Edward Taylor (1839 and 1842), Benedict (1845-78), and, since 1881, Mr. Randegger, the most capable of them all, who still holds the post. Spohr, who was a personal friend of Taylor's, added lustre to the Norwich Festival, as did Mendelssohn to Birmingham. His "Last Judgment" had its first hearing in England at the Festival of 1830. He conducted his oratorio "Calvary" at the meeting of 1839, which in Norwich is still known as "Spohr's year." In this connection an amusing incident is recorded. On the Sunday preceding the Festival, Spohr, who knew not English, attended the service in the Cathedral. In the course of the sermon, preached by a certain Mr. Storr, Spohr repeatedly heard the name of his oratorio mentioned, and, thinking that the reverend gentleman was speaking favourably of his work, the composer very naturally smiled. Judge of his feelings when he was afterwards informed that the preacher had boldly declared his conviction that all those who should go to St. Andrew's Hall to hear the performance of "Calvary" would be "eternally damned"!

The temptation to quote details of the various Festivals must be resisted, owing to the exigencies of space. We gladly refer our readers to the book itself, where they will find much to interest and amuse. One or two of the lighter touches may, however, be noticed. We read that in 1828 there was ordered "eight gallons of beer for the chorus after a capital practice." In 1830 the roof of St. Andrew's Hall was so defective, and rain poured into the orchestra so heavily, that Robert Lindley played a violoncello concerto while seated underneath an umbrella, which a kind friend held over him to keep him and his instrument dry! A minute-book records "a duet for four violoncellos," and one of the letters to the conductor was endorsed "Miss Julia Benedict." At a final choral rehearsal of his oratorio "Abraham," Molique showed his appreciation of the rendering of his work by "hugging J. F. Hill, the chorus-master, in the presence of the chorus, and imprinting a kiss upon both cheeks." Twenty-four years later (in 1884), when Sir Alexander Mackenzie produced his "Rose of Sharon," the chorus pelted "the composer with the roses with which they had decorated themselves for the occasion." In 1863 Tietjens would only sing "on the sole condition that Madame Adelina Patti was not engaged." How these great singers love one another! The rare instance of an attempt to bribe The Times—which a Norwich paper called "our gigantic contemporary"—occurred at the Festival of 1869, when Pierson's "Hezekiah" was produced. At the end of a notice of one of the concerts, The Times printed the following note: "Mr. Barclay, who gives no address except London, and who has insulted our musical reporter at Norwich by writing him a letter, enclosing £20 in notes, in order to influence his criticism on some of the performances at the Festival, is desired to call at our office for those notes." It will be observed that at Printing House Square the late Mr. J. W. Davison was officially designated a "musical reporter"—not a "musical critic." In conclusion, these "Annals" are not only remarkably well compiled, but seem to be comparatively free from errors, though there is an inexcusable misprint (p. 112) of "Davidson" for "Davison." We venture to think that for the purposes of reference the detailed programmes should have been grouped together at the end of the book, and not scattered throughout its pages. This suggestion might be considered in a future, and, we hope, cheaper edition, as comparatively few people can afford to pay £2 17s. 6d., which is the lowest cost of the complete work. At the same time some of the quoted criticisms on living performers and composers might with advantage be omitted. The book is admirably got up and reflects great credit upon the publishers. It is enriched with two facsimile letters from Spohr and Mendelssohn, in addition to many portraits and two views of St. Andrew's Hall; and, summum bonum, there are two capital indices.

Novello's Octavo Anthems. Nos. 554-560.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

Notice of the present instalment of a series of church music widely esteemed must commence with "Behold, I send the promise," by J. Varley Roberts. This is an anthem for Whitsunday. It is written for tenor solo and chorus. The opening is somewhat declamatory, but when the chorus enters the music becomes quiet and devotional, the whole, however, ending with a jubilant outburst in F major, "Praised be the Lord daily." The next two, "Unto us a Child is born" and "Open to me the gates," are by Frank Adlam. The former is obviously for Christmastide, and consists of joyous choruses alternating with soli for either soprano or tenor voice, the whole ending appropriately piano with the words "the Prince of Peace." The latter is for Easter, Ascension, or Dedication Festivals. It is full throughout, and is bold, broad, and mainly diatonic in style and phraseology, with a slight infusion of fugal writing. No. 557 consists of another composition by J. Varley Roberts. It is a setting of the beautiful poem by the Rev. E. Monro, "The Story of the Cross." Simple and hymn-like, with short interludes giving opportunity for meditation, it is eminently suitable for Good Friday, which will shortly be with us again. The next is a somewhat elaborate anthem, "Not unto us, O Lord," by John E. West. A quiet opening chorus leads up to an effective fugal passage at the words "Wherefore shall the heathen say." Then there swiftly comes a solemn but brief bass solo and chorus, "The dead praise not Thee, O Lord," after which we arrive at a jubilant chorus, "But we will praise the Lord," worked up with much vigour and with considerable freedom in the accompaniments. No. 559 is the late Sir George Elvey's pathetic and devotional little anthem "The souls of the righteous," eminently suitable for funeral or "In Memoriam" services. No. 560 is the late Sir Joseph Barnby's "Hail to the Christ." This is described as a carol-anthem, and of course is intended for Christmas; but it is more varied than an ordinary carol, and is expressively written in the key of E minor, with a close, according to ancient custom, in the tonic major.

The Wagner Story Book. By William Henry Frost.
[T. Fisher Unwin.]

Wagner doubtless dreamed of many audiences, but it is questionable if he ever anticipated the librettos of his great music-dramas being converted into "firelight tales" for children. This, however, is what Mr. W. H. Frost has done, and it may be said with entire success. The author creates a "certain little girl" to whom, seated by the fire, he relates the stories of "Tannhäuser," the "Flying Dutchman," "Lohengrin," the "Ring," "Tristan and Isolde," and "Parsifal"; and from the glowing embers and dancing flames conjures up pictures of the chief scenes. The language is happily chosen, the myths and legends make charming tales, and they are told in a manner which is well calculated to appeal to the imagination of the young mind, and arouse in it admiration for truth and goodness. There is also evinced a "grown up" knowledge and a quiet sense of humour which will increase the interest of those who may read the stories to little folks; as, for instance, in the following passage: "For these people here about the king are a peculiar sort of people who shout very loud about justice and their own rights, but seldom do anything unless they feel sure that they are on the side that is going to win. There are no such people now-a-days, of course; but there were once." It should be added that what is seen in the fire is pictorially illustrated.

Imperial March (1837—1897). Composed by Edgar Elgar. (Op. 32.) Arranged for pianoforte solo by the composer.

Victoria — our Queen. March for Full Orchestra. Arranged for pianoforte solo by John E. West.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

To write an original march is almost as difficult as to write an original chant, but Mr. Elgar has made a bold and, in a considerable degree, successful attempt to impart freshness to a stereotyped form. The music possesses considerable dignity, and the melodious nature of the themes is enhanced by the harmonic freshness of their setting. The work is effectively laid out for the domestic instrument, and the piece may be recommended—especially at this period of royal and patriotic celebrations—to the attention of pianists of average abilities. Mr. John E. West's March is founded on themes from Barnby's patriotic chorus, of which admirable use is made. Mr. West is rather given to somewhat inconvenient stretches for the hands, but with this exception the music presents little executive difficulties and possesses a vivacity which makes it very attractive. Apart from its application to the present mutual congratulatory days, the work forms an effective and inspiriting piece.

Original Compositions for the Organ. Nos. 247-251. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

In reversion to deceased masters we have here a most interesting series of numbers of a publication that has probably proved very valuable to organists. In the first we have three of Schumann's Fugues on the name of Bach, and in the next the other three (Op. 60). These were originally written for organ or pedal pianoforte; but the pedal pianoforte has gone out of fashion, and the Fugues are certainly more suitable for the "king of instruments." Musicians who know Wagner's "Meistersinger" will recognise the curious coincidence between the principal theme of the fourth Fugue in B flat and that of the Prelude to the third act of Wagner's comic opera. The present edition is edited by Mr. John E. West, who has done his work well; his directions for registration of the stops are in every respect judicious. In No. 249 we have a "Festal March" in D by the late Sir George Elvey, written in the somewhat simple but, generally speaking, jubilant manner of the late esteemed organist of St. George's Chapel, Windsor. In the next two numbers for mention at present we have six Fugues by Handel dated 1735—that is to say, when the great master was approaching the zenith of his career. They are stated as being for organ or harpsichord, and as the latter instrument is to some extent out of date, it is as well to have a new edition for the organ, and this has been well done by Mr. J. W. D. Pillow. The Fugues are, on the whole, simpler in harmony than those of Bach, and are eminently characteristic of the Anglo-Saxon master.

O'er the Hill-side. Graceful Dance. Composed by Milton Wellings.
Chant d'amour. For the Pianoforte. Composed by Francis Thomé.
[Metzler and Co.]

The first of the above pieces is an excellent example of the gift its composer has of writing graceful and ear-catching melodies. The music presents no executive difficulties and possesses much charm of a simple kind. The "Chant d'amour" is one of those expressive little sketches which Mr. Thomé knows so well how to write. It is extremely melodious, and would provide an admirable study for the cultivation of legato touch. Pianists should note, however, that all rights of public performance are reserved.

Novello's Music Primers and Educational Series. Edited by Sir John Stainer and Dr. C. Hubert H. Parry. No. 55. Violin Makers. By C. Stainer. [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

In these days of haste the compilation of a reliable book of reference is a boon to mankind, and many musicians will be grateful for the excellent dictionary of violin makers which has been written by Miss C. Stainer, a daughter of Sir John Stainer, whose assistance the author acknowledges in her preface. The dictionary has been compiled from the best sources and the works referred to or quoted amount to thirty-eight. The paragraphs not only give the chief incidents in the lives of violin makers, but also include particulars of the peculiarities of their instruments, and much information concerning the gradual development of the violin and various experiments which have been tried in its manufacture. The book will be of special interest to connoisseurs of the universal instrument, around which cling so many romantic tales and pleasing associations.

Three Remembrances. For Violin and Pianoforte. By J. Jacques Haakman.
Lullaby. For Violin and Pianoforte. By Alex. S. Beaumont. [Charles Woolhouse.]

These are decidedly pleasing remembrances. The first, an Andante, may be described as a meditation on an agreeable incident; the second, a Moderato, in A minor, is less engaging; but the third piece, an Allegretto, makes amends for its predecessor and is graceful and attractive. The music is of moderate difficulty for both instruments and deserves the attention of amateur violinists.

The "Lullaby" is tender and melodious, as such ditties should be. It is also written as a Trio for pianoforte, violin, viola, or violoncello.

Two Sketches for the Pianoforte. By Franz Oberlin.
Hornpipe for the Pianoforte. By Arthur Somervell.
[Edwin Ashdown.]

Mr. Oberlin's two sketches are respectively entitled "Dreaming" and "Awaking," and the latter is as pleasant as the former, which is not always the case. The composer revels in rich harmonies that impart much distinctiveness and attractiveness to these pieces, which will well repay any practice that may be necessary for their adequate performance. Mr. Somervell's Hornpipe is as gay and irresponsible as hornpipes should be. It provides excellent practice for independence between the hands, and specially for neatness of execution by the left hand. Played with due accentuation and verve, it would be decidedly inspiriting.

Masque. From the music to "As you like it." Composed by Edward German. Arranged for the pianoforte by the composer.
It was a lover and his lass. Duet for soprano and contralto. From the music to "As you like it." Composed by Edward German.
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

Those who attended the production, at St. James's Theatre, by Mr. George Alexander, of Shakespeare's "As you like it," will doubtless have a pleasant recollection of Mr. German's music, and those musically inclined are now enabled to make intimate acquaintance with the Introduction and the three Dances which contributed so greatly to the effectiveness of the last act. These pieces are in the same style as the well-known "Henry VIII." Dances by the same composer, and though less distinctive than the last-named measures, they are easier to play, which may render them more acceptable to some pianists. The duet, "It was a lover and his lass," was the best number which Mr. German provided for "As you like it." It is a charming setting of the familiar words. The music is thoroughly in sympathy with the text, and the vocal parts, with their imitatory passages, are grateful to sing and, if well sung, delightful to hear. It is music which breathes of the forest "In the springtime . . . when birds do sing."

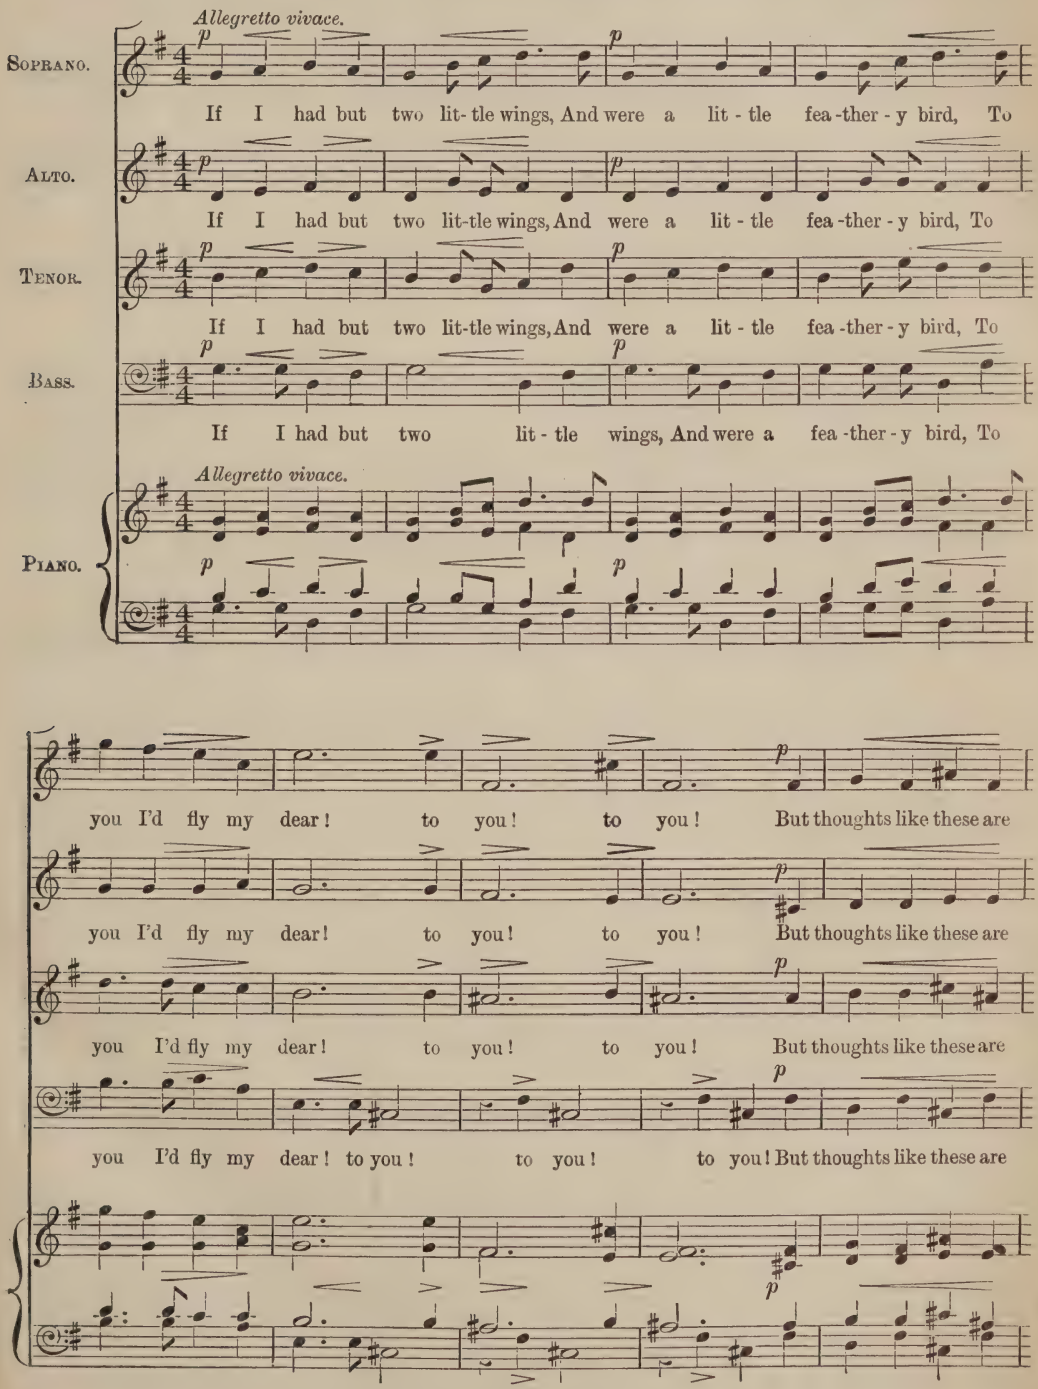
Hurrah! Hurrah! for England. A Four-part Song. Composed by J. Frederick Bridge. (No. 762. Novello's Part-song Book.) [Novello, Ewer and Co.]

The requirements for special music written in commemoration of the remarkable reign of our Queen promises to be well met, and a very bright and spirited example of a patriotic part-song will be found in Professor Bridge's "Hurrah! Hurrah! for England." The words attribute to us everything that we should be, and pay graceful homage to "England's daughter, Our Lady and our Queen." The music admirably reflects the spirited nature of the text, and will present no difficulties to fairly well trained choirs.

The Queen—God bless her. A Patriotic Part-song. The words written by May Byron. Composed and arranged for Male Voices by Myles B. Foster. (The Orpheus. No. 307.)
[Novello, Ewer and Co.]

The words of this part-song are of a more thoughtful character than the majority of those which have been written to celebrate our Queen's long reign, but they are by no means lacking in spirit or in the self-congratulatory element which characterises lyrical effusions of this class. The music, while appropriately bold in character, is solidly written and contains many passages which reveal the hand of the experienced composer. The part-song may be warmly recommended to all male-voice choirs.

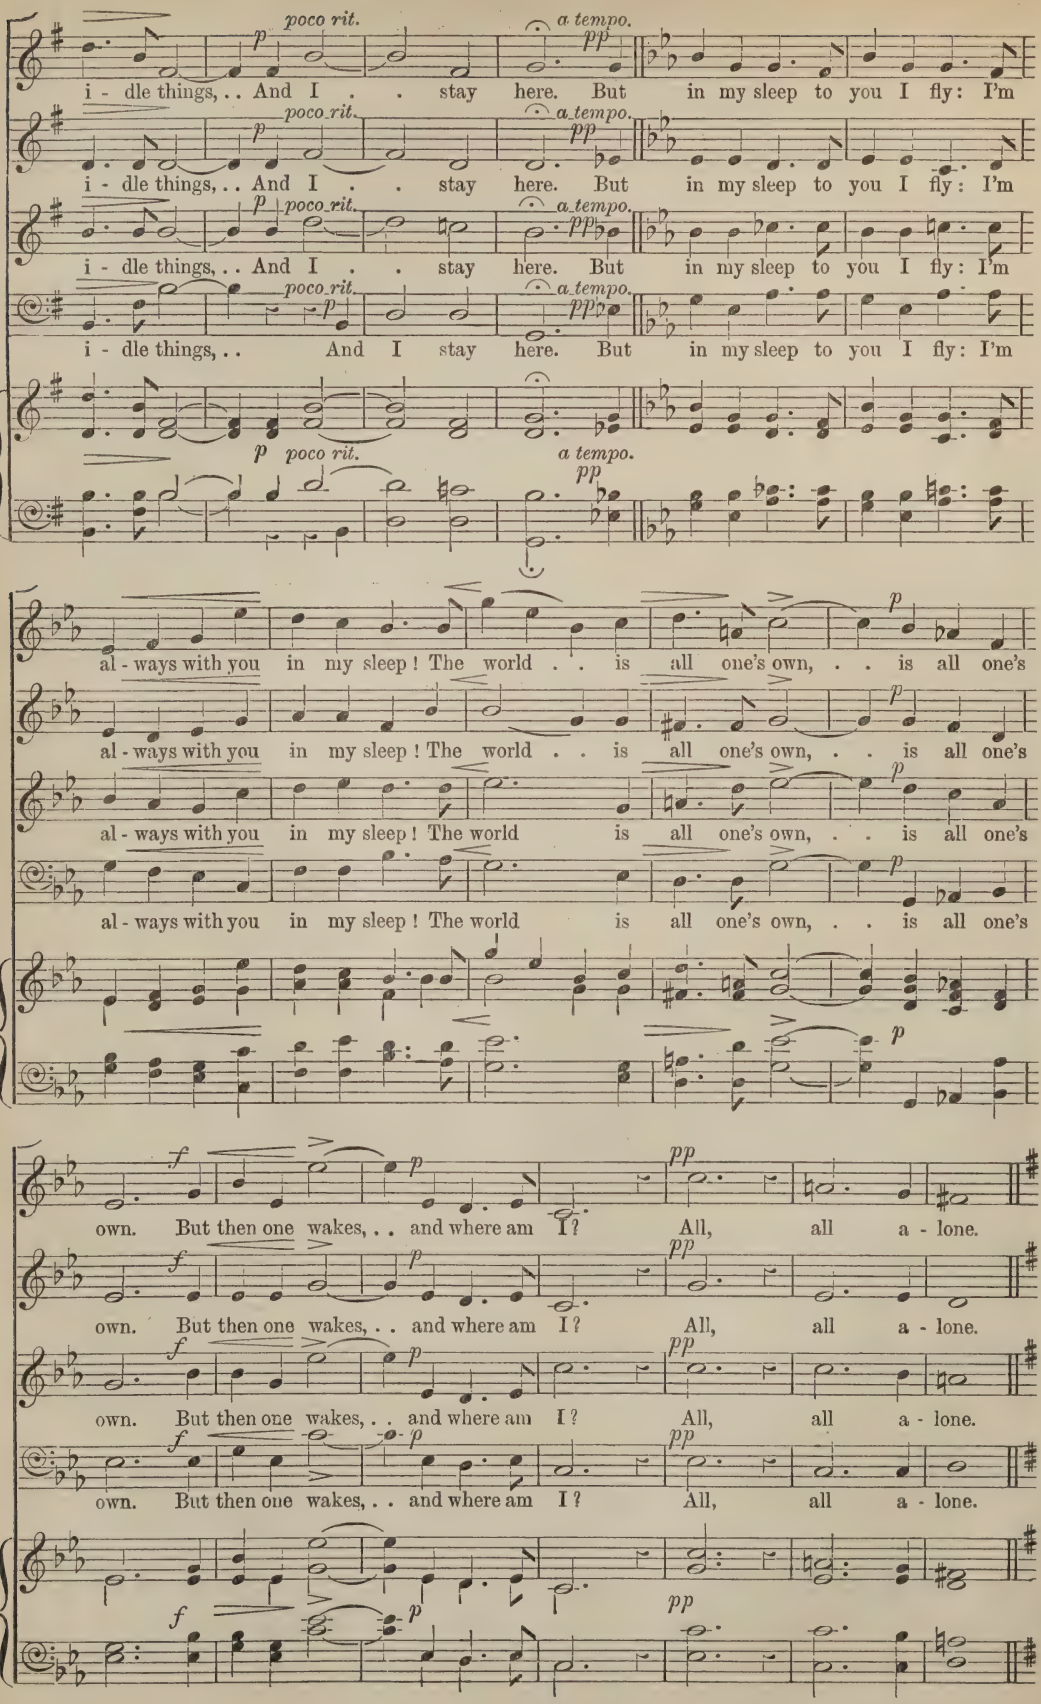
The organ-case on the North side of the choir in Westminster Abbey, which has been erected as part of the memorial to Henry Purcell as a result of the celebration in honour of that composer in 1895, is now practically completed, and will be on view in a few days. Mr. Pearson's design is one of great beauty and distinction, and there can be no doubt that as soon as it is seen, it will offer a strong incentive towards the efforts which will now have to be made to complete the case on the South side.



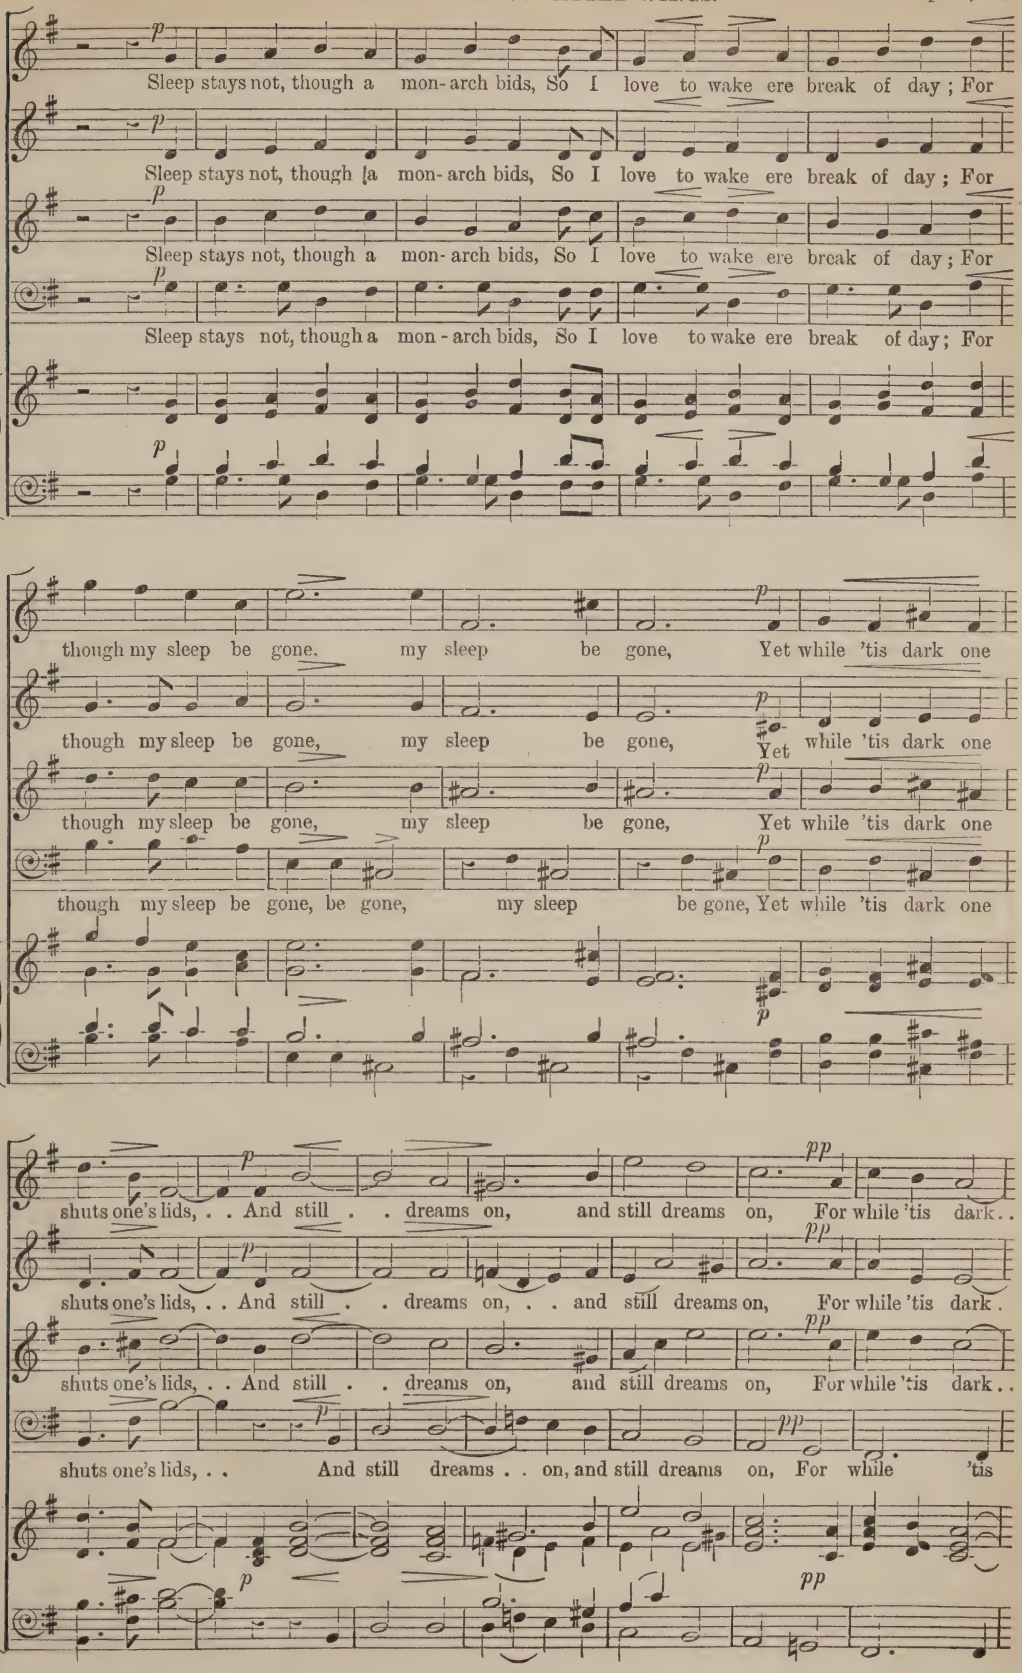
If I had but two little wings.

FOUR-PART SONG.

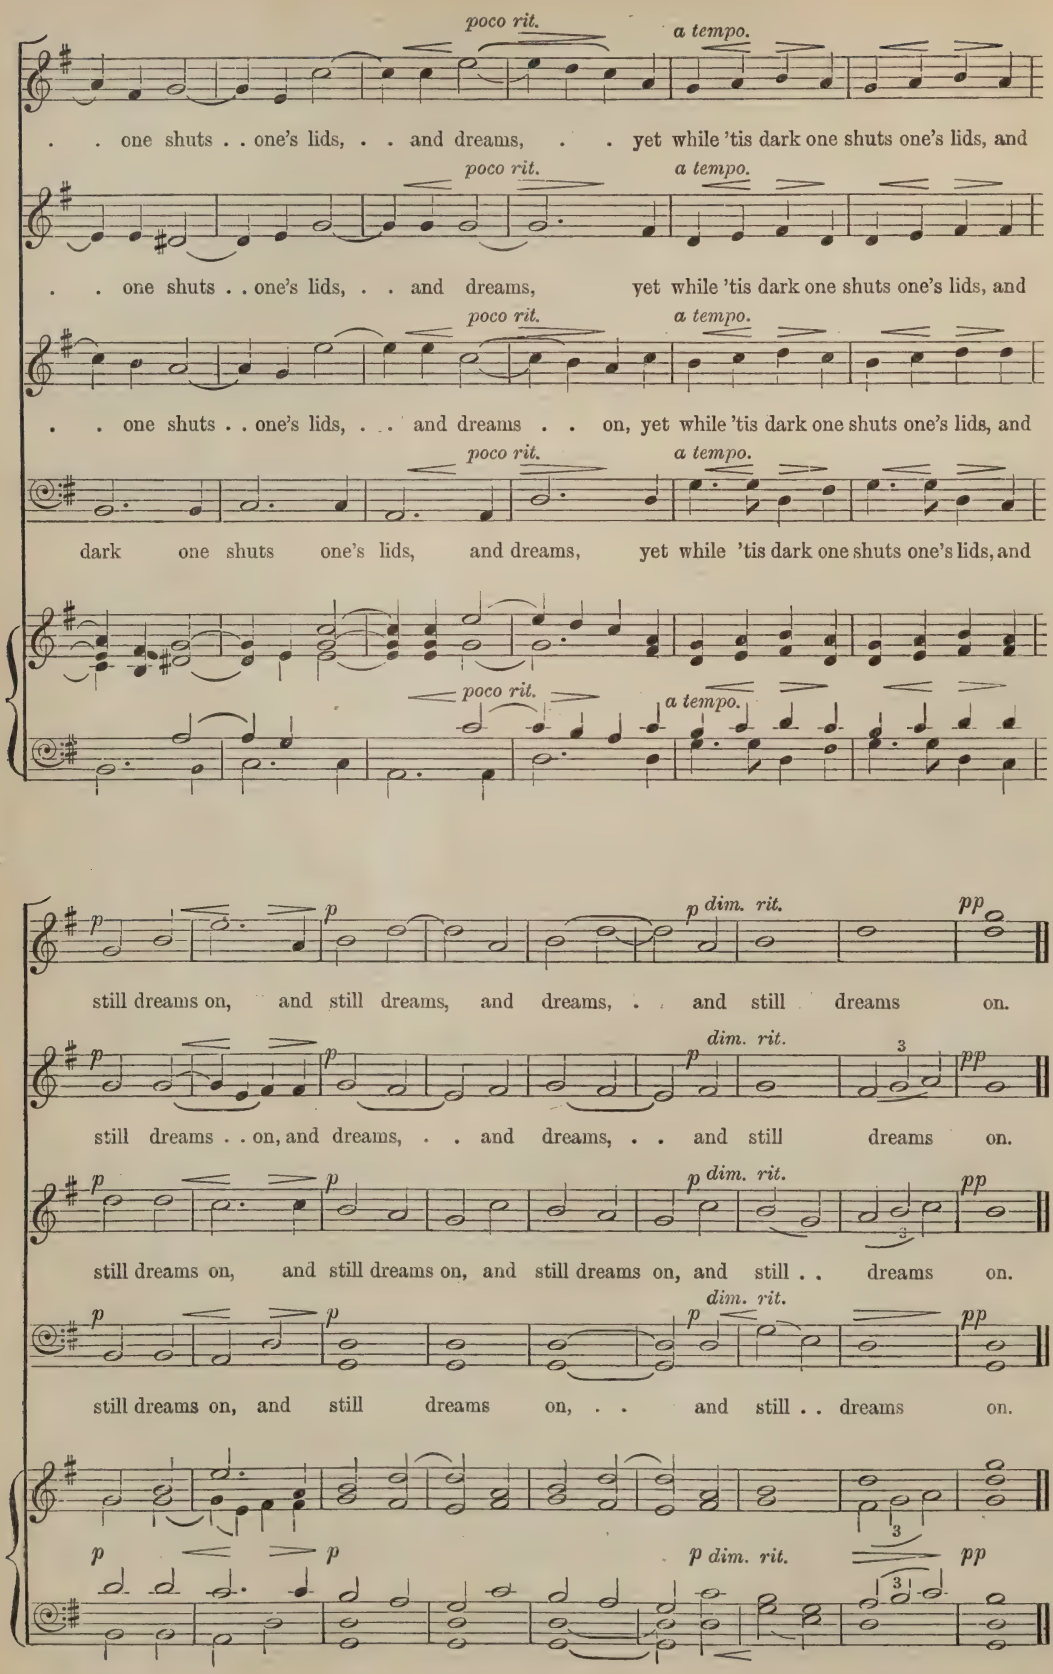
FROM A SET OF SIX PART-SONGS DEDICATED TO THE MAGPIE MADRIGAL SOCIETY.*



Words by S. T. Coleridge. Music by C. Hubert H. Parry.



London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.); also in New York.



* The remaining numbers will appear in Novello's Part-Song Book.

 Copyright, 1897, by Novello, Ewer and Co.

poco rit.
a tempo.
i - dle things, . . And I . . stay here. But in my sleep to you I fly: I'm al - ways with you in my sleep! The world . . is all one's own, . . is all one's own. But then one wakes, . . and where am I? All, all a - lone.

Sleep stays not, though a mon- arch bids, So I love to wake ere break of day ; For Sleep stays not, though a mon- arch bids, So I love to wake ere break of day ; For Sleep stays not, though a mon- arch bids, So I love to wake ere break of day; For Sleep stays not, though a mon - arch bids, So I love to wake ere break of day; For though my sleep be gone. my sleep be gone, Yet while 'tis dark one though my sleep be gone, my sleep be gone, Yet while 'tis dark one though my sleep be gone, my sleep be gone, Yet while 'tis dark one though my sleep be gone, be gone, my sleep be gone, Yet while 'tis dark one shuts one's lids, . . And still . . dreams on, and still dreams on, For while 'tis dark . .
shuts one's lids, . . And still . . dreams on, . . and still dreams on, For while 'tis dark .
shuts one's lids, . . And still . . dreams on, and still dreams on, For while 'tis dark . .
shuts one's lids, . . And still dreams . . on, and still dreams on, For while 'tis poco rit.

a tempo.
. . one shuts . . one's lids, . . and dreams, . . yet while 'tis dark one shuts one's lids, and
. . one shuts . . one's lids, . . and dreams, yet while 'tis dark one shuts one's lids, and
. . one shuts . . one's lids, . . . and dreams . . on, yet while 'tis dark one shuts one's lids, and dark one shuts one's lids, and dreams, yet while 'tis dark one shuts one's lids, and p dim. rit.
pp
still dreams on, and still dreams, and dreams, . . and still dreams on.
still dreams . . on, and dreams, . . and dreams, . . and still dreams on.
still dreams on, and still dreams on, and still dreams on, and still . . dreams on.
still dreams on, and still dreams on, . . and still . . dreams on.
3

BERTHOLD TOURS.

1838—1897.

MUSIC IN BIRMINGHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The third of Mr. Max Mossel's Drawing-room Concerts was given at the Grand Hotel, on February 25, and proved a musical treat. Madame Ivan Mossel (pianoforte), Mr. Max Mossel (violin), and Professor Ivan Mossel (violoncello) combined in a truly artistic rendering of Saint-Saëns's Trio, Op. 18, in F. Professor Ivan Mossel, in his violoncello playing, has in him the true elements of a great artist. The songs of Mrs. Helen Trust secured the well-earned plaudits of the audience.

Mr. Mark Hambourg, who now returns to us as a fully equipped pianist, having already appeared here when a juvenile prodigy, in 1891, gave a Pianoforte Recital, in the Masonic Hall, on the 8th ult. If in his interpretations he lacks the poetry of feeling which must come with riper years, he can lay fair claim to be one of the most marvellous executive pianists of the day. He created quite a furore by his rapid and facile octave playing.

The Birmingham Amateur Orchestral Society, which is now incorporated with the Midland Institute, gave a Concert, on February 22, under Mr. George Halford's direction. The programme included Schubert's C minor Symphony, of which two movements were given, and Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in G major, the latter played by Miss L. M. Scott, a pupil of Miss Fanny Davies. Miss Scott proved herself an able and scholarly pianist and exhibited a sympathetic touch and clear technique.

The Birmingham Choral Union, under Mr. Thomas Facer's able conductorship, gave Handel's "Judas Maccabæus," in the Town Hall, on February 20, with full band, chorus, and the following principals—Miss Nellie Wiseman, Madame Florence Bourne, Mr. William Molineaux, Mr. William Bennett, and Mr. C. W. Perkins (organ). The performance showed considerable advance on previous efforts.

Active preparations are now in progress to make our Triennial Musical Festival of 1897 one of interest and importance. Of novelties we shall only have a few: a "Requiem" by Professor Stanford, an "Ode to the Sea" by Somervell, and an Orchestral Suite by German. Purcell's music to "King Arthur," Brahms's "Song of Destiny," and Parry's "Job," which has not been heard in Birmingham, are included in the scheme. "Elijah," "The Messiah," and Schubert's Mass in E flat will each find a place.

The sudden announcement that Mr. W. C. Stockley would make his farewell appearance attracted a large audience to the Orchestral Concert, at the Town Hall, on the 11th ult. At the conclusion of the Concert the veteran conductor received quite an ovation, the audience rising en masse. Mr. Stockley has just completed his twenty-fourth series of annual Orchestral Concerts, which he founded in 1872, and his long services in the cause of musical art cannot be over-estimated. I am glad to state that the Festival Committee have resolved to express in a tangible way the esteem in which their able choral conductor is held by all classes of Birmingham citizens.

The Birmingham Festival Choral Society's fourth and last Concert of the thirty-seventh series was given in the Town Hall, on the 18th ult., under Dr. C. Swinnerton Heap's direction. The programme was entirely devoted to selections from the works of Handel, the first part being from "Israel in Egypt"; the second, "Acis and Galatea," and one air each from "Semele," "Theodora," and "Alexander's Feast"; the last part included two choruses and one aria from "Solomon." In the absence of Miss Anna Williams, through illness, Miss Emily Squire, at a short notice, undertook the soprano solos. The other principals were Miss Ada Crossley, Mr. Edwin T. Morgan, and Mr. David Hughes. Mr. Perkins presided at the organ. The singing of the chorus was particularly distinguished by superb tone power. Next season's scheme will include orchestral Concerts, in addition to choral performances.

MUSIC IN BRISTOL.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The customary very high degree of artistic excellence attended the singing of the Bristol Orpheus Glee Society at its annual Concert, on February 25, under Mr. George Riseley's direction. The absolute novelties were "To Music" and "Lost Time," the words taken from Tom Moore's "Irish Melodies" and set to music by Mr. C. Lee Williams and conducted by the composer. They both proved to be exceedingly clever and captivating. Dr. Benjamin Cooke's "Ode to Handel," although first performed at the Handel Commemoration dinner in London, in May, 1785, had never before been given by the Bristol Orpheonists. Laurent de Rille's descriptive piece, "The Destruction of Gaza," was now, strange to say, included in a programme of this Society for the first time. Tom Cooke's "Strike the lyre," Ambroise Thomas's "The Tyrol," Walmisley's "I wish to tune," and Mendelssohn's "Waken, lords and ladies gay," were among the other pieces in the list; and the loyalty of the Society was exemplified by the singing of an arrangement by Mr. Riseley of the National Anthem and Spofforth's "Health to the Queen," adapted from the glee "Health to my dear."

On the same date the Æolian Male Choir, a very much younger association of vocalists, who nevertheless sing remarkably well, gave a Concert at Easton.

At the Lent Concert of the Bristol Choral Society, on the 20th ult., Verdi's "Requiem" and Spohr's "Last Judgment" were performed with magnificent results by the splendid body of 500 well trained singers. They had previously zealously studied the works under the direction of Mr. Riseley, who led them triumphantly through the public performance. The soloists were Miss Esther Palliser, Miss Jessie King, Mr. James Leyland, and Mr. Charles Copland.

Gratifying results attended the Concerts given on February 24 by the Choir and Orchestral Society of the Cathedral School; by the Great Western employés on February 22; and, on the same date, by the Bristol section of the Crystal Palace Temperance Choir, who were joined by the Langton Street Orchestra.

At the second popular Chamber Concert, on February 27, Raff's Trio in G (Op. 112) for pianoforte and strings, Brahms's Sonata (Op. 108, No. 3) for pianoforte and violin, and Chopin's Sonata in B flat minor (Op. 35) were the chief works, the executants being Messrs. Milani (violin), Pavey (violoncello), and Herbert Parsons and Miss Payne (pianoforte). Miss Boucher was the vocalist.

Miss Lock's last Chamber Concert of the season took place on the 15th ult., when Beethoven's String Quartet (Op. 59, No. 3) and Rheinberger's Pianoforte Quartet in E flat (Op. 38) were performed by Messrs. Carrington, Duys, Wetten, Van Gelder, and Miss Lock, with taste and finish.

Downend Choral Society, on the 8th ult., performed Barnby's "Rebekah," MacCunn's "Lord Ullin's Daughter," and Eaton Faning's "The Vikings," under the guidance of Mr. Harold Bernard, the spirit and clearness of the singing giving much satisfaction.

Midsomer Norton Choral Society and the Mid-Somerset Ladies' Orchestra united in a well performed Concert on the 2nd ult., under the direction of Mr. Walter J. Kidner.

Portishead Ladies' Choral Society sang Smart's bright cantata "The Fishermaidens," and other pieces, under the direction of Mr. Hamilton Clarke, on February 24.

MUSIC IN DUBLIN.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The "Feis" prizes for compositions have been awarded to the following works: Irish cantata, "Deirdre," by Michele Esposito, Dublin; concert-overture, "Greenoge," by J. C. Culwick, Dublin; Anthem by C. Habdebeck, Belfast; Part-Song by C. S. Craddock, Clonmel; Song on Irish Subject by Mrs. Beckett, Dublin (commended, F. St. J. Lacy, London, and Mrs. Houston, Coleraine); violin and pianoforte duet, "Barcarolle," by George F. Bell, Dublin; Irish Air arranged as part-song, by Rev. E. Whelan, Bray. The performance of these works during the "Feis" week (May 18-21) is looked forward to with interest.

The Dublin Musical Society gave an extra Non-Subscription Concert on the 8th ult., consisting of Haydn's "Creation" and Rossini's "Stabat Mater," with Miss Agnes Molteno, Miss Alex Elsner, Mr. Hirwen Jones, and Mr. Charles Kelly as principal vocalists. Mr. Horan was organist, Mr. Darley, leader, and Dr. Joseph Smith conducted.

Sterndale Bennett's "May Queen" was announced for performance at the Rotunda, on the 27th ult., with miscellaneous second part, under the direction of Dr. W. H. Collisson, in aid of Clonliffe Church Fund.

The St. Patrick's Past Choristers' Society announced a performance of "Judas Maccabæus" for the 31st ult., in the Antient Concert Rooms, under the direction of Mr. Charles G. Marchant.

MUSIC IN EAST ANGLIA.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The members of the Norwich Church of England Young Men's Society should be grateful to the Cathedral organist (Dr. Frank Bates) for the highly interesting Lecture with which he favoured them, on the 1st ult., on "Wagner: his life and influence on music." Dr. Bates entered into many interesting particulars of the plots of the master's music-dramas, showing Wagner's marvellous care for detail in all departments of his work. Vocal illustrations were given by Mrs. Bates, Miss Orams, Miss Waley, and Mr. W. E. Hansell. Pianoforte excerpts were excellently played by Mr. Cuthbert L. Hawley, who has made such a study of Wagner that he is able to play most of his music from memory.

Miss Trixie Barrett gave a well attended Vocal Recital on February 25. This highly gifted young lady, who has lately completed a course of instruction at the Royal College of Music, was heard in nine songs sufficiently varied in character to display her excellent capabilities in different styles with remarkable success.

The Saturday Evening Popular Organ Recitals by Dr. Bunnett, at St. Andrew's Hall, continue as popular as ever and are doing a valuable educational work. On the 13th ult. a novelty was introduced, Mr. Charles Fry being engaged to recite Longfellow's "King Robert of Sicily," accompanied on the organ with the music specially composed for Mr. Fry by Mr. John E. West. The result was very gratifying, the large audience showing their appreciation by loud and continued applause.

Smart's cantata "The Bride of Dunkerron" was well rendered at the Great Yarmouth Musical Society's Concert on February 18, under the conductorship of Mr. Haydon Hare. Miss Teresa Blamy, Mr. Henry Piercy, and Mr. Robert Grice were very successful in the principal parts, and the chorus sang with commendable precision.

The Lowestoft Musical Union gave its second Concert, on February 22, when Handel's "Alexander's Feast" was performed. Founded last year, this society, under the direction of Mr. H. D. Flowers, already numbers nearly 100 choristers, whose share in the above work was highly commendable. The soloists were Miss Cecilia Gray, Miss Penley, Mr. Sawford Dye, and Mr. A. Appleby. The band was led by Mr. F. W. B. Noverre, and Mr. E. Tuttle presided at the harmonium.

The North Walsham Musical Society gave Sullivan's "Golden Legend" and a selection from Randegger's cantata "Fridolin," on February 24. The choruses were given with fair precision. The soloists were Miss Amy Rayson, Miss May Seiber, Mr. Lewis Thomas, Mr. A. Strugnell, and the Rev. H. D. Barrett.

The Ipswich Choral Society gave Mendelssohn's "Elijah," on the 9th ult., under the energetic conductor, Mr. Burton. The principal vocalists were Lady Bedford, Miss Ada Crossley, Mr. Lawrence Fryer, and Mr. Andrew Black. The minor parts were ably sustained by Mr. Bernard, Miss Kathleen Walton, Mr. G. King-Smith, Mr. H. Baker, Mr. Dalby, and Mr. J. H. Brockbank (Norwich Cathedral).

An interesting Lecture was given at Ipswich, on the 10th ult., by Mr. Frank Woolnough, Curator of the Ipswich Museum, entitled "The Evolution of Music." Illustrations were rendered by a choir under Mr. Maurice Cooke, and photographs of ancient instruments were thrown on a screen by Mr. W. Vick.

St. Paul's Choral Society gave selections from the Oratorios of Handel, Mendelssohn, and Haydn at St. Paul's Church, on February 25, before a crowded congregation. The choruses were well sung, as were also the solos by Master W. Wills, Master F. A. Collis, Mr. T. Peck, and Mr. A. C. W. Tracy. Mr. H. Clayton was at the organ, assisted by an orchestra. Mr. F. C. Baker, the founder, ably conducted.

MUSIC IN EDINBURGH.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Considerable interest was excited in musical circles by the first appearance of Mr. Moonie's Choir, on the 19th ult., in the Music Hall, and a crowded and enthusiastic audience assembled to give the new venture a hearty welcome. This latest development of choral organisation in Edinburgh is partly the consequence of the discontinuance of the older and very popular Male Voice Choir, led so many seasons by Mr. Moonie, and is also due to the spread of a taste for choral singing among Edinburgh amateurs. The new society, already a round hundred voices strong, is fortunate in its able and energetic conductor, and Mr. Moonie is certainly fortunate in his voices. The quality of the sopranos in particular is delightfully fresh and pure, and the balance of the chorus leaves little to be desired. But "the sin by which angels fell" exacted its inevitable penalty. The works chosen for the first Concert (Cowen's "Water Lily" and Saint-Saëns's "The Heavens declare") are not such as a young choir could hope to grapple with successfully, and the labour which would certainly have scored a great success in works demanding less experience failed on this important occasion to achieve its aim. One of the most capable little orchestras ever got together from local sources here suffered from the same cause. Cowen's Festival composition requires a festival orchestra. The soloists were only comparatively successful, owing to colds and other obvious disabilities; but Miss Kate Gray was warmly applauded for her rendering of the part of Ina, and Mr. Stronach, as Sir Galahad, was also well received. Mr. T. H. Kennedy sang his comparatively unimportant part (Merlin) in his usual artistic style, and Miss Reid infused great expression into her interpretation of the lovely solo from the 19th Psalm, "Thou, O Lord."

The Edinburgh Choral Union gave a Concert, on the 15th ult., in aid of the Blind Asylum. The works produced were the Mass in G (Twelfth Mass), so widely accepted as the composition of Mozart, and Haydn's "Spring" (from the "Seasons"). The soloists were Miss Maggie Davies, Miss Sarah Berry, Mr. Hirwen Jones, and Mr. Robert Grice. A small orchestra supplied the accompaniments and Mr. Collinson conducted.

On the 17th ult. the last of the Historical Concerts given at the University, under the direction of Professor Niecks, was devoted to "Virtuosic Pianoforte Music." Mr. Leonard Borwick was the pianist, and the programme included compositions by Hummel, Field, Moscheles, Thalberg, Henselt, Chopin, and Liszt.

MUSIC IN GLASGOW.

(From our own Correspondent.)

March was ushered in by two delightful Concerts of Chamber Music. On the 1st ult. Mr. Willy Burmester's programme contained selections from Beethoven, Spohr, Bach, and Wieniawski. In each and all of the pieces essayed he once more showed his marvellous technique. In Mr. Ernest Hutcheson, Mr. Burmester had an excellent coadjutor, a pianist who will sure enough be heard again with much pleasure. A few nights later Mr. and Mrs. Henschel gave one of their welcome Vocal Recitals, when the programme was remarkable for its variety, the perfection of taste displayed in Mr. Henschel's pianoforte accompaniments, and the unique duet singing of the accomplished couple.

On the 8th ult. the Kyrle Choir gave a very good performance of Sir A. C. Mackenzie's cantata "The Bride." The seventh annual Concert of the Glasgow Athenæum School of Music took place on the 11th ult. The proceedings were opened by a short Organ Recital, given by three of the students. The programme included Schumann's Concertstück for pianoforte and orchestra, in which Mr. David H.

Wilson distinguished himself as the soloist. The large body of instrumentalists did infinite credit to the training of Principal MacBeth and his well-equipped staff of professors. The vocal pieces comprised Edith's song from the drama "Bruce," one of several exceptionally interesting pieces which Mr. MacBeth has written for the production of the dramatised version of "The Lord of the Isles."

Stainer's popular "Crucifixion" was given by the choir of Glasgow Free College Church, on the 17th ult., and Gounod's "Redemption" was announced for the evening of the 25th ult., under the auspices of Wellington United Presbyterian Church Choir.

MUSIC IN LIVERPOOL.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The chief feature of the past month has been the visit, of only four weeks' duration, of the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company. Up to the time of writing, the only novelty, so far as Liverpool is concerned, has been Wagner's "Die Meistersinger." The same composer's "Tannhäuser," "Lohengrin," and "Flying Dutchman" have been placed in juxtaposition with Balfe's "Bohemian Girl" and Wallace's "Maritana." The company, as at present constituted, is a good one, and it is a pity that from some cause or other a portion of the old glamour has departed from its advent to its earlier home.

The Philharmonic Society has concluded its fifty-eighth season. At the Concert on the 9th ult. there was nothing special to note, except that the programme was devoid of the usual Symphony. For the 30th ult. Berlioz's "Trojans in Carthage" was promised, and great things have been said in advance of this novelty, of which a brief description appeared in this column a few months ago.

The Sunday Concerts ended on the 7th ult., when Dr. A. L. Peace gave a delightful reading of the solo part of Handel's Fourth Organ Concerto in F. It is rarely that such a composition receives anything like a measure of justice, but with the fine instrument in St. George's Hall and the orchestra of the Sunday Society, which includes nearly sixty string performers, the inherent breadth of the work itself, as well as the strong contrasts of tone, proved something of a revelation.

On the previous evening the Orchestral Society, under Mr. Rodewald, gave a bright rendering of Mendelssohn's "Scotch" Symphony, and introduced to a Liverpool audience two novelties in the form of Dvorák's Légendes (Nos. 2 and 4) and the Adagio from the same writer's Symphony (No. 3) in D minor.

The Schiever Quartet (Messrs. Schiever, Akeroyd, Courvoisier, and Carl Fuchs) gave another excellent Recital of chamber music, on the 13th ult., before the members of the Liverpool section of the Incorporated Society of Musicians, and on the 20th ult. the third of their regular Concerts, with Mr. Leonard Borwick at the pianoforte, took place in the Concert Hall of the College of Music.

The third Subscription Concert of the Birkenhead Cambrian Choral Society took place on the 17th ult. The work selected was Mendelssohn's "Elijah," of which a highly creditable performance was given, under Dr. Reynolds.

At Runcorn, the closing Concert of the season, with an excellent programme of a miscellaneous character, was given by the local Musical Society, on the 15th ult., under Mr. F. K. Crossley.

There has lately been a run in the locality upon Smart's melodious "Bride of Dunkerron." The Wallasey Choral Society, under Mr. Argent, gave it on the 22nd ult.; Mr. Courvoisier is preparing it for an early date in April, at Ormskirk; and another suburban society at Hayton also has it in hand.

The Triennial Chester Musical Festival is announced for July 21, 22, and 23. The programme is to include music commemorative of the Victorian Jubilee, and it is expected that Dr. J. C. Bridge will write a new work for the occasion.

MUSIC IN MANCHESTER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Too late in February to be noticed in the last report came the very enjoyable Concert of Mr. Max Mayer, given with the assistance of Mr. Brodsky, Mr. Hugo Becker, and Fräulein Petersen, and attended by an audience showing the greatly increased attraction which chamber music now exercises here. Two evenings later, at the fourth meeting of the Brodsky Quartet Party, the hall was crowded to listen to the Volkmann work in E minor (Op. 35), the Beethoven F minor (Op. 95), and the Dvorák Quintet in A (Op. 81), of which the clavier part was rendered by Miss Olga Néruda with the greatest clearness and judgment, and without that prominence which so often transforms such works into mere accompanied pianoforte solos.

To the Hallé gathering of February 25, Mr. Hugo Becker gave the charm of his pure round tone and refined cantabile style in Marcello's Violoncello Sonata (edited by Piatti), and in the concert piece of Saint-Saëns he exhibited great dexterity and finish of execution. The sisters Salter sang some duets, specially two delightfully fresh ones by Mr. Cowen, "What the birds say" and "Violets." The orchestral novelties included Dvorák's too lengthy Serenade in E for strings and Tschaïkowsky's Suite de Ballet "Casse Noisette." A work full of vivacity and variety, with its bustling and exciting little Overture, its brightly scored Russian Dance, contrasted with the vague and shadowy Arab movement; the whole set afforded the most instructive lessons to students of orchestral colouring. Its early repetition would be extremely welcome. On the 11th ult. the season closed with a performance of the great Ninth Symphony of Beethoven, which gave the conductor no reason to be ashamed of his choir and justified pride in his band. During the winter Mr. Cowen's growing popularity has been shown by the larger audiences which have been attracted by purely orchestral programmes. The conclusion of the Choral Symphony was followed by most enthusiastic applause. Coming among us to fill the position so long occupied by one who had peculiar claims to our esteem, Mr. Cowen had a part to play of unusual difficulty. He had to gain the command of an orchestra of which he was not—as Sir Charles Hallé was—the absolute proprietor; to win the sympathy of those old subscribers to whom any change, however unavoidable, was distasteful; and he had to convince the general public of his power to carry on with increasing lustre the most important series of orchestral concerts ever attempted in this country. And he has thoroughly succeeded. It may be advisable to point out some important changes which Mr. Cowen has effected, of which hitherto no mention has been made. In the arrangement of the programmes great discrimination has been shown. Instead of crowding together in the first part three sternly classical works, all demanding serious attention, he has frequently reserved the most important orchestral novelty until after the interval, thereby securing for it a fresher attention. And he has boldly claimed respect for the art he represents by insisting upon the doors being closed during the performance of orchestral works. There are two additional services which we hope Mr. Cowen will next season undertake, and which we are sure he would be able to render. We would not desire to restrain that judicious applause which tends to diffuse life and stimulation through the evening's enjoyment; and such welcome approval would be all the more abundantly bestowed did the larger portion of the audience feel secure that advantage would not be taken of such evidence of good will by those hard-handed and strong-umbrella'd members who are always eager to testify their own personal satisfaction and to encore everything, without regard to the length of the programme or to the feelings of other people. Different societies in Manchester have successfully combated the encore nuisance, and it is time to put an end to an evil for which there is not the least excuse. But especially hateful is the disturbance which interrupts the continuity of a work of several movements, causing the interest of the listener to lapse, and totally disregarding the evident intention of the composer. Mr. Cowen has only to pass on more quickly through the several sections of a symphony, and to ask that during an oratorio applause should be restrained until the close of each scene, and he would soon find how thoroughly loyal to his wish the audience would become.

The Concerts of Dr. Watson's Vocal Society continue to be as excellent as ever. At the last (the 17th ult.) Samuel Wesley's motet "In exitu Israel" was the principal choral effort. Mr. Lane's Philharmonic Choir always draws a crowded host of admirers, and, on the 6th ult., sang several accompanied and unaccompanied works with intelligence and vigour. At the Town Hall Mr. J. K. Pyne's Organ Recitals, and at the Memorial Hall the varied entertainments provided by Mr. Cross, continue to be well supported.

The concluding Concert at the Schiller Anstalt formed a fitting termination to the series so well arranged by Mr. Carl Fuchs. During the winter both the style of the programmes and the selection of executants have been most judiciously varied, and, on the evening of the 16th ult., to the refined singing of Mrs. Helen Trust and the restrained rendering of the Sonata Pastorale by Mr. Leonard Borwick, was added the novelty of Mr. Sauret's skilful violin playing; the climax of the enjoyment being attained when the two gentlemen, in association with Mr. Fuchs, repeated the great Trio of Tschaïkowsky, which, at the first of the Brodsky Concerts, created such an intense interest.

MUSIC IN NORTHUMBERLAND AND DURHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Sunderland Philharmonic Society gave the final Concert of its thirty-seventh season in the Victoria Hall, Sunderland, on the 2nd ult. The principal works selected for performance were Gade's "Crusaders" and Dvorák's Te Deum (Op. 103). Gade's popular cantata presented no difficulties to the performers, but the Te Deum taxed the resources of both choir and orchestra to an unusual degree. Notwithstanding the exacting nature of the work, it was performed in a most creditable manner. The soloists, Miss Maggie Davies and Mr. David Hughes, were particularly successful, both in the Te Deum and in Gade's cantata, in which latter work they were joined by Mr. Lloyd Chandos with admirable results. The chorus and orchestra numbered about 200, and formed a most capable body of performers. Mr. N. Kilburn conducted.

On the 8th ult. the Seaham Harbour Musical Society gave a successful performance of Mr. J. F. Barnett's cantata "The Building of the Ship." The principal vocalists were Mrs. Inch, Miss Bowmaker, Mr. N. Davidson, and Mr. W. Lyall, and Mr. Oscar Cohen conducted. There was a small orchestra, led by Mr. W. W. Lax, of Sunderland.

The Gosforth (Newcastle) Vocal Society gave its third Invitation Concert on the 9th ult., when Sterndale Bennett's "May Queen" was performed, with Miss Janet Reed, Miss Clara Cole, Mr. T. H. Armstrong, and Mr. W. Lyall as principal vocalists. Mr. J. J. Hobkirk conducted.

The Sunderland Chamber Music Society gave its final Concert of the season on the 12th ult. Beethoven's Quartet in E flat (Op. 16) and Dvorák's Quartet in E flat (Op. 87), both for pianoforte and strings, were very creditably played by Messrs. B. W. Carrodus, L. A. Nicholson, J. F. Carrodus, and Oscar Cohen. The vocalist was Mr. J. M. Hardwich, and the accompanist Mr. G. I. Simey.

Dr. Rea's Amateur Vocal Society gave an Invitation Concert in the Town Hall, Newcastle, on the 16th ult. The principal works performed were Cherubini's Mass in C and Gade's "Spring's Message," both of which were brought to a very successful hearing. The chorus and orchestra numbered about 200 and the soloists were Madame Adelaide Mullen, Madame Marie Bellas, Mr. Henry Beaumont, and Mr. William Lyall. Dr. William Rea, the veteran conductor of the Society, occupied his customary place.

A performance of "The Messiah" was given in the Victoria Hall, Sunderland, on the 22nd ult., under the auspices of the Sunderland and District Sunday School Union. The soloists were Miss Laura Barnes, Miss Jenny Atkinson, Mr. D. S. Macdonald, and Mr. Duncanson, and the conductor was Mr. John Porteous.

The fourth Harrison Concert of the season was announced to take place in Olympia, Newcastle, on the 26th ult., with the following artists: Mrs. Helen Trust, Madame Belle Cole, Mr. Andrew Black, Miss Ilona Eibenschütz (pianoforte), Miss Alice Elieson (violoncello), Signor Bisaccia (accompanist), and the Manchester Orchestral Association, composed exclusively of members of the late Sir Charles Hallé's band.

MUSIC IN NOTTINGHAM.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The last Concert of the Midland Orchestral Union took place on the 5th ult., under the direction of Dr. William Lemare. A much larger audience greeted the orchestra, but this tardy recognition of its efforts has failed to save the organisation from extinction. The heavy loss on this undertaking forced Mr. Allen to announce that this Concert must be the last. The orchestra showed considerable improvement, the Overture to "Rienzi" being finely played, and the whole Concert proved most enjoyable. Miss Jaxon was the vocalist, and earned considerable applause.

Dr. E. H. Turpin gave two Organ Recitals at the Mechanics' Institution on the 6th ult.

Messrs. Ellenberger and Thorpe's third Chamber Concert, on the 18th ult., was probably the most enjoyable of the season. Commencing with Haydn's Quartet in G major, which, at the hands of Mr. Ellenberger, Miss Clark, Messrs. Johnson and Thorpe received a capital rendering, the programme included Mozart's Violin and Pianoforte Sonata in E minor and Dvorák's Quintet for pianoforte and strings. Miss Ellenberger was the pianist, and gave Beethoven's "Moonlight" Sonata in admirable style.

The West Bridgford Choral Society performed Cowen's "Rose Maiden" on the 19th ult. Miss Crisp, Miss Laura Bissill, Mr. Dunkerton, and Mr. Roland Hill were the soloists. The conductor, Mr. J. S. Derbyshire, must be congratulated on the singing of the choir, a part-song for ladies' voices, "Spring is coming," by Mr. H. S. Irons, in the second part of the Concert being especially admired.

MUSIC IN SHEFFIELD AND DISTRICT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Collegiate Orchestral Society gave the second Subscription Concert of the season, in the Cutler's Hall, on the 1st ult., when Schumann's Symphony (No. 4), Mendelssohn's "Military" Overture, Dvorák's "Slavische Tanze," the Prelude to the third Act of "Lohengrin," and Sullivan's "Macbeth" music were excellently performed, under the direction of Mr. S. Suckley. On the same evening Mendelssohn's "St. Paul" was performed in St. Mary's Church, under the direction of Mr. J. A. Rodgers.

The Sheffield Amateur Instrumental Society gave a successful Concert, on the 2nd ult., under Dr. Coward. Mr. Christopher Wilson's String Suite was the most interesting feature of the programme. The work is ambitious and bears evidence of distinct talent. Mr. E. P. Reynolds played Weber's "Concertstück" and Schumann's "Carnaval."

Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" was performed in the Albert Hall, on February 28, by the St. Cecilian Musical Society, at one of a series of Sunday evening Oratorios contemplated by Mr. William Brown. On the 28th ult. Handel's "Judas Maccabæus" was performed, under similar conditions.

On the 8th ult. Mendelssohn's "Elijah" was presented by the Attercliffe Zion Choral Society, under the baton of Mr. W. W. Chisholm. The principals were Miss Coates, Miss Lilian Hovey, Mr. A. Dawes, and Mr. J. Lyutt.

The Chapeltown and District Sacred Harmonic Society gave "St. Paul," on the 17th ult., with Mr. J. Peck as leader of the band, and Miss Maggie Jacques, Miss L. Grundy, Mr. T. H. Brearley, and Mr. William Thornton as principals. Mr. Thomas Bool conducted.

On the 17th ult. the Heanor and District Choral Union performed Handel's "Samson," in the Town Hall. A very successful rendering of the work was given, under the direction of Mr. W. G. Taylor. The chorus numbered 100 voices. The principals were Miss A. Norledge, Miss E. Sinclair, Mr. E. Dunkerton, and Mr. J. G. Howson. Mr. Jos. Ward was organist.

Dr. Parry's "Job" was performed by the Sheffield Musical Union, on the 23rd ult., under Dr. Henry Coward. The principals were Mr. Bantock Pierpoint, Mr. W. P. Lewis, Mr. Harry Stubbs, and Master Eddie Lowe (of the St. Mary's Church Choir). Mr. J. H. Parkes led the band, and Mr. W. S. Jessop was organist. In the miscellaneous programme, which filled up the Concert, Mr. E. P. Reynolds played pianoforte solos, including Schumann's Concerto in A. The chorus-singing was the feature of the performance, and in this respect the Society outshone all its previous records. Many of the choristers had sung in the work under Dr. Parry at the recent Festival. Under Dr. Coward's careful training they were thoroughly certain of their work, and in vigour, expression, and accuracy their singing left nothing to be desired. The principals acquitted themselves successfully, and the playing of the band was excellent.

MUSIC IN THE SOUTHERN COUNTIES.

(From our own Correspondent.)

On the 1st ult., at Bournemouth, Mr. Dan Godfrey, Jun., gave his 100th Symphony Concert, in the Pavilion of the Winter Gardens, when Tschaïkowsky's "Symphonie Pathétique" was included in the programme and received a fine rendering. At the conclusion of the Concert a valuable presentation was made to Mr. Godfrey in recognition of his work.

Madame Newling announced her annual Concert to take place on the 27th ult., the programme including Cowen's "A Daughter of the Sea" and Tschaïkowsky's "Nature and Love," sung by a choir of ladies, under the conductorship of the Concert-giver. Other artists engaged were Miss Craigie Ross, Miss Alice Harding, and Mr. Ernest Meads.

The Chippenham Harmonic Society is to be commended for its creditable performance of Sterndale Bennett's "May Queen," on the 2nd ult. The choruses were very well sung, and the orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. W. Duys, left little to be desired. Miss A. L. Burns, Miss Clara Spackman, Mr. H. E. Small, and Mr. Arthur Jupp were the principal vocalists, and Mr. W. T. Bradshaw conducted.

The Christchurch Choral Society, conducted by Mr. E. Walter Jenkins, gave Handel's "Judas Maccabæus," on the 2nd ult. The soloists were Mrs. Katherine Grant, Miss Florence Croft, Mr. Walter Clinch, and Mr. Robert Grant. Signor Bertoncini led the orchestra.

More than a passing word of congratulation is due to Mr. George H. Westbury for the successful efforts he has made to revive choral music in Andover. The performance of Romberg's "Lay of the Bell," under his direction, on the 4th ult., reflected much credit on all who took part in it, but particularly on the conductor, who had worked hard to get together and to train his forces. An efficient orchestra, led by Mr. A. C. Bennett, contributed to the success of the performance, as did also the singing of the soloists, Madame Eva Scorey, Mr. W. Sidney Blandford, and Mr. Smith.

MUSIC IN YORKSHIRE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

As is not infrequently the case, Bradford leads the way among Yorkshire towns in respect of the number of Concerts that fall to be chronicled. Foremost in interest was the performance of Tinel's "St. Francis" at the Subscription Concert, on the 5th ult. Unfortunately it was not so good as the reputation of the performers justified one in expecting. The chorus (that of the Bradford Festival Choral Society) sang the music not only without precision, but in a clumsy, heavy fashion, quite destructive of its peculiar charm. The Hallé band, under Mr. Cowen, of course did its work well, yet without distinction. Of the soloists, Mr. Ben Davies repeated his Cardiff success in the three "hymns," though in other parts he was hardly up to the same level, and Mr. Douglas Powell made a wonderfully fine effect of the small part of the Watchman. The others, Madame Henson and Mr. Bantock Pierpoint, did not get beyond efficiency. Altogether, the work was not placed in a sufficiently favourable light, owing to a general heaviness in the performance quite out of keeping with its character. The Bradford Permanent Orchestra has given two more Concerts. At the first, on February 20, Mr. Stott, a young musician who has just come back from studying abroad, played Rheinberger's C minor Organ Concerto, a fine work of its kind, and orchestrated very skilfully so as not to show up the weak points of the solo instrument. Mr. F. Norton played Weber's Clarinet Concerto most ably, and Miss Florence sang her favourite "Spring song" to an effective orchestral version of the accompaniment. At its last Concert, on the 13th ult., the Society gave a programme that in many ways was quite unworthy of its reputation. Though "My pretty Jane" as a solo for the cornet may rouse the noisy enthusiasm of the gallery, a Society whose aim is ostensibly not money making should not lend itself to such ignoble things. The best thing in the programme was Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto, but in it the soloist, Mr. John Dunn, by no means did himself justice, being guilty of exaggerations such as are particularly out of place in Mendelssohn's music. Happily he had a chance of redeeming his character a few days later, when he played the same work at a Dewsbury Concert—of which more anon—in a masculine and restrained fashion. The artistic playing of some pianoforte solos by the conductor, Mr. A. E. Bartle, was another feature of the Concert deserving note. On February 25 one of the Messrs. Harrison's miscellaneous Concerts took place, Miss Katie Goodson and Mr. Henley making their first appearances in Bradford as pianist and violinist, and making a good impression by their finished technique. Miss Ada Crossley, Messrs. Chilley and Watkin Mills were the vocalists, and Mr. Gérardy the violoncellist; the Royal Welsh Ladies' Choir contributing concerted vocal music, sung with admirable precision and intelligence. The Messrs. Haddock concluded, on the 12th ult., their course of historical Recitals of Pianoforte and Violin Sonatas, and on the 17th ult., at the Bradford Harmony Society's third Concert, Mr. Brodsky and Mr. S. Oppenheim introduced a Sonata by Paderewski (Op. 13) and a Suite by Schütt (Op. 44), both comparative novelties of more than ordinary interest. Miss Oldroyd joined Mr. Oppenheim in a duet for two pianofortes, and duets were sung by the Misses Dooley and Sewell.

At Leeds the chief musical event has been the performance, by the Philharmonic Society, of Schumann's "Faust" Epilogue, strange to say for the first time in the town, for not even at the festivals has Schumann's greatest choral work ever been heard. The chorus and band were, generally speaking, satisfactory under Mr. Beyschlag's conductorship. The soloists, Miss Thudichum, Mr. W. Green, and Mr. Watkin Mills, were, on the other hand, not quite at home in the not too grateful music, and were heard to greater advantage in sundry Schubert songs in the second part, which took the form of a Schubert commemoration. Another commemoration was that of the Choral Union, whose programme, on February 24, was of Mendelssohn's music, this being the fiftieth year since his death. Part I. of "St. Paul," part of the "Midsummer Night's Dream" music, "When Israel out of Egypt came," and the "Loreley" fragment were well if not very brilliantly performed, the soloists being Miss Ella Russell, Madame Dews, Messrs. Blagbro and Grice, and the conductor, Mr. Alfred Benton. The band was that of the Leeds Permanent Orchestra, whose last Concert was on the 20th ult., when Mozart's so-called "Jupiter" Symphony—minus the slow movement—was the chief thing in the programme. Mr. Ridding was the vocalist. On the 16th ult. Messrs. Haddock gave the last of their Musical Evenings for the season, a miscellaneous programme of more than ordinary value being performed by Miss Elandi, Miss Ada Crossley, and Mr. Lloyd Chandos as vocalists, with Miss K. Goodson and Miss Elieson as pianist and violinist respectively. Apart from a small proportion of the Subscription Concerts, the chief opportunities for hearing chamber music at Leeds are afforded at the excellent Concerts given by Miss Eisele and Mr. Rawdon Briggs. On February 22 Dvorák's fresh and vigorous String Quartet in F, together with Quartets by Haydn and Schumann, and the Largo from Bach's Concerto for two violins were admirably performed, the concert-givers being assisted by Messrs. Bridge, Holme, and Hatton, artists whose ensemble improves year by year.

What has in many respects been the chief event of the month in the county has been the Concert given by the Dewsbury Choral Society, on the 16th ult., in celebration of its own private jubilee, having been founded in 1847. Mr. G. Hirst, who, as honorary conductor, has greatly raised the artistic status of the Society, and has, besides, fostered a local interest and pride in its doings, had succeeded in obtaining the co-operation of two such distinguished musicians as Dr. Hubert Parry and Mr. E. German, who conducted their works written for the last Leeds Festival: the stately "Invocation to Music" and the brilliant Suite in D minor. The soloists were Miss Agnes Nicholls, Mr. W. Green, and Mr. Douglas Powell, who did well, while the unusually well-manned orchestra was thoroughly up to its work, and the chorus sang admirably, with unflagging power and enthusiasm. Mr. Dunn played Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto finely, and the Concert ended in the most satisfying fashion possible with Dr. Parry's noble ode "Blest Pair of Sirens." As incidents of a more personal character attaching to the event must be mentioned a dinner given to the two composers, and a presentation to Mr. Hirst from the members of the chorus.

At Huddersfield two Subscription Concerts have taken place. On February 23 Miss Ethel Barns, as violinist, Miss Fabel, as pianist, and Mr. Gérardy, as violoncellist, formed a trio of youthful performers of more than ordinary promise —if, indeed, "promise" be applicable to so finished an artist as Mr. Gérardy. Miss Ella Russell and Mr. Ben Davies were the vocalists. On the 9th ult. Messrs. Burmester and Mark Hambourg were responsible for the chief part of the programme, Mrs. Fisk singing several songs. On the 19th ult. the Huddersfield Choral Society gave Handel's "Samson," with Miss Maggie Davies, Miss Marian McKenzie, Mr. W. Green, and Mr. David Hughes as principals, under the conductorship of Mr. John Bowling, and on the 16th ult. the Glee and Madrigal Society, under Mr. Ibeson, gave one of its pleasant programmes of concerted vocal music.

The Halifax Subscription Concerts came, on the 3rd ult., to an end, not only for the season, but altogether, unless pecuniary subsidies are promptly forthcoming. Their loss would be regrettable, for they have been as thoroughly enjoyable as any series of Concerts in the county. On this occasion Miss Fanny Davies, Messrs. Rawdon Briggs, Gibson, and Whitehouse were the executants, and took part in Pianoforte Quartets by Schumann and Rheinberger. On the 18th ult. the Halifax Choral Society gave a Concert of very exceptional interest. Dvorák's "Stabat Mater," Schubert's "Song of Miriam," and Parry's "Blest Pair of Sirens" were performed in a fashion that was the more creditable to the Society since they have not yet recovered from the loss of a much-beloved conductor in the late Mr. W. H. Garland, whose place was taken for the nonce by Mr. H. Smith. The soloists were Madame Sherwin, Miss Sarah Berry, Mr. Hirwen Jones, and Mr. Douglas Powell. A young Society at Cottingley deserves credit for enterprise in giving, on the 6th ult., three recent works by native composers: Professor Stanford's "Phaudrig Crohoore," Mr. Somervell's "Forsaken Merman," and a Suite written for the Society by Mr. Akeroyd, a local composer. Added to these was a Schubert selection of a less hackneyed character than usual, all of which speaks well for the well directed enthusiasm of the conductor, Mr. H. J. Mason.

Only a bare chronicle must suffice for other Yorkshire towns. At Keighley, on February 19, Mr. Fred. Dawson gave the first Pianoforte Recital the town has known, and on the 16th ult. the Musical Union revived Macfarren's "King David." The Wakefield Choral Society chose the "Golden Legend" for its Concert on the 12th ult., and did fair justice to it, though the elaborate orchestration proved a rather hard nut for the scratch band got together for the occasion. On February 24 the Middlesbrough Musical Union, always enterprising, revived Schumann's "Manfred" music, rarely heard in its entirety, and made into a coherent whole by the recitations of Mr. Charles Fry.

At Harrogate, Concerts by local professionals have abounded: Mr. C. L. Naylor giving highly interesting Chamber Concerts on February 25 and the 6th ult., and the Messrs. Haddock ending their series of Musical Evenings on the 11th ult. The Batley and Morley Choral Societies have both been celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of Mendelssohn's death by giving, on February 23 and the 9th ult. respectively, his "Walpurgis Night." Gounod's "Faust" formed the programme of a Hull Harmonic Society's Concert on the 2nd ult., and one of the first contributions to what promises to be a "Creation" boom took place at Sowerby Bridge on the 1st ult.

MUSIC IN PARIS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The long-deferred première of M. Bruneau's opera "Messidor" took place at last, on February 19, at the Opéra. The libretto, by M. Zola, is written in prose, which—though not in itself objectionable, since the dramatic composer can well dispense with the rhyme, and supply the rhythm in his music—has the drawback of being not infrequently very prosaic prose. M. Bruneau thus had some initiatory difficulties to contend with, but his score is very effective in not a few of its pages and interesting throughout, the two first acts (the work has four) especially being highly dramatic. The opera has been well mounted, and the principal interpreters—Mesdames Deschamps-Jehin and Berthet, MM. Alvarez, Renaud, and Delmas—brought their best efforts to bear to render the performance a success. M. Massenet's opera "Thaïs" is in course of being mounted, as well as a new ballet by M. Wormser, entitled "L'Etoile." A series of performances of Verdi's "Otello," with Signor Tamagno in the titular-part, is announced to take place this month. Rehearsals of "Die Meistersinger," which is to be brought out in October next, are about to commence at this house.

No new work has been brought out yet at the Opéra Comique, where Mdlle. van Zandt, after recent successes at Monte Carlo, was expected back at the end of last month to resume her representations here.

At M. Colonne's Concert of the 7th ult. Madame Mottl, the wife of the distinguished Carlsruhe conductor, was once more the chief vocalist and greatly charmed her audience in airs by Mozart and Wagner, besides taking a solo part in César Franck's "La Rédemption." Madame Roger-Miclos, just returned from a most successful tour in Russia, gave a remarkably fine rendering of Mendelssohn's now seldom-heard Pianoforte Concerto in G minor. The following Concert, on the 14th ult., included a first hearing of a short choral and orchestral work, with two solo voices, entitled "Jeunesse," written to verses from the pen of M. Hettich by a young composer, M. Georges Hüe; a melodious and effectively scored work, pervaded by a delicate poetic feeling. Señor Sarasate, who was the solo violinist, was, as usual, immensely applauded, particularly in his rendering of the Rondo Capriccioso by Saint-Saëns.

The Lamoureux Concert of the 7th ult. included the first performance of "Nôtre Dâme de la Mer," a setting for soli, chorus, orchestra, and organ of verses by M. Louis Gallet, by M. Théodore Dubois; a semi-sacred work, which the audience received with great favour. The solo portions were ably interpreted by Mesdames Passama and Eléonore Blanc, MM. Silvain and Engel. The Concert also included excerpts from M. Vincent d'Indy's "Wallenstein" and an excellent interpretation of Beethoven's C minor Symphony. With the Concert of the 14th ult. the present series came to a close. It brought a second performance of M. Dubois' new work just referred to, and concluded with a fine performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, the solo quartet in which consisted of Mesdames Passama and E. Blanc, MM. Ghasne and Engel.

The library of the Conservatoire has been enriched lately by a most interesting addition—viz., the autograph score of a comic opera by Gluck, entitled "L'Arbre enchanté." It was written by the composer in Vienna, to the book of a French vaudeville by Vadé, and performed, under his direction, at the Court of Maria Theresa, in 1762. It was again produced in 1867, at the small theatre of the Fantaisies-Parisiennes, in Paris.

M. Vergnet, the well-known singer at the Opéra, has been appointed to the vocal professorship at the Conservatoire in the room of the late M. Saint-Yves Bax, whose pupil he had been.

M. Alexandre Guilmant's four annual grand Organ Concerts, with an orchestra under the direction of M. Gabriel Marie, and with the co-operation of the Saint Gervais Choir, are announced to take place in the course of next month. These Concerts have become quite a feature in the musical life of the capital, and it is largely owing to their initiative that the organ music of Bach, Handel, and other masters has become known to French audiences.

MUSIC IN AMERICA.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Home-brewed music seems to be making its way to the front. A good deal has been printed of late concerning the recognition which should be given to the American composer in his native land, and the exhortations of the newspaper critics seem to be having some effect. Of course, the Manuscript Societies of New York and Chicago proceed steadily with the work of bringing out American compositions; but they are handicapped by conditions which seem to force them into producing considerable chaff with only a moderate amount of wheat. The claims of members upon the favourable consideration of the programme committees, and the ever-present necessity of keeping such a society on good terms with itself, lead to the production of a good deal of material which is probably heard but once for all time. Lately, however, some professional people whose judgment is safe, and not influenced by prudential motives, have taken up the work of presenting American music that will stand on its own merits. For example, the Musical Quartet of Boston recently performed a new work by Mr. George W. Chadwick of that city. Mr. Arthur Whiting, also a Bostonian, recently had a Morning Communion and Evening Service of his sung at St. Bartholomew's Church, New York, and later the same Service, together with some anthems and an organ solo of his, were brought forward at a Recital. Still more recently Mr. Whiting was fortunate enough to get the Baton Orchestra to bring out a new Fantasia for pianoforte and orchestra, which has been highly commended. In New York, Miss Kate Percy Douglas, who has for many years been one of the most esteemed of New York's choir singers, and Mr. Henry K. Hadley, instructor in music at the Long Island Diocesan School, gave a Recital of American music at Mendelssohn Hall. Fifteen songs, by ten American composers, were sung, and Mr. Hadley contributed a Sonata for pianoforte and violin (playing the violin part himself), and two instrumental numbers by Mr. Arthur Foote, of Boston, were performed.

The Manuscript Society's last Concert programme included an Overture by Carl Feininger, some extracts from an unfinished opera by Rheinhold L. Hermann, a baritone solo by P. A. Schnecker, three movements from a Symphony by W. W. Gilchrist, of Philadelphia, a "Tone Poem," by Smith N. Penfield, and some songs by William R. Chapman. A ladies' string orchestra, which is working under the direction of Mr. Carl V. Lachmund, gave its first Concert early in February. Thirty players form the band, and their first efforts were made in an Andante Religioso by Massenet, a little Symphony by Jensen, and minor selections by Moszkowski and Krug.

The choir of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Brooklyn, has for years given special musical services once a month under the direction of the organist, Mr. Dudley Buck. At the service given on the first Sunday in February the following selections were performed: Processional Hymn 516 (Sullivan), Gloria in Excelsis (Henry Wilson), Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in A (G. C. Martin), Hymn 254 (Mason), Organ solo, Largo (Handel), Tenor solo, "Father on high, lend me Thine aid" (Gounod), Anthem to the Trinity (Abt), Duet, soprano and tenor (Mendelssohn), Anthem (Dudley Buck), Alto solo, "O rest in the Lord" (Mendelssohn), Chorus, "With glory clad" (Wagner). For eclecticism it would be hard to surpass this.

On February 24 a series of Vocal Chamber Concerts was begun in Boston, under the direction of Mr. George L. Osgood. At these Concerts Schumann's "Poet's Love" and "Woman's Love and Life," Schubert's "Winter Journey," Handel's "L'Allegro ed il Pensieroso," and Grell's Mass for sixteen solo voices are to be heard. The Handel and Haydn Society at Boston gave "Elijah," in the Music Hall, on February 7, with Mrs. Jennie Patrick Walker, Miss Grace Damian, Mr. Evan Williams, and Mr. Ffrangcon-Davies as the quartet; and on February 11 "St. Paul" was sung by the Oratorio Society of Baltimore, under the direction of Mr. Joseph Pache.

Speaking of Boston, there have lately been radical changes in the personnel of the faculty of the New England Conservatory of Music, the latest of which is the retirement of Mr. Carl Faelten, who has been the director of this Institution for a number of years. Mr. Faelten's place has been filled by the appointment of Mr. George W. Chadwick—a selection which seems to give general satisfaction. It has been known for some time that there was friction among the faculty and trustees of the Conservatory, but details have been kept from the public with most commendable discretion. A rival institution has been started in Boston.

It is said that the annual music festivals which have for so many years made the city of Worcester, Mass., prominent, are in danger of being killed by the excessive salaries which the management have been paying to "star" artists. It is alleged that singers like Mesdames Melba and Nordica are beyond the means of such an organisation as the Worcester Festival Association, and that their engagements have forced up the price of seats to a point where the public refuse to respond—hence a considerable balance this year on the wrong side. Those who are dissatisfied with the present state of things are calling upon the authorities of the Association to make more of the chorus and less of the soloists in future—a suggestion which seems timely, for the Worcester Festivals have certainly lost something of the character which they had when the Association relied more upon its own good work and less upon costly imported "attractions."

The number of special musical services given by church choirs has fallen off greatly within the past year or two, especially in and about New York. Many choirs which made a regular monthly practice of giving a cantata or short oratorio have abandoned the custom altogether. This, perhaps, is partly due to the necessity for economy which has overtaken so many churches of late. The only notable service of this kind given recently was that rendered by the choir of Calvary Church, New York, in February, when Sterndale Bennett's "Woman of Samaria" was sung. The second public Service of the American Guild of Organists was given in St. George's Church on February 25. Except in so far as the organ playing was concerned, the Service was not calculated to encourage either the members of the Guild or its friends. The anthem work was limited to Barnby's "King all glorious" and Woodward's "The radiant morn." Except these two numbers and a solo from "The Hymn of Praise," everything was of the simplest and most commonplace kind. A good deal of disappointment was expressed amongst the members of the Guild, who have been anxious that its Services should take a much higher place than they have so far done, and it is to be hoped that a decided improvement may result.

Miss Marie Motto, one of the most promising violinists of the Royal College of Music, gave her first Concert, on February 22, at St. James's Hall, when she made a most favourable impression on a numerous audience. Miss Motto has yet to acquire greater volume of tone, but it is pure in quality and delightfully sympathetic. She moreover phrases with clearness and intelligence, and has considerable command of expression. These qualities were advantageously displayed in Beethoven's "Kreutzer" Sonata, in which she had the valuable co-operation of Mr. Leonard Borwick. The young artist also gave a finished and refined rendering of the Andante and Rondo from Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole," and subsequently, with Messrs. Leonard Borwick, Alfred Hobday, and R. Purcell

Jones, led in a spirited and skilful manner an effective rendering of Brahms's Pianoforte Quartet in G minor (Op. 25). Mr. Plunket Greene added to the enjoyment of the afternoon by his fine interpretations of Schubert's "Erl-King" and Professor Stanford's settings of the Clown's songs from Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night."

The final examination for twelve free open Scholarships at the Royal College of Music took place at the end of February. The total number of candidates throughout the United Kingdom applying to attend the preliminary examination was 445. Of these 380 were examined by the honorary local examiners at ninety centres, and reduced to 113. Four competitors subsequently withdrew, and the remaining 109 attended the final examination at the College. The following are the names of the successful candidates:—Composition: Thomas F. Dunhill (Canterbury), J. Nicholson Ireland (Manchester). Organ: Percival B. Kahn (Hoxton). Pianoforte: Edith F. Ridgeon (Windsor), Ada M. Thomas (Chelsea). Singing: Arthur McD. Davy (Sheffield), Muriel Foster (Sunderland). Violin: Haydn Wood (Douglas), Patrick J. Jordan (Bradford). Violoncello: Cyril J. Clensy (Clapham). Hautboy: Herbert C. Goldie (Chelsea). Bassoon: Ernest W. Hinchliff (Kennington).

The West Ham Philharmonic Society, recently established to further the cause of instrumental performances in the district, gave its first Concert, on the 18th ult., at the Stratford Town Hall, with encouraging results. Mr. H. A. Donald, the conductor, has formed an orchestra of about eighty performers, ladies being exceedingly well represented in the string department, and there is evidence of zeal and attention to duty among the members. The more substantial works in the opening programme included Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, portions of the same master's "Rosamunde" music, Mendelssohn's Pianoforte Concerto in G minor (the solo played by Miss Elsie Horne) and "Ruy Blas" Overture, these and other pieces being interspersed by songs rendered by Miss Clara Williams and Mr. Samuel Masters. Mr. G. Bernard Gilbert was the accompanist. The performances generally were highly creditable to the new Society and were well received by a large audience.

Messrs. Ross and Moore, two clever young English pianists who have already made for themselves on the Continent a reputation as finished artists, gave a Pianoforte Recital, on the 1st ult., at the Queen's (Small) Hall. These gentlemen have made a specialty of duet playing, and they have cultivated this branch of the art to near approach to perfection. Mozart's Sonata in D and a dainty little Barcarolle by Moszkowski (the latter specially arranged by the composer for the concert-givers), and Henselt's familiar study, "Si oiseau j'étais," were rendered with the utmost delicacy of charm and expression combined with a unanimity of attack rarely heard in such performances. Sinding's Variations in E flat minor and Rubinstein's Staccato Study in C showed that Messrs. Ross and Moore's executive abilities were of a high order, the performance of the last-named piece being of a virtuoso-like character. Some songs were contributed by Miss Bertha Oppenheimer.

Five members of Mr. Tobias Matthay's class at the Royal Academy of Music gave a Pianoforte Recital, on the 3rd ult., at the Queen's (Small) Hall. The most promising pianist, whose playing possesses considerable attraction, was Miss Gertrude Peppercorn, who interpreted Beethoven's Sonata in C (Op. 53) and Chopin's Barcarolle (Op. 60) with notable executive facility and intelligence. Miss Florence Dawes and Miss Lillie West rendered respectively Saint-Saëns's Caprice on airs from Gluck's "Alceste" and Chopin's Sonata in B minor in a meritorious manner, and Miss Josephine Taylor played in a style which also reflected great credit on Mr. Matthay's method of tuition. The interest of the afternoon was increased by the singing of Mrs. Tobias Matthay and Mr. Arthur Appleby, the latter introducing a graceful new song entitled "The Rose Message," by Mr. Matthay.

Mr. Louis H. Hillier, at his annual Concert held at St. James's Hall, on the 12th ult., appeared both as composer and quartet leader. In the former capacity he provided Mdlle. Irma Sethe with three pleasing violin pieces, one of which, "Mazourke Mélancolique," was heard for the first time. These solos were admirably played by this accomplished artist. To Mdlle. Bertha Balthasar, a highly promising young pianist, was assigned another effective composition, "Sulla Laguna," by Mr. Hillier, which, after Bach's Chromatic Fantasia and Fugue, offered no difficulties to the executant. Misses Constance Bolton and Marie Cabrera were the vocalists. The Hillier Belgian String Quartet party neatly played the first movement of a Quartet in A, by Borodin, and a Quartet in C (first time here), by V. Ewald, the latter a somewhat thin and colourless production.

The Lombard Amateur Musical Society can claim respect for age as well as for efficiency. It was founded in 1872 for the practice of male-voice part-music, and some of the original members are still on the roll, whilst the conductor, Mr. Arthur H. D. Prendergast, has held that office since 1874. Though it dates back a quarter of a century, the Concert given at St. Martin's Town Hall, on February 25, proved that the Society can still refute any charge of being old-fashioned. Several pieces were sung with admirable spirit and precision. Notably was this the case in regard to two excerpts from Mendelssohn's "Festgesang"—the chorale "Let all creation praise the Lord" and the chorus "The Word went forth"—Mr. Prendergast's neat setting of Shakespeare's "Take, oh take those lips away" (which had to be repeated), and Spofforth's bright "Health to my dear."

Mr. Johann Davids, a youthful violinist, made a good impression both in solo pieces and in duets at his Concert in Queen's (Small) Hall, on February 25. His tone was excellent and throughout he played with freedom and refinement. Command of sentiment was effectively manifested in Bazzini's "Elegy" and in Svendsen's elegant "Romance," whilst qualities of another description became apparent in his share with the pianist, Mdlle. Douste de Fortis, of a movement from Rubinstein's Sonata in A minor and a piece called "Le Départ," by G. de Coutin. Mr. William Nicholl sang with all his accustomed delicacy and finish Brahms's "Wie bist du, meine Königin," and Gounod's "Berceuse." In Tosti's "Mattinata" and Gomez's familiar "Mia piccirella" Miss Jeanne Douste exhibited equal ability in different styles.

Miss Edith Miller obtained the assistance of some popular artists for her Concert at the Queen's (Small) Hall, on February 25. Her own selections were marked by judgment, being attractive in themselves and excellently adapted to her powers. To Martini's "Piacer d'amor," Rousseau's "Se tu m'ami," and the air from "Samson et Delilah," "Mon cœur s'ouvre à ta voix," she imparted in ample degree the peculiar grace and feeling demanded for each. Madame Clara Samuell ably gave a couple of songs by Max Stange, Signor N. Zardo distinguished himself in an Italian version of Schumann's "Two Grenadiers," and Mr. Hayden Coffin also sang. In the performance of Wieniawski's Polonaise in D by the youthful violinist, Maurice Alexander, more than ordinary promise was manifested.

The sixth Welsh National Festival was held at St. Paul's Cathedral, on the evening of February 27. The Cathedral was crowded and the fervour with which the vast Welsh congregation sang the hymns was a noble example of what congregational singing should be. Before the anthem "Felly y carodd Duw y byd" ("God so loved the world"), by Mr. William Davies (the conductor), Mr. Ben Davies sang most impressively "O ye that love the Lord," from Dr. Joseph Parry's "Emmanuel," and immediately after the sermon "Be thou faithful unto death" ("St. Paul")—both in Welsh, of course. The Magnificat and Nunc dimittis were sung to the setting in F by Mr. David J. Thomas (organist at these Festivals), who had again specially trained the thirty boys who took part in the Service.

Miss Marie Olson, Miss Ethel Barns, and Mr. Charles Phillips gave a pleasing Pianoforte, Violin, and Song Recital on February 25, at St. James's Hall. The two ladies opened the Recital with a meritorious performance of Brahms's Sonata in D minor, and subsequently played several solos, the most important being Bach's familiar Chaconne, which was interpreted with notable skill by Miss Barns, and Beethoven's "Appassionata" Sonata, which was intelligently rendered by Miss Olson. Mr. Charles Phillips, who possesses a baritone voice of pleasing quality, sang with admirable finish and refined expression an excellent selection of high-class songs, amongst them being a new and graceful lyric entitled "Like to the damask rose," by Mr. Edward Elgar.

Mr. Alfred Maurice gave a Concert at Steinway Hall, on the 17th ult., when the agreeable quality of his tenor voice was effectively displayed in several songs, of which sentiment was the main characteristic. Among these pieces were "My Queen" and "The last watch," each rendered with considerable taste. Miss Luranah Aldridge's contributions included Mrs. Raymond Maude's "As shines the sun" and Miss Allitsen's "A Song of Thanksgiving," and the two vocalists joined in a finished performance of the duet "Home to our mountains," from "Il Trovatore." Mr. Jasper Sutcliffe, the violinist, very successfully played Hauser's "Hungarian" Dance, and Mrs. Claude Ravenhill was of great service at the pianoforte, both as soloist and accompanist.

Mr. Randegger's Amateur Orchestra, which now consists of over 110 executants, more than a third of whom are ladies, gave a meritorious Concert on the 10th ult., at the Imperial Institute. The orchestral selection included the last two movements of Dvorák's genial Fourth Symphony in G (Op. 88), one of the most characteristic and pleasing of this composer's orchestral works; Moszkowski's vivacious suite "From foreign lands," and Auber's Overture to "La Sirène." Mr. E. James played a solo on the bassoon, in which the capabilities of that instrument, grotesque and otherwise, were cleverly displayed, and Mdlle. Aimée Ferdinand sang several solos with much acceptance.

A pleasing little operetta in one act, entitled "The Lady Lawyer," was produced, on the 8th ult., at the Garrick Theatre. The libretto, written by Mr. G. D. Lynch, sets forth in diverting fashion the consequences which are not unlikely to occur when ladies shall be licensed to practise as solicitors. The music, provided by Mr. J. Ivimey, is melodious and appropriately gay. It includes a tasteful song, entitled "What can a maiden do?" an amusing burlesque of an Italian serenade, and a well-written trio, all of which are neatly scored. The little work was brightly played by Miss Mary Collette, Miss K. Adams, Mr. Shallard, and Mr. F. Walsh, and had a cordial reception.

A Concert was given at the Constitutional Hall, Harlesden, on the 2nd ult., by Mr. H. G. Bensted, when the chief feature in the programme was the one-act opera, by Arthur Fox, entitled "The King of the Road," first performed some months since by the West London Conservatoire of Music. The parts were successfully undertaken by Miss Kate Bensted, Miss Gertrude Laurence, Mr. E. J. Bensted, and Mr. H. Lane Wilson, and the accompaniments were played by a small string orchestra, conducted by Mr. Stroud Wilson. The opera was preceded by a miscellaneous selection, in which Miss Agnes Wilson, in addition to the above-named artists, took part.

The Orchestral Concert given on Tuesday afternoon, February 23, by Miss Eileen O'Moore, at St. James's Hall, was justified by its results. The young artist has an excellent bow arm, and rendered pieces by Ernst, Spohr, and Tschaïkowsky with mingled vigour and refinement. Miss O'Moore is an executant who will be heard on the concert platform with pleasure whenever she elects to appear. The orchestra, which was skilfully conducted by Mr. G. H. Betjemann, gave effective renderings of Weber's Overture to "Oberon" and Mr. F. H. Cowen's four charming and dainty "English Dances in the Olden Style," which deserve to be more often heard.

The Kyrle Choir, under the direction of Mr. F. A. W. Docker, gave a performance of "St. Paul," on February 24, in St. Bride's, Fleet Street. The soloists were Miss Ella Bennett, Miss Keith Ferguson, Mr. John Probert, and Mr. Frederic Hosking. Mr. Herbert Cooke accompanied. A performance of Bach's "Passion" according to St. John was given by the Choir, on the 17th ult., in St. Augustin's, Bermondsey, followed by Mendelssohn's "Hear my Prayer" and "Judge me, O God." The soloists were Miss Cecilia Gray, Miss E. Morris, Mr. James Horncastle, Mr. Robert Greir, and Mr. Frederic Hosking. Dr. Turpin accompanied.

At the City of London College, on the 18th ult., Mr. F. Cunningham Woods's cantata "King Harold" was performed by the choir and orchestra of the College, having been scored for strings by Mr. W. P. Rivers. The solo vocalists were Miss Daisy Clarke, Miss Blake, Mr. Grant Fallowes, and Mr. F. W. Carter, and the conductor, Mr. W. G. Rothery. Among the choruses, the Camp Scene in Act 2, with its effective Monks' Chant, was specially noticeable. The miscellaneous selection which followed included Eaton Faning's "Song of the Vikings" and Barnby's patriotic chorus "Victoria—our Queen!"

The eighth season of Mr. Joseph Ivimey's Popular Chamber Concerts, at the Assembly Rooms, Surbiton, was concluded on the 13th ult., when the programme included Brahms's Trio in E flat (Op. 40) for pianoforte, horn, and violin, Schumann's Duet (Op. 70) for pianoforte and violin, and Beethoven's Septet (Op. 20). The players were Messrs. Joseph and John W. Ivimey, A. Hobday, A. Blagrove, J. Bishop, A. Borsdorf, W. H. Hall, and E. Hall. Miss Thudichum was the vocalist. This was the sixty-fourth Concert, and it is probably a "record" amongst suburban Chamber Concerts.

The People's Palace Choral Society at Mile End varied its commendable performances of sacred works by giving Gounod's "Faust," on the 13th ult. Mr. C. H. Allen Gill, the indefatigable conductor, must again be congratulated upon the discipline evinced by the choralists, who throughout sang with spirit and perception of the dramatic features of their task, whilst remaining well under control. The solos were creditably rendered by Miss Amy Sargent (Margaret), Miss Ethel Barnard (Siebel), Mr. Faithful Pearce (Faust), Mr. Daniel Price (Mephistopheles), and Mr. Arthur Walenn (Valentine).

Dr. Philip Armes delivered two Lectures at Trinity College, on the 16th and 17th ult. respectively, and chose for his subject, "Progress and toleration in art." The lecturer said little but what is perfectly well known to cultured music-lovers, but his remarks contained some good advice to students. His comments on the imperfections of musical instruments of former days might be questioned by antiquarian musicians, although some would be inclined to agree with him that our progress in certain branches of composition is not so great as is commonly imagined.

Mr. George H. Sothers was, on the 15th ult., the recipient of some gratifying testimonials on his retirement from the honorary choirmastership of St. Andrew's Church, Stoke Newington, the duties of which he has ably discharged during the last twelve years. The congregation presented Mr. Sothers with a grandfather's clock, and the gentlemen of the choir gave a richly embellished album containing their photographs and autographs, while Mrs. Sothers received a silver candelabra.

Mr. J. Spencer Curwen has just been addressing meetings of music teachers in people's classes and elementary schools at Newcastle, Durham, Leeds, Manchester, Bradford, Keighley, Harrogate, Barnsley, Dewsbury, Halifax, and Scarborough. Over 6,000 teachers attended these meetings, at which the processes of ear, voice, and eye training for musical perception and performance were illustrated. At each meeting a leading local professor tested the pupils.

Special performances of opera, similar to those so much appreciated by the public last year, are announced to take place in May next at the Royal Theatre of Wiesbaden, when Verdi's "Aïda," Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde" and "Rheingold," as well as Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream" with Mendelssohn's music will be given. All these works will have been entirely remounted, and will be under the experienced conductorship of Herr Schuch, of Dresden.

Under the direction of Mr. Maskell Hardy, the choir of the Stockwell Pupil Teachers' Centre gave a Concert, at St. John's Hall, Brixton, on February 25, when "The May Queen" was splendidly rendered, Madame Edwards, Mr. Nash, Miss Walsh, and Mr. Grier being the principal vocalists. Mr. Alfred Richards led a very efficient orchestra. Miss Lilian Gordon, Miss Maud Armstrong, and Miss Mildred Wood were at the pianoforte.

Madame Blanche Marchesi gave, on the 22nd ult., the first of two Vocal Recitals at St. James's Hall. This lady sang a comprehensive selection of songs by Handel, Schubert, Brahms, César Franck, Moret, and Blumenthal, with the utmost finish and refinement, and was several times called upon to repeat her charming interpretations. A feature of the afternoon was the brilliant and expressive rendering of some violoncello solos by Herr Henry Bramsen.

Miss Winifred Hewitt, a young English violinist and pupil of M. Johannes Wolff, made a very successful début at the Steinway Hall, on the 19th ult. This lady, who is only eighteen, played with marked ability and taste a comprehensive selection of violin music of various schools, and with further study should acquire a prominent position in her art. The vocalists were Madame Alice Gomez and Mr. Charles Copland.

At the weekly Lenten Services at St. Mark's, Kennington, performances have been given of Rossini's "Stabat Mater," on the 10th and 24th ult., and of Gounod's "Mors et Vita," on the 17th ult., both with full orchestra. The solos were sung by members of the choir, assisted by Miss Georgina Tear and Mr. Justin Bryant. The organist was Mr. Hamilton Robinson, and the conductor, Mr. Warren Tear.

The Royal Maundy Service will be held, as usual, in Westminster Abbey, on the 15th inst. The music to be sung on that occasion will include Handel's Coronation anthem, "Zadok the Priest," and a new anthem composed specially by Dr. J. F. Bridge, entitled "Sing unto the Lord a new Song," the words having been selected by the Rev. Dr. Troutbeck, Precentor of Westminster Abbey.

The choir of West Hampstead Congregational Church gave a successful performance of Gounod's "Out of darkness" and Rossini's "Stabat Mater," on the 10th ult., under the direction of the clever young organist of the church, Mr. G. D. Cunningham. The soloists were Miss Winifred Peake, Mrs. A. Williams, Messrs. Herbert Emlyn, Reynolds Wood, and F. Ranalow.

In the recent libel action, Benjamin v. Lindlar, tried before the Lord Chief Justice, in which the plaintiff claimed £3,000 damages, the jury stopped the case, and Lord Russell gave judgment in favour of the defendant, who is the London representative of Mr. Bechstein, the eminent pianoforte manufacturer.

A Handel Festival will be again held this year in Mainz, where, in July next, the master's oratorio "Esther," in Dr. Chrysander's version, is to be performed, as well as "Acis and Galatea" and the "Ode to St. Cecilia." The conductors will be Capellmeister Fritz Volbach and Professor Kretzschmar.

An Organ Recital was given by Mr. Harold E. Mackinlay, in Islington Presbyterian Church, on February 25, when the programme included pieces by J. S. Bach, Schubert, Mendelssohn, G. F. Kendall, E. F. Chipp, and S. S. Wesley.

Trinity College, London, will, in July, despatch two examiners to conduct examinations in instrumental and vocal music beyond the seas. Dr. Gordon Saunders will go to South Africa and Dr. Charles Vincent is to visit Australia and New Zealand.

The Guildhall School of Music, in order to encourage the study of good music amongst the employés in the city, has arranged to institute an evening orchestral class for both sexes, to be held on Monday evenings, at 6.30 p.m.

The University of Durham has instituted a Chair in music, to the occupancy of which Dr. Philip Armes has been appointed.

Mr. H. Warner-Hollis, the well-known flautist, has een appointed one of Her Majesty's musicians in ordinary.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Amsterdam.—Hans Sommer's remarkable opera "Der Meermann," with a Dutch translation of the libretto, was produced here on the 5th ult., and most favourably received.

Antwerp.—Humperdinck's "Hänsel and Gretel," in the excellent French version of M. Catulle Mendés, was produced, for the first time, at the Royal Theatre, on the 2nd ult., under M. Giraud's direction, and received, as elsewhere, with high favour.——At a Concert given on February 21, by the "Dames de la Charité," a most successful performance was given, under the composer's direction, of M. Tinel's "Te Deum" and the cantata "Drie Ridders," the solo part in which was interpreted by M. F. van Dyck, a brother of the Viennese tenor.

Athens.—An operetta with a patriotic subject, "The Isle of Crete," is the source of much demonstrative enthusiasm just now at the Royal Theatre. It introduces a number of popular airs, a leading feature being a chorus of Cretan insurgents in their picturesque national costume.

Augsburg.—A new opera, "Der Strike der Schmiede" ("The Blacksmiths' Strike"), by Max Josef Beer, the libretto by Victor Léon, after the poem by F. Coppée, was brought out here on February 28, and achieved a great success.

Berlin.—The last Philharmonic Concert of the season, conducted by Herr Nikisch, took place on the 8th ult., and included Schumann's Symphony in B flat major, Wagner's "Siegfried" Idyl, and Beethoven's C minor Symphony. Miss Camilla Landi, who was the vocalist on this occasion, was greatly applauded in songs by Berlioz, Fauré, and Grieg. The lady has appeared in several Concerts here, and has gained the favour of Berlin audiences to an altogether exceptional degree. Herr Nikisch, under whose baton these Concerts have again attained something of the popularity they enjoyed when under the direction of the late Von Bülow, received at the conclusion a perfect ovation from the numerous audience, in which the orchestral members joined. A first performance here of Tinel's "Franciscus" was announced to be given, on the 29th ult., by the Philharmonic Choir, under the zealous direction of Herr Siegfried Ochs.——A ladies trio, led by the excellent violinist, Frau Scharwenka-Stresow, has just been formed here, and gave its first Concert on the 5th ult.——Herr Adolph Wilhelmj, son of the eminent violinist, appeared at a charitable Concert recently organized at the Lessing Theatre, and created a very favourable impression as a violinist of considerable attainments. Among the numerous pianists giving recitals in the capital recently, the most successful has undoubtedly been M. Risler, of Paris, whose claim to be placed in the front rank of performers on his instrument is admitted on all hands.——Frau Amalie Joachim, who retires from her vocal professorship at the Scharwenka Conservatorium in October next, will be succeeded by Fräulein Lina Beck, for the last twelve years an esteemed teacher at Julius Stockhausen's Gesangschule, in Frankfort.

Bremen.—Humperdinck's new "dramatised fairy tale" "Die Königskinder" was brought out at the Stadt-Theater, on February 26, when it met with an even more enthusiastic reception than at its recent first production at Munich. There have been numerous subsequent performances of the charming work since.

Brussels.—The success, at the Théâtre de la Monnaie, of Miss Brema has been so complete, and the desire to retain her here longer so general, that she has abandoned a projected visit to Berlin, and has given a series of additional performances in "Die Walküre," "Samson et Dalila," and Gluck's "Orphée."——Herr Felix Mottl, who conducted several Concerts here recently, has been received with enthusiasm, and both he and his wife have gained many new friends during their stay in the Belgian capital.

Budapesth.—The 100th performance was signalised, on February 22, at the Royal Theatre, of Goldmark's opera "Die Königin von Saba." There was a most enthusiastic audience; the composer, a Hungarian by birth, was present and was made the recipient of a series of ovations on the part of his countrymen. Herr Erkel conducted a very excellent performance.——Herr Joseph Grossmann, formerly conductor of the Opera here, has been engaged by the impresario Darval for an extensive concert tour, with an orchestra of seventy members, in France and Spain, for the purpose of introducing the works of Brahms, Bruckner, Dvorák, Liszt, and Smetana in those countries.

Coblenz.—An opera, "Meister Martin," by the late J. Lacombe, was produced here on the 7th ult., and very favourably received.

Cremona.—A new one-act opera entitled "Ranvald" was produced at the Ponchielli Theatre, on February 22, with considerable success. The composer, who conducted, is Signor Michele d'Allessander, a young musician of much promise.

Dresden.—In accordance with the annual custom, a Sacred Concert was given on Ash Wednesday, at the Royal Theatre, when, for the first time here, Berlioz's Requiem was performed by the members of the Philharmonic Choir, the Singakademie, and other Dresden Societies, under the conductorship of Herr Curt Hösel, the performance being greatly appreciated.——At the Royal Theatre a one-act opera, "Haschisch," was brought out on February 17, and, albeit not a very remarkable production, was received with some favour. The composer, who has adopted the pseudonym of Siegfried Berger, is Herr von Chelius, a cavalry officer, and one of the founders of the Berlin Wagner Society. The little work is also shortly to be produced at Berlin and at Carlsruhe by Herr Mottl. Herr Bungert's "Odysseus" continues to be an attraction at the Royal Theatre.——Mr. Frederick Fairbanks, a resident pianist of considerable reputation, has been appointed to a senior professorship at the Royal Conservatorium.

Düsseldorf.—The first German performance of Peter Benoit's "Lucifer" was given on the 3rd ult., by the Musikverein here, conducted by Herr Buths. The important choral portions of the work were very effectively rendered, the part of Lucifer being well sung by Herr van Eweyk, of Berlin, and the performance was a complete success.

Frankfort-on-Main.—Frau Schroeder-Hunfstaengl, the well-known prima donna, formerly of the Paris Théâtre Lyrique, and for the last fifteen years the leading soprano at the Stadt-Theater here, has just retired from the operatic stage. The lady, who was one of the most distinguished pupils of Madame Viardot-Garcia, will, however, continue to exercise her profession as a teacher.——Fräulein Frieda Simonson, a gifted young pianist, one of the last pupils of the late Madame Schumann, gave a Concert here recently, and in pieces by Schumann, Brahms, Chopin, and Liszt proved herself an artist of considerable attainments, in the opinion both of a numerous audience and of her critics in the press.——An excellent and life-like marble bust of the late Clara Schumann, the work of Professor Hausmann, has been presented by Herr M. W. Oppenheim to the Museum Society here. It has been placed in the Concert-room of the Saalbau, where, on January 23, 1891, the great artist gave her last public performance, taking part in her husband's Pianoforte Quartet in E flat major.

Hamburg.—A marble bust of the late Hans von Bülow, so closely associated with the musical life of this town, was unveiled in the foyer of the Stadt-Theater, on February 12, the anniversary of the death of the artist, the ceremony including the performance of the Funeral Dirge from "Götterdämmerung," under the direction of Herr Mahler. The bust, modelled by the sculptor Hermann Hars, is the gift of a distinguished amateur, Dr. H. Behn.

Lisbon.—The season at the San Carlos Theatre is now in full swing. On February 24 Massenet's "Manon" was given for the first time here, and received with great enthusiasm, Madame Darclée singing the part of the heroine.

Lyons.—Wagner's "Die Meistersinger," produced here for the first time in France, continues to be a source of attraction which augurs well for the forthcoming performance of the work in the capital.

Madrid.—Herr Fritz Steinbach, the well-known Meiningen musical director, conducted during the past month a series of six Symphonic Concerts of the Sociedad de Conciertos, before highly appreciative audiences, amongst whom was the Queen Regent of Spain.

Magdeburg.—The Brandt'sche Gesangverein celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of its existence on the 3rd ult., with a highly successful performance of Tinel's "St. Franciscus," under the direction of the founder of the society, Dr. Brandt.

Mainz.—Dr. Otto Neitzel's opera "Der alte Dessauer" was brought out at the Municipal Theatre, on February 24, with much success.

Mannheim.—In the presence of a crowded audience "Götterdämmerung" was given, on the 7th ult., newly mounted and uncurtailed, under Herr von Reznicek's direction, and with Herr Krug, of Munich, as an excellent Siegfried.——Mr. Eugene d'Albert, just returned from a most successful tour in Russia, is here, superintending the final rehearsals of his opera "Gernot."

Monte Carlo.—Mr. Isidore de Lara's new opera "Moina" was produced for the first time, on the 15th ult., at the theatre here, and with a cast including Signora Emma Bellincioni, MM. Van Dyck, Maurel, and Melchissedech, and an excellent orchestra conducted by M. Jehin, obtained a highly favourable reception. The scene of the opera is laid in Ireland, in the last century, and appeals largely to Irish sympathies, the libretto being from the pen of M. Louis Gallet. The score, on the other hand, is well written for the voice, and contains some very effective numbers. The composer met with a most flattering reception from the numerous audience, which included the Prince and Princess of Monaco and many members of the British aristocracy.

Munich.—At one of the recent "Kaim Concerts," under Herr Zumpe's able direction, the "Romantic" Symphony of the late Anton Bruckner was introduced for the first time to Munich audiences, and produced so deep an impression that its performance had to be repeated on two subsequent occasions. The prediction of the friends of the long neglected Viennese master, that appreciation would come with his death, would seem to be in a fair way of realisation.——The three-act opera "Theuerdank," by Professor Thuille, which obtained the first prize in the competition instituted last year by the Prince Regent of Bavaria, was produced at the Royal Opera for the first time, on the 7th ult., and well received. At the same establishment most interesting performances are now being given of Mozart's charming early opera "Die Entführung aus dem Serail," under the direction of Herr Richard Strauss. The work has been most carefully mounted by the intendant, Herr Possart, and is produced entirely in accordance with the original score.

Padua.—Ambroise Thomas's "Midsummer Night's Dream" was produced here for the first time on the 1st ult., with much success, many numbers being redemanded. Signor Coradetti was the Shakespeare, Signor Sottolana the Falstaff, Signora Annita Barone sang the part of Queen Elisabeth and Signora Ida Samper that of Olivia.

Palestrina.—A Musical Academy, founded by an amateur, Signor Cialdea, was opened last month with appropriate solemnities, in this the native town of the great master of polyphony, Giovanni Pierluigi da Palestrina.

Posen.—Excellent performances were given on February 16 and 18, by the Gesangverein, under Professor Hennig's direction, of Tinel's Oratorio "St. Franciscus," there being a crowded and enthusiastic audience on both occasions.

Prague.—An event of some interest was the first performance, on February 20, at the German Theatre, of August Enna's new opera "Aucassin und Nicolette," which had been looked forward to for some time past. It met, however, with but a lukewarm reception, and it would seem that the great hopes raised in many quarters by the Danish composer's successful first opera, "Die Hexe," were not destined to be fulfilled; at all events, with the present work. Another interesting novelty, now in preparation here, is the one-act comic opera entitled "Meister Petz," by Herr Kraft-Lortzing, a grandson of the composer of "Czar and Carpenter," and of many another still popular comic opera.

St. Petersburg.—The concert season of the Imperial Musical Society terminated on February 13, the programme being devoted entirely to Schubert, in honour of the centenary of the master. Herr Erdmannsdörfer, who had conducted the series, at the same time took leave of the public, greatly to their regret, to assume his duties as conductor at the Munich Opera.

Stockholm.—Herr Johannes Elmblad, for some years past manager of the Breslau Theatre, has been appointed Intendant of the Royal Opera. Herr Elmblad, who is a highly experienced operatic singer, took part in some of the Bayreuth performances under Wagner.

Stuttgart.—Special performances are announced to take place, from the 31st ult. to the 4th inst., at the Royal Conservatorium, in celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the foundation of that institution. Herr Max Pauer, of Cologne, has been appointed to the pianoforte professorship vacated by the recent death of Herr Dionys Pruckner.

The Hague.—Edward Grieg has been enormously fêted in recent Concerts in which he took part at Amsterdam, and in one given on the 3rd ult. by the Diligentia Society here, when he conducted a number of his orchestral compositions, while some of his pianoforte works and songs were interpreted by M. Raoul Pugno and Mesdames Blaauw and Carver respectively. The Norwegian master was elected an honorary member of this, the leading musical society of Holland, and received a decoration at the hands of the youthful Queen, who, with her mother, was present at the Concert.

Turin.—Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde," produced here for the first time on February 14, with considerable success, appears at last to be making its way on the Italian lyrical stage, the work being now in course of mounting at Rome, Milan, Florence, and Naples.

Vienna.—A very successful performance of the complete "Nibelungen" cycle was given in the last week of February, at the Imperial Opera, under Dr. Richter, with Mesdames Telecky and Von Ehrenstein, Herren Van Dyck, Grengg, and Horwitz in leading parts. The 150th performance of "Don Giovanni" was recorded at this house on the 9th ult., a significantly low figure, especially as compared with the 400th production of "Il Barbiere," signalised here a few days later. The tenor, Herr Giessen, of Wiesbaden, has been engaged at the Opera, after several trial performances. His real name, it may not be uninteresting to state, is Buff, he being a descendant of Charlotte Buff, the original of Lotte in Goethe's "Werther." —— Dr. Richter was the recipient of numerous felicitations on the occasion of his conducting his 200th Concert of the Viennese Philharmonic Society, on February 21, when a banquet was also given in his honour.——A three-act operetta, "The Cognac King," the libretto by Scribe, arranged by Victor Léon, the music by Franz Wagner, has been very successfully brought out at the Carl Theater.——Frau Amalie Materna, the celebrated prima donna, who last year retired with a considerable fortune from the lyrical stage, has, somewhat to the surprise of her numerous admirers, just established herself in the Austrian capital as a teacher of her art. The lady proposes to devote herself to the training of advanced female pupils for the operatic career, more especially as regards Wagnerian parts, in which she has been herself so eminently successful.——Dom-Capellmeister Gottfried Preyer, the distinguished theoretical musician, the friend of Schubert, celebrated his ninetieth birthday, on the 15th ult., in vigorous condition of both mind and body. He has been living in retirement for some years past.——The Schubert Exhibition was closed on February 28. All the copies of Herr Glossy's admirable catalogue of that unique collection have been disposed of, and are said to be now at a premium.——A new operetta by Johann Strauss, entitled "The Goddess of Reason," was brought out here on the 13th ult., and proved highly successful. The score, containing many effective and melodious numbers, is considered equal to some of the veteran composer's best work.

Weimar.—There is to be a fresh change in the second conductorship at the Court Theatre, Herr Wolfram, who had been appointed only some six months ago, being about to leave. The recent engagement here of Fräulein Marie Joachim, a daughter of the great violinist, is likewise shortly to be terminated, a fact the more inexplicable since the success of that lady in important parts, such as Leonore in "Fidelio," and Brünnhilde in "Die Walküre," has been considerable.

The Joint Hymnal Committee of the Presbyterian Churches has appointed Mr. Henry Frowde, of the Oxford University Press, to publish the new Hymnal.

OBITUARY.

We regret to record the death of Mendelssohn's last surviving son, which occurred at Brugg, Switzerland, on February 23. Carl Wolfgang Paul Mendelssohn Bartholdy (his second name probably after Mozart) was the eldest of the composer's five children, and was born at Leipzig, February 7, 1838. There are several charming references to him and his brothers and sisters in their father's characteristic letters. One of these, dated "Frankfort, January 29, 1845," may be quoted. "I always work in the morning. At ten Carl comes to me for an hour and reads and does sums with me. In the afternoon, at five, I try to teach him spelling and geography; but I find in trying to teach him that I have forgotten all I ever learnt. Marie is learning the scale of C. I had even forgotten that, and was teaching her to pass her thumb under the wrong finger, till Cecile [Mendelssohn's wife] came in and was quite shocked!" Having matriculated at Heidelberg, in 1857, the deceased became lecturer there in 1864. From 1867 to 1873 he was Professor of History at Freiburg, in Breisgau (Baden). Dr. Carl Mendelssohn had excellent literary gifts. He twice travelled in Greece, and wrote a "History of Modern Greece" (two volumes). In addition to historical articles regularly contributed to periodical literary reviews, he wrote a monograph on "Kapodistrias," "Letters to a Statesman," &c. In England he is best known as the joint-editor of his father's "Letters, from 1833 to 1847," and the author of "Goethe and Mendelssohn." The strain of his lectures and literary occupations compelled him to resign his Professorship in 1873. In the following year his health completely broke down, and he never recovered. Dr. Carl Mendelssohn, who was twice married, leaves a widow and two children. His son is very clever and very musical.

With regret we record the death, on the 4th ult., at West Norwood, at the age of seventy-five, of John Matthew Wilson Young, for forty-five years the esteemed organist of Lincoln Cathedral. He obtained his musical instruction as a chorister under Henshaw, then organist of Durham Cathedral, and in 1842 obtained a musical professorship at the York Training College. In 1850 he was appointed organist of Lincoln Cathedral, in which position he rendered most valuable service in organising the festivals of the Lincoln and Peterborough choirs. Two years ago, owing to failing health, he resigned. He was the composer of a cantata, "The return of Israel to Palestine," and of several anthems and other compositions for the Church. At the interment, which took place at Lincoln, a full choral service was held in the Cathedral, including the fine anthem "O Lord God of my salvation," composed by the deceased musician, impressively rendered by the choir, accompanied on the organ by Dr. G. J. Bennett, Mr. Young's successor at Lincoln.

Professor Woldemar Bargiel, one of the directors of the Royal Hochschule für Musik, an earnest musician and composer of some distinction, died at Berlin on February 23. He was born at Berlin on October 3, 1828, his father, a music teacher, having married the widow of Friedrich Wieck. He was thus half-brother to the late Clara Schumann. After studying at the Leipzig Conservatorium, under Moscheles and Gade, Bargiel for some years occupied a professorship at the Conservatorium of Cologne, and for ten years, from 1864-74, was the director of the Maatschappy tot Bevorderung van Toonkunst, in Rotterdam. In the latter year he was called to Berlin, as professor at the Hochschule, and eventually became director of the composition classes of that Institution and member of the senate of the Royal Academy of Arts. As a composer, Bargiel has followed in the direction pointed by Schumann, especially in the later compositions of that master; and though the work of a gifted and thoughtful musician, his numerous compositions cannot be said to have met with very general appreciation. They include a Symphony in C major, the Overtures "Prometheus" and "Medea," both of which have been occasionally produced at the Crystal Palace Concerts; a number of chamber works, including a Trio in D minor, played at the Monday Popular Concerts; an Adagio for violoncello, a favourite with virtuosos on that instrument; and the 23rd Psalm for female voices, frequently heard in German concert-rooms. The deceased artist was a brother-in-law of the late Mr. Berthold Tours.

Paul Mériel, the director of the Toulouse Conservatoire, died in that town on February 24, at the age of seventy-nine. Born at Montdoubleau, in the department of Loir-et-Cher, he played the violin in provincial orchestras when only twelve years of age, and seven years later became an orchestral conductor at Lisbon. While in the latter place he went through a course of serious studies under the Italian Maëstro, Alessandro Napoleano, and on his return to his native France produced a number of works, including a Symphony entitled "Tasso"; a comic opera, "Cornélius L'Argentier"; the grand opera "L'Armorique," of which he had himself written the libretto; and an oratorio, "Cain." The success of these works procured him the post of Maître de chapelle at the Toulouse Cathedral, and in 1875 he was appointed director of the Conservatoire, an institution which by his zeal and devotion has been raised to a position of eminence in provincial France.

Teodulo Mabellini, distinguished composer of operas and of church music, one of the few remaining representatives of the older Italian school, died at Florence, on the 10th ult., having nearly completed his eightieth year.

The death is announced, on the 4th ult., at Lugano, where he had resided for the last few years, of Georges Fréderic Noufflard, an able and conscientious musical author and critic, aged fifty-one.

Madame Cornélie Malançon, better known as Cornélie Falcon, the once admired Paris prima donna, whose brilliant career was so short-lived, the original Valentine in "Les Huguenots," died in Paris, on February 26, at the advanced age of eighty-three.

The death occurred, on February 17, at Vienna, of Carl Pfeffer, the excellent chorus-director of the Imperial Opera. He was in his sixty-fourth year, and had held his responsible post for thirty years. He was the composer of a number of songs, some of which have obtained popularity, of a Mass, and of the operas "Harold" and "Das Nordlicht," which have not been unsuccessful.

A nephew of Franz Schubert, the landscape painter, Heinrich Schubert, died recently at Vienna. He was born in 1827. His father, Carl Schubert, likewise a painter, and a year older than his brother Franz, having died in 1855.

G. B. Rodway, promoter of the Winter Entertainments at Liverpool, and director of several similar enterprises in the locality, died at his residence in Birkenhead Park, after a short illness, on the 18th ult. Deceased was a member of the legal profession, but had been for many years intimately associated with music.

We have also to record the following deaths:—

On February 12, at Boston (Mass.), Edna A. Hall, concert singer and vocal teacher.

On February 13, at Rome, Enrico Tignani, violoncellist, professor at the Liceo Rossini, Pesaro.

On February 16, at Florence, Gaetano Coccetti, well-known operatic impresario, aged eighty.

On February 17, at Moscow, Carl Herdtmann, for sixty-two years organist at the Lutheran Church.

On February 17, at Naples, Luigi Mazzone, composer of church music, musical author, editor of the Gazetta Musicale, aged seventy-seven.

On February 18, at Gotha, Wilhelm Spittel, musical director, professor at the Seminary.

On February 18, at Loebau (Saxony), August Foerster, founder of the well-known pianoforte manufacturing firm, aged sixty-eight.

On February 25, at Mexico, Vicenzo Quintilio, director of the Conservatoire, a native of Italy.

On February 28, at Stockholm, Leonard Labatt, once highly popular tenor at Dresden and Vienna Operas, aged fifty-nine.

On the 2nd ult., at Pressburg, Joseph Thiard-Laforest, Capellmeister at the Cathedral, aged fifty-four.

On the 7th ult., at Agram, Albert von Stryga, famous interpreter of Croatian national songs, aged sixty-five.

Recently, at Heilbronn, Gerhard Ludwig Nagel, Court pianoforte maker.

On the 6th ult., at Toulouse, Baron Henri de Montarieu, successful composer of operettas, aged sixty-two.

On the 11th ult., at Paris, Jules Philipot, composer of the comic opera "Le Magnifique" and numerous pianoforte pieces, aged seventy-three.

On the 13th ult., at Leipzig, Heinrich Behr, formerly distinguished operatic basso, afterwards director of theatres at Cologne and Bremen, aged seventy-five.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

G. T. (Ludlow).—Thanks; but we have not space for your ode, "Hail! Victoria." It is more suitable for private circulation.

Siegfried.—Wagner first visited London in the year 1839, but he made no public appearance. In 1855, the occasion of his second visit, he conducted the Philharmonic Concerts.

Candidate.—You should address your complaint to the Director of the Institution in question.

B. A.—The song is probably out of print; but as there is a copy in the British Museum, a transcript could easily be made.

J. K. (Glasgow).—Read in advance and you will advance in your reading.

Old Subscriber (Cape Town).—Thanks for your suggestion.

T. O'B.—Samuel Lover is buried in Kensal Green Cemetery.

Anon.—We regret that we cannot trace the authorship of the verses ending "Good-bye."

"Diplomée."—It is a very good history; but in reading it you should take notes of essential points and thus epitomise the information. Write to the College and enquire for the "period" specially needed for the examination.

T. H.—We cannot say; but Tours's Violin Primer (Novello) is a very good instruction book, and quite modern in its method.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

 Notices of Concerts, of which programmes must invariably be sent, and other information supplied by our friends in the country, must be forwarded as early as possible after the occurrence; otherwise they cannot be inserted.

Our correspondents will oblige by writing all names as clearly as possible, as we cannot be responsible for any mistakes that may occur.

Correspondents are informed that their names and addresses must accompany all communications.

We cannot undertake to return offered contributions; the authors, therefore, will do well to retain copies.

Notice is sent to all subscribers whose payment (in advance) is exhausted. The paper will be discontinued where the Subscription is not renewed. We again remind those who are disappointed in obtaining back numbers that, although the music is always kept in stock, only a sufficient quantity of the rest of the paper is printed to supply the current sale.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF COUNTRY AND COLONIAL NEWS.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any opinions expressed in this summary, as all the notices are either collated from the local papers or supplied to us by correspondents.

Calcutta.—A very successful performance of Mendelssohn's "St. Paul," with full orchestra, was given at the St. Paul's Cathedral Dedication Festival, under the direction of Mr. Ernest Slater, the organist. Mr. Arthur Hatchard, of Allahabad Cathedral, conducted.

Calverley.—The Choral Society, under the able conductorship of Mr. James Hall, gave meritorious performances of Mozart's "Requiem" and Barnett's cantata "The Ancient Mariner," on the 9th ult., at the Mechanics' Institute. The principal vocalists were Madame Goodall, Madame Grew, Mr. T. H. Brearley, and Mr. W. Thornton. Mr. C. Fawcett was the principal violinist of an efficient orchestra, and Mr. H. Hartley and Mr. A. Grimshaw respectively gave valuable assistance at the pianoforte and harmonium.

Cheltenham.—Handel's "Acis and Galatea" was performed in the Assembly Rooms on February 24, by the New Philharmonic Society. The soloists were Miss Agnes Nicholls, Messrs. Eugene de Danckwardt, W. Stoker, and S. Russell. The principal of the band was Mr. Lewis Hann, and Mr. C. J. Phillips conducted. Mr. Lovell, the indefatigable secretary, also deserves a word of praise.

Christchurch, New Zealand.—Mr. Jesse Timson gave an interesting Organ Recital, on Messrs. Hill and Son's fine organ, in the Cathedral, early in January. The selections comprised Toccata and Fugue in D minor (Bach), Sonata, No. 2 (Mendelssohn), Toccata (Callaerts), Communion (Grison), Prière and Berceuse (Guilmant), Andante (Hoyte), and an arrangement of Handel's "Zadok the Priest." Mr. Hugh Reeves was the vocalist, and sang excellently Mendelssohn's "O God, have mercy," and Gounod's "Nazareth."

Coatbridge.—The Coatbridge Choral Union gave, on the 11th ult., a performance of Costa's "Eli." The chorus numbered 150 voices, and the orchestra forty-five performers, the leader being Mr. W. H. Cole, of Glasgow. The soloists were Miss Taggart (Glasgow), Madame Hooton, Mr. Edward Branscombe, and Mr. Lempriere Pringle; these were ably assisted by members from the chorus. Mr. W. Harvey presided at the organ, Mr. Thomas Dixon conducted.

Dorchester.—The Vocal Association gave a successful Concert, on the 2nd ult., at the Corn Exchange. The first part of the programme consisted of Weber's "Jubilee Cantata," the soloists in which were Miss A. Patterson, Mrs. T. Duke, Mr. V. Bennett, and Mr. E. V. Osmond. The band and chorus consisted of about 120 performers, who were ably conducted by Mr. E. A. Lane. Assistance was given at the pianoforte by Miss Osmond, at the harmonium by Mr. H. A. Hurdle, and Mr. W. Stone was the principal violinist of the orchestra.

Dunedin. — The Liedertafel gave another successful Concert early in December, when the chief part of the programme consisted of part-songs, and some of them were exceedingly well rendered. The solo vocalists of the Society were Messrs. J. Carter and J. Jago. Mrs. W. Manson gave excellent renderings of Gounod's "Jewel Song" and Sullivan's "Dear heart," Mr. W. E. Taylor contributed two pianoforte solos, and joined Mr. Jesse Timson in some pianoforte duets. The last-named gentleman, as usual, conducted.

Georgetown, Demerara.—A highly meritorious performance of Mendelssohn's "Elijah" was given on February 11, at St. Philip's Church, by a choir and orchestra under the conductorship of Mr. W. R. Colbeck. The principal vocalists were Miss Daly, Miss Henrici, Mr. A. Collier, and Mr. R. P. Stewart. Capable assistance was given in vocal solo passages by Mrs. Vyfhuis, Masters Luckie and Skerrett, and Messrs. Young, Elliott, Hollingsworth, Bollers, Jack, and Lees. Miss Vyfhuis rendered valuable service at the pianoforte, and the organist was Mr. Nusum.

Leicester.—The Philharmonic Society, under the direction of Mr. Ellis, gave, on February 25, an effective performance of M. Saint-Saëns's Biblical opera "Samson and Delilah." The principal soloists were Madame Fisk, Mr. Edward Lloyd, and Mr. Douglas Powell.——An effective performance of Handel's oratorio "Israel in Egypt" was given, on the 5th ult., in the Floral Hall, by the new musical society, under the conductorship of Mr. Charles Hancock. The principal soloists were Madame Monteith, Miss L. Hovey, Miss A. Lawrence, and Mr. Henry Piercy. The instrumental portion was meritoriously played by an orchestra, of which Mr. J. Kilby was the principal violinist.

Loughton.—The Operatic Society gave successful performances of "The Yeomen of the Guard," on February 24 and 25. The principals, and the chorus of twenty-four voices, sang very spiritedly. A small band accompanied well, and Mr. Henry Riding conducted.

Peebles, N.B.—Mr. Tait's select choir gave an effective rendering of Gade's "Erl-King's Daughter" on February 23. The principal vocalists were Miss M. Rough, Miss H. W. Peden, and Mr. P. Glencorse. In the second part of the programme Miss Rough sang Mozart's scena ed aria "Non temer, amato bene!" and the orchestra played a selection from Grieg's music to "Peer Gynt." Mr. John Tait conducted.

Poole.—A successful Concert, organised by Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Lee, was given, on February 24, at the Amity Hall, under the auspices of the Musical Association. The principal works performed were Professor Bridge's ballad "The Inchcape Rock" and Mendelssohn's unfinished opera "Loreley." The Apollo Glee Singers sang "The Goslings" (J. F. Bridge), "Phyllis dyes her tresses black" (Prendergast), and "The Old Folks at Home" (Blackshaw). The solo vocalists were Miss A. L. Burns, Mrs. Cadman, Miss A. Scratchley, Mr. Herbert Sims Reeves, Mr. Leonard, and Mr. Mannell. Violin and violoncello solos were respectively contributed by Signor Bertoncini and Mr. S. Burton. Mrs. Lee was the pianoforte accompanist, and Mr. Lee conducted.

Southport.—The Choral Society, conducted by Mr. J. C. Clarke, gave a Concert performance of Wallace's "Maritana," on the 2nd ult., at the Cambridge Hall. The principal parts were sustained by Miss L. V. Dalle, Miss A. Layton, Mr. H. St. Just, Mr. W. H. Burgon, and Mr. F. Swinford. The choral numbers were sung with admirable precision, and the accompaniments were played by an efficient orchestra.

Trinidad.—A performance of Sterndale Bennett's sacred cantata "The Woman of Samaria" was given on February 23, by the Choral Society, at Greyfriars Church. The principal soloists were Mrs. Doorly, Mrs. Edwin Legge, the Rev. E. J. Holt, and Mr. J. H. Collins. The accompaniments were played by Herr Nothnagell's orchestra, and Mr. Adamson conducted with marked ability.

Whitchurch.—The Orchestral Society, under the conductorship of Miss F. Fidler, gave its second Concert on February 24, at the National Schools. The orchestral pieces included the Allegro from Haydn's Symphony in D (No. 2) and Meyerbeer's "Coronation" March. Mr. Webb and the Misses Watson, Pratt, Arkwright, and Chattock played three movements from Schumann's Pianoforte Quartet in E flat, Miss L. Pamphilon contributed a clarinet solo, Miss Chattock and Miss I. Flint played a duet by Romberg for two violoncellos, and several songs were rendered by Miss Helen Chattock, Mr. F. Ball, and the Rev. J. H. Hodgson.

Wincanton.—The Choral Society gave its annual Concert in the Town Hall on the 2nd ult. Van Bree's "St. Cecilia's Day" was the principal work performed, the accompaniments to which were well rendered by pianoforte and string band, the leader of the latter being Miss B. Heginbothom. Miss Maud Gullick sang the solos admirably. The second part of the programme comprised several vocal solos by Miss M. Gullick, Miss Cummings, and Mr. R. T. Hughes, and some admirable violin playing by Miss B. Heginbothom. The pianists were Miss Winifred Shepherd and Miss J. Hoskins, and Mr. E. H. Melling conducted.

Organ Appointments.—Mr. John Symons, Organist and Choirmaster to Mildmay Park Wesleyan Church.—Mr. F. J. Dugard, Organist and Choirmaster to the Parish Church, Helmsley, Yorks.—Mr. Percy Ibbs, Organist and Director of the Choir to Goulburn Cathedral, New South Wales.—Mr. Arthur S. James, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Peter's, Mill End, Rickmansworth.—Mr. Leonard Barton, Organist and Choirmaster to Flowerhill Parish Church, Airdrie, N.B.—Mr. Percy G. Langdon, Organist and Music-master to Bedford Modern School, and School Organist and Choirmaster to St. Peter's, Bedford.—Mr. Hugh Percy Allen, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Asaph Cathedral.—Mr. J. Edis Tidnam, Organist and Choirmaster to Wimborne Minster.—Mr. E. Harold Harris, Organist and Choirmaster to St. Mary's Church, Wallingford.

Choir Appointments.—Mr. T. M. Scott (Solo Bass) to St. Saviour's, Southwark.—Mr. Sadleur Brown (Solo Tenor) to St. Saviour's Cathedral Church, Southwark.

DURING THE LAST MONTH.

Published by NOVELLO, EWER & CO.

ANGER, J. HUMFREY—"A Song of Thanksgiving" (Psalm xcvi.). Set to music for Solo voices (Contralto and Tenor), Chorus, and Orchestra. 1s.

BRIDGE, J. FREDERICK.—"The Flag of England." Ballad. For Soprano Solo, Chorus, and Orchestra. Words by Rudyard Kipling. 1s. 6d. Tonic Sol-fa, 9d. Words only, 12s. 6d. per 100.

ELGAR, EDWARD—"The Banner of St. George." A Ballad. For Chorus and Orchestra. Op. 33. The words written by Shapcott Wensley. 1s. 6d. Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words only, 12s. 6d. per 100.

FANING, EATON—"The Queen's Song." 1st Violin, 6d.; 2nd Violin, 6d.; Viola, 6d.; Violoncello and Bass, 6d.

NEŠVERA, JOSEF—"Berceuse Bohémienne." Pour Violon et Piano. 1s.

ROECKEL, JOSEPH L.—"Graceful Dance." Arranged for Violin and Pianoforte by Berthold Tours. 2s.

WAREING, H. W.—"The Wreck of the Hesperus." 1st Violin, 1s. 6d.; 2nd Violin, 1s. 6d.; Viola, 1s. 6d.; Violoncello and Bass, 1s. 6d.

GOUNOD, CH.—"Judex," from "Mors et Vita." Arranged as a Quintet for Pianoforte and Stringed Instruments by Berthold Tours. (No. 8. Novello, Ewer and Co.'s Albums for Pianoforte and Stringed Instruments.) 3s. Separate String Parts, 6d. each.

HANDLEY, EDWARD—"The Children's Supplement." Being a collection of Hymns for Children's Services (with Tunes), to which are added three forms of Service for use in Church. Cloth, 3s. 6d.

OESTEN, MAX—Twelve Easy Voluntaries for the Harmonium. Op. 196. Second Set. 1s.

THE VILLAGE ORGANIST—A Series of Pieces for Church and General use. Edited by J. Stainer and F. Cunningham Woods. Books 1 to 6. 1s. each.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW. No. 58. Contains the following Music in both Notations:—"Welcome, bright dawn." Two-part Song. From the Cantata "The Hours," by J. L. Roeckel. "Peal organs forth your praise." Hymn for the Jubilee. Tune, "Nun danket" (German). Easy Studies in Time and Tune. Graduated Exercises for School Classes. 1½d.

NOVELLO'S SCHOOL SONGS.—Edited by W. G. McNaught. Published in two forms. A. Voice Parts, in Staff and Tonic Sol-fa Notations, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. 8vo size; B. Voice Parts only in Tonic Sol-fa Notation.

			A.	B.
No. 272.	Sons of Britain. For S.A. ..	T. Facer	1½d.	—
„ 273.	Victoria—our Queen! For S.A.	J. Barnby	—	1d.
„ 297.	Oh! the flowery month of June. Chorus à la Valse. For S.S.A. ..	W. Jackson	—	1d.
„ 413.	The Bard of Glanconwy. } Two-part Songs.
„ 414.	The True Hero } Two-part Songs. Welsh and English words	J. H. Roberts	—	1d.
„ 415.	Rise, Cambria, rise } Two-part Songs.
„ 416.	The coming of Arthur } Two-part Songs. Welsh and English words	J. H. Roberts	—	1d.
„ 417.	The Fox and the Grapes } Two-part Songs.
„ 418.	My Land } Two-part Songs. Welsh and English words	J. H. Roberts	—	1d.
„ 399.	The Swing. Unison Song	R. Houston Macdonald	1d.	—
„ 415.	Rise, Cambria, rise. Two-part Song. Welsh and English words ..	J. H. Roberts	1d.	—
„ 432.	The white dove. Sacred Unison Song	W. A. C. Cruickshank	1d.	—
„ 520.	We'll crown our Queen with roses. Unison Song. For May-Day and Rose Festivals	H. Elliot Button	1½d.	—

ALDERSON, MONTAGUE F.—(in D). Benedicite, omnia Opera. 2d.

EUAN-SMITH, LADY—Litany of the Sacred Heart, and Two Hymns: "To Jesus' heart, all burning," and "O sacred heart." 2d.

HURST, WM.—Six Offertory Sentences, with Three-fold Amen. 4d.

MEDLEY, EDWARD S.—(in C). Benedicite. Arranged in shortened form. 2d.

PRICE, E. A.—(in A). The Office of the Holy Communion. Set to music in short score, with Organ Accompaniment. 8d.

SHELFORD, CHARLES—Benedicite, omnia Opera. 1½d.

TRIMNELL, T. TALLIS—(in C). Magnificat and Nunc dimittis. (No. 319. Novello's Parish Choir Book.) 3d.

BRADFORD, JACOB—National Hymn for the Queen's Long Reign—"Sovereign of all! whose will ordains." The words by the Rev. Charles Wesley. 3d.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

FOSBERY, C. S.—Hymn for the Queen's Commemoration Day. Words by the Rev. W. Hutchinson. 1d.

SIDEBOTTOM, E.—Vesper Hymn (for the close of the Evening Service) and Threefold Amen (for the close of the Morning Service). On Card. 2d.

ADAMS, THOMAS—"If any man sin." Short, full Anthem. For General use. (No. 85. Novello's Short Anthems.) 1½d.

BAYLEY, CLOWES—"Be Thou exalted." Anthem. For Soprano Solo and Chorus. (No. 567. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

CAMBRIDGE, F.—"The steps of a good man." Short, full Anthem. (No. 87. Novello's Short Anthems.) 3d.

DAVIDSON, FRANK—"I will praise Thee, O Lord." Full Anthem. For S.A.T.B. 4d.

DAVIS, DAVID M.—"The King shall rejoice." Anthem in celebration of the sixtieth year of Her Majesty's reign. 3d. Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

FOSTER, MYLES B.—"Is it nothing to you?" Anthem. For Holy Week. S.A.T.B. (No. 571. Novello's Octavo Anthems.) 3d.

GADSBY, HENRY.—"O Arglwydd, ein Iôr" (O Lord, our Governour). (Rhif 35. Anthemau Novello.) 3c.

GRAY, ALAN—"I heard a voice from heaven." Short Anthem. For Memorial and other Services. (No. 86. Novello's Short Anthems.) 1½d.

BACH, JOHN SEBASTIAN—"The Lord my faithful Shepherd is." Chorus from a Church Cantata. Adapted to English words and edited for use as an Anthem, and the Orchestral Accompaniment arranged for the Organ, with Pedal Obbligato, by Sedley Taylor. 3d.

WALMISLEY, THOMAS ATTWOOD—"Nid i ni, O Arglwydd" ("Not unto us, O Lord"). Anthem for S.A.T.B. (Rhif 24. Anthemau Novello.) 2d. Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.

BEALE, W.—"Harmony." Four-part Song. For Men's Voices, A.T.T.B. The words written by E. Taylor. (No. 305. The Orpheus.) 6d.

BRIDGE, J. FREDERICK—"Hurrah! hurrah! for England." A Four-part Song. (New edition.) For S.A.T.B. (No. 762. Novello's Part-song Book.) 2d.

CLARKE, HAMILTON—"Hark, hark! the lark." Unaccompanied Quartet for Men's Voices, T.T.B.B. The words written by Shakespeare. (No. 306. The Orpheus.) 3d.

COWEN, F. H.—"All hail the glorious reign." Arranged for S.S.A. by W. G. McNaught. (No. 316. Novello's Octavo Edition of Trios, &c., for Female Voices.) 3d. Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

BUCK, DUDLEY—Hymn to Music. A Four-part Song. The words translated from the German by C. J. Sprague. (No. 763. Novello's Part-song Book.) 4d.

EDWARDS, EDWIN—"Learned Women." Part-Song. For T.T.B.B. The words written by Sir John Vanbrugh (1666-1726). 3d.

FANING, EATON—"The Queen's Song." The words written by Sir Edwin Arnold, K.C.I.E., C.S.I. Arranged for S.S.A. by W. G. McNaught. (No. 315. Novello's Octavo Edition of Trios, &c., for Female Voices.) 3d. Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

FACER, THOMAS—"Rest thee, my little one." A Four-part Song. (No. 774. Novello's Part-Song Book.) 3d.

FLETCHER, A. W.—"Raise the banner." Temperance Chorus. For S.A.T.B. The words written by J. W. Avery. 2d.

FOSTER, MYLES B.—"The Queen—God bless her." A Patriotic Part-song. For A.T.B.B. The words written by May Byron. (No. 307. The Orpheus.) 3d.

LLOYD, C. H.—"The wings of sleep." Trio. For Female Voices, with obbligato for the Pianoforte. The words written by Hugh Macnaghten. (No. 312. Novello's Octavo Edition of Trios, &c., for Female Voices.) 3d.

SCHUBERT—Sanctus. From the Mass in E flat. (No. 500*. Novello's Octavo Choruses.) 2d.

PHILLIPS, LAURANCE D.—Five Songs. For Soprano or Tenor, with Accompaniment for Pianoforte. 2s. 6d.

STORER, FRANK—"Where is the sea." Part-song. For S.A.T.B. The words written by Mrs. Hemans. 2d.

NEEDHAM, ALICIA ADÉLAÏDE—"Your Father's Boreen." (No. 2, in D.) Humorous Irish Song. 2s.

LOCKITT, WALTER J.—Three Impromptus for Pianoforte. No. 3, in B minor. 1s. 6d.

LEWIS, J. H.—March Royal for the Organ. 2s.

DURING THE LAST MONTH—continued.

NOVELLO'S ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS for the ORGAN:— s. d.

No. 255. Commemoration March. Victoria—our Queen! J. E. West 2 0

ORGAN ARRANGEMENTS. Edited by George C. Martin.

No. 43. Prelude in G (No. 13)—Chopin Burnham W. Horner 1 0

„ 44. Basso Ostinato (Op. 5, No. 5)—A. Arensky Burnham W. Horner 1 0

„ 45. Imperial March—E. Elgar George C. Martin 2 0

NOVELLO'S PUBLICATIONS in the TONIC SOL-FA NOTATION. Edited by W. G. McNaught.

No. 958. My heart is inditing S.A.T.B. ..Myles B. Foster 2d.

„ 959. Lord of Life. S.A.T.B. .. .. A. C. Mackenzie 1d.

„ 961. Let the righteous. S.A.T.B. .. R. F. Lloyd 1½d.

„ 964. Is it nothing to you? S.A.T.B. Myles B. Foster 1½d.

„ 965. O come, let us sing. S.A.T.B. ..Myles B. Foster 1½d.

„ 966. Rest thee, my little one. S.A.T.B. Thomas Facer 1½d.

„ 967. The strife is o'er. S.A.T.B. .. Bruce Steane 1½d.

„ 968. All hail the glorious reign. S.A.T.B. F. H. Cowen 2d.

Rhif 24. Nid i ni, O Arglwydd (Not unto us, O Lord) T. A. Walmisley 1d.

REDUCED PRICE.

JOULE, B. ST. J. B.—Directorium Chori Anglicanum. 3s. 6d.

HUNNIBELL, F. C.—(In E flat). Morning and Evening Service. Complete, 8d.

—— Morning Service. 6d.

—— Evening Service. 3d.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

Published on the 1st of every Month. Price 1½d. Annual Subscription, including Postage, 2s.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW for APRIL CONTAINS:—

General Notes.
Learning School Songs.
The Staff Notation in Elementary Schools.
On some Psychological Aspects of the Tonic Sol-fa Method.
Graduated Exercises for School Classes.—Both Notations.
London School Board Vocal Music Competitions.
Music at the Queen's Accession.
Music in Public Schools.
Mr. W. L. Tomlins (Chicago) on Music and Education.
Death of Mr. Berthold Tours.
Miscellaneous Items.

THE SCHOOL MUSIC REVIEW,

For APRIL,

CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING MUSIC IN BOTH NOTATIONS:—

"May does ev'ry fragrance bring." Round for Three Voices. By Dr. Hayes.

"Patter, Patter" (April Showers). Unaccompanied Trio for S.S.A. By J. L. Hatton.

Easy Studies in Time and Tune.

Also, a Special Music Supplement, containing "We'll crown our Queen with Roses." Unison Song for May-Day and Rose Festivals. By H. Elliot Button. (No. 520, Novello's School Songs, price 1½d.)

The Music and Exercises can always be obtained separately. Price 1½d.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

In the Press.

SING UNTO THE LORD

ANTHEM

Words selected by the Rev. Dr. Troutbeck (Precentor of Westminster)

COMPOSED FOR THE

ROYAL MAUNDY SERVICE IN WESTMINSTER ABBEY, 1897

BY

J. FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus.D.

(Organist and Master of the Choristers, Westminster Abbey).

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Robert Cocks & Co.'s Cantatas, &c.

FOR FEMALE VOICES.

THE FAIRIES' SPRING. Libretto by Clifton Bingham. Music by Frederic H. Cowen. Net, 2s. 6d.; Book of Words (per 100), 7s. 6d.; Chorus Parts, net, 1s.; Tonic Sol-fa Edition, net, 1s.

CHARACTERS:

The Queen of the Elves .. .. Soprano.
Two Attendant Elves .. .. Mezzo-Soprano and Contralto.
Chorus of Elves and Fays. Mostly in three parts.

This pretty cantata has all the graceful flow of melody and delicate treatment so characteristic of this composer. The elegance of the solos and duets, for soprano and contralto voices, and the exquisite choruses have ensured a hearty welcome for Mr. Cowen's fresh and tuneful work. "Female choral societies are so frequently heard singing doleful stuff, wearying alike to audience, critics, and the singers themselves, that we feel we are doing them a service in drawing attention to the cantata of a cultivated and original composer." This work will also be found admirably adapted for performance in character and with scenic accessories.

PROSERPINA. Libretto by Ellis Walton. Music by Oliver King. Net, 2s. 6d.; Book of Words (per 100), 7s. 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa Edition, net, 1s.

CHARACTERS:

Proserpina .. .. Soprano.
Queen of the Flowers .. .. Contralto.
Ceres (Mother of Proserpina) .. .. Mezzo-Soprano.
Shepherd .. .. Mezzo-Soprano.
Chorus. Mostly in three parts.

Fresh and vigorous, and if rendered with spirit should prove most effective. Mr. King's music is graceful and pretty, and, in the many ingenious points by which its construction is marked, it betrays the experienced hand that has been at work upon it. Except for here and there a modulation into a distant key, it presents no difficulties to a fairly trained ladies' choir. The cantata is divided half-way by a very prettily designed and very appropriate instrumental piece, entitled "The Dance of the Sunbeams."

THE MARSH-KING'S DAUGHTER. Libretto by May Gillington. Music by Angelo Mascheroni. Net, 2s. 6d.; Book of Words (per 100), 7s. 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa Edition, net, 1s.

CHARACTERS:

Aminé .. .. } (Three Princesses) { Soprano.
Zuleika .. .. } (Three Princesses) { Mezzo-Soprano.
Nouronnihar .. } (Three Princesses) { Contralto.
Helga (the Marsh-King's Daughter) Soprano.
Viking's Wife .. .. Mezzo-Soprano.
Gwyddro (Christian Captive) .. .. Contralto.
Marsh-King .. .. Contralto.

The parts are so arranged that

Aminé and Helga .. .. .. } May be taken by the same person.
Zuleika and Viking's Wife .. .. } May be taken by the same person.
Nouronnihar and Gwyddro, or Nourronihar and Marsh-King .. } May be taken by the same person.

Chorus of Vikings, Priests, Marsh-Spirits, &c. Mostly in three parts.

A Dramatic Cantata which, though elaborately written, is still within the means of any average school singing class.

The words, which are cleverly "written round" one of Hans Christian Andersen's popular Fairy Tales, are in May Gillington's well-known flowing and graceful style; while the music will, by its verve and "grip," surprise those who only know Angelo Mascheroni as a writer of taking drawing-room and concert songs. The many dramatic points and episodes are treated with a force and rugged tunefulness that is simply irresistible; while admirers of his well-known songs, "For all Eternity," "Songs we used to sing," "The Land of Yesterday," &c., will be more than satisfied with the charm, beauty, and "singableness" of the solo numbers.

A RHINE LEGEND. Libretto by Edward Oxenford. Music by Alfred J. Caldicott. Net, 1s. 6d.; Book of Words (per 100), 7s. 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa Edition, net, 1s.
Soprano, Mezzo and Contralto Solos and Chorus (three parts).

PRIZE DAY. Libretto by Jessie Moir. Music by Charles Marshall. Net, 1s. 6d.
Soprano and Contralto Solos and Chorus (three parts).

FOR MIXED VOICES.

SIR HUMPHREY GILBERT. A Choral Ballad for Baritone Solo, Chorus, and Orchestra (or Piano). Libretto by May Gillington. Music by George F. Vincent. Net, 1s. 6d.; Book of Words (per 100), 7s. 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa Edition, net, 1s.

Choral Societies will find this thrilling tale of shipwreck and disaster very useful for the first part of a concert. The work is not difficult, but it is most effective. The choruses are admirably constructed and very inspiriting. There is a true nautical flavour throughout, the storm music is effective without being overdone, and the last chorus, is a fine specimen of a modern fugue. The solos are splendidly declamatory. This cantata was written especially with the idea of providing something suitable for schools and colleges where the masters are in the habit of joining with the boys in forming choral classes, &c.

For full list of Cantatas, Part-Songs, Trios, &c., see Catalogue, No. 8, post-free.

London: ROBERT COCKS & CO., 6, New Burlington Street, W.
New York: Edward Schuberth & Co.
Leipzig: Breitkopf & Härtel.

CONTENTS.

	Page
Victorian Music.—IV.	225
From my Study	228
Musicians' Quarrels	231
Occasional Notes	232
Facts, Rumours, and Remarks	234
Church and Organ News	236
Berthold Tours	238
The Royal Choral Society	239
Philharmonic Society	239
Queen's Hall Choral Society	240
Lamoureux Concerts	240
Henschel Concerts	240
Queen's Hall Symphony Concerts	241
Queen's Hall Promenade Concerts	241
Wagner Concert	242
Crystal Palace	242
Monday and Saturday Popular Concerts	242
Sunday Concerts	243
Thursday Subscription Concerts	243
The Bohemian Quartet	243
The Walenn Quartet	244
Various Recitals	244
Royal Academy of Music	244
Royal College of Music	245
Trinity College Concerts	245
Highbury Philharmonic Society	245
Prince of Wales's Theatre	246
The Musical Artists' Society	246
The Musical Guild	246
Musical Association	247
Society of Arts	247
M. Vincent d'Indy's "Fervaal" at Brussels	247
Reviews	248
Music in Birmingham	255
„ Bristol	255
„ Dublin	255
„ East Anglia	256
„ Edinburgh	256
„ Glasgow	256
„ Liverpool	257
„ Manchester	257
„ Northumberland and Durham	258
„ Nottingham	258
„ Sheffield and District	258
„ Southern Counties	259
„ Yorkshire	259
„ Paris	260
„ America	261
Four-part Song—"If I had but two little wings."—C. Hubert H. Parry	251
Commemoration Ode, for Chorus and Orchestra.—"All hail the glorious reign."—Frederic H. Cowen (Extra Supplement).
General News (London)	261
Foreign Notes	264
Obituary	266
Answers to Correspondents	267
Brief Summary of Country News	267
List of Music published during the last Month	269

THE MUSICAL TIMES.

SCALE OF TERMS FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.

	£	s.	d.
Two Lines	0	3	0
Three Lines	0	3	4
For every additional Line	0	0	10
Half a Column	2	0	0
A Column	4	0	0
A Page	7	10	0

Special Pages (Cover, &c.) by arrangement.
A remittance should be sent with each Advertisement.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To ensure insertion in proper position Advertisements should reach the Office
NOT LATER THAN THE TWENTIETH of each Month.

MR. FREDERIC HOSKING
(BARITONE)
For Oratorio and other Engagements.
Address, 37, Lawford Road, Camden Road, N.W.

BOY TREBLE SOLOIST WANTED, for West-End Church. Ordinary services; two on Sunday and one on week-day afternoon. £40 per annum (minimum). Apply (by letter), Conductor, 114, Mount Street, W.

JUST PUBLISHED.

THE VILLAGE ORGANIST

A SERIES OF PIECES
FOR CHURCH AND GENERAL USE
EDITED BY
J. STAINER
AND
F. CUNNINGHAM WOODS.

Price One Shilling each Book.

PREFACE.

THERE exists already an abundant supply of original compositions and arrangements suitable for performance on large and comprehensive organs, but the many organists who have only a small instrument at their disposal in country churches often have some difficulty in finding short and easy Voluntaries suitable for their own use and the instruction of their pupils. It is hoped that "The Village Organist" (which will be issued in shilling numbers) may supply this want, so much felt by that valuable and zealous class of church-workers to whom the work is inscribed. The Editors have endeavoured to bring together a collection of pieces which they trust will prove to be at once simple, without being uninteresting, and effective where the instrumental resources are limited.

BOOKS I. TO VI. NOW READY.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

ALTO WANTED, for St. Matthew's, Denmark Hill. Must be good reader. Light duties. Address, stating salary required, J. Warriner, Mus. Doc., De Crespigny Lodge, Denmark Hill, S.E.

BASS WANTED, at once, for St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Westbourne Grove, W. Must be good reader. Salary, £10 per annum. Boys also wanted. Good voices and knowledge of music necessary. Remuneration given. Apply, by letter only, to Organist, 10, Lanhill Road, Elgin Avenue, W.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER for St. George's Free (Presbyterian) Church, Edinburgh. Large new organ by Lewis. Salary, £100 or thereby. Apply, in writing, stating qualifications and with copies of testimonials, to Convener of Organ Committee, 2, Buckingham Terrace, Edinburgh.

WANTED, for Wesleyan Girls' Day School, Grahamstown, South Africa, Certificated MISTRESS for PIANO and SINGING. Non-Resident; Nonconformist. Violinist preferred. Salary according to number of pupils. £175 guaranteed. Apply, stating qualifications, Rev. Dr. Stephenson, Children's Home, Bonner Rd., N.E.

WANTED, first-class REPAIRER, capable of undertaking in every detail all classes of Pianofortes, Harmoniums, American Organs, &c. Permanent situation to good man. Address, stating age, experience, references, and wages required, to Woolley and Co., 3 and 5, Park Row, Nottingham.

GOOD TUNER and REPAIRER requires SITUATION. Aged 22. S. Pidgen, Stantonbury, Bucks.

CC ORGAN for SALE. A bargain. 3 manuals, 31 stops, 2 on pedals, 3 reeds. Suitable for Church, Chapel, Public or Gentleman's Hall. Apply, Organ, 21, Lynton Road, Leytonstone, E.

ST. MARK'S, Kennington.—"Mors et Vita," on Wednesday, March 31, and "Stabat Mater," on Wednesday, April 7, with full Orchestra, at 8 p.m.; "Crucifixion," on Good Friday, at 3.30 p.m. No tickets required.

Dedicated, by permission, to their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales.

ROYALTY

A HYMN

FOR THE 60TH YEAR OF HER MAJESTY'S REIGN.

WORDS BY

REV. HON. CANON NEVILLE, M.A.

MUSIC BY THE LATE

REV. SIR F. A. G. OUSELEY, Bt., Mus.D.

Price, Music and Words, 2d.; Words only, 1s. per 100.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just Published.

SCÈNES DE BAL

PAR

GEORGE AITKEN.

Extract from the Queen, April 6:—"Anything prettier or daintier than these three little pieces has not come to hand for many a day, and amateur pianists will do well to make their early acquaintance, for they are bright, engaging, and quite modern in their style."

By the same Composer: Trois Chansons. Berceuse.

Song, "Rose of the Summer Night."

London: Edwin Ashdown (Limited), Hanover Square.

WORKS by F. DAVENPORT, Professor of Harmony and Composition at the Royal Academy of Music. Published under the authority of the Committee of the R.A.M.

ELEMENTS OF MUSIC. Crown 8vo, 1s.

"In the space of some fifty pages, the reader will find all that is necessary to be known about the pitch of notes, intervals and scales, rests, time and abbreviations; and will, we doubt not, also find how much there is of which he was ignorant concerning these subjects, although he had already flattered himself that he had mastered their elements a long time ago."—Saturday Review.

ELEMENTS OF HARMONY & COUNTERPOINT. Crown 8vo, 2s. 6d.

This Work is intended to meet a growing demand for a more concise and simpler exposition of the Day theory. It includes as much of the science of Counterpoint as is necessary for students who enter for the Royal Academy, Local, and other similar examinations.

London: Longmans, Green and Co.

Now ready, price 1s., post-free (cash with order).

PROFESSIONAL DATE BOOK. For Two Years, from June, 1897, to September, 1899.

We have pleasure in stating that our NEW DATE BOOK, although its size will be the same as formerly (viz., 5½ in. by 2½ in.), will be a considerable improvement on all former efforts.

Bound in leather, lettered, and edged in gold.

Has received most favourable comment from every source.

"A most needful and valuable shillingsworth for all Professional people."—Vide Press. Early application will oblige.

Sweetman's Concert Agency, 163, Grove Street, Liverpool.

Just Published.

TWELVE EASY VOLUNTARIES

FOR THE

HARMONIUM

COMPOSED BY

MAX OESTEN.

(Op. 196.)

SECOND SET.

Price One Shilling net.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just Published.

BASSO OSTINATO

COMPOSED BY

A. ARENSKY.

(Op. 5, No. 5.)

ARRANGED FOR THE ORGAN BY

BURNHAM W. HORNER.

(No. 44. Organ Arrangements, edited by GEORGE C. MARTIN, Organist of St. Paul's Cathedral.)

Price One Shilling net.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just Published.

GRACEFUL DANCE

COMPOSED BY

J. L. ROECKEL.

ARRANGED FOR VIOLIN AND PIANOFORTE BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

Price Two Shillings net.

Military Band Arrangement in the Press.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE STORY OF THE CROSS

FOR VOICES AND ORGAN

With Short Interludes, giving opportunity for Meditation

THE WORDS BY

THE REV. E. MONRO

SET TO MUSIC BY

J. STAINER

MYLES B. FOSTER

ARTHUR SOMERVELL

AND

J. VARLEY ROBERTS.

Price Threepence each setting. Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

THE STORY OF THE CROSS

WRITTEN BY THE

REV. E. MONRO

Words only. Price 1s. 6d. per 100.
Large Type Edition, 2s. 6d. per 100.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

STATEMENT
BY Pianoforte Teachers.

CLAVIER HALL,
12, PRINCES STREET, HANOVER SQUARE, LONDON, W.

January 15, 1897.

We, the undersigned Pianoforte Teachers—Professional Musicians—having attended the Normal or Teachers' Course of the Virgil Piano School, have much pleasure in testifying to the great advantage and utility of the "Clavier" and "Clavier Method" in the teaching and study of the Pianoforte. Having thoroughly tested the System, we are convinced of its excellence, and feel confident that, in making the result of our investigations known, we are rendering a service to Pianoforte Teachers and the Members of the Musical Profession generally who are interested in the true development of the Art of Pianoforte Playing.

Aberdeen:—
Wm. Fowler.
Bedford:—
S. W. Churchill, A.R.C.O.
Margaret A. Plowsmith.
K. Walmsley (Miss).
Berlin, Germany:—
Walter Meyrowitz.
Birmingham:—
H. F. M. Berry, A.R.C.M. (Miss).
Ada L. Richardson, L.R.A.M.
Bridlington:—
Arthur Edgar Perry, A.R.C.O.
Brighton:—
Celia Burleigh, F.R.C.O.
Bristol:—
Mary W. Lock.
Burton-on-Trent:—
L. Bond, L.R.A.M., A.R.G.M. (Miss).
Cork:—
Mary E. Bergin.
Coventry:—
Harry C. Perrin, Mus. Bac., F.R.C.O.
Dover:—
Helen Ayers, L.R.A.M.
Edinburgh:—
Arthur Reynolds.
Exeter:—
Elizabeth H. Evans.
A. Huxham, L.R.A.M., A.R.C.M.
E. L. S. Warren (Miss).
Dorothy Wood.
Gravesend:—
Geo. R. Ceiley, A.R.C.O.
Hampton:—
Lizzie Hammond.
Hastings:—
Verna Innocent.
London:—
Annie R. Biddington.
Marion W. Blenkinsop (Dip., Leipzig Con.).
Charles G. Broan.
Johanna Bruch.
George Budd, A.R.C.O.
Minnie Callingham.
Nellie Chaplin.
J. M. Chute, R.A.M. (Miss).
Mary Cholmondeley.
Chas. Stiebler Cook, A.R.A.M.
Amy Sudbury Cooper.
M. B. Day (Miss).
F. K. Deane (Miss).
Florence Dodd.
Elsie Evans, A.L.A.M.
Mary Evans (Dip., Leipzig Con.).
Mary G. Hammond.
Marie Heimlicher.
A. Howard (Miss).
Emlyn Lewis.
London—continued.
Mary E. Malden.
George B. Mart (Dip., Leipzig Con.).
Pattie Michie, L.R.A.M.
Jeanette Moore, A.L.A.M.
Edith M. Nield.
George Gunner.
Frederick Peachy.
M. E. Reynolds (Miss)
May Rivolta.
Florence E. Sones.
J. Nettleton Taylor.
Emma Tedder.
Agnes G. Tobin.
Edith Watts, L.R.A.M.
Emily Williams.
Lincoln:—
Anna E. King.
Liverpool:—
C. Heinecke.
Manchester:—
R. Thorley Brown.
J. Julius (Miss).
Thomas S. Lythgoe, Mus. Bac., Victoria.
S. Myerscough, Mus. Bac., Oxon, F.R.C.O.
Emily Slater.
Margate:—
A. Austin Moody.
Marlborough:—
W. S. Bambridge, Mus. Bac., A.R.A.M., F.R.C.O.
Nottingham:—
Mrs. Bowman Hart.
Oxford:—
E. Wilmer Madge.
Peebles, N.B.:—
John Tait.
Ramsgate:—
P. Vincent Henniker.
Reading:—
Charles G. Thomas.
Redhill:—
Wm. W. Priddy.
Ryde, I. of W.:—
E. W. Goldsmith.
Southport:—
Charles E. Bryan, A.T.C.L.
W. Silkstone Dobson.
Stourbridge:—
Joseph Mees.
Tiverton:—
Marie Poplawska.
Uxbridge:—
F. J. Simpson, Mus. Bac., Oxon.
Ventnor, I. of W.:—
Frances M. Potter.
Weimar, Germany:—
A. Brougham Churchill.
Yeovil:—
O. Hicks (Miss).

N.B.—The "Easter Holiday Session" of the "Normal or Teachers' Course" will begin Monday, April 19, 1897. Special Circular on application to the Secretary. Address as above.

DEGREES AND DIPLOMAS IN MUSIC.
University Correspondence College.

CANDIDATES ARE PREPARED BY CORRESPONDENCE
FOR THE INTERMEDIATE AND FINAL EXAMINATIONS
IN MUSIC
OF LONDON, OXFORD, CAMBRIDGE, AND DURHAM
BY
A. H. WALKER, D.Mus., B.A.

Courses are also provided in the subjects of the preliminary examinations.
For full particulars apply to the Secretary, Burlington House, Cambridge.

TRINITY COLLEGE LONDON.
For Musical Education and Examination.
Instituted 1872.

LOCAL EXAMINATIONS, 1897.

London Centre.—Local Committee.

Sydney F. Blakiston, Esq., L.R.A.M.
Jacob Bradford, Esq., Mus.D.
Arthur Carnall, Esq., Mus.B.
C. J. Dale, Esq.
Lloyd Edwards, Esq.
George F. Grover, Esq.
Alfred Kirkland, Esq.
Walter Latter, Esq.
Allan J. Meacher, Esq., A.R.I.B.A.
B. L. Moseley, Esq., LL.B.
Herr C. H. Neiderheitmann.
Davidson Palmer, Esq., Mus.B.
H. T. Pringuer, Esq., Mus.D.
W. John Reynolds, Esq., Mus.D.
Alfred Rhodes, Esq.
The Rev. Ernest A. B. Sanders, M.A.
The Rev. W. H. Smart, Mus.B.
George J. Sumpter, Esq.
Miss Sophia S. Taunton, L.Mus.
John Warriner, Esq., Mus.D.
F. Cunningham Woods, Esq., M.A., Mus.B.

The regulations, with dates, are now to be had from the Local Secretary, A. W. Sebastian Hoare, A.T.C.L., Lyndhurst, 10, Hilmarten Road, N.; W. John Reynolds, Esq., Mus.D., Chairman of Local Committee.

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

Examinations for Degrees in Music are held in March and September.
Full particulars, with copies of former papers, of Dr. Armes, The Bailey, Durham.

COLLEGE OF PIANISTS
(LIMITED).

The next Examination will be held in June.
Particulars, Post-free, from the Hon. Sec., 39, Westbourne Park Road, London, W.

ROYAL NATIONAL EISTEDDFOD OF WALES,
NEWPORT, MON.,
August 3, 4, 5, and 6, 1897.

PRIZES IN MUSICAL SECTION, £900.

COMPETITIONS
(Open to all Comers).

Chief Choral (200 voices) .. 1st Prize, £200 .. 2nd Prize, £50
Second Choral (100 voices) .. 1st Prize, £75 .. 2nd Prize, £25
Male Voice Choirs (80 voices) .. 1st Prize, £70 .. 2nd Prize, £10
Female Voice Choirs (30 voices) 1st Prize, £25 .. 2nd Prize, £10
Glee Competition (30 voices), Prize, £15.
Orchestral Band Competition (40 performers), Prize, £50.
Brass Bands Competition (24 performers), 1st Prize, £25; 2nd Prize, £15; 3rd Prize, £5.
Military Bands Competition (30 performers), 1st Prize, £25; 2nd Prize, £15; 3rd Prize, £5.

For further particulars, see List of Subjects, published by William Jones, Printer, &c., Newport, Mon. Post-free, 7d. Or apply, Hon. Sec., Musical Section, 14, Church Road, Newport, Mon.
Entries close, May 31.

PRIZES for FESTIVAL HYMN TUNES.—FOUR PRIZES of THREE POUNDS each. Manchester Sunday School Union. Send stamp for conditions to F. Womersley, 1, Piccadilly, Manchester.

FOURTEENTH MUSICAL PRIZE COMPETITION.—FOUR PRIZES of THREE GUINEAS each for Tunes suitable to be sung by Children at Sacred Festivals. Send stamps for conditions and words of Hymns.
JAMES BROADBENT, 13, Brunswick Place, Leeds.

CHOIRBOYS.—Free Education and Board, with every care and supervision. Applications for the next vacancy occurring in the American Church, Paris, may now be made to Mr. Augustus Toop (by letter only), 60, Berners Street, W., who will send all particulars and arrange interview. Preference given to sons of professional men.

LLANDAFF CATHEDRAL SCHOOL.—A PROBATIONERSHIP, reducing fees from 75 to 36 guineas, VACANT next term, will be competed for on April 8. Choristers join in regular work of school, attending only one service daily. The School is strictly preparatory for the public schools, &c. Applications from sons of gentlemen (age, 8 to 11) must be made to the Rev. Ernest Owen, M.A., Head Master.

BOY, with good voice and some experience, WANTED, for Church in Scotland. Salary, £35 to £40. Apply, M. A., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TRINITY COLLEGE, Cambridge.—A CHORAL EXHIBITION of £50, tenable for three years, will be offered for Competition on Monday, June 21, 1897. ALTO or TENOR. Applications should be made, before June 7, to the Rev. R. St. J. Parry, Senior Dean, from whom all particulars may be obtained.

ALTO WANTED, for St. Michael's, Chester Square, S.W. Good reader. Stipend, £20. Apply, Organist, 15, Cambridge Street, Eccleston Square, S.W.

ALTO and BASS (not Baritone) WANTED, at once, St. Mary Magdalene's, Paddington. Salary, £10 each. Good sight-reading and strong voices essential. Communicants. Light duties. Apply, by letter, to Mervyn Dene, 64, Westbourne Park Villas, W.

ALTO WANTED, for Holy Trinity, Sloane Street. Must be good reader. Salary, £25 to £30. Apply (by letter only), W. Alcock, The Vestry.

ALTO WANTED, for St. Clement Danes. Two Sunday services. Practice, Thursdays, at 7. Communicant. £10. Write, Mr. F. J. Marchment, at the Church, Strand, W.C. Also, two or three voluntary singers, Tenor and Bass. Organ practice in return, if desired. Write as above.

ST. MARGARET'S, Westminster.—TENOR VACANCY. Salary, £30. Must be a perfect reader. Apply to E. H. Lemare.

WANTED, TENOR for St. Gabriel's Church, Pimlico. Salary, £15. Good reading indispensable. Apply, E. E. D. S., 161, Ledbury Road, Bayswater.

VOLUNTEER TENOR VOICES WANTED. Communion and Set Services. Apply, G. Norris, Organist, St. Mary's Church, Graham Street, Eaton Square.

BRISTOL CATHEDRAL. — VACANCY for a BASS (not Baritone). Salary, £70; with an additional £5 annually, reserved for a bonus to be given (conditionally) on the termination of service. Two days a week off duty. Only those with really good voices, are thoroughly competent soloists, good readers, and experienced in Cathedral music need apply. Candidates must send testimonials as to character and musical ability, with statement of age and all particulars, to the Rev. the Precentor, by April 15.

BASS (not Baritone) WANTED, for the American Church of the Holy Trinity, Paris. Must be good reader and very experienced in Anglican Church Music. Cathedral service (one service on week-days). Salary, first year, £110. Apply, by letter only, stating age and giving full particulars of past experience and present appointment, to Mr. Augustus Toop (the Musical Representative), 60, Berners Street, W.

ST. ANNE'S, Soho.—WANTED, SOLO BASS. £15, to increase. Also, two Boys with good voices, and Volunteer Altos, Tenors, and Basses. E. H. Thorne, 13, Neville Terrace, Onslow Gardens, S.W.

BASS WANTED, All Saints', Devonshire Road, South Lambeth, S.W., in return for Lessons in Singing or Piano. Address, Walter Attersoll, 78, Studley Road, Clapham.

WANTED, SOLO BASS, ALTO, and CHOIRBOY, for Choir of Essex Church. Good salaries. Apply to the Organist, on Wednesday evenings, at 8 p.m. Essex Church, The Mall, Notting Hill Gate, W.

SOPRANO (Lady) desires ENGAGEMENT in Church Choir. London or suburbs. Ella Challis, 3, Holmdale Road, Stamford Hill, N.

CONTRALTO (pupil of eminent and well-known master) will give SERVICES for a short time for expenses, for Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Vox, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

CONTRALTO desires ENGAGEMENT at Seaside for first week in June, end of August, and beginning of September, Miss Lillian Corner, 22, Campbell Road, Bow, E.

A YOUNG LADY, of good appearance, a brilliant Pianoforte Accompanist, and good sight reader, seeks an APPOINTMENT for Concert touring or otherwise. References to Mrs. Beeseley, Professor of Music, 6, Landsdowne Road, South Lambeth, London.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, at Trinity Presbyterian Church, Streatham. Two Sunday Services and one Week-night Service, followed by Choir practice. A knowledge of Tonic Sol-fa is desirable. New organ by Walker. Salary, £40. Testimonials as to character and ability to be sent, on or before Wednesday, April 7, to Mr. J. C. Bumsted, Alveley, Streatham, S.W. The Managers reserve the right to make the appointment with or without a previous competition.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER WANTED, for Wesleyan Church, Beckenham. Liturgy in morning. £30. Address, Rev. G. A. Guest, The Manse, Beckenham.

HONORARY ASSISTANT-CHOIRMASTER desired, more especially to help in conducting a small Choral Society in the East-End of London. Bass also needed for Voluntary Church Choir. H., 24, Harley Street, Bow, E.

ORGANIST.—MR. PERCY H. FELL (late of St. Mark's, South Norwood) takes Vacation duties, &c. Address, Billiter House, Billiter Street, E.C.

EXPERIENCED ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER desires APPOINTMENT. Excellent testimonials and references. Recitalist. Good organ. Address, F. W. L., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANIST requires ENGAGEMENT in or near London (moderate salary), or would deputise. Highest references. Apply, G., 31, Albert Mansions, Albert Bridge Road, S.W.

ORGANIST, 12 years' experience (C. of E.), would give his SERVICES in return for Practice. Last appointment held 10 years—Musical Service. Henry Limebear, 49, Ambler Road, Finsbury Park.

ORGANIST and CHOIRMASTER.—Mr. RUSSELL LOCHNER (18 years Org. and C.M. at St. Stephen's, Westbourne Park) is willing to accept temporary or permanent Engagement, or to deputise. Address, 40, Newton Rd., Westbourne Grove, W.

ORGANIST and CHOIR-TRAINER desires APPOINTMENT, where there is opening for Pupils; or for an Engagement in family as Governess. Experienced. Good recommendations. F 100, at Shelley's, 38, Gracechurch Street, E.C.

ORGANIST desires TEMPORARY DUTY for a few weeks. Distance no object. Mr. Dugard, 33, Church Road, Bournemouth.

ORGANIST and C.M. desires RE-APPOINTMENT. Ex. ref. Comm. Willing to Deputise or assist in large Church. A. R., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO ORGANISTS.—Young Gentleman offers services as ASSISTANT-ORGANIST in exchange for practice. North London preferred. Wheeler, Novello & Co., Queen St., E.C.

ORGANISTS and others requiring only a limited number of their Compositions should send for DINHAM, BLYTH and CO.'S SPECIMENS (free) of their auto-litho printing. Anthems, Kyries, Songs, &c., from 24 copies and upwards. 28, Fenchurch Street, London. Established 1872.

WANTED, first-class Country TUNER for East of England district. Must be energetic, pushing, and steady. Married man preferred. State full particulars, experience, age, and salary. S. B., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, a steady and reliable PIANOFORTE TUNER, for country work. Must be willing to canvass. State age, salary, with references and photo, to James Nicholson, 134, Barras Bridge, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

WANTED, young man as TUNER. One who understands thoroughly Pianofortes, American Organs, and Harmoniums. Commission on all sales. Send photo. References indispensable. Thuell, Musicseller, Falmouth.

TUNER WANTED, for provincial work. State nature of experience, age, wages, &c., with C.D.V. if possible, and stamped addressed envelope to Practical, Novello and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, Out-door TUNER, thoroughly reliable. Age, 25 to 30. Well up in repairs. Permanency. Hutchinson, Clarence Place, Newport, Mon.

WANTED, a thoroughly competent PIANO and ORGAN TUNER, REGULATOR, and REPAIRER in country (out-door). Good canvasser. Permanent situation to reliable young man. Address, Permanent, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, a thoroughly competent REPAIRER and REGULATOR of Pianos and American Organs, &c. Apply, stating age, salary required, experience, and references. Allen and Sons, Wolverhampton.

FIRST-CLASS TUNER (and Repairer) requires RE-ENGAGEMENT. London and country experience. Good references. E. B. D., Novello and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TUNER (experienced—Pianos, Organs, and Harmoniums), intending change, desires permanent ENGAGEMENT in good firm (Scotland preferred). Good references. Aged 35. Married. Address, Devon, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

WANTED, by a first-class TUNER and REPAIRER, a SITUATION. No objection to go abroad Testimonials from leading firm. W. G., care of Clements, 69, Upper Brook Street, Manchester.

PERMANENT ENGAGEMENT REQUIRED by First-class TUNER. Seven years' reference from last place. Married. Seaside preferred. R. E., Novello and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

WANTED, in a London suburb, a young man as SALESMAN for PIANOS and MUSIC. Good manner and address. Good Tuner. Try over pianos effectively and play well at sight. Would be required to tune out-doors half his time during the summer months. Apply to Z., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, stating references and salary required.

SALESMAN, Music, WANTED. Send photo, and state age, experience, and salary wanted, to Forte, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MANAGER, with knowledge of Sheet and Small Goods Trade, WANTED, for Branch. Send photo, and state age, experience, and salary expected, to Mezzo, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

MANAGER or SALESMAN.—Thoroughly experienced, good buyer, smart salesman, of good address and appearance. Highest references. Seven years with present employers as Manager, &c. H. R., 92, Rugby Road, Brighton.

GOOD ASSISTANT for Piano, Violin, and Music Trade WANTED, for Town in Midlands. Send photo. State age, references, previous experience, and salary required. C. W., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

WANTED, gentlemanly Youth, about 16, as APPRENTICE, in an Old Established PIANOFORTE and MUSIC SALOON adjacent to West-End, where he will be able to acquire a thorough practical knowledge of high-class Small Goods, Sheet Music, Theatre Tickets, Band and Entertainment Department, Repairing, Tuning, &c. Premium required. Address, M. Z., Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGAN PRACTICE (City), 1s. per hour. Three manuals, C.O. pedals. Willis (from Minories), 2, Church Row, Aldgate, E.C.

ORGAN PRACTICE. Three manuals and pedals. One shilling per hour. The South London Organ Studio, 343, Coldharbour Lane, close to Brixton Station.

ORGAN PRACTICE.—Three manuals; independent pedals. Terms, One Shilling per hour. Specification post-free. Blennerhasset's Studio, 1A, Vernon Street, King's Cross, W.C.

NEW ORGAN STUDIO, with Three-manual PIPE ORGAN, blown by water. Terms for Practice, 1s. per hour. At Smyth's Music Depôt, 54, London Road, Forest Hill, S.E.

ORGAN WANTED. Compact three manuals and pedals. Specifications, dimensions, price to Oboe, Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGAN.—An excellent Two-manual ORGAN, containing 13 stops and all the latest improvements. Price only £150. Must be sold to make room for larger instrument. Fincham's Organ Factory, 150, Euston Road, London.

ORGAN for SALE. Two manuals, 13 stops, Bourdons, and pedals. Organs tuned and repaired. R. Cope, Jardin Street, Camberwell, S.E.

CHURCH ORGAN, 2 manuals and pedals, 18 stops. £130. Chamber Organ, 2 manuals and pedals, 19 stops, pistons, &c.; tubular pneumatic throughout. £150. Eustace Ingram, 361, Liverpool Road, London, N.

FOR SALE.—Two-manual ORGAN (modern), handsome oak case, illuminated pipes, 18 stops, 3 composition pedals. Price £200. Address, Organ, Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGAN, by KARN. Good as new. £32 instrument, eighteen guineas cash. Suit Mission Church. Address, O. V. T., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

ORGANS for SALE or HIRE.—Six new 2-manual Organs: 15 stops, 17 stops, 19, 20, 21, and 30 stops; four second-hand Organs: 9, 14, 15, and 22 stops. Organs built to any specification, and constructed on the most improved principles of high-class work at low prices. Tuners sent regularly to all parts of the kingdom. Alfred Monk's Organ Works, 550A, Holloway Road, London.

ORGAN at St. John's, Redhill, for SALE immediately. Two manuals, 2½ octaves pedals, 16 stops, 3 couplers, &c. Apply, Vicar, St. John's, Redhill.

THREE-MANUAL ORGAN for SALE, on which Blow and Purcell and Handel and Haydn played. Taken from the Danish Church. Splendid tone. Apply, Rev. Dan Greatorex, St. Paul's Vicarage, Dock Street, E.

ORGANS (New and Second-hand) for SALE, from £20, with pedals. Instruments for Church, Chapel, and College, built on the most modern principles, at Bedwell and Sons', Cambridge Organ Works, Cambridge.

FOR SALE, a 5½-Octave ORGAN (The Connoisseur), by the SMITH AMERICAN ORGAN COMPANY. Solid oak case; 16 speaking stops, 2 knee-swells. List price, 93 guineas; price 25 guineas. Almost new. Apply, E. Bowring, 303, Old Kent Road, S.E.

A LARGE New Two-Manual ORGAN for SALE. Tubular. Great organ, nine stops; swell organ, eleven stops; pedal organ, four stops; couplers, &c. To be seen at A. Hunter and Son's, Organ Builders, High Street, Clapham, S.W.

ORGAN (Three manuals), to be made to suit any place of worship. Organs (Two manuals), 9, 12, and 17 stops. W. E. Richardson, Central Organ Works, Hulme, Manchester.

TWO-MANUAL and PEDAL AMERICAN ORGANS, at Bargain Prices for Cash. A 165-guinea "Bell," two manuals and pedals, for 75 guineas; a £350 three-manual and pedal "Mason and Hamlin," 31 stops, 21 sets; a £70 "Karn" Organ, with Suber's Patent Pedals, 25 guineas; a £220 two-manual and pedal "Mason and Hamlin," 65 guineas; a two-manual "Alexandre" Harmonium, 15 guineas. Also several large Organs and Harmoniums by Bell, Smith, Estey, Karn, Alexandre, Trayser, &c., at one-third usual price. Every instrument guaranteed. Packing or carriage free. Inspection invited. Messrs. Stagg and Sons, 56, Red Lion St., Holborn.

9 GUINEAS.—AMERICAN ORGAN (list price, 20 guineas), 11 stops, including two knee-stops and the beautiful solo stops, voix celeste and vox humana; two octave couplers, handsome high case; in use about four months; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged. Packing and carriage free. Approval. Full price paid will be allowed within three years if exchanged for a higher-class instrument. D'Almaine and Co. (established 112 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, E.C. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

ORGAN PEDALS to PIANOS.—New method of Attachment by TUBULAR PNEUMATIC. This action surpasses all mechanical actions for prompt and Organ-like Touch. It is less expensive, easy to attach, and does not injure the most delicate Pianoforte. Prospectus, with full description and price lists, on application to Norman Bros. and Beard, Organ Works, Norwich.

HARPSICHORD. — Fine old Instrument, by KIRKMAN, in perfect working order, £40. Harp, double-action, ERAT. Perfect order. £25. Morley, Harp Maker, South Kensington Station.

ERARD GRAND, 225 guineas, nearly new, for SALE. What offers? Apply to A. Woodward, Promenade Villas, Cheltenham.

14 GUINEAS.—PIANO, solid iron frame upright grand; worth 30 guineas; full compass, trichord, celeste action, &c.; in handsomely carved walnut wood case, four feet in height; in use only six months; sent on approval, carriage free, to any part of the United Kingdom; ten years' warranty; easy terms arranged; full price paid will be allowed if exchanged for a higher class instrument within three years. D'Almaine and Co. (established 112 years), 91, Finsbury Pavement, City. Open till 7. Saturdays, 3.

TO PIANO STUDENTS.—Advertiser, having entire use of new SEMI-GRAND, best maker, offers half-share for 15s. a month. Reply, A. C., Novello and Co., 1, Berners St., W.

VIOLIN STRINGS.—Send 9d. for samples of four best "E" Strings. Alphonse Cary, 3, Oxford Circus Avenue, London, W.

SINGING. — Lady wishes to DISPOSE OF excellent TEACHING CONNECTION. Large town, North of England. C. C., Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, W.

TO the MUSIC and PIANO TRADES.—A First-class SHOP, with Residence over, in the leading thoroughfare of a very rising suburb, TO BE LET. Long lease; low rent. Mr. Leopold Farmer, 12, High Road, Kilburn, N.W., and 41, Gresham Street, E.C.

TUNING CONNECTION (high-class) for SALE. Old-established. Address, E. M. E., 16, Hampstead Road, N.W.

BRADFORD MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.—The LECTURE HALL to LET for Concerts, &c., on Saturday or other Evenings during next winter. Seats 1,400. Further information from J. Reddie, Secretary.

"TOWER" ORGAN WORKS.—Specifications. Rebuilding, Repairs, Voicing and Tuning by experienced Artists. Pipes and Fittings. Second-hand Organs and Materials. T. R. Willis (from Minories), 2, Church Row, Aldgate, London, E.C.

T. R. WILLIS (from Minories, est. 1827), Maker and Importer of Brass and Wood Instruments, Harmonium Reeds, Strings, Wire, Violins, Concertinas, &c. 2, Church Row, Aldgate, E.C.

HYDRAULIC ENGINES for Organ Blowing. Blennerhasset's Patent "Perfect" Prize Medal Engines are the best. 1B, Vernon Street, King's Cross Road, London, W.C.

PRIEST'S WIFE supplies CASSOCKS, black or coloured, 9s. to 20s.; Choir Surplices, 3s. to 20s.; Priests' from 7s. 6d.; Stoles, 5s. 6d. to £3; Altar Linen, Bags, &c. Material cut out and placed or designed and prepared for working. Surplice, Church Agency, Ltd., Southampton Street, Strand.

THE OLD FIRM.

P. CONACHER & CO.,
Organ Builders,
SPRINGWOOD WORKS,
HUDDERSFIELD.
TWO GOLD MEDALS.

NICHOLSON AND CO.,
ORGAN BUILDERS,
PALACE YARD, WORCESTER.
(ESTABLISHED 1841.)
Specifications and Estimates sent free.

NORMAN AND BEARD,
ORGAN BUILDERS,
NORWICH AND LONDON,
ARE NOW BUILDING
NEW ORGANS FOR

1. LONDON, Holy Trinity Church, Tulse Hill.
2. „ Chapel of Ease to Croydon Parish Church.
3. „ St. Andrew's Church, Whitehall Park.
4. LIVERPOOL, Hartington Road Church.
5. BIRMINGHAM, Quinton Chapel.
6. NEWFOUNDLAND, Twillingate Church.
7. HULL, St. Philip's Church.
8. NORWICH, Concert Organ, The Grange.
9. BEDFORD, High School for Girls.
10. CORK, Patrick Street Chapel.
11. WEYMOUTH, The College.
12. CAMBRIDGE, Pampisford Church.
13. ROLLESBY, Parish Church.
14. CHELMODISTON, near IPSWICH, Parish Church.
15. SALISBURY, Breamore Church.

AND RE-CONSTRUCTING ORGANS AT 16. Ashford (Middlesex); 17. Stourbridge; 18. Loftus, &c.

ADDRESS:
NORMAN AND BEARD, 46, Queen Victoria St., E.C.
Works, Norwich.
Telegrams: Autumn, London. Normans, Norwich. Telephone: 416, London. 294, Norwich.

Awarded Medal of Honour at the International Inventions Exhibition, London, 1885.

THE ONLY AWARD.

RUMMENS'
Organ Pedal Attachment
FOR PIANOFORTES.

DETACHABLE PEDAL BOARD.
EQUAL TO ORGAN PRACTICE.

Testimonials from all the Chief Organists of the day.
Write for particulars to
H. J. RUMMENS,
47, CHURCH ROAD, BRIXTON, S.W.

Auction Rooms specially for the Sale of Musical Property.
MESSRS. PUTTICK and SIMPSON, Auctioneers, 7, Leicester Square, London, W.C., hold SPECIAL SALES of MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS on or about the 20th of every month. Sales of Musical Libraries, Music Plates, and Copyrights, Trade Stocks, Manufacturers' Plant, &c., are held as occasion may require. Valuations for Probate or Legacy Duty, or for Public or Private Sale. Terms on application.

A PUBLISHER invites Composers to submit MUSICAL MSS. to M. T., care of Dixon's Advertisement Offices, 16, Great Marlborough Street, London, W.

A NEW PIANO for 2½ GUINEAS

This appears impossible, but becomes a fact if a
SCHREIBER PATENT RESONATOR is attached to an old Piano.
TRIAL AND INSPECTION INVITED.

Schreiber Piano and Resonator Co., Ltd.,
80, WIGMORE STREET, W.

THE FAMOUS SCHREIBER PIANOS WITH RESONATORS.
NEW and ARTISTIC MODELS from 30 Gns.
Cash, Hire, or Easy Purchase System.

Old Pianos taken in Exchange.

VIOLINS AND CELLOS.

COLLIN-MÉZIN (OF PARIS),
VIOLIN, VIOLONCELLO, AND BOW MAKER.

Gold and Silver Medals at the Exhibitions of PARIS, 1878; PARIS, 1897; PARIS, 1889—Academical Palms (Fine Arts).

THE MOST PERFECT IN THE WORLD.
USED BY THE GREATEST ARTISTS,
AND CONSIDERED BY MASTERS
THE MODERN STRADIVARIUS.

"No comparison can be made, the Instruments of Collin-Mézin being the Instruments for Soloists."—CAMILLO SIVORI.

METZLER AND CO., 42, Marlborough Street, London, W.,
Sole Wholesale and Retail Agents.

COUNTRY DEALERS, PRIVATE BUYERS, and OTHERS.—IMPORTANT AUCTION SALE of PIANOFORTES and other Musical Instruments and Miscellaneous Property.
MONDAY, April 5.—Commences the Quarterly Sale of Works of Art, Bronzes, China—Musical, Surgical, and other Instruments—Opera Glasses, Microscopes, Telescopes—Paintings, Water-colour Drawings, Marbles, &c.
TUESDAY, April 6.—The Assemblage of many Thousand Volumes of Books in every description of Literature.
WEDNESDAY, April 7.—The Concluding Portion of the Sale of Books—and two hundred lots of Miscellanies, as on Monday.
THURSDAY, April 8, and MONDAY, April 12.—One Hundred PIANOFORTES, chiefly Modern Instruments by Broadwood and Sons, Brinsmead, Bord, Collard and Collard, Erard, Kirkman, Holdernesse, and others—Harps by Erard—Harmoniums and American Organs—Violins, Flutes, and all kinds of Stringed and Wind Instruments—Optical, Surgical, and Surveying Instruments—Bronzes, Marbles, Carvings, Miniatures, and other Interesting Items.
FRIDAY, April 9, and TUESDAY, April 13.—The Collection of Paintings by and after Rubens, Vandyke, Constable, Collins, Turner, Webb, McAlpine, and other Artists of the various English and Continental Schools—Water-colour Drawings of merit—Etchings and Engravings.
SATURDAY, April 10; MONDAY, April 12; and WEDNESDAY, April 14.—Miscellanies, comprising Opera and Race Glasses—Scientific Instruments—PIANOFORTES, WIND and STRING INSTRUMENTS—China, Books, Paintings, Bronzes, &c.
Catalogues of any of the above Sales post-free.
DEBENHAM, STORR and SONS will SELL by AUCTION, at their Mart, King Street, Covent Garden, on MONDAY, April 5, and several following days, at Twelve, the Immense Assemblage of PIANOFORTES, HARMONIUMS, HARPS, and Miscellaneous Property, as above.
N.B.—A magnificent full Concert Grand, by Steinway, in fine condition, for Sale, privately. May be seen by cards.

New and Enlarged Edition, 1897.
PRACTICAL HINTS ON THE TRAINING OF CHOIRBOYS. By G. EDWARD STUBBS, M.A., Organist and Choirmaster of St. Agnes Chapel, Trinity Parish, New York. Clergymen, Choirmasters, School Teachers, and others interested in the culture of Boys' voices, will find this work specially adapted to their wants. The vocal theories advanced are clear, concise, and based strictly upon the teaching of the most eminent vocal authorities. On the subject of Choir Management the book covers a wide field of information. Both from a scientific and from a general standpoint it is what its name implies, a practical manual, and it is recommended to all who are responsible for the training of boys' voices.
Price Three Shillings and Sixpence.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

COMPLETE AND REVISED EDITION.

THE

BRISTOL TUNE BOOK

CONTAINING

905 TUNES AND CHANTS.

A COMPANION TO ALL HYMN BOOKS.

Although nearly every denomination has its own Tune Book, the wealth of special tunes and metres contained in the Bristol Tune Book renders it indispensable to every well-equipped Choir.

		s.	d.
No. 17.	Limp Cloth	5	0
„ 18.	Cloth Boards, red edges	6	0
„ 19.	Small Edition	3	6
„ 20.	Tonic Sol-fa	3	6

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Bristol: W. Crofton Hemmons, Stephen Street.

And all Booksellers and Musicsellers.

Price 3s. 6d., cloth, red edges.

THE TUNE BOOK, with the additional Tunes as used at ST. ALBAN'S, HOLBORN, containing nearly 270 Tunes, for Long, Common, Short, and Peculiar Metres; together with several Gregorian Hymns and Antiphons; the Eight Gregorian Tones; the Music of the Reproaches; the Seven Last Words; and Litany Tunes, &c. London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

FOR 1897 FESTIVALS.

Every Choirmaster should see a copy of the following

POPULAR, EASY, & ATTRACTIVE CHURCH COMPOSITIONS

BY

F. R. GREENISH, Mus. Doc., Oxon.

ANTHEMS.

AWAKE, PUT ON THY STRENGTH. 4th 1,000. Price 4d. Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.

Has won golden opinions everywhere. Free from difficulties yet full of variety. Sung at Haverfordwest (500 voices), Wellingboro' (750 voices), Longwood Church, Huddersfield, and Centenary Hall, Sydney, Australia (both with Orchestra).

Very highly spoken of by the musical press.

O GOD, MY SOUL THIRSTETH. 9th 1,000. Price 3d.

Immensely popular wherever heard. Very easy, with expressive Solo for Soprano or Tenor.

Quartet—AND GOD SHALL WIPE AWAY ALL TEARS. Price 3d.

From the Cantata "The Church Triumphant."

MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS in D. Price 3d.

SIX KYRIES. Price 2d.

Specimen copy of any of the above sent Post-free, on application to Dr. F. R. Greenish, Haverfordwest, from whom may also be had Orchestral Parts of "Awake, put on thy strength."

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just Published.
(Bright and Easy.)

CHANT SETTINGS, in the Key of G, to the Morning and Evening Canticles. Price Twopence. Specimen copy sent, post-free, 1½d., from the Composer, John Palmer, Old Deer, Aberdeenshire.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

By the same Composer:

TARANTELLE in F minor, for the Pianoforte. Price 2s.

CHURCH MUSIC by AUGUSTUS TOOP.

MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS in D. Chiefly in unison. Price Threepence.

"An effective, yet easy service, and is sure to please."—Musical News, May 27, 1893.

TE DEUM in C. For Festival or General use. Price Sixpence.

"The style is, generally speaking, broad, dignified and Church-like."—Musical Times, August 1, 1895.

MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS in A. For voices in unison, with ad lib. harmonised parts. Price Fourpence.

"Musicianly in the refinement of its harmonisation."—Musical Standard, February 16, 1895.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Also, just Published.

KYRIE AND CREED in D minor. To suit Parish Choirs. Price Sixpence. In use at Canterbury Cathedral.

Weekes and Co., 14, Hanover Street, W.

CHURCH MUSIC

BY

EDWARD BUNNETT, Mus.D., Cantab.

SERVICES.

Two Settings of the Venite (in Chant Form). No. 1 (in G), No. 2 (in A)	2d.
Te Deum in E	3d.
Benedictus and Jubilate in E	3d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in E	3d.
Cantate and Deus in E	3d.
Communion Service	9d.
Preces and Responses	4d.
Tonic Sol-fa.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F	1½d.
„ „ „ A	1½d.
„ „ „ E	1½d.

ANTHEMS.

Easter Anthem—"If we believe"	4d.
„ „ „ Tonic Sol-fa	1½d.
„ "I will magnify Thee"	3d.
„ „ „ „ Tonic Sol-fa ..	1½d.
Festival—"O clap your hands"	4d.
„ „ „ Tonic Sol-fa	2d.
„ "I was glad"	3d.
„ „ „ Tonic Sol-fa	2d.

Song—"By the Wayside" (Soprano), with Violin Obbligato and Organ or Harmonium .. .. net	2s.
"The Last Prayer" (Contralto) .. .. .. „	2s.

ORGAN.

Twelve Short Easy Pieces .. .. net	2s. 0d.
Three Short Andantes .. .. „	2s. 0d.
Minuetto .. .. „	1s. 6d.
Ave Maria .. .. „	1s. 6d.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE PRECES and RESPONSES for MORNING and EVENING PRAYER; also the Litany with Organ Accompaniment for the Priest's Part. Set to music by H. T. Welch. Price 4d.; 2s. 6d. per dozen. Also Te Deum laudamus, set to Original Chants. Price 2d.; 1s. per doz.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just Published.

SIX OFFERTORY SENTENCES, with THREEFOLD AMEN. Composed by Wm. Hurst. Price 4d.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Third Thousand.

TE DEUM LAUDAMUS in G. By Alfred J. Dye. Price 4d.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Second Thousand.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in F. By Arthur Carnall, Mus. Bac., Cantab. Price 4d.

Sample copies free from A. Carnall, Penge.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Fourth Thousand.

MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in E flat. By William S. Vinning, Mus. Bac., Cantab. Price 3d.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NEW TUNES (Eight) for SCHOOL FESTIVALS, by Dr. Hiles, Caleb Simper, &c., including Special Queen's Commemoration Hymn. Music, 7s.; words, 2s. Special title-page for quantities. Send stamp for sample to Sunday School Union, 1, Piccadilly, Manchester.

GILL'S EASY VOLUNTARIES.—"Messiah," "Judas," "Elijah," "St. Paul," "Creation." 1s. each book.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Very effective, and not difficult.

EDWYN A. CLARE'S

WHITSUNTIDE ANTHEMS.

When the Day of Pentecost. 5th 1,000..	3d.
The Lord Reigneth. 5th 1,000 (Sol-fa, 2d.)	3d.
Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem. 17th 1,000	3d.

Sung by 400 voices at Doncaster.

Popular Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in D. 9th 1,000 .. 4d.

Full of vigour and flowing melody.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

HARMONY, CHORDAL and CONTRAPUNTAL. Price 5s. By Henry Hiles, Mus.D., Oxon., F.R.C.O. Lecturer on Harmony and Musical Composition in the Victoria University and the Owens College, and Professor in the Royal Manchester College of Music.

John Heywood, London and Manchester.

FOR LENT.

THE

STORY OF THE CROSS

FOR VOICES AND ORGAN

BY

EDWARD BUNNETT, Mus.D., Cantab.

Price Twopence.

By same Composer:

TWO SETTINGS OF THE

BENEDICITE

One in E major and one in F major.

Price Twopence each.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

"An attractive and effective composition."—Musical Times.
"An easily learnt Anthem."—Sheffield Daily Post.
"A most devotional composition."—Newcastle Chronicle.
"This Anthem will be much appreciated by all who wish something fresh and not too difficult."—Aberdeen Journal.
"Smoothly and pleasantly written."—Western Times (Exeter).
"Tuneful, and easy to sing."—Leeds Mercury.

CHRIST IS RISEN

ANTHEM FOR EASTER

BY

E. A. SYDENHAM.

Price Threepence. Tonic Sol-fa, price Three-Halfpence.
London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

HYMNS FOR EASTER.

BARNBY.	Christ the Lord is risen to-day	1½d.
W. T. BEST.	Jesus Christ is risen	3d.
Dr. IONS.	Jesus Christ is risen to-day	1½d.
J. B. CALKIN.	Light's glitt'ring morn bedecks	1½d.
V. NOVELLO.	Jesus Christ is risen to-day	1½d.

Nine Hymns with Tunes from "THE HYMNARY" .. 1d.

Christ the Lord is risen to-day .. .. .. G. J. Elvey.
Far be sorrow, tears, and sighing .. .. C. Steggall.
Welcome, happy morning! age to age shall say A. Sullivan.
Come, ye faithful, raise the strain .. .. A. Sullivan.
At the Lamb's high feast we sing .. .. German.
The day of Resurrection .. .. .. H. Smart.
Jesus Christ is risen to-day .. .. Ch. Gounod.
O Blessed Trinity .. .. Old Melody.
Soon the fiery sun ascending .. .. .. German.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just Published.

AN EASY

CHORAL COMMUNION SERVICE

In the Key of G

COMPOSED BY

WALTER J. CLEMSON, M.A.

Price 2d. (8 cents).

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

EXAMS.—To Teachers and Students.—Catalogue of Musical Literature (Memoirs, Biographies, &c.), post-free, home and abroad. Hersey, Bookseller, Thornton Avenue, Chiswick.

NEW EASTER MUSIC, &c.,

By CALEB SIMPER.

IF YE THEN BE RISEN WITH CHRIST.

Price 4d. Tonic Sol-fa, 2d. A powerful and inspiring Anthem, containing a grand and impressive Bass Solo. 5th 1,000.

Also the following universal favourites:—

*O let your songs be of Him.	8th 1,000	3d.
*And behold I am alive.	10th 1,000	4d.
*To Him be Glory.	8th 1,000	3d.
*King of Kings.	New and very popular Easter Anthem. Twenty-third Thousand. Now ready. ..	4d.
*Christ our Passover.	New Easter Anthem. 10th 1,000 ..	4d.
*I am He that Liveth.	16th 1,000	4d.

Sung at several Choral Festivals.

ANNIVERSARY PIECES, &c.

No. 1	Flower Service. Six pieces .. .. Words only, 3s. 6d. per 100. 26th 1,000.	2d.
No. 2	*Anniversary Selection. Seven pieces.. .. .. Words only, 3s. 6d. per 100. 16th 1,000.	2d.
No. 3	New Flower Service. Six pieces .. .. .. Words only, 3s. 6d. per 1,000. Just published.	2d.
No. 4	*Anniversary Selection. Six pieces and Anthem .. Words only, 3s. 6d. per 100. New.	2d.

Easy Holy Communion Service in E flat.	14th 1,000	4d.
*Easy Holy Communion Service in G.	5th 1,000	4d.
Holy Communion Service in F.	11th edition	6d.
Popular Festal Chant Te Deum in A flat.	8th 1,000.. ..	2d.
Te Deum in G.	14th edition. 4d. Te Deum in F. 32nd edition	3d.
Celebrated Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in F.	73rd edit. Sung at Fifteen Choral Festivals.	4d.
Favourite Magnificat and Nunc dim. in E flat.	27th edition Sung at Three Choral Festivals.	4d.
Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in G.	12th edition	4d.
New Festal Magnificat and Nunc dim. in B flat.	2nd 1,000	4d.
*New Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in D.	10th edition .. Partly in unison. Already a great favourite. Selected for Festival of North Connor Church Choral Union.	4d.

Those marked (*) are also published in Tonic Sol-fa.

THE ROLLING SEASONS

A New Sacred Cantata. By Caleb Simper.

Price 1s. 6d. net. Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. net.

Band Parts are also printed for Strings, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon, 2 Horns, 2 Cornets, 2 Trombones, Timpani, and Organ.

With the exception of Two Hymns and a Carol, the words are selected from the Holy Scriptures. The music, both Vocal and Instrumental, is attractive, interesting, and not difficult. It requires Four Soloists and Full Chorus, and occupies 35 minutes in performance. This Cantata may be rendered with Organ Accompaniment only, but the Orchestral Parts add greatly to the effect. It is especially suitable for Church use at Whitsuntide and Harvest-tide.

Opinions:—"We are all charmed with Cantata. My choir like it so much."—"The 'Rolling Seasons' is splendid."—"Cantata is delightful. I am sure it will have a large sale."—"We have Cantata in rehearsal, and like it very much."—"Cantata is bold, effective, and unique; we are much pleased with it."—"'Rolling Seasons' is exceedingly pretty."—"I like Cantata much, and shall prepare it for Whitsuntide."—"I am simply charmed with the Cantata; you have certainly achieved a great success."—"I consider it a ring studded with Gems."—"A perfect specimen of what a Cantata should be," &c.

FOR QUEEN'S COMMEMORATION.

HAPPY ARE THE PEOPLE. New Anthem. 3d.

Written in the same style as the same Composer's "He is risen," of which 81 Editions have been printed.

New Song, GOD BLESS OUR QUEEN. Net 1s. 6d.

Also a small octavo edition, harmonised for Choirs and Schools, &c. Price 2d. (Compass, C to E.)

New Whitsuntide Anthem.

IN MY FATHER'S HOUSE ARE MANY MANSIONS.

Sol-fa, 2d.; Old Notation, 3d.

London: Weekes and Co., 14, Hanover Street, Regent Street, W.
Chicago, U.S.A.: Clayton F. Summy Co., 220, Wabash Avenue.

EASTER EVE

NEW SACRED SONG

By CHARLES GOUNOD

WITH VIOLIN AND ORGAN OBBLIGATO.

Keys, G, A (compass C to E), B flat, and C. 2s. net.

London: Paterson and Sons, 26, Castle Street, Berners Street, W.

SONGS by T. E. SPINNEY.

THE SEA HATH ITS PEARLS.
THE SINGER NOT THE SONG.

Two Shillings each net.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

ANTHEMS FOR EASTER.

Above all praise and all majesty	Mendelssohn	1½d.
*All men, all things	Mendelssohn	4d.
As Christ was raised	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
*As it began to dawn	M. B. Foster	1½d.
As it began to dawn	C. Vincent	3d.
*As Moses lifted up the serpent	F. Gostelow	3d.
As we have borne	J. Barnby	1½d.
At the Lamb's high feast	E. V. Hall	3d.
At the Sepulchre	H. W. Wareing	4d.
*Awake, thou that sleepest	J. Stainer	6d.
*Awake up, my glory	J. Barnby	1½d.
Awake up, my glory	B. Haynes	1½d.
Awake up, my glory	M. Wise	3d.
Be glad, O ye righteous	H. Smart	4d.
*Behold, the Angel of the Lord	B. Tours	1½d.
*Behold the Lamb—All glory to the Lamb	Spohr	1½d.
*Blessed be the God and Father	S. S. Wesley	4d.
Blessed be Thou	Kent	4d.
Blessing and glory	Boyce	1½d.
*Blessing, glory	B. Tours	4d.
Break forth into joy	J. Barnby	1½d.
*Break forth into joy	S. Coleridge-Taylor	3d.
*Break forth into joy	T. R. Prentice	6d.
*Break forth into joy	B. Steane	3d.
*Christ being raised from the dead	G. J. Elvey	1½d.
Christ being raised from the dead	S. Webbe	1½d.
Christ both died and rose	E. W. Naylor	3d.
Christ is risen	G. B. J. Aitken	3d.
Christ is risen	J. M. Crament	3d.
Christ is risen	G. J. Elvey	1½d.
*Christ is risen	E. H. Thorne	1½d.
*Christ is risen	J. V. Roberts	3d.
*Christ our Passover	J. Goss	1½d.
Christ our Passover	E. V. Hall	3d.
Christ our Passover	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
*Christ our Passover	B. Tours	1½d.
*Christ the Lord is risen to-day	E. V. Hall	3d.
Come, ye faithful	E. V. Hall	3d.
For it became Him	O. King	1½d.
For us the Christ	Ch. Gounod	3d.
*From Thy love as a Father	Ch. Gounod	1½d.
Give thanks unto God	Spohr	4d.
God hath appointed a day	B. Tours	1½d.
God, Who is rich in mercy	G. M. Garrett	1½d.
*Hallelujah!	Handel	2d.
Hallelujah! Christ is risen	B. Steane	3d.
*Hearken unto Me	M. B. Foster	1½d.
*He is risen	H. Gadsby	1½d.
*If we believe that Jesus died	J. Goss	1½d.
If we believe that Jesus died	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
If ye then be risen	J. Naylor	3d.
I declare to you the Gospel	W. A. C. Cruickshank	4d.
I will alway give thanks	J. B. Calkin	1½d.
*I will alway give thanks	J. Clarke-Whitfeld	3d.
I will greatly rejoice	W. A. C. Cruickshank	4d.
*I will magnify Thee	J. B. Calkin	4d.
I will magnify Thee	B. L. Selby	1½d.
*I will mention	A. Sullivan	6d.
I will sing of Thy power	M. Greene	4d.
*I will sing of Thy power	A. Sullivan	1½d.
Jesus Christ is risen to-day	O. King	4d.
Let God arise	M. Greene	6d.
Lord, before Thy footstool bending	Spohr	3d.
Lord Christ! when Thou hadst overcome	Haydn	1½d.
*Lord, Thy arm hath been uplifted	Spohr	2d.
*Lo, the winter is past	B. Farebrother	3d.
Lo, the winter is past	H. Gadsby	3d.
Magnify His Name	G. C. Martin	4d.
My beloved spake	H. Purcell	6d.
My heart was glad	A. Carnall	4d.
Not unto us, O Lord	H. Gadsby	6d.
*Not unto us, O Lord	T. A. Walmisley	1½d.
*Now is Christ risen	G. B. Allen	1½d.
*Now is Christ risen	J. E. West	1½d.
*Now on the first day of the week	H. Lahee	1½d.
O clap your hands	M. Greene	4d.
*O clap your hands	J. Stainer	6d.
O clap your hands	E. H. Thorne	6d.
O clap your hands	T. T. Trimnell	3d.
*O come, let us sing	M. B. Foster	3d.
*O give thanks	J. Goss	3d.
O give thanks	S. S. Wesley	4d.
*On the first day of the week	E. M. Lott	1½d.
Open to me the gates	F. Adlam	4d.
*Praise His awful Name	Spohr	2d.
Praise Jehovah	Mendelssohn	4d.
*Rejoice in the Lord	J. B. Calkin	3d.
*Rejoice in the Lord	G. J. Elvey	1½d.
Rejoice in the Lord	G. C. Martin	6d.
Rejoice, O ye people	Mendelssohn	1½d.
*Sing praises unto the Lord	W. A. C. Cruickshank	1½d.
*Sing praises unto the Lord	Ch. Gounod	6d.
Sing to the Lord	Mendelssohn	8d.
Thanks be to God	J. W. Gritton	3d.
The Day of Resurrection	E. V. Hall	3d.
*The end of the Sabbath	A. Carnall	1½d.
*The first day of the week	B. Steane	3d.
The Lord hath brought us	E. H. Thorne	3d.
*The Lord hath done great things	H. Smart	4d.
*The Lord is King	J. Pittman	1½d.
*The Lord is King	T. T. Trimnell	4d.
The Lord is my strength	S. Coleridge-Taylor	3d.
*The Lord is my strength	W. H. Monk	1½d.
*The Lord is my strength	V. Novello	1½d.
*The Lord is my strength	H. Smart	1½d.
*The Lord is risen	G. M. Garrett	4d.
*The strain upraise	A. Sullivan	1½d.
*The strife is o'er	B. Steane	1½d.
*They have taken away my Lord	J. Stainer	1½d.
This is the day	S. C. Cooke	3d.
This is the day	E. V. Hall	4d.
This is the day	G. A. Macfarren	2d.
This is the day	A. W. Marchant	3d.
*This is the day	J. Sewell	2d.
This is the day	J. Turle	3d.
When Christ, Who is our life, shall appear	J. V. Roberts	2d.
When my soul fainted within me	J. F. Bridge	1½d.
*Who is like unto Thee?	A. Sullivan	6d.
*Why rage fiercely the heathen?	Mendelssohn	6d.
Why seek ye the living?	A. Alexander	3d.
Why seek ye the living? (Two-part)	M. B. Foster	3d.
Why seek ye the living?	E. J. Hopkins	1½d.
Why seek ye the living?	F. Peel	4d.
Worthy the Lamb—Hallelujah!	Crotch	3d.
*Worthy is the Lamb	J. F. Barnett	1½d.
*Worthy is the Lamb	Handel	2d.

*Anthems marked thus * to be had in Tonic Sol-fa, 1d., 1½d., and 2d. each.*

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

CAROLS FOR EASTER.

Rev. T. HELMORE. Carols for Easter-tide. Words, 1½d.; Melody, 6d. .. .. Vocal score 1s.

J. T. FIELD. Four Easter Carols .. .. 2d.

The Crown is on the Victor's brow.
Christ is risen!
Welcome, happy morning.
Easter flowers are blooming bright.

E. G. MONK. Sing the battle sharp and glorious. Carol 1½d.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Just Published.

IS IT NOTHING TO YOU?

ANTHEM FOR HOLY WEEK

FOUR-PART ARRANGEMENT FOR S.A.T.B.

COMPOSED BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Price Threepence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

EASTER HYMN

(MANE PRIMA SABBATI)

SET TO MUSIC FOR

SOPRANO AND TENOR SOLI, CHORUS, AND ORCHESTRA (OR ORGAN)

BY

GEORGE J. BENNETT.

Composed for the Festival of the Sons of the Clergy, St. Paul's Cathedral, 1895.

Price One Shilling.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

RIDE ON! RIDE ON IN MAJESTY

HYMN FOR PASSION SUNDAY

Words by the Very Rev. Dean Milman

SET TO MUSIC BY

ARTHUR HENRY BROWN.

Price Three-Halfpence.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NEW EASTER ANTHEMS.

Just Published.

O COME, LET US SING

BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Price Threepence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

Just Published.

THE STRIFE IS O'ER.

COMPOSED BY

BRUCE STEANE.

Price Three-Halfpence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

WHEN CHRIST, WHO IS OUR LIFE, SHALL APPEAR

BY

J. VARLEY ROBERTS.

Price Twopence.

OPEN TO ME THE GATES

BY

FRANK ADLAM.

Price Fourpence.

I DECLARE TO YOU THE GOSPEL

BY

W. A. C. CRUICKSHANK.

Price Fourpence.

LO! THE WINTER IS PAST

BY

BERNARD FAREBROTHER.

Price Threepence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

WORTHY IS THE LAMB

COMPOSED BY

J. F. BARNETT.

Price Three-Halfpence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.

THE FIRST DAY OF THE WEEK

COMPOSED BY

BRUCE STEANE.

Price Threepence; Tonic Sol-fa, Twopence.

THE DAY OF RESURRECTION

COMPOSED BY

E. V. HALL.

Price Threepence.

HEARKEN UNTO ME

COMPOSED BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Price Three-Halfpence; Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

THE

CROSS OF CHRIST

CANTATA FOR LENT AND PASSION-TIDE

The Words selected from the Holy Scriptures, interspersed with appropriate Hymns, by

W. MAURICE ADAMS

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

THOMAS ADAMS

Organist and Director of the Music at St. Alban's, Holborn.

Price One Shilling.
Tonic Sol-fa Edition, price Sixpence.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.

Also, separately from the above,

NEARER, MY GOD, TO THEE

Anthem for Soprano Solo and Chorus, price Threepence.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

SAVIOUR OF THE WORLD

(SALVATOR MUNDI)

A SACRED CANTATA

The words written and arranged from Holy Scripture by

FREDERICK E. WEATHERLY, M.A.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

ARTHUR E. DYER,

Mus. Doc., Oxon.

Price Two Shillings and Sixpence.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

GETHSEMANE

A CHURCH CANTATA

THE WORDS WRITTEN AND COMPILED BY

JOSEPH BENNETT

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

C. LEE WILLIAMS.

Price Two Shillings.
Paper boards, Two Shillings and Sixpence.
Words only, 7s. 6d. per 100.
String Parts, 10s. 6d. Wind Parts and Full Score, MS.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

VEXILLA REGIS

(THE ROYAL BANNERS FORWARD GO)

The Latin Words from "The Seven Great Hymns."
Translated by the Rev. J. M. Neale, D.D.

SET TO MUSIC BY

H. R. SHELLEY.

Vocal Score, paper cover, Two Shillings and Sixpence.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

COMPOSITIONS AND ARRANGEMENTS

BY

BERTHOLD TOURS.

CANTATAS.

	s.	d.
The Home of Titania. (Female Voices)	1	6
A Festival Ode	1	0

SERVICES.

Morning, Evening, and Communion Service in F (Sol-fa, 9d.)	2	0
Also in Separate Numbers, from 3d. to 9d. each.
Morning, Evening, and Communion Service. (In Unison)	1	6
Also in Separate Numbers, from 3d. to 6d. each.
Communion Service in C. (Short Setting) ..	1	0
Evening Service in D	0	4
Evening Service in B flat	0	6
Evening Service in D	0	6

ANTHEMS.

Behold, the Angel of the Lord. (Easter) .. .. (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	0	1½
Blessed are they that dwell in Thy house .. .. (Sol-fa, 1d.)	0	1½
Blessing, glory, wisdom, and thanks (Sol-fa, 2d.)	0	4
Christ, our Passover, is sacrificed for us. (Easter) (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	0	1½
God be merciful unto us ..(Vocal Parts, 1s. 6d.)	1	6
God hath appointed a day. (Easter) (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	0	1½
In Thee, O Lord, have I put my trust (Sol-fa, 1d.)	0	3
It shall come to pass. (Whitsuntide) (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	0	1½
O come, let us sing to the Lord. (Harvest) .. (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	0	1½
O Salutaris Hostia	1	0
O Saving Victim	0	1½
O joyful light. (Trinitytide)..	0	4
Praise God in His Holiness .. .. (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	0	3
Sing, O heavens. (Christmas) .. (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	0	1½
The pillars of the earth are the Lord's	0	1½
There were Shepherds abiding in the fields. (Christmas) .. .. .. (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	0	1½
While the earth remaineth. (Harvest) (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	0	1½
Rejoice in the Lord. (Harvest) .. (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	0	1½

CAROLS.

Daybreak	0	1½
Let there be light. (In a collection of twelve) ..	1	0

PART-SONGS.

Hymn to Cynthia	0	3
Hymn to Cynthia. (Male Voices)	0	3
New Year's Song .. .. .. (Sol-fa, 1d.)	0	1½
Stars of the summer night .. .. (Sol-fa, 1d.)	0	1½
The days of long ago	0	3
The rainbow .. .. (Sol-fa, 1d.)	0	1½
All is peace .. .. (Sol-fa, 1d.)	0	1½
Summer and Winter	0	1½
The stars beyond the cloud. (S.S.A.)	0	3
To stay at home is best. (S.S.A.)	0	3

SONGS.

	s.	d.
Old Ireland. A collection of Ancient Irish Melodies. The words by the Author of "John Halifax, Gentleman"	2	6
A Dream of Love. (In A and C) .. .. each	2	0
The Bells of Lee. (In E flat and G) .. each	2	0
A name in the sand	2	0
A Wish	1	3
Little Coquette	1	6
Oh! say not woman's love is bought	1	3
O mother, dear, good-night	1	3
May blossoms	1	6
How shall I picture thee, lady fair	1	6
Because of thee. (In D and F) .. .. each	2	0
Solitude..	2	0
Stars of the summer night	2	0
Tears of Childhood	1	6
The sea hath its pearls	1	6
To blossoms	1	6

PIANOFORTE MUSIC.

Dreaming. (Sketch)	1	6
Berceuse	1	6
Deux Esquisses. (En forme de danse)	1	6
Ephéméron. (Caprice Etude)	1	6
Séraphine. (Morceau de Salon)	2	0
Witches' Dance	1	6
Sonatina	2	0
Juvenile Album. Eight Characteristic Pieces for Pianoforte Duet	2	0

ORGAN MUSIC.

Fantasia. (In form of an Offertoire)	1	6
Menuetto	1	0
Postlude	1	0
Allegretto Grazioso	1	0
Four Sacred Melodies. (O Salutaris Hostia, Faith, Repose, and Melodie Religieuse)	1	6

VIOLIN MUSIC.

The Violin. (No. 17. Novello's Music Primers and Educational Series) .. (Paper boards, 2s. 6d.)	2	0
Thirty Melodies. Written expressly to be used in connection with the Author's Violin Primer. (No. 2. Novello's Albums for Violin and Pianoforte)	2	6
Suite from the music to Shakespeare's "Hamlet"	3	0

VIOLONCELLO MUSIC.

Thirty Melodies. (No. 2. Novello's Albums for Violoncello and Pianoforte)	2	6

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE PIANOFORTE.

The Messiah (Handel) .. .. .. Folio	3	0
Elijah (Mendelssohn).. .. .. .. Folio	3	0
Mors et Vita (Gounod) .. .. .. Folio	5	0
The Redemption (Gounod) .. .. .. Folio	5	0

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

MUSIC SUITABLE FOR SERVICES

IN CONNECTION WITH

H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES'S HOSPITAL FUND.

"Let not Thine Hand be stretched out to Receive, and Shut when Thou should'st Repay."

THE WORDS SELECTED AND THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

JOHN STAINER.

Choral Recit. (S.A.T.B.)—"Let not thine hand be stretched out to receive, and shut when thou should'st repay."
"Give unto the Most High according as He hath enriched thee."
"Reject not the supplication of the afflicted, neither turn thy face from a poor man."
"Be not slow to visit the sick, for that shall make thee to be beloved."

Solo (Soprano or Tenor) and Chorus.
"Lord, shower upon us from above
The sacred gifts of mutual love;
Each other's wants may we supply,
And reign together in the sky."

Solo (Bass).—"When thou hast enough, remember the time of hunger; and when thou art rich, think upon poverty and need."

Price 3d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.; Words only, 3s. per 100.

Will be Published immediately.

HOW SHALL WE TEACH OUR CHILDREN

HYMN IN COMMEMORATION OF

"THE QUEEN'S NURSES"

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY

THE DEAN OF ROCHESTER
(S. REYNOLDS HOLE)

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

GEORGE C. MARTIN,
Mus. Doc.

Price Three-Halfpence.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TOILERS OF THE DEEP

CANTATA

FOR FEMALE VOICES

Verse by JAMES STRANG

MUSIC BY

ALFRED R. GAUL.

CONTENTS.

Introduction and Chorus—"Toiling and toss'd on the restless sea."
Cradle Song—"Come, my baby, come away."
Chorus—"Oh, ho! for the winds that blow."
Ballad—"A mermaid dwelt in days of old."
Trio—"The twilight grey is falling."
Song—"O manly hearts that brave the sea."
Chorus—"Dark and darker grows the night."
Chorus—"A prayer for those at sea."
Intermezzo—"Break of day."
Duet—"Through golden mists of morn."
Cradle Song—No. 2.
Chorus—"Now let songs of gladness rise."

Price Two Shillings.
Words, Five Shillings per hundred.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TWO INAUGURAL ADDRESSES on MUSIC, delivered at Edinburgh by Sir Herbert Oakeley.
Edinburgh: James Thin, Publisher to the University.

For the National Commemoration, 1897.

WORKS SUITABLE FOR THE GENERAL THANKSGIVING. SUNDAY, JUNE 20TH, AND OTHER OCCASIONS.

CANTATA

SONG OF JUBILEE

FOR SOLO VOICES, CHORUS, ORCHESTRA, AND ORGAN

Special Edition, One Shilling and Sixpence.

BY

DR. JACOB BRADFORD.

"This cantata will be found a very useful and important addition to the programmes of musical societies during the Diamond commemoration. The solo work is but slight, requiring only soprano and tenor voices, and the choruses are within the compass of any ordinary choral society. Orchestral parts can be had, but the work could be performed with organ accompaniment."—Norfolk Chronicle.

NATIONAL ANTHEM

AS PERFORMED AT THE ROYAL ALBERT HALL, MARCH 17, WITH MILITARY BAND AND ORGAN.

GOD SAVE OUR GRACIOUS QUEEN

JUBILEE ARRANGEMENT

Specially adapted for Thanksgiving and other occasions

BY

DR. JACOB BRADFORD.

Price Sixpence.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

NATIONAL HYMN

FOR THE QUEEN'S LONG REIGN.

Price Threepence.

SOVEREIGN OF ALL! WHOSE WILL ORDAINS

MUSIC BY

DR. JACOB BRADFORD.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

COMMEMORATIVE MARCH

Piano Solo, Three Shillings; Duet, Five Shillings.

Copies of this March, and the Orchestral Parts of all the above Works can be obtained of Dr. Jacob Bradford, 157, Kennington Park Road, London, S.E.

FOR COMMEMORATIONS OF THE QUEEN'S REIGN

TWELVE
HYMNS WITH TUNES
FOR USE AT SERVICES IN
Commemoration of the Queen's long Reign.

FIRST LINE.	AUTHOR.	COMPOSER.
Ah, sweet the sunset glow	Rev. W. J. Ferrar	*J. E. West.
Children, send a song of praise‡	Rev. W. J. Ferrar	*Dr. C. H. Lloyd.
English hearts and English voices	Rev. W. J. Ferrar	*Sir W. Parratt.
From every clime, from every shore	Rev. B. Reynolds	*Dr. G. C. Martin.
From the deep heart of our people	Rev. W. St. Hill Bourne	†Sir A. C. Mackenzie.
God of Nations, Lord Almighty	Rev. S. Childs Clarke	†Sir J. Barnby.
God, the Source of all Creation	Rev. S. Baring-Gould	†Sir J. Barnby.
Great King of kings, to Thee we pray	Rev. H. D. Rawnsley	†J. H. Maunder.
Happy children we have been‡	Rev. S. Baring-Gould	Sir Arthur Sullivan.
Let all the land with one accord	Rev. S. Childs Clarke	*Dr. H. Keeton.
Long loved, long honour'd Queen	Francis T. Palgrave	*B. Haynes.
O King of kings, Who gives the power to all	Dean of Rochester (S. Reynolds Hole)	*Dr. J. F. Bridge.

* Written expressly for this Hymn. † Now published for the first time. ‡ Specially written for Children.

Complete, with Music, price 2d. Tonic Sol-fa Edition, price 2d. Words only, price 1d., or 5s. per 100.
MILITARY BAND SELECTION (in the Press).

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

ELEMENTARY EXAMINATIONS, 1897
BY THE ASSOCIATED BOARD
OF
The ROYAL ACADEMY of MUSIC & The ROYAL COLLEGE of MUSIC.

Messrs. NOVELLO & CO., sole Publishers of the whole of the Music required for the above, have issued the same in five Books, as under :—

BOOK I.—PIANOFORTE.
Exercises :—Aloys Schmitt, Preparatory Exercises as far as No. 20.
Studies :—Czerny, Op. 599, No. 59; Czerny, Op. 849, No. 3.
(Franklin Taylor's Progressive Studies, Nos. 12 and 16, Book I.)
Pieces :—Beethoven, No. 2, in F, of Two Sonatinas, First Movement. Schumann, Stückchen, in C, Op. 68, No. 5.

BOOK II.—VIOLIN.
Exercise :—No. 43, Nos. 1 to 4. (Page 29, Tours, "The Violin," Novello's Primers.)
Studies :—Tours, "The Violin." No. 49, in C major. No. 50, in A minor (first bowing only).
Pieces :—Battison Haynes, "Twelve Sketches for Violin and Pianoforte." No. 1, "Thoughts."
Dolmetsch, Twelve Easy Pieces. No. 6, Polonaise.

BOOK III.—SINGING, SOPRANO.
Scales :—To be sung in every key within the compass of the voice.
Exercises :—Concone's 50 Lessons for the medium part of the voice; Nos. 1 and 2 (Novello's Edition).
Song, Schubert, "Praise of tears."

BOOK IV.—SINGING, MEZZO-SOPRANO.
Scales :—To be sung in every key within the compass of the voice.
Exercises :—Concone's 50 Lessons for the medium part of the voice; Nos. 3 and 4 (Novello's Edition).
Song, Randegger, "At night."

BOOK V.—SINGING, CONTRALTO.
Scales :—To be sung in every key within the compass of the voice.
Exercises :—Concone's 40 Lessons for Contralto; Nos. 1 and 2 (Novello's Edition).
Song, Macirone, "Lullaby."

Price One Shilling each net.
Postage, 1d. each Book.

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

FOR COMMEMORATIONS OF THE QUEEN'S REIGN

ANTHEMS.

		s.	d.
*MY HEART IS INDITING Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.	Myles B. Foster	0	4
LET EVERY SOUL BE SUBJECT. For Soprano and Tenor Soli and Chorus Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.	J. Stainer	0	1½
LORD, THOU ART GOD. For Tenor Solo and Chorus	J. Stainer	0	8
THE KING SHALL REJOICE ..	R. Stewart	0	6
BEHOLD, O GOD, OUR DEFENDER.	F. W. Hird	0	4
LORD OF LIFE. Prayer from "A Jubilee Ode." (S.A.T.B.) .. .. .. Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.	A. C. Mackenzie	0	3
BLESSED BE THE LORD THY GOD. Tonic Sol-fa, 2d. Performed at the Royal Jubilee Service in Westminster Abbey, June 21, 1887.	J. F. Bridge	0	6
†I WAS GLAD	T. Attwood	0	4
†HALLELUJAH CHORUS ("Messiah") Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.	Handel	0	2
HEAR, O GOD, HEAR MY CRY (Psalm lxi.). Hebrew and English Bible (Revised) Version	A. M. Friedlander	0	6
†CORONATION ANTHEM, "The King shall rejoice"	Handel	0	8
†CORONATION ANTHEM, "Zadok the Priest" Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.	Handel	0	3
CORONATION ANTHEM, "Let Thy hand be strengthened"	Handel	0	6
CORONATION ANTHEM, "My heart is inditing"	Handel	0	8

RESPONSES AND CANTICLES.

FESTIVAL TE DEUM ..	Arthur Sullivan	1	0
†TE DEUM in A	Boyce	0	3
THANKSGIVING TE DEUM in D Folio, 2s.; Vocal Parts (folio), 2s.	John Goss	0	6
THE RESPONSES and PROPER PSALMS, with Chants for the Accession Service ..		0	1½
*MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in C	H. Gadsby	0	6
*MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in B flat (No. 3)	J. Stainer	0	6
*MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in A (No. 2)	J. Stainer	0	6
*MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in B flat	H. Smart	0	6
MAGNIFICAT and NUNC DIMITTIS in B flat (Scored for Military Band) ..	G. C. Martin	0	6

MUSIC FOR THE ORGAN.

VICTORIA—OUR QUEEN! March. Founded on themes from Barnby's popular National Song .. .. .. String Parts, 2s.; Wind Parts, 5s. 6d. Military Band Arrangement (in the Press).	John E. West	2	0
IMPERIAL MARCH .. .. String Parts, 2s.; Wind Parts, 7s. Military Band Arrangement, 7s. 6d.	E. Elgar	2	0
†OVERTURE. Occasional Oratorio (Handel). Arranged by W. T. Best		2	0

 Orchestral Parts, MS., can be hired.*
† Performed at the Queen's Coronation, 1838.

PART-SONGS.

		s.	d.
GOD SAVE THE QUEEN. Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.	Arranged by Sir Michael Costa	0	3
Ditto, ditto. Vocal Parts, 6d.; Orchestral Parts, 3s.	Arranged by Vincent Novello	0	3
Ditto, ditto. Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.	Harmonised by Vincent Novello	0	1½
Ditto, ditto. (Sol-fa, 1d.)	Arranged for Male Voices by J. Barnby	0	2
*Ditto.	Arranged for Three Parts (S.S.A.) ..	0	1½
Ditto. Gaelic words ("Dhia, Gleidh an crun"). Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.
RULE, BRITANNIA. (Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.)	Harmonised by Vincent Novello	0	1½
THE TRIUMPH OF VICTORIA. Madrigal. For Five Voices (S.S.A.T.B.) .. Tonic Sol-fa, 2d.	J. Stainer	0	6
ALL HAIL, BRITANNIA. Madrigal, by A Lotti		0	3
QUEEN OF OUR ISLE. Chorus (S.S.T.T.B.) (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	Sir Henry R. Bishop	0	1½
THE EMPIRE FLAG. A Patriotic Song. For Solo and Chorus	A. C. Mackenzie	2	0
Ditto. Arranged for S.A.T.B. .. .. .. Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.		0	1½
ENGLAND. (S.A.T.B.) .. .. Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.	J. L. Hatton	0	3
Ditto. Arranged for S.S.A. (Sol-fa, 1d.) ..		0	2
YE GALLANT MEN OF ENGLAND. (S.A.T.B.)	E. Hecht	0	3
YE MARINERS OF ENGLAND. (S.A.T.B.) Chorus parts, 6d.; Orchestral parts, 5s. 6d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.	H. Hugh Pierson	0	6
HURRAH FOR MERRY ENGLAND. Solo, with Chorus. (S.A.T.B.).. Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.	H. Hugh Pierson	0	1½
Ditto. Arranged for S.S.A. (Sol-fa, 1d.) ..		0	2
HURRAH FOR MERRY ENGLAND. (S.A.T.B.) (Sol-fa, 1½d.)	Francesco Berger	0	1½
HURRAH! HURRAH! FOR ENGLAND	J. F. Bridge	0	2
NOW PRAY WE FOR OUR COUNTRY (with new second verse by G. E. Troutbeck) (S.A.T.B.) .. .. Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.	Eliza Flower	0	1½
*Ditto.	Arranged for Three Parts (S.S.A.) ..	0	1
PATRIOTIC PART-SONGS for the use of the Army, Navy, and Volunteers. Arranged and adapted by James Tilleard .. Or, in 19 Nos., 1d. each.	complete	0	6
SOLDIERS BRAVE AND GALLANT BE (S.A.T.B.)	Gastoldi	0	1½
Ditto. Arranged for S.S.A.		0	1½

SCHOOL SONGS.

(See also above for S.A. and S.S.A. arrangements of various Four-part Songs.)

TRIOS.

ALBION	Marie Wurm	0	2
*ST. GEORGE FOR ENGLAND	G. A. Macfarren	0	1½

TWO-PART SONGS.

*YE MARINERS OF ENGLAND	H. H. Pierson	0	1½
*SONS OF BRITAIN	Thos. Facer	0	1½

UNISON SONGS.

*HURRAH FOR ENGLAND	W. W. Pearson	0	1
*OLD ENGLAND'S HEROES	Rev. W. J. Foxell	0	1½
*NEPTUNE AND BRITANNIA	Rev. W. J. Foxell	0	1½

For other Patriotic School Songs, see Novello's Catalogue and Lists.

 The pieces marked * are issued in Staff Notation and Tonic Sol-fa combined.*

FOR COMMEMORATIONS OF THE QUEEN'S REIGN

CANTATAS.

Choral Ballad.

THE BANNER OF ST. GEORGE

For Chorus and Orchestra

The Words by Shapcott Wensley

THE MUSIC BY

EDWARD ELGAR.

Price 1s. 6d.
Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words only, 12s. 6d. per 100.
Orchestral Parts (in the Press).

Dedicated, by gracious permission, to Her Majesty the Queen.

THE FLAG OF ENGLAND

BALLAD

For Soprano Solo, Chorus, and Orchestra

The Words by Rudyard Kipling

THE MUSIC BY

J. FREDERICK BRIDGE.

Price 1s. 6d.
Tonic Sol-fa, 9d. Words only, 12s. 6d. per 100.
Orchestral Parts (in the Press).

Dedicated, by gracious permission, to Her Majesty the Queen.

VICTORIA; or, THE BARD'S PROPHECY

A CANTATA

For Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra

The Words by Rev. Charles Kent

The Music by G. F. HUNTLEY, Mus. Doc.

Price 2s.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. Words only, 15s. per 100.

CANTATA

A JUBILEE ODE

FOR

Soprano and Tenor Soli, Chorus, and Orchestra

The Words by Joseph Bennett

THE MUSIC BY

A. C. MACKENZIE.

Price 1s. 6d. Words only, 15s. per 100.
String Parts, 10s. 6d. Wind Parts and Full Score, MS

Dedicated, by gracious permission, to Her Majesty the Queen.

CARMEN SÆCULARE

ODE

For Soprano Solo, Chorus, and Orchestra

The Words by Tennyson

THE MUSIC BY

C. V. STANFORD.

Price 1s. 6d. Orchestral Parts and Full Score, MS.

PART-SONGS AND CHORUSES.

Dedicated, by gracious permission, to Her Majesty the Queen.

THE QUEEN'S SONG

For Soprano, Alto, Tenor, and Bass

The Words by Sir EDWIN ARNOLD, K.C.I.E., K.S.I.

THE MUSIC BY

EATON FANING.

Price 4d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 2d. Words only, 3s. per 100.
String Parts, 2s. Wind Parts, 5s.
Military Band Arrangement, by Dan Godfrey, Jun., 7s. 6d.
Arranged also for Female Voices (S.S.A.), 3d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

VICTORIA—OUR QUEEN

A PATRIOTIC CHORUS

For S.A.T.B. or Unison

The Words by A. C. AINGER

THE MUSIC BY

JOSEPH BARNBY.

Price 3d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d. Words only, 3s. per 100.
String Parts, 1s. Wind Parts, 2s. 3d.
Arranged also for Female Voices (S.A.), 1d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.

Dedicated, by gracious permission, to Her Majesty the Queen.

ALL HAIL THE GLORIOUS REIGN

A Commemoration Ode

For Chorus and Orchestra (can be sung also unaccompanied)

The Words by CLIFTON BINGHAM

THE MUSIC BY

F. H. COWEN.

Price 4d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 2d. Words only, 3s. per 100.
String Parts, 2s. Wind Parts, 6s.
Arranged also for Female Voices (S.S.A.), 3d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1½d.

THE QUEEN! GOD BLESS HER

A PATRIOTIC PART-SONG

For Soprano, Alto, Tenor, and Bass

The Words by MAY BYRON

THE MUSIC BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Price 1½d.; Tonic Sol-fa, 1d. Words only, 3s. per 100.
Arranged for Solo and Three-part Chorus (S.S.A.), 1½d.
Male Voice Arrangement (A.T.B.B.), 3d.

MARCHES.

FOR PIANOFORTE.

IMPERIAL MARCH

BY

EDWARD ELGAR.

Price Two Shillings. Organ Arrangement, Two Shillings.

VICTORIA—OUR QUEEN

Founded on themes from Barnby's popular National Song

BY

J. E. WEST.

Price Two Shillings. Organ Arrangement, Two Shillings.

ORCHESTRAL MUSIC.

VICTORIA—OUR QUEEN

MARCH

Founded on themes from Barnby's popular National Song

By J. E. WEST.

String Parts, 2s. Wind Parts, 5s. 6d.
Military Band Arrangement (in the Press).

IMPERIAL MARCH

By EDWARD ELGAR.

String Parts, 2s. Wind Parts, 7s.
Military Band Arrangement (in the Press).

SIX HYMN TUNES

Arranged for Military Band, by Dan Godfrey, Jun. (in the Press).

LONDON & NEW YORK: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO.

Just Published.

Repeatedly performed with great success at the Promenade Concerts, Queen's Hall, London.

CORONATION MARCH

FOR FULL ORCHESTRA

COMPOSED BY

PERCY PITT.

(Op. 21.)

Arranged for the Pianoforte by the Composer.

Price Two Shillings net.
String Parts, 2s. 6d.; Wind Parts and Full Score, MS.
Organ Arrangement (in the Press).

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

JUBILEE FESTIVAL MUSIC

BY

WILLIAM HAYNES

(Hon. Organist of Malvern Priory Church).

TE DEUM AND JUBILATE

Suitable for Parish Choirs. Reduced price, 6d.

VICTORIA JUBILEE MARCH

For the Organ (Pedal obbligato), introducing the National Anthem.
Price 2s. net.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.;
Or of the Composer, St. Cecilia's Lodge, Malvern.

Just Published.

ONE QUEEN, ONE FLEET, ONE FLAG

A FEDERAL GREETING

Four-part Song for S.A.T.B., or Solo and Chorus, with Pianoforte Accompaniment. The Words written by S. L. E.

THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY

MYLES B. FOSTER.

Price Three-Halfpence. Orchestral Score and Parts may be hired.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

TO CHORAL SOCIETIES AND SCHOOLS.

FRED. TRUSSELL'S POPULAR SONG

THE QUEEN, GOD BLESS HER

(A British Toast)

"Thy sixty glorious years surpass
All that the world has seen.
God Bless our Empress! Mother! Friend!
God save the Queen!"

Specially written and composed in honour of the Diamond Jubilee.
Price Four Shillings.
Arrangements: Quartet, S.A.T.B. Price 4d. net.
Two-part Song for Treble voices, 2d. net; Tonic Sol-fa, 1d.
Doremi and Co., 9, Argyll Place, Regent Street, W.

Received and Acknowledged by Her Majesty the Queen.

THE ROYAL CHORAL MARCH—"GOD'S BLESSING ON OUR SOVEREIGN REST." Arranged for Soprano or Tenor Solo and Chorus, by William J. Young, Composer of Popular Four-part Songs. Price 4d.

God's blessing on our Sovereign rest,
And on her subjects free;
May Queen and country both be blest
This year of Jubilee!
On history's page no fairer name,
No purer life appears;
What age can match, in deeds or fame,
Victoria's sixty years?

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.;
Or, Composer, 51, Barton Arcade, Manchester.

Ready, April.

O NOBLE QUEEN OF ENGLAND. Joyous Part-Song (S.A.T.B.) for Her Majesty's Diamond Jubilee. Written by W. Parker Robinson. Composed by T. Simpson (Editor, &c., of the Burnley Tune Book).

"O noble Queen of England,
Thou Empress of the Free:
We hail with exultation
Thy Diamond Jubilee."

All Glee Parties, Choral Societies, and School Festival Committees should see this Part-Song, which is bright, joyous, and tuneful, and very suitable for marching, &c. Price 4d.

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.
Burnley: T. Simpson.

Just Published.

NATIONAL MARCH

With Vocal Trio (ad lib.) for the Pianoforte. Composed by W. F. MARTIN.
Price Two Shillings net.
Robert Cocks and Co., 6, New Burlington Street, London, W.

CHORAL MUSIC for the DIAMOND JUBILEE.
By Sir HERBERT OAKELEY.

A JUBILEE LYRIC. Text by the late Lord Rosslyn.
Two Chorales or Hymn Tunes: No. 1. VICTORIA, for Church and Queen; No. 2. REGINA, for 1897.
THE LONGEST REIGN. Ode by the Hon. Mrs. Gardyne.
DAWN AND EVENTIDE, 1837—1897. Text by Rev. Gregory Smith, LL.D.
VIVAT REGINA. Savile, 1660, with five new verses. For use at Public Dinners, &c.

Apply to the Composer, Dover.

GOD BLESS VICTORIA.—For Concerts, Services, Celebrations.—Sung with enormous success at Sunday Concert, St. George's Hall, Liverpool. "Audience and orchestra alike rose at this song, which is best described as a patriotic Hymn with a most stirring chorus." Verses may be reprinted. Post-free on receipt of P.O., 1s., to A. D. Parker (P.G.O.), Lichfield.

Just Published.

PRIZE CANTATA

A SONG OF THANKSGIVING

By J. HUMFREY ANGER, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

For Solo Voices (Contralto and Tenor), Chorus, and Orchestra.
This work gained the Jubilee Gold Medal offered to local composers by the Bath Philharmonic in 1887.
Price One Shilling.
The Full Score and Orchestral Parts in MS. may be hired from the Publishers.

By the same Composer: "Bonnie Belle." Madrigal for six voices. This work gained the Medal and Molineux Prize offered by the Madrigal Society in 1890. Price 6d.
London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

SUITABLE FOR CHOIR FESTIVALS.

PRAISE THE LORD

ANTHEM

By W. A. C. CRUICKSHANK, Mus. Bac., Oxon.

Price Fourpence.
Full Score and Band Parts may be hired.
London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Seventh Edition.

The river floweth strong, my love

PART-SONG FOR S.A.T.B.

Words by E. Ridgway.

Music composed by ROLAND ROGERS.

Price Fourpence; Sol-fa, Twopence.

Sung with immense success by Eaton Faning's Select Choir at the Ballad Concerts, St. James's Hall; Wolverhampton Festival Choral Society, the Chester Festival Choral Society, the Cambrian Choral Society (Birkenhead), Huddersfield Glee and Madrigal Society, &c.

Also, New Part-Song, by same Composer.

THREE FISHERS WENT SAILING

Words by Kingsley.

Old Notation, Fourpence; Sol-fa, Twopence.
"An immense success."

London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

8vo, 4d.

THE CYCLISTS

PART-SONG FOR S.A.T.B.
Words by Edward Oxenford
MUSIC BY
W. W. PEARSON.

Orchestral Parts lent gratis for performance.
Apply to the Composer, Elmham, Dereham.
London and New York: Novello, Ewer and Co.

Now Ready. On the 1st of each Month, 228 Cols. 2d.; Post-free, 3½d.
MUSICAL OPINION and MUSIC TRADE REVIEW. 150, Holborn Bars, E.C.

Just Published.

THE CHILDREN'S SUPPLEMENT

BEING A COLLECTION OF

HYMNS FOR CHILDREN'S SERVICES WITH MUSIC

EDITED BY

THE REV. EDWARD HANDLEY, M.A.,
Magdalen Coll., Oxford.

New Tunes have been specially written for this book by Sir JOHN STAINER, Dr. CHARLES W. PEARCE, Dr. CHARLES VINCENT, Dr. STEGGALL, Mr. MYLES BIRKET FOSTER, Dr. J. VARLEY ROBERTS, and many other eminent Musicians.

Price Three Shillings and Sixpence.
Words only, cloth, Fourpence; paper covers, Threepence.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Second Edition.

NARCISSUS AND ECHO

CANTATA FOR CHORUS, SOLI, AND ORCHESTRA

Price 3s.; Choral Parts, 1s. each. Also,

"GOD IS OUR REFUGE" (Ps. 46)

For Chorus, Soli, and Orchestra. Price 1s.

COMPOSED BY

EDWIN C. SUCH,
Mus. Bac., Cantab.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

WORKS

FOR

CHORAL SOCIETIES AND CHOIRS.

	s.	d.
THE SILVER STAR. Cantata. Ladies' voices	1	6
THE LORD IS MY SHEPHERD. 8vo	0	8
BY THE WATERS OF BABYLON. 8vo	1	0
Both for Chorus, without Soloists.
EVENTIDE. Part-Song. 8vo..	0	2

By N. KILBURN, Mus.B., Cantab.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

Popular Part-Songs for S.A.T.B.

By W. W. PEARSON.

The Skaters	3d.	The Oyster Dredgers ..	2d.
The Lake	3d.	Evening	2d.
*'Tis Morn	3d.	*Sweet to live (38th thou.)	2d.
Sweet Spring (Madrigal) ..	3d.	*Welcome, young Spring!..	2d.
The River	3d.	*The Anglers (14th thou.) ..	2d.
Over the mountain side ..	3d.	The Dream of Home ..	2d.
Soul of living music ..	3d.	Summer and Winter ..	2d.
The Stormy Petrel	3d.	*Departed Joys	2d.
The Coral Grove	3d.	There's beauty in the deep	1½d.
Pibroch of Donuil Dhu ..	3d.	Soldier, rest!	1d.
Blow, Western Wind! ..	3d.	Woods in Winter	1d.
Stars of the Night	3d.	Autumn	1d.

HUMOROUS PART-SONGS.

*Three Doughtie Men. (60th thousand)	3d.
Three Children Sliding. (10th thousand)	3d.
A Ryghte Merrie Geste	4d.
The Snow-white Doe	4d.
*Ben Bowlegs (EDWARD OXENFORD)	3d.
The Carrion Crow	3d.
Call John!	3d.

DESCRIPTIVE CHORUSES.

With Pianoforte or Orchestral Accompaniments.

The Iron Horse	4d.	The Ocean	3d.
Off to Sea	4d.	*The Ironfounders (36th thou.)	3d.
Jäger Chorus	3d.	The Cyclists	4d.
The Lifeboat	4d.

Orchestral Parts on application to the COMPOSER, Elmham, Dereham.
Tonic Sol-fa Editions at half the above prices of those marked *.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

NOW READY, Vol. 5 of THE NEW MUSICAL EDUCATOR. By JOHN GREIG, Mus. Doc., assisted by a staff of specialists. Orders invited through Professors and Masters, to whom an advantage will be given. Apply to W. R. HOWELL and Co., Bedford Row Chambers, 42, Theobalds Road, London, W.C.

Just Published.

FOR ORCHESTRAL SOCIETIES.

THE

TAMING OF THE SHREW

OVERTURE FOR ORCHESTRA

BY

ARTHUR NORTON WIGHT.

Conductor's Copy, 3s.; Band Parts, 8s. net.

London: LAUDY and Co., 139, Oxford Street, W.

Just Published.

THE PILGRIM'S PROGRESS

SACRED CANTATA

FOR SOLI AND CHORUS

MUSIC BY

FLORENCE WICKINS

WRITTEN BY

ANNETTE BAKER.

Post-free, Three Shillings net.
Separate Nos., full music size, price Two Shillings each net.

Duet, for Baritone and Bass, OF HEAVEN'S JOYS.
Song, THE SHADOW OF THE CROSS (compass, C to F).
" O SHEPHERD DIVINE (compass, D to F).
London: WICKINS and Co., 41, New Bond Street, W.

WHAT IS THE ROOT?

THE STUDENT'S GREAT DIFFICULTY REMOVED.

Root of any Chord discovered with ease and certainty.
The Scales, or Keys, determined at once, to which any interval, triad, or short musical phrase belongs.

INVALUABLE TO ALL CANDIDATES FOR EXAMINATIONS,
VIDE IMPORTANT TESTIMONY (BELOW) FROM PROMINENT PROFESSORS AND TEACHERS.

Price 1s. 6d.; Post-free, 1s. 7d.

TONALITY AND ROOTS

NEW TREATISE BY

ARTHUR J. GREENISH, Mus. Doc., Cantab.,
F.R.C.O., F.R.A.M.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS RECEIVED:—

From Professor E. PROUT, Mus. Doc. (Dublin University).
"I have read your pamphlet with great interest and pleasure, and consider it most valuable and useful. I shall certainly recommend it to my pupils."

From F. DAVENPORT, Esq. (Professor, R.A.M.).
"I find your work clear, novel, and interesting. It is so evidently the result of experience in teaching."

From ERNEST A. DICKS, Esq., F.R.C.O.
"You deserve the thanks of teachers and students alike for your extremely valuable and useful work. The usual difficulties of root discovery vanish before the intelligent student who thoroughly masters the rules which you give with such simplicity."

From Dr. GORDON SAUNDERS (Professor, T.C.L.).
"Many thanks for book. Students will find it very valuable, whether they are theoretical or practical; especially pianoforte students."

From Dr. RALPH DUNSTAN.
"I like your book much: it is most ingenious."

London: Office of The Organist and Choirmaster, 9, Berners St., W.

THIRD ENGLISH EDITION.

ON THE SENSATIONS OF TONE AS A PHYSIOLOGICAL BASIS FOR THE THEORY OF MUSIC.

By HERMANN L. F. HELMHOLTZ, M.D.

Translated and specially adapted to the use of Musical Students by ALEXANDER J. ELLIS, F.R.S.

With 68 Figures engraved on Wood, and 42 Passages in Musical Notes. Royal 8vo, 28s.

London: LONGMANS, GREEN and Co.

HUMOROUS PART-SONG FOR S.A.T.B.

TOM, THE PIPER'S SON. By A. BEN ALLEN, Composer of "Dickory, dickory, dock." Price 3d.
London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

CHAPPELL & CO.'S PUBLICATIONS.

THE BEHNKE VOICE-TRAINING METHOD.

Price, in paper covers, Two Shillings; in cloth, Three Shillings.

VOICE-TRAINING PRIMER

By MRS. EMIL BEHNKE and DR. CHARLES W. PEARCE.

An easy Catechism of Vocal Physiology and Musical Theory, for the use of Vocal Students generally. This work is also intended as a Text-Book for preparing Candidates for Vocal Examinations, particularly those of the Associated Board of the R.C.M. and R.A.M., the Incorporated Society of Musicians, and Trinity College, London. It contains in one volume all the information required for answering the viva voce questions of Examiners.

Sixtieth Thousand. Price, in paper covers, One Shilling and Sixpence; in cloth, Three Shillings.

VOICE-TRAINING EXERCISES

In Six separate Books, for Soprano, Mezzo-Soprano, Contralto, Tenor, Baritone, and Bass.

By EMIL BEHNKE and DR. CHARLES W. PEARCE.

Third and Improved Edition. Price, in paper covers, One Shilling and Sixpence; in cloth, Three Shillings.

VOICE-TRAINING STUDIES

In Six separate Books, for Soprano, Mezzo-Soprano, Contralto, Tenor, Baritone, and Bass.

By EMIL BEHNKE and DR. CHARLES W. PEARCE.

"This work contains 24 Progressive Studies in different styles, and is intended as a companion or supplementary volume to 'Voice-Training Exercises.' Those of a more cantabile character are to be used as Solfeggi, the others are to be sung as Vocalises. In this Second Edition the accompaniments have been simplified. Highly favourable opinions of these Studies have been expressed by Sir John Stainer, Sir Robert Stewart, Mr. W. H. Cummings, and other eminent authorities."

POPULAR WORKS FOR CHORAL SOCIETIES.

UP TO DATE; or, The Children of the 19th Centuree. A Cantata for Children. By W. H. Sonley Johnson and Reginald Atkins. Price 1s. 6d. net.

GRAY'S ELEGY. Cantata, by A. Cellier. Paper, 2s. 6d. net; cloth, 4s. net.

FAUST. Dramatic Legend, by Hector Berlioz. New Edition. 3s. 6d. net; cloth, 5s. net; Tonic Sol-fa, 2s. 6d. net.

GOD IS LOVE. A Sacred Cantata, by Mrs. Joseph Robinson. Paper, 3s. net; cloth, 10s. 6d. net.

KENILWORTH. Cantata, by Arthur Sullivan. Paper, 3s. 6d. net.

LALLA ROOKH. Cantata, by Frederick Clay. Paper, 3s. 6d. net.

FRIDOLIN; or, The Message to the Forge. A Dramatic Cantata, by A. Randegger. Paper, 4s. net; cloth, 6s. net.

THE JACKDAW OF RHEIMS. Comic Cantata, by Thomas Ingoldsby and George Fox. 2s. 6d. net. Voice parts, each 6d. net; Harmonium part, 1s. net; Tonic Sol-fa, 1s. 6d. net.

THE MARTYR OF ANTIOCH. Sacred Musical Drama, by Arthur Sullivan. Paper, 5s. net; cloth, 8s. net.

TRIAL BY JURY. Comic Operetta, by W. S. Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan. Paper, 3s. net.

POPULAR NUMBERS OF CHAPPELL'S PENNY OPERATIC PART-SONGS

FOR SOPRANO, ALTO, TENOR, AND BASS.

1. Hymn of the Fisherman's Children. Adapted to a Melody from Hérold's "Zampa."
2. Fays and Elves (In mia fe). From Flotow's "Marta."
3. Spring's bright glances (In Elvezia non v'ha). From Bellini's "La Sonnambula."
5. Here we rest (Qui la selva). From Bellini's "La Sonnambula."
6. Onward to battle (Squilli echeggi). From Verdi's "Il Trovatore."
7. Rataplan (Rataplan). From Donizetti's "La Figlia del Reggimento."
8. The Gipsy's Star (Vedi! le fosche). From Verdi's "Il Trovatore."
9. War Song of the Druids (Dell' aura tua profetica). From Bellini's "Norma."
11. Come to the Fair! (Accorete giovinette). From Flotow's "Marta."
12. Friendship (Per te d'immenso giubilo). From Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor."
13. Away, the morning freshly breaking (The Chorus of Fishermen). From Auber's "Masaniello."
14. Pretty Village Maiden (Peasants' Serenade Chorus). From Gounod's "Faust."
15. The soft winds around us (The Gipsy Chorus). From Weber's "Preciosa."
16. See how lightly on the blue sea (Senti la danza invitaci). From Donizetti's "Lucrezia Borgia."
18. On yonder rock reclining. From Auber's "Fra Diavolo."
19. Happy and light. From Balfe's "Bohemian Girl."
22. Come, old comrade (The celebrated Chorus of Old Men). From Gounod's "Faust."
23. 'Gainst the Powers of Evil (The Chorale of the Cross). From Gounod's "Faust."
28. The tuneful sound of Robin's horn. Tyrolese Chorus from Rossini's "Guglielmo Tell."
29. The Chorus of Huntsmen. From Weber's "Der Freischütz."
32. Hail to the bride! From Wagner's "Lohengrin."
34. A bridal wreath we twine. Chorus of Bridesmaids from Weber's "Der Freischütz."
35. Behold! how brightly breaks the morning. The Barcarolle from Auber's "Masaniello."
47. The Harvest Home. From Mozart's "Le Nozze di Figaro."

NEW SERIES (8vo size).

52. The Farandole. From Audran's "Olivette."
53. You swear to be good and true. From Cellier's "Dorothy."
54. From deep forest hoary. From Planquette's "Rip Van Winkle."

To be continued.

NEW SERIES OF CHAPPELL'S VOCAL LIBRARY OF PART-SONGS (8vo size).

118.	Venetian Song (F. Paolo Tosti).	S.A.T.B.	..	King Hall	3d.
119.	Mighty Lord (Gounod's "Marche Religieuse").	S.A.T.B.		King Hall	3d.
120.	Soft and Low (from Gounod's "Mock Doctor").	S.A.T.B.		King Hall	4d.
121.	Crossing the Bar.	S.S.A.T.B.B...	..	Arthur M. Goodhart	3d.
122.	Sigh no more, ladies.	A.T.T.B.B.	..	R. J. S. Stevens	3d.
123.	Peace, perfect Peace.	S.A.T.B...	..	.. Gounod	3d.
124.	Beauty's Eyes (Tosti).	S.A.T.B.	..	King Hall	3d.
125.	Hark! my soul (Gounod).	S.A.T.B.	..	King Hall	3d.
126.	Soldiers' Chorus ("Faust").	S.A.T.B.	..	Gounod	4d.
127.	A Regular Royal Queen ("Gondoliers")	..		Sullivan	6d.

To be continued.

Complete Lists on application to

CHAPPELL AND CO., Ltd., 50, New Bond St., London.

Printed by Novello, Ewer and Co., at 69 & 70, Dean Street (W.), and published at 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 and 81, Queen Street (E.C.). Sold also by Kent and Co., Paternoster Row (E.C.)—Thursday, April 1, 1897.

NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK.

A COLLECTION OF PART-SONGS, GLEES, AND MADRIGALS.

IN VOLUMES, CLOTH, GILT, 5s. EACH; OR IN SEPARATE NUMBERS.

FIRST SERIES.

17 All among the barley (Prize) ... ... E. Stirling 2d.
20 An emigrant's song ... ... W. Macfarren 2d.
25 Awake! the starry midnight hour (Serenade) Mendelssohn 2d.
3 Boating song (The sun is high)... ... ... E. G. Monk 2d.
36 Come away, death. S.A.T.T.B. ... ... G. A. Macfarren 3d.
14 Come, heavy sleep... ... ... Douland 2d.
8 Countryman's song (Oh, the sweet contentment) E. G. Rimbault 3d.
2 Cricketers' song (Bestir ye). T.T.B. ... G. A. Macfarren 2d.
29 Dirge (The glories of our birth) ... ... S. Wesley 2d.
23 Fairies' song (From grassy blades). S.S.S.S. H. R. Bishop 6d.
15 Fisherman's song. S.S.A.T.B. ... ... E. F. Rimbault 2d.
34 Football song (Brawling Boreas blows) ... E. G. Monk 3d.
32 God speed the plough. S.A.T.T. ... ... E. Richter 2d.
5 Good morrow, fair ladies. S.S.T. ... ... T. Morley 2d.
28 Green leaves (Prize). S.A.T.B. ... ... Bianchi Taylor 2d.
13 Harvest song (Prize). S.A.T.B. ... ... W. Macfarren 2d.
35 Haymakers' song (Prize)... ... ... R. P. Stewart 3d.
16 In all thy need ... ... Douland 2d.
11 Integer Vitæ. T.T.B.B. ... ...Fleming 4d.
24 June (She is coming) (Prize). S.S.A. ... ... Finlay Dun 2d.
10 Magdalen College song (Lily, sweet lily). S.S.A.B. E. G. Monk 2d.
27 O happy he who liveth. S.S.A.T.B. ... ...Gastoldi 2d.
12 Orpheus with his lute ... ... G. A. Macfarren 4d.
1 Our native land ... ... G. Reichardt 2d.
22 Pedlar's song ... ...Douland 2d.
21 Shepherds' song (Turn, Amarillis) ... ... Brewer 3d.
4 Song of the railroads ... ... G. A. Macfarren 3d.
30 The angler's trysting-tree ... ... J. Corfe 3d.
31 The dream (Prize) ... ... R. P. Stewart 2d.
26 The fair flower of Northumberland ... E. F. Rimbault 2d.
6 The home fairy (Quartet). T.T.B.B. ... ... Winter 2d.
19 The jolly cricket-ball ... ... E. G. Monk 2d.
9 The students' greeting. T.T.B.B. ... ... Berner 2d.
33 There is a ladie sweete ... ... Ford 2d.
7 The wreath ... ... J. Benedict 2d.
18 When icicles hang by the wall ... G. A. Macfarren 2d.

SECOND SERIES.

VOL. I.—SIR JULIUS BENEDICT.

37 Old May-day, in A ... ... 3d.
38 Invocation to Sleep ... ... 3d.
39 A Night Song ... ... 3d.
40 Dirge for the faithful lover ... 1½d.
41 A Drinking Song (T.T.B.B.)... ... 3d.
42 Sylvan pleasures ... ... 4d.

HENRY SMART.

43 Consolation ... ... 1½d.
44 Good night, thou glorious Sun ... 3d.
45 Hunting Song ... ... 3d.
46 Lady, rise, sweet Morn's awaking 3d.
47 Summer Morning ... ... 3d.
48 The Sea King ... ... 3d.

SEVEN SHAKSPERE SONGS BY G. A. MACFARREN.

49 Orpheus with his lute ... ... 3d.
50 When Icicles hang ... ... 1½d.
51 Come away, Death (S.A.T.T.B.) ... 3d.
52 When Daisies pied ... ... 3d.
53 Who is Sylvia ... ... 1½d.
54 Fear no more the heat o'the Sun 3d.
55 Blow, blow, thou Winter Wind ... 3d.

J. L. HATTON.

56 The Belfry Tower ... ... 4d.
57 England ... ... 3d.
58 Come, celebrate the May ... ... 1½d.
59 Song to Pan ... ... 3d.
60 The Indian Maid ... ... 3d.
61 The Pearl Divers ... ... 4d.

VOL. II.—G. A. MACFARREN.

62 Robin Goodfellow ... ... 3d.
63 Break, break on thy cold grey stones 3d.
64 Echoes (The Splendour falls) ... 3d.
65 Song of the Railroads ... ... 1½d.
66 Christmas ... ... 3d.
67 Adieu, Love, Adieu ... ... 3d.

VOL. II. (continued). C. A. MACIRONE.

68 Sir Knight, Sir Knight ... ... 3d.
69 The Wounded Cupid... ... ... 1½d.
70 Woman's smile ... ... 3d.
71 Autolycus' Song ... ... 3d.
72 Footsteps of Angels ... ... 3d.
73 The Sun shines fair on Carlisle wall 3d.

HENRY LESLIE.

74 The Pilgrims ... ... 3d.
75 My soul to God, my heart to thee... 3d.
76 Awake, awake, the flow'rs unfold ... 3d.
77 How sweet the moonlight sleeps ... 1½d.
78 Land, Ho! ... ... 3d.
79 Up, up, ye Dames ... ... 3d.

SIX MADRIGALS.

Including the Bristol Prize Madrigals.

80 Thine eyes so bright (S.S.A.T.B.B.) } Henry Leslie } 4d.
81 All is not gold (S.A.T.T.B.) ... } W. J. Westbrook } 3d.
82 Hark how the birds (S.S.A.T.T.B.) } Henry Lahee } 3d.
83 All ye woods (S.S.A.T.B.) Do. 1½d.
84 My love is fair (S.A.T.B.B.) H. Leslie 3d.
85 Charm me asleep (S.S.A.T.B.B.) Do. 3d.

VOL. III.—HENRY HILES.

86 When twilight dews ... ... 1½d.
87 A Finland love song ... ... 1½d.
88 Evening... ... ... 1½d.
89 To the Morning Wind ... ... 3d.
90 To Daffodils ... ... 3d.
91 Summer longings ... ... 3d.

VOL. III. (continued). FRANCESCO BERGER.

92 Night, lovely Night ... ... 1½d.
93 Essay, my Heart ... ... 3d.
94 Childhood's melody ... ... 1½d.
95 Now ... ... 3d.
96 Sunset ... ... 1½d.
97 Arise, the sunbeams hail ... ... 3d.

J. BAPTISTE CALKIN.

98 Night winds that so gently flow ... 1½d.
99 Breathe soft, ye Winds ... ... 1½d.
100 My lady is so wondrous fair ... 1½d.
101 Chivalry of Labour (S.S.A.T.B.) ... 4d.
102 Come, fill, my boys (A.T.T.B.) ... 3d.
103 Echoes ... ... 1½d.

J. BARNBY.

104 Phœbus ... ... 1½d.
105 Luna ... ... 1½d.
106 A Wife's Song... ... ... 1½d.
107 Home they brought ... ... 1½d.
108 Annie Lee ... ... 1½d.
109 Starry Crowns of Heaven ... ... 1½d.
110 The Wind ... ... 3d.
111 The Skylark ... ... 3d.

G. A. MACFARREN.

112 The Sands of Dee ... ... 3d.
113 Alton Locke's Song ... ... 1½d.
114 The Starlings ... ... 1½d.
115 The Three Fishers ... ... 3d.
116 The World's Age ... ... 1½d.
117 Sing, heigh ho! ... ... 3d.

VOL. IV.—A. ZIMMERMANN.

118 Fairy Song ... ... 3d.
119 Good Night ... ... 1½d.
120 Gone for ever ... ... 3d.
121 Flowers ... ... 3d.
122 To Daffodils ... ... 1½d.
123 Good Morrow 3d

Copyright, 1897, by Novello, Ewer and Co.

No. 773. NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK. Price 4*d.*
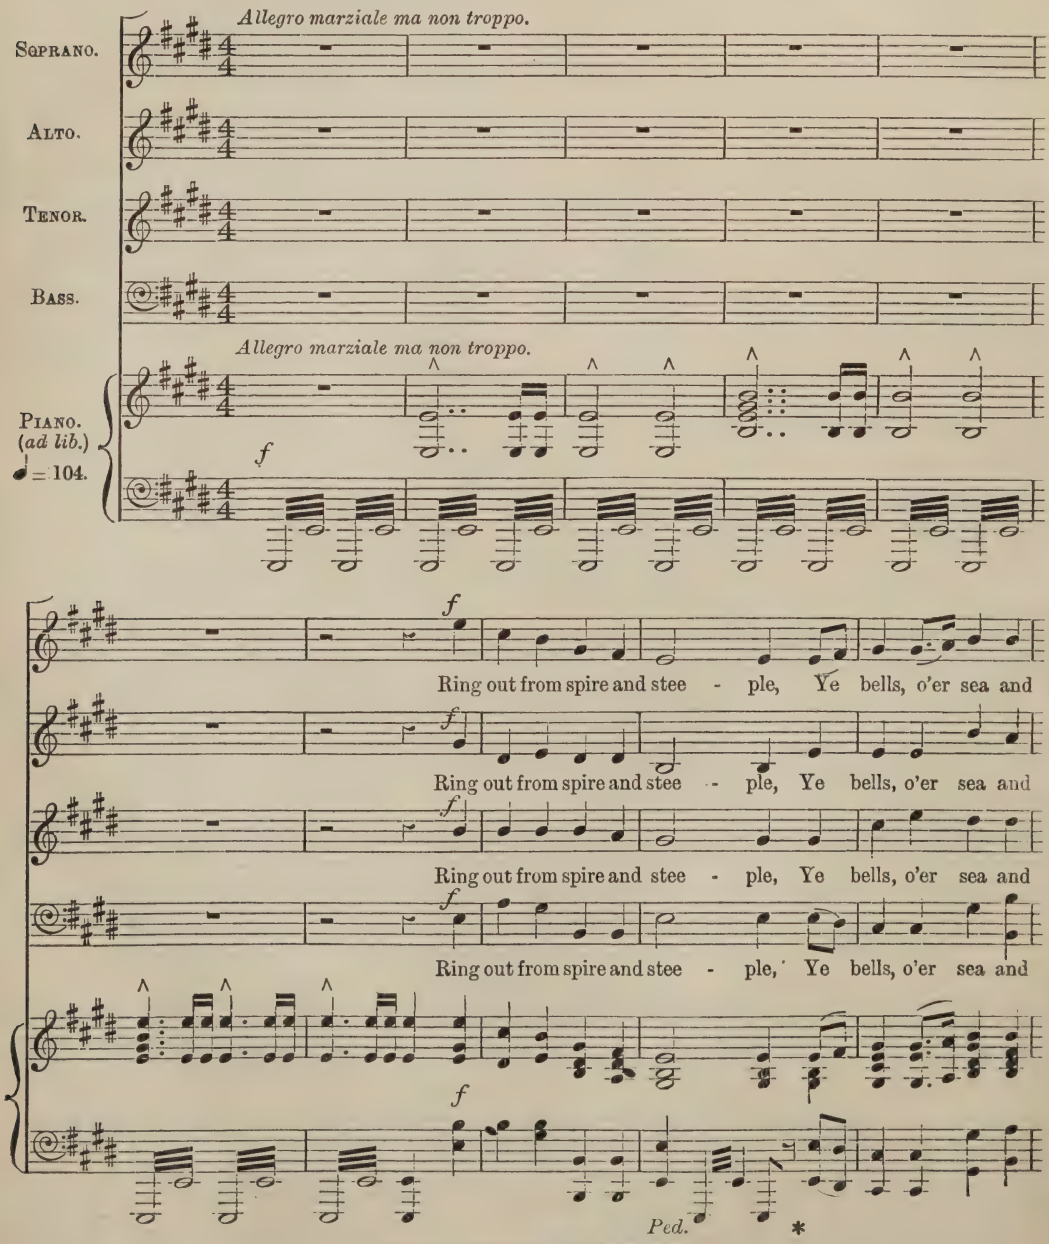
(SECOND SERIES.)

DEDICATED, BY GRACIOUS PERMISSION, TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

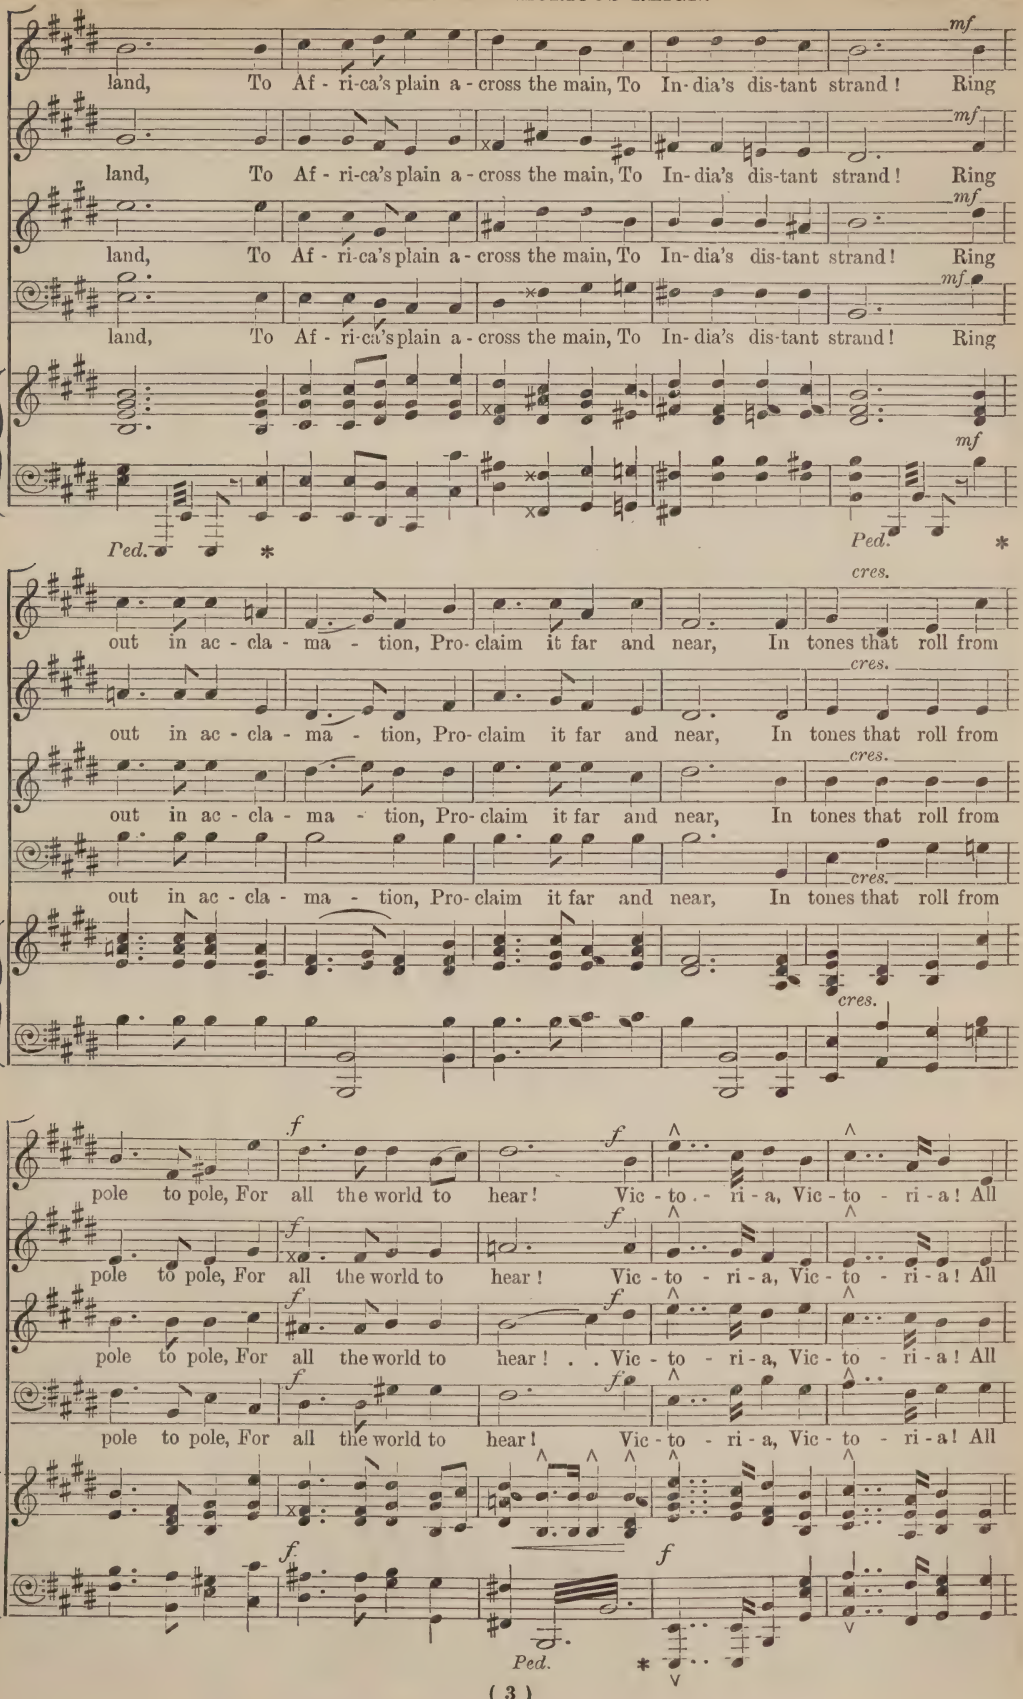
ALL HAIL THE GLORIOUS REIGN



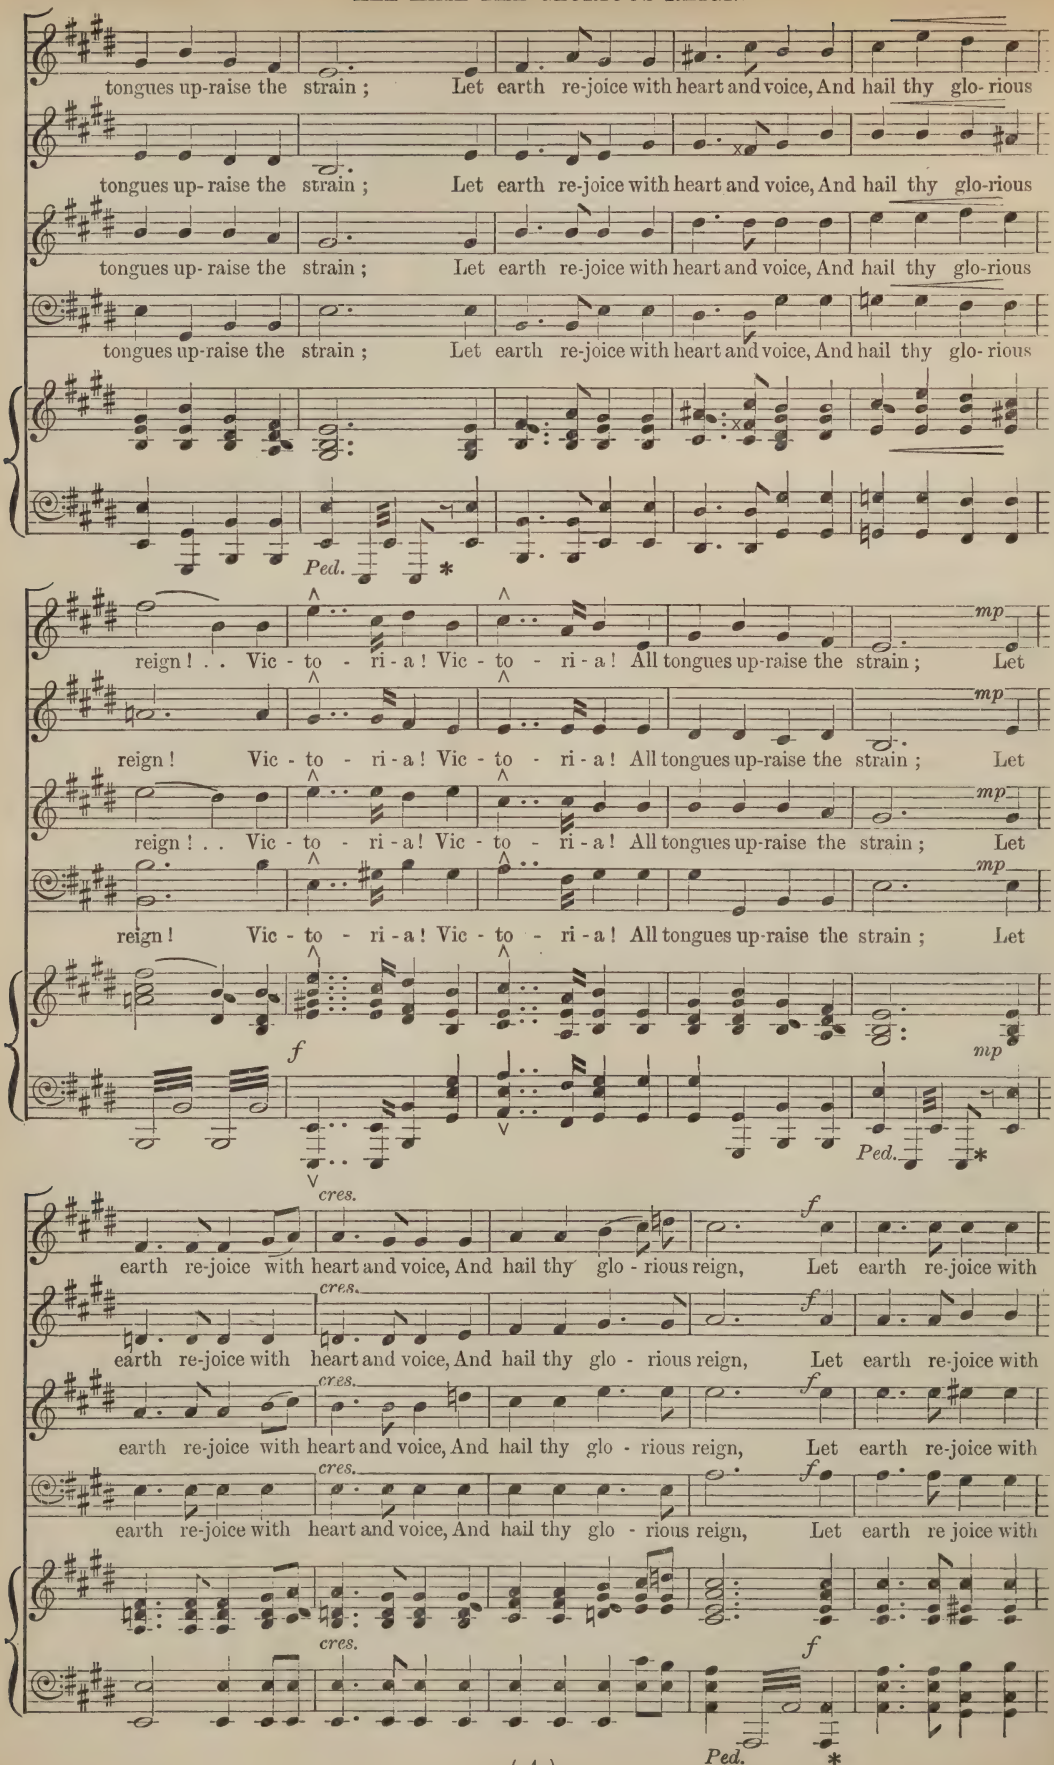
COMMEMORATION ODE FOR CHORUS AND ORCHESTRA (OR FOR UNACCOMPANIED CHORUS)

THE WORDS WRITTEN BY CLIFTON BINGHAM

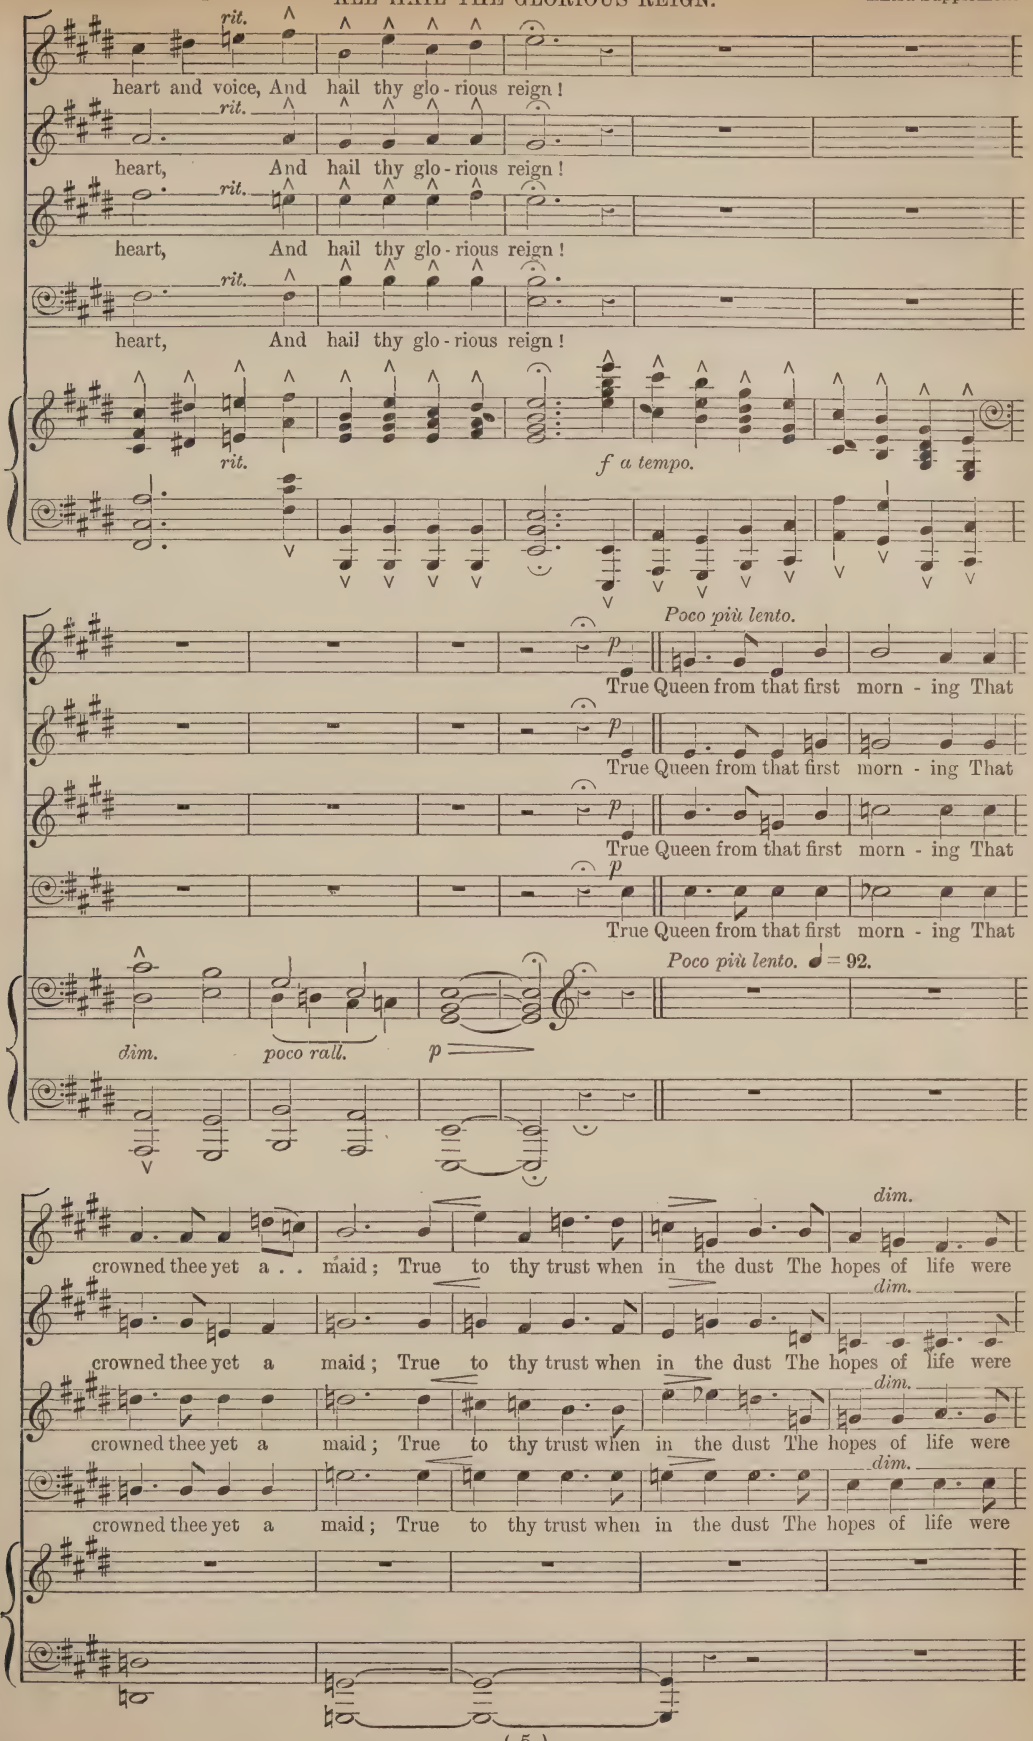
THE MUSIC COMPOSED BY



FREDERIC H. COWEN.



London: NOVELLO, EWER AND CO., 1, Berners Street (W.), and 80 & 81, Queen Street (E.C.); also in New York.



NOTE.—When the Ode is sung without Accompaniment the opening Symphony, as well as that on page 5, must be omitted.

Copyright, 1897, by Novello, Ewer and Co.

mf
land, To Af - ri-ca's plain a - cross the main, To In-dia's dis-tant strand! Ring land, To Af - ri-ca's plain a - cross the main, To In-dia's dis-tant strand! Ring land, To Af - ri-ca's plain a - cross the main, To In-dia's dis-tant strand! Ring land, To Af - ri-ca's plain a - cross the main, To In-dia's dis-tant strand! Ring
Ped. * Ped. *
cres.
out in ac - cla - ma - tion, Pro-claim it far and near, In tones that roll from out in ac - cla - ma - tion, Pro-claim it far and near, In tones that roll from out in ac - cla - ma - tion, Pro-claim it far and near, In tones that roll from out in ac - cla - ma - tion, Pro-claim it far and near, In tones that roll from
f pole to pole, For all the world to hear! Vic - to - ri - a, Vic - to - ri - a! All pole to pole, For all the world to hear! Vic - to - ri - a, Vic - to - ri - a! All pole to pole, For all the world to hear! Vic - to - ri - a, Vic - to - ri - a! All pole to pole, For all the world to hear! Vic - to - ri - a, Vic - to - ri - a! All
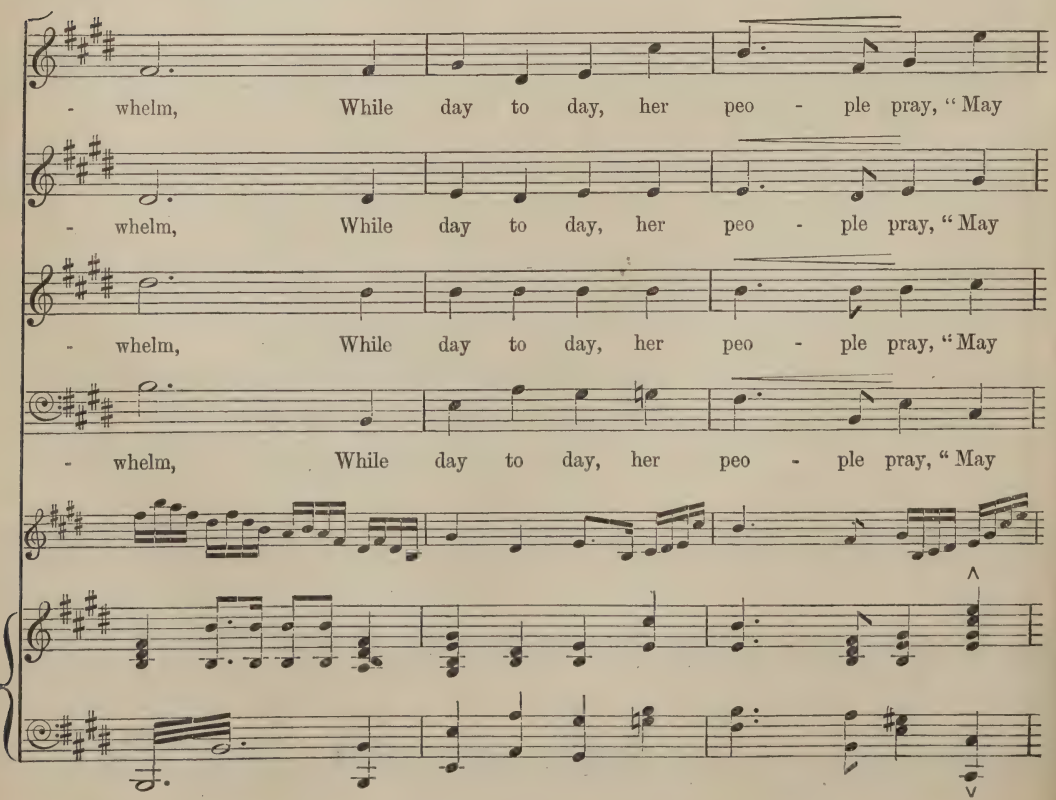
Ped. *



tongues up-raise the strain ; Let earth re-joice with heart and voice, And hail thy glo- rious
tongues up- raise the strain ; Let earth re-joice with heart and voice, And hail thy glo-rious
tongues up- raise the strain ; Let earth re-joice with heart and voice, And hail thy glo-rious tongues up-raise the strain ; Let earth re-joice with heart and voice, And hail thy glo- rious
Ped. *
reign ! . . Vic - to - ri - a ! Vic - to - ri - a ! All tongues up-raise the strain ; Let mp reign ! Vic - to - ri - a ! Vic - to - ri - a ! All tongues up-raise the strain ; Let reign ! . . Vic - to - ri - a ! Vic - to - ri - a ! All tongues up-raise the strain ; Let reign ! Vic - to - ri - a ! Vic - to - ri - a ! All tongues up-raise the strain ; Let
f mp
Ped. *
cres.
earth re-joice with heart and voice, And hail thy glo - rious reign, Let earth re-joice with
f
earth re-joice with heart and voice, And hail thy glo - rious reign, Let earth re-joice with earth re-joice with heart and voice, And hail thy glo - rious reign, Let earth re-joice with earth re-joice with heart and voice, And hail thy glo - rious reign, Let earth re joice with
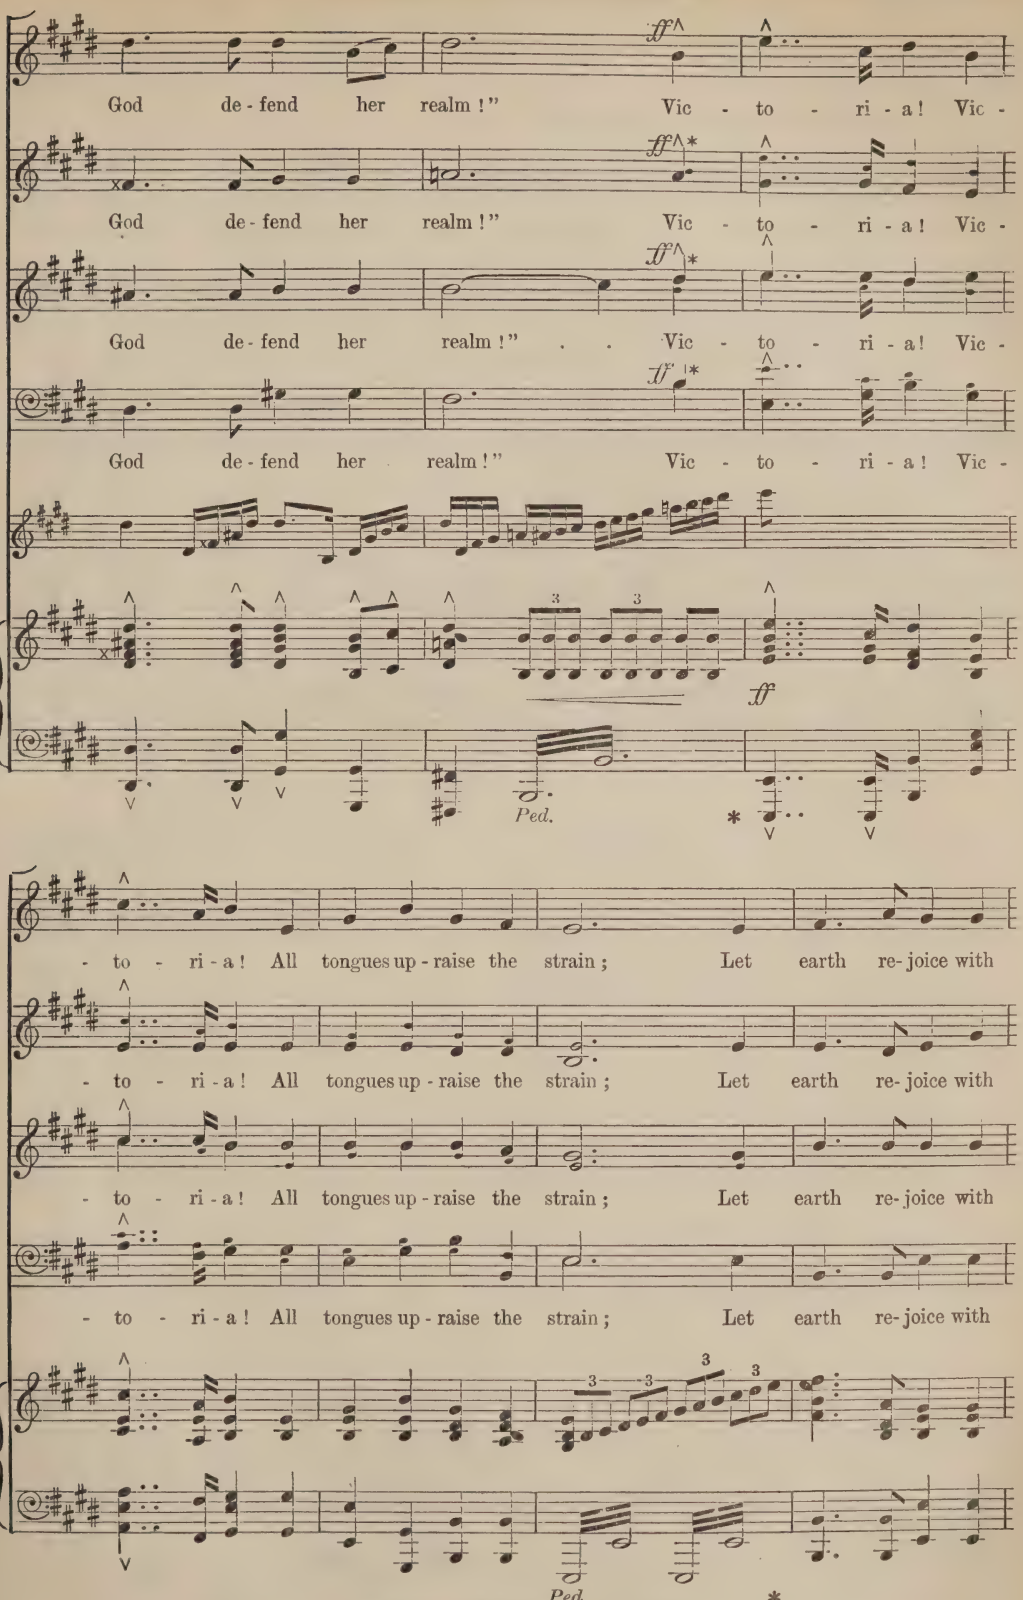
Ped. *



rit.
heart and voice, And hail thy glo - rious reign!
heart, And hail thy glo - rious reign!
heart, And hail thy glo - rious reign!
heart, And hail thy glo - rious reign!
f a tempo.
Poco più lento.
p
True Queen from that first morn - ing That
dim.
poco rall.
Poco più lento. ♩ = 92.
crowned thee yet a . . maid; True to thy trust when in the dust The hopes of life were crowned thee yet a maid; True to thy trust when in the dust The hopes of life were crowned thee yet a maid; True to thy trust when in the dust The hopes of life were crowned thee yet a maid; True to thy trust when in the dust The hopes of life were

cres.
laid. In times of peace de - vot - ed, In sor-row's hour se - rene, And trust-ing still to laid. In times of peace de - vot - ed, In sor-row's hour se - rene, And trust-ing still to laid. In times of peace de - vot - ed, In sor-row's hour se - rene, And trust-ing still to laid. In times of peace de - vot - ed, In sor-row's hour se - rene, And trust- ing still to Tempo 1mo.
Heav'n's high will, True mo - ther, wife, . . and Queen !
Heav'n's will, True mo - ther, wife, . . and Queen !
Heav'n's will, True mo - ther, wife, . . and Queen ! Let Heav'n's will, True mo - ther, wife, . . and Queen ! Let earth re - joice, . .
Tempo 1mo. ♩ = 104.
poco rit.
a tempo.
And hail thy glo - rious reign ! Her Em- pire's heart her
And hail thy glo - rious reign ! Her Em- pire's heart her earth re-joice, And hail thy glo- rious reign ! Her Em- pire's heart her And hail, and hail thy glo - rious reign ! Her Em - pire's heart her poco rit.
f a tempo.

scep - tre, Her peo - ple's love her crown; Let scep - tre, Her peo - ple's love her crown; Let scep - tre, Her peo - ple's love her crown; Let scep - tre, Her peo - ple's love her crown; Let
His - to-ry's page, from age to age, Her glo - rious name hand down! No
His - to-ry's page, from age to age, Her glo - rious name hand down! No
His - to-ry's page, from age to age, Her glo - rious name hand down! No
His - to-ry's page, from age to age, Her glo - rious name hand down! No
Ped.
*

sempre f trai - tor foe shall harm . . us, No storm the state o'er - sempre f
trai - tor foe shall harm . . us, No storm the state o'er - sempre f
trai - tor foe shall harm . . us, No storm the state o'er - sempre f
trai - tor foe shall harm us, No storm the state o'er - sempre f
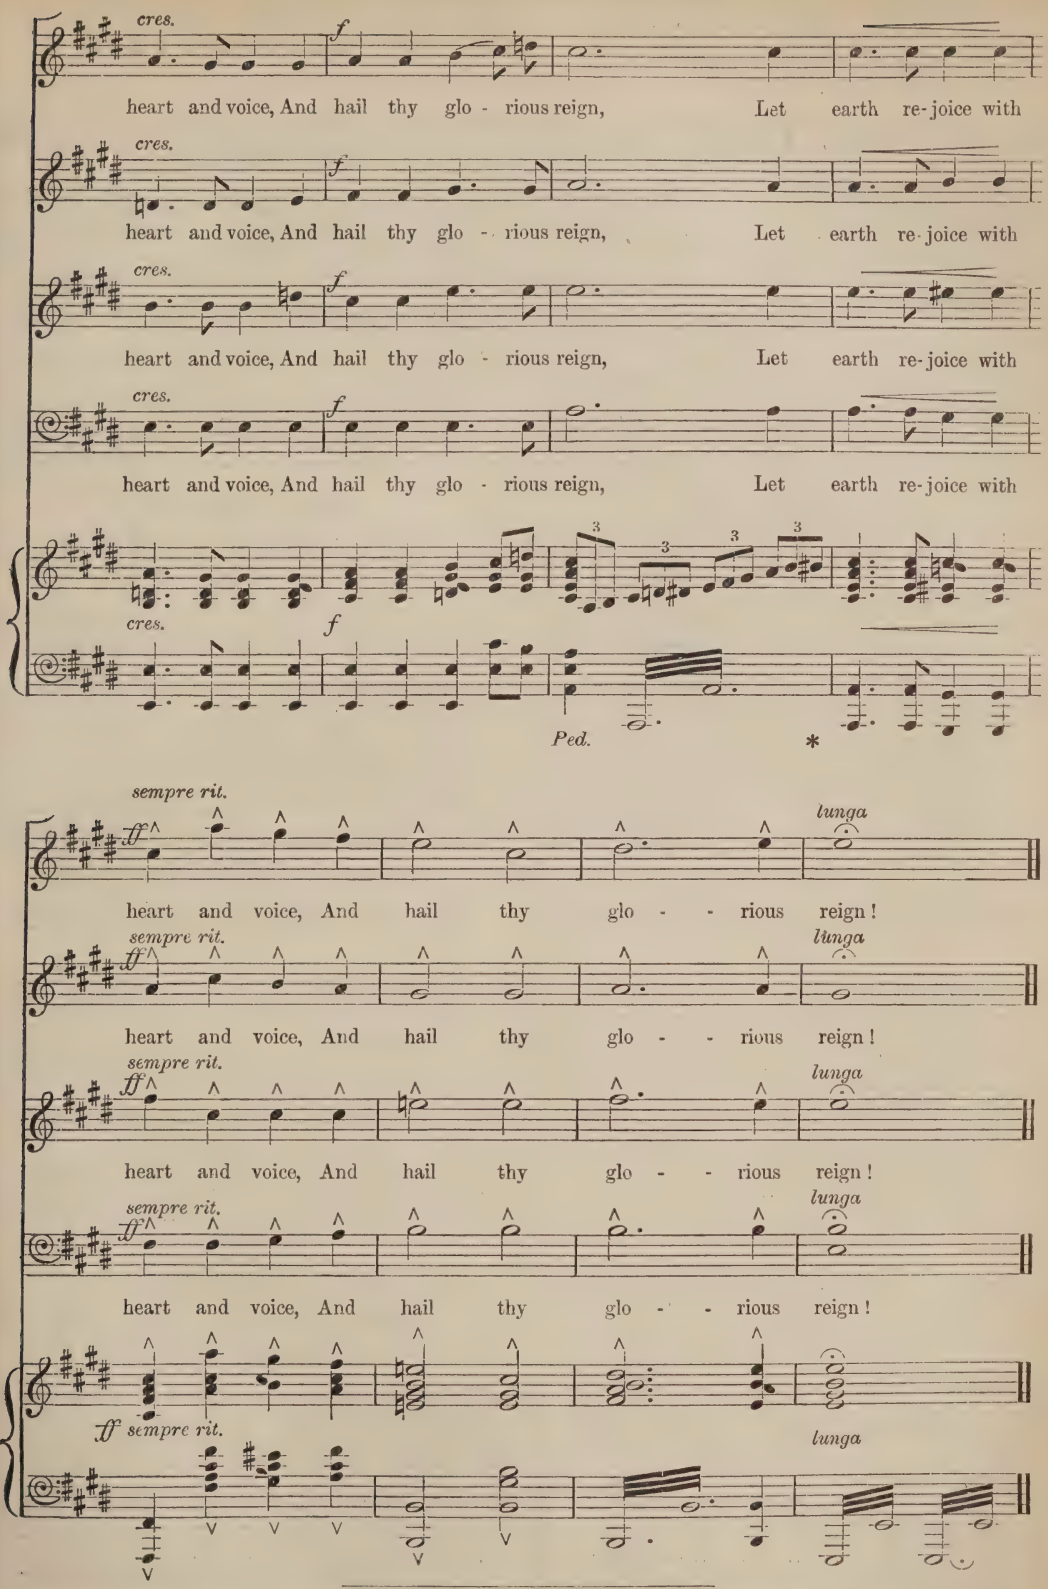
Ped.
*



- whelm, While day to day, her peo - ple pray, "May
- whelm, While day to day, her peo - ple pray, "May
- whelm, While day to day, her peo - ple pray, "May
- whelm, While day to day, her peo - ple pray, "May

* When the Ode is sung with accompaniment the Four Voices should sing this phrase, and the corresponding one on next page, in Unison.

heart and voice, And hail thy glo - rious reign! . . Vic - to - ri - a! Vic - heart and voice, And hail thy glo - rious reign! Vic - to - ri - a! Vic - heart and voice, And hail thy glo - rious reign! . . Vic - to - ri - a! Vic heart and voice, And hail thy glo - rious reign! Vic - to - ri - a! Vic -
ff
Ped.
*

- to - ri - a! All tongues up - raise the strain; Let earth re - joice with
- to - ri - a! All tongues up - raise the strain; Let earth re - joice with
- to - ri - a! All tongues up - raise the strain; Let earth re - joice with
- to - ri - a! All tongues up - raise the strain; Let earth re - joice with mf
Ped.
*

Also published in Novello's Tonic Sol-fa Series, No. 968, price 2*d.*; and an arrangement for Three-Part Chorus (S.S.A.), price 3*d.*

RECENT NUMBERS.

THE MUSICAL TIMES (Sacred).

614.	Lord, I call upon Thee	Arnold D. Culley.
617.	Jesu, priceless treasure	J. Varley Roberts.
618.	Thou crownest the year	Josiah Booth.
621.	With all Thy hosts	John E. West.
622.	There was silence in Bethlehem's fields	John Stainer.
624.	O saving Victim	F. Kœnig.
625.	Hearken unto me	Myles B. Foster.
628.	I will sing unto the Lord	H. Purcell.
629.	The eyes of all wait upon Thee	A. R. Gaul.
633.	The night is far spent	Bruce Steane.
634.	Thou wilt keep him	A. D. Culley.
636.	Worthy is the Lamb	J. Francis Barnett.
638.	If I go not away	Thomas Adams.
640.	Save me, O God	C. S. Jekyll.
641.	Let us now fear the Lord our God	John E. West.
645.	Sing, O heavens	A. R. Gaul.
646.	God that madest earth and heaven	C. L. Naylor.
648.	Bow down Thine ear	William Beale.
649.	The strife is o'er	Bruce Steane.

Price Three-Halfpence each.

THE MUSICAL TIMES (Secular).

613.	It was a lover and his lass (Morley)	J. F. Bridge.
615.	Blow, ye gentle breezes, blow	J. Christopher Marks, Junr.
616.	O'er the woodland chace	Herbert W. Wareing.
619.	Ballad of Earl Haldan's daughter	Robin H. Legge.
620.	Softly the moonlight	F. Iliffe.
623.	Spring	Frederic H. Cowen.
626.	The shades of night	J. Varley Roberts.
627.	Now the wearied sun declining	R. F. Lloyd.
630.	Under the greenwood tree	James Shaw.
631.	Autumn	J. Booth.
632.	A Shadow	Jacques Blumenthal.
635.	To Sylvia	Schubert-West.
637.	O happy eyes	E. Elgar.
639.	Pack, clouds, away	W. A. C. Cruickshank.
642.	A wet sheet and a flowing sea	R. H. Evans.
643.	The Fairy Queene	Alexandra Thomson.
644.	How soft the shades	King Hall.
647.	The Queen—God bless her!	Myles B. Foster.
650.	If I had but two little wings	C. H. H. Parry.

Price Three-Halfpence each.

NOVELLO'S OCTAVO ANTHEMS.

552.	The day Thou gavest	H. H. Woodward	3d.
554.	Behold, I send the promise	J. Varley Roberts	4d.
555.	Unto us a Child is born	Frank Adlam	4d.
557.	The Story of the Cross	J. Varley Roberts	3d.
558.	Not unto us	John E. West	4d.
560.	Hail to the Christ	J. Barnby	3d.
561.	Praise the Lord, ye servants	J. Maude Crament	4d.
562.	Sing, O heavens	H. D. Wetton	4d.
563.	Where Thou reignest	Franz Schubert	3d.
564.	My heart is inditing	Myles B. Foster	4d.
565.	Let the righteous be glad	R. F. Lloyd	3d.
566.	Lord of Life	A. C. Mackenzie	3d.
567.	Be thou exalted	Clowes Bayley	3d.
569.	O come let us sing	Myles B. Foster	3d.
571.	Is it nothing to you?	" "	3d.

To be continued.

NOVELLO'S PART-SONG BOOK.

745.	The Song of Victory (King Arthur)	Henry Purcell	4d.
747.	Upon my lap my soveraigne sits	Martin Peerson	2d.
748.	The Widow Bird	Charles Wood	2d.
749.	Evening Breezes	G. R. Vicars	2d.
750.	There rolls the deep	C. H. H. Parry	2d.
751.	Shall I, wasting in despair	G. J. Elvey	2d.
752.	Onaway	Godfrey Pringle	3d.
754.	Invitation to mirth	Frank Adlam	3d.
755.	The Fortune-Teller's Song	Eaton Faning	3d.
756.	Is not that my fancy's queen?	C. H. Lloyd	2d.
757.	Cherry Ripe	A. Herbert Brewer	2d.
758.	Waken, Lords and Ladies gay	" "	3d.
759.	Songs of our land	Alicia Adélaïde Needham	3d.
764.	The Queen's song	Eaton Faning	4d.
773.	All hail! the glorious reign	F. H. Cowen	4d.

To be continued.

NOVELLO'S PARISH CHOIR BOOK

316.	Benedictus and Agnus Dei in D	J. Baptiste Calkin	3d.
317.	Benedictus in D	John Goss	3d.
318.	Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in D	Charles Macpherson	4d.
319.	Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in C	T. Tallis Trimnell	3d.
320.	The Apostles' Creed	J. H. Cornell	1½d.
321.	The Apostles' Creed (in G)	Edwin George Monk	2d.
322.	Benedictus in D (Chant Form)	James Turle	2d.
324.	Twelve Popular Hymns (Set 2)	A. H. Mann	3d.
326.	Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in G	Arthur E. Godfrey	4d.
328.	Benedicite in F	Myles B. Foster	4d.
329.	Vesper Hymn (Two Versions)	From Beethoven	1d.
333.	The Offertory Sentences	J. T. Field	3d.
334.	The Offertory Sentences	"	3d.
335.	The Offertory Sentences	"	3d.
336.	The Offertory Sentences	"	3d.
337.	Benedictus (in D). 4th Series. Greg. Tones	J. Stainer	2d.

To be continued.

THE ORPHEUS (New Series).

287.	In the pleasant summer day	William Beale	4d.
288.	I prithee send me back my heart	J. Varley Roberts	4d.
289.	What care I how fair she be	Jacques Blumenthal	4d.
290.	While my lady sleepeth	Percy Pitt	3d.
291.	A Cavalier's Song	" "	3d.
292.	The Flirt	J. F. Bridge	3d.
293.	The leaves to one another say	C. H. Döring	3d.
294.	The moon looks down	" "	2d.
295.	Far down the green valley	" "	2d.
296.	Street music	Hamilton Clarke	4d.
297.	The kiss	J. Barnby	3d.
298.	In laudem amoris	"	3d.
299.	There's life to be seen	George Miller	4d.
304.	Shall I look to ease my grief?	C. H. Lloyd	3d.
306.	Hark, hark! the lark	Hamilton Clarke	3d.
307.	The Queen—God bless her!	Myles B. Foster	3d.

To be continued.

NOVELLO'S SHORT ANTHEMS.

62.	Master, what shall I do?	C. B. Bowes	1½d.
64.	Jesus said unto the people	J. Stainer	1½d.
66.	These are they which follow the Lamb	John Goss	1½d.
67.	O Lord, give ear unto my prayer	W. H. Cummings	2d.
68.	Whom have I in Heaven but Thee	G. J. Elvey	2d.
69.	O wisdom	J. Stainer	1½d.
70.	O Lord and ruler	"	1½d.
71.	O root of Jesse	"	1½d.
72.	O key of David	"	1½d.
73.	O day-spring	"	1½d.
74.	O King and desire	"	1½d.
75.	O Emmanuel	"	1½d.
85.	If any man sin	Thomas Adams	1½d.
86.	I heard a voice	Alan Gray	1½d.
87.	The steps of a good man	F. Cambridge	3d.

To be continued.

NOVELLO'S COLLECTION OF
TRIOS, QUARTETS, &c.
FOR FEMALE VOICES.

301.	Noble be thy life	Beethoven	3d.
302.	So the world goes round	Marie Wurm	2d.
303.	Softly the moonlight	F. Iliffe	3d.
304.	You stole my love (arranged by F. Maxson)	W. Macfarren	2d.
305.	Moonlight	Hamilton Clarke	4d.
306.	The Snow	E. Elgar	6d.
307.	Fly, singing Bird	"	6d.
308.	To-day and to-morrow	Hamilton Clarke	4d.
309.	England	J. L. Hatton	2d.
310.	Hurrah for merry England	H. Hugh Pierson	2d.
312.	The wings of sleep	C. H. Lloyd	3d.
315.	The Queen's song	Eaton Faning	3d.
316.	All hail! the glorious reign	F. H. Cowen	3d.

To be continued.

THE MUSICAL TIMES

AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.

PUBLISHED ON THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH.

No. 651.—Vol. 38. MAY 1, 1897. Price 4d.; Postage, 1½d.
Registered for transmission abroad. Annual Subscription, Post-free, 5s.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY,
ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

Patron: HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF SAXE-COBURG AND GOTHA, DUKE OF EDINBURGH, K.G.

Conductor: Professor BRIDGE, Mus.D.

THURSDAY EVENING, MAY 6, at 8,

GRAND COMMEMORATION CONCERT

In honour of H.M. the Queen's Reign of Sixty years.

Sir EDWIN ARNOLD'S
THE QUEEN'S SONG .. .. EATON FANING.
Conducted by the COMPOSER.

CORONATION MUSIC { (a) "Zadok the Priest" (b) "The King shall rejoice" } .. .. HANDEL.

RUDYARD KIPLING'S BALLAD
"THE FLAG OF ENGLAND"
Soprano Solo (Madame ALBANI) and Chorus.
Set to Music, specially for this occasion, by J. F. BRIDGE.

MENDELSSOHN'S "HYMN OF PRAISE."
Artists:
Madame ALBANI.
Miss ANNA WILLIAMS.
Mr. EDWARD LLOYD.
Miss MURIEL FOSTER and Mr. DANIEL PRICE.

Band and Chorus, 1,000. Organist, Mr. H. L. BALFOUR.

Prices: Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Arena, 6s.; Balcony (Reserved), 5s.; Unreserved, 4s.; Gallery (Promenade), 1s.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC,
TENTERDEN STREET, W.

Instituted 1822. Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1830.

Patrons: HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN AND THE ROYAL FAMILY.
President: H.R.H. THE DUKE OF SAXE-COBURG AND GOTHA.
Principal: Sir A. C. MACKENZIE, Mus. Doc.

Midsummer Term begins Monday, May 3. Entrance Examination therefor, Thursday, April 29, at 2.
Fortnightly Concert Saturday, May 22, at 8.
Prospectus, Entry Forms, and all information may be obtained from the Secretary. F. W. RENAUT, Secretary.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC,
Incorporated by Royal Charter, 1883.

PRINCE CONSORT ROAD, SOUTH KENSINGTON, S.W.
President: H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.
Director: C. HUBERT H. PARRY, Esq., D.C.L., M.A., Mus. Doc.
Hon. Sec.: CHARLES MORLEY, Esq., M.P.

The MIDSUMMER TERM will commence on Monday, May 3.
A JUNIOR DEPARTMENT will be opened at the commencement of this Term for Pupils under fourteen years of age at reduced fees, in which the Classes will be so arranged as to interfere as little as possible with the general education of the Pupils.
Syllabus and official Entry Forms may be obtained at the College.
FRANK POWNALL, Registrar.

THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF ORGANISTS.

The solo playing tests for the Fellowship Examination in July will be:—Choral Vorspiel, "Christ unser Herr, zum Jordan kam," Bach (Peters, Novello and Co.); Fugue on the name of Bach, No. 4, Schumann (No. 248. Original Compositions for the Organ. Novello and Co.); and "Variations on a Theme by Beethoven," Op. 45, Merkel (Forberg, Leipzig; Novello and Co.).
The Annual College Dinner takes place on May 31, at the Holborn Restaurant at 7 o'clock.
The College Library will be open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; also on Tuesdays and Thursdays, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.
Members desiring practice on the College Organ may obtain particulars on application.
The large Hall, and sundry smaller rooms, may be hired or concerts, meetings, &c. E. H. TURPIN, Hon. Secretary.
Hart Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

QUEEN'S HALL,
LANGHAM PLACE, W.

LIST OF CONCERTS, SEASON 1896-97.
UNDER THE DIRECTION OF
MR. ROBERT NEWMAN.

QUEEN'S HALL SYMPHONY CONCERTS.

Conductor: Mr. HENRY J. WOOD.
SECOND SERIES.

April 24. Brahms Concert.
May 1. Grieg Concert.
„ 8. Beethoven Concert.
„ 15. Tschaïkowsky Concert.
„ 22. Wagner Concert (Wagner born May 22, 1813).
„ 29. Berlioz, Saint-Saëns, &c., Concert.

Subscription to best seats for the Six Concerts, £2 2s. Single Tickets: 7s. 6d., 5s. 2s. 6d., 1s., at Robert Newman's Box Office, Queen's Hall.
All Patrons purchasing a complete Set of Tickets (either Reserved or Unreserved) for the Six Concerts will be presented with a Ticket for the same part of the Hall at the THANKSGIVING MUSICAL SERVICE on Sunday Morning, June 20, 1897.

On SUNDAY MORNING, June 20, 1897, at 11 o'clock, a GRAND MUSICAL THANKSGIVING SERVICE
Will be rendered with FULL CHOIR AND ORCHESTRA OF 500.
Conductor: Mr. ALBERTO RANDEGGER.
Admission on this unique occasion will be confined to Subscribers to Mr. NEWMAN'S SYMPHONY CONCERTS on April 24, May 1, 8, 15, 22, and 29.

THE QUEEN'S HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

Conductor: Mr. ALBERTO RANDEGGER.
THURSDAY, May 13, 1897, at 8 o'clock,
"ST. PAUL" (MENDELSSOHN)
Artists:
Madame CLARA SAMUELL.
Miss ADA CROSSLEY.
Mr. EDWARD LLOYD.
Mr. ANDREW BLACK.

Choir Boys from the London Training School for Choristers.

FULL ORCHESTRA OF EIGHTY.
Principal Violin .. .. Mr. ARTHUR W. PAYNE.
Organist .. .. .. Mr. H. W. RICHARDS.

Tickets, Numbered—7s. 6d. and 5s.; Unnumbered, 2s. 6d. and 1s.
At Robert Newman's Box Office, Queen's Hall.

ASCENSION DAY, THURSDAY, May 27, at 3 o'clock,
"ELIJAH" (MENDELSSOHN)
Artists:
Miss THUDICHUM.
Madame BELLE COLE.
Mr. LLOYD CHANDOS.
Mr. SANTLEY.

Choir Boys from the London Training School for Choristers.

QUEEN'S HALL ORCHESTRA.
Principal Violin .. .. Mr. ARTHUR W. PAYNE.
Organist .. .. .. Mr. H. W. RICHARDS.

Tickets, Numbered—7s. 6d. and 5s.; Unnumbered, 2s. 6d. and 1s.
At Robert Newman's Box Office, Queen's Hall.

QUEEN'S HALL.
SUNDAY AFTERNOON ORCHESTRAL CONCERTS
Every Sunday Afternoon, from 3.30 till 5.
FULL ORCHESTRA OF SEVENTY.
Principal Violin .. .. Mr. ARTHUR W. PAYNE.
Organ and Pianoforte .. Mr. PERCY PITT.
Conductor: Mr. ALBERTO RANDEGGER.
Tickets: 2s., 1s. 6d., 1s., 6d., at Robert Newman's Box Office.

Tickets or all Concerts and Theatres may be obtained at ROBERT NEWMAN'S Box Office, Queen's Hall, Langham Place, W.
Telegrams—"Chord. London." Telephone—35216.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

Grand Commemoration of the Diamond Jubilee of Her Most Gracious Majesty Victoria, Queen and Empress.

IMPERIAL VICTORIAN EXHIBITION,

May till September, 1897.

GREAT TRIENNIAL HANDEL FESTIVAL

THE GREAT REHEARSAL	Friday, June 11.
MESSIAH	Monday, June 14.
SELECTION FROM SACRED AND SECULAR WORKS	Wednesday, June 16.
ISRAEL IN EGYPT	Friday, June 18.

Solo Vocalists:

Madame ALBANI,
Miss ELLA RUSSELL,
Madame CLARA SAMUELL,
AND
Madame NORDICA.
Miss MARIAN McKENZIE and Miss CLARA BUTT.
Mr. EDWARD LLOYD and Mr. BARTON McGUCKIN.
Mr. SANTLEY and Mr. ANDREW BLACK.

CHORUS and ORCHESTRA, 3,500 PERFORMERS.

Organist	Mr. WALTER W. HEDGCOCK.
Conductor	Mr. AUGUST MANNS.

NUMBERED SEATS.

For Rehearsal.—June 11: 7s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.

For Festival.—June 14, 16, and 18: Single Stall, for the Three Days, £2 2s., £2 12s. 6d., and £3 3s.; Single Stall, for One Day, 15s., £1 1s., and £1 5s.

Tickets in Sets—i.e., for the same Seat for the Three Days of the Festival, and for Rehearsal if desired—will be issued on and after Monday, April 5. Tickets other than in Sets will not be issued until Monday, April 26.

All Tickets include Admission to the Palace, provided they are presented entire at the Entrance.

Tickets for Seats South of the Centre Transept are issued at the Crystal Palace.

Tickets for Seats North of the Centre Transept are issued by Messrs. Novello, Ewer and Co., 1, Berners Street, Oxford Street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen Street, Cheapside.

VEREIN BEETHOVEN HAUS
BONN.

CHAMBER MUSIC FESTIVAL, 1897,

May 23 to 27,
in the
BEETHOVEN HALL, BONN, RHENISH PRUSSIA.

PROGRAMME.

1st Day.—Sunday, May 23.

String Quartet, Op. 18 (Beethoven).
Lieder (Beethoven).
Clarinet Quintet in A major (Mozart).
Lieder (Mozart, Haydn).
String Quartet (Haydn).

2nd Day.—Monday, May 24.

Schubert Concert.

String Quartet in D minor.
Lieder.
Pianoforte Soli.
Lieder.
String Quintet.

3rd Day.—Tuesday, May 25.

Brahms Concert.

Clarinet Quintet.
Lieder.
Variations on a Theme by Handel for Pianoforte.
Vocal Quartets.
String Sextet in B flat.

4th Day.—Wednesday, May 26.

Beethoven Concert.

String Quartet in E flat (No. 12).
String Quartet in F (No. 16).
String Quartet in C sharp minor.

5th Day.—May 27.

String Octet (Mendelssohn).
Lieder (Schumann).
Pianoforte Quintet (Schumann).
Vocal Quartets (Brahms).
String Quintet in C major (Beethoven).

The Concerts on May 23, 24, 25, and 26 will commence at 6.30 p.m.
The Concert on May 27 will commence at 11.30 a.m.

The following Artists have very kindly given their services:—

Jos. Joachim, Honorary President of the Society, Berlin; Heinrich Barth, Berlin; Fr. Bassermann, Frankfort-on-Main; Hugo Becker, Frankfort-on-Main; L. Borwick, London; Fr. Grützmacher, Cologne; Rob. Hausmann, Berlin; Hugo Heermann, Frankfort-on-Main; Willy Hess, Cologne; Fräulein Charlotte Huhn, Dresden; N. Koning, Frankfort-on-Main; J. Kruse, Berlin; Karl Mayer, Schwerin; Rich. Mühlfeld, Meiningen; Fräulein Marcella Pregi, Paris; Jos. Schwartz, Cologne; Willy Seibert, Cologne; J. Slivinski, Warsaw; Em. Wirth, Berlin.

Serial Tickets, for the five Concerts, 20 Marks; Single Tickets, 6 Marks each. May be obtained from G. Cohen, Musikalien Handlung, Bonn; or, W. Sulzbach, Musikalien Handlung, Bonn.

CHESTER
TRIENNIAL MUSICAL FESTIVAL, 1897.

LIST OF WORKS TO BE PERFORMED.

In the Cathedral.—Wednesday Morning, July 21: NATIONAL ANTHEM; ZADOK THE PRIEST (Handel); FESTIVAL TE DEUM (Sullivan); CREATION, Part I. (Haydn); SYMPHONIE PATHÉTIQUE (Tschaïkowsky); MESSE SOLENNELLE (Gounod). Wednesday Evening: JOURNEY TO EMMAUS (Jensen); JUDAS MACCABÆUS (Handel). Thursday Morning, July 22: STABAT MATER (Dvorák); HYMN OF PRAISE (Mendelssohn). Friday Morning, July 23: Double Symphony, THE EARTHLY AND THE DIVINE (Spohr); MASS IN E FLAT (Schubert); Overture, SAUL (Granville Bantock); New Cantata, RESURGAM (Joseph C. Bridge); Introduction and Love-Feast from PARSIFAL (Wagner). Friday Evening: ELIJAH (Mendelssohn).

In the Music Hall.—Thursday Evening: GRAND MISCELLANEOUS CONCERT.

Principal Vocalists:

Miss ANNA WILLIAMS. Miss ESTHER PALLISER.
Miss HILDA FOSTER.
Miss GIULIA RAVOGLI. Miss MURIEL FOSTER.
Mr. EDWARD LLOYD. Mr. HIRWEN JONES.
Mr. WATKIN MILLS. Mr. DANIEL PRICE.

All information may be obtained from the Hon. Secretaries,
Dr. JOSEPH C. BRIDGE,
Rev. HAROLD H. WRIGHT.

THE GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.—

Established by the Corporation of London, 1880.
Principal: William H. Cummings, Esq.

Students' Orchestra meets Mondays, 6.30 p.m. Classes for study of Rudiments of Music, also Sight Singing, held daily. Full particulars of Secretary. By order of the Committee,
Victoria Embankment, Blackfriars, E.C. HILTON CARTER, Sec.

UNIVERSITY OF DURHAM.

Examinations for Degrees in Music are held in March and September. Full particulars, with copies of former papers, of Dr. Armes, The Bailey, Durham.

MUSICAL INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE,

Limited.
Founded 1878. Incorporated 1893.
Central Office: 113, Great Portland Street, W.
Next Local Theoretical Examination, May 25, 1897.
Practical Examinations throughout the kingdom.
W. A. PHILPOTT, Mus. Doc., Secretary.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

Instituted by the Victoria College Corporation, Ltd.
Incorporated, 1891.

Patrons:
The Rt. Hon. The Marquis of Lorne, K.T.
The Rt. Hon. The Earl of Dartmouth.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.
J. H. Lewis, Mus. Doc., D.C.L. (Director).
George Prior, Mus. Doc., Oxon., F.R.C.O. (Registrar).
J. M. Bentley, Mus. Doc., Cantab., Hon. F.R.A.M.
W. F. W. Jackson, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.V.C.M. (Bursar).

Metropolitan Examinations, in all subjects and for all grades, including the Diplomas of Associate (A.V.C.M.), Associate in Music (A.Mus.V.C.M.), Licentiate (L.V.C.M.), Licentiate in Music (L.Mus.V.C.M.), will be held July 7, 1897. Last day of entry, June 9.

Next Local Theoretical Examination, July 7, 1897. Local Practical Examinations are now being held at the various Centres.

Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals are offered for competition.

The Educational Department is under the direction of Dr. Prior.

Local Secretaries required for towns not already represented.

Full particulars on application.

GEO. A. STANTON, F.G.C.M., Secretary.
Central Office: 11, Burleigh Street, Strand, W.C.

SOCIETY of ARTS PRACTICAL EXAMINATION in VOCAL and INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC.—

Examiner, John Farmer, Balliol College, Oxford, and Director of the Harrow Music School; Assistant Examiners: Ernest Walker, M.A., Mus. Bac., Oxon., and Burnham W. Horner. These Examinations are only conducted in London. The next will be held at the House of the Society of Arts, 18, John Street, Adelphi, W.C., and will commence on Monday, June 28, 1897. The latest date for receiving entries is May 8. Full particulars can be had on application to the Secretary.

By order,
HENRY TRUEMAN WOOD, Secretary.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICES.

MISS FLORENCE ARMRIDING (Soprano)
(Pupil of Mr. Shakespeare and Medalist, R.A.M.).
Oratorios, Concerts, Lessons, &c., at 20, Conduit Street. Address, Leicester Villa, Ealing, W.

MISS LIZZIE AUSTIN (Soprano)
(Pupil of Arthur Oswald, Esq., and Silver Medalist, R.A.M.)
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c., 8, Claremont Square, N.

MISS ETHEL BARNARD (Soprano)
(Bronze and Silver Medals, Cert. of Merit, and Rutson Memorial Prizeholder, R.A.M.)
German Songs a specialty. 25, Upper Richmond Road, Putney, S.W.

MISS LOUISE BURNS (Soprano)
Oratorio, Concerts, and At Homes.
Bronze and Silver Medalist, R.A.M.; Cert. Performer and Teacher, R.A.M. Apply, for terms, dates, and press notices, to 2, Church Hill House, Chapter Road, Willesden Green, N.W.

MISS AMY BURVILLE (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes, &c.
15, Belsize Road, South Hampstead.

MISS ELLA CHALLIS (Soprano)
Oratorio, Opera, Concerts, At Homes.
Reference kindly permitted to Mr. Isidore de Solla.
3, Holmdale Road, Stamford Hill, N.

MISS CHARLOTTE DICKENS (Soprano)
(Medalist, R.A.M.).
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, Press Notices, and Lessons, North End House, Stanhope Street, Mornington Crescent, N.W.

MISS MARJORIE EATON (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 237, Katherine Street, Ashton-under-Lyne.

MISS FUSSELLE (Soprano)
Licentiate (Artist), R.A.M.
For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. 37, Harrington Square, N.W.

MADAME GOODALL (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c. Address, Leeds.

MISS ADA LEE (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c. Address, 164, Strand, W.C.

MADAME MARIE MALLIA (Soprano)
Oratorios and Concerts. Claremont, Hermon Hill, Snaresbrook, N.E.

MADAME ANNIE NORLEDGE (Soprano)
For Oratorios and Ballad Concerts.
Address, 1, Northgate, Newark, Notts.

MISS ELSIE PATON (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Banquets, &c.
Address, 223, Burdett Road, Limehouse, E.

MISS WINIFRED PEAKE (Soprano)
Sainton-Dolby Scholar, Silver Medalist and Cert., R.A.M.
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c.,
In Town and Provinces.
10, Wedderburn Road, Hampstead, N.W.

MISS ALICE SIMONS (Soprano)
(Late Parepa-Rosa Scholar, Medalist and Certificate R.A.M., Pupil of Signor Manuel Garcia)
Is open to accept Engagements for Concerts, Garden Parties, &c. For vacant dates, apply, 19, Stamford Hill, N.

MISS C. THEODORIC (Soprano and Accompanist)
For Oratorios, Concerts, &c., 37, Binfield Road, Clapham.

MISS LILIAN TURNBULL (Soprano)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Banquets, &c.
Address, 10, Cecile Park, Crouch End, N.

MISS FLORENCE VEREY (Soprano)
Oratorios, Concerts, &c.
Apply, care of N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork Street, W.

MISS MARY KNIGHT (Mezzo-Soprano)
MR. FRED. KNIGHT (Baritone)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Organ Recitals, &c.
6, Oxford Road, Kilburn, N.W.

MISS MARY WILLIS (Mezzo-Soprano)
For Oratorios, Operas, Concerts, or Private Lessons, address, 9, Rochester Terrace, Camden Road, N.W.

MISS NELLIE ALLAUN (Contralto)
"The Messiah."—"The contralto solos were beautifully rendered by Miss Allaun."—The Courier. Address, 10, Grove Terrace, Leeds.

MADAME ALISON CAIRD (Contralto)
Oratorios and Concerts.
Lossie House, 40, St. Margaret's Road, Crofton Park, S.E.

MADAME CLARA DORAN (Contralto)
For Oratorios, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes.
39, Malvern Road, Kilburn, N.W.

MISS RINA ROBINSON (Contralto)
For Oratorio and Ballad Concerts. 80, Tufnell Park Road, N.
References kindly permitted to Dr. A. H. Mann, Dr. E. H. Turpin and Mr. F. A. W. Docker.

MR. CHARLES RAY (Solo Alto)
(Late of Lichfield Cathedral).
Principal Alto, Holy Trinity, Sloane Street, S.W.
"Voice is a sweet and pure natural alto."—The Citizen.
For terms, vacant dates, &c., address, 21, Oakley Road, Canonbury, N.

MR. TOM CHILD (The Yorkshire Tenor)
(Principal Tenor, Parish Church, Leeds)
Winner of the 100 Guineas Prize, Music Trades Exhibition, 1896.
For terms and vacant dates, address, Hollingside, Horsforth.

MR. WALTER CLINCH (Tenor)
(Late of St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle).
For Oratorios, Concerts, At Homes, &c., address, Athole House, Alfred Road, Acton, W.

MR. OTTO DENE (Tenor)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, Masonic Work, &c.
Address, 132, Norwood Road, S.E.;
Or, to W. B. Healey & Son, 17, Great Marlborough Street, W.

MR. ARTHUR F. JOHNS (Tenor)
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts, Banquets, &c.
Address, 202, Grove Road, Bow, E.

MR. GWILYM RICHARDS (Tenor)
Winner of Joseph Maas Memorial Prize,
" " Goldberg Prize,
" " Evill Prize,
" " Rutson Prize.
At the Royal Academy of Music.
Of the Crystal Palace and St. James's Hall Concerts.
For Oratorios, Ballad Concerts. 30, Redburn Street, Chelsea, S.W.

MR. JOSEPH WILLIAMS (Tenor)
For Concerts, At Homes, Masonic Banquets, &c.
Address, 22, Bolden Street, St. John's, S.E.

MR. GORDON HELLER (Baritone)
Oratorios, &c., 1, Craven Mansion, Craven Terrace, W.

MR. EDGAR LUNNON (Baritone)
(Of Crystal Palace Concerts, &c.)
Address, 7, Bowerdean Street, Wandsworth Bridge Road, S.W.

MR. CHARLES SMITH (Baritone)
Concerts, At Homes, Banquets, &c.
Fairmead, Woodriff Road, Leytonstone.

MR. TOM WATERHOUSE
(The Popular Baritone).
For Oratorios, Operas, Orchestral Concerts, Recitals, &c.
"Sang 'Why do the nations' with great dash and power, giving a fine interpretation of this spirited solo."—Vide Press.
For terms, &c., address, 21, Compton St., Stalybridge, nr. Manchester.

MISS JOYCE HARRIS, G.S.M.
Prof. Dip. I.S.M.
Accompanist.
(To Vocalists, Violinists, or Choral Societies),
27, Brunswick Square, W.C.

MISS GRACE M. SMITH, L.R.A.M.
(Solo Pianist and Accompanist),
"Killiney," Hatherley Road, Sidcup.

MR. AUGUSTUS TOOP
Organist and Musical Direcror, St. Peter's, Vere Street, W.
Accompanist, Teacher of Organ, Piano, and Singing.
60, Berners Street, W.

MR. EGBERT ROBERTS (Bass, Conductor, Italian Church, Hatton Garden) requests that communications respecting Oratorios, Concerts, or Lessons be addressed, 45, Pentonville Road, N. Oratorio and Concert Parties arranged.

MISS
FANNY DE BOUFFLERS
(SOPRANO)
For Oratorios, Concerts, Recitals, address, Carlton House, Liverpool.
Agent: N. Vert.

MADAME ADA LOARING
(SOPRANO)
Merrion, Wellington Road, Peckham, S.E.

MR. CHARLES CHILLEY
Begs to announce that he has REMOVED to 38, Carson Road, West Dulwich, S.E.

MR.
HAMLYN CRIMP
(TENOR)
For terms and vacant dates, please apply, The Woodlands, Heathfield Road, Birmingham.
Concert Parties arranged.

MR. WILLIAM WILD

(TENOR)

Of the Sir Charles and Lady Hallé South African Concert Tour, 1895.
(Pupil of Andrew Black, Esq.)
Specially recommended by the late Sir Charles Hallé. For Concerts, Oratorios, &c. Grosvenor Square, Stalybridge.

MR.

KEVERN BATTEN

(L.R.A.M., BARITONE)

For Concerts, &c., address, 9, Adelaide Road, N.W.
For Summer Months, Telegrams, &c., Derwent Villa, Ilfracombe.

MR.

CHARLES COPLAND

(BARITONE).

Principal London appearances:
Royal Choral Society's Concerts, 1895-96.
Royal Albert Hall (Scotch Festival).
Queen's Hall (Choral Society's Concerts, Ballads, &c.).
St. James's Hall (Ballads, &c.).
Crystal Palace Orchestral Concerts.
Crystal Palace Promenade Concerts.
Royal Amateur Orchestral Society.
Highbury Philharmonic Society.
Covent Garden Promenade Concerts.
English Opera Season, Drury Lane.
Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company (London Season), &c.

"Mr. Copland is one of our most sympathetic baritones, and the naturally rich quality of his organ is set off to advantage by the rare warmth of sentiment which he infuses into his delivery. His enunciation, too, is perfectly distinct—an attribute seldom found in our young singers to-day—and he phrases with the intelligence and feeling of a cultivated artist. It is always a pleasure, therefore, to listen to Mr. Copland."

For terms, address, Stalheim, 48, Greencroft Gardens, N.W.; Telegrams: "Stalheim, London"; or, to N. Vert, 6, Cork Street, W.

MR. EDWARD ILES

(BARITONE).

"A line to say how very much I enjoyed your singing on Saturday. I thought it so artistic, free and powerful."—William Shakespeare.

"The possessor of a highly cultivated and mellow baritone. His voice is full of music, and he thoroughly understands how to use it."—Morning Leader.

"His voice is very musical, and he sings with charming naturalness of expression."—Musical Courier.

Address, N. Vert, 6, Cork Street, Burlington Gardens, W.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS.

MR. LLEWELLYN

Begs to announce that he has placed the whole of his business in the hands of Messrs. W. B. Healey and Son.

All future communications respecting Engagements should be addressed to MESSRS. W. B. HEALEY AND SON,
17, Great Marlborough Street, London, W.

MR. H. C. PORTWAY

(BARITONE)

For Oratorio, Concerts, &c., address, 76, Redesdale St., Chelsea, S.W.

MR. DANIEL PRICE

(BARITONE)

Westminster Abbey. Address, 18, Clarendon Road, W.

MR. ARTHUR BARLOW

(BASS)

For Oratorios, Operas, Concerts, &c.
Address, 19, Oval Road, Regent's Park, N.W.; or, N. Vert, 6, Cork Street, W.

MR. FREDERICK BEVAN

(Bass, H.M. Chapels Royal)

Composer of "The flight of ages," "The admiral's broom," &c.
For Oratorios or Ballad Concerts.
For terms, &c., apply, 21, Bonham Road, Brixton Rise, S.W.

MR. HERBERT HILTON

(BASS)

For Concerts, &c., please address, 58, Lordship Lane, Wood Green, N.

MISS ALICE MARY SMITH

(Mrs. Alfred Dymes)
Associate of the Royal College of Music
HARPIST
16, Lancaster Road, W.

"VOICE PRODUCTION, STYLE, AND ARTISTIC SINGING."

MR. F. ST. JOHN LACY,

A.R.A.M., &c.

Receives Pupils at his residence, Albany Chambers, York Street, Queen Anne's Gate (St. James's Park Station); or, at New Bond St.

THE ANGELUS GLEE SINGERS.

Messrs. R. ALEXANDER, ALBON NASH, HENRY YATES, and ARTHUR WITHERS.

For particulars apply, Secretary, 1, Trossachs Road, Dulwich.

THE COWARD-KEMPTON QUARTET.

ALTO: Mr. PERCY COWARD; TENOR: Mr. ARTHUR COWARD; BARITONE: Mr. RANDULPH COWARD; BASS: Mr. BELL KEMPTON.

For Concerts, &c. Terms on application to Arthur Coward (care of Metzler and Co., Ltd.), Great Marlborough Street, W.

ROYAL WINDSOR GLEE SINGERS

(Of St. George's Chapel Royal and Eton College Chapel).

Mr. WALTER CLAY. Mr. ABEL STARKEY.
Mr. DAVID HUMPHREYS. Mr. WALTER DODDS.

For Concerts, At Homes, Banquets, &c., address, D. Humphreys, 19, The Cloisters, Windsor Castle; or, N. Vert, Esq., 6, Cork St., W.

MISS DONKIN, alias MDLLE. RÈNE.—Any one knowing the PRESENT ADDRESS of this person, or who can give any clue to her whereabouts, will much oblige by communicating at once with Mr. J. Girdlestone, 59, Pall Mall, S.W.

MR.

BLAXLAND'S SOLO BOYS

FOR ORATORIOS, CHURCH FESTIVALS, BANQUETS, &c.

Testimonials from SIR JOHN STAINER, M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon.; C. H. H. PARRY, M.A., Mus. Doc., Oxon. et Cantab.; JOSEPH BRIDGE, M.A., Mus. Doc., &c.; A. MADELEY RICHARDSON, M.A., Mus. Doc.; J. MUNRO COWARD, Esq., and many other leading musicians.

Master
FRED. BEAMENT
(Leading Boy, Church of the Immaculate Conception, Farm Street, W., and Solo Boy).

Master
STERNDALE BENNETT
(Contralto Soloist, St. Alban's, Teddington).

Master
WILLIE CHILD

(Soprano Soloist (Evening), St. Mary's, Stoke Newington; and Soprano Soloist (Morning and Afternoon), Church of the Immaculate Conception, Farm Street, W.).

RICHMOND.—GAUL'S "HOLY CITY."—"The soprano solos were entrusted to Master Willie Child, who, although so young, exhibited wonderful control over his well-trained voice. His solo, 'They shall hunger no more,' was beautifully interpreted and fully deserved the encore accorded him."—Richmond Times, April 10, 1897.

"HOLY CITY."—"Master Willie Child won great enthusiasm for his pure and cultured singing, and was encored."—April 10, 1897.

Master
HENRY EVANS
(Principal Solo Boy, Christ Church, Brondesbury, N.W.).

Master
EDGAR FAVELL
(Soprano Soloist, St. Alban's, Teddington).

For numerous testimonials, see MUSICAL TIMES for April; or, circular on application.

Master
RANDOLPH PARRY
(Leading Boy, Church of the Immaculate Conception, Farm Street, W., and Solo Boy).

Master
EDMUND LA TOUCHE
(Principal Solo Boy (Collegiate Choir), St. Saviour's, Southwark).

"We are very pleased with La Touche; he has sung our principal solos at St. Saviour's and given every satisfaction."—(Signed) A. MADELEY RICHARDSON, M.A., Mus. Doc.

ST. ANNE'S, SOHO.—BACH'S "PASSION" MUSIC.—"The air, 'I follow Thee also' (Master La Touche) was exquisitely sung."—The Times, March 8, 1897.

ST. ANNE'S, SOHO.—"The deeply expressive number, 'I follow Thee also,' was beautifully sung by Master La Touche."—Morning Post, March 6, 1897.

MR. BLAXLAND'S SOLO BOYS fulfilled, amongst other engagements last month, the following:—

Bach's "Passion" (8 times); "Messiah" selections (4 times); Gaul's "Holy City"; Mozart's Twelfth Mass (in Scotland); Williams's "Bethany"; Gounod's "Redemption"; "Gallia" (at The Oratory), "Messe Solennelle"; Dubois's "Seven words"; Weber's Mass in G; Mendelsohn's "Hear my prayer" (3 times), &c.

MR. BLAXLAND'S "BOYS' TRIO"

For Concerts, &c. Répertoire—Trios, Duets, and Solos—on application.

For terms, and all particulars, address—
Mr. BLAXLAND, 15, Tavistock Crescent, Westbourne Park, W.

SOLO BOYS.

LONDON TRAINING SCHOOL FOR CHORISTERS.

Principal, MR. JAMES BATES.

Solo Boys supplied for Oratorios, Festival Services, Organ Recitals, Concerts, &c.

The following Boys can be strongly recommended as excellent Soloists:—

MASTER STANLEY MARCHANT,
Solo Boy, Christ Church, Lancaster Gate, W.

MASTER PERCY HALE,
Solo Boy, Holy Trinity, Sloane Square, S.W.

MASTER WILLIE GAMMAGE,
Solo Boy, Royal Military Chapel, S.W.

MASTER WILLIAM McLEAN,
Solo Boy, St. Peter's, Cranley Gardens, S.W.

MASTER EDWARD BOWLEY,
Solo Boy, Hon. Society of Gray's Inn, W.C.

MASTER GEORGE EDWARDS,
Solo Boy, St. Saviour's Cathedral, Southwark.

MASTER JAMES McBEAN,
Solo Boy, Holy Trinity, Wandsworth, S.W.

MASTER WILLIAM McBEAN,
Solo Boy, Hampstead Parish Church, N.W.

MASTER ARTHUR WIDLAKE,
Solo Boy, St. Peter's, Hammersmith, W.

MASTER ARTHUR SIGGERS,
Solo Boy, St. Paul's, Paddington, W.

MASTER ERNEST GLENN,
Solo Boy, St. Thomas's, Kensington, W.

MASTER FREDERICK WESTON,
Solo Boy, St. Jude's, Chelsea, W.

Masters Albert Russell, Stanley Smith, Herbert Harden, Alfred Bartington, and George Glasspoole, thoroughly competent Solo Boys, are free to accept permanent engagements (Anglican Services).

Extracts from recent testimonials:—

Alberto Randegger, Esq., Conductor, Queen's Hall Choral Society, &c.
"Too much praise cannot be given for your boys' excellent singing."—May 11, 1896.

Professor Bridge, Mus. Doc., Conductor, Royal Choral Society, &c.
"Your boys are excellent."—June 30, 1896.

John Spencer Curwen, Esq., President, Tonic Sol-fa College.
"I have often been charmed with the sensibility, the phrasing, and the emotional power of your solo boys' renderings."—Sept. 11, 1896.

Recent Newspaper cuttings:—

"The delightful singing of 'Killarney' and 'Birds in the night,' by Master Stanley Marchant, afforded a very enjoyable addition to the Meister Glee Singers' programme."—Bayswater Chronicle, Jan. 8, 1897.

"Master Marchant gave a very beautiful rendering of the soprano solos (Spohr's 'Last Judgment'); indeed, we think his singing better than any other boy we have ever heard in the Cathedral on similar occasions."—Hereford Times, Dec. 20, 1896.

"Master Percy Hale sang exquisitely 'With verdure clad' and 'On mighty pens.'"—Musical News, Oct. 17, 1896.

"'With verdure clad' was exquisitely sung by Master Herbert Harden."—Putney and Borough News, Oct. 16, 1896.

"The audience were delighted with his (Master W. McLean's) sweet and dulcet tones (Brahms's 'Lullaby' and Mendelssohn's 'Hear my Prayer')."—Yeovil Weekly News, Feb. 16, 1897.

Over 100 chorus boys available on week-days. These boys can be engaged for Musical Festivals, &c. Sixty boys have had a unique experience, as they take part in all the Queen's Hall Choral Society's Concerts. "Creation," "Elijah," "Samson and Dalila," "Messiah," "Golden Legend," "Stabat Mater" (Rossini), "Faust" (Berlioz), "Hymn of Praise," "Redemption," "St. Paul."

London critiques on the Boys' singing at the Queen's Hall Choral Society's Concerts:—

The Times, Jan. 4, 1897.—The choir, materially assisted by a contingent of boys from the London Training School for Choristers, were more than admirable in every way, their quality of tone, power of expression, and precision of attack being as remarkable as they are uncommon."

Daily Telegraph, Jan. 24, 1896.—"The choruses gained in effect through the strengthening of the choir by a contingent of boys from the 'London Training School for Choristers,' whose bright young voices were heard to much advantage."

Morning Post, April 4, 1896.—"In speaking of the choir mention should be made of the excellent singing of the contingent of boys from the London Training School for Choristers.

Standard, Feb. 24, 1896.—"The sopranos and contraltos were reinforced by a large contingent of boys from the London Training School for Choristers. The bright, fresh voices of the juvenile singers blended excellently with those of the female executants."

For terms, photos of Solo Boys, and full particulars, address, Mr. G. E. Jeffries, Secretary, Church House, Porchester Terrace, Hyde Park, W.

MR. DUTTON'S SOLO BOYS.

MR. DUTTON (St. Paul's Cathedral) supplies Solo Boys for Church Festivals, Organ Recitals, Concerts, At Homes, &c.

MR. DUTTON'S Boys are trained entirely by himself, and he guarantees their efficiency.

George C. Martin, Esq., Mus. Doc., Organist of St. Paul's Cathedral, writes: "I have almost exclusively employed Mr. Dutton's Solo Boys at Services at St. Paul's Cathedral and elsewhere when our own choristers were not available, and they have given me on all occasions the greatest possible satisfaction. I feel that Mr. Dutton has special and very great abilities in the art of training choristers; his boys sing with much expression and refinement."—December 20, 1896.

For vacant dates, terms, and further particulars, address, Mr. Henry J. Dutton, 19, Alpha Road, New Cross, S.E.

THE MISSES TULLOCH'S

Vocal, Instrumental, and Dramatic

RECITALS.

OPERATIC SCENAS AND ARIAS. BALLADS.
MANDOLINE AND GUITAR SOLOS AND DUETS.
ITALIAN, FRENCH, AND GERMAN SONGS.
SPANISH SONGS TO GUITAR ACCOMPANIMENTS.
RECITATIONS (POETIC AND HUMOROUS).

For Press notices and Programmes, address, Miss D. Tulloch, 16, Linden Gardens, London, W.; or, usual Concert Agents.

MR. W. C. AINLEY, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (1884), teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence. Terms moderate. Eastfield House, Mirfield, Yorkshire.

DR. ALLISON instructed by Post Candidates who OBTAINED DEGREES OF MUS.D. AND MUS.B. at Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, and Durham (1896) Universities, Diplomas of L.R.A.M. (1897, &c.), A.Mus. L.C.M., L.Mus. L.C.M., F.R.C.O., and A.R.C.O.; Appointments at College and School of Music, and as Chapel Royal, Cathedral, and Parish Church Organists; Gold Medals, Prizes, "Honours" and Pass Certificates (of the Colleges of Music) to the number of 500. Harmony, Counterpoint, Orchestration, and Revision of Compositions, by Post, to correspondents anywhere. Personal instruction in Theory, Singing, Organ, and Pianoforte. Cambridge House, 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

REVISION OF MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS.
Dr. Horton Allison, Mus.D. 68, Nelson Street, Manchester.

MR. J. PERCY BAKER, A.R.A.M., Mus. Bac., Dunelm, teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by post. Personal Lessons in Pianoforte or Theory at own or pupil's residence; or at 84, New Bond Street, W. Schools attended. Address, Willersley House, Old Charlton.

DR. F. R. GREENISH, Mus. Doc., Oxon., L.Mus. T.C.L., has a few VACANCIES for Private Correspondence PUPILS. Special Subjects: HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FORM, COMPOSITION, and ORCHESTRATION. Preparation, by correspondence, for all Theoretical Examinations. Every possible assistance given and no effort spared to ensure success. Terms moderate. Address, Dr. F. R. Greenish, Haverfordwest.

MR. T. HEMMINGS, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.Mus.T.C.L., gives LESSONS in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., and prepares CANDIDATES for ARTS and MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Latest successes, Mus. Bac: Oxford and Durham, L.R.A.M. A.R.C.M., F.R.C.O., A.R.C.O., &c. Sheppard Street, Stoke-on-Trent.

DR. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab.; Mus. Doc., Trinity College, Toronto; L.Mus. T.C.L., gives LESSONS Personally or by post in HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, FUGUE, ORCHESTRATION, ACOUSTICS, &c., and prepares for Musical Examinations. Latest successes: MUS. BAC., DURHAM, 1896, also 1895 and all previous years; and FIRST, 1896, also 1895 and all previous years; A.R.C.M., 1896; CAMBRIDGE, FIRST MUS. BAC., 1896; OXFORD, MUS. BAC., 1896, and FIRST, 1896; F.R.C.O., 1897, A.R.C.O., 1896; CAMBRIDGE MUS. BAC.; LONDON, MUS. BAC.; DUBLIN, MUS. BAC.; L.R.A.M. (Composition and Pianoforte), 1896 and 1897; Mus. Bac. and Mus. Doc., Toronto, Gold Medalists, 1890, 1892, and 1893; L.Mus., L.C.M.; L.T.C.L., and A.T.C.L., 1896 and 1897; Senior Local R.A.M. and R.C.M. Special and individual attention given to Correspondents. Upwards of 350 Diplomas and Degrees and several Gold and Silver Medals gained by pupils. MSS. corrected and revised for publication. Terms moderate. Address, 70, Park Road, Haverstock Hill, London N.W.

MR. S. S. MARTYN, Mus. Bac., Oxon., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., personally or by post. 24, Killieser Avenue, Streatham Hill, S.W.

DR. FRANK MERRICK, Mus. D. (Dublin), L.T.C.L., L.R.A.M., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, &c., by Correspondence, and prepares Candidates for the University and Metropolitan Examinations. 7, Hughenden Road, Clifton.

MR. W. E. PITMAN, Mus. Bac., Oxon., F.R.C.O., teaches HARMONY and COUNTERPOINT, personally or by correspondence, and coaches for the Universities, Royal College of Organists, and other Musical Exams. Thorough grounding in the various subjects. For terms, address, W. E. Pitman, Sundridge, Sevenoaks.

DR. W. JOHN REYNOLDS, Mus. Doc., Lond., L.Mus., T.C.L. (Organist, St. Michael's, Cornhill), prepares CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS, personally or by post. Many successes. Particulars on application. 66, Highbury Grove, London, N.; or, at the Church.

MR. HAMILTON ROBINSON, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, F.R.C.O., Lecturer on Harmony in King's College, Lond., Organist and Choirmaster, St. Stephen's, South Kensington. PIANOFORTE and ORGAN LESSONS. HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, COMPOSITION, &c., personally or by correspondence. Preparation for University, R.C.O., and other Examinations. Classes. 54, Baron's Court Road, West Kensington, W.

MR. R. STOKOE, Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.C.O., gives ORGAN LESSONS at Christ Church, Down Street, Piccadilly. Harmony, Counterpoint, &c., taught personally or by post. 86, Rossiter Road, Balham, S.W.

DR. TAYLOR, Mus.D., Oxon., F.R.C.O., L.T.C.L. (Author of "Vocal Score Reading Exercises" and "Figured Bass and Melody Exercises," for R.C.O. Students), prepares CANDIDATES for MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS by Post. Address, Wolverhampton Road, Stafford.

MR. A. W. TOMLYN, Mus.B., Dunelm, L.T.C.L., Berwick-on-Tweed, COACHES CANDIDATES for University and all other Exams. by post. Every possible attention and assistance guaranteed. Latest success Final Mus. Bac. Durham, March 1897.

MR. W. H. TUTT, Mus. Bac., Cantab., L.R.A.M., teaches HARMONY, COUNTERPOINT, ACOUSTICS, &c., by Correspondence. Ashburn, Derbyshire.

VOICE PRODUCTION as taught by CATTANEO. Mr. H. J. DYER gives LESSONS. Testimonials from Chas. Lunn. 16, Lausanne Road, Peckham, S.E.

THE TRAINING of ALTOS.—LESSONS in VOICE PRODUCTION and SINGING given by MUNRO DAVISON, L.R.A.M. (Singing), F.R.C.O., Professor of Alto Singing, Guildhall School of Music; Solo Alto, Temple Church, &c.; Professor of Singing, Organ, Pianoforte, and Harmony, 142, Stroud Green Rd., N.

DAVIDSON PALMER'S SYSTEM OF VOICE-PRODUCTION. This System is of the utmost importance to Tenors. Mr. Davidson Palmer, Mus. Bac., Oxon., gives LESSONS at his residence, and at the West-End. For terms, &c., address, 2, Highwood Road, Upper Holloway, N.

VENICE, Italy.—LESSONS in VOICE PRODUCTION and ITALIAN and FRENCH SINGING given by Signor FÉLICE COEN (Pupil of Delle Sedie and Professor of Singing at the Liceo Benedetto Marcello in Venice, formerly at Paris, at Tours, and recently at the Liceo Rossini of Pesaro). Special terms for those studying for the Profession. Address, Professore Félice Coen, Venice.

RESIDENT PUPIL.—YOUTH REQUIRED, to train for Profession. Exceptional advantages. Univ. degree. Dr. Thomas, Carlyle, Boscombe, Bournemouth.

MR. H. DAVAN WETTON, Mus. Bac., Dunelm, F.R.C.O., Organist and Director of the Music at the Foundling Hospital, Head of the Musical Department at the Northampton Institute, Clerkenwell, has a VACANCY for an ARTICLED PUPIL (lady or gentleman). Preparation for Musical Degree, College of Organists' examinations, and exceptional opportunities for obtaining a thorough knowledge of choir training, orchestral and choral conducting. For particulars, address, 3, Raymond Buildings, Gray's Inn, W.C.

ARTICLED PUPIL WANTED, to the Tuning, Music Business, and Profession. Apply, Mr. Pyemont, Organist, St. John's Church, Barmouth. Must be musical, gentlemanly, and quick.

BAKER STREET CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Ltd.,
6, UPPER BAKER STREET, N.W.
(One Minute from the Metropolitan Station).

The Rev. Canon Francis Holland, Chairman.

PIANO (under the direction of Mr. Oscar Beringer): Miss Constance Bache, Miss Ethel Boyce, A.R.A.M., Miss Jessie Davies, A.R.A.M., Miss Kate Robinson, &c.
VIOLIN (under the direction of Herr Josef Ludwig): Herr J. Ludwig, Miss Louisa Nunn.
SINGING (under the direction of Mrs. Hutchinson): Mrs. Hutchinson, Miss Margaret Barter.
HARMONY CLASSES: Orchestral Practices, during Lent and Christmas Terms.
BOARDING-HOUSE for SCHOLARS and BYE-STUDENTS: Miss Price and Miss Woods, 78, Gloster Place, Portman Square.
For Prospectus, &c., apply to the Headmistress, Miss Lilla B. Strong, 6, Upper Baker Street, N.W.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND HIGH SCHOOL, GRAHAM STREET, EATON SQUARE.—Mr. CARL ARMBRUSTER, assisted by Madame PAULINE CRAMER, will give a LECTURE on "The Wagner Festival at Bayreuth" at the above School, on Thursday, June 3, at 3.30 p.m. Musical and Lime-light Illustrations. Tickets (3s. each) may be obtained at the School; or, by writing to the Head Mistress, Miss Wolseley-Lewis.

DEGREES AND DIPLOMAS IN MUSIC.
University Correspondence College.

CANDIDATES ARE PREPARED BY CORRESPONDENCE
FOR THE INTERMEDIATE AND FINAL EXAMINATIONS
IN MUSIC
OF LONDON, OXFORD, CAMBRIDGE, AND DURHAM
BY
A. H. WALKER, D.Mus., B.A.

Courses are also provided in the subjects of the preliminary examinations.
For full particulars apply to the Secretary, Burlington House, Cambridge.

MACDONALD SMITH'S SYSTEM.
("From Brain to Keyboard.")

THE NEED FOR IT
(SHOWN IN LETTERS FROM PROFESSIONALS).

"There is, to my mind, no harder fate than that which forbids a musical man the power to execute and interpret works which his intellect and perceptions appreciate and revel in."—E. H. D., Adelaide, S. Australia.

"After practising faithfully scales, &c., for more than twenty years have at last given up the hopeless attempt to please myself with my own performances."—T. S. H., Birkenhead.

THE RESULTS FROM IT
(SHOWN IN PUPILS' ORDINARY REPORTS).

"Have quite dispensed with practising technical exercises, and am very pleased to find how I keep in form."—E. D., Wolverhampton.

"As far as your system is concerned, I can heartily say that it has helped me more than all the technical work I ever did."—F. J. F., Toledo, Ohio, U.S.A.

"You will see from my account that good improvement has gone on all round, in fact, I could hardly desire more, and it is a fixture and certainty that is really delightful."—R. T. B., Manchester.

"Am hugely delighted with results . . . and consider you a public benefactor. The manuscript exercise I think perfectly splendid."—A. W. S., Windsor.

"I am finding it most useful in teaching, especially with examination pupils."—A. M. C., Edinburgh.

COMPLETE COURSE OF SIX LESSONS, BY CORRESPONDENCE, THREE GUINEAS.
Terms and conditions for Personal Lessons (concert players only) on application.
New Prospectus Post-free.

MACDONALD SMITH,
STEINWAY HALL, LOWER SEYMOUR STREET, LONDON, W.

GUILD OF CHURCH MUSICIANS,
LONDON.

Under the patronage of the Bishops and Clergy of the Church of England.
President: The Very Rev. Francis Pigou, D.D., Dean of Bristol.

A.G.C.M. and F.G.C.M. Diploma Examination, July 7 and 8, 1897. The "Mendelssohn" prize, of the value of Two Guineas, is awarded at this Examination to the Candidate obtaining the highest number of marks.

A Bronze Medal will be awarded for the best easy Te Deum, and a Silver Medal for the best original Minuet for the Organ.

The Council also offer two Exhibitions each of the value of £5, to be given to the Candidate who shows the most conspicuous merit in the art of organ accompaniment.

The new Calendar is sent (Post-free) for fourteen stamps.

Free register for Organists requiring appointments.

Representatives required in England and abroad.

For further particulars, apply to Dr. Lewis, Silvermead, Twickenham, S.W.

LONDON COLLEGE OF MUSIC

Incorporated 1892.] Founded 1887. [Limited.

GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET, LONDON, W.

FOR MUSICAL EDUCATION AND FOR EXAMINATIONS IN PRACTICAL AND THEORETICAL MUSIC.

PATRON.

HIS GRACE THE DUKE OF LEEDS.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.

HORTON ALLISON, Esq., Mus. Doc., T.C.D., Mus. Bac., Cantab., F.R.A.M.
W. H. LONGHURST, Esq., Mus. Doc., Cantuar.
WALTER H. SANGSTER, Esq., Mus. Doc., Oxon.

EXAMINERS.

A. J. CALDICOTT, Esq., Mus. Bac., Cantab. (Principal).
G. AUGUSTUS HOLMES, Esq. (Director of Examinations).
Dr. F. J. KARN, Mus. Bac., Cantab. (Vice-Principal).
C. E. ALLUM, Esq., Mus. Doc., T.C.D.
FREDERIC ATKINS, Esq., Mus. Bac., Oxon.
C. H. BRIGGS, Esq., Mus. Doc., Cantab.
J. MAUDE CRAMENT, Esq., Mus. Bac., Oxon.
SEYMOUR SMITH, Esq.
O. A. MANSFIELD, Esq., Mus.D., T.C.T.; L.Mus.L.C.M.; F.R.C.O.
HORACE HILL, Esq., Mus. Doc., Cantab.
WM. SPARK, Esq., Mus. Doc., Dublin; F.R.C.O.
THEODORE S. TEARNE, Esq., Mus. Bac., Oxon.; L.Mus.
WILLIAM C. DEWBERRY, Mus. Bac., Cantab., A.R.A.M.

EXAMINATION DEPARTMENT.—June and July Examinations, 1897.

EXAMINATIONS IN PIANOFORTE PLAYING, SINGING, VIOLIN, THEORY, and all branches of Music will be held in London and at upwards of 360 Local Centres, when Certificates will be granted to all successful Candidates. In Ireland and Scotland the Examinations will take place in June, the last day of entry being May 15. In England and Wales the Examinations take place in July, entries for which must be made by June 15.

THE VARIOUS GRADES in Practical Music are Elementary, Intermediate, Senior and Advanced Senior, pass or honours being gained according to the number of marks awarded. The grades in Theoretical Music are Elementary Pass, Junior Pass, Junior Honours, Intermediate, Senior Pass, and Senior Honours.

THE PASS SECTIONS in both Practical and Theoretical Music are divided into first and second class.

THE COUNCIL PARTICULARLY WISH to direct attention to the fact that they were first to introduce the Elementary Grade in Musical Examinations some ten years since.

SILVER and BRONZE MEDALS and BOOK PRIZES will, as usual, be awarded to those Centres complying with the regulations, in addition to which competitions will take place for the annual award of "UNITED KINGDOM" MEDALS and PRIZES, and for the special award of DIAMOND JUBILEE MEDALS mentioned below.

THE HIGHER EXAMINATIONS for DIPLOMAS of Associate (A.L.C.M.), Associate in Music (A.Mus.L.C.M.), Licentiate (L.L.C.M.), Licentiate in Music (L.Mus.L.C.M.), and Fellowship (F.L.C.M.), will be held in London and at duly appointed Provincial Centres in June and July.

For the formation of NEW CENTRES application should be made to the Secretary, who will supply all particulars.

In Commemoration of the DIAMOND JUBILEE of

HER MOST GRACIOUS MAJESTY THE QUEEN

The following Awards are offered for competition at the forthcoming Examinations:—

1. THE QUEEN'S DIAMOND JUBILEE GOLD MEDAL (Value £12)

To the Candidate showing the greatest proficiency in the Examination for the Diploma of Licentiate or Licentiate in Music.

2. THE QUEEN'S DIAMOND JUBILEE GOLD MEDAL (Value £10)

To the Candidate showing the greatest proficiency in the Examination for the Diploma of Associate or Associate in Music.

3. THE QUEEN'S DIAMOND JUBILEE SILVER MEDALS (Five)

To the Candidates showing the greatest proficiency in the Examinations for the Senior or Advanced Senior Certificate in the Practical Sections. Two medals to be awarded in England, and one each in Ireland, Scotland, and Wales.

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.

In this Department Students are received and thoroughly trained in Pianoforte, Violin, Singing, Voice Production and Breathing, Mandoline, Harmony, and all musical subjects, under the best Professors, at moderate fees. Day and Evening Classes are held in all branches.

Rehearsals of the Operatic Class, Orchestra, Ladies' Choir, and Mandoline Band are held each week.

The Council beg to announce for competition, in commemoration of HER MAJESTY'S DIAMOND JUBILEE, TWO SCHOLARSHIPS (value £20 each), TWO EXHIBITIONS (value £10 each).

THE "ASHDOWN PRIZE" (Value £5 5s.), presented by Messrs. Edwin Ashdown; and two other Prizes value £2 2s. each.

Regulations, Forms of Entry, and all Particulars in either of the above Departments, together with a list of Professors and Examiners, on application to

T. WEEKES HOLMES, Secretary.

TRINITY COLLEGE LONDON

FOR MUSICAL EDUCATION AND EXAMINATION.—INST. 1872.

President: SIR RICHARD E. WEBSTER, G.C.M.G., Q.C., M.P.
Warden: Professor E. H. TURPIN, Mus.D.
Director of Examinations: Professor JAMES HIGGS, Mus.B.
Director of Studies: Professor BRADBURY TURNER, Mus.B.

LOCAL EXAMINATIONS IN MUSICAL KNOWLEDGE.

THE LAST DAY of ENTRY is MAY 19, 1897, for the Thirty-eighth Half-yearly Local Examinations in MUSICAL KNOWLEDGE (Theory) to be held on Saturday, June 19, 1897.

The Examinations will be conducted in Three Divisions—Junior, Intermediate, and Senior. Each Division includes a Pass Section and an Honours Section, and a separate Examination Paper is set for each Section.

The requirements in the various Sections will be:—

JUNIOR PASS—Notation; Intervals; Time; Musical Terms, Marks, &c.

JUNIOR HONOURS—Notation and Intervals; Time; Musical Terms, &c.: Simple Questions on Musical History.

INTERMEDIATE PASS—Notation, Terms, &c.; Transposition; First Principles of Harmony; Musical History.

INTERMEDIATE HONOURS—Transposition, Terms, &c.; further knowledge of Harmony; Figured Bass; Elementary Knowledge of Form.

SENIOR PASS—Figured Bass; Melody or Unfigured Bass; Miscellaneous Questions; Musical History.

SENIOR HONOURS—Working of Figured Basses, in Open Score; Harmonisation of given Melodies; Miscellaneous Harmony Questions; Simple Counterpoint.

EXAMINATION FEES: six shillings (Junior); seven shillings and sixpence (Intermediate); half-a-guinea (Senior).

THREE NATIONAL PRIZES, of the value of Five Pounds each, are awarded annually after the June examination.

Any or all of the following printed papers may be had on application to the undersigned:—(a) Regulations and list of music to be performed for the Local Examinations in Instrumental and Vocal Music, and regulations for the (Theoretical) Local Examinations in Musical Knowledge; (b) List of Local Centres; (c) Regulations for the Higher Examinations for Diplomas and Certificates, and list of music to be performed for the Higher Certificates in Vocal and Instrumental Subjects; (d) Prospectus of the Classes and Lectures Department; (e) General Prospectus, containing List of Honorary Officers; (f) Regulations for the Enrolment of Institutions in Union; (g) Regulations for Membership.

By order,
SHELLEY FISHER, Secretary.
Mandeville Place, Manchester Square, W.

JUST PUBLISHED.

DEDICATED, BY GRACIOUS PERMISSION, TO
HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

A SHORT

FESTIVAL TE DEUM

IN THE KEY OF A

TOGETHER WITH AN

ANTIPHON

COMPOSED FOR THE THANKSGIVING SERVICES AT ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL

IN CELEBRATION OF

THE SIXTIETH YEAR OF HER MAJESTY'S REIGN

1897

BY

GEORGE C. MARTIN,
Organist of St. Paul's Cathedral.

Price Eightpence.

The Accompaniments are arranged as follows:—

(1) FOR FULL ORCHESTRA.
(2) FOR FULL MILITARY BAND, IN A FLAT.
(3) FOR ORGAN, TRUMPETS, AND TROMBONES.
(4) FOR ORGAN ALONE.

Parts may be had from the Publishers.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co.

John Broadwood & Sons

PIANOFORTE MAKERS

BY SPECIAL APPOINTMENT TO

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES
HER ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCESS OF WALES
HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH
(DUKE OF SAXE-COBURG AND GOTHA

AND THE

REST OF THE ROYAL FAMILY.

John Broadwood & Sons

respectfully draw attention to, and invite inspection of, their newly introduced and improved straight and cross strung

HORIZONTAL

AND

UPRIGHT PIANOFORTES.

33, GREAT PULTENEY STREET (near Regent Street),
LONDON, W.

JUST PUBLISHED.

A NEW EDITION

SPECIALLY SUITABLE FOR USE IN CHURCH

OF

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN

WITH ALTERED SECOND VERSE

BY

THE DEAN OF ROCHESTER
(THE VERY REV. S. REYNOLDS HOLE).

ARRANGED BY

J. FREDERICK BRIDGE, Mus.D.
Organist and Master of the Choristers of Westminster Abbey.

Price Twopence. Tonic Sol-fa, Three-Halfpence.
Orchestral Parts in the Press.

London and New York: NOVELLO, EWER and Co

THE ASSOCIATED BOARD of the R.A.M. and R.C.M. for LOCAL EXAMINATIONS in MUSIC.

President—H.R.H. the PRINCE OF WALES, K.G.

The Rt. Hon. the Lord Charles Bruce, Chairman.
Thomas Threlfall, Esq., Deputy-Chairman.
Sir Alexander C. Mackenzie, Mus.D., Principal, R.A.M.
C. H. H. Parry, Esq., M.A., Mus.D., D.C.L., Director, R.C.M.

Prof. J. Dewar, F.R.S., &c.
Cave. A. Randegger.
F. Westlake, Esq.
His Honour Judge Meadows-White, Q.C.
Hon. G. W. Spencer-Lyttelton, C.B.
Sir G. Grove, C.B.
Sir A. Sullivan.
Sir W. Parratt.
F. Taylor, Esq.

Hon. Treasurer—Charles Morley, Esq., M.P.
Hon. Auditor—Sir Charles Lister Ryan, K.C.B.
Hon. Secretary—Samuel Aitken, Esq.

LIST of PROFESSORS who are EXAMINERS to the BOARD.

E. F. Arbos, Esq.
J. F. Barnett, Esq.
O. Beringer, Esq.
H. Blower, Esq.
J. F. Bridge, Esq., Mus. Doc.
A. Burnett, Esq.
F. Cliffe, Esq.
F. Corder, Esq.
F. H. Cowen, Esq.
F. W. Davenport, Esq.
H. R. Eyres, Esq.
E. Faning, Esq., Mus. Bac.
H. Gadsby, Esq.
A. Gibson, Esq.
F. E. Gladstone, Esq., Mus.D.
R. Gompertz, Esq.
W. B. Haynes, Esq.
W. S. Hoyte, Esq.
H. Inwards, Esq.
T. B. Knott, Esq.
C. H. Lloyd, Esq., Mus. Doc.
G. C. Martin, Esq., Mus. Doc.
T. A. Matthay, Esq.
G. P. Moore, Esq.
A. O'Leary, Esq.
A. Oswald, Esq.
W. F. Parker, Esq.
Sir W. Parratt, Mus. Doc.
E. Prout, Esq., Mus. Doc.
A. Randegger, Esq.
F. J. Read, Esq., Mus. Doc.
H. R. Rose, Esq.
E. Sauret, Esq.
H. F. Sharpe, Esq.
C. V. Stanford, Esq., Mus. Doc.
F. Taylor, Esq.
J. Thomas, Esq.
W. H. Thomas, Esq.
A. Visetti, Esq.
F. Walker, Esq.
F. Westlake, Esq.
W. E. Whitehouse, Esq.
C. L. Williams, Esq., Mus. Bac.

— See Syllabus A. —

LOCAL SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS, 1897.

The LOCAL SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS will be arranged in Circuits. They will be held during the periods:—
(b) March, April. (c) June, July. (d) October to December.
Also ELEMENTARY and CLASS-SINGING EXAMINATIONS.

— See Syllabus B and Supplement. —

Copies of either Syllabus will be sent Post-free on application to the Central Office, 32, Maddox Street, London, W.

SAMUEL AITKEN, Hon. Secretary.

With this Number are presented gratis Extra Supplements, consisting of an Arrangement for Church use, by Dr. J. F. Bridge, of the National Anthem, with a new verse by the Very Rev. the Dean of Rochester; a Commemoration Hymn, "How shall we teach our children," by Dr. G. C. Martin; and a Portrait of the late Dr. Garrett.

THE MUSICAL TIMES
AND SINGING-CLASS CIRCULAR.
MAY 1, 1897.

JOHANNES BRAHMS.

There are so many names in the golden book of musicians—Mozart, Schubert, Schumann, Mendelssohn, Bizet, and Goetz, to mention no others—that inspire unquenchable regret, as one speculates on what they might have done, that we ought to be doubly thankful for the gift of those who have been spared to deliver their message; whose genius has reached its full maturity, and who have passed away before any sign of weakness or senility was apparent in their work. Such reflections may perhaps help to mitigate the natural grief aroused by the death of Johannes Brahms. For in truth it would be hard to find another composer of whom it could be more justly said that he was felix opportunitate mortis. He had reached the confines of old age, and although the quality of his recent work showed no falling off in nobility of sentiment or mastery of technical resource, the diminution in quantity seemed to indicate that the fount of inspiration was running dry. For a man who devoted himself with such single-hearted absorption to the labours and delights of composition, the loss of the creative instinct would have been a sore trial. This, however, is a matter of mere speculation, for we have seen in Verdi the astounding spectacle of genius flowering afresh in an octogenarian. All that can be said is that Brahms could not very well have enhanced the splendour of the glorious heritage which he has bequeathed to posterity, and that at no point of his career was his greatness more widely or deeply recognised than at its close.

Though Brahms's life was singularly devoid of exciting or sensational incidents—a quality which may be attributed to a great extent to his early abandonment of any ambition that he may have ever felt to shine as a virtuoso, still more to his resolute refusal to enter on the perturbing domain of operatic composition—it would be a great mistake to suppose that his career partook of the nature of a "walk over." He was never a popular composer in the sense that Mascagni, Sullivan, or Verdi are popular composers, and although hailed as a classic in his lifetime, it was only by slow degrees that he scaled the citadel of Fame. The historic greeting extended to him by Schumann in his famous "Neue Bahnen" article was really almost a bit of clairvoyance on the part of the elder man, when one considers how uncompromising and angular many of the works are on which Schumann's prophecy was based. Roughly speaking, it took Brahms fully fifteen years before he was able to vindicate the accuracy of Schumann's estimate so far as any public recognition of his genius was concerned, and though the salutation must have sustained and invigorated him throughout all these years of waiting, there can be little doubt that it hampered him a good deal by provoking the antagonism of those critics who were incapable of detecting the stamp of genius in his early compositions. As it has been truly said, Schumann's praise provoked quite as much scepticism as sympathy. It excited people's curiosity without carrying conviction. Average people are always suspicious of the announcement that a new genius has emerged above the horizon, even though another genius makes the announcement.

The simple story of Brahms's life, apart from his compositions, could be easily condensed into a paragraph. He was born on May 7, 1833, at Hamburg, and, unlike perhaps the majority of great musicians, inherited his musical talent from his father, a double bass player in the opera band. His chief teacher was Eduard Marxsen, of Altona, his deep obligations to whom, especially in regard to the theoretical side of the art, he never sought to disguise. At fourteen he appeared in public as a pianist. When he was twenty he went on a tour as accompanist with Remenyi, and so impressed Joachim, who happened to attend one of their concerts, by his masterly transposition at sight of the accompaniment to the "Kreutzer" Sonata, that the great violinist gave him an introduction to Schumann, then (in the autumn of 1853) living at Düsseldorf. This led to the "Neue Bahnen" article, and to other generous exertions on Schumann's part, including his successful negotiations with Breitkopf and Härtel for the publication of Brahms's early works. Indeed, Schumann's letters at this time abound with charming and characteristic references to his "young eagle." As, for example: "I think Johannes is the true apostle who will write revelations which many Pharisees [Schumann might have added "scribes" as well] will be unable to explain, even after centuries." Or, again, in a letter to Joachim only three weeks before the tragedy of February 6, 1854: "I like the cigars very much; there seems to be a Brahmsian aroma about them, which is, as usual, rather strong but of fine flavour." So much for Schumann. As for Brahms, the gratitude he felt to his patron was expressed in his unalterable devotion to his widow, in attending whose funeral he caught a chill which is believed to have precipitated his own end. But to return to the fifties: In 1854 Brahms visited Liszt at Weimar—the latter, by a strange error in judgment which he speedily recognised, having been disposed to hail in him a champion of the extreme romantic movement—but these friendly relations never led to any permanent association, Liszt's opinion of Brahms's music in later years never rising above the level of respect. For a while Brahms filled the post of musical director to the Prince of Lippe-Detmold, and then, after returning to Hamburg and spending some time in Switzerland, and appearing at Leipzig in a Gewandhaus Concert in 1859, he gradually gravitated to the Austrian capital, which with occasional intervals was his headquarters for the last thirty-five years of his life. For a short time (circ. ann. 1863) he was director of the Singakademie, and ten years later directed the concerts of the Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde—to which he bequeathed a large portion of his fortune—for three or four seasons. He was in the habit of spending his holidays in the mountains—in the Tyrol or in Switzerland—and paid an occasional visit to Italy. But in spite of repeated invitations he never visited England, and declined the honour of a degree at Cambridge. A similar offer from Breslau found him more amenable, and he signalised the occasion by his genial "Academic" Overture, in which several well-known students' songs are used as themes with such brilliant effect.

With the solitary exception of opera, there is no branch of composition in which Brahms's genius failed to find vent. To say in which he excelled most is no easy task, but perhaps there is a wider consensus of opinion as to the supreme merit of his concerted chamber music than as to anything else he wrote. Here even the most unsympathetic and antagonistic critics have been constrained to express their reluctant appreciation of such pieces as the sextets and the great Clarinet Quintet. For ourselves we are inclined to agree with Dr. Parry in holding that the freshness and poetry of his genius is most strikingly illustrated in his songs. "Brahms's songs," he says, "represent the most advanced development in respect to the perfect balance of the elements of art; and they present also endless phases of feeling and emotion, from light-hearted merriment and childlike innocent gaiety to a high pitch of passion. They are often dramatic in the same sense that Beethoven's music is dramatic, and portray the characters of various kinds of human beings with an amazing subtlety and power. Finally it is in his songs that Brahms shows the most easily recognisable examples of what people call beauty, and it often is genial beauty of the highest order." The foregoing remarks may be illustrated by reference to such splendid and divergent examples of his art as "Liebestreu" and "Verrath" for dramatic intensity, "Feldeinsamkeit" for idyllic charm, "Vergebliches Ständchen" for coquettish merriment, and "O wüsst' ich doch den Weg zurück" for the tender passion of regret for "the days that are no more." His unaccompanied choral music, again, which is far less known than it deserves to be, is of extraordinary beauty, and for those who are in sympathy with Brahms's music we know of no more exquisite pleasure than that to be derived from singing in such pieces as "Vineta" or "Stand das Mädchen," or the splendid group of five-part songs (Op. 104). Of the fascination of the "Liebeslieder" and "Zigeunerlieder" it is not necessary to speak, but the noble motets entitled "Fest- und Gedenksprüche" deserve to be more often heard. From these the transition is easy to his works for chorus and orchestra, of which it must suffice to mention the "Schicksalslied" and the immortal Requiem, as the most conspicuous examples. These noble works exhibit in a most remarkable way that asceticism mingled with poetic mysticism which is so characteristic of Brahms's genius, and have, as a natural consequence, extorted their due meed of obloquy from critics whose praise is an insult. Turning to the domain of orchestral music, it is significant that Brahms's first symphony was not produced till November, 1876, or more than twenty years after Schumann had urged him to attack this branch of composition, a notable proof of Brahms's slow and gradual progress. In Schumann's letter to Joachim he says: "He (Brahms) ought always to remember the beginning of Beethoven's symphonies and try to do something similar." The hint was surely not thrown away; nothing more truly Beethovenish has been written in the last seventy years than Brahms's four symphonies. The Fourth still remains a hard nut to crack, not for the "Pharisees" alone, but the others have all passed into the classical repertory of the concert-room. There remain his important compositions in which a solo instrument is combined with orchestra—the two remarkable Pianoforte Concertos, the Concerto for violin and violoncello, and the splendid Violin Concerto, all of them works in which Brahms's native virility of imagination is combined with astonishing mastery of technical resource and complexity of detail. Nor must we forget to mention the conspicuous triumphs he has achieved in the field of variation writing—whether for pianoforte or orchestra—a field in which only the greatest composers have succeeded. His extensive contributions to the literature of the pianoforte illustrate the uncompromising aspect of his genius perhaps more markedly than any of his compositions, and on this account have never attained any great popularity amongst virtuosi, unless we except the groups of short pieces recently published, in which the genial and poetic vein of his muse emerges with delightful effect.

The austere character of a good deal of Brahms's music, coupled with his strong objection to being lionized and interviewed, has given rise to a good deal of misconception as to his personality. Brahms never married, but he was neither a misogynist nor an anchorite. He disliked publicity, hated writing letters, and avoided functions. But though, like Schumann, he was not a society man, he was by no means unsociable. In the circle of his intimates, or, better still, in a tête-à-tête, he could be and often was extremely genial and entertaining. His gift for repartee was remarkable, and in the war of wits he was a ready and formidable antagonist. It has been incorrectly stated that he was a man of little culture outside his art. As a matter of fact, we have the best authority for saying that he not only had a choice library, but was well acquainted with the masterpieces of European literature. Apart from this, the care he exercised in the choice of words for his songs is enough to disprove such an assertion. He certainly showed a lack of discrimination in his selection of an English translator to his songs, but it is satisfactory to learn that this error is now being made good by the commission entrusted by Messrs. Simrock to Mr. Paul England. His attitude to England and the English, again, gave rise to a good deal of misinterpretation. But his refusal to accept commissions to compose for festivals and societies was with him a matter of principle, and whatever may be thought of the tone of his historic letter to the Leeds Committee, the position of the writer is unassailable. Brahms had nothing of the courtier or the diplomatist about him. He abhorred publicity and dreaded a sea passage. But his brusquely non possumus attitude in regard to an English visit did not prevent him from maintaining cordial personal relations with many of his English admirers, and several young musicians from these shores met with marked kindness from him in Vienna. As regards the insinuation that he had secretly inspired attacks on Wagner, we are glad to see him absolutely acquitted of such conduct by that enthusiastic Wagnerolater, Mr. H. T. Finck. The insinuation arose from his personal friendship with Dr. Hanslick and Dr. Billroth, both uncompromising anti-Wagnerians. Brahms was incapable of any mean or underhanded action. He never indulged in newspaper controversy, but kept his views to himself. There is a story of a friend who met him after a performance of "Die Walküre" and asked him what he thought of it. Brahms replied: "We must all of us listen to Wagner with our own ears." If he did not sympathise with Wagner's methods, it is known that he recognised his genius, and testified his respect by sending a wreath to Venice on Wagner's death in 1883. The catholicity of his taste is sufficiently shown by his immense admiration for the genius of Strauss—in which he shared the views of Wagner and Von Bülow—on whose wife's fan he inscribed a few bars of the "Blue Danube" with the charming compliment "unfortunately, not by Johannes Brahms." We have left ourselves no space to touch upon his life-long friendship with Dr. Joachim, or on Hans von Bülow's devoted championship of his genius. Whatever may be the verdict of posterity as to the vitality of his compositions, the lesson of Brahms's life—in which consistent and unfaltering devotion to the highest aims was the dominant principle—can never fail to exert a stimulating influence on his successors. "The example of a noble man," so wrote Dr. Parry more than ten years ago of Brahms, and the witness remained true to the close of his life, "tends to make others noble, and the picture of a noble mind, such as is presented in his work, helps to raise others towards his level."

VICTORIAN MUSIC.

V.—Church Music.

In touching upon the works and influence of living Church composers and those who have recently passed from amongst us, it is no part of my purpose to go farther than the general object of these papers requires. That object, as the reader must by this time know, is to throw some light upon the condition and tendency of Church music during the six decades of the Queen's reign, and I deal with individuals only in the degree necessary for its attainment. A preliminary remark should take note of the fact that the Church music of the present day is in a special measure homogeneous. For this condition no claim of novelty will stand. In all ages a certain similarity has marked compositions for worship, the likeness being due partly to limited scope of subject and expression, partly to the general and uniform influence of tradition, operating under circumstances which give it almost irresistible force. Just now, however, this condition appears to be accentuated. It may even be said that there are no fundamental differences; only the variety that comes as a natural consequence from individual temperament and taste. Apart from what are, in this sense, merely personal characteristics, the Church music of the time now present offers a spectacle of well-nigh complete agreement as regards determining features and in respect of essential points. It appears to have settled down upon the lines prepared by former masters, who, as we have seen, tempered the austerity and scholasticism of a still earlier day with the sentiment and grace, the winning expression and subduing influence derived mainly from illustrious foreign sources.

It is, furthermore, curious to note the unanimity with which our composers keep themselves in touch with the older element, whence come dignity, solemnity, and a certain removedness, while reaching out towards the limits of the newer qualities. The apparent danger has all along been lest connection should be severed and dignity give way to less becoming, if more generally attractive prettinesses. No doubt individual cases of such decadence may be found, but, these apart, it is obvious that our composers recognise, first, what Church music must be, and, second, what it may be without deterioration. On the whole, then, we see a happy condition of things. Within the Church there is musical peace; all the storms are outside.

Among living veterans, links between the present and the immediate past, the organist of the Temple Church stands conspicuous. Dr. E. J. Hopkins can hardly be called a voluminous composer, but a crowd of works is not necessary to great influence, and there can be no question that the composer of "Let us now go even unto Bethlehem" is a distinct force. The reason appears to anyone who examines his music, which for directness of expression and purpose, and for solid strength combined with attractiveness of theme, deserves all the popularity it enjoys. The Service in F may, perhaps, be mentioned as representative in its admirable blend of the qualities mentioned above, and in its evidence of a composer full of resources, yet subordinating them all to a simple and transparent purpose, which is as far removed as possible from considerations of merely individual display. The Temple organist is a safe guide to the younger generation of his fellow workers.

Sir John Stainer has written largely and the power he wields in shaping the ends of Church music is great. It has been said of him that he inclines somewhat overmuch to sentimentalism, and it is undoubtedly a fact that this composer can, when need arises, infuse into his music a full measure of languorous tenderness carried on the wings of pretty tune. Herein is the secret, perhaps, of his popularity among the masses of our congregations, and the power of so winning them is certainly not one to be despised, nor is it without capacity for highest uses. But the Sir John Stainer of "Lead, kindly Light," is scarcely he whom musicians generally respect and admire—scarcely he whom they recognise as worthy a place in the front rank of his order. The Stainer who will be best known to the historians of Church music is he to whom we owe the anthems, "O clap your hands," "The Morning Stars," and "I saw the Lord," the two Services in E flat and A respectively, and many another kindred composition. In most of these no doubt there are passages of pure sentimentality, the outcome of a nature quick to feel, and utterly honest in expression. But the general character of the works named indicates the composer as one of far bolder conception, larger utterance, higher aspiration, and more consummate musicianship. Taking them all as fairly represented by "I saw the Lord," I invite the reader to recognise in that anthem a work of the highest order. Laid out on a large scale for double choir, it shows the entire canvas filled with conceptions almost equal in breadth and grandeur to the vision of the Prophet. The bold and massive antiphony of the opening section, in which there is an ascending sequence ("Each one had six wings," &c.), that for simple majesty of effect stands unsurpassed; the impressive "Sanctus" to which this leads, and the yet more striking Allegro, "The posts of the door moved," &c., with its great climax —these things belong, in my opinion, to the highest manifestation of sacred art.

The more marked "modernity" of Dr. Martin, Sir John Stainer's successor at St. Paul's, may be found rather in expression than in idea. Often the thoughts of the two composers show a positive similarity — which, indeed, is not surprising—but they are put in by no means the same fashion. Dr. Martin draws more liberally upon the technical resources of his art; his utterances are strongly coloured; his devices are sometimes very bold; he uses the organ as for orchestral effects in accompaniment, and he does not shrink from presenting difficulties to the voices. This may come, in a measure, from association with a specially competent choir, since we know that a workman with perfect tools is eager to get all he can out of them. But it may, in a far greater degree, be the composer's natural and, circumstances permitting, his inevitable mode of expression. That Dr. Martin can treat a sacred theme with impressive simplicity is shown by his Advent anthem, "The great day of the Lord is near"—a short work, but full of mingled solemnity and tender entreaty. It is a gem of concentrated expression, and in that respect a masterpiece. The pathetic passage on the words "Seek righteousness" must have gone with many a congregation to their homes. But this composer more fully appears in such works as the anthem "Whoso dwelleth under the shadow of the most High," the Magnificat in B flat, and the Communion Service in A. These examples are distinguished by an exuberance not often found even in the most modern effusions of the kind. It may be that Dr. Martin thus indicates what will, in time, be a common feature; but it must be said that nowhere does he permit liberty to degenerate into license. He keeps within due limits, though, some may think, he goes right up to the boundary and sometimes looks over it. Dr. Martin's influence will, no doubt, increase as time goes on, and will be found a stimulus to development, which, I trust, will be as wisely controlled as by himself.

Another worker on an ambitious scale is Sir Herbert Oakeley, who has made large contributions to our store of Church music, always labouring conscientiously, and with an apparent desire to extend the scope and elevate the character of sacred art. He has made successes which musicians appreciate, though it can hardly be said that his popularity and consequent influence are as yet great. That result may arrive in time, since close watchers of tendency in Church music observe a movement in favour of developments which will give to composers for the English Church as full an opportunity for extended treatment and large effects as that long enjoyed by their Roman Catholic brethren.

Sir Joseph Barnby may be bracketted with Sir John Stainer on the score of popularity and influence; perhaps, also, as regards method of working and character of work. In the music of both we find ample evidence of kindred sentiment, and an expression of feeling which sometimes inclines towards the effeminate. But both are, in a greater degree, musicians of strength. They can, on occasion, be tearful or languishing; and also, on occasion, hit with the hammer of Thor. Their popularity may arise, perhaps, from the weakness rather than the power, but the nobler quality is that which will finally determine their rank. The influence of Gounod upon Barnby is too obvious to escape note here, and it may also be mentioned, parenthetically, that the French master's sacred music has affected not Barnby only, but many others, who, however, have shown it less plainly. Barnby was very frank and honest in his reflection of Gounod. Take, for example, the motet, "King all glorious," in which slow-moving harmonies upon a double pedal, melodies limited to a small compass, detached full chords in arpeggios, and continuous arpeggios as for the harp are entirely in the Gounod school. For my own part, I welcome this strain of French sacred music in our English amalgam. It would be easy—very easy—to have too much of its mannerisms, but, kept in their proper place, these make possible some excellent effects and furnish materials which no sensible composer can wholly ignore. At the same time Barnby, as an English Church composer, appears to fuller advantage in works like the Easter anthem, "As we have borne the image of the earthy," the Magnificat and Nunc dimittis in E flat, and, as to many parts of it, the Service in E. The Easter anthem is a most clever adaptation of the old closely-wrought, compressed, contrapuntal style to the modern spirit and, in some measure, to the modern feeling in harmony. Of equally solid character and value are the other works mentioned as examples. Barnby was eminently a composer of his day as regards advance. He was ever reaching out to the things that are before, but, thanks to his training and, perhaps, to the conservatism of the English nature, he never let go of the past. His music is to a large extent truly British in its character as a compromise.

The great popularity of a composer very recently lost to us (Dr. Garrett) renders needless a particular description of his style and method. No mystery hangs about the favour shown to his works, the manly straightforwardness of which, their strong simplicity, expressive themes, and impressive, yet almost effortless effects, afford sufficient explanation. The Church of the Victorian era boasts few composers of greater practical value—value, that is to say, which arises from power to reach and influence the common heart and mind, raising both to the elevation, not of emotion merely, but of all that constitutes an act of worship. Garrett's Services in F and D may be mentioned in this connection as adequately representative. If in these works the composer does not astonish, he often deeply impresses. Look, for instance, at the "Credo" of the Service in F, where there is a pedal point on the words, "And was crucified for us," &c., the ending of which ("He suffered and was buried") has an effect of utter desolation. The means are simple, but such things are usually so done, and the merit lies in using such means to such an end. In the Service in D the same passage is treated in another fashion, the basses (rall. ad lib.) alone singing "and was buried," dropping on the last word from the dominant (of A) to the tonic, which a thirty-two feet pedal doubles down, as it were, in the very depths of sound. The most jealous for the purity and strength of our Church music may look with complacency upon the work of George M. Garrett.

I must pass over the admirable compositions of Henry Gadsby, J. Baptiste Calkin, Charles Harford Lloyd, J. Frederick Bridge, and others, simply for reasons of space and not at all because they are unsuggestive of remark. It may be said, however, that these composers bear out the observations made at the beginning of this paper upon the homogeneousness of Church music in the present day. Each differs from the others, but all are loyal to the same dignified and beautiful ideal—to the union of solidity and grandeur with the graces that may properly serve religious art.

Mention must be made of composers who, though devoting their energies mainly to other forms, have done something for the music of the Church, and to that extent exercised an influence upon it. Arthur Sullivan spent his earliest years in a choir, and for some time held an appointment as organist. He is, therefore, to the manner trained, and it is not surprising, having regard to his special qualities, that his compositions for worship are as chaste as they are well adapted to their purpose. The anthem, "Who is like unto Thee," may be mentioned as exemplifying the best features of his style and taste in this department. It is as simple as Blake's "Songs of Innocence," and as consummate in its unobtrusive art. Conspicuous is the section, "Thou shalt bring them in," with the Bach-like pastoral accompaniment, suggesting a shepherd and his flock, and no less to be observed is the easy fugal opening of the final movement, leading to a massive Coda wherein the fugue theme figures above the solid harmonies of the lower voices. All is transparently obvious in this work. We see the composer making his effect, and know how he produces them, but are none the less moved as they fall gratefully on the ear. Professor Prout, Professor Stanford, and Dr. Hubert Parry have also given attention to Church music, and examples of their work are now before me. In all I find like qualities, diversified by the medium through which they are shown, and illustrative of the fact that the "songs of the sanctuary" in this country constitute a very definite form of art, distinctive as regards all other forms, but in itself consistent and marked by a union of attributes which musicians and the public alike find worthy of the loftiest conceivable purpose.

I can bring to an end these papers on the Church music of the Queen's reign in a spirit of entire complacency. The more I have looked into the subject the more it has appeared that this branch of the art in England is sound; wisely, because cautiously, progressive; anchored fast to worthy and time-tried traditions, yet at liberty to advance along well marked lines of development; and, above all, animated by a true and reverent spirit. Changes will come as time goes on, but if they be made in the spirit of past progress we shall have nothing to fear, and our Church music will remain what it now is—a thing of which to be proud.

Joseph Bennett.

FROM MY STUDY.

Music at the Queen's Coronation.

I have taken down the volume of the Musical World for 1838, and now beg the reader's company while I go through it in search of Coronation records; so that together we may form some idea of what was said and done anent the music which entered into the stately pageant of fifty-nine years ago.

Here is the first paragraph on the subject:

"Sir George Smart is to be conductor at the approaching festival, and Mr. J. B. Sale claims his seat at the organ, in virtue of his appointment as one of the organists at the Chapel Royal, St. James's. Both offices will, it is said, bring in considerable emolument."

The foregoing statement looks innocent enough, but there is trouble behind it, as will presently appear. Meanwhile, our attention is challenged by news of the organ which Mr. Sale claims to play:

"Messrs. Hill and Davison are to build the organ to be used at the approaching Coronation. The Abbey organ will be removed, and a large pedal organ, on the German scale, will be erected at the back of the orchestra, the keys being in front, at the distance of forty or fifty feet."

A second paragraph in the same issue of the M.W. gives further information:

"The Coronation organ becomes the perquisite of the organist, whoever that lucky personage may be, and its value has hitherto been commuted to a very handsome fine, paid from the Earl Marshal's office to the professor who presides at the instrument. It is yet in doubt whether Sir George Smart or J. B. Sale will be the fortunate individual."

The M.W. strongly suspects that Smart will strive to be organist and conductor in his own person, and takes an instant opportunity of protesting:

"Whoever may be organist ought not also to undertake the office of conductor; it is the union of duties which are quite opposed to each other, and when attempted bring both appointments into discredit."

On the other hand, the anticipated arrangement found support in the Morning Chronicle, and the M.W. did not fail to make a note thereof:

"A silly paragraph in the Morning Chronicle, written to puff Sir G. Smart in a character it is well known he ought never to appear in, lays down the position that he (Sir George) can 'play the organ and give the time to the band' simultaneously. Sir George can do no such thing, and, if the writer wishes to know why, we will give him our reasons."

The "reasons" in question duly appear in the form of a "leader," the writer urging the impossibility of combining, in a satisfactory manner, such varied duties as those of organist and conductor. He assumes that, in wishing to fill both offices, Sir George Smart is simply desirous of furthering his own material interests. and that, with a proper guarantee on that score, he would readily give up the organ to the Abbey organist, Mr. Turle. The M.W. continues:

"If, however, it should ultimately turn out that Sir George Smart might have secured to himself his fee, without insisting on the occupation of two incompatible situations, then let him look to it, for we give him fair warning. . . . Sir George may attempt, at the ensuing Coronation, to reconcile impossibilities, but the public and the members of the profession will not remain indifferent to an insult offered to their understanding, and a wound inflicted on their sense of moral justice."

The reader may be wondering why the Abbey organist did not preside at Messrs. Hill and Davison's instrument in virtue of his office, but it appears that the choir of the venerable building becomes, on the occasion of a Coronation, a Royal Chapel, in which it is the right and duty of one of the royal organists to officiate. Mr. Turle had no locus standi whatever.

Our chronicle now takes us back to the new organ:

"Messrs. Hill and Davison have completed the erection of a magnificent instrument in Westminster Abbey, to be used at the approaching Coronation. It is much larger than the one built for the Coronation of George IV. There are twenty ranks of pipes to each note on the manuals, which extend to C C, the eight-feet pipe, and six ranks to each pedal, which includes two octaves from C C C, the sixteen-feet pipe, to C, the four-feet. The compass of the manuals is the same as that adopted by the German organ-builders, and the pedal board runs throughout two octaves."

Presumably this instrument was ready for the rehearsal of the Coronation music, which took place in the Abbey, and is thus reported:

"The orchestra is large, and filled by an able and most efficient body of choralists and instrumental performers. There are seventy-two soprani, sixty-four alti, sixty-eight tenori, and eighty-four bassi; thirty-six violins, eighteen tenors [violas], twenty celli and contra-bassi, four flauti, eight oboi, six clarionetti, eight fagotti, six corni, three trombæ, three tromboni, one serpent, one ophicleide, and one pair of drums. . . . The whole of the music was rehearsed, and in the following manner: On the entrance of her Majesty into the choir, the anthem 'I was glad,' the composition of the late Mr. Attwood, is sung. At the recognition, after the general acclamation, 'God save the Queen' was performed by the State trumpeters, who are placed in a high gallery over the large upper gallery at the east end of the choir. The next composition is the 'Sanctus,' by Sir George Smart. The hymn, 'Come, Holy Ghost,' succeeds, and then Handel's anthem 'Zadok the Priest' and Handel's second anthem 'The Queen shall rejoice.' After the benediction, Boyce's Te Deum in A follows, and, during the homage, the new anthem written for the occasion by Mr. Knyvett, the words taken from Psalm cxviii. At the close of the Communion Service, the 'Hallelujah' chorus is given, and, after the blessing, the overture to the Occasional Oratorio. As the orchestra includes the élite of the metropolis, it is unnecessary to say more than that there is every probability of the whole ceremony going off with great éclat."

The "Sanctus" of Sir G. Smart and Mr. Knyvett's anthem, being the only works specially written for the Coronation, they received a large measure of attention from the critics. Poor Knyvett was severely mauled. The Times placed his anthem on the level of mediocrity; the Morning Post held that it lacked symmetry and coherence; the Atlas saw nothing new in it, but liked the accompaniment, and the Spectator, after admitting that it sustained the composer's reputation, "if not the reputation of the English school," added:

"The musical part of the ceremony was a libel on the present state of the art in this country; for the Queen has had a composer thrust upon her who cannot compose. She had appointed Bishop, but the intrigues of another Bishop (Charles of London) and Sir George Smart procured the latter the situation, despite her Majesty's wish. It is the duty of the composer to the Queen to write an anthem for her Coronation—and it is an opportunity which any man competent to the task would eagerly have caught at—but the place heretofore held by Blow, Croft, Green, Boyce, and Attwood now, for the first time, degenerates into a sinecure, and England, in the presence of the representatives of every European sovereign, seems (not is) unable to offer the tribute which music in every other country presents to a new monarch."

This is hard upon Smart, and not entirely just. Both he and Knyvett were composers to the Queen, and when the knight left the heavier task to his colleague, himself taking the lighter, he may have acted prudently, considering how much his time was taken up with the ten thousand details of a great musical solemnity. Speaking for itself, the M.W. would not have Knyvett's anthem at any price, regarding it as "the work of an amateur unaccustomed to think through a long composition."

"We give Mr. Knyvett credit for the ability to weigh the voice parts of a short glee, and to avoid the consecutive octave or fifth, but beyond this he is only in the situation of an amateur. He has studied under no master; collated no school; formed no style. What then, as composer to her Majesty, was he to do? . . . Mr. Knyvett has trusted to his fingers at the pianoforte, and to a tolerably good memory. The instant a glee-writer puts his fingers to the instrument to help his conception, or to find him an idea, he is lost. He no longer thinks vocally, but after the manner of a thorough-base player, a cathedral accompanist."

On this rock, according to the M.W., Mr. Knyvett split, but he was not without a companion in misfortune. Turning to Smart's "Sanctus," the journal remarked:

"Sir George Smart, in the words of the Spectator, 'cannot compose.' From his 'Sanctus' and Response, he appears to have neither invention, memory, nor artistical skill, and how anyone, whether amateur or professor, can write without one at least of these attributes we are at a loss to conceive. . . . We blush for him and for the degradation of our great Protestant school of ecclesiastical music."

The same issue contains a descriptive and critical account of the Coronation music and its performers. Here we have amusing reading, and find, provided we credit what is said, an almost bewildering sense of mismanagement and muddle. The orchestra "held a number of persons, some of whom were misplaced, and others had no business there." To prove this the writer holds up a "terrible example":

"Mr. Harper, the flute player on the trumpet, with whom the military flourish, the fanfare, is a perfect abomination, because he always fails in it, was hoisted up to the other end of the Abbey, there to abide at the imminent risk of losing some part of his reputation, and with the certainty of having lost his Coronation uniform. On the other hand, Distin, who is really ignorant of the orchestral business, particularly the trumpet parts of Handel's choral music, was placed in the orchestra, and left, with Mr. Irwin, to stumble through the symphonies of the anthem 'The Queen shall rejoice.'"

Warming to his work, the critic goes on:

"There were eight oboe players, who were unanimous in a sturdy determination to play most villainously out of tune, and, in order that they might have a fair field, if not some little favour, the flutes were reduced to four, the clarinets to eight. The bassoons equalled the oboes; some of those gentlemen we never saw before, and even Mr. Hedgeley, the copyist, looked shy upon them, for we saw them at times without any music-book. Amongst the instrumentalists lower down were similar novelties, which the exigencies of the times no doubt gave rise to. One gentleman, we were told, had been diligently enquiring into the character and meaning of the viola clef, whilst another, having the advantage of knowing the clef but not possessing the instrument, had strung up a violin with the strings of a tenor.

After an ironical reference to the "family parties" which appeared on the orchestra, the M.W. continues:

"The arrangements of the music were such as might be expected. There was nobody (in power) who appeared to know what was and what was not a decent score, and consequently the most ludicrous absurdities were at times enacted. Mr. Tutton, one of the best writers for brass instruments in the metropolis, was condemned to take a share in the vilest arrangement of the national air that we think we ever heard, the work of Mr. Kramer. . . . 'God save the Queen,' scored for a small brass band as Mr. Tutton can score, would have reflected some credit upon Sir George Smart's arrangements, and perhaps secured the shout from the assembled thousands which, as its absence has been commented on, we take leave to observe may have arisen from the panic which no doubt seized every person of a nervous temperament at hearing the national song disguised in such Bartholomew Fair habiliments."

Sir George Smart, after all, acted as organist and conductor in one, with the result that, as a writer put it, there was no conductor. This elicited a letter to the M.W. from "Philo-Pedale," who said, àpropos to the worthy knight's performance on the organ:

"Your advertising columns in this day's number give a glowing description of the 'awful' and sublime tones of the organ built by Davison and Hill for the Coronation. I must confess I heard but little of the instrument on the great day of ceremony, and shall be glad to know if the whole of it was actually in use at that time. I certainly never once recognised a pedal note."

To this the editor appended a remark: "Our correspondent would have heard an apparently very different instrument at the festival which followed the Coronation."

Another letter hints pretty broadly at the existence of downright corruption in the management. The writer says:

"Much indignation has been expressed by our brother professors at the engagements made of the Coronation band and chorus, and how such engagements should have been permitted seems a perfect enigma. Sir George Smart occupied the place of an able and more deserving organist (Mr. Turle), and hence there was virtually no conductor. Sir George Smart claims for these services the organ. I know not who made the engagements with the band and chorus; but that there were persons who could neither play nor sing is well known in all musical circles. . . . It is time a reform took place in the management of the State music—that jobbing in future be prohibited, or it may be but too truly avowed that the English are not a musical nation, and that they worship not God but Mammon."

It is to be presumed that the Earl Marshal's department compounded Sir George Smart's claim to the Coronation organ. But another demand to the same effect was less in order. With a sharp eye for the "main chance" so curiously characteristic of the spiritually minded, the Abbey Chapter tried a little game on their own account. I read in the M.W.:

"The Dean and Chapter of Westminster Abbey have advanced a claim to the organ erected by Hill and Davison for the Coronation, and that portion of the orchestra which extends beyond the choir. The value is estimated at nearly £1,000. It appears that the choir of the church is the Royal Chapel during the day of the Coronation, but that, owing to the increased state of the band and chorus, the orchestra was extended into the nave, a portion of the building over which the Dean of the Chapel Royal has no control."

A subsequent paragraph shows that the Earl Marshal was as ready to compound with the parsons as with the organist:

"Government have redeemed this instrument [the organ] and that portion of the orchestra to which the Dean and Chapter of Westminster had laid claim, by paying them five hundred pounds as a compensation fee."

There is one more reference to the Coronation music in the M.W. (copied from the Spectator), and I give it as an appropriate comment upon the whole business:

"Music, as a trade, is here more successfully cultivated by the low-minded, ignorant, and selfish, than by such as have laboured to exalt the character of their art. By a trade, we mean a mere sordid, miserable, jobbing, mercenary traffic—a calling in which every dirty and dishonest practice is rife, and which is no more akin to what is noble, elevated, and refined in art than that of a paint-grinder to the occupation of a Michael Angelo. The most recent illustration of these remarks will be found in the musical (dis) arrangements at the Coronation. These music-mongers, by elbowing, intriguing, and thrusting themselves into situations of temporary prominence, are, unfortunately, regarded as musicians—which character they are entitled to in the same sense and degree that the bellman who cries his Christmas verses may claim that of a poet." X.

The music of Brahms, like that of Bach and Schubert, found its way into England earlier than is generally supposed. Schumann's famous article on Brahms, entitled "Neue Bahnen," appeared in the Neue Zeitschrift für Musik of October 28, 1853, when his protégé was in his twenty-first year. The first publications of the young composer appeared at Leipzig in the following January. These included his first set of songs (Op. 3), of which the first (the dramatic "Liebestreu"), having the English title "Faithfulness," was re-published in London by Messrs. Ewer and Co. in November, 1854. (It is perhaps not altogether surprising to find in a "list of new music" that the name of the composer of the song is given as "Braham"!) Brahms's passionate song was reviewed in a manner more than usually severe by one of the two leading critics of the day, the late H. F. Chorley, who thus wrote: "The last-mentioned production, we conceive, might be kept in the archives of any Conservatory, to show the pupil what a song should not be. Gratuitous ugliness, uncouthness, difficulty and affectation have hardly ever been more firmly combined and in larger quantity. To add anything that could further displease or deceive the ear would puzzle the romanticist for whom Herr Brahms is too tame and conventional. Such romanticist, we doubt not, may be found in Germany—since it is only by following the ladder of Fame downwards towards chaos that we can conceive how and why Dr. Schumann has been considered by some as standing on a height. Those who have sojourned in the dark can discern colour where common eyes, used chiefly to daylight, cannot distinguish black from white." So much for Mr. Chorley, with his metaphorical sneer at Schumann. As a pleasant contrast to the foregoing anathema, the opinion of a leading critic of the present day on this identical song may be quoted: "Perhaps the most surprising thing in this first batch of compositions is . . . the powerful ballad 'Liebestreu.' . . . Surely no first-fruits of genius were ever more strikingly individual than these, or contained things of greater promise."

Shortly afterwards—the actual date is June 17, 1856—the late Madame Schumann gave her second Pianoforte Recital in England, when she included in her programme a "Sarabande and Gavotte (in the style of Bach)—Brahms." The other eminent critic of the day, no less antagonistic to any new composer than his journalistic comrade, dismissed Brahms in these terms: "The Sarabande of the 'new man,' Johannes Brahms, is extremely difficult, extremely uncouth, and not at all 'in the style of Bach.'" By the way, this "Sarabande and Gavotte (in the style of Bach)" does not seem to have been published. As might be expected, Mr. Manns was one of the first in this country to recognise the genius of Brahms. The "Grosse Serenade" in D (Op. 11), for orchestra, was first heard in England at the Crystal Palace Concert of April 25, 1863, but it scarcely attracted any notice. Only the last three movements were played, as the whole work was announced as being "too long for the occasion." The appreciative notice of Brahms in the programme-book of the concert, signed "A. M.," concluded thus: "This Serenade, though recently published [in 1860], was written some years back and exhibits, perhaps, less individuality than his later works, which are more independent of preceding composers. The movements are, however, very pleasing and will favourably introduce this new composer to the Crystal Palace audience."

A few days later, on May 5, 1863, the beautiful Sextet in B flat (Op. 18) was first performed in England at a Concert given by Messrs. Ewer and Co., the music publishers, who were the first to import Brahms's compositions. Four years afterwards, on February 25, 1867, the Sextet was added to the repertory of the Popular Concerts "at the express recommendation of Herr Joachim." The programme of that evening contained a reprint of a letter upon Brahms, signed "Groker Roore," which appeared in the Musical World of May 7, 1864, but with this addition: "Since then 'the hope of young Germany,' as some, 'Schumann's folly,' as others, call him, has composed and published a good deal more." "Schumann's folly"! We can only briefly refer to a few of the other first performances of Brahms's works which helped to establish his reputation in England. On March 9, 1872, Miss Baglehole, then a student at the Royal Academy of Music and a pupil of Mr. W. H. Holmes, played the Pianoforte Concerto in D minor (Op. 15); and on March 21, 1874, the exquisitely beautiful "Song of Destiny" ("Shicksalslied"), for orchestra and chorus, was given and "repeated by special desire" a fortnight afterwards, both works being introduced at the Crystal Palace. The "German Requiem," which so greatly added to the fame of Brahms throughout Germany, was first performed by the Philharmonic Society, April 2, 1873, under the late Sir William Cusins. It should not be forgotten that Mr. Willem Coenen was one of the first to introduce Brahms's Chamber music at his various concerts given twenty or thirty years ago. He was also the fortunate recipient of a letter from the composer, thanking him for the practical proof of his interest in his music, and in which Brahms said: "I heartily wish that the [English] public may show the same sympathetic interest as you do."

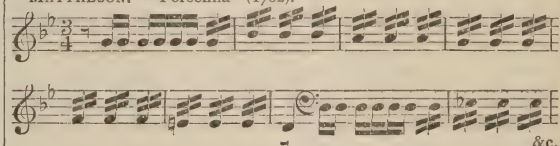
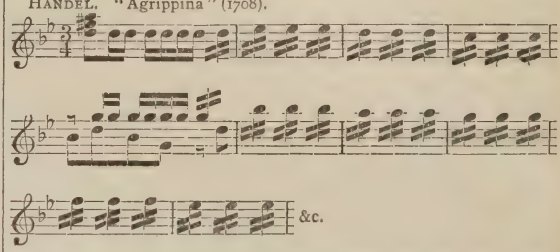
Brahms's known aversion to letter-writing is characteristically shown in the following incident, now first made public, and which at the same time furnishes an instance of the composer's geniality towards two of our countrymen. About twenty years ago an English music publisher, in an interview with Brahms, suggested to him the advantage of having his music issued in England simultaneously with its publication in Germany. Brahms declined the proposal on the ground that he would then have to write two letters instead of one each time a new work was issued! The place of meeting was at Hamburg, the birthplace of the composer, where he was temporarily sojourning. In order to show that there was "no animosity," Brahms was exceedingly cordial and friendly to the English publisher and his companion. He not only took them round to see all the sights of the city, but insisted upon paying every expense attending this "personally conducted" excursion.



The interesting and novel Concert entitled "The Development of the Overture," recently given under Herr Felix Mottl's exhilarating conductorship, deserves more than passing notice. For convenience of reference we give the scheme in tabulated form:—

Overture.	Composer.	Date.	Aged.
"Agrippina"	Handel	1708	23
"Iphigenia in Aulis"	Gluck	1773	59
"Magic Flute"	Mozart	1791	35
"Leonora" (No. 3)	Beethoven	1805	35
"Freischütz"	Weber	1820	34
"Hebrides"	Mendelssohn	1830 (revised 1832)	21
"King Lear"	Berlioz	1831	28
"Flying Dutchman"	Wagner	1841	28
"Tannhäuser"	Wagner	1845	32
"Meistersinger"	Wagner	1862	49



We have added the ages of the several composers when they wrote the specimen works that were performed, a comparison of which is not without interest. The period of time covered between the composition of the "Agrippina" and the "Meistersinger" overtures is practically 150 years. Two of the examples—the "Hebrides" and the "Flying Dutchman"—owed their inception to nature, with the sea for their impressions.

Considering the unique occasion, the programme-book of the Concert was singularly inadequate. In fact, it was made up of an English translation of Wagner's essay "On the Overture," written in 1841, in which detailed reference is only made to two of the ten overtures performed. With the exception of a few dates, there was no historical information whatever. It would have been interesting if it had recorded that Handel was indebted to Mattheson, his rival, for the fugal subject in his "Agrippina" overture. We give the subject from Mattheson's "Porsenna," written in 1702, followed by that of Handel in his overture:—

Mattheson. "Porsenna" (1702).

Handel. "Agrippina" (1708).

From this it appears that Handel began his "appropriations" at a very early period of his career. An interesting fact connected with the overture to the "Flying Dutchman" should, we think, have been noticed—viz., that Wagner received his first impressions for this graphic tone-picture on his way to London in 1839, when he was only twenty-six. Accompanied by his little wife and a huge Newfoundland dog, Wagner sailed from Pillau, a port on the Baltic, to London. The voyage lasted three and a half weeks, and was rich in disasters. "Three times," he records, "we suffered from the effects of heavy storms. The passage through the Narrows made a wondrous impression on my fancy. The legend of the 'Flying Dutchman' (he had read it in Heine's Salon) was confirmed by the sailors, and the circumstance gave it a distinct and characteristic colour in my mind."

It would be interesting to know upon what principle members of the Philharmonic Society are elected. The membership is limited to sixty, and as vacancies occur they are filled up from the ranks of the associates, who pay their entrance fees and annual subscriptions, while they have no voice in managing the affairs of the Society. Without in the least degree casting any reflections upon the merits of the younger musicians who enter the higher grade through the suffrages of the members themselves, it may reasonably be asked, why such veterans as Mr. Manns and Mr. Kellow Pye, as well as others we could mention, are allowed to remain as associates?

